IBHE to examine recommendation

SIU trustees to propose no tuition policy

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Elimination of tuition at state universities will be proposed to an Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) committee in Champaign Monday by an SIU Board of Trustees committee.

William W. Allen, chairman, released the committee report late Friday. The report requests the IBHE's Stalnaker committee on tuition to "attempt to examine whether or not higher education is a right and not a privilege," and to develop a tuition policy which would make higher education equally available to all Illinois citizens.

"It is time for the State of Illinois to quit double-talking about higher education being a right, and put its money where its mouth is and provide higher education opportunity to all its citizens," Allen said.

Allen said the present policies of the state make higher education "a right of the poor, a privilege of the rich, and a serious problem for large numbers of students from middle-class families." These students cannot qualify for state scholarships, and they do not have the money necessary for a college education, he said.

The SIU Board committee report recommends the Stalnaker committee should "explore a step by step transition which would (provide) higher education in Illinois on a tuition-free basis." Allen said Friday the report was supported by as many of his board colleagues as he could reach.

The Stalnaker committee is meeting Monday to study the tuition question. SIU's Board formed their committee one month ago to make recommendations to the Stalnaker committee.

The State of Illinois now operates as if elementary and secondary education and some lower level college education (community colleges which are tuition-free) is a right, but that all other higher education is a privilege, the report said.

The contradicting viewpoints on who should pay for education are incompatible with a society which believes education is a right and not a privilege, the report said. An examination of private education subsidies was also called for by the report, which said state schools are now able to handle the student load formerly shuttled into state-subsidized private schools.

Allen's committee colleagues were SIU Presidents David Derge and John Rendleman, Chief of Board Staff James Brown and Trustee Margaret Blackshire.

Industrialist examines campus

Chinese millionaire may sponsor students

By Marcia Bullard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Chinese millionaire who gives scholarships to Chinese students studying in the United States visited SIU Friday and plans to send about 40 students here in the fall of 1974.

Chu Chiu-Ching, a retired Hong Kong industrialist is presently paying tuition and fees for 67 students studying at MIT, Vincennes University and the University of California at Berkeley. He came to SIU to visit Peter Tong, a senior in pre-med who used to receive a scholarship.

Chu met for about 30 minutes Friday afternoon with T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services. Mager indicated some financial arrangements between Chu and the SIU Foundation may develop as a result of Chu's visit.

"I came here to visit Peter and to look over the whole university," Chu said. "The atmosphere for study is wonderful here." He said of the 100 students he plans to sponsor next year, about 40 will be attending SIU.

Before sending students to an American university, Chu said he looks for academic quality in the institution. He also must check to see how many students the university can accommodate, as some schools limit the enrollment of foreign students.

More than 600 foreign students are attending SIU, which has no limit.

Chu was described as a "very generous man who is interested in helping out needy students" by foreign students Counselor Joseph Chu (no relation).

To receive a "Chu scholarship," a student must have completed middle school and pass the Hong Kong Examination for the Certificate of Education which is similar to a high school diploma. Chu requires each student to have a grade average of 'A' to qualify for the scholarship.

The student must then take another examination made out by Chu which he says is "very hard." Chu then visits the student's family and decides on the basis of scholarship and need if the student deserves a scholarship. Most students' parents work in factories or low-paid government positions. University educations in Hong Kong are very expensive and few students can afford to attend.

The Chu scholarship covers tuition, fees and plane fare for two years. After that, Chu believes the student should be doing well enough in his studies to qualify for scholarships in the United States to pay for the last two years of education. He discourages students from working, saying they should spend most of their time studying.

Students must return to Hong Kong after attaining their degree in the United States to serve the Chinese people, Chu said. Nearly every student he sponsors makes straight A's in his classes.

The majority of students major in medicine, pharmacy, medical technology or business administration. Peter Tong is a senior at SIU and was a Chu scholar for two years at Vincennes University. He transferred here this fall to study medicine.

Chu said he sends students to the United States because the universities

He began the scholarship program in 1955 with two students and has built it up since then. Chu has nine children of his own, seven of whom studied in the United States.

Chu is General manager of Hwa Fuh Land Investment Co., Ltd., managing director of Regatex Manufacturers, Ltd.; managing director of Prominent Manufacturers, Ltd.; permanent director of the Tingtai Metal Ware Factory, Ltd.; director of the Kowloon General Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong; director of the Kiangsu & Chekiang Association of Hong Kong; director of the Yan Chai Hospital, Tsuen Wan, Hong Kong; and chairman of the Chu Clansmen Fraternity Association, Ltd. of Hong Kong.

Coming to visit

SIU's new trustee will spend weekend orientation on campus

James J. Nagle, SIU's new trustee, is coming to SIU for a weekend orientation with administrators and various members of the campus community.

President David Derge earlier asked Nagle if he desired an orientation and chance to meet Carbondale campus members. Nagle assented, and will not meet SIU's administrators and constituency representatives this weekend.

An introductory breakfast with administration members is planned for Saturday morning, and Nagle will meet Dean of Students Bruce Swinburne and several vice presidents in the afternoon.

An informal coffee hour with campus constituency heads will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday, with Derge and other administrators absenting themselves to permit looser conversation between Nagle and the constituency heads.

Nagle will have a chance to talk with other administrators Sunday afternoon. Danilo Orescanin, executive vice president and vice president for administration, said he believed Nagle will leave SIU Sunday afternoon.

Board nominees attain positions without election

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Six nominees to the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors will be "declared elected" by the presiding officer at the chamber's noon meeting Thursday at the Ramada Inn.

The nominees are: Harold Calhoun, president of H.R. Construction Co.; Fritz Cox, local manager of the National Cash Register Co.; John Gilbert, partner of Gilbert and Gilbert, Attorneys; Virgil Kemp, local manager of General Telephone Co.; Robert Kissinger, manager of Mohr Value; and James Morris, partner of Barrett and Morris, attorneys.

Ray Lech, executive vice president of the chamber, said one member was nominated by petition for each of the six vacancies on the 18-member board.

"There were six vacancies and only six nominees by the Oct. 22 deadline. In this case, the presiding officer of the board meeting, usually the president, will declare the nominees elected," Lech said.

The chamber has operated under this "single slate" system since 1971, Lech said. Each board member serves a term of three years after which cannot seek re-election. Six directors are elected each year.

Directors ending their terms are Dave Emerson of the University Bank, Hans Fischer of Fischer-Sten Associates, Steve Hoffman of S-T Hoffman Enterprises, Col. A.R. MacMillan, director emeritus of the former SIU Transportation Institute, Bill Neuman of CIPS and Don Smith of Ben Franklin.

Carryover members of the board are: Gene Ozendolet, Air Illinois; Paris Frazer, Model Cities; Richard Hunter, Hunter Boys Salvage Stores; Ed Keyes; J.C. Penney's; Sid Schoen, Rowland Stockbrokers; Peggy Walter, Kentucky Fried Chicken; Ed Bernhardt, JRP Realty; Howard Gowen, Cherry Realty; Jim Green, Carbondale

Concrete Products; Stan Hoyer, manager of the Holiday Inn; Dave Sanders, Stiles Office Equipment; and Don Sherrick, Bank of Carbondale.

On another matter, Lech said the Carbondale Man of the Year has been selected by the chamber committee. The winner will be announced at the chamber's annual banquet in January.

Restaurant remodels after fire

By Rafe Kilinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Emperor's Palace kitchen will be closed "about two weeks" for remodeling, Henry Jin, owner, said after a Thursday night fire.

Captain Allen Jackson, Carbondale Fire Department, said the fire caused an estimated $18,000 damage to the three-story building and its contents in which the first-floor restaurant is located.

While city police sealed off a block-length corridor surrounding the building, five pumper trucks and other fire-fighting vehicles from the Carbondale, Murphysboro, Carterville and DuQuoin fire departments fought the three-hour blaze, Jackson said.

The fire is believed to have started in the grease chute opening above the stove in the restaurant's kitchen, Jackson said. The fire continued up the chute, burning through its metal sides into the area between the kitchen's lowered ceiling and the floor above.

Firemen had to chop through the second floor in order to get at and extinguish the blaze, Jackson reported. No firemen or residents of the building were injured, he said.

Jin said he had "no idea" of the money damage to his establishment. However, he said that the fire was contained to the kitchen area and the restaurant's dining room and lounge were untouched.

He said most of the damage in the kitchen was restricted to the wall, grease chute and ceiling and that he expected to reopen the dining facilities in about two weeks. In the meantime, Jin said the restaurant's lounge and his Chinese grocery store next door would remain open for business.

Percy reveals resolution creating Watergate job

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said Friday night he will introduce a resolution Monday to create an office of special Watergate prosecutor not subject to being fired by the President.

At a news conference following the one held by President Nixon, Percy said that if the resolution passes and is not implemented, "impeachment should proceed."

The new prosecutor, Percy said, would be appointed by Congress, subject to Presidential confirmation, but could not be dismissed by Nixon.

Actual shootout simulated

Combat firearm course instructs city policemen

By Tom Finan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The police officer crouches, using the car door as a shield. He aims at the man standing partially concealed near a wall and fires.

A whistle blows. "Empty and reload six," Carbondale Police Training Officer Wayne Martin says.

The scene is part of a new "combat firearms training" program recently adopted by the force.

Martin attended a special course for training officers taught by firearms experts at Camp Perry, Ohio, said Tom McNamara, administrative assistant to the chief.

The program replaces the former method of training in which an officer had to reach a qualifying score firing in several positions from the same spot.

The "combat" program which, Mc-

Namara said, "simulates the conditions of an actual shootout," still requires the officer to make a qualifying score on the man-shaped target, but requires him to do so under more realistic circumstances.

Besides shooting from behind the car door and using his weak arm, the officer is required to draw his pistol and shoot while falling to a prone position, hiding behind the front wheel of a car, walking toward and away from the target and taking cover behind various barricades.

Officers failing to qualify the first time are given assistance by Martin. To remain on the force officers must qualify four times each year.

Ron Trentacosti, communications officer, is making a videotape to be used to acquaint new officers with the range before they actually shoot on it.

The range is set up near the Carbondale Gun Club, behind the city sewage plant off Old Illinois 13.

If the department can find funding in the future, automated targets may be added to the range, McNamara said.

For instance, a target would pop up on the range, and it could be a man with a gun—or it might be a woman with a baby," he said.

Humane Society needs donations for animal shelter

Donations of items to be sold at the Jackson County Humane Society's annual "Country Store" are still needed, Mrs. William Simeone, one of the organizers of the sale, said Friday.

The sale, to be held Nov. 9 and 10 at the First Presbyterian Church, University Avenue at Elm Street, will raise funds to partially pay for the operation cost of the county animal shelter, which is owned and operated by the society.

Items needed for the sale include home-baked goods, books, magazines, antiques, plants and rummage. The organizers expect to realize around $1,000 from the sale for the society.

Hours of the sale will be from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Nov. 9, and from 8:30 a.m. to noon on Nov. 10. Chili will be available Nov. 9 for lunch.

Donations for the sale may be brought to the Presbyterian Church basement on Nov. 8.

Wildlife refuge roads, footpaths opened to public

The wildlife sanctuary of Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge will be opened to the public from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Approximately 13 miles of restricted roads will be available to motorists wanting catch glimpses of the refuge interior. Signs near Wolf Creek Road will lead to the beginning of the car route. A hiking trail will also be available.

The large deer population and other wildlife can be seen along with some of the estimated 36,000 geese presently in the refuge. Early evening hours are best for spotting deer, and the geese are best viewed in early morning or late afternoon.

Visitors are also invited to use the wildlife observation towers along Illinois 148.

Graduate Council seeks alternatives

Options to eliminating advisement sought

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Graduate Council decided Friday the elimination of Central Advisement for students is not the only viable option available for increasing the library book purchase budget.

The statement was in answer to a query from J. Keith Leasure, academic vice president and provost. Leasure questioned whether the library budget could be enhanced by, among other methods, eliminating the current system of student advisement.

The council agreed to comment on the merits of specific alternatives to cutting advisement, once criteria and a "carefully reasoned order of priorities" have been developed regarding University spending.

In other action, the council passed a resolution calling for graduate programs at SIU-C and SIU-E to be permitted to develop as "distinctive, independent programs." System requirements for symmetry of programs, the resolution said, should not be "forced" on the programs.

The resolution also stipulated the academic relationship between the graduate schools of SIU-C and SIU-E be the same as those both institutions currently have with other state universities.

The rationale behind the resolution stated there are "distinctly different goals and missions" held by SIU-C and SIU-E, in accordance with Phase III of Board of Higher Education's master development plan. The resolution said since a diversity of graduate programs complements these goals, and the two schools serve "significantly different" student populations, formal recognition of independent graduate programs is in order.

Other council discussion about conversion to a 4.0 grade point scale led to a resolution declaring the Graduate Council on record as supporting the 4.0

rather than the present 5.0 system of reflecting letter grades.

Council member Robert Davis said, the issue was a question of philosophical importance. He belittled the present method of assigning a one-point value to a failing grade.

Other council members agreed, but the main push for the 4.0 system came as Graduate School Acting Dean Thomas Mitchell said the change would be a "very reasonable move" to make in terms of clearer communication.

Mitchell and others said the majority of schools are using the 4.0 system, and communication with students and also their possible employers would be less confused when grades were figured on the 4.0 scale.

The meeting Friday also included nomination of graduate faculty members to advisory committees for the search for a graduate school dean and a vice president for research and projects.

The council nominated eight persons for the graduate dean committee, with one coming from each area in the Graduate School. A graduate student representative was also nominated. Committee members will be chosen from the following nominees: George McClure, philosophy; Erwin Atwood, journalism; Charles Woelfel, accountancy; Jack Cody, guidance and educational psychology; Don Miller, physiology; John Utgaard, geology; Gordon Pitz, psychology; and Jeff Tilden, history.

The administration requested 10 nominees for the search committee for a vice president of research and projects. Committee members will be selected from the following: Howard Webb, English; Dorothy Higginbotham, speech; Rowan Wright, accountancy; Richard Bradley, guidance and educational psychology; Don Tindall, botany; Russell Dutcher, geology; Fred Lit, psychology; Larry Lagow, higher Jean Gene Bruten, speech pathology and audiology.

Trustees will get new plan for McAndrew

By Marcia Bullard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A revised plan for renovation of McAndrew Stadium will be presented to the SIU Board of Trustees Thursday.

The new plan cuts down the cost of the stadium project by $375,000. Elimination of an elaborate Communications Center, and new seating in the west grandstand accounted for the reduction in cost.

Bids submitted for the renovation work were $500,000 in excess of original cost estimates of $1.6 million.

T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, said he will ask the board to approve the original contract bids for $2.4 million with the provision that contractors accept the $375,000 in deductions. He did not say what would happen if the contractors refused to accept the cutbacks.

The remainder of the excess cost will be met with "athletic contributions" and through fund-raising activities by university organizations.

That will make the total cost of the phase II renovation $2,029,636.

The Communications Center, which was first estimated at $400,000, will now cost only $50,000. Original plans called for it to sit atop a separate structure behind the west side bleachers, equipped with elevators, carpeting and "plush furnishings," according to Mager.

Under the new plan, the press box will be situated in the west side stands, displacing between 250 and 350 of the 8,327 permanent seats. Mager said the new press box facilities "will not be as commodious as first planned, but still comparable to those at other schools on our schedule."

Aluminum benches were to have replaced existing wooden ones in the west grandstand, but that item has been cut to protect the new project budget. Plans for building a new east grandstand for students will not be affected by the cutbacks, Mager said.

Night lighting, a new scoreboard, a public address system and a contingency budget—items totaling $376,000—may be added later depending on fund availability, he said.

The Alumni Association has voted to raise funds for the stadium renovation and Mager has asked the Student Government, SIU Foundation, faculty and community leaders for financial support. He would not elaborate on details of nearly $200,000 in "athletic contributions" which have helped make the revised plan possible.

"I'm not going to say anything beyond what I have already stated until the board has a chance to look over the new resolution," he said.

If the bids are approved and a contract awarded soon, the stadium may be completed as early as Sept. 4, 1974. The first home game next fall is scheduled Sept. 21 against Indiana State University.

Group named to hear contested tickets

By Rafe Klingner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The names of the hearing officers and Traffic Appeals Board members responsible for reviewing contested University parking tickets were released by Jerry Lacey, special assistant to the vice president of development and services.

The 15 hearing officers and five members of the board were appointed through Lacey's office Monday. Although the appointees hold administrative powers in deciding the validity of traffic violations, they are unpaid and work on a volunteer basis, Lacey said.

Eight of the hearing officers are SIU law students. The officers include Kenneth Balsters; law student; James Binninger, law student; Hugh Blaney, director of methods and procedures; Ms. Hilda Born, secretary in the School of Technical Careers; Don Collins, law student; Ms. Tommie Glasper, personnel assistant to the Affirmative Action Board; Robert LeChien, law student; Donald Lowery, law student; Leonard Lucey, law student; Richard Musgrave, Research and Projects; Rob Schroeder, student; student; John Weil, law student; Ms. Dee Monge and Earl Talley.

Members of the Traffic Appeals Board include Ms. Barbara Ardinger, teaching assistant in English; Dave Reed, accountant in general accounting; George Toberman, director of purchasing; Michael Oshel, law student, and James R. Moore, engineer in broadcasting services.

The hearing officers and board members are limited to review of University parking violations only.

Moving violations tickets issued by University police are generally the same as state police tickets and must be taken to Jackson County Court, said Edward McCue, assistant security officer.

'Hay Fever' production hardly a bore

By Julie Titone
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Never bore the hell out of your audience," warned Noel Coward. He would have been pleased with the Southern Players performance of his play, "Hay Fever."

Though Jeanne and Steve Drakulich seemed a bit unsure of themselves as Sorel and Simon Bliss at the beginning and the end of the play was a little anticlimactic, the two hours inbetween were delightful. A great deal of credit for that success rests with Margaret Richardson.

Ms. Richardson's rendition of Judith Bliss, retired English actress who never really left the stage, was excellent. She mastered the proper facial expression so essential to Coward's style. And her English accent was clear but not overbearing.

Ms. Drakulich did have trouble with the speech. The proper pronunciation was there—but the words came out a bit too hurriedly, and a little gushingly.

Both Sorel and Simon came across well as the childish young adults Coward intended. Steve Drakulich succeeded quite well in sounding bored without sounding boring.

Perhaps it was only his misfortune to be cast opposite as strong a lead as Ms. Richardson, but Rick McCormick as writer David Bliss was a little weak. It was easier to picture him as a retired country doctor than a writer of torrid novels.

About the weekend guests... Margaret Pones played the slow-witted flapper to a "tea"; John Kunik, though a bit strained at times, was funnily convincing as the diplomat; dimpled Larry Lucklett rather okay; and Monica Migliorino as Myra Arundel was polished, but didn't live up to Coward's description as one who "uses sex as a sort of shrimping net."

And a word about Amy Sunshine: If Coward has known she was to play the part of frumpy Clara, he would have made sure she spent more time on the stage.

Some in the audience might have had trouble with some of the fast-moving 20's wittiness. But all in all the relationship of the strange Bliss family kept 'em laughing.

Finally, substantial credit must be given to Darwin Payne for his fine set, and Mary Naujock for her costume design. Both added tremendously to the good job done by director Christian Moe.

Proposed alcoholic beverage ordinance will be acted on in city meeting Monday

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An ordinance allowing 19- and 20-year-olds to buy any type of alcoholic beverages will be acted upon by the Carbondale City Council at its formal meeting 7 p.m. Monday in the University City Cafeteria.

In the proposed ordinance, which was recommended by Mayor Neal Eckert, home rule is cited as the power enabling the city to pass it.

A section of the ordinance states that "the City Council of the City of Carbondale believes that a statute or ordinance which provides that 19-year-olds may consume one type of intoxicating liquor, but not another, is without reason, and is unenforceable."

Another section of the ordinance stipulates that the state has not pre-empted the power of the city to take such action.

The ordinance received mixed reaction from council members at an informal meeting Oct. 22. At that meeting, it was generally agreed that the present state liquor law, which allows only beer and wine to be sold to 19- and 20-year-olds, was difficult to enforce.

Other topics on the agenda for the meeting include:

—Establishment of the date for a public hearing on the annexation agreement with J.W. Land Trust.

—Council approval of the right to exercise an option for the purchase of land for an industrial park.

—Approval of a contract with Clark, Dietz and Associates for the K-Mart project.

—Approval of a cash award for the naming of "Post Office Park."

—Ordinance annexing the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad (ICGRR) right-of-way.

He may not be insane, but . . .

There has been some question lately about Mr. Nixon's emotional health, and there have been thinly veiled hints the President is insane. Statements such as these are not made lightly, in spite of what Mr. Nixon claims, and the fact they do appear at all indicates a serious problem with the Presidency.

George Orwell's "1984" has an interesting quote which says, "Sanity is not statistical." The contextual meaning is that one man can not be termed mad for merely holding a minority view or belief; there is truth and there is also untruth in each situation.

Mr. Nixon would likely subscribe to Orwell's statement in declaring the press, the liberals, and other doubters come lately to be the erring majority around whom he must work. Mr. Nixon views his position as unassailable, arguing he knows what is good for the country and that the critics, not himself, are insane. His position can not be denied in the sense there is no hard, solid evidence connecting the President with any impeachable wrongdoing. Mr. Nixon has not been convicted of anything yet; ordered, definitive proof of his insanity is not possible.

By the same token, there is no present way to quantitatively prove the President is sane, either. Some people arrive at this stalemate and stop, but sanity is not the issue so much as whether Mr. Nixon is fitted properly for the Presidential trust.

The sum total of Mr. Nixon's suspected actions in respect to Watergate, corporate favor-playing, political deals, civilian espionage, lies to Congress and America, personal use of government funds, campaign ethics, and a number of other things raises an incredible, fearful question about the man's character.

But Mr. Nixon's answers to queries and charges have been grudgingly given, contradictory, and pitifully incomplete. One can begin to appreciate the accusations of Presidential megalomania, and Mr. Nixon has given little meaningful refutation to the mounting feeling his "term in" office has been dominated by a reckless and irresponsible misuse of power.

A reasonable person could then understand the possibility of Mr. Nixon's actions representing a departure from the behavioral norm, in the direction of paranoia, burgeoning personal spite, and rampant solipsism.

There is no proof of anything yet; he has not been impeached. But assuming Mr. Nixon's suspected actions are not actual symptoms of an emotional or mental aberration, is someone even apparently responsible for so many improprieties fitted to be President?

Guilt by association is a delicate thing, but America has been given reason after damning reason to doubt Mr. Nixon's veracity and intentions. Why is this man still President?

Something better than the Hambo

The annual Hambletonian Trotter's Classic, high point of the DuQuoin State Fair for the past 17 years, will not be run at DuQuoin after 1974. Instead, the race will be held at the Liberty Bell race track in Philadelphia. The movement of the Hambletonian from the Midwest to the East should be beneficial to both sides.

Fred Huff, vice president of the Hayes Fair Acres Inc., which was host to the trotting classic for the last 17 years, stated, "In five years, we may look upon Oct. 28 as the luckiest day in our lives. The decision by the Hambletonian Society will cause us to do something different which may be even better than the Hambletonian."

"Something different" is just what the DuQuoin State Fair needs to give it new life and bring different groups of people to the Southern Illinois area. People do not want to come back to the Fair each year to see the same format of entertainment. They want to see new and exciting things that capture their interest and imaginations. One possibility to accomplish this would be to blacktop the dirt track that the horses raced on and turn it into a track for racing cars. The track could be used all year long.

The people out East who fought and won the right to host the Hambletonian said "The Hambletonian belongs out East." They are right. People out East take their horse racing very seriously and on a day-to-day basis. To the people of the Southern Illinois area, the Hambletonian has become nothing more than a tradition like Derby Day at Churchill Downs is to college students across the country. Most people from this area probably never had seen or even cared to see the trotters race. It seems kind of ridiculous that people would flock to the race track one day out of the year to see horses and jockeys that they knew nothing about whatsoever. It is fortunate that there is no parimutuel betting at the race. If there was, the track would be taking the peoples money easier than Uncle Sam does on the tax return. Also, the race itself dictates no possible advantages to the area except that it puts DuQuoin on the national map once a year. The people in DuQuoin run a nice State Fair, but they should leave the horse racing to the people who know what they are doing.

Single family zoning

The constitutionality of a Carbondale zoning ordinance prohibiting persons from living in a single family zone is being challenged in the courts.

Associate Jackson County Judge Robert Schwartz Jr. upheld the ordinance Friday in a cast filed by the city against four women living in a house on Crestview Drive. Douglas Ingold, an attorney from Legal Assistance Foundation who is representing the defendants, has 30 days to appeal.

The U.S. Supreme Court is considering a case, Boraas vs. the Village of Belle Terre, involving a similar ordinance in New York. The case was referred from the U.S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, where the ordinance was ruled unconstitutional.

While such ordinances are in the legal limelight, it is a good time for those living in Carbondale to evaluate the ordinance and determine its worth and fairness. The ordinance is obviously discriminatory and is essentially an easy way out for the city to control population density.

But is it effective? In Carbondale, a person cannot live in a house with two other persons if the house is in a single family zone and all three are unrelated. Yet, a family of six, eight or ten can live in the house. Is this an effective ordinance? Is this a fair ordinance?

The reasoning behind this type of zoning, City Attorney John Wornick stated, is that by restricting an area to single family residency, problems of trash, automobiles, noise and sanitation are not as severe as when a group of unrelated individuals live there.

This is weak at best. The whole notion of controlling population density by allowing only families in certain areas is poor and nonsensical.

Carbondale citizens should not accept this method even if it is declared constitutional. In this case, legality does not equal fairness or effectiveness.

In the ruling of the Carbondale case, Judge Schwartz described the ordinance as a rational method of control to effect population density. What is rational about an ordinance, geared to control population density, that allows ten related people to live in a single family zone house but bars three unrelated people from the house?

Douglas Ingold, and no doubt many renters, have argued this same point.

In the U.S. Appeals Court ruling of the New York case, it was stated that an ordinance could not be upheld on the city's intention of population control. The court also said that a city does not need a discriminatory ordinance to regulate population density.

The court even suggested other methods such as formulating a ratio of the number of people to the number of bedrooms in the house.

This recommended solution may also cause problems but it is less discriminatory than what the city has now.

The issue which should concern citizens of Carbondale is if a more effective replacement can be found for the challenged ordinance. It makes no difference whether the present ordinance is legal or not if a more fair and effective method can be used.

Black unity at SIU

The Miss Ebonyess pageant this past weekend could be described as culturally inspiring. For this is an age of cultural conflict.

The Irish protestants are fighting the Irish Catholics, the Arabs are fighting the Israelis and the President is in conflict with the government.

But this was not the case at the Miss Ebonyess pageant in Ballroom D of the Student Center Sunday. In fact, the pageant that was supposedly secondary to the Miss Southern pageant was the picture of unquestionable black unity.

Since the pageant was sponsored by Alpha Phi Fraternity, Inc., a black fraternity, there was some speculation as to whether members of other black fraternities would support the pageant. This speculation was answered when the pageant was literally packed.

On this occasion the recognition of black womanhood seemingly outweighed individual differences. There was no opposition from black students that the pageant was sexist or that men should be allowed to enter as had been witnessed prior to the Miss Southern contest.

And because of controversy, the Miss Southern pageant did not achieve a comparable amount of unity. If anything there was more disunity because of the outcome.

It is significant that a few years ago blacks were the very ones who cried out against pageants like

Miss Southern and the selection of a Homecoming Queen because they were considered to be racist.

So evidently an interesting change has taken place. The black students seemed to care less about the Miss Southern pageant. And it can accurately be said that had not a black woman won, black students would have felt little more than indifference toward Miss Southern.

But why the apparent indifference? Don't blacks enjoy pageants? Surely they must as was exemplified by the attendance at the Miss Ebonyess pageant. And as Rev. Jesse Jackson has said "Blacks are about the business of nation building." The Miss Ebonyess pageant was relative to the nation while the Miss Southern pageant was not in spite of its outcome which was a nice, but hollow victory for black students.

Judging from their efforts in organizing and supporting the Miss Ebonyess pageant black students seem to be saying that being aesthetically white is no longer important. They seem to be saying we can and will stand alone successfully.

So to those black students who organized and supported the Miss Ebonyess pageant, continue to be about your business, continue to be strong. Your beauty lies in your unity.

Bad advice on college costs

Wise educational policy favors the lowest possible tuitions for public colleges and universities. Unfortunately the Committee for Economic Development, a businessmen's organization and usually a sensible one, has joined the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education urging sharply higher tuitions. The CED wants tuitions to be more than doubled over the next five years. This recommendation is characteristic of the Age of Nixon, in its attempt to shift public responsibilities from public budgets onto private families.

If students or their families cannot meet these high fees, both the CED and Carnegie reports suggest student loans. But requiring a student to incur heavy debts to get through college is an expedient with an wholesome resemblance to indentured servitude. The only justifiable reason for massive increases in tuition would be a general fiscal crisis in the states. There was a crisis, certainly, but is passing and a good many states are actually running surpluses. If society wants to recapture a larger share of the higher income that education brings to most people, then the proper recourse is to raise the income tax which, unlike the tuition fees, accurately reflects ability to pay.

The Carnegie commission would deliberately raise public colleges' tuitions, which now average about $500 a year, in order to bring them closer to tuitions of the private colleges, which run about four times as high. Enrollments are going to drop for the next decade, because of lower birthrates, the end of the draft and perhaps a certain disillusion with higher education among the young.

The authors of the Carnegie report fear the disparity in costs will draw students out of the private colleges unless the public ones are made more expensive. The troubles of the private institutions are genuine, and they urgently need greater support from public funds. But to try to help them by taxing public colleges' students would be wrong-headed beyond description.

Both of these lamentable reports link higher tuition for the children of middle-class families with more aid to the children of poor families. More aid to poor students is entirely desirable. But it ought to come from all taxpayers, not from the hard-pressed family of average means that is struggling to get its own youngsters through college.

There is much talk in these reports of the public subsidies that go to students. But do not the colleges and universities equally represent an enormous subsidy to American commerce and industry? There is not one company, among the many represented on the board of the CED, that could survive without a steady flow of highly and expensively trained technicians, managers, lawyers and accountants. The American public high school was completely free at a time when a far smaller proportion of youngsters went to high school than now go to college.

There has never been a competent analysis of our economic development, or any other country's, that has not assigned great importance to the level and quality of education in the population. Massive increases in tuition fees would threaten a national tradition of access to education that is at once generous and immensely productive.

Recycle the poster

To the Daily Egyptian:

Concerning the advertising insert of November 1, 1973—well, well, what have we here, a free ecology poster and special offer inside! The Egyptian does another crass maneuver, but this time I cannot keep silent about it. Whoever it was that approved this thing, surely they did not think about what they were doing. It really is quite absurd. Hundreds of these two-page color glossies floating around campus and town, selling T shirts with daisies on them in the name of ECOLOGY! I'm tired of the perversion of the word. Its meaning has been twisted to fit the money-making strategy of yet another great American business—Amoco Oil Company. And far be it for The Daily Egyptian to show any kind of ethical taste, when it comes to making money. Next time you spot one of the "ecology" posters lying in the gutter on Mill St., Carbondale, Ill., Planet Earth, remember what it says inside: "If one person fights pollution, others around him see the beauty of it" and trash it.

Must reading on the media

To the Daily Egyptian:

Anyone can make a claim. So people expect President Nixon to complain about the communications media when it is he who is being gored. And it is certainly the duty of the media to defend itself.

However, all that is separate from the question of whether or not the media deserves criticism. And perhaps, an understanding of the media (This is pure conjecture at this point.) can lead to an understanding of what goes on in Washington.

For that reason I recommend the following books: "The Left-Leaning Antenna" by Joseph Keesey; "The News Twisters" and "How CBS Tried to Kill a Book," by Edith Efron.

Isn't it ironic that those most vocal about the abuses of political power should be the very ones promoting social theories which demand the growth of such power?

3 Dog Night, Deodato to perform at Arena

By Linda Lipman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three Dog Night, a group which has been recording for nearly six years, will appear in concert Friday at the Arena with a new instrumental group, Deodato.

Each group is scheduled to present a different show. Deodato will open at 8 p.m. with one hour of the special 2001 Space sound which gave them their initial start in the business. Three Dog Night will follow with two hours of music, featuring a 30-minute medley of nostalgic rock and roll tunes from the 1950s.

Billboard, a national entertainment magazine, has labeled Three Dog Night's latest album release, "Cyan," as a top pick, destined to hit the charts.

Deodato has experienced success with their unique 2001 Space sound, which has brought about the name of 2001 Space Orchestra for the band. The leader of the group is Emir Deodato, a young Brazilian, who claims his keyboard style is much more representative of Brazilian playing than jazz playing.

Despite the 2001 Space Orchestra reputation achieved with the wild electric piano in the popular jazz tune, Deodato is not an electronics wizard. Instead he sticks to the basics with a simple Arp Soloist Pro model synthesizer control board, a clarinet and an electronic piano as his basic instrument. The orchestra

Igor Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" which is on Monday's program, was composed as music for a ballet in 1911, but in recent times, has become more of a concert piece. The story behind "Petrouchka" is best described in words of Stravinsky.

consists of four horns and a rhythm section of guitars, conga drums and a standard drum trap set.

In the six years that Three Dog Night has been in the professional music business, they have sold in excess of $30 million in singles and albums have attained 14 Gold Records.

In 1971, the group claims a historic "Grand Slam." They appeared in the Dallas Cotton Bowl, Atlanta Stadium and Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium and drew 83,242 customers for a $374,138 gross. Not bad for three days' work. For 1972, the group claims to have achieved a total box office exceeding $4.75 million in playing for more than 1.5 million people. This year has been different insofar as Three Dog Night locked itself inside a recording studio for the first half of 1973.

The lead singers are Danny Hutton, Chuck Negron and Cory Wells. The musicians are Mike Allsup, guitar; Jimmy Greenspoon, keyboards; Jack Ryland, bass and Floyd Sneed, drums.

Many good tickets are still available for the Nov. 9 concert. Tickets are priced at $4.50, $5.50 and $6 and may be obtained at the Student Center, Arena, Penney's, Sav Mart, Tempo, Wards in Murphysboro and Sears in Cape Girardeau and Mount Vernon. SIU students receive a fifty-cent discount on the top two prices.

Music of the old Russian masters, Rachmaninoff, Glinka and Stravinsky in addition to Ravel, will be performed by 97 musicians under the direction of Rafael de Burgos Monday night.

sky. "I had in my mind a distinct picture of a puppet, suddenly endowed with life, exasperating the patience of the orchestra with diabolical cascades of arpeggios. The orchestra, in turn, retaliates with menacing trumpet blasts. The outcome is a terrific noise that reaches its climax and ends in the sorrowful and querulous collapse of the poor puppet," Stravinsky wrote.

Though written in Western Europe, "Petrouchka" contains a few Russian folk songs, and is among Stravinsky's most popular works. The piece is full of Stravinsky's characteristic surging rhythms, raw orchestral tone colors and dance-like melodies.

Sergei Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto will feature Brazilian piano virtuoso Christina Ortiz. The concerto, Rachmaninoff's best known piece and was written between 1899 and 1901, under the guidance of his psychiatrist, Nikolai Dahl. Dahl treated Rachmaninoff's severe depression by encouraging him to write a concerto of excellent quality. Full of romantic melodies, the Second Piano Concerto frequently finds its way onto symphony orchestra programs.

Michael Glinka, a nationalist Russian composer, wrote the opera "Russian and Ludmilla" in 1842.

The overture to this opera on Monday night's program?

Maurice Ravel's "Bolero" finishes out the program. Composed in 1928, "Bolero" has been called by music historians "the musical equivalent of a best-seller." Conducting the 97-member orchestra in these pieces will be Rafael de Burgos, a Spanish director who has performed in guest appearances with the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony.

Tickets are available at the Shryock Auditorium box office and the Student Center Central Ticket Office for $3, $4, and $5 for SIU students and $4, $5 and $6 for the general public.

Carbondale hires stoker for schools

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale elementary schools now have a man to stoke boiler fires over the weekends in chilly weather.

Laurence W. Martin, schools superintendent, said a weekend worker was hired Nov. 1, the same day the Carbondale District 95 school board considered complaints about the inadequacy of Springmore School's heating system.

Martin reported at the meeting that an inspector's check of the Springmore boiler revealed minor faults caused by normal mechanical wear, and that these faults had been repaired.

"There's nothing wrong with the boiler; it's safe," Martin said later in an interview. He explained most complaints about heat levels came on Mondays, when the heat may have been down due to the weekend break. To abate this problem, Martin said the maintenance worker will be "going to every school (in the district) to build up the heat on Saturday and Sunday."

Complaints about Springmore's heating extended to reports of uneven heat levels in different parts of the school. The school board agreed to arrange to have the temperature of each room monitored daily. Martin said Springmore's principal, Everett Todd, will be in charge of making a temperature log, taking readings at 8:15 and 10 a.m.

The school board's decision to put a crossing guard at the corner of West Walnut and South Oakland has temporarily run aground. Martin said he expected to hire a retired postman who lived one door away from the corner, but the man changed his mind Friday.

"It's hard to find somebody to take the job," Martin said. A crossing guard would be paid $3.00 a day to work from 8:00 to 8:30 a.m. and from 3:15 to 3:45 p.m. Martin said he has leads on other persons who might be interested in the job.

Housing surveys making progress

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
A systematic inspection of housing in the University area by the Carbondale Code Enforcement Department has reached the half way mark.

The area, which has been inspected since July 1, is bordered on the east by University Avenue, on the west by Oakland Avenue, on the south by Mill St. and on the north by Main St.

John Yow, code enforcement director, said the inspection is going well. No major violations have been found, Yow said, and the minor ones have been taken care of with little difficulty.

The inspectors who have been checking the area have also been covering complaints throughout the city and have been kept busy with other duties, Yow said. Because of this, the inspection has been slow.

Jere Dawe, code enforcement inspector, said part of the reason such an inspection takes time is the amount of rechecking on past violations.

Dawe said he did not know just when the inspection would be finished. He guessed that the area should be covered by February.

An inspector uses a checklist in inspecting a dwelling. Major areas on the list include the basic equipment and facilities such as lights, ventilation and heating, size of the rooms, conditions of exterior property, garbage storage and maintenance of stairs, porches and chimneys.

Dawe said the building regulations are not too stringent. This leaves room for the inspector to judge the violation on an individual basis.

The common problems usually involve minor violations, Dawe said. "It's usually the small things that give us the headaches," He said.

Major violations are normally corrected, Dawe said. "The minor ones, such as leaky water drains, broken windows, leaks in the ceilings and broken screens are the ones that are hardest to correct."

Proposed Carbondale Park District recreation center

Voters will decide fate of proposed center

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
The fate of a proposed recreation center including a swimming pool and ice-skating rink will be decided Nov. 10.

That is when Carbondale voters will decide on a referendum for a $750,000 general obligation bond which will pay a major portion of the cost for the center.

Revenue from the center will pay off the bond, Robert Coatney, director of the Carbondale Park District, said. If not enough revenue can be generated by the center, a tax would be levied.

Although the most property taxes could increase is 6 1/2 cents per $100 assessed valuation, Coatney said the chances of taxes raising at all are remote.

Coatney explained that he believes the center would not only be self-sustaining but would make enough of profit to handle the bond payments.

Coatney said he anticipates about $70,000 net income a year from the center. Total revenues would be about $125,000 and expenses would be $55,000.

If the bond is approved, Coatney said ground could be broken by early Spring. He estimated construction would take approximately six to nine months.

According to this schedule, revenue from the center could start paying off the bond next year.

The ice-skating rink, which would be housed in a metal building, would measure 85 by 200 feet and would seat 1,000 persons.

A 50-meter long pool and a wading pool are also planned.

The bath house would be built between the pool and the rink. A sun deck would be on the upper level of the bath house.

Coatney said the pool could be used for swimming lessons and clinics, competitive swimming, life saving courses, recreational swimming and parties. He emphasized that no planned activities would be scheduled during prime use times.

The rink would not only be open to ice skating activities but would also be available for roller skating, basketball, tennis, dances and other special events.

Decisions on admission prices have not been finalized yet, Coatney said. He estimated that fees would include $1 for adults and 75 cents for children. Season passes would probably be $25 for adults and $20 for children.

Coatney said non-Carbondale residents would probably pay higher prices to use the center. SIU students would be considered city residents if their school residence is within the city limits.

The center will be available for any activity that can be held there,

Coatney said. "If you have a facility, use it to its fullest extent."

Tuesday evening exhibition

Collegium Musicum debut set

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Now that the Collegium Musicum has performed for children, the group will perform its program of English madrigals and lute songs for adults.

The concert will be performed with admission charge by the 19 singers and five instrumentalists at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

Referring to last Tuesday's Children's concert, Collegium director John Boe said, "I felt completely at home. According to the reaction from members in the audience, they enjoyed the concert."

Capitulating fifty years of development in English music (1580 to 1630) the Collegium has programmed madrigals by Wilbye and Gibbons, ballets by Moreley and Weekes, and lute songs by Dowland. Among the more notable songs on the program are Morley's "It was a Lover and His Lass," from Shakespeare's "As You Like It," and Dowland's "Come Heavy Sleep" which will feature guitar and viols, played by James Stroud and John Stubbs.

The lute parts will be played on guitar by John Scammon, because, Boe said, there are no lutes available in the area.

Scammon will also play a solo rendition of six Italian lute pieces.

Although the Collegium has in the past, given only one performance of its programs, two more performances are lined up for November, one at the Illinois State Music Teachers Association Convention and another for WSU television.

It's more work for the group, which is made up of faculty and students from the School of Music, "but it's an act of love," Boe said.

Expected to retire from politics

Gray to tell future plans

U.S. Rep. Kenneth Gray (D-West Frankfort) will hold a press conference Monday to announce his future political plans.

The Chicago Sun Times reported Friday that Gray is not expected to seek another term in Congress and that he will retire from political life. He is a 10-year veteran of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The filing date in Illinois is Dec. 10 and Gray said "I feel it is now time to make a decision about my future plans." The press conference will be at 2 p.m. in his West Frankfort office.

Gray was not available for further comment Friday. He was to attend a funeral Friday afternoon and was slated to attend the opening of the John and Eleanor Mitchell Foundation museum at Mt. Vernon.

He will assist in the dedication of a federal housing project for the elderly in Salem Saturday and the dedication of a nine-story highrise named in honor of his late mother Sunday in West Frankfort. Gray may also participate in groundbreaking ceremonies for a new wing at the West Frankfort Union Hospital Sunday.

Paul Simon, former lieutenant governor of Illinois, has said he would seek the Democratic nomination for U.S. Representative of the 24th Congressional District if Gray decides not to run.

Hearing tests available for area senior citizens

Hearing tests are available to Carbondale Senior Citizens (CSC), free of charge, under the CSC Hearing Program sponsored by Oakdale House.

Ms. Janice Morrison, Social Services Coordinator, said those interested should call 549-8241 for appointments.

The CSC Hearing Program, said Ms. Morrison, began in January, 1973, and was designed to make those with hearing defects aware of their problem and the problem's extent.

Carbondale residents 55 years and older can be tested under this program.

According to Ms. Morrison, testing is done by the SIU Speech Pathology and Audiology Department, and is funded by the Chicago Hearing Society.

Ms. Morrison said initial testing is done at Oakdale House, and if further testing is necessary individuals receive additional testing at SIU with transportation provided.

Since the program's inception, 70 to 80 Carbondale Senior Citizens have been tested, said Ms. Morrison.

Testing determines the need for hearing aids or speechreading (lipreading).

Currently, said Ms. Morrison, the hearing program is conducting two speechreading classes. Classes are open to all adults and meet once a week for 10 weeks. Ms. Morrison said "Our hopes are to bring these services to as many people as possible. I can be reached at Oakdale House, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., 549-8241.

Computer center to offer short courses in programming facilities

If you want to do a statistical analysis with the help of a computer, but don't even know what a computer looks like, there is help. At the Academic Computing Center in the Neckers building, "Academic Computing Short Courses" are being offered.

Charles Fisher, director of the short course program, said "our aim is to help everyone make use of our computer facilities."

The program is designed to teach people with little or no experience to operate a computer and understand some of the computer languages.

Fisher said the program is mainly for graduate students and faculty, but is open to anyone.

The non-credit, free-of-charge courses are offered at various times.

Among courses offered this quarter are "PL-1," a high level programming language. Nine people are currently enrolled in this course.

The next course to be offered is "CALCOMP Plotting," a course covering the techniques necessary to produce plotted output on the computer. It will meet Nov. 8 and 15, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Wham 112.

Introduction to "Statistical Package for the Social Sciences" (SPSS), will be offered from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Nov. 12 and 14 in Lawson 231. "The course will cover the procedures necessary for utilizing the programs in the package," Fisher said.

"Intermediate SPSS" will be offered Nov. 19, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Lawson 231. The course is a continuation of "Introductory SPSS," which is a prerequisite.

For more information about any of the "Academic Computing Short Courses," call 536-2323.

Andrews suggests Finley try managing

By Dave O'Hara
Associated Press Sports Writer

WEST PEABODY, Mass. (AP)—Mike Andrews, out of a baseball job for the first time since he broke into the major leagues in 1967, had some kind words for Charlie Finley Friday, but suggested that the Oakland Athletics' owner try his hand at managing a club.

"Finley is a character, but you certainly can't knock his ability at getting good playing personnel and putting a good team together," Andrews told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview at his home.

Andrews, who cost Finley a $5,000 fine as a result of an off-field controversy during the World Series, was given his unconditional release by the A's Thursday. He still was in a slight case of shock, but was as affable as he talked. His pretty wife, Marilyn, listened intently during the one-hour interview.

"Finley is so intense, he gets so involved," the veteran infielder said. "He would call the dugout out, make calls to Oakland from Chicago. Of course, it's his prerogative as an owner, but I think he often goes beyond ownership. That is, unless he wants to be the manager himself. Maybe he should give it a try."

Andrews, sent to second base in a reserve role in the second game of the World Series with the New York Mets, made two costly errors in a row in the 12th inning. Finley then tried to put him on the disabled list and even got Andrews to sign a statement that his right shoulder was ailing.

"I don't think I ever was so depressed," Andrews said. "I wasn't embarrassed as much by the errors as I was by what happened afterward. The players really came to my aid. They were just wonderful."

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered Andrews reinstated for the remainder of the seven-game series won by Oakland for the second year in a row. He refused to allow Finley to put infielder Manny Trillo on the active list.

"I think Finley really believed that Manny would be of more help to the club, but I was shocked at the time. As for the errors, well, do you know that I hadn't been in the field for a month and a half until that game? And I didn't work out once at second base even in spring training. I certainly wasn't comfortable, to say the least."

Andrews, only 30, was acquired by the A's from the Chicago White Sox during the pennant race. He rejoined Manager Dick Williams, when he helped win the pennant as a rookie with the Boston Red Sox in 1967. Williams quit the Oakland job after the World Series despite two years left on his contract. Finley has said he will try to force Williams to live up to the contract, rather than releasing him.

"I haven't talked to Dick about the matter, but I think he just couldn't take it anymore," Andrews said. "Finley makes it extremely tough for a manager, although he does provide the best personnel."

"I think he's probably a little egotist. He doesn't worry whether something is pro or con."

Andrews rejected his wife's idea that they take a little vacation and admitted he still is having trouble relaxing.

"The toughest thing to do now is to relax," he said with a weak smile. "It's awfully tough when you don't know what you're going to do."

"Sure, I'd like to stay in baseball. I've just turned 30 and that hardly seems an age to be washed up. I think I can help some club. However, after all that has happened this year, I don't think many clubs will be interested in me. I just hope no one gets the idea I'm a troublemaker."

Finley said in releasing Andrews that the infielder's right shoulder was bad and even offered to pay the expenses of an orthopedic specialist's examination.

"I don't need any examination," Andrews said. "There's absolutely nothing wrong with my shoulder. There is no trouble whatsoever."

He said he planned to sit back and wait a while before contacting some major league clubs.

Illinois confronts top-ranked Ohio State

Surprise challenger Illinois confronts nationally top-ranked Ohio State in a David-Goliath showdown of unbeaten Big Ten football contenders Saturday at Champaign, Ill.

Illinois, despite erratic offensive punch, has mustered a 4-0 league record to share the conference top rung with Ohio State and No. 4 Michigan.

The Illini have back-to-back encounters with the Ohio State and Michigan and hold a slim chance to derail what appears the onrush of the Buckeyes and Wolverines towards their Nov. 24 tangle for the Big Ten title and a Rose Bowl trip.

While the Illini are testing the heavily-favored Buckeyes, host Michigan is expected to overturn its conference record and overall perfect 4-0 mark against Indiana, winless in four Big Ten starts.

Remainder of the card involves clubs already bracketed in the also-ran class, including Minnesota 2-2 at Northwestern 2-2; Purdue 2-2 at Iowa 0-4; and Wisconsin 1-3 at Michigan State 1-3.

Illinois really came to life last Saturday, trouncing Iowa 50-0, after hanging on in the Big Ten race mainly on the field goal skill of freshman Dan Beaver.

The Illini went without a touchdown from the first quarter of a 17-10 loss to West Virginia on Sept. 29 until last weekend's explosion against the Hawkeyes.

In between, Beaver's Big Ten record five field goals gave the Illini a 15-13 victory over Purdue and his two fielders downed Michigan State 6-3.

Against one common foe, Indiana, Illinois scored a season-opening 24-14 victory and Ohio State triumphed 37-7 in the Buckeyes' fifth game of the season.

"This is an awesome Ohio State team," Illini coach Bob Blackman said this week, "but there never has been a team so great that it cannot be knocked off."

Indiana, reeling from successive conference losses to Minnesota, Ohio State and Wisconsin, is a big underdog against Michigan which appears to be marking time until the Nov. 24 showdown with Ohio State at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Although Michigan last Saturday rolled over Minnesota 34-7, Wolverine coach Bo Schembechler commented: "We've played better and we'll play better again. But I'll take them anyway I can get them."

Northwestern, Minnesota vie

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Northwestern and Minnesota, both confident they have a chance of a first division finish despite devastating losses last week, battle before a Northwestern homecoming crowd of some 30,000 Saturday in a Big Ten encounter.

Each team has a 2-2 record in the conference although both were victimized by the Big Ten's "Big Two" last week. Northwestern suffered one of its worst defeats in modern history when the Wildcats fell before top-ranked Ohio State 60-0 and Minnesota fell before fourth-ranked Michigan 34-7.

Minnesota will have its potent running game in gear with the return of fullback John King who missed the Michigan game because of a knee injury. Rick Upchurch and Larry Powell flank King.

Minnesota Coach Cal Stoll has respect for Northwestern and quarterback Mitch Anderson. "Northwestern is a dangerous team when not in a mismatch," said Stoll "and Mitch Anderson has a lot of passing ability."

Anderson, who led the Big Ten in passing last season and currently is tied for first place with Wisconsin's Greg Bohlig, has had trouble this year learning the offensive system of Coach John Pont.

"I told the team to forget that loss to Ohio State and that we're still 2-2 in the Big Ten and have an excellent chance of finishing in the first division."

Weekend flag football on tap

The following intramural flag football games are scheduled for Saturday by the Office of Recreation and Intramurals.

At 1:15 p.m.—Bronchos vs. Vet's Club, field 1; Fifteenth Flashbacks vs. Mother Truckers, field 2; The Circus vs. Cool Blues, field 3; Allen III vs. "4 F's," field 4; and Galoos vs. Pierce Pulverizers, field 5.

At 2:15 p.m.—11th Floor Marauders vs. Lucky "13," field 1; Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Sigma Pi, field 2; A.T.O. Olympians vs. Sigma Tau Gamma, field 3; The machine vs. Ragmuffins Retaliation, field 4; and field 5, no game is scheduled. Bonaparte's vs. Lonesto, field 1; Up Your Alley vs. Rompin' Redeyes, field 2; Beaver Patrol vs. Ducks-in-Sky, field 3; and "4 F's" vs. The Circus, field 4.

In Thursday's games, Sigma Pi squeaked by Alpha Gamma Rho 7-6.

T.K.E. blanked Alpha Kappa Lambda 12-0 and the 11th Floor Marauders downed 17th Schneider 13-6.

In other action, the News defeated the "4 F's" 19-6 and the Cool Blues won on a forfeit.

Correction

It was incorrectly stated in yesterday's paper that admission to the Squids wheelchair basketball games would be free. There will be a charge of 50 cents for each game.

The Squids' first game will be at 8 p.m. Saturday against a wheelchair team from Topeka, Kansas. The second game is at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, against a Kansas City team.

Both games will be played at Pulliam Gym and the admission will be 50 cents.

DOES YOUR LIFE NEED NEW MEANING?

"Maybe what you need is a new concept of what life is. It begins with the Bible, which tells us that God, Spirit, is the source and substance of life."

An understanding of the the spiritual nature of life can bring freshness to your daily experience. It has brought healing to many people today.

Intrasquad basketball game ends with Maroon's burying White team by 119-70 score

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Displaying a high-powered run-and-shoot offense and a full court press defense, the SIU Maroon team buried the SIU White team 119-70, in an intrasquad exhibition basketball game Thursday night in Effingham.

The Maroon's win was led by Joe C. Merriweather's 27 points and 24 rebounds and a 22 point showing by freshman Mike Glenn. High scorers for the White team were freshman guard Tom Harris with 17 and George Thompson who added 16.

As the lopsided score indicates, the two teams were somewhat mismatched. Saluki coach Paul Lambert said the top nine players were put on the Maroon team to give this group a chance to play together in game conditions. "On the Maroon team, you saw the guys we're depending on," Lambert said after the game.

Some of the other "Maroons" Lambert is depending on are 6-2 junior college transfer Harry Hines, 6-4 Shag Nixon and 6-6 freshman Corky Abrams. Hines, who had 16 points, is a quick, sure-shooting guard who was voted by his teammates as the best all-around player on the team after the game. Nixon and Abrams each scored 8 points and Abrams added 10 rebounds.

"We think we have added some people who will help us," Lambert said of his freshmen and transfers. "We felt we were a pretty good team last year without quickness and scoring, but the addition of Hines and Glenn added a great deal of power to our attack."

The Maroon team shot a respectable 55 percent from the field, while the White squad hit slightly over 30 percent.

Turkey shoot set

By D. Wesley Smith
Student Writer

The only cries of fowl will come from contestants in the duck-calling contest and the only victims of aerial assault will be clay pigeons at the Turkey Shooter's Carnival being held Saturday.

The turkey shoot is being sponsored by the Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity and will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Carbondale Gun Club located one mile east of Carbondale on Old Route 13.

Proceeds from the event will be used to establish a memorial scholarship in the name of Yan Lau, a member of Alpha Kappa Psi who died this summer.

Competition in stationary and clay pigeon target shooting will be held and shooting enthusiasts will be able to zero in on the bull's-eye with muzzle-loaded rifles and bow and arrow along with regular rifles.

Prizes will be in the form of trophies and gift certificates for game food.

Lambert and assistant coach George Iubelt substituted freely throughout the game which was freely before 800 fans at St. Anthony's high school in Effingham.

Table tennis set

The Women's Recreation Association (WRA) is sponsoring a Table Tennis Tournament from 7-9 p.m., Nov. 16-17 at the women's gym.

The deadline for signing up for the tournament is Friday, Nov. 9. All interested applicants should stop by the Women's Gym, Room 205 to sign up.

The tournament is open to all SIU women; undergraduates, graduates, faculty and staff. Competition will be in three classes: beginners, intermediates and advanced.

For further information, contact Betty Swint at the Women's Gym, Room 205 from 2-3 p.m., Monday-Thursday and 10-11 a.m. on Fridays or phone, 453-2631.

In the Ole-Impics the sororities are pitted against each other in a 10-event program. Each sorority fields a 20-girl team.

Events in the program include tunnel ball, 50 yard dash, leap frog, water balloon race, sack race relay, tricycle relay, and one special event for the president of each sorority which will be announced at the field.

Sororities entered this year include Alpha Gamma Delta, Sigma Kappa, Delta Zeta, Alpha Sigma Alpha, and Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Other events include a queen contest and an exchange with the TKE's Sunday night with Head East providing the music.

Rain poured down Friday afternoon on the mushy natural turf of Ball State Field, and the threatened "mud bowl" showdown between the SIU football Salukis and the Ball State Cardinals had become a reality.

It was only four weeks ago today that the Salukis slipped their way to an embarrassing 23-19 defeat on the soggy ground of Dayton's Baujan Field. Throughout the game, SIU's runners had only one move—to the ground. And the Saluki linemen did little better.

But Dick Towers' squad has more to prove to themselves than whether or not they can cope with a sloppy surface.

In the final game of 1971, the Salukis beat Central Michigan 35-8. Since that game, SIU has not won a game away from home. At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the Salukis hope to change that.

But the Cardinals, 4-4 on the season, have proven tough for teams on the road. Ball State has not lost a home game all season, clobbering Butler 52-14, Middle Tennessee 34-3, and edging Indiana State 18-17.

Last year, Ball State came into McAndrew Stadium with a 4-0-1 record and thoughts of demolishing a winless Saluki team. But a solid SIU defense and an eighty yard touchdown pass from Mike Abegg to Robert Habbe stopped the Cardinals 13-7. The win was SIU's only win of the year and turned Ball State's season around. After the Saluki game, the Cardinals lost four of their next five games, finishing the year 5-4-1.

Towers is well aware of Ball State's success at home and knows his team will be up against a lot more than a muddy field. "Ball State has played well at home this year," Towers said. "They beat a fine Middle Tennessee team, 34-3, last week. Ball State is similar to Akron in that we must stop their tailback (Tony Schmid) and their fine quarterback (Rick Scott) if we expect to win. I know that Ball State will be waiting for us. Last year we beat them when they were undefeated and they remember that. It will be a tough game, especially up at Muncie."

In addition to the absence of Saluki reserve quarterback Dennis O'Boyle, caused by an slow-healing ankle injury, the Salukis will also miss the services of defensive guard Jim Lee. Lee sustained a knee strain in the Akron game.

Towers will start Fred McAlley at quarterback with Melvin Moncrief at tailback, Pat Forsys at fullback and Bruce Puhr at slotback. Ivy Moore will open at split end and Habbe will start a tight end. The offensive line will be made up of tackles Chris Miller and Mike Thompson, guards John Doherty and Frank Biskner and Frank Campbell will be the center.

On defense the Salukis will start ends Valdwre Rodgers and Mark Hailey, tackles Craig Schutte and Prjmus Jones and guards Jack Wise and Mike Gallapo. Richard Kasser and Seth Kirkpatrick will fill the linebacker posts, and Phil Jett, Bruce Corbin and Gary Powell will make up the defensive secondary.

Ken Seaman and Primas Jones will share the place kicking chores and the punting will be done by either Wayne Cowley or Jim Sullivan. Cowley, however, has been bothered by a sore knee and may not make the trip.

Terrier seniors star in last home game, thrash Benton

Carbondale seniors Brian Dougherty and Bill Livesay spent their last night on Bleyer Field in style as they spearheaded a 21-0 victory over Benton Friday night.

Livesay did the field work, picking up 104 yards in 19 carries, while Dougherty scored two of the Terriers' three touchdowns.

Carbondale got into the scoring late in the first quarter. After a booming punt by Benton's Bill Smith from his own end zone, the Terriers sent the ball back the same 47 yards in seven plays, capped by Brian Dougherty's two-yard touchdown run. Bill Livesay picked up 25 yards on the drive in three carries, while Dougherty added 12 other yards to his goal line scamper.

Bruce Douglas started the second quarter with a 30-yard return of another Benton goal line punt for Carbondale's second score. Dan Lillard paved the way for Douglas as he took out two Benton players with a key downfield block.

The Terrier defense got possessive with the football in the first half and limited Benton to one abbreviated drive that ended with a punt from Carbondale's 37. The Carbondale defenders were even stingier in the second half. Benton reached the Carbondale 36 once in the third quarter, but two Benton penalties and several sizeable losses forced Benton back to its own end of the field, where Smith punted from his own five on fourth down and 60.

Dougherty powered up the middle for an 11-yard touchdown midway through the fourth quarter to close out the Terrier scoring.

Carbondale gained 313 total yards while Benton was held to 154, 98 by Rich Ewbanks. Benton failed to complete a pass the entire game.

The Terriers are now 5-4 over-all, 4-1 in South Seven play. Benton dropped to 6-3, 2-3 in the South Seven.
