50 stores to initiate check cards

By Karen Gullio
Staff Writer

A new check-cashing card system which enables consumers to use one card to cash checks at about 50 stores in the Carbondale area will begin Monday, according to Scott O. Johnston, president of Check-mates, Inc.

The Check-Mate card is a solid plastic check acceptance card with the consumer's name, local address, phone number and a Check-Mate number embossed into the card. Student's cards will be yellow and are valid for one year only, expiring at the beginning of the fall term. Beige cards will be issued to permanent residents and are valid for three years.

Students can pick up applications for Check-Mate cards at any of the 50 stores in Carbondale honoring them, Johnston said. Application displays will be near the checkout counters at most stores, he said.

Any individual whose check-cashing history is satisfactory during the last four years is eligible to receive a Check-Mate card, Johnston said. The standards for determining what is a satisfactory check-cashing history will be up to the participating merchants as a group. Check-Mate, which is the same organization that puts out the Check-Mate Watch List, is currently preparing a questionnaire for the merchants to determine the criteria for revoking a card, Johnston said.

The information on the application will be kept in a central application file at the Check-mates, Inc. Office, Johnston said. Checkout clerks will not have to transcribe any biographical data, such as driver's license number or phone number, onto the card at the time of its acceptance, because the information will already be on file and available upon request to the merchant.

The cost of the card will be 25 cents per card, and most merchants are absorbing the cost for the customers that apply for the card at their store, Johnston said. Check-Mates, Inc., is absorbing the costs for the first 3,000 cards issued in this area, he said.

Johnston says the new system will benefit both the consumer and the merchant.

"Consumers will fill out only one check-cashing card application and carry only one card for a number of stores," Johnston said. "Since the check-out clerks don't have to transcribe any data onto the check, the consumer will spend less time getting checks approved. And a merchant can accept a check from a consumer with the knowledge that the individual has a good check-cashing history."

Bad-check writers will be permanently weeded out of the system as we will use the information we already have from our Check-Mate Watch List to determine who is eligible for a card."

Most of the stores on Illinois Avenue are participating in the system, Johnston said.

F-Senate delays search nominations

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

SIU Chancellor Kenneth Shaw will not receive all the constituency nominations for members of the SIU-C Presidential Search Committee by his requested Friday deadline.

At least one constituency group will not be meeting that deadline.

According to the presidential search guidelines submitted by Shaw and approved by the eight constituency groups, each group is to submit double the number of names as they will have places on the committee. Shaw will then select the 12 committee members from the nominations submitted.

Lawrence Dennis, president of the Faculty Senate, said he informed Shaw that his committee will not meet to vote on nominations until Tuesday, and that even then he's not sure they will meet Shaw's request of submitting double the number of names that they are allowed places.

Dennis said the Faculty Senate policy is to submit only the number of nominations that there are places available and it would take a special resolution to comply with Shaw's request.

"The question is, are we really going to change it (policy)? We are debating on the issue Tuesday and I would think it will be a very lengthy debate. I have detected some sharp differences of opinion within our group as to whether we should comply with the guidelines requested," Dennis said.

There are three positions on the search committee for senate representatives, Dennis said if they decide to submit only three names and Shaw doesn't accept those, he will have to call a special meeting to consider further action.

However, five other constituency heads said their groups have either already nominated representatives or plan to do so before Friday.

Pete Alexander, president of the Undergraduate Student Council, said Shaw has had their nominations for over a week. However, instead of allowing the members of USO to vote on the nominations, Alexander submitted the names himself.

"I wanted to call a closed meeting to discuss personnel qualifications for nominations, but the senators voted to keep the meeting open. I didn't feel an open meeting was conducive to discussing the nominations so I submitted the names myself," Alexander said.

He added that members are welcome to submit additional nominations to Shaw.

The Council of Deans, which will be allowed one position on the committee, has also submitted two names to Shaw, Chairman Gilbert Kroening said.

Kroening said the committee encountered no problems with the nomination guidelines and agreed it was appropriate to give the Chancellor a choice between a two people in order to insure a proper balance on the committee.

Kroening added that he would have preferred that Shaw select the chair of the committee before selecting the members. According to the search committee guidelines adopted, a chairperson will be selected by the committee members from within their ranks.

"To have a full-time chair at this point seems a little unusual to me and it could put restraints on the committee," he said. "What if none of the 12 want to accept the position? I don't think it will happen, but it's a thought."

Joann Marks, chairwoman of the Council of Civil Service Employees, said the council will meet Wednesday to nominate

City liquor board vetoes truckload beer sales

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Truckload beer sales will not become a new promotional tactic for package liquor store owners, according to a decision by the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission.

The commission Monday denied a request from Stephen Thomas Hoffmann Enterprises, Inc., owners of Eastgate Liquor Mart, asking for permission to hold the sale on Oct. 13.

George Kiriakos, city attorney, told the commission that in his opinion both the city's ordinance and the Illinois Liquor Commission's law prohibited such sales.

"The policy question is whether to amend the ordinance," Kiriakos said.

At the Sept. 24 council meeting, Hoffmann asked the City Council for permission to hold the truckload beer sales on both Homecoming and Halloween. After objections from two council members, Hoffmann agreed to seek permission for the Homecoming date only.

Illinois Liquor Commission Attorney Irene Bahr said if the local liquor commission would allow the sale, the state commission would too, Kiriakos said.

Leslie Papas, pastor of Boskydell Baptist Church, told the five-member commission that he was opposed to the sale not "only on moral grounds but because of the negative image that this brings to the city."

Kevin Jans, Undergraduate Student Organization senator, said, "Obviously no one is forced to drink. If this person (Hoffmann) wishes to undersell his competition and take advantage of capitalism, I think it would be a good thing. It's the 'American Way,'" Jans said.

Brandt's letter to HEW on Sanford Plan released

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

A letter from former SIU-C President Warren Brandt to the former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has shed new light on Brandt's rationale for enrolling the University in the Sanford Plan coalition.

The letter was released by Acting President Hiram Lesar in response to a request from the Daily Egyptian for all University correspondence relating to Brandt's decision to join the coalition. Lesar released Brandt's letter with approval from the former president. Lesar said he had found no other correspondence or interoffice memoranda related to the matter.

The letter to former HEW Secretary Joseph Califano is dated May 22, which according to University financial documents, is one day before Brandt ordered that $1,000 in University funds be contributed to the coalition. The coalition is a group of colleges that support an alternative proposal for the enforcement of Title IX, the 1972 federal law forbidding sex-based discrimination in intercollegiate athletics.

Brandt states in the letter that SIU-C is one of only seven universities offering 11 of the 13 possible Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championship sports. He also states that about 40 percent of SIU-C's intercollegiate athletes are women, which is well above the 26 percent average cited in HEW guidelines.

A final fact cited by Brandt is that SIU-C's women's athletics program is one of the top twenty funded women's programs in the country, while the men's program ranks only about one hundredth.

Brandt states that HEW's proposed national guidelines would force SIU-C to either increase the funding of its women's program immediately or reduce the number of participants.

"One alternative financially penalizes an institution for its early commitment to women's participation in intercollegiate athletics," Brandt writes. "The other option reduces athletic opportunity available for women on the campus. We find neither of the options desirable."

The coalition is supporting a proposal developed by President Terry Sanford of Duke University which would allow each university to develop its own guidelines for complying with Title IX.

"Such an approach here at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale would, in my judgement, result in a program which continues to provide maximum opportunity to all of our students to participate in intercollegiate athletics," Brandt writes.

Lesar also released information about the University Development account, from which the $1,000 contribution was drawn. Assistant Treasurer L.S. Robson had previously refused to make the information public.

According to Lesar's figures, the account currently contains $69,710.

The money in the account comes from corporate and private donations to the University.

Anti-racism group seeks aid

By Jacqui Koszczuk

Three members of the International Committee Against Racism, a group that wants to build a new nationwide anti-war movement, brought their membership recruitment effort to campus earlier this week.

The Southern Illinois faction of the ICAR, based in Harrisburg, has been attempting to increase its membership at area colleges and communities, according to Bonnie Blustein, a member of ICAR and an assistant history professor at the University of Louisville.

She said she came to Carbondale to help local members of the organization recruit new members.

"Our underlying philosophy is that racism hurts all students and all working people, and keeps them divided, instead of being united to work for social change," Blustein said.

"We're a rank and file organization," she said. "And we believe the only way to fight racism against not only blacks but other minority groups as well, is to be organized. That way we can elect leaders to speak for us, instead of relying on movie stars and politicians for representation."

As an example of the groups activities, Blustein cited a protest march it conducted last summer in Tupelo, Miss., to stop a planned Klu Klux Klan rally.

In November, she said the ICAR members will hold a conference in Madison, Wis., to begin organizing an "anti-war, anti-United States imperialism" movement.

"We're not suggesting young people look for ways to avoid the draft if there is one, and we're not suggesting they stop enlisting," she said. Rather the organization hopes to build anti-war sentiments within and outside of the military.

"What we're fighting against is the process by which the U.S. sends troops to other countries in order to prop up repressive governments, all for the sake of U.S. business interests," she said.

"Our slogan is, 'We won't fight a racist war,'" Blustein said.

The Harrisburg faction of the ICAR has a membership of about 35, consisting of students and residents from Southern Illinois.

ICAF member Marlena Ellis, a history student at Southeastern Illinois Community College, said the students she spoke with at the Student Center on Monday were "very responsive." ICAR will be back on campus next month to continue recruitment efforts, she said.

Blustein said most members of ICAR were also members of the Progressive Labor Party, a national communist organization.

Man convicted of drug charges

By Ella Reilly

A former SIU student was found guilty Tuesday in Jackson County Circuit Court of two charges of delivering cocaine.

Kevin Rogers was found guilty of delivering 2 grams of cocaine for $150 on March 17, 1978, and delivering 13 grams of cocaine for $1,000 on March 20, 1978. Rogers was convicted in a bench trial before Judge Richard Richman.

In another bench trial Tuesday, Bret Pritchett, also a former SIU student, was found innocent of a charge of aiding and abetting the delivery of cocaine by Jay Rozner, who pleaded guilty to drug delivery charges last week.

States Attorney Howard Hood said that there was only circumstantial evidence to show that Pritchett was involved in the case. According to Hood, Pritchett was allegedly in a near-by room at the time of the sale.

Rozner, who pleaded guilty to four charges of delivering cocaine and one charge of delivering MDA, was also involved with the first drug delivery of 2 grams of cocaine by Rogers.

The deliveries of cocaine and MDA were made to Southern Illinois Enforcement Group agents and to members of the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement.

Delivery of cocaine is a Class II felony. Possible sentences for Class II felonies range from a minimum of probation to a fine of $25,000 or three to seven years in prison.

City OK's $25 million pledge for mortgage bond revenue

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council is prepared to deal with possible changes in mortgage bond revenue requirements after passing a resolution Monday night.

If the U.S. Congress moves the cutoff date for cities to have taken formal action on mortgage bond revenue to sometime in October—as is rumored in Washington—Carbondale can qualify to be "grandfathered," or set up its own requirements for issuing bonds, according to City Manager Carroll Fry.

At the City Council meeting Monday, the city authorized up to $25 million to be pledged for the mortgage revenue bonds.

Fry recommended that council members, "Pass the resolution that the city would pledge up to $15 million in home mortgage revenue bonds, and that these bonds be issued before April 30, 1980, subject to the proper legislative orders."

However, after discussion by Fry, council members, Secretary of Home Federal Savings and Loan Barbara Schauwecker and Larry Haven, owner of Havens Realty, the council decided to increase the ceiling amount to $25 million.

Carbondale began work on a mortgage revenue bond policy earlier this year. However, a clause in House Bill 3712, "The Mortgage Subsidy Bond Tax Act of 1979," put the cutoff date for cities to have taken formal action at April 25. After the House Ways and Means Committee published a 72-page report interpreting the cutoff date restrictions, Carbondale became ineligible to "grandfather."

Carbondale's plan would provide "scarce mortgage money to families at reasonable rates for the acquisition or improvement of single family residential units within the corporate boundaries of Carbondale."

Under the guidelines of the plan, the city would sell revenue bonds to generate funds. This revenue would then be available to local financial lending institutions, which would grant the loans.

The city must wait for congressional action before any bonds are issued.

In other action, the city denied a request to change a city ordinance that prohibits selling liquor within 100 feet of a church lot.

R. Alan Patterson, owner of the Stardust Billiards, 409 S. Illinois Ave., had requested that the city amend this ordinance to comply with the state law.

Council members agreed to allow Patterson to continue operating in his present location which is scheduled to be demolished due to the railroad relocation project—until the city takes "physical possession of the building."

The council also decided to extend the hours to sell liquor during Homecoming weekend (Oct. 13 and 14) until 6 a.m.

Jailer's lawsuit against county dismissed for insufficient evidence

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

A lawsuit filed by a Jackson County jail officer against the Jackson County Board was dismissed, but the jailer was given two weeks to file a new, more specific complaint.

In a motion hearing, Circuit Court Judge William Green ruled Monday that the lawsuit's allegations did not have sufficient facts showing any injury or violation of rights to the plaintiffs. He ruled that the plaintiffs have a right to refile a rewritten complaint within 14 days.

Jailer Willie Mason, with deputies David Youngberg and Dan Stone, filed suit against the board, the merit commission and Sheriff Don White in August. The suit was filed on behalf of the Jackson County Deputy Sheriff's Association.

The suit stated that Mason was tested and trained under the merit system and his job has been considered part of the merit system for four years. It asked that the court overrule an

April 11 board decision to exclude jailers from the merit system. It also stated that if the decision stood, Mason would lose all former rights and privileges and his job would be subject to the "whims of his employer."

The three-man merit commission oversees tenure, promotion, raises, discipline and also the discharging of the county's deputy sheriffs. The system was instituted by the county board in 1974.

The suit further contends that the board has interfered with the functions and duties of the commission and that White has violated commission rules by hiring a jailer who was not qualified under the merit system.

W. Charles Grace, the plaintiff's lawyer, said he would file an amended complaint within the next few days.

"I intend to ask the court for an immediate hearing," Grace said. He said he hoped to get the issue resolved before the county board met on Oct. 10, but added that the state's attorney's office (representing the board) had 30 days to reply to the new complaint.

At the Oct. 10 county board meeting, the board will be acting on a motion heard at last month's meeting to end the five-year-old merit system.

Grace said that if the board voted to abolish the system, the lawsuit would be a dead issue. He said that even if this happened, the lawsuit had at least brought the issue of the merit system before the public.

Jackson County Board Chairman Bill Kelley moved to abolish the merit system at the Sept. 12 board meeting. He said at the meeting that many problems had developed from the merit commission, including "an expensive lawsuit," and that the elimination of the system would benefit county residents.

Green also dismissed the county merit board as a defendant in the suit.

City Council approves traffic lights for intersection at Grand and Wall

By Chuck Hempstead
Student Writer

Plans and specifications for traffic signals at Grand Avenue and Wall Street have been unanimously approved by the Carbondale City Council.

City Engineering Coordinator Ed Reeder, in a memo submitted to the council Sept. 24, estimated the cost of the construction at $70,985.85. Revenue sharing funds of $70,500 have been set aside for this project in the Capital Improvements Budget, Reeder said.

City Manager Carroll Fry, Monday was authorized to accept bids on the project. Reeder said if bids are close to the estimated cost, Carbondale will have to supply supplemental funds in excess of the revenue sharing monies. Reeder estimated construction time of six months to a year, depending on availability of materials. Bids will probably be let in November.

"This will be a traffic-activated intersection," said Morris Webb of E. M. Webb and Associates, designers of the project. "Buried magnetic loops in the pavement will permit the lights to respond to the traffic direction to or from the University."

The lights have been planned for two years to control the additional traffic resulting from the widening of Grand Avenue and Wall Street, but approval has been withheld until funding was assured, Webb said. Currently, a four-way stop sign regulates traffic.

Webb said provisions for the signals were made during the intersection construction so most of the work will not impede traffic. Pushbutton pedestrian crossings will be included. E. M. Webb and Associates were consultants on the reconstruction of Grand Avenue and Wall Street.

Reeder said energy savings will result from fewer cars being required to stop and idle.

Soviets scold U.S.

News Roundup

(AP) — The Soviet Union lashed out Tuesday against President Carter's announced military moves to offset Soviet troops on Cuba, charging that Washington seeks to escalate "gunboat diplomacy" in the Caribbean.

Two of America's most influential allies, France and West Germany, said the Cuba issue is not so important it should delay ratification of the SALT II arms limitation treaty. Debate over the troops' presence has delayed U.S. Senate consideration of the SALT agreement signed by Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vienna last June.

In the Kremlin's first detailed comment on Carter's Monday night broadcast address, Tass said the president and his advisers had been seeking to exploit "a myth that they themselves created" to exacerbate tensions and press for bigger military outlays. Carter announced in his speech the temporary stationing of 1,500 Marines at the U.S. base at Guantanamo in Cuba and creation of a new permanent joint task force headquarters in Key West, Fla.

A Pentagon spokesman said Tuesday that starting in mid-October 3,500 Marines and sailors aboard four amphibious ships will stage special exercises at Guantanamo for about four weeks. He said 10 light bombers would participate.

In his speech, Carter told the American public that the Soviet Union had refused to remove the troops from Cuba, but he said the issue "is certainly no reason for a return to the Cold War."

Radioactive gases released into air

RED WING, Minn. (AP) — A steam tube ruptured Tuesday at the Prairie Island nuclear generating plant, releasing radioactive gases into the atmosphere, but the amounts were so small they could not be detected outside the plant, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said.

Northern States Power Co. spokesman Wayne Kaplan said a general emergency was declared at the plant, 40 miles southeast of Minneapolis-St. Paul, about 2:30 p.m.

Kaplan said the rupture in the steam tube caused radioactive gases to be released inside the plant and into the environment. However, Kaplan said, radiation monitoring tests at the plant had been unable to detect any radiation in the area around the plant by late afternoon.

"Preliminary information indicates there was a small release of radioactivity to the environment," said the NRC in a statement from Washington.

Illinois court limits malpractice suits

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A state law barring patients from filing malpractice suits against doctors and hospitals more than four years after the alleged malpractice was upheld Tuesday by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court acknowledged that under the law, the time limit on suits could actually run out before a patient even discovered he had been harmed as the result of a malpractice.

The court also upheld a 1977 Illinois law that denies state contracts to anyone convicted of bribing, or trying to bribe, a state official.

The court in effect said that Illinois has the right to set its own guidelines for doing business.

'Real disarmament' called for by Pope

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Pope John Paul II gave his cautious backing to the SALT II treaty Tuesday but criticized the world's superpowers for resisting "concrete proposals for real disarmament" by building up their arsenals.

In the most comprehensive speech on international affairs of his year-old papacy, delivered to a packed United Nations General Assembly, the pontiff stressed that world peace could only be achieved through the enforcement of a vast array of human rights.

Tackling the Middle East conflict for the first time in such explicit terms, John Paul noted the value of the Camp David agreements between Egypt and Israel, but reiterated Vatican policy that "a general overall peace in the area... cannot fail to include the consideration and just settlement of the Palestinian question."

Citizens' groups exercise rights

Colman McCarthy

In New Hampshire, a father whose son was burned by flammable pajamas organized a coalition to get the dangerous sleepwear off the market. In central Florida, a community of blacks struggled for years to get clean drinking water. In east Tennessee, some lawyers in a Legal Services program challenged the might of a local strip mining company. In California, the might of a polluting oil company was challenged by citizens who thought the beaches were for swimming, not Union Oil crude.

My certainty of going into any American community and finding a citizens' organization was inevitably matched by another certainty: an entrenched power that accused the citizens of being "professional radicals," "dirty communists, kooky environmentalists, publicity seekers, naive do-gooders or—a favorite—Nadarrats.

Groups that hadn't been blessed with such damnings, I came to learn, usually hadn't been working too hard.

Hayden's work in the civil rights and anti-war movement was valuable. On "Meet the Press," however, he was told that "many people" see him as a reckless, irrational critic of the American system.

If anything, he and his wife are open to the opposite charge: that they are cautious and overly rational believers in the democratic system. They still insist that the awesome abuses of concentrated economic power can be controlled.

Last week wasn't an easy moment to think that's possible, with the Tellico dam legislation being signed into law by the President. A Tennessee citizens' group had successfully managed to persuade the Congress, the administration and much of the country that the issue wasn't merely the snail darter, but was about saving farmland and about poor economic decisions. But the energy lobby manipulated Congress and slipped a bill through when not many were looking.

Hayden and Fonda are saying that we should be looking harder. Reckless and irrational forces are working to grind under the unwatchful citizen.

To cast organizers like Hayden and Fonda as fools is to tell the thousands of citizens' groups around the country that the economic giants can't be stopped. Worse, it's to believe that the words "We the people" no longer have meaning. (c) 1979, The Washington Post Company

WASHINGTON—Put-downs and dismissals of Jane Fonda come so easily to her critics that it has to be wondered what obsessions or fears drive the critics to keep raising the pitch of ridicule.

Three days after Fonda and her husband Tom Hayden argued their case—and argued it well—on "Meet the Press," the Washington Star dumped on the pair and their "simple non-uma." They are "glittery hucksters." Hayden is skewered as "a political sentimentalist."

The tone of this mockery came through in many of the questions the pair had to face—or face down—on "Meet the Press." Fonda was asked, "What qualifies you to be a national economic and political leader and spokesperson?"

To her credit, Fonda argued the irrelevant question with forceful directness: "I am a citizen activist. I think it is in the highest tradition of our country for private citizens to speak out, not just as individuals but as members of organizations that can have some power."

The self-appointed who dare talk like that need to be labeled. Which is what happened. Another questioner called Hayden "a professional radical." This conveniently positions Hayden far off in the fringes, because everyone knows that a radical—especially the California kind—is someone who raves rather than thinks, fumes rather than reflects. And so, we have as much obligation to heed him as we do the bearded men bearing sandwich boards announcing the world's end.

From what I get out of Hayden's radicalism, he is advancing the tame and traditional idea that, as he states, "Citizens ought to have a say in the decisions that affect their lives."

Citizen powerlessness is not a reality that Hayden or Fonda dreamed up, nor is it a problem that happened to pop up when they needed something to busy themselves with. In nearly every city neighborhood or small American town I have visited in the 1970s, a citizens' group had dug itself in for one kind of political fight or another.

Pageant still sexist trash

A few weeks back, I authored a column in which I had a bit of fun with two researchers from Northern Illinois University who studied the Miss America Pageant and developed a statistical model of the winners since 1959.

In the column, I surmised the experiment was a failure. I stated that Miss Cheryl Prewitt, the winner of this year's contest in Atlantic City, had "stumped" the experts because she did not seem to fit the statistical model as I had presented it.

I was right; she did not fit the model as it was explained in the column. However, my explanation and interpretation were faulty and—as I was to learn later—not fully based in fact. In fact, I didn't have all the facts.

George L. Miller, one of the two statisticians who designed the Miss America analysis which I had found so humorous, wrote the office of the SIU-C president to say he objected.

Along with a two-page critique of the column, Miller sent along photocopies of clippings from the Baltimore Sun, The Atlantic City Press and the Peoria Journal-Star. All of the articles gave detailed reports on the statistical model and two of them pointed out that Miller and his associate had indeed picked Prewitt as the most likely candidate to win the crown—which she did.

One of the articles reports that Miller's statistical model points to trends in the Miss America Pageant which Miller says are reflective of societal changes in the United States. The Atlantic City Press reports that the authors claim their analysis "indicates the judges are paying somewhat more attention to education and decreasing value to feminine proportions.

In apologizing for his informing the public, I must fall back on the excuse of having performed faulty research and having relied upon a less than credible source (an article in another campus newspaper).

In his letter Miller also took mild issue with my view of the pageant as "useless." He states: "After all, the only people interested in it are the 2,500 sponsors of local, state and national pageants; the 50,000-plus entrants each year; and 80,000 viewers. Obviously, the $2 million in scholarships awarded by the Pageant might have been generated by some other commercial enterprise.

The Baltimore Sun article which Miller sent along

Joe Sobczyk

gave more attention to some of the detailed conclusions which Miller and his associate reached. The article notes a change in the measurements of contestants since 1959—the year which Miller used as a base. For instance, the typical measurements of contestants in the 1969 contest were 35.5-23.3-35.5. This year's herd measured in at an average of 33.23-9-35.1. Obviously a trend towards less emphasis on anatomical properties. The report also reveals that the typical contestant has gained 0.4 inches in height and lost five pounds. It's not unlike the longer, leaner, lighter trend in new cars.

Miller also spoke highly of the fact that more of the contestants nowadays are attending college and that the Pageant continues to award large sums for scholarships. However, that might be explained by the fact that increasing numbers of women all over the country and not just those who covet in Atlantic City have been attending college. Scholarship funds likewise have increased.

While Miller stated in his letter that the Miss America Pageant "might basically be pro-ERA and be somewhat related to affirmative action and all of that," the fact remains, according to his report, that "swimsuit (competition) winners are the best bets for the crown." All that despite the fact that the busts of today's contestants are slightly smaller than those of the girls of yesteryear.

As far as "sexist charades" go, the Miss America Pageant goes all the way. And although Miller's analysis might make a useful classroom tool for teaching statistics—and it was fueled by private donations, he pointed out—it still appears to reflect an obsessive fascination with a trivial and superficial thing. The Pageant is still a parade of meat—white, middle class female meat—designed to sell cosmetics, snampoons, hair coloring, sprays, ointments and false dreams.

Pro and con views on abortion

It seems that the abortion issue just rages on, so I would like to include my viewpoint. I wholeheartedly agree with the "pro-choice" faction, and I agree with most of the points brought up by Mr. Robert T. Phillips (September 25, DE). I commend his courage at speaking against those religions which would force their "beliefs" upon the entire country, especially since organized religions represent one of the most repressive forces in this country. Those who favor abortion are not forcing a woman to have an abortion; merely giving her the right to choose. That is the crux of the matter: choice. At this point in my life, were I to find myself pregnant, I would not have an abortion. That is my personal decision. I am not necessarily in favor of abortion; I am in favor of CHOICE.

Like it or not, abortion is a form of birth control. And, for further enlightenment, so is infanticide. It just depends where you draw your line. Some would argue that the I.U.D. is a form of abortion. Then why not go "whole hog"? Even the condom is "immoral" since it prevents living sperm from meeting an egg, thereby allowing both egg and sperm to die. Such shameful murderers, these users of condoms! Pastor Wyatt George's letter (October 1, DE) states that the anti-abortionists are being denied their rights.

Who is he trying to kid? What right? The "right" to deny others their rights? Come on, this is a time to be realistic and practical.

Kirk Gordon-Abrams
Secretary III, Stenographic

I would like to applaud the Daily Egyptian for bringing the issue of abortion once again into the public's eye via recent articles. With one million babies aborted each year in the United States alone, virtually all of us have had some contact with abortion—through a friend, a relative, or even a personal experience.

Pro-abortionists insist that a woman must have the right to choose, and that abortion should be freely accessible to all upon request. But is free choice really the issue? If science were to discover today that a fetus is a human being—a person upon conception—abortion would be declared murder and the question of free choice would become moot.

But will science ever be able to tell us when a fetus becomes a person? I think not. The Supreme Court, in 1973, declared the fetus a non-person. Are you satisfied with this judgment?

I would like to ask each person reading this letter to search his or her heart, read books on fetal development, and face the issue of abortion individually.

Does the fetus have rights even though it cannot assert those rights?

If a fetus can be declared a non-person, could dependent, elderly, and mentally handicapped people be declared non-persons if socially expedient?

When did you become a person? Where would you be if you had been considered an unwanted clump of cells and aborted?

Backgammon Club schedules tournament

By Jordan Gold
Staff Writer

A crucial roll of the dice. Sweat appears on the brow, the smile fades from the lips. The move is made. The figure on the other side of the table smirks and slaps the doubling cube down on the board.

It's backgammon: Action that the SIU Backgammon Club features every Wednesday night in the Student Center Renaissance Room. This Wednesday, the club will be holding its first major backgammon tournament of the fall semester.

Registration will start at 6 p.m. with play beginning at 6:30. Registration fees are $2.50 for advanced players and $2.00 for beginners. Club members will receive a 50-cent discount.

Jim Gevas, president of the club, added that players can join the club the night of the tournament and take advantage of the discount. Prizes for the tournament include a $25 dinner for two at Beefmaster's in Carterville, $10 dinners at Pagliai's and the Red Dragon, $5 dinners at Pizza Inn and Bu-t's, a $7.98 list record from Plaza Records, one day free skating at Skate Street, and four free passes to the University Four theaters.

"This represents our biggest outlay of prizes ever," Gevas said. Prizes will be awarded to the top four finishers in advanced competition, the top two finishers in beginners and the winners of each consolation bracket. Consolation competition will include all players in both advanced and beginners who lose their first match. "This way, everyone gets to play at least two matches," Gevas said.

Everyone attending Wednesday's tournament is encouraged, but not required, to bring a board, Gevas said. When major tournaments are not being held, free tournaments are staged. "No prizes are awarded in these, but standings are kept and the top players at the end of the semester will receive awards," Gevas said.

Plans for the rest of the semester include three or four more major tournaments, including the American College Unions International (ACU-I) SIU Championships on December 1. "The top two finishers in that tournament will go to regional competition at Indiana University in February, with national competition to be held later in the year," Gevas said. Last year, SIU placed two players in the top five in regionals at the University of Illinois.

Lectures scheduled for Wednesday

Two lectures will be given in the Student Center Wednesday: Chancellor Kenneth Shaw will speak on "The Importance of Higher Education," and Randall Bytwerk, a professor in speech communication, will speak on "The Nature of the Holocaust."

Shaw, who is the fourth speaker for the Forum 30 Plus Series, will be in the Student Center's Ballroom B from 3 to 4 p.m. He will lecture for 30 minutes and answer questions for the remainder of the hour.

Bytwerk, who is interested in the propaganda employed during Hitler's reign, will lecture in Ballroom B at 8 p.m. Pictures from Nazi publications of the 1930s will be included in the lecture.

Both lectures are sponsored by the Student Programming Council's Lectures Committee and admission is free.

Illustrations such as this one depicting a Jewish butcher and his wife will be included in Randall Bytwerk's lecture on "The Nature of the Holocaust," which will be presented Wednesday.

Free school schedule diverse

By Craig DeVriese
Staff Writer

The SPC Free School began its fall schedule Monday with a curriculum of 20 classes. The free school offers a wide selection with such diverse classes as "Dreams and Feelings," "Gymnastics," "Fall Plant Drying and Arranging," "Auto Repair for the Novice" and "Clowning." The classes will continue until the week before finals, according to Free School Committee Chairman Charlie Augustine.

Augustine said the purpose of the free school is to offer classes that can't be taken at SIU-C. "Just classes people can come to—to do something out of the ordinary," he said.

The curriculum is actually designed by the teachers, who volunteer their time. Augustine said there is no prerequisites for being a free school instructor and that the teachers come from all over the community.

"Most of the teachers are either students or people in the community who were once students," he said, adding that a few of the teachers this year are SIU-C staff members and that many staff members have taught in the past.

"People come to us with ideas of what they would like to teach, and we try to schedule the classes around their free time," Augustine said. Additional tasks of the Free School Committee include finding teachers, scheduling classrooms, drawing up the Free School catalog and advertising. Most of the classes are held in the Student Center, he said. In three weeks the committee will begin working on the spring semester program.

Augustine explained that the purpose of the classes are for personal enrichment and that attendance is deliberately not mandatory, although most of the teachers prefer consistent attendance.

"Since the students haven't paid any money and there's no credit, there's no real pressure on them," Augustine said. "It's a good opportunity to learn something they might not have had a chance to learn before."

A schedule of classes is available in the SPC office on the third floor of the Student Center.

The SPC Free School Committee is currently looking for persons interested in joining. Augustine said the committee is particularly interested in persons with a background in advertising. Anyone interested should contact Augustine in the SPC office, he said.

Blake 'kicks off' Center Stage

Norman Blake, a flat-picker extraordinaire, will appear in concert with wife Nancy at 8 p.m. Oct. 6 in Ballroom D of the Student Center. The show is the first of this season's Center Stage series.

Tickets are $3 for SIU students and $4 for the general public. Season tickets for all nine Center Stage productions are now on sale for $15 for SIU students and $24 for the general public.

Blake has a big reputation as a flat-picker, having recorded several albums of his own and with such performers as the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and Bob Dylan. He also played guitar and dobro as a member of Johnny Cash's group for the Johnny Cash Show in 1969.

The 41-year-old Blake has been playing professionally for 25 years. He quit school at that time to play mandolin in a band called the Dixie Drifters, which played on the Tennessee Barn-dance Show on WNOX radio in Knoxville, Tenn.

After recording and touring with Kris Kristofferson and Joan Baez, Blake joined John Hartford's Aeroplane band in the early '70s. Blake toured with Hartford for a year and a half, recording his first solo album, "Home in Sulphur Springs."

Since 1973, however, Blake

Norman Blake, who will appear in concert Saturday night, plays the violin, as well as many other stringed instruments.

has been on his own. He recorded his second album, "The Fields of November," which, like his first album, featured guitars, dobro, fiddle and cello.

Blake's other albums include

"Whiskey Before Breakfast," "Old and New," "Live at McCabe's" and "Home in Sulphur Springs."

Nancy will play guitar and cello during the Saturday night performance.

French director produces zany film

By Mark Marks
Student Writer

"Get Out Your Handkerchiefs" is only the second film by French director Bertrand Blier. The first, "Going Places," was like a French "Easy Rider," about the carefree adventures of two petty outlaws. Though superficially similar, "Get Out Your Handkerchiefs" exhibits a level of maturity beyond its forerunner.

It starts out on the zany comic level that "Going Places" maintained throughout. A young man is upset about his wife's lack of enthusiasm for their dinner out or for anything. He deduces that he is the cause of her apathy, so he resolves to remedy the situation. "You're flaky, but I love you. You need another lover," he tells her simply.

But she isn't interested. So the husband, ever true to his wife's happiness, takes it upon himself to enlist a lover for her. He grabs a total stranger from a nearby table. Filling his pockets with money, the husband tells the stranger "I don't care what you do with her as long as you get her to laugh."

Naturally skeptical at first, the stranger quickly warms to the task when he sees what a beauty the woman is. When the husband returns five minutes later with a new stranger—a female commiserator, the male stranger flies into a rage because "his rights" with "his woman" are being violated. Eventually, the female stranger throws both men out of the restaurant for having such little respect for the wife. And all this takes place in the very first scene!

Soon the improbable is realized and the three do settle down into a form of tri-marital living though it is certainly not bliss. The first husband, Gerard Depardieu, is muscular and boyish. The second husband, Patrick Dewaere, is gaunt and intellectual. Carole Laure, the wife, is suitably lifeless, though not inexpressive. She seems to get even more pathetic despite the frantic efforts of her lovers.

Enter Mr. Sensitivity—the third husband. I'm not sure we're supposed to believe what happens next with him but we certainly are meant to emotionally experience it. Unlike the lightness of the opening event, the events involving the third husband alter the film's tone to one of darkness. For a film that starts out as hectic and funny as this one, it ends in thoughtful sadness yet, more improbable than ever.

Fairy tale opera is for children

By Jenell Olson

Staff Writer

A sprightly one-act opera, "Little Red Riding Hood," will be performed along with four other operatic scenes in Shryock Auditorium at 3 p.m. Oct. 7. Admission is free.

The Opera on Wheels Program received a $2,000 grant from the Illinois Arts Council in order to take the production on the road. It will play in 10 elementary schools throughout Southern Illinois after the initial performance.

Designed and directed by

T. Review

Michael Blum, program coordinator of Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater, "Little Red Riding Hood" is in the style of a cartoon - complete with chase scenes and curses of "foiled again."

It was designed to entertain both children and adults but lends itself primarily to children because it is full of rules such as "Never talk to strangers, don't break promises and take good care of your health." The lesson that culminates in the end is "Mother knows best."

The performance has an unusual beginning in that one of the actors is pushed on the stage to apply his make-up and introduce the story. The actor, Hans Ashbaker, a graduate student in music, transforms himself into the wolf and proceeds to sing about his new identity.

During the dress rehearsal Monday night, Ashbaker did an excellent portrayal of the dastardly wolf who gets a sick stomach at the mere mention of sweets, such as candy and cookies.

However, the performance as a whole was also a bit sickeningly sweet. Lessons told in rhyme were in abundance. "You must take good care of your health. For without that, what good is any wealth?" is a prime example.

Jeanine Wagner, a senior in music, did a first-rate portrayal of Little Red Riding Hood.

Call-in radio show to feature Carter

National Public Radio will do an exclusive national call-in program with President Jimmy Carter from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. October 13. The program will be broadcast locally on WSIU-FM.

Originating live from the White House Oval Office, "Ask the President" will be hosted by NPR's Susan Stenberg, co-host of "All Things Considered." Stenberg will introduce the callers to the President and moderate the discussion.

Due to the prohibitive cost of nationwide toll-free numbers, the program will actually have a "write-in, call-out" format. Persons wishing to talk to the President are requested to send a postcard to "Ask the President," care of National Public Radio, P.O. Box 19369, Washington, D.C. 20036.

The card should list name, address and telephone number. It should not state the question in advance. During the program

NPR personnel will select cards at random and place a call to the listener.

This is only the second time in history that the President of the United States has agreed to talk informally with people all over the country on national radio. The only other time that this type of show took place was early in Jimmy Carter's first year in office.

NPR will follow the program with a half-hour analysis.

Bidding on air conditioning for Ag building starts Oct. 15

By James Conley
Student Writer

Bidding on the installation of a central air conditioning unit in the Agriculture Building will begin around Oct. 15 according to Allen Haake, SIU-C supervising architect.

"It's all inside work, so we're hoping this will encourage bidding," Haake said about the project which is scheduled to begin the first week of December.

The state of Illinois granted SIU-C $1,740,000 for the project. About $125,000 has been spent for planning done by Consoer-Townsend and Associates of Chicago, who did the original planning for the heating of the building in 1957.

Air conditioning was not installed when the building was built because at the time it was not used in the summer. Because of increased enrollment the building is now used for classes year-round.

Haake said air conditioning is a good investment. The electric window units currently used are very expensive because of the amount of electricity they use. The new system, which will be cooled with chilled water supplied from the SIU-C steam plant, is more economical than the window units in terms of utility expenses and maintenance costs, he said.

"We hope we have money left over for storm windows and insulation, all to cut down on our use of energy," Haake said. The project is scheduled for completion in May of 1981.

Jobs on Campus

The following jobs for student workers have been listed by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

To be eligible, undergraduates must carry nine hours, graduates six hours. A current A.C.T. Family Financial Statement must be on file with the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Applications should be made in person at the Student Work Office, Woody Hall-B, third floor.

Jobs available as of Oct. 1:
Clerical-11 openings, morning work block; four openings, afternoon work block; two openings, time to be arranged.
Janitorial-five openings, 8 to 11:30 a.m.; five openings, 12:30 to 4 p.m.; four openings, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

New early lock-up policy at towers provides greater resident security

By Bill Murray
Student Writer

The new 9 p.m. "lock-up" policy for the high-rise dormitories on East Campus appears to be effectively providing residents with greater security and protection against costly building damages by outsiders, Elaine Mitchell, coordinator of residence life for Brush Towers, said.

The policy, instituted for Mae Smith, Schneider and Neely dormitories, stipulates that doors to each of the Towers be locked after 9 p.m., two hours earlier than the previous 11 p.m. curfew. After 9 p.m. no one is allowed into any of the buildings without a meal ticket verifying residence there. Each resident may bring three guests into the building and must assume responsibility for their actions.

Mitchell attributed the policy change to increasing damages in the dorms and to the need for greater security following the recent unsolved rape in Neely Hall. Mitchell added that too many unaccounted-for non-residents and non-students were entering the dorms.

"We felt that if we could be stricter in allowing entry into the dorms perhaps we could cut down on damages. The other half of the policy change was for security purposes, Mitchell said.

"We tend to have more damages during the late evening hours and more disorderly conduct such as breaking windows and tampering with the elevators," she said.

Before the new policy was established one person was on duty at each of the dorm's reception desks except on Friday and Saturday when an extra person was added between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. Mitchell said now there are two people on duty on Friday and Saturday from the time the doors are locked at 9 p.m. until 3 a.m. Doors to the dorms open at 7 a.m.

"The Student Resident Assistants have a new duty schedule this year so that more are on duty on weekends. This combined with the lock-up system has given us a double dose of coverage," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said she met with the Mae Smith and Schneider House Councils before the policy was put into effect and both groups unanimously endorsed the change.

"It wasn't just an administrative decision," she said.

According to Mitchell, there seems to be fewer non-residents entering the dorms during lock-up hours and residents have assumed more responsibility for their guests.

"There have been no major damages in the past two weeks and residents have adapted pretty well to meeting guests at the door after 9 p.m. I think the residents realize that we are doing this for their own protection," Mitchell said.

"Now non-residents entering the dorms have to be recognized guests. Someone has to take responsibility for them instead of letting them wander in off the streets," Mitchell said.

"In general I feel things have run pretty smoothly so far," she said.

ELECTION DATE SET

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson has scheduled a election for Jan. 22 to fill the 10th District Congressional seat vacated by Democratic Rep. Abner Mikva.

Thompson, using his power under the law to schedule an election to fill congressional vacancies, scheduled Oct. 15 through 22 as the filing dates for candidates in the primaries. Thompson scheduled the primary on Dec. 11 and the general election on Jan. 22.

New state mental health head will make few major changes

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

An SIUC graduate, newly appointed the regional administrator for the Illinois Department of Mental Health, said Monday that he would make no major changes in the department's programs.

Ron Bittle, whose appointment as the Region Five administrator became effective Monday, said he would make no major changes in the program's basic structure, which he said is operating well, but he added that some changes were inevitable.

Region Five covers the 27 southeastern counties of Illinois. The department provides more than 75 percent of the funding for 28 mental health and developmental disability agencies in the Region Five area including the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center. Region Five offices are located at the Anna Mental Health and Developmental Center.

Bittle, 42, said one of the first things he is going to do is move the Region Five Office from the administrative building of the Anna hospital to another building on the grounds to create two distinct offices.

He said some people in the community think that because the Region Five Office is in the same building as the Anna administrative offices that Region Five is predisposed to favor Anna. He said he hoped the new office would rid people of this notion.

Bittle said he hopes to make services in the 27-county system available to everyone. He said the entire system first must be made aware of all the services it has, then through a "team-work approach" it can supply the special needs of every individual in the Region Five area with specific programs.

Bittle, an Anna native, has worked at the Anna hospital for 22 years. He started as a research assistant in 1958. He was graduated from SIUC with a bachelor's degree in 1963, a masters' degree in 1973, and a doctorate in educational psychology in 1974. Bittle replaces former director R.C. Steck, who resigned in May. Steck was director for 25 years.

Homecoming parade deadline set for student organizations

By Cindy Humphreys
Staff Writer

The deadline for recognized student organizations to register floats, cars or stunts, with the Student Programming Council for the Homecoming Parade is 5 p.m. Oct. 13.

The B and J Distributing Co. will supply the grand prize for the float contest, up to five kegs of beer for an off-campus party. SPC Homecoming Chairwoman Theresa Peters said.

Trophies will be awarded to the second place winners in the float contest and for first and second place winners in the car and stunt categories.

"All of these entries should be consistent with this year's Homecoming theme, 'The Roaring Twenties,'" Peters said, "they should remain within the boundaries of good taste."

Judging criteria for the entries include cleverness, special effects and adherence to theme. Judges will be SIUC faculty, officials and administrators.

Community groups have been encouraged to participate in the parade and 19 high school bands will be participating. Chancellor Kenneth Shaw will be the parade's Grand Marshal. The Homecoming King and Queen will ride on the Inter-Greek Council float. The parade will start at 10 a.m. Oct. 13 at the corner of University and Walnut Streets and will end at the stoplight near McAndrew Stadium.

SIU professor chosen for summer fellowship

Bruce C. Appleby, associate professor of English, has been named a University of California Summer Fellow and a teacher consultant for the University of California — Berkeley Bay Area Writing Project.

Appleby, a specialist in English Education, is currently on leave from SIUC.

The Bay Area Writing Project was begun in 1974 to attack the steady decline in the writing skills of today's secondary school and college students. From its beginning, the project has been cooperatively planned by representatives of the University and representatives of the schools in the area.

Teacher test deadline set for Oct. 17

The National Teacher Examinations which are designed to measure knowledge gained from professional and general education and in 26 subject-matter fields, will be given on Nov. 10.

Scores from the examinations are used by states for certification of teachers, by school systems for selection and identification of leadership qualities, and by colleges as part of their graduation requirements.

A registrant may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in professional and general education, plus one of the 26 Area Examinations designed to probe knowledge of particular subject matter and teaching methods, according to Harley E. Bradshaw, coordinator of the testing division. The Common Examinations will run from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and the Area Examinations from 1:30 to 4:15 p.m.

Each registered candidate will receive an admission ticket and notification of the exact location of the center to which to report, Bradshaw said.

The deadline for regular registration is Oct. 17. Registration procedure and forms are available from Testing Division, Woody Hall, B204.

Career planning and job search workshop offered

According to recent statistics, people may change jobs as many as 15 times and may be involved in a job search every 5 years.

To assist individuals in improving their opportunity for making satisfactory career changes, the Career Planning and Placement Center and Personnel Services is sponsoring the "Job Search and Career Planning Workshop." The six-hour workshop is aimed at faculty, civil service, administrative and professional staff and will meet from 2 to 5 p.m. on Oct. 24 and 25.

A three-step process will be utilized starting with self assessment, assessing the job market in the area and, learning to "sell oneself" to prospective employers.

The workshop will be conducted by Harry Daniels, coordinator of career planning, Susan Rehwaldt, placement counselor in career planning and placement, and Deborah A. Lindrud, personnel services. People may enroll by contacting Beverly Morgan, personnel services, at 453-5334, extension 56 or 57 before Oct. 15.

Conference to discuss teen pregnancies

By University News Service
Dealing with the problems of teen-age pregnancies will be the subject of an all-day conference Oct. 17 at SIU-C.

The regional gathering is sponsored by the Illinois Association for Maternal and Child Health and the School of Medicine and Division of Continuing Education. Sessions are designed to update health care professionals and others on the nature and extent of the problem and ways to deal with it.

"It's as much of a problem here in Southern Illinois as it is anywhere in the country," said Carbondale obstetrician Dr. Roger Klam, co-chairman of the conference.

Klam and Donna Falvo, director of behavioral sciences at the School of Medicine's Carbondale Family Practice Center, will co-chair the conference.

Klam said about 20 percent of all births recorded in the United States are to women 19 years old and younger. In Southern Illinois, the rate of births among teen-agers ranged from just over 14 percent in Washington County to almost 31 percent in Paluski County.

Pregnant teen-agers face the same problems whether they are married or single, Klam said.

"Usually the woman drops out of high school, whether she gets married or not," Klam said. "This leaves her almost totally unskilled and with a child to support." He also noted that teen-age marriages fail almost three times as often as marriages between older persons.

A pregnant teen-ager "isn't equipped, either physically or emotionally, to deal with being pregnant," Falvo said.

Klam said the rate of teen-age pregnancies has risen recently, and no one seems to know why. "People explain the problem in a variety of ways, but no one is really sure," he said.

Falvo said conference speakers will detail the problem and discuss ways of helping teen-agers avoid pregnancy, medical aspects of pregnancy, the effects of teen-age pregnancies on the mother-to-be's family and contraception and adolescent ants.

Also scheduled is a panel discussion of alternatives facing the pregnant teenager.

Other discussions will include a firsthand view of teen-age pregnancy by a nurse who had a child as a teen-ager.

A workshop, "Women Make Good Friends: Exploring Friendships Between Women," will be presented by the Women's Service from noon to 4 p.m. Thursday in the Family Living Lounge, Quigley Hall. The workshop is free and no pre-registration is necessary.

Students from the Republic of China will celebrate National Day, the 68th anniversary of the founding of the Republic, by presenting a cultural performance at 8 p.m. Saturday in Quigley Hall auditorium. Everyone is invited.

The Zoology Honor Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Room 141, Lawson Hall. Norman Doorenbos, dean of the College of Science, will speak on "Nature's Healing Hand." The public is welcome.

Randy Bytwerk, professor in speech communications, will speak on "The Propaganda of the Holocaust" from 8 to 10 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom B. The lecture is free and sponsored by the Student Programming Committee.

The Counseling Center and Career Counseling Center are co-sponsoring a group on "Coping With Mid Life and Mid Career Change." The group is designed for people over age 30 who are considering a change in their personal or professional lives. The group will meet from 3 to 5 p.m. on Wednesdays, beginning in mid-October. Call Sue Randers at the Counseling Center to enroll.

The Saluki Swingers will hold dance classes Wednesday in the Roman Room. Beginning round dance will meet from 6 to 7:30 p.m. and beginning square dance will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The Egyptian Divers Scuba Club will have pictures taken for the yearbook at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the swimming pool at Pulliam Hall.

Mobilization for Volunteer Effort is sponsoring the student drive for the United Way Campaign, Oct. 1 through 14. Featured events will be the Second Annual Rope Climb and the Wheel of Fortune. Competition between various organizations will be held. To participate, contact Move in the Office of Student Development in the Student Center.

Firestone Electric Wheel Division, Quincy, is looking for sophomores or juniors in mechanical engineering or industrial technology who would be interested in having a cooperative education work experience with them Spring semester. Interested students should see Minnie Minnito, Career Planning and Placement Center, Woolly Hall, B-204.

The Southern Illinois Beekeepers' Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Logan College, Room 242. Slides of honey plants will be shown.

Laura Gail Rutherford, a senior in agribusiness and economics, and Randall Kinzinger, a senior in agriculture and economics, were recently awarded $1,000 agriculture scholarships at the Illinois Bankers Association's 33rd annual Agricultural Credit Conference in Champaign. Selection of winners was based upon need, academic proficiency, vocation, communication skills, self-confidence and practical judgment.

The Public Relations Student Society of America will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Ohio Room. Keith Lynn of Career Planning and Placement will speak on the public relations job search and interviewing. The election of a chapter delegate to the national conference will follow.

Denalé W. Slocum, professor of chemistry and biochemistry, presented a paper on "Interconverting Cyclopentadienyl Ligands: A Hazard to Catalyst Design" at the Ninth International Conference on Organometallic Chemistry in Dijon, France in September. He also recently presented a paper titled "The Potential of  $\pi$ -Bonded Organometallic Polymers in Catalyst Design" at the 178th National Meeting of the American Chemical Society in Washington D.C.

Residents oppose University Parkway

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

A small group of Carbondale residents expressed their opposition to a proposed University Parkway, which would improve traffic congestion on the west side of town, at a recent public hearing on the Comprehensive Community Plan.

The hearing Monday, continued from both July 23 and Sept. 17, was called to get citizen reaction to the master plan for Carbondale through the year 2002.

Residents complained that the road, which would connect an improved New Era Road to Chautauqua Road, would:

—cause excess flooding in the area;

—upset the ecology of the area;

—ruin the woods located there since it would cut through the woods; and

—harm animals and humans in the area from the pollution emitted from cars.

University Parkway, "a limited access scenic thoroughfare with broad landscaped right-of-way near the east edge of the Little Crab Orchard Creek floodplain," would improve access to SIU-C from the west, according to the Complan.

City staff is scheduled to give the council recommendations on citizens' comments on the Complan at the Oct. 22 informal meeting.

Jay Zimmerman Jr., associate professor of geology, told City Council members that the road would have adverse effects on both flooding and the neighborhoods.

"It is my opinion that if this road is built, we will sit here and watch it deteriorate and see a lot of money go to waste," Zimmerman said.

Zimmerman explained that the proposed road lies in the middle of a floodplain, even though the city's estimates show it is clear of this. The city's flood boundaries are just "estimations and extrapolations, they aren't real," according to Zimmerman.

"I would like you to consider the Complan on the University Parkway Division, specifically at the traffic problem and then look at the balance sheet. Look at the floodplain, environmental balance, increased debris and the neighborhoods. I hope you decide with me and vote against University Parkway," Zimmerman said.

Roy Abrahamson, 2014 Norwood Drive, said he was opposed to the proposed road since he has seen some of the minor flooding near his home and didn't want to see more.

Abrahamson said a road as shown in the plan would pass close to most of the homes in the area and be a danger to kids, as well as an eyesore.

Beverly Burde, 2016 Norwood Drive, and her husband John, assistant professor of forestry, suggested that scarce resources could be better spent in other areas.

USSR encourages pensioners to work

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, faced by serious labor shortages and a need to support millions of old-age pensioners, announced new measures Tuesday to encourage older citizens to keep working.

The current retirement age in most jobs is 60 years for men and 55 for women. But limited numbers of pensioners have long been a common sight in Soviet offices, transport services and factories, working to avoid boredom or to supplement pension income.

Seeking to increase this number, the decree published in newspapers Tuesday said "necessary conditions" — apparently financial ones — to keep more pension-age workers in the labor force had not previously been provided for.

The decree permits pensioners who stay on the job after retirement age to get larger pension payments in subsequent years. Other provisions call for the retention of all or part of a worker's pension income while earning wages from work.

The United States last year passed a law raising the legal mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70 for most workers, effective Jan. 1, 1979. The law also abolished entirely the mandatory retirement age of 70 for most federal employees.

The minimum Soviet pension now stands at 45 rubles, $70 per month for industrial workers and 20 rubles, $31 per month, for collective farmers. The farmers' figure is to rise to 28 rubles, $44 dollars, on Jan. 1.

The minimum pension level is well below the average Soviet industrial wage of some 165 rubles, $258 dollars per month, making additional sources of money highly attractive.

More than 28 million Soviets are 62 retirement age or older.

Authorities identify suspects of inmate stabbing at Marion

Authorities have identified two suspects believed to be involved in the fatal stabbing of an inmate at the United States Penitentiary at Marion, and have also found two home-made weapons.

A spokesman of the prison said that Charles E. Stewart was stabbed at 8:25 a.m. Monday while he and two other inmates were out of their cells during a recreation period.

The spokesman said Stewart was pronounced dead at 8:30 a.m. by staff physicians.

Stewart, 53, listed his residence as Washington D.C. He was convicted on Dec. 9, 1977, for possession of an unregistered firearm, carrying a pistol without a license, and assault with a deadly weapon. He was given a sentence of 10 to 40 years.

On Feb. 23, 1979, he received a sentence of 15 years to life for committing sodomy by force while in Leaveyworth Penitentiary.

representatives to the committee. Civil service will have two positions on the committee and Marks said she foresees no problems with the nominating process.

"I see no problems within our group. If I do have a problem, it will be in that more than two people would like to serve on the committee," she said.

The Administrative and Professional Staff Council is also satisfied with the guidelines, said Sam McVay, chairman.

The council will meet Thursday to vote on their nominations and McVay foresees no problems with the nominating process. He did say many people have appeared skeptical about the whole search process and think it might be fixed.

There is an air of skepticism because of recent events. But there's no use trying to be part of a game if you're not in on it, so we've got to give the chancellor a chance, give him the benefit of the doubt," he said.

The Graduate Council also will meet on Thursday to select committee nominees and Chairman John Yopp said his committee is very optimistic about the entire process.

"We won't have any trouble getting our four nominations at a'll, and I can think of at least eight good people who would like to do it," Yopp said.

Shaw originally said he would like to have the committee selected by the middle of this month and it is not known whether a delay in the submission of nominations will affect that time frame. Shaw was in Champaign Tuesday for the Illinois Board of Higher Education meeting and was unavailable for comment.

Funds ok'd for WSIU transmitter

University News Service WSIU-TV is in line for a new transmitter and antenna, courtesy of the Federal Department of Commerce.

A $340,000 matching grant from the DOC's Public Telecommunications Facilities Program will foot the bill for most of the cost of purchasing and installing a new transmitter and antenna at the WSIU-TV transmitter near Tamaroa.

The University must match the DOC grant with $258,667 in funds from other sources to get the federal money.

H. Eugene Dybvig, director of WSIU-TV's Broadcasting Service, which operates WSIU-TV, said the aging transmitter now used by the University's public television outlet is living on borrowed time.

"The present transmitter outlived its normal life expectancy years ago," he said. "We've been holding it together almost literally with chewing gum and baling wire. It could quit on us almost any time."

Dybvig said WSIU-TV has lost about 10 hours of scheduled broadcast time in the last two weeks because of transmitter trouble.

"Television viewers won't see any change in the station's picture as a result of the improvements, but the new equipment will be more dependable than that now in use, Dybvig said.

"This will give us a transmitter that will be dependable for the next 20 or 25 years," he said.

An added bonus should be a sizable drop in the station's electricity bill. Dybvig said the new solid-state transmitter should use only about half as much power as the present one, a savings of about $58,000 a year.

He said it will be at least a year before the new transmitter and associated equipment are bought and installed.

WSIU-TV also is in line for about $145,000 from money appropriated earlier this year by the Illinois legislature to support operations of the state's five public television stations.

No decision has been made yet as to how the expected money will be spent. A further $47,000 is expected for the University's other public television outlet, WSUI-TV in Olney.

Bachelor of Fine Arts degree may take three years to start

By Rick Dollieslager
Student Writer

It could take "up to three years" until SIU-C implements a Bachelor of Fine Arts program, according to Art Department Director Benjamin Miller.

"We'll be doing the paperwork on it this year, and will probably submit it next year (to the National Association of Schools of Art)," Miller said. "Then, possibly, we'll have the BFA program in the curriculum the year after."

"I'm working on it right now," Miller said, referring to the paperwork, "but it's a slow process."

The establishment of a BFA program was recommended by the accreditation organization, NASA, after it made a study of SIU-C's art curriculum this past summer.

"The art faculty has already discussed setting up the program," Miller said, "and our curriculum committee will be reviewing NASA's guidelines in the near future."

The BFA program puts more emphasis on studio work than the BA program SIU-C currently has, according to Miller. "It's for the more professional student. Many students who earn a BFA then want to go on to get an MFA, which they'll need to teach at most colleges."

According to NASA's guidelines, "BFA is not an appropriate designation for programs consisting primarily of art education or art history course work, and not containing the predominant studio activity required for the professional artist or designer."

A common standard which NASA's guidelines recommend is a minimum of "about 3,000 hours of actual studio instruction and work time," during the course of a four- or five-year BFA program.

"We want to be within the guidelines when we set up the program," Miller said. "There will be less chance that we'll run into any problem with accreditation in the future."

SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has turned down the appeals of four men convicted for their roles in a multi-million dollar sewage disposal scandal in Illinois.

The justices, without comment, left intact the convictions of former Illinois legislator Robert F. McPartlin; Valentine Janicki, a former trustee of the Chicago area's Metropolitan Sanitary District; Illinois utility company president Edwin Bull; and New Orleans businessman Frederick Ingram.

Shopper's attention attracted at mall's renewable energy fair

By Conrad Stuntz
Staff Writer

An educational display of Mother Nature's might attracted many shoppers last Thursday through Sunday during the Conservation and Renewable Energy Fair at the University Mall.

The fair was sponsored by The Gathering Tribe, but contributions were made by other energy-conscious individuals and businesses. Maggie Jihan, organizer of the fair, said that it was an effort to get people to "move with an eye toward conversion" to less expensive energy sources.

Solar energy displays by the Sunverter Co. of Murphysboro were featured in a staggered-stud wall house, built in the Mall's main corridor. Several salesmen greeted curious shoppers with explanations about the company's "Solar Air Commander," its air-type selective surface collectors, and its passive design greenhouse, all of which adorned or decorated the house.

"We just want to expose people to solar," Bill Egert, systems engineer for the Sunverter Co., said. Doon Hinderyckx, a junior at SIU-C who staffed the information desk, said "the whole purpose of the fair is to make a statement that people should take the initiative to have more control over their lives."

Hinderyckx explained the virtues of solar energy use, beekeeping and organic gardening to passing shoppers.

"There's nothing sweeter smelling than a correctly composting heap," he said, when questioned about a poster devoted to compost piles, an organic gardening technique.

The poster read: "The main purpose of a compost pile is to mix moisture, air and organic matter in equal amounts so that the organic matter will break down into humus (decomposed organic matter) as quickly as possible." Hinderyckx explained that improperly mixed compost piles smell badly and aren't as useful in supplementing soil nutrients.

One display, a windmill with three 14-foot blades built by the SIU-C Design Department, was accompanied by a note that explained its battered condition. While on display at the Du Quoin State Fair in 1975, the windmill, capable of producing 600 watts of electricity, was almost destroyed by a tornado.

Dean Davis, owner of Dogwood + Stoves in Carbondale, displayed several of his wood-burning stoves at the fair.

"People are two or three years behind on what's been happening in the wood-heating field," he said. "Fireplaces aren't efficient because only 10 percent of the heat from a fire goes into the house."

Davis explained that the fire draws air from the house up the chimney, creating a draft.

"Wood stoves are extremely non-polluting," he said.

"Carbon dioxide and water vapor are the only substances given off when a log burns. If that same log were left out in the woods, the same two things would be given off when it decayed," he said.

Southern Illinois' first alcohol car, a 1969 Datsun 510, was also on display.

It was advertised as being fueled by denatured alcohol and a "how-to-do-it" table was set up nearby.

Bundles of recyclable paper and tin can squares were also on display. Pictorial essays explained how glass, metal and newspapers were recycled by Jackson County Resource Reclamation.

Spikers find freshman star in Locke

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

When women's volleyball Coach Debbie Hunter looks at her team prospectus, she sees many positive things. The team is rich in individual talent. Most of the squad was highly recruited.

Hunter sees some negative things also. The team is young and inexperienced for the collegiate level. Almost half the players are freshmen.

At the beginning of the season Hunter knew that she would have to find a freshman capable of leading the ship when upperclassmen like Robin Deterding and Dinah Devors couldn't.

Hunter and the women's volleyball team have found that person — Sonya Locke.

The freshmen sensation from Indiana has been one of the biggest reasons for the Salukis' success so far this season. Her importance is magnified with the ankle injury to Deterding, which leaves Locke as the team's most important player.

"Sonya has been so consistent for us right from the beginning," Hunter said. "She has done everything we've asked of her, which at times has been a lot."

Still, with all the pressure and success, Locke isn't thinking of individual success. "Having our team win is a necessity," Locke said. "Playing in the game myself is not."

Locke decided to come to SIU because she was impressed with the team's past performances and the fact that

Sonya Locke

Southern is hosting the national championships this season.

"Having the nationals here my first year is one of the greatest thrills in my life," Locke said. "For anyone it is exciting, but being able to compete as a freshman is almost too much."

Making the change from high school volleyball to playing against the top collegiate teams would seem like an easy transition to anyone who has seen Locke play. But for the 5-9 hitter-setter, the change wasn't as easy as it looked.

"In high school, we played as individuals," Locke said. "There was a great deal of conflict between players on the same team for recognition and attention. Here, at college, we truly work the way a team should — as one big family."

"One girl on my team at high school hated me because we were the team's top two players and I was her competition. When I got here, I was surprised to see players who I would be competing for a starting position with giving me pointers and helping me out. The team concept has made me a better player."

Locke has been a vital cog in the Salukis' attack. Hunter said Locke will be an integral part of the team for the next four seasons.

"Sonya has unlimited potential," Hunter said. "When she finally refines her techniques and gains some experience, she'll be quite a threat."

Just being a starter is a big thrill for Locke.

"When I first came here, I was scared and didn't know if I would get a chance to play. And if I did, I wasn't sure how I'd perform," Locke said. "After meeting the people and the team here at school, I'm glad that I'm here playing volleyball."

So is Hunter.

Lady netters shut out over weekend

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

One couldn't blame women's tennis Coach Judy Auld for feeling a little bit like the manager of the Chicago Cubs after what happened to her team over the weekend.

"Sometimes I think I should take a course in psychology or something," Auld joked after her Salukis could win just one individual match out of a possible 27 against Missouri, Northwestern and Western Kentucky. SIU lost 9-0 to Missouri Friday, and 9-0 and 8-1 to Northwestern and Western Kentucky Saturday.

"Five three-set matches against Western Kentucky and we couldn't win any of them," Auld said. "We're better than what our record shows. We seem to have trouble taking advantage of opportunities when they arise."

"The only thing I can say is that it has to get better," she continued. "And I think it will get better."

Against Western Kentucky, Jeannie Jones, Carol Foss, Mauri Kohler, Fran Watson and Mona Etchison all went to three sets in their singles matches. But Jones lost her third set to Sandy Leslie, 6-0; Foss to Kathy Ferry, 6-2; Kohler to Betsy Bogdan, 6-2; Watson to Laurie

Leslie, 5-2; and Etchison to Susan Kepiry, 7-5.

Auld said she was mystified by the third-set losses.

"It's something I can't put my finger on," she said. "It's not necessarily just ability. It is concentration, the ability to stay intense on every point."

The Salukis won their only individual match of the weekend in doubles competition against WKU, as Thea Breite and Fran Watson defeated Kopley and Laurie Leslie, 6-1, 6-1.

Auld said the Salukis could have won several of their matches against Missouri and Northwestern.

"Against Missouri, I felt we had a few matches that could have gone either way," she said. "We could have also picked up a few points against Northwestern."

Jones, Watson, Lisa Warren and the doubles team of Foss and Debbie Martin all came close to winning sets against Missouri. But Jones lost to Hela Wilson, 6-4, 6-3; Watson fell to Cindy Gilliam, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2; Warren lost to Nancy Fudemberg, 6-4, 7-5; and Foss and Martin were defeated by Ann Neuburger and Nancy Dickens, 7-5, 6-4.

Some top teams falter in IM softball

By Gregg Ochoa
Student Writer

Like comedian Rodney Dangerfield, some intramural softball teams don't get any respect.

Since so much emphasis is placed on the won-loss records of most intramural softball squads, it is expected that the teams with the better records will fare well in post-season play. But as the softball playoffs began last week, some top-flight teams were eliminated.

Under the present schedule, all intramural champions should be decided by Oct. 1. In men's Division A, the Warriors downed the favored Long Rangers, 14-4. Sticky Fingers defeated Sigma Tau Gamma, 16-10. Southern Hustle beat Rear Entree, 14-11. Tau Kappa Epsilon blanked the Jammers, 14-0. Sigma Phi Epsilon edged previously unbeaten Diamond Dogs, 7-5.

Frog Hollow beat the Boat

People, 16-4. The Woozy Wyverns beat Alpha Tau Omega, 14-9. Phi Sigma Kappa edged the Sultans of Swing, 10-9. The victories put those teams in the quarterfinals.

In men's Division B, six teams advanced to the quarterfinals. The Oral Advocates defeated the Boomer Bangers, 8-2. Straight Up-No Chaser downed the Insanic Coho Lips, 10-5. The Master Batters edged Airport 79, 12-11. Who's on First downed the Choir Boys, 17-7. New York M.F.B. beat the Show Biz Kids, 10-6. Nothing Short of 12 Inches bested the Stooges, 15-13.

In the women's division, three teams advanced to the semifinals. Chuck's moved into the final four with a 7-0 forfeit win over the Bowyer Brats. 12th Floor Neely downed the Schneider Sliders, 18-10 and the Tequila Sunrise edged Sisters-in-Law, 8-7.

In Co-Rec Division A, No Game Scheduled and Dairy Queen won by forfeit and Frozen Snowball Theory bombed the Hemp Hounds, 14-1, to reach the semifinals.

Gottfried takes cage program to public

By David Gafrick
Sports Editor

The seats of the SIU Arena are empty and will be for another two months. Officially, the basketball season doesn't begin until Dec. 1.

For Head Coach Joe Gottfried, however, his first season never really ended. Recruits had to be signed to national letters of intent and non-conference opponents had to be scheduled.

Now comes the important chore — selling the package to the public. Clinics will be held for kids and coaches, discussions about the team with the faculty are planned for the first Wednesday of every month, speeches will be given and exhibition games will be played in some Southern Illinois communities.

"As far as the public relations aspect of the job go, I enjoy it," Gottfried said. "I enjoy meeting the people of the community. We've gotten a lot of good responses. Everyone seems encouraged."

"We want them to know about the progress of our program. We talk about the schedule, the conditioning, our various prospects. They like to know what is going on inside basketball."

Gottfried aims to keep everyone excited about his program. Team members are in their second week of conditioning, which acts as a prelude to the six-week training camp that begins Oct. 15, a Monday morning, at 12:01 a.m. (one minute past midnight Sunday evening for those on Carbondale Standard Time). It is at that time that the annual Maroon-White game tips off.

"We don't want anyone making fools of themselves," Gottfried laughed.

While the conditioning program may help the team members look sharper in the intrasquad game, Gottfried hopes it will help them avoid nagging injuries such as strained muscles.

As part of the program, the Salukis are running, lifting weights and jumping rope. Running distances range from a couple of miles to sprints, while jumping rope is designed to help with agility.

"Each player is on a different type of program," Gottfried said of the weight work. "Each is designed to strengthen the upper body and the legs. We're out to increase physical strength. We're not interested in bulk."

While the players are preparing for the season, Gottfried and his staff are attempting to lure the fans out. An exhibition game has been scheduled against the Bulgarian national team Nov. 14 at the Arena, and two intrasquad contests are planned in Eldorado Nov. 7 and in Murphysboro, Mo., Nov. 7 or 27.

The students? They'll have to wait until Oct. 15. Rest assured that Gottfried is planning a special program to draw them back, too.

Phillips undergoes surgery on knee

It has been said that the health of a football player deteriorates from the first day of fall practice. Coaches accept this as a rule of the game. It is when the bumps and bruises turn to strains and tears that the full impact of the axiom is felt.

Saluki football Head Coach Rey Dempsey knows about injuries. Having lost nose guard Tom Piha against Southwestern Louisiana three weeks ago, Dempsey will be without another defensive lineman who will miss the rest of the season. He may lose the services of one more for Saturday's game against Illinois State.

James Phillips, a 6-2, 250 pound tackle, will miss the rest of the season after having surgery on his right knee Monday afternoon at Carbondale Memorial Hospital. Phillips tore the ligaments in the knee in the opening minutes of the second quarter of

James Phillips

Saturday's game.

"He walked off the field, and I thought he'd be back on," Dempsey said. "He's one of our best linemen. With him and Piha left out, it hurts you. We have to keep going."

Dempsey hopes to have Piha back in two weeks, when the Salukis battle Wichita State.

The head coach said Arthur Johnson, 6-4, 220 pounds, will replace Phillips in the starting lineup. Johnson has been hampered by injuries for most of the season. He has spent time mending a sore ankle and a pulled hamstring. Dempsey said the junior now is healthy.

Charles Allen, 6-2, 250, also will play the position. Allen and Johnson switched off in the game against the Panthers.

"Both of them have strength and are quick," Dempsey said. "Both need experience. I wish we could have gotten them into games before for situations like this."

A third member of the front five may miss the Illinois State game. End Rich Seiler may be scratched because of a shoulder injury he suffered in the Eastern Illinois game. James Woodward will start if Seiler can't.

Saluki netters finish fifth at Illinois

The inexperienced men's tennis team, consisting of four freshmen and two sophomores, lost to Illinois State 6-3 and then swept Northern Illinois 9-0 to earn fifth place last weekend in the Illinois Intercollegiate Tournament at the University of Illinois. SIU-E, last year's Division II champions, won the tournament, defeating Northwestern 7-2.

Scoring for a dual match, two teams playing each other, is figured as one point for each of six singles matches and one point for each of three doubles matches, a total of nine points each dual match.

"I was pleased with our prospects for this year," Coach

Dick LeFevre said. "Our freshmen will be a whole lot tougher next spring when that season starts."

Lito Ampon, David Filer and Steve Smith were the winners in straight sets for the Salukis in the first match. Ampon won in No. 1 singles, 6-3, 6-2, and Filer won in No. 2 singles 6-4, 6-0. In No. 3 singles, Smith downed his opponent 6-4, 6-4. The Salukis lost all three doubles matches.

"I would like to think we could have beaten them in doubles if the tournament was later in the year," LeFevre said. "This early in the season though it's like playing with high school kids, we just don't know what we have in the way of doubles combinations."

In the Northern Illinois

match, seven of the nine matches were won in straight sets. Ampon and Filer won again, Ampon 6-3, 6-4, and Filer 6-3, 6-1.

John Grief, coming off a back injury, won 6-1, 7-5. David Ervin earned his first win as a Saluki, defeating his Northern opponent 6-1, 6-4. It took Steve Smith all three sets to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 and Eric Eberhardt, a freshman walk-on, won 7-5, 6-2.

In doubles matches, the No. 1 team of Grief and Filer won 6-2, 6-7, 7-6. The No. 2 team of Ampon and Ervin won 6-3, 6-2, and the team of Smith and Eberhardt won 6-3, 6-1.

The team will travel to Little Rock, Ark. this week to compete in a tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Study links aggressiveness to high-contact sports

By Dale Chandler
Student Writer

In general, athletes tend to be more passive than non-athletes. However, if some aggressive stimulant is shown to both groups, athletes will show a greater reaction to it than non-athletes.

This conclusion is based on a study by Joel Thirer, an assistant professor of physical education at SIU-C. The study is a culmination of more than a year's research conducted on 204 undergraduate male volunteers.

"A great deal of negative attention has been focused on organized athletics in recent years due to an increasing amount of sport-related violence," Thirer stated in his paper, "Changes in Aggression as Determined by Film-Mediated Stimuli on High, Moderate, and Non-Contact Sport Athletes and Non-Athletes."

Speaking before the International Congress in Physical Education at the University of Quebec in June, Thirer said most sports researchers and social scientists agree that aggressive sports behavior is primarily a learned characteristic.

"In accepting this fact it seems possible that it should be possible to distinguish between broad categories of sport subgroups according to the amount of aggression that is overtly displayed," Thirer said.

Thirer used 102 non-athletes who had no varsity sports experience and 102 athletes from five different sports teams — baseball, basketball, football, golf and track and field.

The study consisted of showing the subjects two violent films: one a sports film and the other a non-sports film. The sports film was an excerpt from an NC-A basketball game in which the visiting team was attacked violently by the home team and spectators. The other film involved non-sport aggression, followed by the activities of an inner city street gang. It included explicitly violent sequences.

Before and after each movie, the subjects were tested to determine their aggression attitude levels. The films were shown five to seven days apart.

The results of this part of the study showed that athletes started out with lower base-line aggression scores than did non-athletes. The post-film test showed an increase in athletes' aggression scores and a decrease in those of non-athletes.

The athletes then were broken down into three subgroups, depending on the level of contact in their sport. Football was high contact, basketball and baseball were moderate contact, and golf and track and field were non-contact sports. The scores of the three groups were then compared with each other and the non-athletes.

The study revealed that high contact athletes and non-athletes scores were nearly equal, while scores for moderate and non-contact athletes were lower.

"A lot of people feel that athletes have better control of their aggressive attitudes than do non-athletes, and this confirms that hypothesis to a certain point," Thirer said. "It was verified for non-contact and moderate contact sports, but not for high contact sport participants."

Thirer believes that moderate and non-contact athletes are trained in a way which enables them to keep their aggressive arousal levels under control, but thinks that high-contact athletes receive "disinhibition" training which encourages the players to behave aggressively on the field.

"Because of this training," Thirer said, "their response to aggressive stimuli is the same as or greater than people who have undergone no training."

Thirer's study is the first of its kind because it looks at contact levels of sports — a variable that hasn't been examined.

Thirer is beginning his fourth year at SIU-C. He received his Ph.D. at Florida State University in 1976, and Master's from Ithaca College in 1973. At Ithaca, he was an assistant basketball coach. His primary area of study has been sports psychology.
