Poshard, Kelley to debate tonight for last time

By Scott Perry
Staff Writer

When Congressional candidates Patrick Kelley and Glenn Poshard debate the issues tonight at Kaskaskia College, the only surprise will be if there is any surprise at all.

Going into the third of three debates, the battlelines between the two candidates are clearly drawn — leadership is the issue each candidate hopes will carry him to Washington.

"This election is about who can best lead Southern Illinois into 1990 and beyond," Poshard said Monday during a candidate forum, which was sponsored by the Marion Business and Professional Women's Club.

During his opening statement, Poshard made several references to his experience as a state senator representing the 59th District and his accomplishments during his four years in office.

"A leader has to stay in the trenches and I have stayed in the trenches. That's leadership and that's what I offer you," Poshard said.

Kelley agreed that leadership was the issue in the election, but said it's leadership in deciding "where we are wanting to go as a nation."

"We made a commitment eight years ago to reduce taxes and to end over regulation by the federal government," he said.

Kelley said the policies are working and they need to continue.

Kelley made reference to his experience as an educator and his positions he held on the Carbondale City Council and a drug enforcement group in Southern Illinois and said he has "the background and experience" in the areas important to this election.

Both candidates agree jobs

Committee offers guidelines to prevent Halloween rape

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

The number of rapes reported to the Rape Action Committee Halloween weekend did not increase last year and the committee is offering suggestions to prevent rape at this year's festivities.

Julie Claussen, director of RAC, said just because rapes were not reported doesn't mean they did not happen.

"I think they're happening to people who aren't from here, who don't know they could call us," she said.

"Also, when partying, you tend to blame yourself more," Claussen said.

Underage drinkers also are hesitant to report a rape or sexual assault incident, she said.

Only one rape was reported to RAC last Halloween. At least one rape is reported on most ordinary weekends, Claussen said.

The Carbondale Police Department did not receive any reports of rape or sexual assault during Halloween, Neal Jacobson, executive assistant to the chief, said.

SIU Security hasn't had any reports of rape or sexual assault during Halloween for two years, Theresa Nester, statistical clerk of SIU Security, said.

Claussen said there are some things that women can do to prevent an assault.

"I tell people to listen to their gut instincts and not to be embarrassed to act on them. If you feel uncomfortable on a date, get yourself out of it," she said.

In a situation like the Halloween celebration, assaults such as a man grabbing a woman as she walks by happen frequently, Claussen said.

"The one less likely to get hurt is the one who gets really assertive and angry. Be direct with a person about what you

Dangers stop timber harvest

By Loria Roberson
Staff Writer

Timber harvesting in the Cave Valley and Bear Creek areas has been suspended until next summer to complete an analysis of potential danger to endangered plants and animals, a spokesperson for the Shawnee National Forest said.

Larry Burkhart, district ranger for the Murphysboro Ranger District, is coordinating the project. He said the analysis is already well underway and he recommended the sales of the two areas be suspended so that a closer and more timely investigation can be done for plants that only flower in the spring, for birds during their nesting period and for animals during the mating season.

Burkhart said all the endangered species have not been identified yet, but Ron Rayburn, timber staff officer in Harrisburg, said there are 15 endangered plants and animals so far.

The level of danger varies with each plant and animal, Rayburn said. Some are on the state list of endangered species, some on the federal list and a few are listed as "sensitive," such as a mint plant that is state protected but is under federal consideration, he said.

The Indiana Bat, which is on the federal list, and the Swainson's Warbler, which is state listed, are high on the endangered list, Rayburn said.

The analysis is also concerned with the management of neo-tropical birds, Rayburn

Unions claim faculty needs their support

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Both unions fighting to represent University faculty think they will win in the upcoming collective bargaining election.

The two unions vying to represent University employees are the University Professionals and the Illinois Education Association.

The University Professionals have been with the University since 1971 and claim a membership of about 100 members.

UP is affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Teachers and American Federation of Teachers, which is a branch of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Bentsen, Quayle head for debate

United Press International

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Dan Quayle, R-Ind., headed Tuesday for their Omaha, Neb., debate showdown with a fresh poll showing the vice presidential candidates are becoming a potent force in the election campaign.

The 90-minute nationally broadcast vice presidential candidate debate at 7:30 tonight will use the same format as the Sept. 25 presidential debate — each candidate gets two minutes to answer questions and his opponent gets a one-minute rebuttal.

A CBS News-New York Times poll released Tuesday night found the No. 2 candidates are affecting how voters are perceiving the tops of the tickets.

The survey of more than 1,000 registered voters put the race at a statistical tie — the GOP ticket of George Bush and Quayle drew 48 percent, and the Democratic team of Michael Dukakis and Bentsen was close with 46 percent.

But when the poll, with a 3 percent margin of error, questioned voters about the presidential candidates exclusively, Bush was ahead of Dukakis 48 percent to 43 percent.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for

Opposition leaders believe Chile will oust Pinochet

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — On the eve of a plebiscite in which President Augusto Pinochet asks voters to extend his 15-year grip on power, opposition leaders Tuesday expressed confidence Chile would respond with a resounding "no." Although both pro-Pinochet and opposition polls forecast victory for their side, Western diplomats said they considered the polls showing the "no" ahead as the more reliable.

Soviet Union ready to be U.N. peacekeepers

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Soviet Union expressed readiness Tuesday to provide troops for U.N. peacekeeping forces and end a hands-off policy by the superpowers toward the armed branch of a Nobel Prize-winning peace operation. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Petrovsky said Moscow has sought to make U.N. bodies more effective.

Amnesty: One-third of the world uses torture

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International painted an "ugly picture" Wednesday in its yearly human rights report, saying that people and sometimes children are tortured in one-third of the countries around the world. In the survey of 135 nations, the organization said that in 80 countries worldwide people are jailed for speaking their minds or for political or religious beliefs.

Two Americans start MIA search in Laos

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Two Americans were arrested in Laos after dumping about $3,000 in dollar bills into the Mekong River to publicize a $2.5 million reward for the return of U.S. prisoners of war, a Thai woman who visited them said Tuesday. American sources identified the pair as North Carolina members of an MIA activist group. Ross Petzing, spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok, confirmed that two Americans were arrested on the Mekong River, but declined to provide their names.

U.S. stops probe of El Salvador massacre

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Tuesday it has stopped investigating the recent massacre of 10 El Salvadoran villagers, which had been blamed on the U.S.-backed Salvadoran Army, because it could not find any witnesses to interview. Witnesses previously told reporters that Salvadoran troops killed seven men and three women from the tiny village of San Francisco with grenades and rifles on Sept 21.

U.S. pleased, puzzled over release of hostage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Tuesday he is pleased with the release of hostage Mithleshwar Singh but said the United States had not negotiated with his captors and could not "hazard a guess" why he was freed.

Discovery inspected after 'beautiful' landing

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The shuttle Discovery came through its fiery return to Earth in "beautiful" shape and an ongoing inspection of the ship's burned-out boosters has shown no apparent problems, officials said Tuesday. NASA officials said no problems have been found that would prevent the shuttle Atlantis from blasting off late next month.

Illinois gets federal grant to help homeless get jobs

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois has received a $690,900 federal grant to fund a demonstration project to help the homeless find work and housing. The grant will fund Project Opportunity, a one-year program to help find employment for about 225 homeless individuals who are most likely to benefit from job training and job placement services, officials said.

Owners can claim pets at shelter

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

Do you know where your dog is?

If not, it may be one of the 5,000 to 6,000 lodgers per year maintained by the Humane Society of Southern Illinois, Cindy Nelson, the animal shelter manager, said.

Nelson said her clientele on Wood Road west of Carbondale has ranged from hawks and owls to pigs and monkeys; but mostly it's lots of dogs and cats.

Lloyd Nelson, of the Jackson County Animal and Rabies Control, said any animal picked up in Jackson County will be taken to the shelter and pet owners should check there first.

The dogs and cats in the shelter usually are strays, and they will be kept in the shelter for seven days to give their owners a chance to pick them up.

If no one claims the animal it will be put up for "adoption," she said, depending on its health, disposition, and age. "Making the team is the tough part," she said.

However, Mrs. Nelson said, the shelter has only a 15 percent adoption rate and the rest are put to sleep or "euthanized."

Only pet owners can control overpopulation of animals by neutering and spaying their pets, she said.

Neutering is sterilization of the male animal, and spaying sterilization of the female animal.

Many of the animals brought in are wild. "It's hard for the general public to imagine a puppy or cat that is totally wild. But it does happen," Mrs. Nelson said.

In addition to the state law that all dogs over 4 months must be vaccinated against rabies and wear a tag stating this fact, Mr. Nelson said students in Carbondale often are not aware that Carbondale has a leash law requiring all dogs be maintained in an enclosed pen or yard or restrained by a leash.

Dogs also are required to be registered with the city through City Clerk Janet Vaught, but Vaught said only 400 licenses are issued a year.

Although Vaught would not estimate the number of pet dogs in Carbondale, she said there are a "heck of a lot more" than are registered with the city.

Vaught said fines start at $30 for owning a dog that is not neutered or spayed and without a license. It is $30 more for letting it run without a leash. After the first, fines double with each concurrent offense.

Vaught said yearly licenses can be bought from May 1 to June 30 for $7 if the dog is not spayed or neutered and $1 if it is.

She said a late charge may be added if the license is not bought within these months

Forest is winner in the clear-cutting halt

DEMOCRACY in action can be a wonderful process. No where is this better evident than in the abilities of a small, grassroots movement to halt timber cutting in two environmentally sensitive areas of the Shawnee National Forest.

While lumber companies, Forest Service officials and scientists claimed clear-cutting would have no effect on the environment in Cave Valley and Bear Creek, a handful of environmentalists raised their voices and were heard.

AMID THE controversy, enough questions were raised as to the effects clear-cutting would have on endangered species of plants and animals, such as the much heralded Swainson's warbler and the Indiana bat, that an environmental reassessment was deemed necessary.

The Forest Service's willingness to admit to possible mistakes in its first report on the two sites is a clear indication that the Cave Valley and Bear Creek areas need much closer investigation.

THE RESULT of the halt on clear-cutting has meant financial difficulties for construction and lumber companies contracted to work the Cave Valley and Bear Creek areas.

Ledbetter Construction of Elizabethtown has a $51,921 contract with the Forest Service to improve a railroad bed and a spur. Since the halt, the company has had to lay off two employees while facing debts of $850 in workman's compensation and $570 in bonding.

WHILE THESE problems should not be ignored, the fate of endangered species in Cave Valley and Bear Creek should not be compromised. Although much credit should be given to the environmentalist who fought relentlessly to have Cave Valley and Bear Creek set aside for preservation, credit also must be given to Forest Service officials for their willingness to admit they may have been wrong.

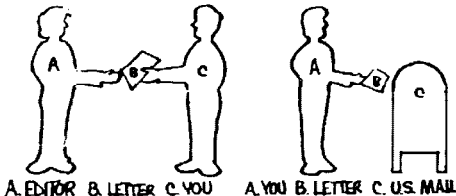

Clearly, if there are endangered species in Cave Valley and Bear Creek, those plants and animals will be the ones to profit the most from the Forest Service's reassessment.

LaRouche has the better idea, pays for canned television ads

By Jackie Hampton
 Staff Writer

He's back. He's had to overcome the shame of naysayers who consider him guilty of crimes against the state. He was once a force in politics before his disgrace and now he's returned to claim his spot in the lunatic fringe.

Of course I'm not talking about Richard Nixon. The man is Lyndon LaRouche.

LaRouche was the mentor of those who disrupted the Thompson-Stevenson debate in Chicago. The leader of the candidates who caught the state's Democrats with their pants down and won the secretary of state and lieutenant governor's nominations with a campaign promise to bring the tanks down Michigan Avenue.

His Virginia compound was raided by federal agents who had questions to ask about his methods of raising funds for his enterprises. He warned us that Queen Elizabeth was a drug dealer, but we wouldn't listen and have rejected his numerous presidential campaigns.

LaRouche now appears ready to put past troubles and successes behind him as he embarks on another race toward the White House.

He suddenly appeared, looking as nervous as ever, Monday evening on KFVS-TV. The days of rash statements about Western leaders involved in drug deals no longer assure him of a spot on the evening news, since one of the legitimate candidates has taken to filing those charges. Now, Lyndon LaRouche must pay for his air time.

Monday night, he paid for a nice chunk of it. For the 30 minutes following KFVS-TV's premier of "Night Court" reruns, LaRouche bought the chance to prove to the public that truth is stranger than fiction.

LaRouche always has had a soft spot in his heart for conspiracies. LaRouche lives in a world full of traitors and scoundrels. The fictitious courtroom of television land, where criminals rarely are portrayed as really bad people, was the perfect lead-in to Lyndon's trip through fantasy land.

LaRouche, though, seems to have undergone some sort of life-changing experience. The froth was gone from his lips. The loud exhortations of his patriots were replaced by soft rhetoric from people identified as scientists. Even LaRouche was in a low-key mood.

He still obviously believes that conspirators are everywhere, just waiting to pounce on him once his back is turned. There he was, beaming from the TV screen, back against the wall and still his eyes kept darting about, as if he were about to be attacked from above or below.

LaRouche's latest conspiracy is the worldwide food cartel that promotes starvation in Africa as a means of increasing its profits. He has no hard evidence, just the fact that food prices continue to go up, farmers continue to go broke and children in Africa continue to starve.

LaRouche also produced "proof" that last summer's drought was an aberration in the natural drought cycle, which he claims could fuel disaster when the next regularly scheduled drought occurs in 1990. Industrialized society and its pollution are the loosely knit conspirators in that case.

What was really surprising was that LaRouche filled the 30 minutes. Never mind that most of what he said was kooky. It was no stranger than a plea for votes based on a veto of a Pledge of Allegiance requirement or the opposition's failure to arrest a Central American dictator on drug charges.

I sat back a moment and pondered what might happen if Vice President George Bush or Gov. Michael Dukakis attempted a 30-minute commercial at this point in the campaign. I tried to remember how long it has been since I saw either of them give so much as a five-minute interview to a reporter.

These are the fellows who want to run the campaign their way. They want to "debate" before an audience of equal numbers of their supporters. They want to choose who asks the questions. They want the final say over the camera angles and lighting techniques used to photograph them.

If the television networks had half the courage of the League of Women Voters, the candidates would have their way and they would shell out the going rate for commercial advertising just as Lyndon LaRouche did.

That won't happen of course, so here is another suggestion that won't be used:

In consideration of the length of time each candidate has spent discussing the issues, here's a way one of them could fill his 30-minute spot. Use the same kind of footage that television stations use to sign off, a scene of the U.S. flag waving against a background of blue sky and have the Star Spangled Banner play in the background, over and over and over.

Non-smokers deserve smokers' consideration

A matter of great concern for a large majority of American people today is smoking. People have a right to smoke if they wish, but those who don't may be forced to endure the unpleasantness smoking may cause. Everyone is aware of the variety of illnesses smoking can cause to the person who smokes. But I don't believe smokers always consider the non-smoker sitting next to them.

On a college campus, a large college especially, there are always places to go to escape the smokers, but what if, in the place you need to be, no one is considerate enough to ask: "Will my smoking bother you?"

The smoke will not harm the non-smoker nearly as quickly, but the smell of the smoke is very unpleasant. For the non-smoker, the smoke irritates the eyes and causes coughing, which is aggravating.

I believe that people have the right not to be subjected to the smoke. Public places should have smoking and non-smoking areas, and they should be used by the proper person.—Steve Dorsey, freshman, undecided major.

Official silence erodes confidence; collapse of Council embarrassing

Open letter to Mayor Dillard and councilmen Mills, Morris and Yow. You are wrong in your assertion that you do not need to justify your vote as a member of the Carbondale City Council. Irregardless of what your decision is, you must demonstrate yourself to be rational in order to maintain the confidence of those who are affected by your decisions.

An authoritarian government is driven by an internal conviction of what is right. We live in a fragile democracy which is characterized by more than elections. It is not enough to hold public hearings with no discussion or debate, and then pronounce your decision.

You have maintained that you would not engage us in discussion or argument. While you sat quietly listening, we provided you with a number of excellent arguments against the couple and proposed alternatives such as widening Main Street. We were motivated by self-preservation, not greed; and there is a profound difference.

We argued that a family's home is sacred, our opponents in the business community argued that the dollar is sacred. On Tuesday night, it was your turn to demonstrate to us that you were capable of understanding the arguments on both sides. No member of the Council could muster the courage or courtesy to present even a five minute argument in favor of the couple.

If you disagreed, you should have demonstrated an ability to formulate an opinion of your own and articulate the reasoning behind it. Instead, you created the impression of ineptitude. Your lack of strength was frightening and destructive. Your physical collapse before the attacks of Councilman Tuxhorn was embarrassing not only to you, but to all of us. Tuxhorn was more out of line than you.—John W. Shriver, associate professor, chemistry and biochemistry.

TV evangelists make greed a career, but capitalism makes country great

In the last year TV evangelists have really made the news. Once thought of as the messengers of God, they have been exposed to the public as third rate con men looking to make a fast buck. This bad exposure inevitably ended Pat Robertson's bid for the Republican presidential nomination. Jim and Tammy Bakker lost their PTL empire after Jim used his charismatic charm on church secretary Jessica Hahn. Then of course the humble servant of the Lord, Brother Jimmy Swaggart, took a shameless hussie to a low budget motel for some late night healing.

These men claim to be prophets speaking the word of God. Are they sincere? Well nobody can really know for sure, but judging from the size of their estates it's hard to believe that they are humble servants of the Lord. The amounts of money that these people are handling are staggering. After looking at the figures, these pioneers of deceit can have achieved, other equally greedy opportunists are finding bright new careers in the business of the Lord.

One example I would like to pursue is Robert Tiltan. Mr. Tiltan is a representative of no particular denomination, but rather owns his own TV ministry based in Dallas, Texas. Robert Tiltan's program "The Success in Life Show" is syndicated throughout the U.S. and can be seen on KBSI Channel 23 from 11:30 to 12:30 every Sunday night here in Carbondale.

His message is simple, so simple in fact that his main contributors must be uneducated and misguided members of society. The theme of his program is that you can have success in life by sending him a $1,000 vow of faith. By giving him money,

Sometimes when he is not getting enough cash he will begin to rant and rave into the camera, speaking in tongues and occasionally shouting at his audience to "put up or shut up."

God will smile upon you and heal you of any sickness or disease you have, or perhaps if you ask him he will bless your bank account with additional finances. Robert Tiltan asks you to give as much as you can. If you are poor and don't have the money, send a check anyway and the Lord will miraculously grant you the cash so that your check doesn't bounce.

If you are relatively middle class, he says that $1,000 is not enough and you must send him a five or 10 thousand dollar vow. Sometimes when he is not getting enough cash he will begin to rant and rave into the camera, speaking in tongues and occasionally shouting at his audience to "put up or shut up."

Tiltan is obviously no biblical scholar. Often he will misquote the Bible, misinterpret the Bible, make up chapters in the Bible that aren't there and make untrue statements about Jesus' belief in television as a medium for God.

Apparently Tiltan's ministry is thriving which, leaves me two explanations:

One, he is making money off the dumber people in society or:

Second, rich businessmen are using his ministry as a tax write off.

If you watch the "Success in Life" program you'll see that Robert Tiltan is a character but I don't believe he could be labeled as contemptible. After all, he's a businessman, no worse than a broker on Wall Street using inside information to his own advantage, or the big corporation undercutting the little guy to eliminate competition. Robert Tiltan is a capitalist and capitalism is what makes this country great. Isn't it?—Michael Edwards, senior, history.

Abortion decision can change life

When pregnant with my first child, who was by no means "planned" (and I certainly wasn't "ready" for motherhood) I realized that this pregnancy meant that there was going to be a child, unless I did something to stop it (something violent, I might add). Given time there would be a baby, just like those in mothers' arms and diaper commercials everywhere. I was no longer sole tenant of my body — it wasn't just my body anymore — it was home to another life.

It is this that pro-abortionists seem to find most distasteful. There is so much talk of a woman having control over her body, of it being her body, her choice. But, in fact, once she is pregnant it is no longer only her body, there is another.

Indeed, as Jacke Hampton's editorial stated, we are victims, but male and female were are all victims, victims of the selfishness which holds that "Me and Mine" takes precedence over all others. The fact of 4,000 abortions a day in this country (even while ads in this very paper testify to how loved and wanted an "unwanted" baby can be) demonstrates that our society values personal convenience over life itself.

This is why, on the basis of this single issue, I will vote for Bush. This single issue reveals too much about basic values to be ignored, and to vote otherwise would be to contradict those values. And in response to the question of how the next president will affect the current abortion laws — he will appoint the next Supreme Court justices. Just as a legal decision a hundred years ago declared that blacks were without civil rights, and was later corrected, so this legal decision declaring yet unborn children non-persons can be corrected.

And if there are those reading this now facing this issue, either philosophically or in the most concrete way possible, I can say, from personal experience that the decision will change your life. Choose life. Listen to what is closest to your heart.—Julie Murphy, Carbondale.

Police Blotter

A fatal auto accident occurred Wednesday at approximately 2 a.m. on Route 51, one mile south of DeSoto, the Jackson County Sheriff's Office reported.

Larry Nance, 24, of DeSoto was pronounced dead at the scene by Jackson County Coroner Don Ragsdale, according to police.

Nance had been traveling north on Route 51 when his vehicle left the roadway then re-entered the roadway on its side, officials said. Nance's body was found away from the vehicle.

The Jackson County Traffic Reconstruction Unit is investigating the cause of the accident. Anyone having information about the accident is asked to contact the Jackson County Sheriff's Office.

Unknown intruders entered a residence on Beveridge St. Monday evening and committed a burglary, Carbondale Police said.

Margaret A. Bacon, 20, of 407 S. Beveridge reported that persons entered her apartment sometime between 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Sunday and stole a television, jewelry, and a calculator, police said.

The loss was estimated at $280, police said.

the bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates, which sponsored the first Bush-Dukakis debate, said the group also plans to host the second presidential debate Oct. 13 or 14 in Los Angeles. Monday, the non-partisan League of Women Voters withdrew as sponsor.

Bob Neuman, a spokesman for the Commission on Presidential Debates, said the group — a creation of the two national political parties — will sponsor the second presidential debate.

"The only caveat to that is we have to raise money," Neuman said, estimating the cost to be about $500,000.

Neuman said it "looks pretty good" that the Los Angeles debate will be held in the Shrine Auditorium — the site the league planned to use until it abruptly withdrew as sponsor because League President Nancy Neuman said the event would be "a fraud on the American people" with the rigid restrictions imposed by the Bush and Dukakis campaigns. The vice presidential candidates were to arrive in Omaha later Tuesday and were expected to tour the 7,000-seat Civic Auditorium Wednesday for an inspection of the forum for their only one-on-one clash of the campaign.

In Washington, Quayle, 41, toured the ticket's national campaign headquarters for the first time, giving a short pep talk and shaking hands with workers.

He ignored reporters' questions about how he feels or how he expects to do against Bentsen Wednesday, saying only, "Tune in tomorrow night." But he told campaign workers the debate would be "a good opportunity for me to be able to talk to the American people in an unedited version for 90 minutes."

Bentsen has been in Austin, Texas, since Sunday for debate preparation. A Bentsen aide said he has had at least one mock debate, with Rep. Dennis Eckart, D-Ohio, 38, playing Quayle.

Ex-racer convicted for drug trafficking

BENTON (UPI) — A jury Tuesday convicted former Indianapolis 500 "Rookie of the Year" Randy Thomas Lanier and three co-defendants on charges of operating a multimillion-dollar marijuana trafficking ring.

The prosecution charged Lanier, 33, of Davie, Fla., and his co-defendants peddled more than 600,000 pounds of marijuana and were making as much as $12 million a year.

Jurors, who heard testimony from 82 witnesses and examined some 5,000 documents during the three-month trial, began deliberations Friday and spent some 30 hours considering the charges before returning the verdict Tuesday.

Convicted with Lanier were Benjamin Barry Kramer, 33, of Davie, Fla., a former open-ocean raceboat champion; Eugene Albert Fischer, 47, of Coral Gables, Fla., a businessman; and Kay Dee Bell Jr., 43, of Redwood City, Calif., a businessman with harbor and docking interests in the San Francisco area.

Lanier, Kramer and Brock were convicted of engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise — which carries a mandatory life sentence upon conviction — and with conspiracy to distribute more than 1,000 pounds of marijuana.

Lanier also was found guilty of income tax fraud, which could bring a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

HOW TO ENRICH YOUR EDUCATION BY $1000 A MONTH

If you're a math, engineering or physical sciences major, you could be earning $1,000 a month during your junior and senior years.

This excellent opportunity is part of the Navy Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate Program. It's one of the most prestigious ways of entering the nuclear field—and rewarding, too. You get a $4,000 bonus upon entrance into the program, and $2,000 more when you complete your Naval studies.

You also receive a year of paid graduate-level training that's the most comprehensive in the world. And you'll acquire expertise with state-of-the-art nuclear reactor and propulsion plant technology.

As a Navy officer, you'll lead the adventure while gaining high-level experience that will help make you a leader in one of the world's high-tech industries.

In addition to the professional advantages, nuclear-trained officers get an unbeatable benefits package, travel opportunities, promotions and a solid salary.

Find out more about the Navy Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate Program, and make your education start paying off today. Call Navy Management Programs: 1-800-322-6289.

said. These birds nest at Cave Valley and Bear Creek in the spring and return to the tropics in the fall, he said.

"They are mostly warblers like the Kentucky Warbler and the American Red Start," Rayburn said.

"The question is whether cutting will affect the management of the birds. We don't expect there will be any danger, but we want to do a formal study to be sure."

Burkhart said when the sales were planned in 1983 they were designed to accommodate plants and animals but more information recently became available about the possible addition of more endangered plants and animals.

The study will be conducted during the next six months and will conclude possibly in the spring, Burkhart said.

Experts in the field such as biologists from the Natural History Survey and the University will be consulted for the study, he said.

The Cave Valley Sale was sold to East Perry Lumber Co. of Frana, Mo., in January 1983 and The Bear Creek Sale was sold to S&G Timber Inc. of Ava, Ill., in April 1986.

Brian Unnerstall, procurement forester for Perry Lumber, said the suspension has not affected the company financially yet.

"We did want to cut some pine but we weren't going to start on hardwoods until next year," he said.

for Southern Illinois, quality education and an end to the drug problem plaguing the nation are the top issues of the campaign.

Kelley has made an issue of Poshard's stances on such issues as abortion, gun control and gay rights, since he disagrees with the Democratic platform.

"Leadership takes place in context," Kelley said.

Poshard defended allegations that he would be a "yes man" in Washington and said "I feel perfectly free to disagree with my leadership on issues I feel personal about."

Poshard said the idea that he would be forced to agree with Democratic leadership on all issues is "pure nonsense."

"If you follow that to its logical conclusion then the vote that President Bush, if elected, casts against the cost of living increase. I would assume that Professor Kelley would automatically go along with leadership and vote against a cost of living increase," he said.

The final debate will begin at 7:30 tonight.

Transportation to the college will be sponsored by the College Democrats and the College Republicans. Buses will leave the Student Center at 5:30 p.m.

She said this advice applies to men as well as women.

"Men need to listen to women. If she says no, listen and stop; if she didn't mean it, then she'll let you know."

Rape is generally defined as forced sexual intercourse that is perpetrated against the will of the victim. This applies to situations with acquaintances and strangers involving physical violence, coercion, or threat of harm to the victim.

Eighty to 90 percent of all rapes are acquaintance rapes, Claussen said, but the most common rape during the Halloween weekend is stranger rape.

Claussen said almost all assaults reported to the RAC involve alcohol.

LABOR, from Page 1

Association was organized on campus in 1984. Its parent organization, the National Education Association, is an independent labor union with 1.9 million members.

IEA organizer Don Keck could not give a membership count for the University because he said "we aren't in the business of recruiting members."

Both unions agree on the issues of collective bargaining. IEA and UP promise higher salaries for faculty members and shared governance with the administration.

IEA University president Gary Kolb said the money for salary increases would come from the state. "The state has the money, but it is not spending it in the right way."

A union's voice would be more effective in getting the money from the legislature, Kolb added.

UP president Herbert

Donow said in a shared governance, the two sides would work together to make and review policies.

Under the present system the administration sometimes operates on a method of shared governance and other times "does exactly what it wants and gets the policies it wants," he added.

Kolb said, "We are not concerned with beating the other union." He predicted IEA would win by a 3-1 margin over UP.

"That is not correct," Donow said. "I would rather be in our position than theirs."

While the administration has been supporting the view that collective bargaining is not in the best interest of the University, Tom Britton, vice chancellor for academic affairs, said the administration will cooperate if the faculty chooses a union to represent them.

New assistantships offered by national research council

About 450 new full-time research assistantships are available from the National Research Council.

The 1989 Resident, Cooperative, and Postdoctoral Research Assistantship Programs are for research in the sciences and engineering.

They conduct research for 30 federal agencies or research institutions in 115 laboratories throughout the United States.

The new assistantships will be awarded for research in chemistry; earth and atmospheric sciences; engineering and applied sciences; biological, health, behavioral sciences; biotechnology, mathematics, space and planetary science and physics.

Most of the programs are open to both U.S. citizens and foreign nationals and to both recent doctoral recipients and seniors.

The programs, initiated in 1954, have contributed to the career development of over 5,500 scientists.

Awards are made for one or two years, renewable to a maximum of three years. Annual stipends range from $27,150 to $35,000 for recent doctoral recipients or higher for senior associates.

Applications to the National Research Council must be postmarked no later than Jan. 15, 1989, (Dec. 15 for NASA), April 15 and Aug. 15, 1989. Initial awards will be announced in March and April, in July and November for later competitions and awards to alternates later will follow.

For details, contact the Associateship Programs (GR430A-D1), Office of Scientific and Engineering Personnel, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Ave., Washington, D.C. 20418, (202) 334-2760.

'Beauty and the Beast' at Shryock

The Joffrey II Dancers will present director-choreographer Robert Englund's adaptation of the familiar fairy tale, "Beauty and the Beast," at 8 p.m. Oct. 11 at Shryock Auditorium.

Wildlife photos featured

The public is invited to a photography contest meeting tomorrow night at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge.

The theme of the contest is wild animals on the refuge, said Ed Wagner, outdoor recreation planner at the refuge. Wagner said participants in the contest range from experts to amateurs and any type of camera may be used.

Participants may enter a maximum of nine photos, he said, and these may be a combination of slides and pictures, such as slides with color prints or slides with black and white prints.

Wagner said the contest is held every other month and is sponsored by the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge Nature Photography Society.

The contest is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Visitor Contact Station located two miles south of New Route 13 on Route 148.

Housing cuts result in less toilet paper

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

Last year it was ten, this year it was two.

The decrease in rolls of toilet paper given to residents of University Housing apparently wasn't because of a lack of flushes.

"We'd have to raise our rates to include the service (providing toilet paper), and we already have the second highest rates for room and board," Edward Jones, director of Housing, said.

SIU-C has rates of $1,312 per semester for on-campus housing, second only to the University of Illinois.

The University of Illinois charges $1,656 per semester to live on campus.

The lowest rates for dormitory living, as far as a state school in Illinois, is Illinois State University where rates are $1,150.

However, every state school in Illinois raised its rates from last year except SIU-C.

"We want the rate to be stable so we can compete with other universities," Jones said.

SIU-C offers suite-style rooms at Brush Towers, Neely Hall and Thompson Point, where two rooms are adjoined by a bathroom.

The Triads, which is part of University Park, has the style which other state universities include — with a community bathroom. In these instances, toilet paper is provided by the housing office.

Pam May, a sophomore in Neely, wasn't happy with the situation.

"We had to go out and buy the stuff that we thought we would get for free again this year," May said.

But the way Jones sees the problem, "If you've got to have it, you've got to buy it," and the students pay for it either way. Buying it on their own they have the option to buy the brand they want, he said.

Jim Boesch, sophomore in Mae Smith, said that the University "should provide it but also get a better quality of toilet paper."

Gospel act set to play at the Arena

A combination of rock 'n' roll and gospel music will be on tap at the Arena when Mylon Lefevre and Broken Heart perform Nov. 5.

The group will be debuting its first No. 1 album, "Crack the Sky", which has topped the charts of the Contemporary Christian magazine.

Special guest White Heart will join Lefevre at the 8 p.m. performance.

Tickets for the event go on sale Saturday, Oct. 8 at all usual SIU Arena ticket outlets, One Way Bookstores in St. Louis and Christian Bookstores in Fairview Heights. The cost is $10.50, $9.50 for groups of ten or more.

Illinois Federation of Teachers AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers

THE UNION THAT CARES--AND WORKS!

Herbert S. Donow, President

In April 1971, a handful of us met in Morris Library Auditorium and became the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, later the University Professionals, an affiliate of both the Illinois and American Federation of Teachers. Although a collective bargaining election seemed remote to us then, we were firmly convinced that it was inevitable, a conviction fueled by the rapid unionization of public universities during the 1970s. When the five Illinois universities of the Board of Governors system won a collective bargaining election in 1977, we knew our turn would come.

Our 17-year history has not been spent, however, simply waiting for collective bargaining. From the beginning, we believed that a union, be it ever so small (and small we were), could provide important service to our colleagues. For one thing, a generation of SIU faculty and staff learned about collective bargaining and related issues from us.

But our prime goal during that time was to help our colleagues. If we couldn't bargain a contract with protective provisions, we could volunteer our time and experience to advise and represent people in grievances and legal actions. Jerry Auerbach, then a professor of Social Work, Dave Gobert, a professor of French, Garth Gillan, a professor of Philosophy, John Pohlmann, a professor of Educational Psychology, and at least half a dozen others helped people with grievances and, in some instances, even saved jobs. I represented Annie Woodbridge and Nadeyne Bork, both of Foreign Languages, in a sex discrimination case at a Fair Employment Practices Commission hearing. The university agreed to a substantial lump sum payment to compensate these two faculty members for having been underpaid because they were women. I also represented Elsa Kula in a College of Human Resources hearing, at which we were able to get her salary raised, again because we proved she had been the victim of sex discrimination. I represented Jim Kalker, now professor emeritus, when he won his grievance to be promoted to professor.

We have, with the assistance of the IFT and AFT, gone to court or commission hearings on behalf of literally scores of people—the twelve people who successfully fought the university on a parking case in the early 70s; the celebrated 104 who were fired at Christmas in 1973 in an ill-advised declaration of financial exigency; Carolyn Weiss in her sex discrimination case before the FEPC; and of course, most recently, William Hammond of the School of Music.

Although our record of success is good, we obviously have not won them all. But our proudest achievements are not the battles fought and won but those that were settled quietly, behind the scenes, in a "collegial" way. Our approach to these cases has always been professional and non-confrontational. The interest of the grievant, not the organization, has been the guiding principle in our handling of these cases.

The University Professionals has a tradition. Even without bargaining, we have become an institution representing stability, commitment to SIU, and an intense desire to make this a better place to work. There are hundreds of people who have joined this union over the years who are convinced of the psychological and economic value of a union that cares.

The length and quality of this commitment to SIU faculty and staff make us unique. But our uniqueness lies in other things as well. In the coming weeks, I will give other reasons why this is the UNION THAT CARES--AND WORKS.

East St. Louis mayor sues state; task force appointed

EAST ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Claiming that Gov. James R. Thompson is trying to take over his city, Mayor Carl E. Officer filed a suit Monday in federal district court in an attempt to halt the effort.

The suit, filed in federal court in East St. Louis, alleges that Thompson has National Guard troops on standby to take over East St. Louis in the event it falls into bankruptcy.

David Fields, spokesman for Thompson, said state officials have not yet reviewed the lawsuit, but denied the state has any intention to take over the city or use National Guard troops in the city.

"There is absolutely no truth to the mayor's rumor that the National Guard is ready to move into East St. Louis or anywhere else," Fields said.

Thompson announced Friday he would set up a state task force to study solutions to the city's financial problems. One of the solutions the task force might discuss is the dissolution of East St. Louis city government.

Officer, who said on Monday he had been unsuccessful in trying to contact Thompson, lashed out at the governor.

"The governor is a close friend of President Reagan," Officer said. "Perhaps he's trying to emulate the president and maybe he thinks this is Grenada and he wants to come in, but we're not about to allow our city to be taken over," Officer said.

Court refuses yuppie tax

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Supreme Court has refused to reconsider its decision striking down Chicago's so-called yuppie tax on health club memberships, court officials said Tuesday.

The court made the decision without comment and also rejected 10 other petitions for rehearing.

In June the court declared the tax unconstitutional, saying it was an occupation tax disguised as an amusement tax.

The 2 percent tax was approved by the Chicago City Council in December 1985.

Glencoe man, U.S. woman scale Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — A doctor from Glencoe has scaled Mount Everest, accompanying a bicycle messenger from Redmond, Wash., who became the second American woman in history to conquer the world's tallest peak, the Ministry of Tourism reported Tuesday.

The pair, Dr. Geoffrey Tabin, 32, of Glencoe and Peggy Joan Luce, 30, of Redmond, reached the 29,029-foot summit a half-hour apart Sunday, the ministry announced.

The two are members of the Northwest American Everest Expedition.

Advice To The Drug Worn

A weekly column answering alcohol and drug questions.

A commonly asked question is, why do people do drugs. It's amazing the amount of information available about what drugs and alcohol do to both the mind and the body but the reasons why they do them is not as clear. Last spring during a talk to a 3rd grade class they made a list of all their reasons why they thought people did drugs. Here they are:

1. to do better
2. feel better
3. be stronger
4. be accepted
5. because they're under pressure, feeling stressed
6. be smarter
7. be liked
8. be cool
9. because parents do

It's certainly sobering to think that 3rd graders have the same misperceptions concerning what drugs do to you as adults have!!

Former Indiana Hoosier star motivated by Quayle

Editor's note: The St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently sent its reporters around the country to gather interviews with ordinary voters who will help choose the next president. This is one story in a series.

By John M. McGuire
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Quayle "has done a very good job handling the whole situation. I watched very closely what went on at the convention, saw how he did with his speech, and I was very impressed, as I was with George Bush."

"Quite frankly, I'm happy with the way things are," Abernethy said, "especially taxes."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Until recently, 6-foot-7-inch Thomas C. Abernethy, 34, a retired basketball hero, was going about his business and ignoring the election-year hoopla.

Then the Republicans nominated Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., for vice president.

"Dan Quayle has motivated me to have a keener interest in this year's election," Abernethy said. He has met Quayle but does not know him well. Still, Abernethy said, "All the negative publicity he endured — that sort of spurred me on, and I found myself more committed to the Republicans."

Abernethy said he thought

WHAT ABERNETHY looks for in a president is qualifications. He finds Democratic candidate Michael Dukakis lacking.

"I'm a little fearful of what would happen if Dukakis got in. My perception of Bush leads me to believe that he's had a great exposure to the office, and he understands how things work. To me, that qualifies him a lot more."

"It's not only taxes that worry me, but the economy in general," said Abernethy. "With Bush, the likelihood is the economy will be stronger than it would be with Dukakis."

In his college days at Indiana, Abernethy was one of coach Bobby Knight's basketball players. He retains that look — boyish, in blue broadcloth shirt and tie with brush-cut sandy hair.

ABERNETHY GREW in South Bend, Ind., where his late father was a pro at the Studebaker Golf Club, a nine-hole city course. The senior Abernethy died when his son was only 10.

Abernethy and his wife, Susan, who spent her formative years in Columbus, Ind., have three boys — a 4-year-old and twins who are almost 9.

The couple met at the state university in Bloomington. Abernethy was the starting forward on the Hoosiers' national championship basketball team of 1976. Susan Anderson was a Pi Beta Phi; he was a Sigma Nu; they met when his fraternity and her sorority worked together in the Little 500 bicycle race (the event that was the inspiration for the movie, "Breaking Away.")

ALTHOUGH ABERNETHY had no intention of continuing basketball after college — he had a full athletic scholarship and graduated with a degree in marketing and business — Knight encouraged him to give pro basketball a try. He was drafted by Los Angeles and played for the Lakers for two years, followed by two years with the Golden State Warriors in Oakland and a short stint with the Indiana Pacers.

For most of his 34 years, basketball would be a major part of Abernethy's life. Last year, two of his fraternity brothers at Indiana asked him to be a technical consultant on a movie they were making, "Hoosiers."

Budget cuts in library mean fewer magazines, journals

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Finding magazines or journals in Morris Library to spend a few extra minutes thumbing through is not a problem for library users, the director of library services said.

But for research purposes, students could have problems finding issues of specific magazines or journals, Darrell Jenkins, director of library services, said.

A lack of additional funding by the state has forced many cuts in the library budget including the purchase and renewal of subscriptions, Jenkins said.

"The jury is still out, but we are in the process of canceling in the area of 200 subscriptions for the next fiscal year," Jenkins said.

The state did not provide additional funds for library materials, Jenkins said. The library materials budget of $2,061,232 includes the purchase of subscriptions to journals and magazines, records films and rare books, he said.

About 80 percent of the library materials budget is spent on serial subscriptions and binding loose magazine or journal copies, Jenkins said. The other 20 percent is spent on the purchase of new books, he said.

"The ratio we spend fluctuates," Jenkins said. "This is a research library and the researchers, faculty and students have many disciplines. There has been the need to direct more of our budget into the serials."

Ten years ago the library subscribed to 17,821 magazines and journals.

There are other researcher areas that need the use of new books, Jenkins said.

"A balance needs to be maintained between the serial and book budgets," he said.

The University administration is trying to maintain a balance by finding additional funding, Jenkins said.

"The administration is in the process of finding other sources within the University," Jenkins said.

But until additional funding is found, cancellations will continue to be made, he said.

Ten years ago the library subscribed to 17,821 magazines and journals, Jenkins said.

"Over the years there has been a downward spiral in the number we can purchase," Jenkins said.

As of June 30, the library subscribes to 14,267 magazines or journals, he said.

Some hard choices have to be made on which magazines will be purchased, he said.

"We have a series of questions that help us decide if a subscription is going to be purchased," Jenkins said.

"We look at what is being taught on campus, rate of increase in a magazine subscription cost from year to year, how expensive binding the magazine will be, and availability of the journal from other libraries in the state or area."

An important point that the library looks at when deciding if a new subscription should be purchased is suggestions from the University community, Jenkins said.

"Influences during the course of the year may change the number of magazines we are able to get," Jenkins said.

Metal sensitized strips reduce library thefts

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Since a lack of state funding has forced cuts in the number of magazine or journal subscriptions that Morris Library can purchase, the library wants to keep what it has, the director of library service said.

Just as all new books purchased by the library are sensitized with a metal strip, many magazines and journals that the library subscribes to also are, Darrell Jenkins, director of library services, said.

"People try to walk out of the library with a book or magazine occasionally," Jenkins said. "But sometimes the alarm goes off because a book hasn't been desensitized."

The metal sensitized strips that are placed in the books cost 15 cents each, Don Wood, assistant professor at library services, said.

The library sensitizes what is thought to be high risk items and other random selections, Wood said.

Theft of magazines or journals is not a big problem, Jenkins said.

"Not so much as the mutilation of particular articles," Jenkins said.

The library has addressed mutilation in a positive way by increasing the number of copy machines with a feature that allows two pages to be copied instead of just one, he said.

The library also works to maintain mutilated articles and books with the conservation laboratory on the seventh floor of the library, Jenkins said.

"The past year the conservation lab replaced 2,500 pages in different kinds of materials," Jenkins said. "Once items are identified as missing, the lab goes through the inter-library loan system an obtain a replacement page."

team, said the practice should be exciting. "I think we are ready to play some basketball and prove to everyone we're ready. With the excitement of the football team winning we can make the most of it. I know everything will go well." Junior college transfer Freddie McSwain said the event is a good way to usher in the new season.

"As far as things are going already, everyone is really enthused," McSwain said. The Salukis' new guard said fan turnout is important for the practice to be a success. "I hope the fans are there because we really need their support. All the players are looking to have a great year, and this would keep us pumped up."

only getting fans involved remains. Generating excitement can't be blamed on the product because this team has a knack for taking games to the wire. In the home opener it beat Murray State with a first-quarter scoring blitz and last weekend it mounted a 24-point fourth-quarter comeback. It boils down to the fact that Saluki fans are under the impression that silence is golden. Solid attendance figures speak well of the fans' loyalty. But the fans themselves don't speak up. They are quietly accepting Rick Rhoades' success just as they quietly watched the program slowly disintegrate under Ray Dorr. If the athletics department is serious about filling McAndrew with noise as well as bodies, then it must re-educate them in the art of cheering.

Rhoades has already taken steps in that direction, making appeals to the students at both the East and West campuses. The rest of the personnel in the athletics department must follow his lead. Cheerleaders could be louder and more aggressive. Pom pom routines could have more flash. The band must keep the general admission section entertained.

If it takes President John Carl Guyon to doff his beige sports coat and display a maroon sweatshirt with "Salukis" scrawled across its front, if it takes Athletics Director James Warren Hart to start leading sideline cheers from the front row, so be it. It's time to get the fans involved.

Stewart realizes that, but despite winning 21 games this year, throwing strikes can sometimes be a problem for him.

If you walk too many people, especially in Fenway, you give the opposing team an opportunity for a big inning.

"My approach going into the game is to eliminate walks," Stewart said. "In the past against them, I've put a lot of people on base without letting them work for it. I've had problems here recently, but that's in the past."

Walks are something Hurst rarely has problems with. In 216 2-3 innings this year, he walked only 65 while striking out 166.

The left-hander attributes his ability to throw strikes to concentration.

"The best game I can have is when I know where the target is," Hurst said. "When I know what they're wearing on their feet, that's when I get in trouble. I'm trained to look at the (catcher's) glove. When I'm target-oriented, my mechanics will be there."

Against the A's, Hurst will have to be on top of his game. Any Oakland hitter can capitalize on a mistake. The A's batted .263 this season and their 156 homers ranked second in the AL behind Toronto.

"When you have this many good hitters, the pressure is going to be on Hurst to make his pitches all the time," La Russa said. "We've got five guys over 6 feet. He's going to have nine tough outs."

While the Red Sox are not the power-laden team they used to be, they too can score plenty of runs. Boston led the AL with a .283 average. Batting champ Wade Boggs sets the table for the Red Sox and Dwight Evans and Mike Greenwell provide the run production.

Greenwell probably will rank second to Canseco in the AL MVP voting, but his emergence is one reason the Red Sox are in the playoffs for the second time in three seasons.

"Greenwell knocked in 37 runs in the first inning this season," Red Sox Manager Joe Morgan said. "That tells a lot. Not all of them may have been game-winners, but he put us on the board."

Greenwell and Canseco should be the dominant offensive forces in this series. Canseco not only hits for power, but also has speed and has learned to hit for average. He became the first player in history to combine 40 homers and 40 stolen bases in one season.

NIU Huskie Classic women's next stop

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

When the women's golf team leaves Thursday for Northern Illinois University's Huskie Classic at Dekalb it will probably carry some of the memories from previous tournaments.

Coach Diane Daugherty said historically the team has not fared well at the classic.

"We've not really played very well there, but hopefully things will change."

Daugherty cites the weather as one of the disadvantages that usually accompanies the tournament during this time of the year.

"Last year when we went up there it was the coldest I've ever been in my life," Daugherty said.

This year, Daugherty said, "I told the (team) to bring their long underwear."

The classic will be Friday and Saturday. Seven teams, including SIU-C, will be competing.

Of the competition, Daugherty said Northern Illinois, with the home-course advantage, and Illinois State, which the Salukis have not beaten this season, will be the teams to beat.

Northern Iowa, Iowa State, Kansas State and Nebraska also will be competing against the Salukis.

Daugherty said the Salukis have beaten Northern Iowa and have played comparably to Iowa State in previous matches.

Earlier this week, the Salukis began their qualifying rounds to determine which six players will be competing in the classic. The team's No. 1 player, Lisa Meritt, shot a career-low score of 73 for 18 holes to lead the team.

"She (Meritt) shot a 31 on the front nine, which is outstanding, and then shot a 42 on the back," Daugherty said.

Men's golf will hold Saluki Invite

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

Men's golf teams from three states will visit SIU-C for this year's Saluki Invitational tournament, which tees off at 1 p.m. Friday at the Rend Lake golf course.

Illinois State is favored to win the tournament with the strong team of returning players. Southwest Missouri, the defending champions, will also be contenders for first place, men's golf coach Lew Hartzog said.

"Southwest Missouri is in line to give them (Illinois State) a real contest," Hartzog said.

Hartzog also cited Murray State (Ky.) and SIU-E as having top teams for this year's tournament.

University of Missouri-Rolla and Rend Lake Community College also will compete in the tournament.

Last year, SIU-C placed third behind Bradley, which is not competing in this year's tournament.

Hartzog wasn't sure of the team's finish this year, but does know what it would take to do well in the tournament. He said the team's players seem to flip-flop on their consistency.

"One week we have two of the players do well and the other two don't do as well, then the next week it's the opposite.

"If we have one of those days when they play together, we can play with any of them (competition)," Hartzog said.

After the tournament ends Saturday, the team will leave the next day for the Blue Raider Invitational in Murfreesboro, Tenn., which will be played Monday and Tuesday.

Those wanting to attend the Saluki Invitational can get there by going north on Interstate 57 until they reach Route 54. Go west on Route 54 until the golf course comes into view.

Nashville says no bear wrestling

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A judge temporarily ended bear wrestling in Tennessee Tuesday after inspecting a 750-pound bear named Ginger who grappled with all comers in matches at taverns across the state.

Ginger eyed the judge and the crowd of reporters through the milky glaze of a cataract in her right eye as she slumped in the back of a 5-foot-by-6-foot horse trailer parked in the courthouse lot. Chancellor C. Allen High granted a temporary injunction to stop promoter Richard Walker of Calhoun, Ga., from going on with his show Tuesday night at a Clarksville bar.

(State) statutes can only be interpreted so as to make it illegal in this state to bear wrestle." High ruled, citing the illegal action and saying "the treatment of this particular bear also violates state statute concerning cruelty to animals." During some seven hours of testimony, Ginger waited in the padlocked horse trailer.

The temporary injunction will stand until a full hearing is made and applies only to Walker, who said he will hire an attorney and appeal. He represented himself Tuesday.

"I treat that bear better than I treat my wife and kids," Walker testified, citing veterinary care, fresh fruits and vegetables daily and other routine care for the animal he has owned for its 17 years.

Walker opened the back gates to let High peer in at Ginger along with a veterinarian called to testify for the Tennessee Humane Association and Friends of Animals, which filed the suit. Ginger snorted at the judge before he returned to the courtroom without comment.

The wrestling bear went through several matches last week at a tavern in Lebanon, Tenn., before she took on Don Batey, 35, of Wilson County. Batey says the bear, advertised as "gentle," was no lady.

Batey's right leg broke when it got caught in the cage where they were wrestling. Batey said Ginger then rolled over on him, snapping his leg in two, Batey said.

"They said the bear was gentle and there was no way it would hurt nobody. It was supposed to all be in fun. Now I'm laid up and out of work. I'll probably be out of work two or three months," said Batey, a truck driver.

Richard Walker and his father, William, travel with Ginger under the name Rip and Randy Tyler Bear Wrestling USA.

He said he pays tavern patrons $5 to wrestle Ginger and they sign a form that waives any claims for any possible injuries.

Rick Rhoades, Harmke said he worked out a halfback for a few weeks before finally moving to fullback, his current position.

This season, Harmke has rushed for 332 yards on 66 carries through the Salukis' first four games.

Coming into the fall semester, Harmke needs 32 hours to graduate and has an overall GPA of 3.5, he said.

"Academics is the most important thing to me because that is what is going to give me my life," Harmke said. "I don't really set any goals. I think when you do something, it's worth doing right and you should give 100 percent.

"Every day I try to wake up with that attitude. The individual goals just follow through and take care of themselves."

Rhoades said Harmke is the type of student-athlete that coaches point to as an example to follow.

"Chuck has a great work ethic and he understands the offense extremely well," Rhoades said. "That is the winning edge, to me."

Rhoades said the ability for a player to possess academic, football and common sense is a valuable asset.

"He has a good dose of all three, and you've got to have that combo."

With one season of athletic eligibility remaining, Harmke said he will play football in 1989 if he can still reach his goal of being graduated next December.

"If I can fit football in my schedule and still graduate in December then I'll try it. I'd just like to get started with my life."

Ozzie in court after dispute about agents' commissions

CHICAGO (UPI) — St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith, one of baseball's highest-paid players, was sued in federal court Tuesday for allegedly refusing to pay his agents more than $300,000 in commissions for negotiating his contract.

The suit, brought about by Shamrock Nevada Corp. of San Diego, asks the court to order arbitration by the American Arbitration Association of Chicago, seeks $336,000 plus interest, costs and expenses, said attorney Bernard Rinella of Chicago.

Shamrock President Ed Gottlieb said he was ordered by the company's board of directors to file suit.

"I deeply regret that this litigation is necessary," Gottlieb said in a prepared statement. "The hearings that follow are not going to be pleasant for Ozzie Smith or for baseball, but he's left us no alternative."

Shamrock negotiated the four-year pact in 1985. It provides $2.2 million in annual pay, plus $700,000 in cash and a five-year unsecured $500,000 loan, the lawsuit said.

"I called Ozzie as per the instructions of my board of directors and asked him why he was not paying the money he owed us and Ozzie told me he couldn't afford it," Gottlieb said, noting that Smith has paid $20,000 toward the $440,000 bill he received from Shamrock.

Boston, Oakland ready to open ALCS at Fenway

BOSTON (UPI)— Game 1 of the American League Championship Series pits a hurler who must contain a fearsome lineup against one who must contain his own nerves.

Bruce Hurst of the Boston Red Sox takes on baseball's winningest team Wednesday and Dave Stewart counters for the Oakland Athletics at Fenway Park.

The weather forecast calls for occasional rain with temperatures in the 50s at gametime, 12:20 p.m. CDT.

Playoff schedules

Hurst, 18-6 this season, faces a lineup that includes Jose Canseco, who led the league with 42 home runs and 124 RBI.

Thirteen of Hurst's victories came in Fenway Park and his ability to move the ball around and throw strikes can give the A's trouble.

"He throws an assortment of pitches," Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said of Hurst, who is 5-1 lifetime against the A's. "You can't look at any particular area. Even if the ball is carrying well here, you can't look to pull the ball."

Unlike Hurst, Stewart is a power pitcher. If his fastball and forkball are working, he can dominate a game. He also needs to pitch on an empty stomach.

"I have a problem with nerves before a game," said Stewart, who went 21-12 this season. "If I eat before a game, I don't have the ability to keep the food down. If I eat, I'd probably throw up on the mound."

The prospect of pitching in Fenway Park is enough to make many pitchers sick. The Green Monster in left field influences how they throw.

Some try to keep the ball away from right-handed hitters. Others concentrate on keeping the ball down. That's where they go wrong. Pitchers who try to get too fine wind up walking people. That's when the home run really hurts.

Hurst's approach is simple — throw strikes. That's his philosophy wherever he pitches and that's the approach the Boston left-hander will take in Game 1.

"In any park, quality pitches will beat quality hitters," said Hurst, who is 25-6 the last two years at Fenway. "There are no absolutes in pitching other than getting the first guy out and staying ahead in the count."

Hart approves Herrin's plan for practice

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

Rich Herrin's midnight practice received the approval of Athletics Director Jim Hart Tuesday morning, paving the way for promotion of the season opening event.

"It sounds like fun, I just hope I can stay awake that long," Hart said of the plans to practice at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 15 at the Arena.

Oct. 15 is the first day of sanctioned practice by the NCAA.

"I'm looking forward to seeing how the team looks," Hart said. "I think there is some excitement about the coming season so that is even more of a reason to have it."

Hart said he didn't feel the practice would deter from the success of the football team.

"If you boost one sport it really picks up the whole program," Hart said. "We want to do anything we can to win enthusiasm."

Saluki guard Kai Nurnberger said it will get the team off on the right foot.

"It will help us get an early start," Nurnberger said. "We won't be doing anything anyway except laying around home, so we'll be relaxed for it. If there is a lot of interest in it than I think it a good idea to have it."

Forward Randy House said the practice should benefit the Salukis.

"We hope we will have a good practice to raise some big enthusiasm. I hope we have a big crowd; that is the point of having it. We are looking to stir some real interest in the program."

Saluki fullback Chuck Harmke has a good mix of academic and athletic success so far this season. SIU-C's leading rusher has entered his senior year of academics with a 3.5 grade point average. Harmke is majoring in electrical engineering.

Harmke balancing books and football

Academics are player's No. 1 priority

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

Most coaches are forced to send assistants out to comb the nation for young players, with hopes they will get the best student-athletes to sign a letter of intent to their school.

But once in a while, that talent walks right up and says "Hi."

Case in point, the Salukis' fullback, Chuck Harmke.

Upon graduating from Rolling Meadows High School, Harmke, who had a 27 ACT score and a high grade point average, applied at five schools, the University of Illinois, Notre Dame, Purdue, Northern Illinois and SIU-C. "I ended up getting turned down by the bigger schools," Harmke said. "A 27 ACT just wasn't good enough for them."

"I visited SIU and really liked the beautiful campus. One of my best friends was going here, and I knew they had a pretty respectable engineering program."

Coming in at 175-pounds, Harmke said he chose to wait a year before thinking about playing football.

"I took a lot of hours those first two semesters and did a lot of lifting so I could get bigger. I talked with a few of the coaches in the spring and, after they watched one of my high school films, I was invited to camp."

Harmke came out of the spring camp at fourth-string, but when injuries started to hit the Salukis' backs, Harmke began working out with the No. 1 and 2 offense, he said.

"I worked really hard that spring, and since Byron (Mitchell, the Salukis' No. 1 back at the time) was injured, I came out the No. 1 running

"Academics is the most important thing to me because that is what is going to give me my life. I don't really set any goals. I think when you do something, it's worth doing right and you should give 100 percent."

—Chuck Harmke

back," Harmke said.

"Coach (Ray) Dorr gave me a half scholarship that paid for my tuition and fees. I started about three or four games, and felt I did pretty good for it being my first full year."

Harmke rushed for 297 yards on 62 carries in 1987, an average of 4.8 yards per carry.

Harmke said in the spring of 1988, Dorr told him of plans to move the running back to strong safety. Dorr told him if he came out of camp at No. 1, he would receive a full scholarship, Harmke said.

"I really don't believe he would ever have given me a full scholarship," Harmke said. "I think he was giving me just enough to keep me here."

"I'm not the kind of running back he was looking for in his offense. I run hard and like to block some people. I have OK speed and I'm not very flashy."

After the departure of Dorr and the arrival of new coach

Improved football team receives silent treatment from fans

Progress of a sort is being made in student participation at Saluki football games. More folks are sticking around for second half action instead of adjourning to the parking lot at halftime to tap the remaining kegs clean.

It's a start — though admittedly a modest one.

If Saturday's game is any indication, Saluki fans still prefer sitting on their hands than showing their support with a clap or a cheer.

Perhaps a bigger job than building a winning football team, a task first-year coach Rick Rhoades has found time containing with this particular group of athletes, is building a fan following that will encourage the Salukis.

From the press box

Bruce McCutcheon, assistant athletics director, makes the point that assembling viable fan support is a three-fold process.

"Get them through the gate," McCutcheon said. "Get them to stick around for the whole ball game. Finally, get them to take part."

Sounds easy, especially for a team that has a 3-1 record and won a Division I-AA national championship only five years ago. But for the athletics department, it has turned into a never-ending battle.

The estimated attendance for the home opener Sept. 17 was 12,000 — leaving room for another 5,300 at McAndrew Stadium. The draw for Saturday was only 9,700, but the low tote was blamed on rain. In the minds of McCutcheon and ticket manager Lee Trueblood, those numbers aren't discouraging. In fact, both said that minus Saturday's downpour, the attendance would have exceeded 12,000.

"I think we lost three or four thousand because of the rain," McCutcheon said. "There were periods of heavy rain during the game and the ones that were there hung tough with us."

Trueblood added that even though advance ticket sales haven't picked up — Saluki fans generally purchase seats no more than a couple of days before and then right up to kickoff — the home schedule is favorable.

The Oct. 15 game against Indiana State features the Great Saluki Tailgate. Northern Illinois offers an intrastate rivalry on Oct. 22, and Northern Iowa coach Earle Bruce should bring in some fans Nov. 19, even though school will not be in session.

So if awareness is not a problem, and neither is keeping fans in the stadium,
