Percy expected opposition from right

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

In his race against Rep. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, to keep his U.S. Senate seat, Sen. Charles Percy has more than one opponent. As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, the Republican Percy has been fired at by the conservative wing of his own party, Jewish groups, and liberals who would like to see changes in foreign policy.

It isn't surprising that conservative political action committees are pumping money into Simon's campaign. Percy said in an interview Monday that he had spoken earlier in the evening at a Republican pep-rally at the SRC-U Student Center.

Percy is a self-proclaimed moderate on social issues and an economic conservative. He said the ultra-right-wing movement trying to nudge him out of office is their way of finding a more conservative Foreign Relations chairman. If Percy is defeated, he said it is likely that Jesse Helms, a conservative North Carolina senator, could replace him as committee chairman.

"It's not odd they want Jesse Helms - it's just Jesse Helms philosophy; they (conservatives) feel they would have a lot of influence over him," he said.

In their view, Percy contended, Even "Ronald Reagan is not conservative enough for them."

Percy said when the Soviets shot down the Korean airliner 007 last year, most conservative factions would have advocated walking out on arms talks and canceling grain agreements. He said he disagrees with that line of thinking, and such actions only heighten U.S.-Soviet relations.

Percy said he is pressing for arms talk negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union, and advocates eventually eliminating all nuclear arms.

"Together with Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Georgia, and Sen. Bill Cohen, R-Maine, I authored the build-down as a formal presentation to the president," Percy said. "It's the only arms control document the president has accepted, and he added. The end objective of this proposal, he said, is the elimination of all nuclear arms.

Percy also said he's urged President Reagan to hold "regular annual summits" with the Soviets. "It's too dangerous - the last summit we had was five years ago," he said.

The 64-year-old senator also downplayed the relevance of $140,000 worth of nationwide campaign contributions to Simon from pro-Israeli political action committees. The Simon camp has circulated a fact sheet on "Percy and Middle East issues," portraying Percy as someone who "wasn't a friend of Israel, something Percy vehemently denies.

"Simon has distorted my record by saying I have one of the worst records of support (for Israel) in Senate."

Mulroney is triumphant in Canad a race

TORONTO (AP) - Brian Mulroney led the Progressive Conservative party to a landslide victory Tuesday over Liberal Prime Minister John Turner in Canadian parliamentary elections.

Mulroney, who promised to return the country to economic and improve relations with the United States, cast his ballot at the school he attended in the isolated papermill town of Baie Comeau.

"It's a very beautiful day for voting, a superb day," said Mulroney, the 43-year-old former president of a large mining company.

"I want you to know that I went to this school," he said several times to different people as he went in to vote. "And you are looking at a model student."

Several public opinion polls in the past week put Mulroney's Tories more than 20 points ahead of the Liberals, leading analysts to predict a solid Conservative majority in Canada's 272-seat Parliament.

Turner, 55, who has been in office only since June when fellow Liberal Pierre Elliott Trudeau stepped down, finished the campaign in Vancouver, where he was a candidate for Parliament in a suburban district.

Ed Broadbent, leader of the left-leaning New Democratic Party, voted in the Oshawa, Ont., district he has represented in Parliament since 1974.

Like Mulroney, Turner pledged to improve ties with the United States.

Robot arm frees shuttle of stubborn ice

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - With one flick of the wrist on their giant robot arm, Discovery's astronauts brushed off the same block of ice off the side of the space shuttle Tuesday and packed up to come home, their shakedown flight a huge success.

"It worked like a charm," said commander Henry W. Hartfield after he gingerly guided the end of the ship's 50-foot crane over the ice that had blocked two waste water vents just behind the cabin on Discovery's port side.

Television pictures, taken by a camera attached to the arm, showed that only a 5-inch, carrot-shaped icicle remained. Six hours later, astronaut Judy Resnik used the camera again and reported:

"We have some good news for you; we took another look at the nozzle and there is no ice."

NASA had worried that the wellcome hanger-on, estimated to weigh up to 20 pounds, might break loose and damage the ship's tail during Discovery's violent plunge through the atmosphere on Wednesday.

The third ship in NASA's shuttle fleet is to end its inaugural voyage with a desert landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California at 6:38 a.m. PDT.

South African unrest controlled

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Police firing rubber bullets and tear gas Tuesday drove off looters and arsonists plundering wrecked shops in three black townships where rioting the day before killed 29 people.

More buildings were burned, but the townships were comparatively quiet Tuesday, and no new casualties reported. As many as 300 injured had been reported during the riots Monday, the worst black violence in South Africa since the 1976 Soweto uprising.

Police commissioner Gen. Johan Coetzee told the South African Press Association there was "strong evidence" the unrest was being brought under control, although sporadic stone throwing, lootting and arson continued.

Police said 15 more bodies were found in townships 45 miles south of Johannesburg. Fourteen bodies were recovered earlier from Monday's rioting.

The immediate cause of the rampage appeared to be rent increases announced by the local black council last week. Rioters killed three members of the council, national radio said.

But black opponents of the white-minority government said underlying the unrest was anguish over the most severe recession since the 1930's and the continued denial of political rights to the black majority of 22 million.
Campaign debate accelerates over religion and government

By the Associated Press

The campaign debate over the relationship between government and religion has heated up a notch Tuesday as President Reagan accused critics of advocating "freedom against religion" and Walter F. Mondale looked at the details of a detailed presentation of his views.

In a speech to the American Legion in Salt Lake City, the president said that "what some of them want is to twist the concept of freedom of religion to mean freedom against religion." Mondale did not identify the targets of his remarks, but White House spokesman Larry Speaks said the president wanted "to set the record straight" in responses to what he called "distortions" by Mondale and his running mate, Geraldine Ferraro.

Both Democrats have been sharply critical of Reagan's recent statement that "religion and politics are largely privately related." Mondale said in a radio address Sunday that the Republicans "raised doubts" about whether they respect the wall our founders placed between government and religion.

Mondale and Ferraro were campaigning separately in Reagan's home state of California. Mondale spent Tuesday morning in his suite in Long Beach working on speeches he will deliver Wednesday and Thursday.

The Democratic nominee will be in Salt Lake City on Wednesday to talk to the American Legion about arms control. The next day he will speak to Jewish and Baptist meetings in Washington, D.C., and is expected to spell out in greater detail his views on the relationship between government and religion.

Meanwhile, Vice President George Bush told a student forum at Texas A and M University Tuesday that Mondale's opposition to the MX missile and his bomber amounts to "giving up the store in advance of arms negotiations with the Soviet Union.

In his American Legion speech, Reagan referred to a "new patriotism" he said he was finding throughout the nation.

"Well, wherever the new patriotism came from, there can be no gaining saying its arrival," the president added.

Polie: seek to link house painter with murders of 23 young men

CHICAGO (AP) — Early Monday morning, police痰 electronic a warrant to arrest Joe Balla stepped outside his apartment and was met by police officers.

Balla, who was wanted for the murder of a 23-year-old woman, had been arrested in the past and was wanted for questioning in the deaths of 23 young women in the area in the past 2 and a half years.

When police arrived, a janitor ripped open a dumpster belonging to the man's building and found six other young men whose bodies had been found across a four-state area in the past 2 and a half years.

When police arrived, a janitor

Israeli parties agree on coalition

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's two main political parties reached a "preliminary agreement" on a bipartisan government Tuesday, and party leaders Shimon Peres and Yitzhak Shamir will meet to iron out the final details, Shamir's spokesman said.

Jussi Ahlheur said after Israeli Prime Minister Shamir of the Likud bloc and Prime Minister-designate Peres of the Labor Party would meet Wednesday to "approve the results" of lower-level negotiations between the two parties.

"If there was no certainty that such an agreement could be reached, they would not be meeting," Ahlheur said.

Help for disabled motorists OK'd

CHICAGO (AP) — Governor Thompson signed legislation Tuesday that imposes a $30 fine for misuse of parking spaces designated for handicapped motorists.

Under the new law, effective Jan. 1, handicapped drivers with properly marked vehicles won't have to feed parking meters unless the meter is for one-half hour or less.

The bill also requires the state to designate parking spaces for the handicapped and vehicles driven by or for handicapped people.

Leaded gas banned in Chicago cars

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Mayor Harold Washington signed an executive order Tuesday banning the use of leaded gasoline in city vehicles and said he hopes the fuel soon will not be available here to anyone.

Washington, who signed the order during a news conference, said the exhaust from cars that use leaded gasoline are an "insidious, silent poison" that endangers children's health.

Patchett calls Wright letter 'pro-leftist'

By Jay Schmitz
Staff Writer

Handy Patchett, candidate for Congress in the 22nd District, championed opponent Ken Gray and House Majority Leader Jim Wright to repudiate a letter signed by Wright which Patchett said praised the leftist Nicaraguan government's progress in human rights.

Patchett held a news conference Tuesday at the Williamson County Courthouse in Marion to discuss the letter and a bill now on Gov. James Thompson's desk to give tax incentives to industrial coal users.

Gray and Wright are scheduled to appear at Ken Gray's Auto Circus in West Frankfort Wednesday afternoon and at the Marion Civic Center Wednesday night.

The letter Patchett referred to was sent in March from Wright's office to Daniel Ortega, a member of Nicaragua's Sandinista junta.

The letter, signed by Wright and nine other representatives, "basically praised the Marxist regime in Nicaragua for progress toward a free press and free elections in the country," Patchett said.

HE SAID that Nicaragua has not made progress in press or election freedom, and that there was "no indication of their willingness to compromise" on the issues.

The Republican candidate said he repudiated Wright's letter and wanted Gray to do the same.

"The people of Southern Illinois should know Mr. Gray's stance" on the letter, he said.

Patchett said the letter could send the wrong signals to America's allies in Central and South America and the rest of the world.

He said he supports funding anti-Sandinista "contras" and other "freedom fighters" in rebellions against Marxist governments.

He also said people in countries such as Afghanistan, invaded by the Soviet Union in 1978, were examples of freedom-fighters who needed U.S. support.

While the U.S. should aid freedom-fighters, Patchett said, the country shouldn't do it alone. "We can't afford to bankrupt everything unilaterally," he said.

PATCHETT also announced that he would write to Gov. Thompson in support of a bill on Thompson's desk which would give Illinois industries tax incentives for using coal.

He said the bill would "help employ, not unemploy, Illinois coal miners," and "will have an effect on the amount of coal consumption in Illinois."

Patchett challenged Gray and Wright to reject the position of the Democratic leadership concerning acid rain. He said the Democratic position could result in the unemployment of mine-workers.

Patchett said he hopes Wright will "be informed as to the impact" that bills such as the Waxman-Sikorski bill would have on Southern Illinois miners, he said.

THE Waxman-Sikorski bill would create a national superfund to finance retrofitting of coal-fired generating plants that emit large amounts of sulfur dioxide. Patchett said the renovation of high-sulfur using plants would affect thousands of high-sulfur coal miners in Southern Illinois.

Patchett said he would not oppose a bill similar to one introduced by Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, which provides for cleanup of lakes in the Northeast, and calls for research on the causes of acid rain.

"One of the most encouraging aspects right now involves fluidized beds," he said. He said that when further developed, these may prove to be much less expensive and efficient to install than scrubbers.

City resets surplus food distribution schedule

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

To ensure that supply meets demand, Carbondale's Division of Human Resources has restructured surplus food distribution to eligible county residents.

Under the new system, which began in June, food is available to eligible city residents, including SIU-C students, every other month. Other Jackson County residents who qualify can pick up food in their communities during the intervening months.

Robert Stalls, director of human resources, said the city quit distributing the food, which includes cheese, butter, dry milk, cornmeal, flour and honey, to both groups every month after a year and a half because support was not going around.

"Most of the food is in small quantities that if we did it on a monthly basis county-wide many eligible people would not receive any food," Stalls said. "One of the things we fear most is having hungry people in line in sub-zero temperatures and running out of food."

The surplus food from the U.S. Department of Agriculture is distributed in Illinois by the Department of Public Aid. It is offered to people who live in the county and have an income below a state standard. Stalls said that if enough food is left after a distribution, another will be held to give out what's left.

It was said that the city held the first such distribution in several years to distribute the food in the county but it subcontracted distribution in all county townships to township supervisors except in Carbondale.

The public aid department does not allow contracts to be issued for serving smaller cities alone, so to see that distribution took place in Carbondale city officials had to agree to oversee the program countywide. Stalls said.

He said Carbondale is singled out for a separate distribution because it maintains two-thirds of the county's poverty-level population.

Raising the funding of women's athletics

FIGURES LIE, or can be interpreted differently by different people. Dr. Bruce Swineburne was president for student affairs at SIU-C when there were 36 percent of the budget going to women's athletics. Now there are only 34 percent, but the trend is not new, as Dr. John B. Davies, former editor-in-chief of the Daily Egyptian, reported in the Daily Egyptian. The figures indicating women's athletics receive only 30 percent of the budget that was $600 million. However, it does say that not enough money is budgeted to recruit quality female athletes and their training is not as adequate as that of men's athletics. The University of Illinois, for example, has a higher percentage of female athletes than SIU-C. The figures show that the University of Illinois has a higher percentage of female athletes than SIU-C.

The problem isn't if it's 34 or 36 percent budgeted for women's athletics. It's that some universities have a lower percentage. But the budget trend is worrisome, especially for women's athletics, which are still a minority in the sports world. Women's athletics are not a priority for many universities, especially public institutions, where men's athletics are given more attention. The budget trend is a sign of this. The University of Illinois has a higher percentage of female athletes than SIU-C, but it's still lower than the national average of 36 percent.

I would like to comment on an article that appeared in the Daily Egyptian regarding Macintosh computers available to students at substantial savings. The article states that Macintosh computers are more expensive than IBM-compatible computers. However, this is not true. IBM-compatible computers are generally more expensive than Macintosh computers. The article also states that Macintosh computers are difficult to use. This is not true. Macintosh computers are user-friendly and easy to use. The article does not mention that Macintosh computers are more reliable than IBM-compatible computers. IBM-compatible computers are prone to more hardware failures than Macintosh computers.

Progress changes what kids need to learn

In a dozen, hundred ways, 'improvements' disrupt the lines of inheritance.

I recently had a conversation with a colleague who is a teacher. He mentioned that technology is changing the way students learn. I agree. Technology is changing the way we do everything. I think it's important that we use technology to help students learn. However, I also think it's important that we help students understand the changes that are happening.

I don't want to overstate my case of ties and times. Perhaps I cannot teach a 3-year-old shoe tying, but I have a 16-year-old daughter with an automobile license permit. We practice hill starts as I once did my parents, and still on a shift car. Most of us have taught someone younger how to throw a ball, bake cookies, hammer a nail or thread a needle.

Still it seems to me that discontinuity is a real tradition something. The tradition of grandparents who are experts in the intricacies of carriage driving, especially when cars appear. The tradition of elders who have mastered elegant script when typewriters are invented. Friends in multiplication tables when calculators became common. We all remember the catalog of 19th-century homemaking skills passed down from parent to child, and now reduced to a single lesson in comparison shopping.

OVER TIME, how many of the functions of families were whittled to a core. Families lost much of their economic glue, the fierce tribal security need for staying together. Families function now, for stronger and weaker, mostly as the emotional and caretaking center of our lives.

WE SHOW our children, grandchildren, young friends how to smell a ripe cantaloupe, pick up a frog, watch for poison ivy, and understand each other. We learn to make good judgments. How to choose a shoe or tell a tall this year. But maybe, by hanging out together, now and again, I'll pass on to her what I learned from my elders; some small things about connections that are timeless.

Three burglaries reported over Labor Day weekend

Labor Day weekend is a time when most members of the American workforce give themselves a break and relax for a few days. This is not so, unfortunately, with those who labor at less-than-legitimate enterprises.

Carbondale police reported that three burglaries occurred or were reported over last weekend's holiday.

A stereo and speaker system owned by Jameel Arsaqri, Carbondale, and valued at about $40 was stolen from a house at 408 S. Wall. The theft occurred between 8 p.m. Thursday and 10 p.m. Monday, police said.

Holiday traffic fatalities decline

CHICAGO (AP) — The three-day Labor Day weekend left 441 people dead from traffic accidents on the nation's roads, a decline from the 1983 toll during the same holiday period, authorities said.

This year's death toll was slightly less than estimates made by the National Safety Council. The council had said before the holiday began that between 450 and 550 people could die on U.S. roads.

John Derek may know next to nothing about making quality motion pictures but he's no fool when it comes to making money.

Simply put, "Bolero" is a bad—very bad—piece of narrative cinema. But beyond being a bad film, "Bolero" seems to serve final notice that John and Bo Derek can't make good movies. Their track record is deplorable, with "Bolero" marking perhaps the worst of the lot.

More noteworthy than the failure of the movie itself is what John Derek seems to be trying to prove over the American public's eyes.

A full spread in Playboy several months ago featured still shots of the upcoming movie that was being touted as "an adventure in ecstacy. The story was about beings that are relatively "hot" action between Bo and her co-star, certainly weren't X-rated material.

The Publicity "Bolero" received because of the sexual nature of the film was unjustified. The fact that the film didn't receive any rating from the Motion Picture Association of America led many to believe that the movie was too hot to be rated R.

The truth of the matter is that nothing in the movie gives any suggestion that an X rating is appropriate. "Coming Home," a 1978 film starring Jane Fonda and Jon Voight featured one—just one—sexually explicit scene and was rated as R. "Bolero," which offered a plethora of sex scenes, didn't have one that could compare to "Coming Home" in terms of explicitness.

SO WHY THE BIG DEAL about the rating? Money. John Derek realizes the efforts to 'give' their virginity to someone. As one might expect, he achieved his goal.

The dialogue was embarrassing to have to listen to, shallow and pretentious.

The cast was largely European, with George Kennedy on hand to give the illusion of a class act. Kennedy seemed uncomfortable with such a weak script and one must wonder where Kennedy's career went wrong for him to be reduced to accepting a role in "Bolero."

The American public should finally be quite satisfied that John Derek has no conception of acting and that she should stay away from film. Although Bo is given credit or producing "Bolero" there can be little doubt that husband John was behind this pitiful movie.

The pattern of John leading Bo into increasingly shabbier and debasing roles is disturbing. Bo, from overexposure, has been traumatized by the public from any possible success may have had in her body. Bo is no longer seen as the stunning European movie actress. Bo was not worth the while movie she's ever been in. She has, in a sense, been cheapened by her husband and the final product in her latest effort bears this out.

"Revenge" hilarious tribute to the oddball in everyone

At a recent showing of "Revenge of the Nerds," the movie house was appropriately playing the "Animal House" soundtrack over the intercom, appropriate because "Revenge of the Nerds" is an obvious take-off of "Animal House."

However, it differs in one important respect—whereas "Animal House" elevates the "nerd" crowd, "Revenge of the Nerds" is a tribute to oddballs, a eulogy to the uncool. It is this twist which nixes the movie soardfilmier.

"Revenge of the Nerds" literally crawls with oddballs. The two main characters, Lewis (Robert Carradine) and Gilbert (Anthony Edwards) aren't the usual type of friends who set off for college hoping to find the peer acceptance which eluded them in high school, and hoping above all to "get laid." Of course, they find that the "in" crowd—the macho fraternity jocks and pretty sorority girls—are all too real. Their rude awakening comes when they are thrust into their living quarters and put in the gym to make space for the Alpha Betas, a group of rowdy jocks who have burnt down their own fraternity house.

The nerds learn that the only way they can be safe from the jocks is if they can get into a fraternity and control the Inter-Greek Council, which the premier jock (Ted McGinley) reigns over.

What makes this movie so watchable is the nerds themselves: the directors went to great pains to come up with characters who are hopelessly uncool. The nerds are a varied lot, but similarities. For instance, the nerds are social outcasts, but one of the nerds has a long-term girlfriend, and the other is a psychiatrist at the university.

"Revenge of the Nerds" is also a rating statement. The film is not suitable for children under 17.

Champaign (AP) — "Red Dawn," a movie depicting guerrilla warfare by American high school students and Soviets against United States and Nicaragua, is the most violent movie ever, the National Coalition on Television Violence says.

"Red Dawn" promotes intense hatred and open warfare against Russia, U.S. and Nicaragua, said coalition Chairman Dr. Thomas Radicki, psychology at the University of Illinois School of Medicine.

"Movies like 'Red Dawn' are rapidly preparing America for World War III," he said in a recent release. "They are preparing the adult generation to financially support and the younger generation to be the cannon fodder for a war or series of wars to solve our problems with the Russians. This is explicitly shown in 'Red Dawn' where the adults cheer their warring children."

"These movies teach a barbaric ethic of hate," he added.

The coalition of writers and monitoring group, said this summer's movies are the most violent ever and added, "The most violent movie ever seen by NCTV in terms of the number of different acts of violence per hour is the current "Red Dawn" movie."

PC is a rating given by the Motion Picture Association of America to movies that rate children's guidance is suggested. R-rated films, which adults must accompany children under 17.

"Red Dawn," the coalition says, averages 134 acts of violence per hour and includes such weapons as tanks, rockets, missiles, fire bombs, hand grenades and machine guns.

Composer Albert Schwartz dead at 83

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Schwartz, composer of "Dancing in the Dark," "Theme for Entertainment" and other songs for Broadway and films, died Tuesday after a long illness, according to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. He was 83.

Schwartz, a longtime board member at ASCAP, died at his home in Kintnersville, Pa., according to the group. Schwartz's most famous song was "The Little Show," which he wrote in 1935 for the Broadway musical of the same name. The song became a hit and was later re-recorded by Ella Fitzgerald.

In 1929, Schwartz was hired to work on the film "Estate of His Own," which starred Jack Benny and was directed by Frank Capra. Schwartz later worked on several other films, including "The Great Ziegfeld," "RKO" and "The Big Sleep." He also wrote music for television shows such as "The Honeymooners" and "The Andy Griffith Show." Schwartz was inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame in 1979.

Schwartz is survived by his wife, Marcia, and his two children, Peter and Lisa. Services will be held at Temple Emanu-El in New York City.

Chester Popeye festival set

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

The fifth annual Popeye's Picnic promises something for everyone, from carnival rides to art shows to smorgasbords, including, of course, Popeye's favorite, Olive Oyl's spinach casserole. The festival will take place Sept. 7, 8 and 9 in Chester, Ill., the "home of Popeye." Popeye's creator, Elzie Segar, grew up in Chester where he first studied art. According to legend, Segar used to sell beer and cigarettes for his mother's brother. After a few other assignments, Segar created a comic strip called "Thimble Theatre." In 1929 Popeye was added to its original cast and the rest is history, Goetting said. Many Chesterites believe Popeye was patterned after a local character, Frank (Rocky) Pingle, who was well known for having never lost a fist fight, Goetting said. Carnival rides, games, food and refreshments and a flea market will be on hand all three days of the festival, which will be located near St. Mary's Catholic Church and school in Chester. Along with street dances both Friday and Saturday nights to the country rock sounds of Sierra and an art show both Saturday and Sunday, the annual picnic's special attractions include the crowning of the Popeye king and queen, the Popeye 10-kilometer Road Race and 1-mile Fun Run, a parade, a Poker Run and the Sweep Charist Race, Goetting said. The Popeye king and queen candidates are chosen by a committee and include several prominent Chester citizens, Goetting said. Boxes are then placed at various locations in town and residents elect their king and queen for 10 cents a vote. The money helps fund the picnic, Goetting said. The coronation of the Popeye king and queen will be held at 9 p.m. Friday in the St. Mary's school gym. The Popeye 10-kilometer Road Race and 1-mile Fun Run will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. The 10-kilometer race is one of the most popular events of the picnic, Goetting said. "It draws runners from a wide area, including Pinckneyville, Murphysboro, Herrin, Kansas City and Cape Girardeau." Events on Saturday include a parade with over 70 entries proclaimed "the biggest yet" by parade chairman Jane Davis. Parade time will be 1 p.m. This is the 2nd year for the Popeye Run, an unusual motorcycle "race" sponsored by the Chester Elks. Participants will have 2 and a half hours to travel about 100 miles, with stops at five designated places in Randolph County to pick up a playing card.

The Poker Run will take place between 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Sunday. The Sweep' Pea Charist Race is another popular Popeye event, according to Goetting. The race is open to 4, 5 and 6 year olds who will race their "big wheels" at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Other events on Sunday will be a smorgasbord where Olive Oyl's spinach casserole may be found! At 11 a.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, a sacred concert at 2 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, a concert by the Chester Municipal Band at 6:30 p.m. and completing the festival, a fireworks display at about 9 p.m. in the area of St. Mary's Church and school.

Reasons for running away are varied

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

Each year in the United States, 1.8 million children run away from home. Joseph Ferry, police community relations officer at the SHU police department, said there are probably as many reasons for running away as there are children who run.

Ferry said that last year only 16 runaways were reported to the University Police. Art Wright, spokesman for the Carbondale Police Department, said he recorded 17 reports of runaways within the past year.

Art Zaitz, program coordinator for the Youth Services Board, said there is a definite difference between the interstate runaway and what he terms the local run-around.

Zaitz said his agency, which serves the Jackson County area, handles less than 10 interstate runaways a year, but about 100 run-away-related problems.

The goal of the bureau is to negotiate or arrange the youth’s return home. If that’s not possible, short-term emergency housing is provided.

Youths leave home because of a variety of reasons, including physical abuse, alcohol or substance abuse, family history of runaways and peer pressure, he said. They usually run to friends’ or relatives’ homes or run away from the home, but doesn’t have the money, he can go to a police department and identify himself as a runaway. The police will then contact the police department from his hometown and confirm the facts,” Ferry said.

Zaitz explained that the Jackson County Youth Services program is a counseling and resource center for youth and their families. It works as part of a larger network of services through the Mental Health Center. The program deals with teenage pregnancy, the Big Brother-Big Sister program, emergency runaways, and other services.

Zaitz named four types of runners — the healthy runner, the unhealthy runner, the chronic runner, and the curious runner.

The healthy runner, about 60 to 60 percent of all runaways, is trying to escape from a home situation that may include a history of abuse, incest and indifference, he said.

Such youth are frightened, angry and distrustful of adults and social agencies. They are running to secure help, according to Zaitz.

“Unhealthy runner runs for the wrong reasons. Many have the same problems as the healthy runner, but their response and attitudes are different,” Zaitz said.

These youth focus on pleasure to escape the pain, he said. They may run in groups which represent protection and survival. This category makes up 15 to 20 percent of all known runaways.

The chronic runner, about 10 to 15 percent of runaways, is abused and abandoned, Zaitz said.

The curious runner is usually male and runs alone. “He feels that he doesn’t have any problems.”

USO to consider move

for pre-exam study day

The Student Senate will consider a resolution supporting an exam- and class-free day for summer semester opening Wednesday at its first meeting of the fall semester.

“We would like to have one day as a study day when students won’t have to go to classes or take exams,” Undergraduate Student Organization Chairman David Strong said. There was an exam-free day this summer, but the USO wants to specify it as a class-free day as well, he said.

The senate will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Thebes Room.

It will also consider a resolution supporting guidelines and placement of five free-standing bulletin boards, Strong said. The Senate approved five locations for the boards last spring, he said, and USO Student Welfare Commission Susan Desselhoeft set up guidelines for use of the boards.

“We want to recognize that the Senate is supporting the placement and use of the boards,” Strong said.

The resolution will also consider a bill approving Mark Lee as the senator for the College of Business and Administration. If approved, Lee will replace Mary Coffey, who recently resigned from the position, Strong said.

The police take the child to the nearest Trailingways bus depot, where a ticket is issued free of charge. Arrangements are made for parents and police officer to be waiting for the child at the hometown bus stop, Ferry said.

“We hope the program will help keep children away from criminals who want to exploit them or keep children from turning to crime to support themselves,” he said.

Children 18 and under are eligible for the program. Their parents must sign a form releasing the police department and Trailingways Bus Corp. from any liability while the child is traveling unescorted.

“Runaways have severe problems at home with a parent or at school. They usually let someone know they are going to run,” Ferry said.

Zaitz said he couldn’t recall any children running away, but the USO provides housing is provided.

Today's drug users are a different breed

Purple haze, orange sunshine, microdot, quaaludes and strawberry fields forever may remind you of the psychedelic college campuses of the 1960s during the "stoned age."

However, lysergic acid diethylamide, better known as LSD, has re-emerged and is in prime use today—but not for the same reasons and certainly not limited to the college campus, according to those who are working against drug abuse in Carbondale today.

"There has been an increase of LSD in Carbondale over the last three years," David Duncan, Carbondale Community Health Program coordinator, said.

Duncan said new users of LSD use it as a pleasure drug, trying it out as "the next step past marijuana."

LSD, the hallucinogen that was to be used primarily for the study of mental disorders in the 1960s, became widespread on American college campuses. Drug abusers of the 1980s are younger, better-educated as far as knowing about the different types of drugs available on the streets, and they choose to get stoned on LSD for "a different kick," Duncan said.

Today's abusers are a different breed in comparison to the anti-establishment, anti-government, anti-war abuser of two decades ago.

LSD has become fashionable, he said, but in five to 10 years the trend will shift to those types of drugs that can be inhaled. Hill House, Carbondale's residence for teenagers who want help fighting drug problems, is trying to combat Carbondale youth drug dependence.

Tim McManus, Hill House youth counselor, said the use of hallucinogens has increased based on the number of residents who have reported experimental use in the past year.

"The danger is you never know how strong the dose is," he said. And an individual who takes "a hit of acid" that is too strong may hallucinate out of control. If the drug is taken when he's angry or feeling emotionally stressed, he might have a "bad trip," McManus said.

The young drug user is trying to relieve emotional pain and stress. We will never eliminate recreational drugs in our lifetime, but we can create an attitude to say we don't have to abuse drugs," he said.

The American drug culture cannot be affected significantly unless combat against a drug-oriented lifestyle is taken seriously enough to match dollars equal to the millions spent on alcohol advertisements and other culturally approved drugs, he said.

Today's users are starting at the ages of 10 and 12, McManus said. Hallucinogens are becoming a trend and we need to be prepared for that.

Dennis Bowman, Carbondale police drug enforcement officer, said there is a slight increase in the use of LSD locally. "Carbondale youth are purchasing more and we are seeing more quantities in the past year in comparison to two to three years prior.

"The differences are today's users tend not to be as hardcore, not as dependent, more selective and more knowledgeable about drugs," he said.

Bowman also said money was made from the sale of LSD is shocking.

"Today, we find more of what people like to use and that's cocaine and marijuana," however, he said there is a gradual demand shifting toward LSD.

Jerry Molumby, Carbondale's Alcohol Treatment Services coordinator, said alcohol remains the No. 1 drug in use by far, marijuana is second, and cocaine is third.

Molumby said there is experimentation going on with mood altering substances. There are LSD look-alike drugs on the street, he said, and unexpected reactions can happen if the chemical has a wrong dosage. Risk takers try a variety of drugs, he said, and risk takers are "the kind of people who will take LSD.

Utah governor rejects second extradition bid

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Gov. Mike Matheson on Tuesday rejected for a second time a bid to extradite a Utah business man to Illinois to face murder charges in the cyanide poisoning of a factory worker.

"This case continues to be an unprecedented attempt to hold a remote corporate officer liable for murder in connection with an unexplained death," the governor said.

In Chicago, Illinois State's Attorney Richard M. Daley said Illinois would resubmit its extradition request in January, "when the State of Utah swears in a new chief executive."

Michael T. MacKay, of the suburban Salt Lake city of Sandy, is accused of murder and reckless conduct in the death of Stefan Golab, who died in 1982. Illinois authorities allege the Polish immigrant died of poisoning from cyanide absorbed while working at Film Recovery Services Inc., a Chicago silver recovery operation.

MacKay, 44, through his Utah company, B.R. MacKay and Sons, owned 50 percent of the firm at the time of Golab's death.

Matheson, who in February rejected Illinois authorities' initial extradition request, said Tuesday that "troubling technical questions" with the case against MacKay were partially responsible for his decision. However, he said fairness remained his primary concern.

"The balance of equities, or the relevant factors on both sides, remains unchanged," Matheson said. "We're dealing with the fairness issue and in my opinion it makes more sense to keep Mr. MacKay here than it does to send him to Illinois."

In Chicago, Daley issued the following statement:

"We are very disappointed that Governor Matheson continues to insist on acting as the judge and jury in this important case. Additional documentation submitted by my office has provided more than sufficient evidence to overcome all of the objections stated previously by the governor."

"Mr. MacKay's claims of innocence should be presented to a judge or jury in Illinois. The rule of law requires no less."

"To that end we will resubmit our request for extradition in January, when the State of Utah swears in a new chief executive."

Neither MacKay nor his attorneys could immediately be reached for their reaction.

In a five-page formal supplement to his rejection of the initial extradition request, Matheson said the issue had been "the most unprecedented extradition case" he had ever dealt with.

"I've probably spent more time on it than on all my other extradition cases put together," he said.

House leader to speak for Gray

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas will be the principal speaker at a rally in Marion Wednesday for former Congressman Ken Gray, the Democratic candidate for 22nd District House seat.

The rally is set to begin at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 5, at the Cultural and Civic Center on the Public Square in Marion, and is open to the public.

Gray said he was especially pleased that Wright will be campaigning on his behalf because they were both among authors of the Interstate Highway Act and neighbors when Gray served in Congress (1954-1974).

"Jim Wright worked with me on numerous legislative acts beneficial to Southern Illinois when we were both members of the Public Works and Transportation Committee," Gray said.

Wright will be meeting with various officials in a non-political session to discuss plans for the nation's infrastructure earlier in the day. At 2 p.m.

Wright will be on hand to cut the ribbon in a brief ceremony dedicating Gray's antique car circus in West Frankfort to tourism and will hold a press conference there at 3:00 p.m.

The rally will include entertainment by the Phelps Brothers of Saline County, a gospel singing group, and country western music. There will be no admission charge.

Assistantships in molecular science given

Few people know what photoacoustic thermal wave microscopy means. The chances are good that few understand the purpose of studying metallic glass surfaces or of researching the modeling of flow patterns and solids movement in gravity thicknesses.

But these topics have netted research assistantships for three graduate students in the molecular science program. This is the first time that such competitive research assistantships awards have been given, said Gerard Smith, chairman of the Molecular Science Department.

Abhijit Biswas, who is working with John T. Johnson of the Physics and Astronomy Department, is conducting research on photoacoustic thermal wave microscopy. He received a nine-month research assistantship.

Biswas' work will allow scientists to learn about the properties of coal without taking it apart chemically. They will be able to learn its heat value and other functions.

Jih-Ga Lin is working on the modeling of flow patterns and solids movement in gravity thicknesses. He has been awarded a nine-month research assistantship.

Lin said J.W. Chen of mechanical engineering and energy processes has helped him in his work. Lin's work deals with studying the effect of selective sedimentation velocities of components in a slurry. A slurry is a watery or suspended mixture of insoluble matter, like mud and lime. His research could benefit the coal processing industry.

Wislod Kowbel, who received a four-and-a-half month research assistantship for his work with metallic glass, is working with W.E. Brower Jr., an associate professor in engineering mechanics and materials.

Metallic glass isn't crystalline like most other materials are. Its unique properties mean that it doesn't corrode as easily as other materials do.

Kowbel uses a computer to calculate the structure of the surface of metallic glass.

Rabid bat found north of Murphysboro

A rabid bat was discovered in a residential swimming pool in Harrison, one mile north of Murphysboro, according to Lloyd Nelson, Jackson County Animal and Rabies Control spokesman.

This is the fourth rabid animal, and second rabid bat, discovered this year. The number of rabid bats found has been doubling every year for the past three years, Nelson said.

Jackson County residents are reminded to be sure their pets are vaccinated against rabies, and to beware of animals thought to be rabid.

Behind a winner, there’s a caretaker

By Jeff Curt
Staff Writer

There’s a lot of factors behind a good racing horse-traveling and training, and another part often overlooked - caretaking. A caretaker is one who feeds, grooms, cleans and even sometimes sleeps with the horse during winter training months and when the horse goes on the racing circuit.

Fancy Crown, 28, is the caretaker for fancy Crown, a filly that ran the fastest trotting mile ever by a filly or mare at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield. Fancy Crown placed second recently at the Du Quoin World Trotting Derby.

According to trainer Ted Andrews, being a horse caretaker requires a lot of time and care.

“it’s fairly significant,” said Andrews about Barnhart’s job. “He has to be very close to the horse and be conscientious of any quirks’ developing in the horse that might be signs of sickness or injury. Andrews said that Barnhart “is responsible for the horses, and reports to me. He’s the operator of the stables.”

Barnhart’s daywork includes rising at 5 a.m. to feed, jog and clean Fancy Crown. He also walks her after each race and good down her, and, for security reasons and to make sure no problems occur, sleeps in front of her stall. All that time spent together can lead to a close relationship.

“She’s like any other filly, she likes to have her fun,” Barnhart said, adding that Fancy Crown will often bump him with her fancy or grab his arm with her gums for fun.

“She’s the type that only comes around once in a lifetime. I’ll probably not be with another horse like her again,” she said, saying that Fancy Crown, unlike some horses, is always very calm and relaxed, before or after she races.

Barnhart, originally from Maryland, said he got interested in horses as a youngster while visiting his father’s Pennsylvania farm. Fancy Crown stables were close to his father’s farm. He said the main reason he became a horse caretaker was because there weren’t any other jobs when he graduated from High School.

“It’s been fun so far,” he said, “and it’s a free ride to Florida. Can’t beat that.” Next stop is Louisville, Ky.

Barnhart, who said Fancy’s running power shows she “has a heart as big as a race track,” admitted to giving Fancy Crown some encouragement before she races.

“I just wish her good luck and tell her to go ‘em hell!”

When asked if he would like to meet a human female that has the same personality as Fancy Crown, Barnhart laughed and said, “I don’t think there is any.”

Center teaches discipline in studies

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

For many students, taking tests or being told to study can be a time-consuming and stressful part of college.

After clearing off my desk with chewed-up pencils and sweaty class notes, the schedule looks like this.

The Center for Basic Skills helps students prepare for tests and lessen exam anxiety.

Students should be preparing for tests throughout the semester, instead of “cramming” the night before, said Vivian Snyder, CBS coordinator.

CBS offers programs on how to take tests effectively, take and organize notes, read textbooks and manage time.

Time management often will help a student’s overall ability in school, said Snyder. A schedule should be established that the student feels is reasonable and allows for such things as leisure activities, sleep, classes, work and study time.

After working out such a schedule, students can begin to discipline themselves to read and concentrate on course material.

Other CBS services are used by students who on a “one time basis” to improve a specific part of their scholastic performance. The center’s laboratory offers help with study skills.

Tutors are also available, as well as peer counselors. Students trained and supervised by professionals to help other students find resources on campus or overcoming problems which interfere with studying and performance in school, Snyder said.

Helping students choose a major is another activity of the peer counselors. More thorough career counseling is available at the Career Planning and Placement Center, she said.

Students unable to enter the University because of their performance in high school or on admissions tests can participate in the Special Admission Program, Snyder said.

Such students may enter the University on special admission basis for one year and then may be admitted on a regular basis. Snyder said. About 20 students are in the program this year, she said.

Little pushers
Youths sell drugs on streets in Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Amid tree-lined streets and lush green lawns, children on both sides of doors and steps in the park flag down customers in this city's violent drug trade, which has claimed 26 lives this year.

"They kind of figure themselves as a bunch of little gangsters, like in the '20s," said Lt. Mike Wood of the vice squad.

They have names like "The Moh," and "The Family," and they rove the streets, particularly in the isolated, predominantly poor flatslands, where children beg peddle cocaine, PCP, LSD, marijuana and hash.

As a plainclothes cop drives through one neighborhood, seven children, ranging in age from 5 to no more than 15, crowd around the steps of a duplex in this city of 350,000 people. An older one spotted them and went down and peers in. "Hey want to buy some smoke?" When the officer reveals himself, the youth yells back, "Get out of here."

Blocks later, a group of teenagers in a park at the corner of 16 streets.
The car runs into the street, flashing its lights over his head and yelling, "Hey boys ride by on a bike, marijuana sticking out of his pocket.

A kid up ahead recognizes the police and screams "Vice! Vice!" while the first salesman keeps up his chase.

"The competition for buyers is so great they're waving people down before they ever see who's inside," said John Ream, a detective.

"There's no time to be shrewd," said Dennis Donnun of the vice squad.

Although Oakland police say narcotics arrests have more than doubled since last year, sales have become more blatant and pushers have become bolder. The 'street problem has just gotten so out of hand you have to deal with it," Downum said.

Youths, say police, are poor for summer camp and too young for work, are enticed by drug dealers who pay them $60 to $200 a day to sell their wares.

Cigarettes, cigarettes, are always on order for youths, many of them under 15, and already know their orders.

Wilson said. "Youths with records are usually sent to juvenile hall."

Officials also concentrate on adult drug dealers, the fight is mired in inequity among city officials and police.

City councilman Wilson Riles Jr. said Police Chief George Hart "doesn't go anywhere."

And, that, after 55 years on the force, "it's time for him to go." Riles said the city needs to invest in more innovative drug crackdowns, such as "sweep" operations.

Chief Hart said "crime-level punks" will continue to operate unless police efforts to remove them are intensified.

City councilman Leo Balez said City Manager Henry Gardner should be fired. Gardner said the city is doing all it can following budget cuts. But one is "sweep," in certain areas. Some places are patrolled 24 hours a day. A drug education program is planned for the grammar schools.

"Everybody thinks we need a bigger narcotics squad, one that infiltrates major organizations and one that focuses on street dealers," Downum said.

Police have swept "sweeps" in certain areas. Some places are patrolled 24 hours a day. A drug education program is planned for the grammar schools.

"Everybody thinks we need a bigger narcotics unit, but we say no," said John Beam, a deputy chief in charge of the undercover and detective force. "We make more buys and make more cases than the courts can handle.

Community leaders say the pushers are back on the streets only days after their arrests. Beam said the department can do little about.

The size of the narcotics detail already has doubled this year. There are now two seven-member narcotics squads, one that infiltrates major organizations and one that focuses on street dealers. Together they average 400 to 500 arrests a week, Downum said.

Police have swept "sweeps" in certain areas. Some places are patrolled 24 hours a day. A drug education program is planned for the grammar schools.

"Everybody thinks we need a bigger narcotics unit, but we say no," said John Beam, a deputy chief in charge of the undercover and detective force. "We make more buys and make more cases than the courts can handle.

McEnroe advances to quarterfinals

By Bob Greene
The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) - Top-seeded John McEnroe had more trouble with weather Thursday than the Cardinals' shortstop Ozzie Smith did when he was advancing into the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships with an easy 6-3, 6-2 victory.

NEW YORK (AP) - It's been three years since Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe met for a world-class tennis title. Still, Sweden continues to grow as a power in the sport.

"It has to do directly with Bjorn and John," said a diplomat Monday.

Padres lone survivor in N.L. West race

By Mark J. Keirleider
The Associated Press

Atlanta lost Bob Horner and then his replacement, Ken Oberfell. Los Angeles lost Steve Howe to suspension before the season and, it seemed, almost any other time during the season. Houston lost Dick Thon for the year and Nathan Ridge for the week.

Which leaves San Diego alone at the top of the National League West, where 1984 truly has been a year for survival of the fittest.

San Diego has never finished higher than fourth in the West, but the Padres finished above .500 only once, in 1978. Yet, this year on which they began as 8-1 shots for the NL pennant, they may be hard to catch.

"I don't think anyone all Sensing that this is our year," says right fielder Tom Greenwalt, the National League's leading hitter.

"Our team is one of the most balanced in the National League. We have a great defense and a good offense. We are hitting and pitching very well - and healthy.

"I think we're all sensing that this is our year," says right fielder Tom Greenwalt, the National League's leading hitter.

Brad P_adding's statistics hardly reveal the kind of numbers usually associated with the slugging leader. The Padres have hit about .260 all season, scoring 387 runs and earned run average of 3.40 or so in the middle of the NL.

The Padres have yielded the West by a comfortable margin of 1 1/2 games over Houston and Atlanta the last several weeks.

But the Padres will have to do better if they want to remain in the lead.

"It's been a tough year for us," said Smith immediately after the game.

"I hope the Padres can find a way to break the two-run tie. They're a lot better than we are.

Saluki distance runner Lisa Hicks has come a long way since being cut six years ago from the seventh-grade track team at Caterville Junior High School. She is the SalUKi's No. 1 cross country runner in pre-season workouts this year.

"When I went out for track in junior high and I didn't make the team I said at that point, Forget it, I'm never going to try this again," recalled Hicks with a grin. "Getting cut bothered me a lot. That's why I didn't try out in eighth grade."

Hicks decided to go out for track at Caterville High School, which doesn't have a high school cross country program, when she learned they didn't cut any players from her school this again ...

"Then I enrolled at SIU-C," said. "Then there was an article on Coach DeNoon's name was against Missouri. The only team we've ever had was the Missouri Tigers on the court."

"I'm a Time magazine that had a Time magazine that had an article on Mary Decker and Coach DeNoon's name was mentioned in the article as being her first coach," Hicks said. "Then I read in the newspaper he was going to coach Illinois State in the state, so that's when I got the idea hit me."

Hicks had a good freshman year before injurying a tendon in her left foot, which sidelined her for the 1982 season. She turned in a new high school program and was the Saluki's top woman's cross country runner despite being cut from the sport in grade school, and doesn't look at it as a work task.

"I did train hard this summer, and this season I feel a lot better conditioning wise," she said. "It's all coming together, and I think that is because of work."

DeNoon said Hicks appears to have more confidence this year.

"Lisa came from a very weak high school program and was thrust into a college scene," he said. "I think she had some cockiness, thinking maybe she can conquer the world, but I don't know if she had the inner confidence to beat her opponents."

Hicks, who has plenty of inner confidence this year, will be counted heavily by DeNoon in the Salukis' season opener against Murray State and Southeast Missouri State in Murray, Ky.

Lisa Hicks has developed into a cross country runner since being cut from the sport in grade school.

Illini play Mizzou; White wants more emotion

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Illinois Coach Mike White says his football team should play with "more emotion" Sunday when facing Missouri, the only team to beat the Illini in 1983.

"The thing that the Illini's opening game is behind them, and we're not expecting that Illinois 'wants to be respected,'" White said Monday.

"We don't feel we've earned the respect of Missouri and the Big Eight," White said, whose team lost to the Tigers on opening day a year ago, as well as in 1980.

White said Illinois may have benefited from having played one game already — a 24-16 win over Northern Iowa while Missouri has yet to play this season. But he said this could also be a disadvantage.

"We have the game under our belt, we don't know what to expect (from the Tigers)," White said.

Fusion 4, Illinois Coach Warren Powers plans to switch from veteran quarterback Marion Adler to Warren Setz, who will make his first collegiate start at Illinois.

"Setz, a 6-foot-4, 225-pound junior, is bigger, stronger and faster than Adler but lacks Adler's experience, Missouri Sports Information Director Bill Callahan said.

"They're going to run the ball a lot," White said. "We're going to have to be on top of our running defense to contain it."

While says his team didn't get Swope again will be withheld from the game because of his continuing drug trial. In addition, Swope's backup, African Grant, will miss the Missouri game because of a knee injury, White said.

Hanifan not giving excuses for Cardinals' opening loss

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Coach Jim Hanifan refused to "cut chasers" Monday when discussing the St. Louis Cardinals' one-point loss to Green Bay that opened the 1984 National Football League season for both clubs.

Despite a light rain, several close calls that went against his club and a missed field goal and extra point conversion by placekicker Neil O'Donoghue, the Cardinals' coach shied away from excuses in assessing the Packers' 24-23 victory Sunday afternoon.

"Green Bay won the game. We lost it," Hanifan said. "Whatever you want to call it, lady luck or whatever, just wasn't with us. That's a crutch, and we're not going to have a crutch. The breaks will even out by the end of the year."

St. Louis outgained the Packers 412 yards to 366 for the afternoon, but picked up 10 penalties compared to Green Bay's two penalties in losing its seventh opening-day game in the past eight years.

Hanifan said he praised his players after the game for coming back from a two-touchdown deficit only to fall short. "It was a potential game-winning 45-yard field goal attempt by O'Donoghue with less than three minutes remaining."

"If it certainly wasn't a chasing-out season," he said of his post-game talk to the club. "They battled right to the end."

Hanifan concluded O'Donoghue, who wasn't with us.

Hanifan absolved O'Donoghue of any blame on the missed field goal, explaining the Card has called a fake attempt designed to get a first down on the fourth-and two play.

Holder Benny Perrin saw the Packers' alignment was an NCAA-eligible, and the linemen didn't hear him because of the crowd noise.

"Our problem is that we've got to get some hearing aids," he said. "I'll tell him they'll be blocked. I did see a headline about O'Donoghue costing St. Louis the game. Well, that's wrong."

On the missed conversion, the soccer-style kicker pushed the ball to the left. Hanifan said O'Donoghue has a good record for extra points. He was 32 of 33 for the Cardinals during the past two seasons.

Hanifan said St. Louis' special teams must improve over Sunday's performance, when the Packers nearly broke several punts and the second half kickoff for touchdowns.

"Even in our darkest hours, we've always prided ourselves on our special teams," he said, promising some changes in personnel for this week's home game against the Buffalo Bills. "The good thing about it is that is now that can be rectified."

Stump Mitchell, who rushed for 88 yards on only four carries, will resume his duties as kick-returner once the Cardinals know he and starting tailback Otis Anderson are healthy. Hanifan said Steve Bird, an reserve wide receiver, handled the return chores against Green Bay because of minor leg injuries to Anderson and Mitchell.

Other areas that need improvement include the running game, which Hanifan described as soft. Anderson was bottled up most of the day, gaining 51 of his 18 carries with a long run of 9 yards. Hanifan said he wants his backs to hit the line and get upfield more quickly.

Taylor puts Salukis above personal goals

By Mike Frey

Derrick Taylor may be one of the most talented individuals on the SIU-C football team, but the senior tightback has little regard for personal accomplishments. Taylor, who led the team in rushing last season, accounted for 198 total yards in SIU-C’s opening-season loss to Tulsa, but says he has set no personal goals for himself this season. Instead, he has focused on team goals as he prepares to play his final season in a Saluki uniform.

“I just hope we come to the end of the year with a winning season,” Taylor said. “That’s my goal.”

Taylor said he has worked hard in fall workouts this year than in any of his previous seasons. As a senior, Taylor finds himself in a leadership role and said he is trying to set an example for his younger teammates.

“Last year, I didn’t work as hard,” Taylor said. “But now I’m working hard. You have to come out and practice hard for two hours to get the job done.”

Standing among the most important leaders on the Salukis is head coach Ray Dorr, who has impressed many with his dedication and consistent leadership qualities. Dorr’s leadership is evident when the team faces tough opponents. “He has given us a lot of freedom at team meetings,” Taylor said. “I think he has shown that he can handle tough situations.”

Standing to Taylor’s right is the Saluki football team, which is now a legitimate contender for the Ohio Valley Conference. The team has set its sights on a conference championship, and Taylor is determined to help the team reach that goal.

“I want to lead this team to a conference title,” Taylor said. “I want to make sure that we are competitive every week.”

Taylor’s dedication to the team is evident in his performance on the field. He has been a consistent performer for the Salukis, and his strong performance in the season opener against Tulsa is a good sign for the team’s future.

“I think we have a good chance to win the conference,” Taylor said. “We have a lot of talent on this team, and I think we can make a run at a conference title.”

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a special NCAA committee recommended changing the rule setting strict academic qualifications for freshmen in college sports because a new study shows it discriminates against blacks.

Under the rule, adopted last year, take effect in 1986, freshmen eligibility would require a C average in basic high school subjects such as English, math and science and minimum scores of 700 on SAT college admission exams or 15 on ACT exams.

The study, commissioned by the NCAA’s Special Committee on Academic Research and released at a news conference, said that while only 15 percent of all students do not meet those scores, the failure rate is twice as high for black student athletes.

Gwendolyn Norrell, who headed the committee, said the rule “simply discriminates against a large proportion of our athletes in this country — black athletes — and I personally think we’re going to have to modify it.”

Youngsters forced by academic standards to sit out their freshman years are less likely to be awarded scholarships, thus more likely to be denied college education, Norrell said.

She said the study “convinced me that the traditional academic problems for student-athletes are more sociological than racial.”

Many black males seem to be more interested in a career in professional sports than in pursuing a degree,” she said. “We must develop a means to inform all athletes that less than 1 percent of college football and basketball players will become professional athletes.”

The study looked at all high school and college academic records of more than 16,000 student-athletes who were enrolled as freshman in 1977 and 1982.

Of those admitted in 1977, 69 percent of the black males had standardized test scores “too low to qualify to play sports in their freshman year, although 54 percent of them eventually graduated. This showed the researchers that the standardized test scores were not a good way of predicting who should sit out their freshman year.

“If there is to be a change, I would just guess certainly that test scores is what we would look at,” said committee member Francis W. Bonner of Furman University.

Saluki spikers defeat MSU

The Saluki volleyball team capped a successful Labor Day weekend at Memphis State University by defeating the Tigers in four games Monday night.

The Tigers were trounced by SIU-C in the first game 15-5. MSU played strongly in the next two games, losing the second game 15-12 and winning the third game 15-9. The Salukis showed no sympathy the fourth game, however, blasting the Tigers 15-2, to win the match.

Outstanding performances were turned in by Saluki outside hitters Linda Smoker, who was credited with 10 kills, Pat Nicholson and Chris Boyd, who both had eight kills. Setter Lisa Cummins earned 31 assists in the match. Cummins also sent eight straight serves over the net during a Saluki scoring streak.

Despite having five starters returning, MSU lacked bench strength because of a small roster, said Saluki volleyball coach Debbie Hunter.

Assistant Coach Sonya Locke was pleased with her team’s play and said, “They had super block.”

The team will travel north for a match against Loyola Thursday night, and matches against DePaul University, Rhode Island, the University of Illinois-Chicago and Northwestern University at the Northwestern Quad this weekend.

The Salukis are 2-0 overall this season.
