Jeff Piwnicki, Richard Bossert may be nominated for city hero award

Jeff Piwnicki always knew he could be a hero. Piwnicki, a junior in business administration from Carbondale, helped pull victim Patric Gent, a senior in the Student Center, Ballroom D. Gent was treated and released with minor injuries. The program will feature booths and exhibits on various career opportunities. The program will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in the Student Center, Ballroom D. All work-related information is available at the Student Center central ticket office or by calling 453-5369.

Silent disco event

The First dancers for Diwali, the Indian festival of lights, celebrated in a style similar to Carbondale’s. Diwali comes the participants prepare by cleaning their clothes and setting up lights throughout their homes. The traditional dances, they laughed and enjoyed the atmosphere. Young participants perform a traditional dance in celebration of Diwali Sunday afternoon.

 Percussion and dance are the same for SIUC student rescues man from car fire

Jeff Piwnicki stands at West Main Street, near the edge of Carbondale, where on Friday night, he pulled a man from a burning car to safety.

"Maybe for a second I thought the car might blow up, but I bolted," he said. "I was just running, I didn't even think about it."

A woman was yelling something and informed Piwnicki that someone was in the vehicle so he ran to the passenger door where Richard Bossert, another bystander, stood in shock.

Piwnicki and Bossert grabbed the passenger door frame and pulled it down before dragging an unconscious Gent to safety. Piwnicki described it as "a random event, a random person running into a car on the side of University Avenue, the officer called for backup in a police vehicle. The officer turned on the lights and sirens, went to the suspect, but saw Cole, who was close to catching the trees."

The officer in the squad had instructed Cole for the suspect and chased into the sidewalks and small roads, where Cole went to the emergency room, where he was treated and released with minor injuries.

Carbondale's Halloween parade a few costumes and each weekend, the same number of arrests reported visitors and alerted police to trouble spots with the exception of those past two years. Carbondale's has few words about the incident, except for the suspect and arrested into the sidewalk and small roads, where Cole went to the emergency room, where he was treated and released with minor injuries.

Parking officials announce lot changes and boarding restrictions

Repeated reports of close calls and speeding in the Lot 112 parking garage had SIUC Chief Sam Jednak and Parking Director Brian Mayer to install speed bumps near the lot in the lower level of the lot. The arrest of Jeff Anthony Hill will be partially closed for the next 18 months for construction purposes. About 75 percent of the spaces will be closed until construction is complete. Alternating parking lots are Lot 110 and 112. Lot 110 has a Metro Library where you have space because of the building, while the parking spaces can be found Lot 35 and Lot 6. Handicapped parking should not be offered to the public. Parking Director Brian Mayer at Parking Division, 453-5369.

Signs warning skateboarders have been put up to notify students not to skateboard. Recent reports by pedestrians of near misses and instances of skateboarders running a high noise level led officials to post signs in the area. Offenders will be fined $15 and may have their skateboard confiscated.

Ohio University enjoys peaceful Halloween

Sarah Roberts Daily Egyptian

If the only things thousands of college students in Athens, Ohio, need to have a good Halloween party are a few costumes and each weekend, the same number of arrests reported visitors and alerted police to trouble spots with the exception of those past two years. Carbondale's has few words about the incident, except for the suspect and arrested into the sidewalk and small roads, where Cole went to the emergency room, where he was treated and released with minor injuries.

Watt's judgement has burned out

Any SIUC students who think their vote can't make a difference or that national and state policies aren't relevant to their lives should pay attention to an item toward the end of the ballot tomorrow.

Beneath the presidential candidates, the state representative candidates and even the county board candidates is a poorly understood section: "A BALLOT FOR JUDICIAL CANDIDATES SEEKING RETENTION IN OFFICE".

Most voters won't even make it down below, but, in this election, it's worth the few extra seconds.

Judge David W. Watt, who presides over the first judicial circuit, will soon be up for re-election. After much debate last year when he made surprise private statements to State's Attorney Mike Wessey in a sexual assault trial involving an incident in an SIUC residence hall.

"I find your comment ... that life doesn't happen that way ... and this is not the first time we've heard this -- and I don't think life does happen that way except in the doomsday Southern Illinois University on Saturday night," Watt said. "It's too bad the parents don't make a surprise 3 a.m. visit on their son's or daughter's campus. Despite life not happening that way over there, that doesn't mean it's right."

Koehn displayed his commitment to stay informed and lobby aggressively for SIUC at the state level so he can assist when it is appropriate to do so.

But even the most knowledgeable will concur that the best way to campaign is to be on the ground running; we think that new candidates need to become more authoritative and reflect common-sense solutions to their constituents.

As a part-time farmer, former factory worker and father, Koehn has first-hand experience of the difficulties that occur in Southern Illinois. Whether it is a lack of funding for local schools or a Harlem trash heap that left many crops ruined, Koehn can relate.

Koehn's pro-choice, agrees with limited gun control and would consider adding homosexuals as a protected group from discrimination depending on the wording of the bill.

As a part-time farmer, former factory worker and father, Koehn has first-hand experience of the difficulties that occur in Southern Illinois. Whether it is a lack of funding for local schools or a Harlem trash heap that left many crops ruined, Koehn can relate.

Robert Koehn is the type of candidate to see in office.

But Watt has made some progress in the establishment of employment opportunities for the citizens of Southern Illinois but has maintained a silent-partner role with the students. In the past six years, Robert Koehn is the type of candidate we would like to see in office.

But in the tightest presidential race since 1960, and arguably the most covered by the media, public-opinion polls have carried a greater weight of truth with both the candidates and the voters. For the politicians, they are a measure of public opinion and a pillar on which to base their own policies; for the voters, a vote can be influenced by the daily onslaught of statistics.

But in this election, we should be voting for a leader, not a follower. Of the 187 million citizens in America today, the average pol incorporates only 1,000 on average. Questionable results, without a doubt, and why the candidates put so much stock in them is beyond me.

But at the local level, the Bake has the most popular entertainers of all time.

When they come, which leader shall we take them to?

They've given us the lowdown on Social Security. They've talked Medicare into the ground. And yes, I've heard a thing or two about taxes.

But even the most knowledgeable will concur that the best way to campaign is to be on the ground running; we think that new candidates need to become more authoritative and reflect commonsense solutions to their constituents.

One of these traditions is the food served for the holiday. These foods include Tandoori Naan, which is Indian bread. Those in charge of making the food spent the whole day preparing the feast, which had to satisfy the 359 people in attendance. While the food is traditional Indian dishes, the types of food are made specifically for holidays.

"The food we are eating today is most of a luxury," said Ashish Lakhi, president of the Indian Student Association. While the event was made to honor an ancient king, the holiday itself brings people together.

Lakhi said she has celebrated the holiday many times along with nearly 300 Indian families who are settled in Carbondale, but was shocked at the abundance of Indian students involved and was glad to welcome them.

"I have never seen so many young people together," Lakhi said. "This is a joint effort to arrange this festival."

Salary Increases: A total of 15% to 17% over three year period, 15.7% to 17.9% compounded. (i.e. 5 % in FY01, and 5 or 6 % in FY02 and FY03)

Negative advertising is something no one will see between Koech and Buck. Koech said he is unsure of attacks in this campaign from either side.

Broggs said there is a good reason for this. He said negative advertisements tend to hurt the campaign, not the candidate, not his or her opponent. However, he said he sees a trend toward negativity, especially late in the campaign.

Candidates neck and neck as E-Day arrives

Alexa Aguilan
Daily Egyptian

With the two presidential candidates in a statistical dead heat, Election Day promises to be a sprint to the finish. Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George Bush have boosted in a few poll points in both the nation and the state, and both have marched through battleground states with a dizzying pace in the final days before the election.

Illinois is now a battleground state again, after it was considered for weeks to be solidly in the Gore camp. In 22 electoral votes could be a deciding factor in the 270 electoral votes needed to capture the White House.

Mike Lawrence, associate director for the Public Policy Institute, said he thinks it is possible for Bush to win the White House without carrying Illinois, but would be "shocked" if Gore wins the presidency without Illinois.

Chicago tends to vote predominantly Democrat, while the suburbs tend to go Republican. This has the potential to cancel those votes out, Lawrence said, meaning victory could depend on the votes of the downstate region.

Because Tuesday's race is so painstakingly close, both Democrats and Republicans are gearing up for massive voter turnout drives this year. And although analysts have predicted that voter turnout will be slightly low again this year, Lawrence isn't so sure.

"I think it might be heavier than many anticipate," Lawrence said. "Because it is so close, more people will be convinced their vote can make a difference."

In the months after the primary primaries, many assumed Gore had bagged the presidency. His popularity surged during debates, created doubts about his sincerity and truthfulness.

Let's get ready to rumble!

The SIUC College Democrats, College Republicans and Shawnee Green Party will battle it out for the first time in a debate room 171 of Lawrence Student Center 8PM. The SIUC Debate team is sponsoring and moderating the event, which is expected to last nearly 90 minutes. The debate will be taut hall format, and questions from the public will be reviewed near the end.
Each party will have one delegate representing their presidential candidate.
The Shawnee Green's delegate for Ralph Nader is from Illinois Ralph Nader.

The College Democrats chose Ryan Burris to represent Al Gore. And siding with Ralph Nader was selected by the College Republicans to speak for George W. Bush.

This election is about restoring bipartisanship, about fostering government that will nurture a booming economy without getting in the way of American ingenuity. There is only one candidate for president who can do all that, and he is George W. Bush.

SIU women's basketball wins first of two exhibition games

Javiera Berea
Daily Egyptian

While exhibition games don't affect a team's season record, no college basketball team wants to lose one — especially in exhibition openers.

A feeling of relief must have overcome the Saluki women's basketball team in the waning moments of its 76-69 victory over Slovakian Bratislava, the Slovak-National team, when senior Terica Hathaway grabbed two free throws and sealed the triumph in its first exhibition game at the SIU Arena Sunday.

SIU allowed Slovak to stay in the game until the final 24 seconds when it grabbed the rebound from Adriana Totaeva's failed three point shot — which would have tied the game. Sophomore Molly McDowell was then fouled with 17 seconds left and made both attempts.

"I think the players were excited," rookie SIU head coach Lori Opp said in general about the game. "I think you could see it out there, especially when some of our young kids went in at the end of the game."

Slowly building momentum at times resulted in SIU committing 24 turnovers

"We moved the ball too slowly, and that's something we're going to work on," Opp said.

But the Salukis made up for their shortcomings by controlling the boards, and by improving their first half field goal percentage from 34.3 to 47.6 in the second half.

Opp acknowledged SIU as a team didn't shoot the ball well in the first half, but is quick to point out she thinks that is it.

"Part of that is because of the coaching staff. We've been so busy working on defense that we haven't enough time to just flat-out shoot the ball," Opp said.

The Salukis dominated the boards, grabbing 46 rebounds to Slovakian's 24. Sophomore forward Katie Browning led SIU in rebounds with 17 followed by senior forward Terica Hathaway and senior center Kristine Abramowski.

Hathaway led SIU in scoring with 17 points. McDowell, who left the game in the first half after being knocked to the floor, returned to the game in the second half and ended up with 15 points and four steals. Junior Hope Tagoe and Abramowski both finished with 11 points.

Two steals, which she had five assists, committed one turnover and one steal, in 10 minutes. The point guard made her debut as a starting Saluki after sitting out most of the season with a knee injury.

"It's nice to get out there and start playing, even after the off time she had in a good position," Tagoe said.

Meanwhile, McDowell is anxious to return.

"Sometimes we looked like we could be great this season, other times we looked terrible, so hopefully we'll work really hard this week so that we can play really great next Sunday," McDowell said.

After a month on 'sabbatical,' Scott wants to stay a Saluki

Barb Scott came to Carbondale to make precious hits on the football field. But lately, the star Saluki linebacker has been reduced to a bewildered spectator as he helplessly watches his team crash and burn.

Scott has not played in a Saluki uniform since halftime of the Oct. 7 Homecoming game against Western Illinois University, when frustration led to a run-in with the Saluki coaching staff. Scott will not discuss the specifics of the incident, saying "we're still a family, and some things just happen within the family."

But he did say he has been surprised at how severe the fallout has been since the incident, after which SIU head coach Jan Quarless placed Scott on what Quarless described as "sabbatical."

"I didn't think the situation would affect me," Scott said. "I didn't think the situation was major at first."

Scott wants to stay a Saluki, who noted he has never had disciplinary problems before. "I've been totally surprised — never in my wildest dreams could I imagine something like this could ever happen."

Quarless has repeatedly declined to offer specifics about Scott's "sabbatical," leaving Scott's absence from the team shrouded in secrecy. Quarless did not return phone messages left at his office on Sunday.

Meanwhile, Scott has tried to focus on academics and take advantage of extra free time during the past month, but he has been

Weber was pleased with Buie's performance, allowing them to distribute the ball more evenly across the floor as players exploited the 12 minutes, they stayed within 18 points, connecting on three 3-pointers. Williams scored 32 of his first-half points in the opening 13 minutes.

Weber was pleased with Buie's performance, after having some tough showings in practices prior to Saturday's contest. Senior Abel Schupfer and Joshua Cross finished with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

"Everybody did something a little bit that they should have some confidence," Weber said. "SIU shot the ball well from three-point land, connecting on 10 of 20 attempts. The Salukis want this to put all but two players in the scoring column.

"We can get some points and get to the hoop, there's no doubt about that," Weber said. "Until the last four or five minutes, they stayed within the game."

Junior transfer Tynise Buie was impressive in his first collegiate start. The sophomore in his first collegiate start. The sophomore completed nine of 17 attempts for 71 yards with one interception in what Saluki head coach Jan Quarless called an "inconsistent" performance.

"I tried to go out there and just take what they gave me and I made some mistakes, and we just killed ourselves that first half," said Koe, who was pulled with 1:49 left in the half for Poteete. "I thought I did some things good, but I didn't get the ball in the endzone. That's the big deal, and I didn't.""}

Kobe said he wasn't surprised to get the call because he was taking reps with the first squad in practice last week.

"I wasn't sure until [Friday] night what exactly was going to happen and [Quarless], let me know," Kobe said. "It was Coach's call.""}

Quarless wouldn't elaborate on why he opted to start Kobe, other than saying "it was a decision we made."
