Grocery Prices Inflame Wives

Not since Susan B. Anthony and her suffragettes thumped on the heads of their husbands for the right to vote American women have been so embroiled in a movement. The price of hambone has driven housewives from the kitchen into the street. A petition protest which began in Phoenix, Ariz., over the cost of bread, has flowed into city after city across the country.

For the past few weeks, Carbondale housewives have been planning their assault against rising prices. An organization called HELP (Housewives Effort for Lower Prices) has been circulating petitions and gaining momentum before taking their case to local newspaper managers.

Tonight the group's leaders will meet with representatives from chain stores in the home of Mrs. Milton Edelman to discuss the situation. Last week the committee conducted a one-day price study in Carbondale and neighboring communities.

The comparisons indicated that on the average, grocery food prices were 1.8 per cent higher, and they were 4.3 per cent higher than those in Cartersville Monday and Tuesday, said that he has "some ideas" for the report, but no report as yet.

The report may or may not call for changes, according to a spokesman in the president's office. Ruffner indicated that the report will be made as soon as possible.

Background material and an agenda were mailed to board members this week.

The President's Office also indicated that two additional students, both from the Edwardsville campus, have been invited to speak on the housing situation at the board meeting. They are John Carus, assistant professor of education, and Terry Proffitt, student at Edwardsville.

Student attendance at the Board of Trustees meeting will still be limited because of space requirements in the meeting room. Both the administration officials feel a small number of representatives can be effectively speak for students.

WHO'D BRING A MUTT TO AN NFL GAME?

The gentleman in the black hat doesn’t seem accustomed to seeing dogs who are quite interested in five points of football as in John Rush, Southern’s Saluki mascot. The other spectators, however, are much more interested in what’s happening on the field. Rush accompanied the Marching Salukis to St. Louis Sunday night when they were invited to provide entertainment at Busch Stadium during the St. Louis-Chicago game. (Photo by Rich Kohl)

ARMS AND THE MAN

On the Horns of a Dilemma

By its very nature a work of art demands criticism; perception is an evaluate process. However, the critic’s function is not to be a prophet, but rather to provide the spectator with understanding of the relationships between the spectator and the play. To be effective the play must possess the special problem of drama criticism; some are of opinion that a negative review brands the play; an "off limits" sign. The scene is set if one were to say that ARMS AND THE MAN, Southern Illinois University's first production of the season, seems to have been less than a felicitous choice, he runs the risk of turning audiences away for the rest of the season. On the other hand the whole encomium intended to lure an audience in, at any cost, promises that which it cannot deliver, only helps to create an unhealthy atmosphere for art.

Another alternative would be to remain silent, hoping that what appears to be an error will be overlooked and forgotten and that no one's feelings will be hurt. But saying nothing is a contradiction in terms; it is a blanket denial of a problem which is both obvious and cruel.

This, therefore, is my dilemma. And I would welcome comments from anyone interested in seeing SIU boast the foremost university theatre in the country. Presently, we not only have one of the finest theatre buildings in the country but, more importantly, an almost embarrassing plethora of talent in the drama department's faculty and associates. And there was clear evidence at the beginning new facilities could be put to excellent use. To cite only one example, JULIA, which was presented at SIU. The following is the first of these articles.

ARMS AND THE MAN

On the Horns of a Dilemma

Student opinion is by no means restricted to matters of political and social concern. It ranges across the whole gamut of university life and, in order to maintain the balance of content appropriate to the varied interest of the student body, we have decided to introduce a new regular section of articles providing commentary on the dramatic and theatrical productions presented at SIU. The following is the first of these articles.

Philip R. Dematteis

Since nothing much has been heard from the student protest movement for the past two weeks, many students are wondering what it is all about. It hasn't. The rallies and demonstrations have served their purpose, for the time being, of calling wide public attention to the situation in Southern at least, the meaning of the beast is something that we have been going through channels, as it always does. At the same time, the rest of us are continuing to go outside the channels—which is really the only place we can go if we want to be heard. The following are some examples of the things we are doing and the results we are achieving.

In an effort to attract wider support for the cause, we have written to twenty-five national organizations, including the National Student Association, the National Educational Association, and the National Student Union. All were waiting for replies to these letters we have been speaking before civic groups and talking to various community leaders, explaining our situation and the goals we hope to achieve.

Several students have gone, or are soon going, back home to speak before assemblies at their high schools informing them of the conditions they will face if they come to Southern.

In line with this last point, a letter has been drafted which will soon be sent to the junior and senior class at every public high school in the state of Illinois, graphically describing the miserable conditions here and encouraging any prospective S.J.I.U. student to look for another University.

We are also laying plans to make a legal test of the in loco parentis concept. We are presently in contact with several prominent lawyers, both local and out-of-town, who have shown interest in helping us. We hope to show that the concept of in loco parentis, and the policies which flow from it, are inconsistent with statutory and constitutional law, thereby violating the charter of the Board of Trustees, which was granted by the General Assembly. If this suit is successful, it should have the effect of eliminating in loco parentis altogether.

In the meantime, we need your help. There will be a Board of Trustees meeting at Edwardsville on November 10. The budget and vehicle situation will be discussed. This meeting is open to the public. We are asking you to be present and participate. We might have some buses students up to Edwardsville for this meeting and if we can change the meeting place to a larger room, we will wait right outside for our student leaders to report to us on what they have accomplished.

Our presence should serve both to give our student leaders moral support, and to remind the Board of Trustees members that students who are something more than figures on an enrollment chart. We may be able to change fifty cents a person to partially defray the cost of the buses, but that is pretty cheap for a 200-mile round trip. We will have cards, slips, and tables, where you can sign up for the trip, let's try to have a big turnout.

You can also write letters to your parents, your hometown newspapers, and state representatives, informing them of the situation here. And if you have any information, suggestions, or ideas that might help to volunteer to work with us, please write to Student Civil Liberties, Box 643, Murphysboro, Illinois.

Chapter I

There was a man in the southern part of the land of Ill whose name was Jeb, and that man was good and upright, and one that feared the Lord, and eschewed evil. And there was another man, Hael, that had a horn and a chariot. And surely this man was good, as he rode with the sun each morning and went in his chariot to worship at the Temple of the Lord. Thus did Jeb continually, for what seemed like all of his days.

The Lord was exceedingly pleased with this man, and said unto Satan, Hael thou considerest this servant Jeb, that feareth the Lord and escheweth evil? Then Satan answered the Lord and said, Doth Jeb fear you for nought?

Hael not thou meditate about him, and about his tent, and his chariot, and all that he hath on every side? Thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land. But put forth thine hand now, and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face. And Satan rose up in the presence of the Lord, and said, Yea, all that the Lord hath will be given to the right worship to the Temple of the Lord, but put forth thine hand again and touch that which he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face. So saying, Satan went forth from the Lord, for his presence was required at another gathering in the same city.

And there was a day when Jeb was in his tent and a messenger came forth from the Temple of the Lord and said unto Jeb, The Lord commandeth you to arise to-day and gather all about him. And Jeb arose and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and he went, he and all the people that were about him, and the people that were about his tent, to gather in another city, went forth from the Lord.

And one day when Jeb was eating and drinking within his tent, a horn came in his tent for he was old enough to eat and drink with his friends in the glory of the Lord. And a messenger came forth from the Temple of the Lord and said unto Jeb, The Lord commandeth you to arise to-day and go forth to another city. And Jeb arose and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and he went, he and all the people that were about him, and the people that were about his tent, to gather in another city.

And then Jeb arose and rent his mantle, and shaved his head, and he went, he and all the people that were about him, and the people that were about his tent, to gather in another city.

Naked came I out of my mother's womb and naked shall I return thither; the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken.

The Lord was exceedingly pleased and said unto Satan, Thus it is that he returns, Hael thou considered my servant Jeb, that feareth the Lord, and escheweth evil? and still he holdeth fast his integrity, although thou movest me against him, to destroy him without cause. And Satan answered the Lord, and said, Yea, all that the Lord hath will be given to the right worship to the Temple of the Lord, but put forth thine hand again and touch that which he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face. So saying, Satan went forth from the Lord, for his presence was required at another gathering in the same city.

And there was a day when Jeb was in his tent and a messenger came forth from the Temple of the Lord and said, Behold the Lord requires your tent as a burnt offering.

After this Jeb opened his mouth, and cursed his day. And Jeb spake, and said, Let the day perish wherein I was born, and the night in which it was said, There is a man-child conceived in my bowels, and the Lord declared that each of his seed shall be a burnt offering. Let the day be darkness and chaos; let not the Lord regard from henceforth the pleasure that I have in order and light. Why died I not from the womb? why did not God take the ghost when I came out of the belly? For now my heart is full of bitterness and my spirit is been with the Lord and counselors of the earth, which built desolate places for themselves; or with princes that had gold, which filled their houses with silver. Why is order and light given to a man whose way is in dust, and whom the Lord hath hedged in?

For the thing which I greatly feared is come upon me, and that which I was afraid of is come unto me, I was not in safety, neither had I rest, neither was I quiet, but only happy, yet trouble came.

The friends of Jeb, who had heard of his plight from afar, came to comfort and console him, saying, Things have ever been thus; thus will they ever be. But the soothing words could not ease the seeming mind of Jeb, for he was sorely troubled. He arose, and once again rent his mantle, for he was too poor to buy one, and said unto his friends, Surely if I remain in the southern part of the land of Ill I will always be in double jeopardy, for I will live in fear not only of what has been demanded of me by the Lord, but of what will be demanded.

So saying, he sold what few things he owned, returned his rent, and went to be heard of goats; thus did Jeb never more go to worship at the Temple of the Lord, but went instead to find greener pastures.

Amidst the turmoil over the housing problem that are presently plaguing SIU, there comes a voice in the dark. This is the University of Massachusetts.

One sentence from a newsletter that is being sent to parents of students should illustrate the responsibility shown by that administration.

By fulfilling their (students) needs within a carefully designed framework, we hope to avoid the large migrations from dormitories that have faced other universities and have resulted in very difficult problems.

The manner in which the University of Massachusetts is fulfilling the needs of the students is by a comprehensive liberalization of dormitory regulations (e.g. elimination of hours for all but freshmen women).

Apparently they feel that since they may be faced with a fairly common problem in the future, the time to act is now. They also seem to feel that the action to be taken should be for the welfare of the students—not the dormitory owners.

The administration at SIU could benefit greatly from this example. The fact that there are a great many dormitories in Carbondale and that these dormitories are not filled does not mean that the solution lies in forcing students to live in them. This neither eliminates the problem for the future does it reduce the frustration of the student.

As SIU expands, accepting brighter students and more conscientious students, the academic pressures on them increase. It is the responsibility of the University to provide the best possible environment for students to live and work when they are not in class.

And don't misunderstand the meaning of environment. The student's desire to live in a dwelling and his compatibility with roommates go a long way toward making his environment academically and socially productive.

Since the University desires to help in preparing the student for the responsibilities of adult life, it should not prohibit the student from assuming that role—especially when, as in many cases, the student already may vote, legally drink, own a car, get married, etc.

Notice that all of these examples are rights guaranteed to him, not bought or "earned" from the University. Because he possesses these rights as a citizen, no special group should be allowed to retrace them. One cannot sign himself into slavery. Nor does the signing of a contract with a University give that University the power to decide which rights a student still maintains as a citizen.

Education-Piller of Democracy

It was my pleasure, upon reading last week's KA, to note that one Phil Weber, frequent contributor, expressed his agreement with my viewpoint on compulsory military service. To my chagrin, however, he misstated my viewpoints, and, indeed, my argument in favor of compulsory educational programs.

One of the pillars of democracy is an educated public. My argument was that unless Mr. Weber can understand the logic of my conclusions it must remain: while compulsory military service is un-democratic, compulsory educational programs for the maintenance of democratic self-determination are democratic.

Two weeks ago von Inkspromover led a raid on the Edwardsville Student Newspaper and burned the entire press run because "a bunch of kids changed the name without asking first and then kept it." The editor, Larry McDonald, said, "I don't have enough information yet, but it looks like it might be a case of student retaliation."
Carbondale Housewives Meet Tonight With Store Managers

The store managers are somewhat apprehensive about the action of the housewives. The managers maintain that food prices are beyond their control, because they are governed by other factors in the economy.

The women of HELP are also seeking to use trading stamps and the "gimmick" games eliminated because they believe the costs are reflected in the food prices. The store managers say the decision to give stamps or have the contests are made by levels in the companies, not by themselves.

Paul Reuscher, the manager for Boren's IGA, said, "I think they (HELP) are attacking the problem from the wrong angle. Everything is handled on a cost-plus basis, and when our costs rise, we have to increase prices."

A. E. Kelley, of Kelley's Big Star market, commented on the charge that prices were higher in Carbondale than neighboring towns by saying, "Area competition governs the price. The prices are lower in Marion because the competition is tighter there and they are in a price war."

The meeting is planned to be between the HELP steering committee and the managers. One of the managers said he hoped the meeting wouldn't turn into "a lot of emotional women asking us questions we can't possibly answer."

Cadets Raise $50 in Support of Korean Child

The advanced cadet corps of the AFROTC detachment is $50 nearer its goal for the foster parents' plan in which the cadets are participating.

The money is the result of the cadets' first fund raising project this quarter, a contest to select a cover cadet for the SU-AFROTC guide. Votes were 10 cents apiece and Robert A. Littlelee, a sophomore from Zeigler, won.

The advanced cadets, members of the Foster Parents Plan, Inc., will be sponsoring projects throughout the school year to raise the remaining $130 needed for the annual support of their child.

The foster child is Chaemin Ye, an 11-year-old girl from South, Korea. She receives a monthly cash grant of $8 plus items such as clothing, medical care and toys.

Other foster parents of this plan include entertainers Jack Benny, Pat Boone and Bing Crosby, honorees Conrad N. Hilton and Sen. Paul H. Douglass.

Attacks Fail to Halt Saigon's Celebration

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Defying Viet Cong terror, civilians paraded Tuesday night in a generally festive national holiday mood despite an earlier artillery attack on the center of the city. Last words from Saigon on the Korean front, gave a new lease on overnight stop at Anchorage in the South Korean National Assembly Monday, are now in South Korea as an occasion were Thai, Turkish and the embassy parade Tuesday night, featuring lighted floats which wound around the central marina, and the area hit in the morning attack.

Troop Buildup Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pentagon sources predicted Tuesdays would begin dispatching American troops to Viet Nam in numbers which will elevate U.S. strength in the country to a year-end total of about 342,000. This is 46,000—or roughly three days—allied official sources' assessments of the number of American personnel on the scene in the Far East, and its supporting elements—above the present force level in the 250,000 category.

It is an open secret at the Pentagon that the next major deployment of troops to the war is likely to involve elements of the 9th Infantry Division based at Ft. Riley, Kan. Defense officials dismissed an improvement in the present administration's holding off additional fighting men to Viet Nam until after next week's elections.

They pointed out that the 9th Division, activated last year, began training only in January and was not scheduled to be ready for action until late this year. The event is virtually combat-ready now. By official figures, there are about 11,000 men in Viet Nam, not counting about 50,000 seamen offshore in vessels of the 7th Fleet. This compares with 148,300 in Viet Nam a year ago and with 327,000 in-country troops in Korea at the peak of that conflict.

Sources also foresaw a continuing increase in the U.S. commitment to the war after the first of the year to well beyond 400,000.

In the final analysis, the buildup decision hinges on what military officials believe will be needed to overcome the Communists in Southeast Asia. But manpower increases also are necessarily linked to budgetary planning, and the services have been studying the process of laying out their money needs.

With Viet Nam demands growing, over-all U.S. military strength has continued to swell beyond planned levels.

The announced goal of 3,093,000 men in the armed forces by mid-1967 was made for full employment of manpower.

Worldwide strength now stands at 3,228,300 or 135,000 above planned totals. Each of the services is well above projected strength.

The expansion of the military has been accompanied by corresponding increases in the draft.

During the past six months, draft calls have averaged over 34,000.

Ghana-Guinea Fight Continues

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—The Organization of African Unity dispatched a mission from Accra to Lagos for an effort to settle the Ghana-Guinea dispute which imperils the pending African Summit Conference.

Within the two feuding nations:

—President Sekou Touré of Guinea, addressing a session in Conakry, his capital, for further demonstrations against the United States to protest the arrest in Accra of 19 Guineans.

—President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, speaking in behalf of Ghana radio, as quoted by a London correspondent as saying that Ghana radio has released more than 100 Ghanians supposedly held against the government. Nkrumah also said, however, the captive diplomats insist no Ghanians wish to return from Guinea.

Marcos Planning Peace Conference

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines told U. N. Secretary-General U Thant today he intends to go ahead with plans for an all-Asian peace conference on Viet Nam as a follow-up to the Manila summit meeting.

Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez of the Philippines conveyed Marcos's plans to Thant during a 20-minute meeting and told a newsmen later that the secretary general expressed interest.

Lopez said Burroughs had agreed to be the host country for such a meeting, but he added that no dates had been discussed, nor was there any firm list of participants.

PIKEVILLE Ky. (AP) - Four magistrates couldn't get out of jail for the regular meeting of Fiscal Court on Tuesday so Fiscal Court came to them.

During the historic 15-minute session, the four quickly approved the room-and-board bills they've run up in a week behind bars.

But they took no action on the Pike County school budget which carries a 10 per cent tax increase for property owners.

"We're standing firm," said Magistrate Taylor Justice. "We'll never authorize more taxes."

The magistrates, who make up one-half the membership of Fiscal Court, the county's governing Body, turned down the budget last Tuesday and were sentenced to indefinite terms by Circuit Judge W. D. Sparks.

Sparks pointed out the budget had been cleared by the state and that Fiscal Court had no choice but to go along or go to jail.

"Under state law, you cannot reject the budget unless it is a fraudulent one," the judge explained. "This one is as honest and as legal as they make them."

Four magistrates voted favorably but Justice and his companions balked, claiming the tax boost actually was 20 per cent. Last year the state's highest court, in ordering all property assessed at 100 per cent of its fair cash value, stipulated that such taxes could not be raised more than 10 per cent.

Sparks, who has the authority to keep the four in jail indefinitely, prevented them from leaving Tuesday so they could appear at the courthouse.

Arizona Hunter Has Bad Day MESA, Ariz. (AP) - Sheriff's officers report a hunter who was shot accidentally in one leg when his pistol discharged, shot himself in the other leg in attempting to summon aid.

In the Arizona Court, 23, of Mesa was hospitalized but reported in good condition after the accident which occurred Monday about 35 miles east of Phoenix.

Court reportedly tripped while hunting in a desert area, and as he fell his pistol went off. The bullet hit his right thigh and exited near the knee. Hoping to attract the attention of two brothers hunting nearby, Court decided to fire another shot into the air. But as he was withdrawing the weapon from his holster, the gun went off again and struck him in the left thigh.

Two veteran senators, Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., and Thurston M. Morton, R-Ky., head their respective party committees.

Republicans point to the Illinois seat held for three terms by Democrat Paul H. Douglas as the one they are most confident of picking up Nov. 8. They say GOP candidate Charles H. Percy is well ahead of Douglas as the campaign enters its final stage.

Democrats concede this is a tough one for them, but insist that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Sen. Robert Kennedy and others have given them a lift that will make it a net gain of two to four seats in the Nov. 6 election.

Both sides say that the real battlegrounds are in a dozen states.

Decatur Teachers Boycott Schools DECATUR (AP) — More than 650 of Decatur's public school teachers stayed away from classes Tuesday to back up demands for salary raises, better working conditions and a strike. But the teachers called it "professional holiday," got together and engaged in a mass meeting from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Decatur County Fairgrounds Pavilion.

The boycott was sponsored by the Decatur Education Association, which represents approximately 180 of the 1,100 teachers in the public school system. A total of 1,100 teachers is more than 1,000.

Some members and non-teachers went to their classrooms. But some schools were so understaffed they closed by noon. Among them were the four high schools.

Today's Weather Partly cloudy and continued cold today. The record high for this date is 81 degrees in 1946. The record low is 13 degrees set in 1911 according to the SIU Climatology Laboratory.

Senator Race Campaign Experts Predict Strong Democratic Majority

By Joe Hall WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats are ready to pull out the stops. Senate campaign strategists agree on one thing about the Senate of the next Congress—it will have a strong Democratic majority, Democratic predict that the 67-33 margin they enjoyed in the recently adjourned session will be increased by one to four seats. Republicans counter with a forecast that they will make a net gain of two to four seats in the Nov. 6 election.

Both sides say that the real battlegrounds are in a dozen states.

AMBULANCE SERVICE—SIU students who need the services of an ambulance can now call for one at any hour of the day. Six drivers under the supervision of David Smith, shown below demonstrating the resuscitation unit, are available on a round-the-clock basis.

On Call 24 Hours

Health Service Gets Ambulance

Service

Ambulance service is now available to SIU students 24 hours a day. According to David Smith, the ambulance supervisor.

Smith, a former police detective, is one of the six drivers of the vehicle which was purchased at the beginning of the summer term. Smith said the vehicle became a necessity when the Security Office announced that it would no longer be able to take injured students to the Health Service.

Smith, although an agriculture major, has had previous ambulance driving experience in his home town. When he heard of the plan to purchase an emergency vehicle, he applied for the job of supervisor.

The ambulance, which is a converted 1965 van, contains all the necessary life-saving equipment. It also has a shortwave radio system which connects it with the Security Office.

Smith explained that the six drivers split the day into shifts. One driver is always on ambulance call. Smith also said one of his responsibilities is to hire and fire the drivers.

Engineers to Hear Talk

The Engineering Club will meet at 9 p.m. Wednesday in Room 214 of the Agriculture Building.

Carbondale Residents Unite To Protest Vitamin Regulations

A group of Carbondale residents has formed a movement protesting federal regulations on the purchase of vitamins. Mrs. Milton Altshuler, spokesman for the group, said, "If the regulations go into effect, vitamins will be much more expensive and some may become unavaiable." The regulations, which were released in June, were designed to give consumers more information concerning vitamins and to prevent the consumers from being misled, according to Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA, Goddard said, listed 17 ingredients which it considered essential for human nutrition. The regulations, he said, provide that only these ingredients should be included in vitamins for human consumption.

Goddard said some multivitamin compounds, listed as many as 75 required ingredients.

Mrs. Altshuler said the regulations did not differentiate between nutrients which Kington to Exhibit Jewelry in Chicago

Sewage in SIU Lake Brings Suit

By Holim Kim

A lake on the Edwardsville campus is making news all the way to the Illinois Supreme Court. Actually, it's not the lake but what goes into it—sewage. It seems a couple of residents downstream don't like the arrangement and have sued SIU. They contend that the presence of sewage decreased the value of their properties. SIU, on the other hand, maintains that what goes into the lake is clear water after the sewage goes through a treatment plant. The University argues that the system has been approved by the State Sanitary Water Board.

The injunction started in September, 1964, at a local court. Later it went to the Fifth District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon. But the decisions of the courts, complex and vague, have been satisfactory to neither party.

The property owners want a pipeline installed to carry the discharged sewage. The University feels that it'll cost a lot.

C. Richard Gruny, University legal counsel, who keeps close contact with the law firms of Dury and Dury of Edwardsville which is handling the case, says there is no way of knowing which way the decision will go.

Seven or eight legal issues are involved, Gruny says, and the Supreme Court may base its decision on any one of them.

The suing property owners did get partial relief—the University was enjoined from discharging the sewage into the stream during the Litigation. On the other hand, the lower courts did affirm SIU's right to build a dam (the lake).

In the meantime the sewage dumped into the lake is subject to an air-conditioning condenser installed beneath the lake. That causes the mushrooming of algae, and to kill them the caretakers dump sacks of chemicals into the lake.

And the University is keeping its fingers crossed—if the sewage treatment plant breaks down, the property owners may have something to really holier about.

Special Education Topic for Speech

SIU Professor's Work Stolen

Reward Offered for Missing Sculptures

Any information concerning two bronze castings stolen from the art studio at 206 E. Park St., is extremely important to Milton F. Sullivan, associate professor of art.

The two castings done by Sullivan, measure four by six inches, and four by eight inches. They were reported missing from the studio sometime during the second week of school.

The castings were important, according to Sullivan, because they were the first visual realizations of a problem concerning the abstract development of the figure.

"These abstracts cannot be duplicated," said Sullivan, "because in the activity of making art there is only one moment when certain emotional and intellectual factors will lead to the production of a particular creative project."

The abstracts, which were small prototypes essential in making up sculptures of monumental scale later in the year, were comparable to the rough beginning data of a science project, said Sullivan.

"Aesthetic research, like scientific research, is dependent upon the synthesis of data at various intervals between the research," said Sullivan. "The castings were an important part of consolidation, concept, which must proceed any further artistic work on the idea," Sullivan continued.

Sullivan is offering a reward of a sculpture of his own, worth about $100, to anyone producing information which would lead to the recovery of his castings.

Major SIU Projects in Last Stages

Two major building projects and a large remodeling job in the oldest building on campus should be completed within the next two months.

Construction supervisor William Volk said a three-story office-classroom building adjoining Lawson Hall should be ready for furniture and equipment installation by mid-November or early December.

The building will house the dean and department offices in the School of Business of Government, the offices of the Graduate School and College of Liberal Arts and Sciences deans, and classrooms for business education.

A classroom-laboratory wing of the Technology Building group is scheduled for completion by the winter term, Volk said. Another wing, fronting the Arena, is 50 percent occupied now and the remainder is ready for a final checkout. The third component of the group, designed for research laboratories, should be finished by the spring term, according to Volk.

Remodeling of the first floor and part of the second at Old Main for the SIU Museum should be completed by the middle of December, according to Associate Architect Alf Skaret. After the Museum moves in, its old home in Altgeld Hall will be taken over by the Department of Music.

Team Receives ‘Player of Week’ Award

By Tom Wood

The SIU coaching staff’s selection for the Outstanding Player of the Week Award due to a good job of summarizing Head Coach Ellis Rainsberger’s feelings about the team’s performance in the 31-13 Homecoming victory over East Carolina was Coach Ellis Rainsberger.

The staff selected the entire team to be named recipients of the awards.

Rainsberger described Saturday’s game as “the best overall team performance of the year by the Salukis.”

He added that it was definitely the outstanding defensive performance thus far.

“East Carolina is the team of type that usually wears an opponent down with hard hitting and its single-wing attack,” Rainsberger said.

“We had to make our men aware that they would have to play this type of football from the beginning to beat them.

“Those guys are developing a personality distinctive of a good team—that is strong hitters and hursters all of the time,” Rainsberger added.

“Each back has to block for the other and the line has to hit real hard and they did a good job of it.”

Rainsberger pointed out that one thing underlines the team’s outstanding performance in all phases of Saturday’s game—that is “the team’s tremendous character and pride, especially in being able to come back from the 33-6 loss to North Texas.”

Rainsberger said, “The improvement we’ve worked for and stressed each week was there Saturday.”

Rainsberger felt that East Carolina was a harder hitting team than North Texas and this would account for the number of injuries the Pirates sustained during the course of the game Saturday.

“Thie team’s field goal from 23 yards out may have been the most crucial play of the game, according to Rainsberger.

“The kick was the longest,” Rainsberger said.

According to Rainsberger, northern Michigan has averaged about 22 passes a game.

They have excellent speed and very good kickoff and punt return teams.

Rainsberger said that about 20 high school football players from the Kewanee and Illinois area were guests of the Athletic Department for the Homecoming game and the coaches had a chance to talk to each on an individual basis.

‘You’re Darn Tootin’ It’s Snowing in Marquette

By Tom Wood

Salukis May Play in Snow Saturday;
Marquette Under Blanket of 4 Inches

Reports from the Marquette, Mich., Weather Bureau suggest that the Salukis may be playing Saturday’s opponent, Northern Michigan University, in the snow.

The Weather Bureau reported four inches of snow on the ground Tuesday and more snow flurries are expected and on for about 24-36 hours.

The temperature in Marquette was 29 degrees at 2 p.m. and is not expected to rise much above that for a while.

If conditions prevail the Salukis will be facing adverse weather conditions for the first time this season.

Whether it is snowing or not, the team will probably face sloppy field conditions.

In the past 10 seasons, the SWI winter sports teams — gymnastics, swimming and diving, and wrestling — have averaged 356-128-3. This record includes two NCAA championships in gymnastics and two second place finishes in the NCAA college division in basketball.

The gymnastics team, coached by Meade, has established itself as the top team in the country. The Saluki gymnastics team has put together a string of 50 straight dual meet victories, a record which Meade’s team lost in the 1966-67 season when the Salukis finished with a 9-3 slate.

Meade has a record of 81-14 in the last 10 years for a winning percentage of .859. Meade will have the best team in Southern Illinois’ history this year. I’ll be disappointed if we don’t win our third national championship this year.

Meade agrees. He has 11 returning letterwinners. Headlining this list are Fred Dennis, second place finisher in the rings in the NCAA last season; Dale Hardt, third place in the NCAA in the trampoline; Ron Harstad, third in the parallel bars; Mike Farmer, fourth in the long horse; and Hutch Devorak, fifth in the trampoline. Meade also has a senior pin­ ner, Jack Hultz, Steve Whitmire, Barry Meier, and Joe Polizzano as returning letter­ men. Transfer students which could provide Meade with the needed depth are Joe DuFrene, from Iowa State, and sopho­ more Pete Hemmerling, Wayne Borkowski, and Jim Gibbons.

The Saluki gymnasts, according to Meade, will have exceptional depth in floor exercise, trampoline, long horse and hori-zontal bars. This depth should come in handy because the Saluki schedule includes three Big Ten opponents, three foes from Big Ten teams from the Western Athletic Conference and one from the Central Missouri Conference.

Coach Jack Hartman’s base­ ball team hopes to make the NCAA College Division championship instead of finishing second for the third straight year.

Hartman’s plight is not bolstered by the fact that four of last year’s starters plus two of three in the middle weights.

Daugherty has a record of 78-18 this season. Daugherty is optimistic about his swimming team in the first 20-6 years. This winter swim­ ning team is good for another fine season.

The Harlem Globetrotters, perhaps this nation's greatest goodwill ambassador and definitely the funniest athletic unit ever discovered, will appear at the SIU Arena tonight at 8 p.m.

The "Trotters" will play the New York Nationals. The team that travels around with the Globetrotters and tries to outscore them on basketball while the Globetrotters do their clowning.

The reputation of the Globetrotter as a goodwill medium is well known. The Trotters have traveled to 87 countries on six continents in their 40-year history. Their zany style of basketball mayhem has delighted more than 10 million fans.

Leader of the basketball clowns is center Meadowlark Lemon. No college team ever had a center like Lemon. Meadowlark has been with the team for the past 12 years and his actions on the court have given him the label of "The Clown Prince of Basketball," Lemon also fashions himself as a singer.

From time to time the Trotters take the floor and the team goes through its pre-game drills to the music of "Sweet Georgia Brown," fans are in for a treat, as far as the sport of basketball is concerned.

The team was originated by the late Abe Saperstein who believed the team could become the world's most famous with its basketball antics. The record of the Globetrotters is impressive. The Trotters have a won-lost record of 2,080-122 with the last loss coming in 1962 to the College All-Stars.

Lemon will be in the limelight most of the evening, but when the star gets tired and needs a rest, the remainder of the Trotters know what to do when it comes to antics.

Freddie Neal is another crowd pleaser, although not of the Lemon type. Neal gets his kicks out of dribbling a basketball, his favorite trick is to dribble around the opponent, weaving back and forth, and daring the defense to steal the ball. This is nearly impossible for Neal who will no doubt show tonight.

General admission tickets only for tonight's Globetrotters' game will be on sale from 8:30 a.m. to noon in the Athletic Ticket Office, Room 118 of the Arena. These tickets are $1 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

Previously, only reserve seat tickets had been sold. But the ticket office announced late Tuesday that the general admission tickets would be sold today. No reserve seat tickets will be sold this morning, but they will be available from 1:40 p.m. in the Arena or at the Information Desk in the University Center.

Rounding out the team are Troy Collier, Hubert Aubry, Bill Barney and Cenrailia's Bobby Joe Lucas.

The Globetrotter routines haven't changed much through the years, but Lemon and Company are always ready to improvise, as the game progresses.

Some of the more famous antics of the Trotters include the deflated basketball trick, the basketball with the rubber band attached trick, the magic game antic and the injured Meadowlark gag. No matter how many times a person sees these little tricks, he never tires of them.

With the death of Saperstein, many thought the Harlem Globetrotters would fold, but that skepticism was short-lived and the Globetrotters have now two complete teams, a team that campaigns in the East and one that competes in the West.

Tonight's game is sponsored by the SIU Intercollegiate Athletics Committee.

Salukis Have Three Chances To Win 4 Games This Year

SIU has three more chances to win four football games in a single season for the first time since 1963.

In 1963, Southern compiled a 4-5 mark before dipping to a pair of dismal 2-8 years.

Currently the Salukis stand at 3-3-1 after playing what would appear to be the toughest part of the schedule. This included four Missouri Valley Conference teams.

The rest of the schedule gives the Salukis several marks to shoot for.

First, there is the four victory goal, which they will go after in Marquette, Mich., Saturday.
