Housing Fuss Still Brewing

Official representatives of SIU have not been invited to a scheduled meeting of the Carbondale Taxpayers Association at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce office, according to University officials.

At a meeting last week of the newly-formed organizations, the CTA members spoke out against University policy which they claim is responsible for a large number of vacancies in off-campus housing.

They charged that SIU is depriving them of a chance to get adequate returns on investments in off-campus housing by building new dormitories and directing students away from off-campus housing units.

More than 60 persons, mostly off-campus householders and businessmen, attended the public meeting last Wednesday night, John Lannin was named temporary chairman of the group.

Mrs. Anita Kuo, supervisor of off-campus housing, who much of the CTA criticism was directed at last week, said she was not invited to attend this week's meeting and present the University's views on the matter.

Representatives of the CTA have said that all Carbondale taxpayers, including indivi-

Sorority Rush Leaves 200 Coeds Full of Punch and Doubts

"What's it like to be a sorority rushee?"

"You start out in hats and high heels and with high hopes," said one young woman, "and you wind up five hours later full of punch and ego-shattering doubts."

She was among the nearly 200 co-eds who spent Sunday trying to make the right impression on SIU's five sororities as informal rush opened. Here's her first hand report on the afternoon:

We gathered at Agriculture Seminar Room Sunday at 12:30 p.m. to take the initial steps that eventually led to pledging a sorority.

Rushees were divided into 5 groups according to the color of their name tags, and headed in the general direction of Greek Row by a rush leader.

Each group spent 45 minutes in the house and then stood outside for 15, to give the houses a chance to re-group for the next "onslaught."

The doors to the house were opened finally, and the rushees were invited in. We went through a receiving line in which we were introduced to the house mother, the sorority president, and various other dignitaries.

We were headed and herded, pushed and shoved in the right directions by sorority leaders, but as each girl started through the receiving line and into the house, she was on her own.

At the end of the receiving line, a pledge or active introduced herself, and took the tentative pledge through the house, introduced her to other sisters, and gave all the information she could.

As one rushee glanced nervously around a room of girls before introductions, a Greek banished her fears by leaning over and whispering confidentially "If anything goes wrong, don't pay any attention. We're so nervous!"

After visits to two houses, we began to droop; we weren't such eager-beavers.

"Two down, three to go!" remarked one slightly sweaty rushee. "I think I can stand it, I just hope they can."

Full of punch, information and high hopes, we gathered again at the Seminar Room at 6:30, after almost 5 hours of rush.

"One problem after another," muttered one perplexed rushee as she struggled to choose three favorite sororities from the five."

The girls will return to a more informal party at a more of her three selections the first of this week to get better acquainted with the girls and organization.

Thursday, a harder decision will face each rushee, as each girl must make her final choice of a sorority.

Then comes the worst period of waiting and wondering if she will get a bid.

As one rushee said, "I know I want them, but I they know they want me?"

GAL TALK - Bev Hendrickson (kneeling front) talks with Nancy Reeser during rush at the Delta Zeta House.

Columbus Day Set For LAO Meeting

Plans are under way for a Columbus Day--Oct. 12--get-together for Latin American students.

Persons interested in any aspect of Latin America are invited. The affair will be in the family living laboratory of the Home Economics Building from 7:30 to 11 p.m.

SIU's Whale Population Increases By Two-Fold

The University's whale population has doubled.

Another beaked whale has been acquired by the Zoology Department. This gives SIU two of the world's 16 known specimens of the particular type.

The whale, of a rare species known as "Nodus densirostris," was one of three washed ashore two years ago at Midway Island, Navy personnel buried the whales for Harvey Fisher, Zoology Department chairman, who visits the island twice yearly for research on "Gooney" birds. Fisher sent one back last summer and a second, less rare beaked variety arrived this winter. The new "Nodus" bones were shipped by Fisher this summer at the windup of his Midway trip.

Edwin C. Galbreath, department paleontologist, whose job is rendering oil from the fresh bones so they can be treated and coated with preservative, said the latest specimen is that of a mature female, possibly the mother of the original now in his collection.

Galbreath says his researches have pinpointed only 14 known examples of the "Nodus" in other world collections. He said SIU's whales are more unusual because they had never been reported in the central Pacific region.

To Galbreath, who ranks the acquisitions as "major ones in this field," there's only one drawback. The treated bones have yielded 40 pounds of "Nodus oil" liberally cut with alcohol solvent, and he doesn't know what to do with it. "It smells so bad I'd almost be afraid to throw it out," he says.

English Meeting

All faculty members and students interested in becoming members of the English Club are invited to be present at the first meeting this year, Thursday, October 11, at 7:30 in the Home Economics Lounge.

Dr. Dan Cook who has just returned from a year of teaching in Damascus will be the guest speaker. A discussion and coffee hour will follow.

Substandard Housing

Recent investigations by the State Fire Marshal's office have shown that more than 90 per cent of the off-campus student housing inspected in Carbondale violates Illinois fire codes.

State Fire Marshals have inspected more than 400 living units in the city and have found 374 which violate the fire code in some way. They listed lack of fire extinguishers, unsafe wiring and improper storage of paint cans and other combustible material as the most common violations.

The fire hazard, however, is not the only problem in Carbondale housing. Holes in walls, floors and ceilings; old or broken down furniture; leaking roofs and inadequate lighting can be found in a large number of homes in Carbondale.

Fortunately, the majority of those whose homes did violate the codes are cooperating with city officials and the SIU housing office, and are making strides toward bringing their homes up to the level set by the codes. Many more homes already meet the standards.

However there is that element who would rather relax the codes than bring their homes up to the standards specified in them. These are the people who have been complaining about the large number of vacancies in their houses.

In a meeting Wednesday night of more than sixty Carbondale householders, the Carbondale Taxpayers Association was formed. Its purpose is to find a solution to the problem of unrented student rooms in Carbondale. It should be noted that the association represents only a small percentage of the total off-campus houses.

Although there was no official action taken by the association, its members spoke out against: inspections of off-campus housing by the State Fire Marshal's office; the underwriting of the student bus to Murphysboro; the free bus service to Carterville; selection of Thomas Easterly, a Carbondale businessman, as building inspector; restrictions on trailer court operators; SIU's car ban; and Southern Illinois University in general for what was termed as lack of sympathy for off-campus householders.

The association charged the SIU housing office with deliberately steering students away from off-campus housing and into university dormitories. They actually charged that Southern has no business building dormitories. Question: is there a state university in the country that doesn't build dormitories for its students?

It is true that for many of the people in this group, the renting of rooms to students provides their major source of income. But that doesn't mean that these householders should be allowed to ignore building and fire codes any more than the other householders in the city.

Until this fall, there has been a definite lack of housing for SIU students. The university has always had standards they would like off-campus houses to meet, but because of the housing pinch, they have had to include just about all units available in the city on their lists. And since there has been a shortage, there have always been students who have had to live in substandard houses. It has simply been a case of students either living in bad houses or not going to school.

This fall things have been a little different. Dormitories for 1,000 students have been built at Thompson Point, hotels and homes have been opened up to students in Murphysboro, and a number of concerns are adding new dormitories in Carbondale. These additional units made it possible for students to be more selective, and the poorer houses have remained vacant. The householders in Carbondale must now compete for the student's rent money. To do it they will have to make their houses an acceptable place to live in.

The criticism of the bus service to Murphysboro is not based on fact. Members of the association have voiced their complaints that they are paying taxes which are being spent by the university to finance a bus program. This is not true. The Murphysboro Chamber of Commerce and the student activity fund provided the money to underwrite the bus service. The money for the activity fund comes from the activity fee paid by each student when he enrolls in the university.

The charge that Southern is against the householders of Carbondale is also untrue. Someone must set the standards which student housing should meet. If there are houses which, year after year, fail to meet the standards, then the blame for the vacancies in those houses must be on the proprietors of those houses.

One word of warning should be expressed. The university and the city of Carbondale must be encouraged to continue strengthening off-campus housing standards and to see that they are followed by householders. New housing will continue to be added, and the findings of the recent investigations should have shown everyone how the state of housing conditions can deteriorate when there is no enforcement of the standards that have been set up.

Soap Box

It's strange how the Academic Advisement Center insists on making advisement appointments for over ten thousand students from only five tables (manned by only five workers the day I was there) in the Olympic Room. If you think those in line have reason to complain just think of the poor soul who wants to play ping pong. Seriously, isn't it time that this archaic system of registration was examined and revised? Why is advisement necessary for those who don't need it? As it is now, it is an unnecessary formality and a waste of time. Advisement should be available to all who feel they need it, but should be required only once a year for upperclassmen. A larger area and larger staff is needed for the sectioning center. It is infuriating to stand in line for hours for something that takes only a few minutes. Though significant change is apparent throughout the University, it seems that the Academic Advisement Center is content in their old, outmoded ways.

Final Score 23-36:

Kansas Whips Saluki Runners

Only the running of British milers Bill Cornell and Brian Turner brightened an otherwise dismal day last weekend as Kansas handed SIU a 23-36 cross-country defeat at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds.

Cornell placed behind Kansas' George Cabrera, who took individual honors for the three mile race with a time of 15 minutes, 25 seconds.

Cornell finished seven seconds behind while Turner placed 15 seconds in back of Cabrera.

Both Cornell and Turner are competing in cross-country for the first time under NCAA eligibility after last year's running under the Saluki AAU Athletic Club colors.

SIU Plays At Home Saturday

SIU opens its home football season Saturday night in McAndrew Stadium at 8 p.m. against an undefeated Hillsdale (Mich.) squad.

Carmen Piccone, SIU head coach, personally scouted Hillsdale and was impressed by its 14-6 victory over another Saluki opponent Northern Michigan.

Piccone and his squad are back at work today preparing for Saturday's home opener in hopes of evening out its season record at 2-2.

Neoma Kinney, athletic department secretary, has announced the procedure in which students will be admitted to the game.

"They must have their activity cards," Mrs. Kinney said, "They should also have their identification cards to show with activity cards."

Student activity cards may be obtained at the University Center student activities office.

country after winning the Most Valuable Athlete title last year.

Southern's other two runners, Don Trowbridge and John Saunders, failed to place in the top 10. Trowbridge placed 11th while Saunders finished 12th.

Saunders performance was a disappointment even though he was running cross-country for the first time. It was expected that he would place higher than what he did.

In cross-country low score wins. Kansas runners finished first, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, for their 23 points. Lew Hartzog's squad placed second, third, eighth, 11th and 12th for its 36 points.

Alan Gelso, one of Southern's better cross-country runners, placed sixth in Saturday's meet but his finish was not counted in the final standings.

Gelso competed when he was a freshman in one meet and lost a year's eligibility because of it. Under NCAA rules each athlete has three years of eligibility.

Even though he will be unable to compete in NCAA sanctioned meets this year Gelso still works out with the squad in preparation for the National AAU meet in which he will be eligible to compete.

Intramural Golf

An intramural golf tournament has been scheduled on the Thompson Point field Oct. 8, 9 and 10 between 3 and 5 p.m. daily. Equipment will be supplied by the Intramural office.

Battle Really Battling For Pro Ball Career

Jim Battle hopes to become the fifth SIU football player to make the professional football ranks.

SIU already has Carver Shannon, Amos Bullocks, Marion Rushing and Houston Antwine in pro football and Battle hopes to join the group next year.

He has received offers from the National Football League members and from several teams in the American Football League.

"I have no particular choice of teams," Battle said, "I only want to play pro ball."

"The National Football League is my first preference of the two leagues," Battle continued, "But if that doesn't work out I'll try the American league."

In 1958 Battle was a member of the Great Lakes football team which was humiliated by SIU.

"I'll never forget the game," Battle said, "Carver Shannon scored five touchdowns against us and after the game Piccone (Carmen) and Bob Franz came to me and offered me a scholarship to play for Southern."

Battle has started and played the majority of time in every game since 1959. Because of his ability to play in every game his teammates have nicknamed him "Iron Man."

"I don't know why I've been able to escape injuries," Battle said, "I was told to play my hardest maybe that's why I haven't been hurt."

It may be ironic but Battle broke his leg last spring in a physical education class after 11 years of football.

"I don't know what it is," Battle said, "Maybe it's luck but the injury came after spring football practice thus I still continued football without an injury."

WHAT KIND OF
MAN HANDLES
A BUSINESS VENTURE BEST?

A midwestern college audience recently heard this answer in a talk by A.T. & T. Board Chairman, Frederick R. Kappel

"To us this is an important question because we hire nearly 3000 college graduates yearly. To get an answer we went to our own files and examined the records of nearly 17,000 people. We checked each man's comparative success against what he achieved in college.

"As a group, the scholars won handsly. Of the men who stood among the top third in salary for their level of experience, more than half were also in the top third of their college class. Only a quarter were in the bottom third.

"And contrary to age-old beliefs, extracurricular activities proved a lesser indicator unless the individual had an outstanding achievement. Mere 'joining' was not enough.

"The study indicates, at least as far as the Bell System goes, that there's little opportunity for college students who practice 'diplomaship'—the belief that a diploma automatically leads to job success. Such thinking will not make telephone service what we know it can be.

"The men we want are men with intelligence plus those other attributes that give you the feel, the sense that they will make things move and move well—men who want to excel and are determined to work at it.

"Nothing short of excellence will do."

Off-Campus Housing Fuss Brewing

Members of the SIU staff and faculty have been invited to the meeting, but official SIU representatives were not invited.

At last week's meeting, inspection of off-campus housing currently underway by the State Fire Marshal's office was criticized. William Cox, owner of a student house at 601 S. University Ave., which had been termed by a deputy fire marshal "one of the worst" he had inspected, blamed four students who had lived there for the condition in which the inspectors found the house.

Bill Fenwick, student body president, said, "We in the Student Government office at SIU are rather happy about the off-campus housing situation. We have been working to give students available housing that is not poor. We do not feel that this group has a valid protest because of the sub-standard housing available in many cases."

Fenwick said he personally looked at some of the vacant off-campus housing units and found some of the housing "pathetic." Fenwick said the student government office at present has no plans to present any appeals or suggestions to the CTA.

The CTA, at an executive meeting last Thursday, formed committees to carry out plans of the organization.

Also criticized at last Wednesday night's meeting was SIU's sharing the cost of a student bus to Murphysboro and free bus service to the Carterville area near the Vocational Technical Institute.

Mrs. Kuo said last week that she thought one reason for a decrease in the number of students living in regular off-campus housing units was the fact that several hundred more have chosen to live in trailers this year.

Mrs. Kuo said there are several good housing units which are vacant this year but there are also many sub-standard units among the vacant ones.

Absentee Ballots Available For Eligible Students

Jackson County Clerk Delmer Ward said today there were comparatively few SIU students who could qualify for voting in the upcoming general election but that many could vote absentee.

Students may vote absentee now and until Nov. 1, he said.

For those who can vote here, largely married couples 21 years of age or over, requirements to vote in Jackson County are: minimum of 90 day residence in the county, 30 days in the precinct and one year in the State of Illinois.

Registrations will be taken at the county clerk's office in the Carbondale city hall until 5 p.m. today.

Students who give a home address of parents or guardians are still considered residents at that address, Ward said, and must vote absentee if they wish to cast a ballot in the November election.

Ballots may be picked up at the County clerk's office in the Jackson County court house in Murphysboro. Ward said each ballot must be notarized before it is mailed back to the clerk of the voters' home county.
