Trustee resignations asked by Eckert

By David L. Mahsman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert, in a letter to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, has asked for the resignations of Board of Trustees members who the mayor says have violated the state open meeting law.

Eckert asked Ogilvie to investigate the alleged violations and take appropriate action against any Board members found to be in violation. Eckert wrote that he feels resignations would be the appropriate action.

According to an Ogilvie aide, the governor received Eckert's letter Wednesday and is expected to respond by mail late Wednesday night. A request for Board resignations is not anticipated, however.

Ogilvie shares the mayor's concern over the closed meetings, the aide said. But he added, "Our position is that it's not nearly so important to worry over spilt milk. It's more important to see that it (unlawful closed sessions) doesn't happen again. We can't open up a meeting already held."

The aide added that Ogilvie has been aware that the Board does hold meetings closed to the public and the press. The governor appointed Dr. Earl E. Walker of Harrisburg to the Board as his personal representative to see that the open meeting law is not violated, the aide said.

Walker reportedly said Tuesday that he discussed his concerns over the executive sessions with Eckert last week in Springfield. Both men agreed that students cannot be expected to conduct themselves responsibly if University policy makers themselves do not, the mayor said.

Walker said he will no longer attend closed Board sessions. He did not attend the Board's executive session Sept. 16 in Springfield, at which annexation of the SIU campus into the city was allegedly discussed.

Cost rises as president hunt goes on

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The question of who will be the next president of SIU at Carbondale and when he will be selected is still unsettled. The only developments have been an extension of services by the consulting firm hired to aid in the search and the rising cost that accompanies it.

Despite the time and money involved, SIU administrators say they are satisfied with the work of the Richard Quaintance and Associates, a Chicago-based consulting firm.

Ivan A. Elliott, trustee and chairman of the Board's presidential selection committee, says he is optimistic, but he declined to give any definite indications of the number of candidates being considered.

This, he said, would upset the confidential nature of the search.

The services of Quaintance and Associates have been extended beyond the original agreement for an amount not to exceed $3,000, in addition to expenses of not more than $2,500.

Originally the Quaintance firm's contract had said they would be retained at a fee not to exceed $13,000 for 30 working days of consultative work plus $2,500 in expenses following a two-week campus survey costing $2,000.

Elliott said the expense account allocated to Quaintance under the extension is in addition to the previous expense account. He said this would include expenses for some candidates being considered.

Is the search for a president and the services of Quaintance's firm costing too much?

"A fee was set for a shorter time initially and we hoped we could arrive at a decision within this time," Elliott said. "I know of no one who is dissatisfied with this extension, although we hoped it could be done sooner."

It may be necessary to extend the arrangement with Quaintance further, he said.

Elliott said he is satisfied with the performance of the firm. "The service of Quaintance and his associates has certainly been well worth every penny we have spent," he said.

The arrangement has turned out to be a "very workable procedure," he said, and "we don't regret it at all," Elliott said.

Women's lib child center noisy reality

By Pat Nussman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Women's Liberation-sponsored cooperative day care center opened at 7:30 Wednesday morning. Seven hours later the kids were still going strong, but the director was exhausted.

"It being the first day they don't want to do anything," Mrs. Mary McCauley said, a little wryly. "They just run around and scream—scream mostly."

The idea that became noisy reality in the basement of the Wesley Foundation Wednesday originated with the SIU Women's Liberation Front in January. Available child care facilities, Mrs. McCauley said, did not meet many parents' needs.

"Most parents had their children in day care centers in town where they don't have anything to say about the care they get," Mrs. McCauley said.

"We don't want to stay at home and vegetate," she said, "but we'd still like to say 'this is how we would like our child raised'."

The day care center is a cooperative venture, with each participating parent not only having a share in the say but also in the work.

Each parent contributes so many hours a week to helping with the children—whatever time they can spare, said Mrs. McCauley.

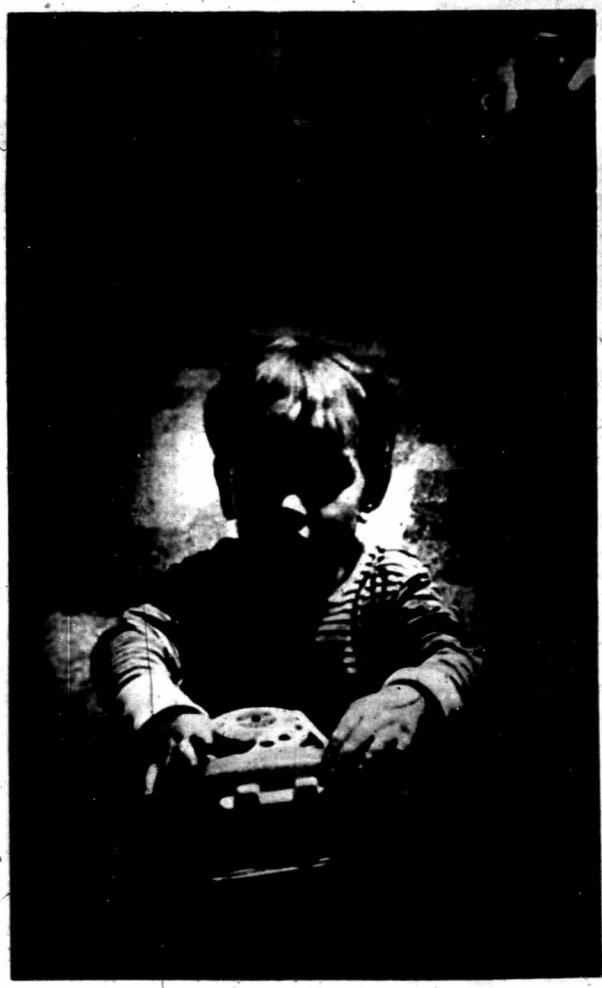

If the parents have an 8 to 5 job, they help out with the maintenance, buying or cooking. Each parent has to contribute, and, according to Mrs. McCauley, "they can't just dump them."

Presently, the center has 25 children, but that figure may eventually almost double, she believes.

Mrs. McCauley, however, doesn't want the population to go above 40, although the basement is licensed as a facility for 30 children. She doesn't think there should be any one large center, she said. The original plan called for a number of small ones.

Another center is in the process of being set up at Evergreen Terrace for younger children, since the Wesley nursery only takes children who are

This child seems more interested in the photographer than in any other aspect of the newly-opened day care center. But most of the children, says the director, spent the first day exploring and "running around and screaming." (Photo by John Lopinot)

Trustees' resignations requested

The closed session in Springfield was one of two such meetings cited by Eckert in his letter to Ogilvie. The other was a Board meeting this summer during which a proposed City-University Committee was allegedly discussed in closed session.

The Illinois closed meeting law, as amended in 1985, allows closed session only for discussion of personnel, land acquisition, pending court proceedings and campus security.

"Since my election in April, I have attended every open meeting of the Board of Trustees of SIU," Eckert wrote to Ogilvie. "It has been obvious to me that there have been many violations of the Illinois Open Meetings Law."

Walker said that he feels the Trustees are conscious of the law and would like to follow it, but added that members feel differently as to whether they can best serve SIU "by strict adherence to the law or by stretching the point."

Board Chairman Harold R. Fischer, of Granite City, said the Board discusses in closed session only those matters which legal counsel advises may be discussed legally. He added that there have been instances that items were to be discussed in closed session but were not, on the advice of legal counsel.

Eckert said Wednesday that he first became concerned about the closed sessions this summer. He envisioned that the city submitted a resolution asking for a joint City-University Committee for Board discussion. At the Board meeting, however, an entirely different resolution was ready and approved without discussion, Eckert said.

"Apparently this was discussed in closed executive session where we (the city) had no input," Eckert said. "I want to point out that we (the City Council) discussed this resolution in the open, in front of everyone."

Eckert said that SIU President Herbert Leyer told him the hearing on the City-University Committee was closed because it concerned personnel matters. Eckert said he rejects this argument.

Eckert said the "climaxing issue" came when he heard from several sources that the Board agreed in closed session not to raise the annexation question at its meeting Friday in Springfield.

"I expect that my letter (to Ogilvie) will have a very negative effect on annexation," Eckert said. "But it's important to point out that the city and University can never have a good relationship as long as their meetings are closed and ours are open."

The mayor said he did not wait to see if annexation is approved at the October Board meeting "because I don't think that would be fair. This issue is much more important to me than annexation."

"The decision to do this will probably hurt city-University relations in the short run, but it can only improve them in the long run—maybe not in my administration, but in the next one," Eckert said.

Carbondale City Manager William Schmidt said Wednesday that he is "real happy" at Eckert's decision to write the governor.

"I have no proof, but based on what I saw last Friday those Board meetings are a sham," Schmidt said. "At least the governor has responded and he isn't denying that it's going on. If I were a Board member, I'd be a little shaky right now. They can see that they may have lost their support from the top."

U.S. supports seating both Chinese lands

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States and 16 other countries Wednesday called on the General Assembly to seat Red China in the United Nations while permitting Nationalist China to remain.

The long-awaited resolution also proposed, as expected, that the Peking government should be given China's permanent seat in the Security Council, which carries with it the all-important veto power.

The action came simultaneously with a preliminary round of debate in the assembly's 25-nation steering committee in which Albania's vice minister of foreign affairs, Rets Malile, denounced the U.S. two China policy as an anti-Chinese maneuver.

Malile asserted that the U.S. resolution was intended to delay a solution of the 21-year-old controversy over who should occupy China's U.S. seat.

Malile spoke after U.S. Ambassador George Bush proposed the U.S. item and a rival proposal, sponsored by Albania and 16 other countries, be debated concurrently in the 230-nation assembly.

"We think it is clear," Bush said, "that the General Assembly will not wish to hold two separate debates."

Sponsors of the so-called Albanian resolution are seeking to seat Peking and at the same time expel the Chinese Nationalist delegation. There is only one China, Malile said.

Indian militants fight with police in office lobby

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indian militants fought with police in the lobby of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) office Wednesday as they tried to make a citizen's arrest of the agency's second-highest man who they claim is stifling reforms.

While negotiations were underway to bring militants together with the BIA hierarchy, police continued to isolate the protesters in a hallway at the bottom of the first-floor stairs. This apparently contributed largely to the melee.

Ted Means, an Ojibwa Sioux and brother of the man leading the demonstration, was thrown off the stairs by police as he attempted to reach the office of John O. Crow, deputy commissioner of BIA.

When he landed in the lobby with three or four building guards on top of him, several Indians lunged at the police and the fight was on.

The screaming, shouting, kicking and cursing continued for the next 15 minutes.

"Mr. Cooney worked his way through an incredible range of songs and instrumentals . . .

"Not only did he impress us with his versatility as a singer and instrumentalist and with his knowledge of American folk music, but also with his manner."

KENTISH TIMES (London, England)

"Michael Cooney . . . demonstrated the prime prerequisite for any good performer: he thoroughly enjoyed everything he did."

—PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

"Performers of traditional folk music stand out among the young urban folk singers. Around Boston there are some traditional artists, each grounded in a particular folk culture: Bluegrass, Ragtime, Blues, Country, Ballads, etc. More rare is the minstrel, such as Michael Cooney, whose field is the whole of American Folk Music."

"Michael is a pleasant young man with a friendly grin, and he quickly achieves rapport with his audience. In addition to thoroughly enjoying the music he plays, he also has unselfconscious scholarship in his approach."

"He is technically skillful . . . his (instrumental) arrangements are interesting while completely traditional and appropriate to the various kinds of songs they accompany. His blues . . . are imaginative as well as technically impressive."

Journalism threatened in California

Journalism's continual battle against abridgement of the rights guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution has been joined again, this time in California, a state known to journalists as a liberal one due to its "Shield Law." This statute, which immunizes from punishment a reporter who is attempting to protect his news sources, is backed by Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society. The statute adds to the First Amendment, which states in part that "Congress shall make no law...abridging the freedom of speech or of the press..."

In California, however, both the statute and the First Amendment have yielded to the anger of a judge who had been formerly rebuffed by a reporter. The judge is one Charles H. Older who last fall was refused the sources of a sensational news story by then Los Angeles Herald-Examiner reporter William Farr. Farr had obtained a jailhouse confession by one of the defendants in the Charles Manson "family" trial, and his paper had published it.

Judge Older, representing law and order, refused to allow his anger to abate, and last March, when Farr quit his reporting position to become press secretary to the Los Angeles District Attorney, Judge Older brought the full force of his authority (anger) to bear on the hapless journalist. Older ordered Farr once again to produce his sources for the edification of the court (Older), and once again Farr refused to cooperate. In retaliation, Older imprisoned Farr indefinitely until he agrees to reveal his sources for the now old Manson story. In doing so, Older contends that Farr is no longer a reporter and is thus not protected by the California shield law. Further, Older says that he is not really interested in punishing Farr, but that he wants to find out which of the six lawyers who served the Manson family were responsible for the leak to the press (Farr).

On his part, Farr says that three of the lawyers helped provide the confession transcript featured in the story, but he refuses to name them, contending that they would face perjury charges since each has already sworn that he was not the source for Farr's story.

Farr is being aided by Sigma Delta Chi, whose lawyers are preparing his appeal to a higher court. They are relying on an appellate court decision rendered in New York in the case of Caldwell vs. New York. In that case, Earl Caldwell, a New York Times reporter, was allowed to protect his sources for Black Panther news stories. And, of course, Sigma Delta Chi is bringing out the oft-used defense that if newsmen were forced to reveal their sources, those sources would soon disappear as people would lose faith in reporters.

On his part, Farr rightly insists that he will not recant, that he will stick to his stoic silence.

Farr, of course, is not the first reporter to risk jail for contempt of court by refusing to reveal news sources, nor will he be the last, even though his possible sentence, life imprisonment, may be the harshest to date.

Farr says he will appeal Older's decision to the Supreme Court if need be. "I have to oppose Older," Farr said last week. "It's a simple issue. What he is doing is a clear impingement on freedom of the press."

And Farr is absolutely right. For the courts to use reporters when they have so many other investigative agencies available to them is the height of democracy's bureaucratic absurdity. If a reporter can get information, then so can a court, so can the F.B.I., so can the California State Police, so can the governor of that illustrious state and Judge Older can get his information by some other means than by abridging the rights guaranteed by the California Shield Law and by the First Amendment to the Constitution of these our United States.

Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIALS—The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters on these pages. Editorials, labeled Opinion, are written and signed by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only.

LETTERS—Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which must be signed with name, classification and major or faculty rank, address and telephone number. Letters should be typewritten, and their length should not exceed 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are expected to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend on limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. Undated letters will not be accepted, and authorship of all letters must be verified by the Daily Egyptian. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other materials on pages four and five include editorials and articles reprinted from other publications, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles authored locally.

Letters to the editor

Of bras and catalogs

To the Daily Egyptian:

Some padded things are deceivers—witness many bras and all of the latest Undergraduate Catalogs of SIU.

In the listings of departmental personnel at SIU, from Accounting through Zoology, there are at least forty-eight individuals designated as emeritus and emerita. Not one of those forty-eight is on campus doing anything that merits inclusion in the current catalog.

Consider the Department of Clothing and Textiles. It lists a staff of seven, two (28 per cent) of whom are non-existent when it comes to giving courses and meeting student needs. Absentees also pad 28 per cent of the list of the Department of Food and Nutrition. Management manages to offer a faculty listing of which 16 per cent are nowhere in the world of the students. History, possessed of a penchant for dead past, lists one person who has been in his grave for months and months.

What does this listing of emeritus and emerita faculty add up to? Is it more of that abomination, SIU's conscious striving for bigness? Is it a studied deception, an effort to impress prospective students, many of whom do not know the meaning of emeritus and emerita?

We bellyache about "truth in packaging" as it applies to super markets. When will SIU indulge a little truth in packaging and drop all emeritus and emerita from the catalogs?

Orientation rapped

To the Daily Egyptian:

Last night a new crop of Southern's "most important products" were treated to the worst display of institutional orientation material in the history of this fine school. Billed as the "New Student Multi-Media Show," we viewed postage-stamp-size slides of the wonderful "sunlit" SIU campus and someone's old home movie in black and white, showing the finer things that Carbondale has to offer.

What a waste of time. Not that the city doesn't have any finer things, but that the University has again spared such little time, effort and money to orient those most closely concerned with the University—the students. The whole affair was as close to a multi-media show as trying to read Playboy and watch TV at the same time.

It is a real credit to a University that has its own film production department and many interested students and faculty within its own cinema and photography school that shows the piece of junk that we all saw last night. SIU must have looked, to those new students, like something they thought they had left behind—commonly known as a high school.

To the Daily Egyptian:

The World Service Coordinating Committee, with Dean John O. Anderson as chairman, has completed one year of its existence. It can look back with some satisfaction at the number of candles it lit, to combat the engulfing gloom of both man-made and nature-caused calamities.

The Book-Bank is our way of arming the forces of enlightenment to combat the powers of darkness typified by illiteracy. The developing nations, demand and deserve this kind of armament to buttress their up-hill fights for their legitimate and long-overdue place in the sun. We wish to acknowledge the fact that this effort in no way compromises our fight against poverty in our country. We feel that both the efforts are complementary in nature. If there is a single hungry and illiterate nation in the world, it would threaten the peace of the entire world. The same is true of segments of individual societies.

Last year we collected 4,000 books and sent them to Hanyang University, Seoul, Korea. This year we would like to send some books to one of the emergent countries of Africa, probably Uganda. We would like to have the complete cooperation of the academic community. If you have any books to share, textbooks of recent vintage and classics of all kinds, please send them over to the University Services to Carbondale Office, College Square "B" 511 South Graham.

Arrangements can also be made to pick them up at your place of residence.

The day youth siezed power

The innocent bystander

By Arthur Hays
Sulzberger

Once 18-year-olds had been given the right to vote, the grave question arose as where they ought to go to do it.

College students were the basic problem. Should they vote in the college communities where they lived nine months of the year? Or should they be required to vote at home, where their parents could give them a good talking-to on the way to the polls? Needless to say, virtually every public official over 30, from Attorney General Mitchell on down, favored the latter course. And there were dire predictions that in small college communities, students could actually take over the city government if allowed to vote locally.

But the courts—heaven help us all—ruled for some reason that students lived where they were living in a true house down by the beach. It was the direct of the dire predictions came true.

Typical, perhaps, was the case of the little town of Hopeville, home of Swarth University.

The university numbered 27,618 students, all of whom, according to the citizens of Hopeville were majoring in sex, drugs and treason.

Hopeville, on the other hand, mustered only 1214 registered voters, all of whom, according to the students, were engaged in conspiracy, price-fixing and persecuting the young.

Thus it was a bitter campaign between the incumbent mayor, Sewastore Sweeney, and 18-year old Fidel Blackensack. Naturally, Blackensack and his Youth Ticket were swept into office by a vote of 27,618 to 1214.

The residents of Hopeville immediately bolted their doors, barred their windows and waited to be murdered in their beds.

But nothing of the sort happened. Instead, Fidel and his young supporters held a triumphant session of the City Council. "At last we have the power to create the kind of community we've always wanted," crowed Fidel.

And, oh, they passed a lot of new laws. Like, man, they banned cars and provided free bicycles and planted flowers in all the vacant lots and held daily free concerts on Main Street and made littering a felony and said everybody could do anything they wanted as long as they didn't hurt anyone else and...

An editor's outlook

Gray area of academic freedom

By Judith Lloyd Jones
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Last year while driving around the gorgeous Hawaiian island of Kauai, I picked up a handsome, hairy gentleman and his pretty girl companion. They were barefoot, dressed in psychedelic jeans and wearing the requisite peace symbols.

He told me that he had rescued his friend from her "square" parents in Seattle, and that they were living in a tree house down by the beach. It was by this time obvious that the tree house was as close as they had got to the water.

The gentleman added that he was only three hours short of the requisite courses for a Ph.D. at UCLA, that after awhile he intended to finish it all up.

"And what will you do then?" I asked.

"Get a job in some college teaching philosophy," he replied with confidence.

And I'll bet he does.

I wonder what message he will bring to the often naive and inexperienced young men and women who will be sent by trusting parents to sit at his feet? There are those who say that is neither more nor the parents' business. Professors must have "academic freedom."

Pat Morganham, the Democrat who departed from comfortable Harvard to serve as an assistant to President Nixon, returned to the campus last winter to find himself sounding of a pariah.

In an interview with British journalist Harry Brown, Morganham recently said:

"A year ago the overwhelming majority of elite college students firmly believed that the government in Washington was carrying out a program of deliberate political murder against Black Panthers. They really believed it, although it was absolutely untrue..."

Morganham added that "there is an imbalance between the intellectual-academic-literary-media resources which the liberals have in this country against conservatives," that there is an "elitist minority holding disproportionate influence," and that it is characterized by a "near-loathing" for America.

Any "near-loathing" for America is not shared by the majority of Americans who must support the universities. When the fashionable thought in the faculty club moves too far away from the thoughts of taxpayers, legislators, alumni and general donors, the general reaction among the supporters is to offer less support.

This square is now being felt in many state and private colleges, to the detriment of professors who are not peddling ideological gimcracks, and who are attempting to interpret facts as wisely and well as they can.

The gray area in the matter of academic freedom is a broad one. You don't have too much trouble with the blacks and whites. Few people would maintain that no professor may transgress the collective sensibilities of the Rotary Club or the chamber of commerce. A college must always be willing to tread into new and (to some) fearful ground.

Well, after a few weeks, the citizens of Hopeville emerged cautiously from their homes to find a clean, beautiful, joyous, free-spirited community. To their surprise, they rather liked it.

"Confidentially," said ex-Mayor Sweeney, who was soon sporting a small beard, "what I like best is not having to worry about things going wrong."

And, of course, things did go wrong. The City Fire Department burned down and the City Sewer System backed up and the City Treasury, among other things, went dry.

(Of course, each student has a different idea about what should be done to remedy each crisis. So this required long, dull meetings that lasted for hours and hours and hours.

After six months, Fidel and the youthful fellow officials announced on mass that they were dropping out. A special election was called. Nobody ran for any office. The final results were 1214 write-in ballots for Fidel and 27,618 write-in ballots for Sweeney. So things returned to normal.

As Fidel said in his hour of happy defeat, "Creating ideal communities is one thing; city government is another."

Nor would even the American Asm. of University Professors defend a chemistry teacher who insisted that salt is a combination of hydrogen and oxygen, for this is demonstrably false.

But the professor who admires Marx and who draws his salary from the fruits of a democratic system in order to teach its destruction is certainly in a gray-black area. Even Harvard couldn't stomach it after Dr. Timothy Leary, the LSD guru, began to show his students how to freak out.

We move into the area of gray with the professor who teaches defiance of the draft. However sincere, he is attempting, in essence, to render indispensable a system from which he draws his paycheck and it could hardly be said that this is of no concern to the people who provide the pay.

A professor may personally believe in free love. But if he uses his classroom to promote this belief, what about the freedom of the overwhelming majority of parents who oppose free love to separate him from their payoffs?

There are no absolute freedoms. There are limits. And it is disturbing that among what Morganham calls the academic elite there may be an enthusiasm, not for freedom, but for the defense of a rigid "liberal" orthodoxy, and for the restriction, if not the freezing out, of any wrong thinkers on the faculty.

Academic freedom must be balanced with certain freedoms granted to those who build the walls on which the ivy hangs. One such freedom should be the right of parents to know that the professor who is purporting to teach their children philosophy hasn't just come from a stock up in a tree.

Farm group claims tax discriminates

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Agricultural Association, which claims to represent 195,000 Illinois farmers, filed a class action suit in U.S. District Court Wednesday seeking to end the state's personal property tax.

Named as defendants in the suit are Illinois State Treasurer Alan J. Dixon, along with all county treasurers and tax collectors.

The IAA, in its suit, claims that the personal property tax discriminates against property owners in favor of the poor. In addition, the IAA seeks a refund on personal property taxes paid by its members in 1970.

It was only Monday that State Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Lincoln, said he planned to submit a bill to the General Assembly designed to circumvent the recently reimposed tax. He said there is a need to find a constitutional way to abolish the personal property tax as it now stands.

In 1969, Gov. Ogilvie signed a bill which ended the tax for most individuals, but failed to do so for corporations in the state.

The law became effective this year.

A Circuit Court judge ruled last March that such an arrangement was unconstitutional on the grounds that it violated the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. The Illinois Supreme Court concurred.

The direct result of the court action was a directive by the Illinois Department of Government Affairs to county officials ordering them to make personal property assessments on both individuals and corporations.

House support this time?

Senate to urge troop withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Wednesday he is hopeful the House will support a new effort, due to be launched next week, to set a date for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

"The momentum is building up," the Montana Democrat told reporters.

The new amendment, expected to call for a total U.S. pullout in six months if American prisoners are freed, will be offered as an amendment to the measure authorizing funds for military hardware and research.

A previous amendment, carrying a nine-month deadline, was passed by the Senate 61 to 38 but rejected by the House. It was watered down in the newly passed draft bill to call on President Nixon to negotiate total U.S. withdrawal as soon as practicable.

Senate critics of major new defense weapons projects, meanwhile, launched their annual effort to cut the bill against the backdrop of a widely held view that such efforts would fail again.

In discussing the renewal of the fight by Senate war foes to force a deadline on President Nixon, Mansfield said details of his amendment would be discussed shortly.

Sources said the reduction from nine to six months would likely be made because three months have passed since the amendment was first approved.

First meeting set by society

The year's first session of the Shalom Society will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Davis Auditorium.

An organizational meeting is the first item on the agenda for the evening's activities, according to Al Landerman, spokesman for the club.

The Shalom Society is a non-religious, non-political organization formed to promote a better understanding of Israel and the Middle East.

"The Society will offer various speakers, films and classes throughout the year in an attempt to achieve this understanding," Landerman said.

OEO law office drops rent cases

The Legal Assistance Foundation of Southern Illinois, Inc., will no longer represent individual students in litigation involving disputes with landlords, Gary Kolb, director, said Wednesday.

Kolb said the action was taken because LAF is "overburdened" with cases and has only three lawyers for the two counties (Jackson and Williamson) for which it is responsible.

He said the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), which funds LAF, has issued a "mandate" directing LAF to concentrate its efforts in poor communities and that "It is time for the students and the university to cure their own problems."

"The poor people of this country have been getting screwed for 100 years and it's time we gave them some help," Kolb said. "We feel that most students can find for themselves."

Though individual students should expect to receive "nothing at all" in terms of material aid in landlord disputes, Kolb said that LAF will furnish legal advice to those with landlord problems.

LAF will also continue to work with student groups, such as the formative Student Tenant Union which is attempting to improve local housing, Kolb said.

LAF has received "no support at all" from most SU departments, Kolb said, nor have students shown much interest in the organization except when they needed help.

Local ROTC men attend summer camp

One student and four officers from the Air Force ROTC detachment at SIU attended the summer camp at Vandenberg Air Force Base, California, recently, Col. C.R. Carlson, commander of the local unit, said Wednesday.

The student was Victor Ricciotti, 22, of Oak Lawn, a senior in management.

In addition to Carlson, who served as summer camp commander, Maj. Milton Farquhar Jr., Capt. Kevin Terline and Capt. Charlie Chastain also attended the camp.

Enrolled in the camp for students going into two-year ROTC programs were over 500 students from 72 colleges in 35 states. The Vandenberg camp was designed for students interested in military careers, Carlson said.

Enforcement of parking laws to begin Oct. 4

By University News Service.

All motor vehicles parked on campus will be required to have a current parking decal properly displayed by Monday, Oct. 4, it was announced by Thomas L. Leffler, SIU Security Officer.

This announcement was contained in information on enforcement of parking regulations on the Carbondale Campus that included:

(a) Enforcement of overnight parking will begin Oct. 4. Numbers of overnight parking lots are 45 at Grand Avenue and Marion Street, 40 south of the Communications Building, 28 northwest of Small Group Housing, 30 northwest of Small Group Housing, and 40 south of the Baptist Foundation. All persons parking overnight must display the special red overnight parking decal.

(b) Vehicles with yellow registration decals are not authorized to park on campus lots until after 5 p.m. However, Blue Lot 6 is restricted to 11 p.m., Blue Lot 47 is restricted to 8 p.m., and Blue Lot 3 is restricted after 5 p.m. to intramural activities.

(c) The Student Center fee lot may be used by any person desiring to park there.

(d) The city metered parking lot north of Woody Hall recently has been converted to half-hour parking on the east side of the lot. The west side remains two-hour parking. This lot is not restricted to any type of parking decal.

Enforcement of all parking regulations will begin Oct. 4. However, such violations as parking on grass and blocking of fire hydrants, wheel chair ramps and driveways will be enforced at all times. Blue lots are restricted to vehicles with blue decals.

Layer tapped for board post

President Robert G. Layer has been named to the board of governors of the newly-formed Academic Affairs Conference of Midwestern Conference Universities, a branch of the Academic and Athletic Association of Midwestern Universities.

Other representatives from SIU are Isaac P. Brackett, system vice president at Carbondale, and Howard H. Olson, professor of animal industries, who both serve on the academic council of the association.

Foran says he'll run on integrity

CHICAGO (AP)—Thomas A. Foran announced Wednesday he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor in 1982 and said he could bring to that office more executive experience than any other candidate and "an enormous concern for integrity in high public office."

In an obvious reference to recent disclosures of politicians reaping huge profits in race track stock dealings, Foran said one of his prime concerns would be setting a tough conflict of interest law.

"Use of official position for personal aggrandizement should be made a crime," the 67-year-old former U.S. district attorney told a news conference.

With his wife and six children looking on the handsome protégé of Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley fielded a variety of questions on issues, his qualifications and the actual strength of his candidacy.

He dodged but one—if Mayor Daley asked him to run for Cook County state's attorney instead of governor, would he do it?

"I'm flattered to be told I'm a great candidate for state's attorney, and a great candidate for attorney general," Foran said. "But I'm also a great candidate for governor."

Jury out one hour

Medina found not guilty

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP)—Capt. Ernest Medina, the career officer who commanded U.S. troops at My Lai in 1968, was acquitted Wednesday of all charges arising from the operation.

The jury of five Vietnam veteran officers deliberated for about an hour before acquitting the captain of murder, involuntary manslaughter and assault.

The verdict was read by the jury president, Col. William D. Proctor, of Atlanta as Medina stood at stiff attention before the jury with his lawyers.

"It is my duty as president of this court to advise you that the court in closed session and upon secret written ballot, has found you not guilty of all specifications and charges," Proctor said.

Medina, 35, a slight smile on his face, snapped a smart salute to the jury, made an about-face, and resumed his seat at the defense table.

At the reading of the verdict, there were several loud gasps among the spectators.

Medina's attractive blonde wife, dressed in a bright orange dress, burst into tears and raised her head on the shoulder of a man sitting beside her. She raised her hands to her face and wept at the tears.

Col. Kenneth Howard, the military judge, in an attempt to restore quiet to the courtroom, looked toward the spectators and said, "There will be no outbursts in this courtroom."

Medina sat without expression as Howard dismissed the jury.

N. Viets, Cong call off parlays to protest ...

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam is calling off this week's session of the Vietnam peace talks as "an energetic protest against the Nixon administration's acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam on Sept. 21."

On that day American fighter-bombers launched 200 combat strikes against targets inside North Vietnam, blaming an increase in North Vietnamese antiaircraft attacks on reconnaissance planes.

The Viet Cong followed North Vietnam's lead in canceling Thursday's session and both delegations tried to reschedule the next talks for Sept. 30.

But American and South Vietnamese officials gave notice that while the Communist side could cancel any meeting it could not reschedule one without Washington and Saigon approval.

This raised the possibility Wednesday night that the conference might not reconvene until Oct. 7, four days after the one-man presidential election in South Vietnam.

The U.S. delegation said: "Our policy with regard to the protection of reconnaissance aircraft and U.S. forces as they withdraw from South Vietnam has been clearly stated. The other side is well aware of this policy. We hope the other side will use this interlude to seek instructions permitting them to abandon their propaganda posture and get down to work at these meetings."

The South Vietnamese delegation said it explored the decision to cancel the meeting, but added, "We would like to stress that for several weeks the North Vietnamese have intensified their military preparations just north of the demilitarized zone while Communist forces have considerably stepped up their activity in the zone, seriously threatening the security of adjoining provinces of the Republic of Vietnam..."

... attacks by Yanks near DMZ

SAIGON — American bombers and warships pounded the southern half of the demilitarized zone Wednesday, keeping up pressure on North Vietnamese troops and supplies.

Thailand-based B-52 bombers and smaller tactical bombers joined planes from a U.S. carrier in the Tonkin Gulf in striking at rocket sites and storage depots in the DMZ and targets along the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in Laos.

Like the massive U.S. strikes in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam Tuesday, the latest raids were aimed at smashing a North Vietnamese buildup and supply movement before the monsoon rains arrive in about 10 days.

The U.S. Command said it still had no assessment of the damage inflicted by 200 bombing strikes Tuesday that ranged 25 miles above the DMZ.

The command denied a Hanoi radio claim that two U.S. planes were shot down and many others were damaged. A command spokesman, Maj. Robert O'Brien, said all planes returned safely to bases and none sustained damage.

Hanoi called the air strikes a "serious menace" to the peace talks carried on weekly in Paris. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations in Paris, as a way of protesting the attacks, called off Thursday's scheduled talks.

Stolen statue recovered

One of the two carved wood statues stolen from Morris Library sometime late last week was returned to library officials Wednesday morning.

Officials still have little of an idea as to when or how the two 60-pound statues were removed from the library.

Sidney Matthews, assistant director of Morris Library, said Wednesday that a woman whom he did not identify, came to him and said one of the statues was in her apartment.

The woman told him, Matthews said, that her roommate's boyfriend had given the statue to her roommate as a gift to decorate the woman's new apartment.

Matthews and a member of the library staff went to the woman's apartment to recover the statue.

Ferris S. Randall, director of the library, said no charges would be brought against the woman. But the boyfriend of the woman's roommate is being sought. The woman who informed Matthews about the statue would not give the man's name.

A civil service worker for the library Wednesday offered a possible explanation of how the statues might have been stolen.

Carl Robinson, of Carbondale, said that library doors are locked at 5:15 p.m. and that book checkers stationed in front of the doors go off duty at 5 p.m. Whoever took the statues might have been able to do so within this 15-minute period.

Matthews said, however, that checkers are not supposed to go off duty until all doors have been locked. But the checkers might have gone off duty early, Matthews said.

The library officials still do not know definitely when the statues were stolen. The statues were reported missing Friday.

Fred Meyer, a native of Franklin County and coal miner, carved the four statues from blocks of walnut while he worked for the University museum sometime during the 1930's.

Request denied

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court Wednesday denied a request by a group of northern Illinois farmers to halt construction of the East-West Tollway to be extended from Aurora to Rock Falls until the environmental impact of the road is assessed by proper state agencies.

The petitions for a writ of mandamus to enjoin the Illinois Toll Highway Authority from continuing its condemnation of land along the proposed route claimed the action was a violation of the state Environmental Protection Act.

Group plans guidelines for renters

A tenant's handbook soon will be issued as an insert in the Daily Egyptian, Jim Stortz, one of the handbook's compilers, said Tuesday.

It will be loosely patterned after The Tenant's Handbook published this spring by the Daily Illini at the University of Illinois, Stortz said.

The handbook will include a list detailing items a prospective tenant should check before renting a room, apartment or house. It also may include a sample check-in sheet, to be used for the tenant's protection, said Stortz.

Laws of the city, county and state regarding habitable housing also may be included, plus some basic legal advice relating to the signing of leases and contracts.

Plans now call for personal experiences of local people and students with regard to housing to be included in the handbook. Stortz said some students were willing to contribute material for the handbook, but backed down under pressure from their landlords.

Stortz said that the Student Tenant Union, which he is helping to organize, hopes to conduct and publish a survey of local housing by spring.

Those wishing to contribute to the manual, sponsored by student government, can contact Stortz at the student government offices on the second floor of the Student Center.

Free horseback riding offered

Sahaki Stables is offering a free ride to all SIU students, beginning next Monday and continuing through Friday, George Canille, student body president, said Wednesday.

Student government will sponsor the five days of free horseback rides at the stables, located on Chautauque Street in southwest Carbondale. Hours at the stables are 1-4 p.m.

Twenty horses will be available to students, according to Lynne Lowman, a sophomore from Carbondale in outdoor education and an employee at the stables.

MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF THE UNIVERSITY SENATE (PROVISIONAL)

Carbondale - August 23, 1971

The meeting of the University Senate (Provisional) was called to order by President William E. Simons at 7:00 p.m. on Monday, August 23, 1971, in room 101 of Lawson Hall. The secretary called the roll and the following members were present:

The following members were absent and not represented by proxy: Glenn Beckheim, Ross J. Fligor, Donald Gladson, Lonnor Johns, Rex Kernes, Jim Peters, Dan S. Ramey, Bill Steele, Dean Stuck, Don Ward, Raymond Yarbrough.

Agenda Item No. 1: Minutes of the meeting of July 26, 1971.

The minutes of July 26, 1971, were considered and were approved by motion, properly seconded and approved.

Agenda Item No. 2: Report of the Governance Committee.

Mr. Lewis moved for the Governance Committee and reported approval of a resolution concerning the submission of governance documents to the Board of Trustees.

BE IT RESOLVED by the University Senate in regular meeting assembled, that the Senate requests the chancellor to submit to the Board of Trustees for its formal consideration and action the proposed amendments to the Board Bylaws and statutes, providing for recognition of campus governance structures.

2. The Governance Document of the University Senate.

3. The Bylaws of the University Senate.

Mr. May seconded the motion. Chancellor Layer explained the recent Board action in placing campus governance in the hands of the chief official of the campus, who will be called the President after September 1. Chancellor Layer replied to questions.

Mr. Kenney moved that the Senate proposal be amended by striking the word Chancellor in the second line of the resolution and all words thereafter and substituting therefor the words "President designate to recognize the University Senate as the official campus governance system of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale." The motion was seconded by Mr. Nelson. After discussion, it was approved by a division of 34 to 1 with 3 abstaining. The original motion was then approved by division of 34 to 2 with 4 abstaining.

Mr. Lewis then moved for the Governance Committee a resolution concerning changes in the Campus Governance System document as follows:

BE IT RESOLVED, by the University Senate in regular meeting assembled that the following amendments in the Campus Governance System documents are hereby authorized and made, and the secretary of the Senate is authorized to print and reprint the documents as amended as follows:

1. The title of the document entitled "Campus Governance System" is hereby amended to read: CAMPUS GOVERNANCE SYSTEM Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

2. The words "Chancellor" or "Chancellor's" are deleted in all places where the same appear in the Campus Governance System documents and there is hereby inserted in lieu thereof the words "President" or "President's" in all places as are appropriate.

3. The last sentence of Section E. 2. (a) is amended to read as follows: "This period will be taken to be four weeks unless otherwise specified by the Executive Committee of the University Senate, provided, however, that the time specified by the Executive Committee shall not be less than four weeks."

4. Section H of the Campus Governance documents relating to the amending procedure is amended by adding the following sentence: "Amendments shall be effective when approved by the President of the University."

The motion was seconded by Mr. Canille and discussed. It was approved on division 38 to 0.

Mr. Lewis then requested approval by the Senate for immediate consideration of a motion concerning deletion of reference from the Campus Governance System document to action by the Board of Trustees upon action by the Senate in overriding votes by the President of Senate actions. By motion and second, the Senate agreed to hear the resolution immediately. Mr. Lewis then moved approval of the resolution as follows:

BE IT RESOLVED, by the University Senate in regular meeting assembled that Article E2(c) in the Campus Governance System document is amended by striking therefrom the words, "and if the proposal is not disapproved by the Board of Trustees by its second regular meeting following receipt of the proposal."

The motion was seconded by Mr. Canille, discussed and approved by division 31 to 1 with 1 abstaining.

Mr. Lewis then moved that the Senate reconsider to the Faculty constituency that it accept the title Research Associate. The motion was seconded and discussed. It was approved by division 33 to 0 with 5 abstaining.

Mr. Lewis then moved for the Governance Committee that the functions of the present Faculty Planning Committee for Environmental Sciences be reassigned to the Campus Planning Committee of the University Senate. The motion was seconded by Mr. May and discussed. It was then approved by division of 31 to 3 with 4 abstaining.

Mr. Lewis then informed the Senate for the Governance Committee that he would, at a subsequent meeting, move a resolution that the Campus Athletic Committee be designated as a subcommittee of the Senate's Campus Management Committee.

Agenda Item No. 3: Statement on War in Viet Nam.

The Senate next considered a statement on the war in Viet Nam previously circulated. Mr. Stibitz moved that the matter be tabled until the Senate's next meeting. The motion was seconded and discussed. It failed in a division of 12 to 25 with 1 abstaining.

Mr. Stortz moved approval of the statement as a resolution as follows:

The fact that the University Senate was formed only this year, and has had opportunity to consider sensitive matters only recently, accounts for this resolution appearing so belatedly. Nevertheless, the Southern Illinois University Senate, representing, though not speaking for, the entire University community of faculty, students, non-academic workers, administrators, and alumni, wishes to issue this resolution:

That it considers the American role in the continuation of the Indo-China War as abhorrent and reprehensible.

That it urges an immediate termination of the American withdrawal of American armament, material, and men from Viet Nam, Cambodia, and Laos; and finally,

That our Illinois representatives in the state and federal legislatures be notified of this resolution.

The motion was seconded and discussed. Chancellor Layer moved deletion of the first sentence and the first word of the second sentence. The motion was seconded by Mr. Catesane, discussed and approved 14 to 10 with 11 abstaining.

Mr. Snyder moved that the resolution as amended be further amended by deleting all words from the start through the word "alumni" with the substitution therefor of the words "The members of the Southern Illinois University Senate at Carbondale, sitting as an ad hoc committee of the whole." The motion was seconded by Mr. Lewis. After discussion, it failed to win approval by a division of 13 to 15 with 9 abstaining.

Mr. Wood moved to table the motion. His motion was seconded and failed to win approval by a division of 16 to 16 with 4 abstaining. After further discussion of the main motion, Mr. May moved that the vote upon it be by roll call. The motion was seconded and approved by division of 27 to 1 with 9 abstaining. On the main motion, the roll call vote was 13 aye, 19 no and 6 voting present.

Agenda Item No. 4: Other Business.

Mr. Schoep informed the Senate that he intended to present at a subsequent meeting a resolution to the effect that the University Board of Trustees should be elected rather than appointed and that if the Senate should agree, he would move that his recommendation be forwarded to the General Assembly.

Mr. McGuire moved that in the By-laws of the Senate all references to the "Chancellor" and "Chancellor's" be changed to "President" and "President's." The motion was seconded and unanimously approved.

Agenda Item No. 5: Announcements.

The Chair announced that the Senate's Vice President, Mr. Nellius, was no longer on the campus and that the election of a Vice President would take place at the next meeting of the Senate. The Chair also announced that he has urged all constituencies to provide for the election of new senators in October. He also announced that internship applications are presently being considered by the Governance Committee.

Agenda Item No. 6: Date of the next meeting. Mr. Kenney moved that the next meeting of the Senate occur on the first Monday in October at 7:30 p.m. in Lawson 101 if the space is available. The motion was seconded and approved.

Agenda Item No. 7: Adjournment.

It was moved and seconded that the Senate adjourn. The motion was seconded and at 9:25 p.m. the Senate adjourned.

Living costs, wages rise in August before freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both living costs and wages went up in August, but the government said that the rise in wages was not as big as the rise in living costs before President Nixon's wage-price freeze in mid-month.

Over-all prices of food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care and recreation rose three-tenths of one per cent, about in line with average monthly increases this year, the Labor Department said.

Average wages of some 45 million rank-and-file workers rose 2 cents an hour to $9.44 and $9.45 a week to $29 a week in August, and purchasing power edged up within five-tenths of one per cent of the record high of 1968, the report said.

"We think that the wage-price freeze is having an effect and is having a positive effect," said White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. He added it is too early to judge the total impact.

Secretary of Labor J.D. Hodgson and Geoffrey Moore, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics that compiles the reports, said they had no way of telling from the figures whether there was any price or wage cheating after the freeze was imposed Aug. 15.

But Hodgson said the Internal Revenue Service is monitoring prices for possible violations.

"There has been really a pretty massive showing of voluntary compliance," Hodgson said, adding that of 9,000 complaints so far—mostly involving prices—companies have been ordered to rescind increases in some 3,500 cases.

The House Ways and Means Committee meanwhile took what may be a preliminary step toward providing more tax breaks for individuals by cutting in half a prospective $5.6-billion tax reduction for business.

The committee action amounted to $1.7 billion the first-year benefits involved in a system of allowing business to depreciate property for tax purposes, as much as 20 per cent faster than under present rules.

The August price hikes pushed the Consumer Price Index up to 132.2, meaning that it cost $12.22 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases in the 1967 base period. The sharpest rise was a 2.7 per cent hike in gasoline prices, largest in more than a year.

Hodgson said Nixon's Cost of Living Council set up to monitor the freeze has no plans to roll back large wage hikes negotiated just before the freeze was imposed, such as the AFL-CIO Communications Workers' contract covering some 500,000 telephone workers.

The report said, fruits and vegetables dropped 1.9 per cent in August. Fresh fruits, vegetables and eggs are not covered by the freeze.

"Beef prices increased less and pork prices more than they usually do," the report said. "Egg prices rose less than usual."

Mortgage interest rates, and property taxes, which are not frozen, both rose in August.

Senators seek student aides

Persons interested in serving as aides to student senators this quarter may contact Jeanie Cochran, west side non-dorm senator, at the student government office in the Student Center, 536-2341.

Aides are needed to assist the senators with legislation, with liaison and in the Senate meetings. Miss Cochran said.

Back on the beam

Tom Scheithe, senior in radio-TV from Elgin, is at the controls as program director of WIDB (800 KH) which is back in operation in the basement of Wright Hall serving on-campus dormitories. The all-volunteer staff of the carrier current station announced a daily broadcast schedule which begins at 6:45 a.m. and ends at 2 a.m. on weekdays and at 4 a.m. on weekends—15 minutes earlier and an hour later than in the past. WIDB broadcasts music, news, weather and sports and will feature a talk show, "Anodyne," at 10 p.m. Mondays. (Photo by John Burningham)

Make love, not babies..

U. S. males rushing to vasectomy clinics

CHICAGO (AP) — Make love, not babies.

This seems to be the attitude of the modern American male.

The number of men undergoing vasectomy, the male sterilization operation, has shown a "sensational increase" recently, says John R. Rague, executive director of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization in New York City. He estimated 750,000 American males had vasectomies in 1970. That's up from an estimated 200,000 the year before.

Rague predicted that the 1971 figure will be even greater than 1970's.

So far, an estimated three million men in the United States have had sterilization surgery—a simple procedure, often done in the doctor's office in a few minutes.

In India, where reduction in the birth rate is a major concern, an estimated 8.2 million men have been sterilized. In Great Britain some 20,000 men underwent vasectomies last year and it is estimated the figure will be double for 1971.

Rague said his association offered $50,000 in October 1969 to any New York hospital which would open a vasectomy clinic. The offer was not taken. The money went to the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau, which did open such a clinic.

Since then, Rague said, 154 vasectomy clinics have opened in 36 states. Among them are 62 hospitals which do vasectomies in their outpatient departments.

Rague, along with medical authorities, attributes the recent upsurge in requests for male vasectomies to fears about possible adverse side-effects from the contraceptive pills taken by women.

There is also, he said, "a finer understanding of human sexuality, especially among the young," so that males are willing to take responsibility for preventing pregnancy.

And "the Puritanism which has been a strong influence in the development of the United States" has been declining during the past decade, especially among those under age 30, Rague said.

An obstacle to male sterilization has been the popular misconception that the operation makes the man less masculine, less able to perform sexually.

This is untrue.

A survey by the Association for Voluntary Sterilization of 25,000 men who had had vasectomies found that 65 per cent of the men felt that their sexual performances were better, 13 per cent felt it was about the same, and 2 per cent felt that it had declined.

In the last group, Rague noted the aging process could have been a factor.

The male sterilization operation is much simpler and less expensive to perform than that for females, which requires hospitalization. Vasectomies are performed under local anesthetic, with little or no pain.

Vasectomy interrupts the flow of sperm into the ejaculatory system. The sperm, which are microscopic in size, continue to be manufactured, but they deteriorate and are absorbed with no danger to the body.

Bishops meet in Rome to discuss celibacy

NEW YORK (AP) — On touchy problems, the Roman Catholic Church edges up on them, by stops and starts, by pulling back, then moving ahead again, by partial, tentative steps that often eventually become the norm.

That pattern was discernible this week as the Church's leaders prepared to gather in Rome for an international Synod of Bishops beginning next Thursday.

They'll take up, for full-scale analysis, a bristling subject that until recently was banned from their official discussion—the requirement of celibacy for priests.

Although Pope Paul VI has authorized consideration only of the possibility of ordaining some married men in areas of acute need, taking up that limited aspect, in effect, opens up the whole celibacy question. This now is the chief prospect, as urged by several national hierarchies, including those of Canada, Japan, the Netherlands, and as highlighted in preparatory studies made for U.S. bishops.

Only last year, after the Dutch bishops called for a full airing of the topic, Pope Paul issued a letter, saying priestly celibacy is an essential law of the Church and "it cannot be subjected to argument."

But as ferment over the matter swelled, he tempered his stand to make room for bringing up the subject under the question of whether to permit, in special circumstances, ordination to the priesthood of some married men.

If this is done, as is widely expected, it still wouldn't give already ordained priests the option to marry, nor would it allow those who have left the ministry to marry the right to return to it.

But it would be a related step in that direction. And this is the way, by cautious, limited adjustments that the Church often gets where it is going.

As a recent example, when the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65 authorized the ordaining of married men as permanent deacons, a rank just below the priesthood, it was done to meet particular shortages of clergy in Asia and Africa.

But within three years, U.S. bishops had gained permission to institute the practice in this country—and they now have a bigger program for ordaining married deacons than the areas for which it was first intended.

Greeting visitors can be eye-opening

By University News Services

Meeting people from around the world is "eye-opening," says a student who hosts international visitors on their official and semi-official visits to the campus.

"It's an old cliché, that people are the same all over the world, but this feeling is more real and personal now," said James Fann, a senior majoring in interior design and student worker at the International Center.

The job has given him more interest in learning other cultures and meeting people as they are, and has helped him broaden his views, Fann said.

Language barrier does not always build a thick wall to get in the way, said the 25-year-old student from Ferguson, Mo.

"Sure, it is difficult and sometimes impossible to get any abstract idea across without speaking a common language, but you can always tell their friendliness by watching their expressions or behavior," he said.

Fann said he enjoys the work because it not only gives him a chance to meet lots of people he would not have met otherwise, but also because it helps him know more about his own school.

"In a big university, you seldom have a chance to really know how a university operates, what departments we have and what they do. But my job involves making contacts with various departments of interest to visitors, and as a result I have come to know a little more about the school outside of my own major field," said Jim.

While the visitor is on campus, Fann sees to it that the planned schedule is running "fairly on time," and the visitor satisfied.

The knack of arranging a schedule, according to Fann, is not to overtime the visitor, who usually is travelling throughout the United States on an extremely tight schedule.

"Some visitors stop at SIU during their inspection-tour of many other colleges in the country, and so much of what they see and do may be duplicated, in such case, we not only do the best we can to help them attain their visiting objectives, but also try to show them some unique aspects of the University here," he said.

Working 30 hours a week at the International Center and carrying more than 17 hours of coursework does not seem to seriously affect much of his other interests. The treasurer of SIU's sailing Club, Fann has made the Deans' List twice during his two quarters at SIU. "I had four years of college elsewhere, majoring in business. I also worked in a couple of companies before I realized that I was really interested in interior design. So I transferred some of my credit and came to Southern in January of 1970," he explained.

Attica disturbance precedes rash of prison uprisings

By the Associated Press

There has been a rash of prison disturbances in scattered areas of the country since the Attica uprising and officials said Wednesday that some of the trouble was linked to the riot at the New York facility.

The Attica riot "could have given some of the inmates an idea," said Sheriff Clarence Jones in Dallas where prisoners in the jail atop the country courthouse staged a two-hour uprising Tuesday night.

Authorities estimated up to 500 of the jail's 1,600 inmates participated in the disturbance which saw prisoners burning mattress covers and paper and breaking windows. Spokesmen for the prisoners were quoted as saying they wanted to call attention to grievances involving restriction of visitors, medical attention and searches of their cells.

Officials at other institutions noted prisoners read newspapers and watched television accounts of the four-day Attica riot that ended Monday, Sept. 13, when state troopers and other officers rushed a cellblock held by about 1,200 rebellious inmates. Ten prison employees being held hostage by the inmates and 30 prisoners were killed.

"There's tension in all prisons as the result of San Quentin and Attica," said Allen L. Robbins, warden of the Maine State Prison.

Three guards and three inmates were killed at the California prison Aug. 21 in what officials said was an escape attempt by one of the victims, Soledad Brother George Jackson. The family of the black militant contends he was murdered by guards. Officials say a gun was smuggled into the prison to Jackson and he was shot down while attempting to escape.

Robbins said a "large majority of the prison's 330 inmates went on a hunger strike Sunday night demanding changes in kitchen procedures. The peaceful strike ended Tuesday. Robbins said, adding that some changes will be made, including allowing the inmates to elect an advisory council."

At the Fulton State Hospital in Fulton, Mo., three inmates took a woman psychologist hostage Monday threatening to kill her unless they were provided with a car and access to the outside. Dr. George W. Chase, another psychologist who tried to come to the aid of hostage Kay Mohatt, was clubbed by the trio and killed. The inmates finally surrendered to hospital officials and were charged with first-degree murder.

Dr. Donald Peterson, the hospital supervisor, said all the patients had access to television and he was sure they had watched the proceedings at Attica.

The first of the Attica-linked disturbances occurred at the Baltimore City Jail less than 24 hours after the New York uprising was quelled.

About 200 of the prison's 1,200 inmates hurled trays in the cafeteria, broke windows and tried unsuccessfully to take a guard hostage. Police used tear gas to break up the riot.

"To my knowledge the only cause was the thing at Attica," said Deputy Warden Howard B. Parks immediately after the trouble. "It's a wonder it's not more widespread throughout the country."

Elsewhere, 66 inmates of the Federal Women's Reformatory at Alderson, W. Va., were transferred Tuesday to a federal institution for youths at Ashland, Ky., after a four-day demonstration that started last Tuesday as a memorial service for dead inmates at Attica. Roy Gerrard of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons said most of those transferred "were involved in stirring up some tensions."

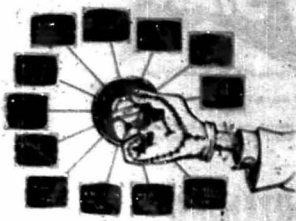

There were minor disturbances last week at two New York State Prisons, both believed to be related to tension on the part of guards and inmates. The trouble occurred at Meadow State Prison at Comstock and Clinton State Prison in Dannemora. Neither incident was serious.

Racetrack executives say state takeover unnecessary

CHICAGO (AP) — Executives of three major Chicago area racetracks said Wednesday the Illinois Racing Board, through diligent regulation, can keep racing honest without a state takeover of the sport.

Robert Carey, general manager of Hawthorne racetrack in suburban Cicero said, "There is nothing wrong with racing. Most of the problems occurred before 1980 when Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie appointed a new board."

Ogilvie this week suggested that racetrack operations might be taken over by the state or be banned in Illinois altogether because of recent disclosures of close ties between leading politicians and racetrack stock ownership.

"This problem can be handled through a diligent racing board which is now regulating racing," said Jack Lonne, executive director of Arlington Park and Washington Park racetracks. "The board now makes full disclosures of ownership a prerequisite of getting racing dates."

Carey and Lonne were cool to Ogilvie's suggestion and said a move of that sort could reduce the $46 million annual revenue the state reaps from racetracks.

Since 1941 when a tax was placed on horse betting, Illinois has collected more than $661.6 million from racetracks. Last year the tax brought $46.1 million into state coffers, a figure which is expected to be increased by $4 million this year.

In other racetrack developments, a citizens group claimed Wednesday that the Cook County assessor's office has been giving tax benefits to the five Chicago area racetracks.

The report, turned over to State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan said the office of Assessor P.J. Cullerton has failed to update its records and take note of recent construction at Arlington Park, Hawthorne, Sportsman's Park, Washington Park and Maywood Park.

As a result, said the Citizens Action Program which conducted the probe, it may have cost the public $1 million in 1979 alone. The group said, more than $4.5 million worth of improvements were ignored at Washington, Sportsman, Arlington and Hawthorne by Cullerton's office.

It also charged that a $10 million hotel at Arlington Park was assessed at $2.1 million and that new grandstands costing $4.9 million at Maywood Park were assessed at only $1,017,596.

walking. However, the proposed crib nursery will be only for Evergreen Terrace children.

Part of the philosophy of the present facility is that the children should not be forced into an activity that reinforces sex roles. For instance, girls will not be encouraged to play with dolls unless they express a desire to do so.

The center will have a variety of other activities such as drama, art, dancing, music and story-telling, but no child will be forced to engage in any activity.

The center charges $10 per month per child for the food and utilities. It is also partly supported by donations and the university.

Mrs. McCauley is the only paid staff. She works full-time and is paid $125 a month—"that's all we could afford," she said.

She said she got involved in the project because she doesn't want to "vegetate" around home and she wants her children involved in a cooperative-type center.

For the past few days, at least, she hasn't vegetated. There were numerous meetings every night (until late, she said, and last minute things to do in opening the center. "I haven't had much sleep for a few days," she admitted.

In the application parents filed out, a number of them stated that the children would be there just in the afternoon. It turned out that most of them brought the children before dinner, which had not been planned for a large group.

"But at least we weren't understaffed," she said. "Because a lot of people came in and helped who weren't scheduled for today."

BSU will hold black orientation

Black students, faculty and staff members are invited to attend "Black Student Orientation," in the Student Center Ballrooms at 1 p.m. Saturday, according to Jon Taylor, Black Student Union chairman.

Taylor said that the black orientation will be a supplement to the general orientation for new black students.

"We are convinced that when black students come to the University they are oriented in general with the total SIU population, consequently, they are slow to find out what is really going on in the community and who the people are that can really help them in time of trouble," Taylor said.

"We plan to introduce to these people the full scope of the black experience at SIU," he said.

Indo-American group to host Gandhi dinner

The Indo-American Friendship Association will sponsor a movie and dinner Oct. 2 to highlight the 100th birthday of M. K. Gandhi.

The Indian dinner will be served at 5:30 p.m. in the Wesleyan Foundation and will consist of choice dishes from India.

The movie, "Charulata," will be shown in the Morris Library at 8 p.m. It is based on a story by Rabindranath Tagore, Asia's first noble laureate in literature. The movie was directed and created by India's master film director, Satyajit Ray.

The Indo-American Friendship, which was organized summer quarter, strives to bring about a healthy creative and meaningful understanding between the students whose national origins are in the Indian Sub-Continent and their American counterparts.

Orientation speakers will be Walter G. Robinson, director of Black American Studies; and Dr. James Turner, director of African Studies at Cornell University. The Katherine Dunham Dance Troupe from East St. Louis will perform.

"This orientation is geared to get people acquainted with each other and find out anything they want to know about the University as it relates to black students," Taylor said.

The orientation is first in a series of events sponsored by the Black Student Union this quarter. The next activity will be the Second Annual Hodari (awareness) Convention to be held in October, Taylor said.

Book acquisitions down for library

Morris Library acquisitions were substantially lower for the 1970-71 fiscal year than for the preceding year.

According to Ferris S. Randall, director of Morris Library, the library acquired 136,626 items this past year compared to the 170,000 items added during the 1969-70 fiscal year. Approximately 25,000 to 40,000 of the 1969-70 acquisitions were for the undergraduate library which was opened Wednesday.

The library's total holdings are now at 1,400,535 volumes.

Randall said, basing his statement upon 1969-70 figures, that Morris Library ranked 12th among 76 major research libraries in the number of volumes added, but 36th in total expenditures and 44th in total holdings.

Prof Joiner will promote joint research

Lee M. Joiner, associate professor of special education, will leave Wednesday to attend a meeting at Adam Michalczewski University in Poznan, Poland.

Joiner hopes to promote cooperative research on the handicapped between the Polish and American governments, Joiner said.

Joiner said he was not sure about the type of research that would be conducted by the two countries concerning the handicapped because he isn't fully informed about the problems of the handicapped in Poland.

Joiner speculated that SIU may get involved in the joint research effort. He said there may be an exchange program set up between SIU and Adam Michalczewski University.

He said that SIU computers may analyze the data derived from the joint research.

Joiner also said nonverbal testing procedures may be agreed upon for a topic of research.

In 1968 Joiner went to Warsaw,

Lee M. Joiner

Poland, to talk at a World Health Organization (WHO) meeting. There he presented his theories on how to aid the deaf.

Joiner received his B.S. degree in 1967 from the State University of New York with a major in general education, his M.S. in 1968 from the City College of New York with a major in special education and his Ph.D. from Michigan State University in 1963 with a special education research concentration.

Morris will receive award from Kiwanians

Delyte W. Morris, retired president of SIU, will receive a distinguished service award from the Carbondale Kiwanis Club Oct. 1, at a public dinner.

The event will take place at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom.

The award will be presented by Floyd P. Cunningham, former chairman of the Department of Geography and a charter member of the Carbondale Kiwanis Club.

Also present will be Louis Buillon, Kiwanis district governor; and John Page Wham, Wham was chairman of the Board of Trustees while Morris was president.

Tickets to the dinner are being sold for $5 through the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce office at 219 W. Main St., and at the Student Center ticket office.

Dennis Burd, chairman of the committee planning the event, said this will be first time the Kiwanis Club has presented a distinguished service award.

Burd said Morris will receive a check which will go into the Morris scholarship fund.

Morris was president of SIU from 1946 until 1970. He retired Aug. 31, after serving a year as president emeritus. Morris will become executive director of the National Council on Educating the Disadvantaged Oct. 1.

First U-Senate meeting Oct. 4

The University Senate will hold its first regular meeting of the fall quarter at 7 p.m. Oct. 4 in Lawson 131.

The exact agenda for the meeting has not yet been determined. An Executive Committee meeting on Sept. 29 will formalize the program.

Three paid interns will be assisting the Senate this fall. The undergraduates filling these positions are William Clarke, Jim Stortrum and Janice Rokita. They will do research work for the various committees.

Administrators meet

School superintendent to speak

By University News Service

Earl Patton, superintendent of schools at Springfield, will speak to school administrators Tuesday at SIU's Little Grassy Facility.

Patton, a native Southern Illinoisan, will speak on the topic, "The School Administrator in the Legislative Process," at SIU's fourth annual Administrator's Conference. Patton has served as chairman of the state legislative committee of the Illinois Association of School Administrators.

Edward B. Sasse, chairman of the Department of Educational Administration and Foundations, one of the sponsors of the conference, said this year's theme will center on the topic, "Politics and the School Administrator."

Administrators may register for the conference up to Sept. 28 with SIU Extension and Adult Education at Carbondale. The pre-registration fee is $17.

District alignment attacked as badly rigged politically

CHICAGO (AP) — The new congressional district alignment—decided upon by a three-judge panel—was assailed from several quarters Wednesday which charged that it is tainted with partisan politics.

Legal researcher Sherman Skelnick, calling it a "badly gerrymandered map" said he would immediately appeal the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"It favors Republicans over Democrats and you can't get away from that," said Skelnick, who had submitted one of four other reapportionment plans.

The new map, announced Tuesday, will push two Democratic districts from the City of Chicago into the Republican suburbs and could mean the defeat of downstate Democrat, Rep. George E. Shipley, of the 23rd District. Under the map, Shipley, a Democrat is in the 2nd District where several strong Republican counties have been added.

Affected most in the Chicago area will be Rep. Abner Mikva, a liberal Democrat in the 2nd District, and Rep. George W. Collins, a black representing the 6th District.

Mikva's constituency is virtually absorbed by two other Chicago Democrats and a suburban Republican, while Collins' district shifts from predominantly black Chicago neighborhoods to a Republican oriented white suburban area.

"I will leave Collins' future bleak. I'm going to keep all my options open," Mikva said, although he ruled out running against Rep. Ralph Metcalfe, who in addition to Collins is the only Negro representing Illinois in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Mikva also blasted the new alignment as "conceived in politics" and "hardly something to instill the confidence that the courts were above politics."

The new map was approved over four other recommendations by a 2 to 1 majority with Senior Court Judge William J. Campbell, a Democrat, writing a strong dissenting opinion.

Voting for the new map were Senior Appeals Judge Latham Castle and Judge Bernard M. Decker, both Republicans.

The proposal selected was identical to a plan which bogged down in the Illinois Senate after being approved in the House 148-1 during the last session.

It was submitted to the federal tribunal by House Speaker W. Robert Blair of Park Forest, Rep. Ed Madigan of Lincoln and Rep. Henry Hyde of Chicago.

Blair said it was "gratified" by the ruling and added it reflected the shifts of population over the last 10 years from the City of Chicago to the suburbs.

But Judge Campbell in the dissenting opinion was strongly critical of the approved map and said it is "an effort...to dilute the overall voting strength of large Democratic majorities in Chicago...and has the ancillary benefits of preserving the seats of all incumbent Republicans."

Campbell called it "a poorly disguised attempt to segregate the voters of the City of Chicago from the rest of Cook County" and that "it has the benefit...of assuring for the member of the House Blair a spot in Congress for him or his designate."

Because of the strongly worded dissenting opinion Skelnick said he expects the U.S. Supreme Court to look favorably upon an appeal.

"We have two things in our

New fashions really old

"This proves there's nothing really new under the fashion sun," says school director Wanda Wolska.

favor," he said about his appeal chances. "First, we have a right of direct appeal the U.S. Supreme Court and second, we have a strong dissenting opinion—not necessarily in favor of our plan, but putting down the majority."

In the majority opinion Judges Castle and Decker said all five proposals met the court imposed requirements of one-man one-vote, but only the Blair-Hyde-Madigan recommendation was a "fair effort to adhere to existing communities of interest and existing political boundaries."

About Skelnick's recommendations, the judges said it "ignores traditional boundaries of political subdivisions for the sole purpose of drawing compact districts."

Skelnick, who successfully challenged the 1965 district map on grounds of constitutionality and won, said sizeism of equal population overrides maintenance of present boundaries.

Another plan proposed by the state's 24 congressmen was disapproved by the majority because, they said, it only assured each congressman virtually the same constituency that elected him previously. Judge Campbell supported this plan in his minority opinion.

The other plan—a compromise plan combined from two recommendations from the Democratic and Republican parties—was discounted because, the judges ruled it "concerned itself primarily with partisan balance."

Major news announcement expected by Red Chinese

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's army has canceled all furloughs and called back all soldiers on leave the past few days, Japanese government sources said Thursday.

They indicated the soldiers were ordered to return to their units to guard against possible confusion that might occur when the Chinese government issues an important announcement.

There was no hint of the nature of the announcement. The Japanese said they learned about the Chinese military leaders in messages radiated to remote areas of China and monitored in Japan.

Japanese correspondents reported Peking authorities decided about 12 days ago to cancel the parade for China's National Day, another piece in the puzzling developments emanating from China.

The correspondents met a Japanese parliamentary delegation returning to Hong Kong from Red China and were told brass bands and paraders had been rehearsing in Peking until Sept. 11 "when all the din and bustle suddenly died down."

The British Foreign Office was advised through its charge d'affaires in Peking that Red China had canceled the parade and fireworks for National Day Oct. 1 "for reasons of economy."

Confirming the cancellation, the Chinese legation in London and the embassy in Paris denied the decision had anything to do with rumors of the serious illness of Mao Tse-tung, 77, saying his health was excellent.

Western quarters remained convinced, however, that the cancellation of the National Day celebration had more behind it than met the eye.

Ever since the Chinese Communists captured the mainland in 1949, they have observed National Day with parade and pageantry, with Mao and other Chinese leaders watching.

The Japanese parliamentarians themselves indicated that something had happened around Sept. 16. They told reporters from Kyodo News Service in Hong Kong that they had a meeting scheduled with Premier Chou En-lai on Sept. 11 and it was abruptly postponed until Sept. 16. They speculated that government leaders were attending an important meeting.

China specialists in Washington doubted that anything was happening to Mao or Chou but said there may be illness or other successor problems still unsettled, forcing Peking to put off showing off its leadership lineup on Oct. 1.

Western diplomats also sought more information following at least a three-day cancellation of air flights inside China Sept. 13-15 and the removal of some portraits and at least one statue of Mao from public places.

The French press, which first touched off speculation over reports that Mao was seriously ill, sought explanations for the recent events.

Vietnam French diplomat Marcel Marcillon returned from China to Paris and said no one knew the real reason for the cancellation but "the most frequently advanced hypothesis is that of an illness or perhaps even the death of Chairman Mao."

There had been much speculation because Dr. Paul Dudley White, heart specialist who treated President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was in Peking along with two other doctors.

Reached by telephone in Peking, White said he had heard "the false rumor" about Mao but had been told "he is in good health." White reported he had not seen Mao or other Chinese leaders, and had been spending most of his time visiting hospitals. He and two other American doctors were invited to Red China in August and arrived Saturday.

Outsiders last saw Mao Aug. 7 when he met with Premier Ne Win of Burma and they described him as looking vigorous and healthy.

Better housing is aim of STU

The Student Tenant Union (STU) will hold an organizational meeting in the very near future, Dick Pierce, a group member, said Wednesday.

The student-run organization will seek to improve the housing situation in Carbondale through group action and educational and counseling services to students, Pierce said.

STU has been allocated $9,500 in student fees, approved last week by the Board of Trustees.

Tentative plans call for at least four divisions to be formed by STU: counseling services, housing services, executive action, and special projects.

The counseling services division would handle student housing problems not requiring an attorney. However, plans now call for an attorney to be present in the afternoons for advice and some assistance, said Pierce.

The housing services division staff is nearly complete, Pierce said. It hopes to furnish clients with an extensive survey of local housing.

Tire plant proposed at Mt. Vernon

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — General Tire and Rubber Co. has entered into an option for 163 acres of land at the southeast edge of Mount Vernon as a possible site for a new $39 million plant, company officials said Wednesday.

Richard W. Irvin, director of corporate real estate, said the Akron, Ohio, firm plans to build a new plant or to expand facilities at existing plants to start the manufacture of radial tires. He said Mount Vernon will be the site "if a new plant is built."

The special projects division will be chiefly concerned with the administration of STU, Pierce said.

Tentative plans call for a graduate student to head each division, with his work aiding him in the pursuit of post-graduate degrees, said Pierce.

At this time it appears that STU may be able to help only those who attend the first meeting. This is a result of a lack of personnel, Pierce said.

It remains undecided whether or not fees will be charged for using STU services, or whether dues will be charged for membership in the group. Pierce said he personally would prefer to avoid such charges, but that financial necessity may dictate such a course.

STU will probably take over the functions of the Committee Against Landlord Abuse, Pierce said. It also hopes to help fill the void created by the decision of the Legal Assistance Foundation to curtail aid to students in landlord disputes.

case to be main council topic

Prime topic of the Faculty Council meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center River Room will be the comments on the council's report dealing with the Canut-Amoros case of alleged sex discrimination.

The case involves the disputed resignation of Mrs. Marisa Canut-Amoros, professor in the School of Engineering and Technology. She has filed a complaint with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The report, which was pregoated to the council on Aug. 31, dealt with the facts and status of the case at that time. Three members of the council compiled the report. Chairman Thomas J. Pace said some reaction to the report had been received.

Redbird offense sputtering badly

(This is the third in a four-part series on football at Midwestern Conference schools. Today's article is on Illinois State University.)

By Mike Kleis
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Larry Bitcon has had two surprises this season, one pleasant, the other not so pleasant.

Bitcon is head football coach of the Illinois State Redbirds. Southern's Saturday night opponent. Before this season Bitcon figured Illinois State would feature an explosive, hard running offense and a defense that would need time to develop.

It hasn't quite worked out that way. Defense has shined and the offense has made about as much noise as a sick parakeet.

Despite the 36 points scored by Western Michigan in the Redbirds' opening game 26-7 loss, Bitcon was very pleased with the defense. Two Western Michigan touchdowns and a safety were scored against the offense, cutting the defensive yield to 19 points.

Last weekend, Illinois State gave 14 points to Central Missouri but seven came on a kickoff return touchdown and extra point. The Redbirds got their first win, 10-14.

"We thought we might be a little better defensively but I'm not sure we anticipated we'd be this good this early," Bitcon said.

"But our total effectiveness effectively is not all that outstanding at this point," he said.

A successful Redbird offense hinges on running backs Ron Bell and Billy Lewis, both returning lettermen. Last fall, Bell gained 985 yards, scored 22 touchdowns and totaled 84 points in 10 games.

Lewis, a 6-4 sprinter, added nine touchdowns and 36 points to an offense that averaged 23.9 points per game.

Asked if Bell and Lewis had improved this year, Bitcon said, "I would say neither one is running as well for us as they did last year. I'm sure the ISU scouts would attest to that, too."

"We just haven't hit the track with the running backs. I don't know exactly what the problem is but they're just not performing as well as we had expected."

What an understatement! Bell has smashed through opponents for a net two yards in 18 attempts. And the 200-pounder is supposed to be an All-American candidate. Lewis has been somewhat better, rushing 18 times for 69 yards.

Top yardage maker is Bruce Elliott, a 190-pound junior who was being counted on to block for Bell and Lewis. He has 144 yards in 25 attempts for a fine 5.8 yards per carry average.

None of the three has a touchdown.

The passing attack hasn't provided much help. Last year's starting signal caller, junior Harold Quisenberry, has completed just eight of 35 passes for 88 yards and one touchdown. Backup Steve Mardis has provided just three completions and 30 yards in 14 attempts.

So it's not surprising the Redbirds have just three touchdowns in two games.

Next: Ball State.

Two Illini will miss game

CHAMPAIGN, (AP) — Two University of Illinois football players will not make the trip to Los Angeles where the Illini are scheduled to play the University of Southern California Saturday night, the team announced Wednesday.

Willie Osley, a defensive back who failed to report to a squad meeting Sunday and was removed from the squad the next day, rejoined the team Wednesday for workouts, Bob Blackman, head coach, said. He will not be eligible to play against USC.

Blackman also said split end Garvin Robinson will not make the trip because of multiple dislocation of the fifth finger in his left hand suffered in last week's 27-0 loss to North Carolina.

Weekend looks good for top 10

NEW YORK (AP) — That uninvited guest, Of Debbil Upset, has been so busy harassing the pros that he's neglected the collegians. The powers should go through another week unscathed.

In the war of rankings, Ohio State, No. 6, should squeeze past a multi-talented Colorado, No. 10, and Tennessee, No. 9, should scramble over the back of Auburn, No. 3. Ohio State 18, Colorado 10. The Buckeyes' swarming defense figures to slow down the Buffaloes' versatile offense.

Tennessee 35, Auburn 20: The total offense leader of 1990, Pat Sullivan, finds yardage scarce againstvengeful Vols.

Notre Dame 24, Purdue 14: The Irish always find it tough at Purdue but the Boilermakers don't figure to pull off another upset.

Penn State 25, Iowa 15: Iowa's stubby Levi Mitchell should give a good show before the Hawkeyes surrender.

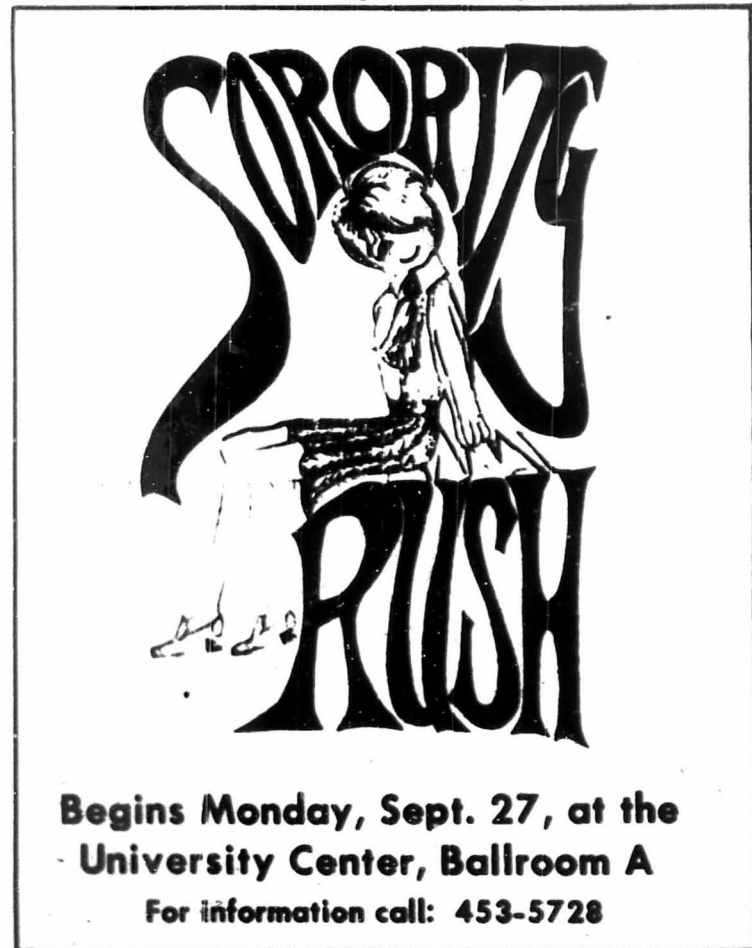

Oklahoma 28, Pittsburgh 14: Pitt stunned UCLA and took the east week off, losing some momentum.

Nebraska 23, Texas A&M 14: Jerry Tagge leads the national champions to another one-sided triumph.

Washington 25, Texas Christian 7: Sonny Sixkiller in a sharpshooting duel with Steve Judy.

Southern California 30, Illinois 7: The Illini get their first touchdown for Coach Bob Blackman, but it's not enough.

Michigan 27, UCLA 10: Wolverines believe they're the best team in the country and are out to prove it.

Oregon's Moore selected Back of the Week by AP

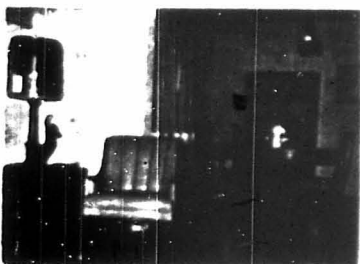

Why Washington failed to spot a potential All-America candidate in their own back yard may never be clear to Moore. And, after Moore's performance against Utah last weekend, Owens is probably asking himself the same question. Oregon and Washington will collide Oct. 16 in Eugene.

The coach said anyone interested in seeing the meet can get a free ride on a bus leaving the SIU Arena at 2:30 p.m. Friday. The bus will be parked on the east side of the arena. Midland Hills is located five miles south of the campus off U.S. route 51.

Oregon coach Jerry Frei, who considers Moore the finest athlete he has recruited, says "he (Moore) doesn't surprise us when he has a night like that against Utah."

Jim Powell returns to gridders

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Who-Will-Play-Where in Southern's defensive secondary has been further complicated by the return of cornerback Jim Powell, top pass defender of one year ago.

Married since last season, Powell originally decided to forego any more football. Asked why, his one word response was: "Money."

After a short pause, he added, "It was a choice between survival by working versus my desire to play football. If I'd had sufficient money, I would have been at camp right from the start."

Financial matters were worked out but Powell has missed four weeks practice and admits, "I've got a lot of catching up to do, for sure. Right now, I'm trying to get my fundamentals and conditioning down, learn my position and from then on, wait on the coaches' confidence."

At SIU's Press Day prior to fall camp, head coach Dick Towers told reporters he respected Powell's decision to quit and would welcome Powell's return at any time.

Powell was the standout performer of a sophomore dominated secondary that yielded 1,939 yards passing last fall. He was quickest on pass coverage and a good hitter.

One of his two interceptions culminated a tremendous comeback against Lamar Tech in the season's third game.

After trailing early 16-0, Southern led 26-16 when the Cardinals marched 65 yards to the SIU 15-yard line.

When Cardinal quarterback Tommy Tomlin shot a pass to the left sideline, Powell grabbed the ball and outraced everyone 90 yards for a game clinching score.

Powell's return will strengthen a secondary Towers says should improve much faster than last year's edition because of greater speed, and quickness. As such, Powell might find himself on the sidelines for a while.

"What we've got to do is find a spot for him and it might not be cornerback," said Tom O'Boyle, defensive coordinator.

O'Boyle was pleased with the play of Ermit Burt, Dennis O'Boyle and Russ Hailey at Dayton. But he said Mike Gero and Cap Prange played just average games. Both will still be starting along with Hailey and O'Boyle at Illinois State this weekend.

"About the only way a guy moves up is to wait in the wings like a taxicabber and when he gets the opportunity, really go," said O'Boyle, a former All-Big Eight linebacker at Kansas State.

"I really feel some compassion for these guys. All they can do is work up through the ranks. I'd love to play them all but I can't take out a proven performer so they can show me they can do their thing."

Second Thoughts

The horse and water story

You're 21 years old; you've already had three operations to correct football injuries and you're scared it could happen again. So you quit the sport you love.

That is the decision Dee Monge, former Saluki receiver turned manager, reached after one year's deliberation.

"I realize it would probably never happen again but the fact that it may scare me because I realize I'm not good enough to play pro ball," Monge said. "That's the only reason I'm not playing."

Monge is victim of an injury as old as football itself—torn knee ligaments and cartilage. This injury plays no favorites. It will strike down the most inexperienced teeny tot or the highest paid pro. Ask Gale Sayers. Or Joe Namath. In every instance, how-it-happened in the same. A great deal of pressure is applied to the joint, forcing it to bend in an unaccustomed manner. The result is interior damage.

'Pain hit instantly'

Namath's most recent injury occurred when a Detroit Lions player dove into the New York Jet quarterback, helmet first. It closely parallels Monge's injury.

"I'd just caught a pass and evidently my right leg was planted in the ground. My spikes were in the guy stuck his helmet right on the outside corner of the knee."

"The pain hit instantly but at the time I had no idea it was as bad as it was. No idea."

That was against Louisville in Southern's 1970 home opener. Monge caught three passes for 42 yards that night, his total offensive production of the year. He was injured on the final reception.

Eleven days later, Monge went under the knife for repair of massive damage to the ligaments and cartilage of the right knee.

Five weeks in a cast and two more on crutches followed the successful operation. But Monge was told that another injury could result in possible lifetime problems.

Monge was in the wrong spot at the right time and got speared by his tackler's helmet, a technique that has torn up many knees. But he figures that without spikes, the injury might have been less severe.

"Today the shoe is being made for the runner, allowing you to cut," Monge said. "It's this end that we're going to have to sacrifice in order to save on knee injuries. The more spikes are made to grip, it seems to me there's a better chance for injury."

That's one theory. Some people thought grass caused injuries. So they invented artificial surfaces, said it would reduce the number of injuries and started raking in thousands of dollars.

Not enough conditioning

But that hasn't helped and may not make any difference, according to SIU head trainer Robert "Doc" Spackman who bases his opinion on discussions with pro football physicians and trainers.

"They said if you've ever played in Green Bay (Wis.) when it was 15 below, nothing could be harder than that sod," Spackman said.

But almost everybody agrees that athletes don't train hard enough and this certainly contributes to knee injuries.

Even some athletes will admit to lax training on the knee, like Monge. "I know all through high school I never did anything in this fashion and it was a definite hindrance. You've got to do it." He further estimated 90 to 95 per cent of the Saluki players "don't have strong enough knees to play in the upcoming season."

Spackman also believes athletes don't properly condition themselves. "We can't seem to make them exercise as much as I would like to stay strong."

And he adds, "In college we see so many bad knees that were injured in high school and no one ever got them strong. We've got a number of them, just like every other school."

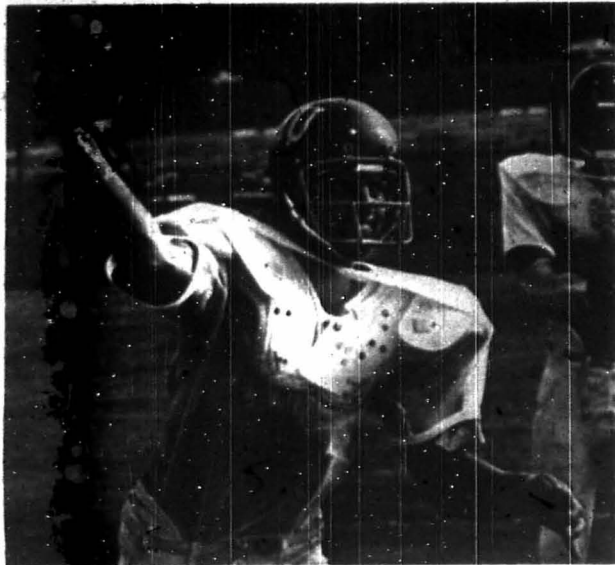

"In some cases, the problem is ignorance, especially on the high school level. But even under the best trainers, many athletes refuse to properly condition the body. Consequently, they must live with the consequences."

It's the old "You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it drink" story.

Harriers gain strength with time and practice

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Imagine acres upon acres of steep rolling hills with ridges and streams and footbridges crossing them and belts of trees stretching beyond every horizon.

If you can imagine this picturesque scene, then you have a pretty good idea of what the SIU cross country team's new home looks like.

The team spent Tuesday afternoon practicing at their new running grounds—the Midland Hills Golf Course—for a dual meet with Indiana University at 4 p.m. Friday.

Head coach Lew Hartzog said after the workouts he was quite pleased with the way the squad is coming along.

"They worked out real well," said Hartzog. "But they didn't push that much. However, they're getting in a little better shape each week."

"They're also getting in better shape all the way around," he said. "If we had come to school earlier (for practice), we'd probably be undefeated now."

Hartzog delayed the opening date of fall practice until a few days before the Salukis' first meet to save money because of the financial situation facing the University.

Southern will enter the meet Friday with a 0-2 record, losing to Indiana State, 24-33, and to Illinois, 25-33.

SIU will have its hands full with the tough Indiana team but Hartzog doubts if the Hoosiers will give the Salukis the same beating they gave Indiana State earlier.

The Hoosiers, who placed sixth in the NCAA meet last year, scored a near perfect 15-49 triumph over SIU one week after the Sycamores defeated Southern.

Six Indiana men finished before one SIU runner came in.

"I can't believe Indiana will put six men in front of our front men," said Hartzog.

Indiana's impressive performance in the NCAA's last year doesn't scare Hartzog either, although the Hoosiers have lost only one man from last year's team.

Hartzog said Kansas finished fifth in the NCAA's two years ago and the Salukis "lobbered" them, 25-30, last year. Hartzog considers his 1971 crop of harriers as the best in recent years at Southern.

Although all the SIU runners have cut one minute off their earlier times in practice this week, Hartzog said it still will be some time before the Salukis are at their best.

"They obviously have a lot of work to do yet," he said. "In the second week of October, they'll probably be in their top running conditions."
