Board may require ID training for bars

By Deedra Lawhead
Staff Writer

Bartenders, waitresses, doormen and clerks may have to attend a ID training session before they can serve or sell alcohol in bars or stores.

The Liquor Advisory Board will adopt mandatory ID training for liquor establishment employees at 5:30 tonight in City Hall, Conference Room A.

In May, the City Council asked the board to look into the issue and recommended what should be done when the pitche r ban was repealed, Carl Flowers, member of the board, said.

Since June, the board has discussed using videotape or members of the Police Department to teach employees how to read ID cards. The training session would take one to two hours.

The board also has discussed bicycle bureaucracy.

Nicaragua promises to take part in peace plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Minister Humberto Ortega vowed Wednesday that Nicaragua would participate in a regional peace plan, but said the Sandinistas would not "negotiate away" the gains of the revolution. In a speech on the 6th anniversary of the founding of the Sandinista army, Ortega said Nicaragua rejected the United States and would not go to war. After the Sandinistas overthrew rightist dictatorship of Anastasio Somoza on July 19, 1979, and named themselves after Augusto Sandino, who formed a guerrilla army in 1927 to fight U.S. Marines occupying Nicaragua.

Canadian workers target Chrysler for strike

TORONTO (UPI) — The Canadian Auto Workers union Wednesday targeted Chrysler Corp.'s Canadian subsidiary for a strike if contract talks fail, raising the possibility of widespread disruption in the North American auto industry. Union president Robert White said Chrysler Canada Ltd.'s 10,000 employees would strike at four plants in Ontario province if a contract is not reached by midnight Sept. 14 when a two-year agreement expires.

Jackson to announce plans on campaign trail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson will announce whether he will seek the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination during the three-city campaign swing on Labor Day, an aide said Wednesday. Jackson, who is expected to make his second bid for the White House, has scheduled appearances in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and New York to make his announcement.

Judge denies request to suppress confession

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI) — The judge in the court-martial of Marine Staff Sgt. Robert Stufflebeam refused Wednesday to suppress a confession that the former guard at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow had sex with Soviet prostitutes. Defense attorney James Bagley argued that Stufflebeam was tricked into admitting to sexual encounters as part of a bigger international investigation into the "sex-and-secrets" scandal in the Marine Corps.

Teachers' strikes leave thousands out of class

United Press International

Teachers striking in six states brought the number of students kept out of class Wednesday to nearly 250,000, and negotiations were deadlocked in Detroit, site of the nation's biggest strike. Some 16,000 educators and support staff were involved in 22 separate disputes in Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Idaho and Washington state, affecting 274,465 students. The nation's largest walkout was in Detroit, where 11,500 public school teachers struck Monday.

Airlines ordered to disclose flight records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole ordered major American carriers Wednesday to disclose their records of flight delays and mishandled baggage. Dole told a news conference a new department rule will provide consumers with information so they can make informed choices among flights that are on time and cause airlines to be more responsive. The rule, first proposed last November, is the largest domestic airlines to report to the Transportation Department their on-time performance records for each nonstop flight serving the 57 largest airports in the continental United States.

Know-how exchange final with Taiwanese university
By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer
Students and faculty members from SIU-C and Taiwan's National Cheng Kung University now can officially exchange know-how in the engineering and business fields.

NCKU President Han-Min Hsia and SIU-C President John C. Guyon sealed the exchange agreement at a formal ceremony Wednesday in Guyon's office at Anthony Hall.

"We had an informal exchange for a period of time," and now it's time for formal sessions, Hsia said.

Guyon welcomed the agreement as a way for SIU-C to "enhance its economic development with a high-quality university."

"Business and engineering should be prime movers in this area and the exchange should help us identify our capabilities and talents," he said.

The exchange agreement will specifically link NCKU with SIU-C's colleges of Business and Administration and Engineering and Technology.

Students and faculty members taking part in the exchange will work on research activities and hold joint conferences and workshops.

Taiwanese are the sixth-largest group of international students at SIU-C, with a current enrollment of about 80. Hsia said one of the major factors NCKU chose SIU-C for the exchange was the alumni ties. Many Taiwanese students have degrees from SIU-C and are doing well in Taiwan, he said.

The exchange may even eventually extend to other fields, Hsia said.

Thomas Gutteridge, dean of the College of Business and Administration, said his college already has benefited from the exchange. Two Taiwanese students are enrolled in the college's graduate program.

Informal faculty exchanges already have begun. Frederick Wu, chairman of the Accountancy department, taught in Taiwan for four weeks this summer. He is originally from Tainan, Taiwan, where NCKU is located.

Guyon said the exchange is perhaps the most active of the University's exchanges, and he is looking forward to this exchange being "one of our most profitable."

GPSC postpones decision
By Robert York
Staff Writer
The Graduate and Professional Student Council postponed a vote on a resolution stating its felt it was not in the best interest of GPSC to post this resolution, pending a vote on a resolution stating its opposition to the mid-year tuition increase for the spring semester.

Darrell Johnson, president of GPSC, said Wednesday night that University President John C. Guyon has said that more funds would be needed to make it through the year.

Members suggested seeking financial aid from the Alumni Association and local businesses.

Paul Antonacci, vice president of Graduate School Affairs, said the issue is when the tuition will increase, not if it will be increased.

However, Johnson said he will tell the Board of Trustees at its September meeting that the council discussed three possibilities in the search for a resolution.

He said he will suggest the Board not increase tuition because there is a concern that the state would not appropriate funding for the University later.

Another option he will suggest is for the Board to institute a minimal tuition increase, and then roll back tuition later if the state Legislature decides to appropriate funds to cover a 4 percent budget cut.

Cuts will spur SPC to shape up its act

The undergraduate student organization's decision to cut the Student Programming Council's 1987-88 budget may be the last straw that could benefit all involved. SPC will be scrambling this year after getting $87,000 in funding from the USO instead of the $197,000 it requested. But less funding may be the best motivation SPC needs to tighten up its programming and more vigorously fight for students' attention.

About 200 events will have to be canceled from the SPC agenda because of the $20,000 lost in the budget cut, on top of a $6,500 debt incurred last year. With all of this to face, those at SPC will have to look for what it may have been doing wrong and do something about it.

Finding Their Self-Promotion has been lacking in the past. SPC has launched a publicity awareness campaign to increase exposure to the organization and hopefully regain funds from the USO. SPC's decision to begin self-promotion is a sound move, and one that may not have been made if USO hadn't decided to make them sweat.

An awareness campaign should mark an improvement in attendance at SPC-sponsored events, as it often does in other marketing situations. In any case, it will be an improvement from previous years — when the council made no attempt to reach students through promotions and merely resigned itself to waiting for students to come to it.

Along with developing a promotional campaign, SPC also will be forced to pick and improve its programming in order to make every dollar count. The saying goes that nothing fosters creativity like starvation, and SPC will have to program creatively to book attractive, quality entertainment on a smaller budget. It's likely that as SPC is forced to program less, and more creativity will be forced from previous years — when the council made no attempt to reach students through promotions and merely resigned itself to waiting for students to come to it.

Which Makes for Better Programming and a Better Image of SPC in the eyes of the student. All of this can only raise attendance figures and benefit the organization as well as the students.

With all of the forces competing for a student's time, money and interest, forcing SPC to develop a quality program and effectively market it can only serve the students' interests more effectively.

Opinions from elsewhere

The Advisor, Montgomery, Ala.

Here's hoping that former presidential hopeful Gary Hart has more sense than to jump back into the 1988 presidential campaign.

The whole affair looks like someone's crackpot trial balloon. You know, the second-level staffer floats the idea in the press, leaving the candidate room to climb aboard if it flies, or to drop it like a hot rock if it doesn't.

The idea of Hart riding back to single-handedly reshape the issues agenda is a lame one. Despite his abilities, Hart would not be allowed to address real issues than Ted Kennedy was in 1980.

Gary Hart is young enough and smart enough that he may yet return to the national stage, perhaps as a presidential candidate. But this is fiction. A real world would inflict damage on Hart, his family and his political party.

Not all students can walk to school

The editorial suggested the Women's Night Safety Transit, but it begins running at 7 p.m. until late in October. Many night classes begin at 5 or 6:30 p.m. So women who live outside campus will still have to drive to classes for over half the semester. And the transit service is only free to those who have handicaps or injuries. It costs $1.35 for a one-way trip, or $2.70 both ways. That would be about $54.00 a month.

Beauty and ecology are wonderful, but SUCU is a University that fulfills the function of education. It is not a park. Fitness and responsible driving should be the rule, but fitness cannot be equated with parking or not parking.

In the final analysis, money should be spent on parking — a necessity for a large portion of the student body. Instead of spending money on projects that accommodate just a few individuals, use the money where it will benefit the people who pay for the services of SUCU: the students and their parking problems. -- Key Teter Riesch, graduate student, sociology.

Pedestrians need to stay on their own turf

To all students walking across the bridge connecting University Park to the rest of the campus: stay out of the bike lane!

On my way to work Tuesday, I was furiously trying to avoid the pedestrians walking in the bike lane. Once I was almost forced off the bridge while trying to avoid an accident.

What amazed me was that there were more pedestrians walking in the bike lane than there were in the pedestrian lane.

I guess our 800 freshmen don't realize that the lane closest to the Physical Plant is reserved for bicyclists and the lane closest to the Strip is reserved for pedestrians. This system is designed for the cyclists' and pedestrians' safety. These lanes are clearly marked. Please try to stay in the correct lane. There is plenty of room.

Every year there is an accident. Let's avoid another one. -- Jerry Kindred, senior, mathematics.

Sources: U.S. supplying Iraq with spy plane data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is assisting Iraq against its Iranian offshore targets in the Persian Gulf and with intelligence gathered by American-maned AWACS radar planes based in Turkey, administration sources said Wednesday.

Also included in the administration's intelligence sharing with Iraq is data "supporting the movement of Iraqi forces," provided by U.S. spy planes based in Britain, Turkey, and Cyprus, these sources said.

A State Department spokesman declined to discuss intelligence sharing, but said the department and the White House continued to deny a United Press International report Tuesday that the administration is encouraging or assisting Iraq's renewed attacks.

The "tobacco use policy," if approved by a 11-member task force today, would limit indoor smoking and outdoor smoking at public events.

Several administration officials and a former State Department intelligence chief expressed concern that a secret U.S. policy to aid and encourage Iraq to escalate its renewed "tanker war" against Iran might have dangerous and unforeseen consequences.

One government intelligence source said the support of Iraqi vessels off the Iranian coast has been coordinated between the National Security Council, the State Department and the Defense Department, sources said.

Philip Stoddard, a former State Department official who now serves as a consultant to the government, described the U.S. position as "hopelessly tilted toward Iraq."

Civil Service Employees Council supports tobacco ban on campus

The Civil Service Employees Council (CSEC) resolution that would eventually ban tobacco from campus, but took no action on a proposal to ban alcohol from campus events beginning next year.

The "tobacco use policy," if approved by a 11-member task force today, would limit indoor smoking and outdoor tobacco use at public events.

One government intelligence source said the support of Iraqi vessels off the Iranian coast has been coordinated between the National Security Council, the State Department and the Defense Department, sources said.

Another council member said that an alcohol ban would help erase the image of a smoke-and-tobacco-free campus and help the administration get along with a "tougher executive and a tobacco policy advisory committee."

The committee will advise Guyon on how to meet a goal of a smoke-and-tobacco-free campus five years from now, according to a rough draft of the proposal presented to the council.

The School of Technical Careers and the School of Medicine already have designated smoking areas in their buildings.

David Saunders, chairman of the council and public information specialist in the STC dean's office, said the proposal would ban indoor smoking by 1996 and also ban the sale of cigarettes or tobacco products in University publications.

Guyon told the council test vote on a proposed revision of the alcohol policy, because some members had not seen the revisions.

Guyon said that any alcohol ban would help erase the image of the University's party school more than at other universities.

more money this year than last year? Phone costs will go up; walk-in hours are down.

"At the most we will look to recover the amount lost in buget cuts," Guyon said. "I don't know if we have a number, but we'll take $100-per-student to make up the revenue lost through budget cuts."

Employees, on the other hand, are asking a lot about spending the money generated by the rise in tuition.

"The feeling is there will be a rise in tuition," said David Saunders, chairman of the Civil Service Employee's Council.

Guyon told the council that any additional money received could not be used for any area where it was cut and should be "spent" such as salaries.

"We could take it back toward the payroll area where we cut salaries or strike a balance," he said.

The budget for utilities, contractual services such as renovation and repair and equipment purchases will be cut in response to the governor's budget cuts, Guyon said.
EPA reprimands scientist for freeing bacteria

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The EPA revoked Wednesday that a scientist studied by the agency last week for releasing genetically altered bacteria outdoors without permission also released altered bacteria in 1984.

Plant pathologist Gary Strobel told the Environmental Protection Agency in a letter August 10 that he had released genetically altered soil bacteria in South Dakota, Nebraska, California and Montana in field tests of a mold strain of Rhizohem molloti that he hoped would enrich the soil.

Strobel, an Agriculture Department plant pathologist, said he was "doofus that (Strobel) could have caused an environmental calamity, but the truth is, nobody's really sure." He said that in the first trials of altered organisms in the environment it is important to "be careful until you see how these survive and compete in the environment."

Strobel, of Montana State University, said in his letter he released the bacteria before the EPA or the Agriculture Department issued the present regulations prohibiting the release of genetically engineered organisms in the environment.

Strobel said an agriculture official at the time of the release that he did not believe the techniques he used to create the soil bacteria made it subject to any rules.

The proposal is an attempt to hire a management training program. The program will be the first to deal with the problem, "be in operation in a futility," Hogan said.

"We'd constantly be repeating, repeating, repeating as personnel changed." As of July 31, the latest available figures for 1987, Carbondale police have made 61 arrests for possession and consumption of alcohol by a minor.

The turnover rate of employees. "We would be training people almost constantly," he said. "It would be an operation in futility," Hogan said. "We'd constantly be repeating, repeating, repeating as personnel changed."

Victims' relatives admonish Speck

JOLIET (UPI) - Thirty anguished relatives and friends of eight student nurses slain by Richard Speck 21 years ago in a savage slaying that shocked the nation's heartland gathered at a fair in the town where the mass murderer was killed to ask the Illinois governor to talk to them about Speck and his victims.

"We don't want him out to kill again," said Robert Fabri, who lost 17-year-old daughter, Carol Jean, among the eight women Speck killed July 13, 1966.

"We want to save lives," he added.

"The parole of Richard Speck is the main concern," said former classmate of the slain nurses, Mary L. Grosack, 21 years old, whose 20-year-old daughter, Krista, was among Speck's victims, told the Illinois Prisoner Review Board. "We want to save lives."

"To me it's absurd that parole is even an option," Mr. Fabri said. His father, Richard Fabri Jr., also was killed by Speck.

"What a cruel thing it would be to have to testify."

"I do not wish to be present for any portion of the hearing," Speck, whose "Born to Exec" tattooed arm led to his capture, said in the waiver.

While Speck chose to stay in the call for the fifth time since 1976, when he attended his first parole hearing, the trial attorney for the state, said there were too many witnesses to have them all appear before the board.

"I do not wish to be present for any portion of the hearing," Speck, whose "Born to Exec" tattooed arm led to his capture, said in the waiver.

Governor to talk at Du Quoin Fair

Fair goers at the Du Quoin State Fair will have a chance to question Gov. James R. Thompson, who will be the guest at WSIL-FM's "Continuing Education Day," from 6 to 7 tonight.

The show will originate from the State Fair Coliseum at the fair and will have an open microphone for questions from the audience under the canopy of the dome.

"We are anxious to bring our fair goers up-to-date on the activities of the administration," said Governor Thompson.

Newspaper and television stations will broadcast the show, which is free to the public.

Speck, 45, for the fifth time, returned to see his accusers at the parole hearing. The three-member board met at the maximum-security Stateville Correctional Center, where Speck has served the past 21 years, indicated the full 10-month board would issue its parole decision Sept. 9.

The souvenir program for the Du Quoin State Fair contains a special bonus for connoisseurs of fine food in the form of about 30 coupons, which if redeemed, carry a value of up to $20.

One vendor, the Chicago Gourmet, located next to the Miller Beer tent, is offering a discount to SIU students who present their student I.D. card. The student discount offer includes a 16 ounce soft drink for 50 cents, a 32 ounce fountain drink for $1 and cotton candy for 75 cents.

For food such as "steak-on-a-stick," "catfish-on-a-stick," "hamburgers," "barbecued beef and corn dogs are included in the coupon offer.

Most of the coupons entice consumers to "buy one and get another one for 50 cents free."

The better coupon deals offer a free soft drink, lemon shake-up, or ice tea with the purchase of a sandwich and fries or a funnel cake.

There are also coupons for merchandise such as windsocks, spats and portable wardrobes, as well as electronic game arcade tokens.

The souvenir program can be purchased for $1. Coupons will also be included in the programs for Sunday's auto race.

Contrasting musical styles clashed at the Du Quoin State Fair grandstand show as a traditional Chicago rhythm and blues band opened for former Doobie Brother Michael McDonald’s high-tech, top-40 oriented act.

The crowd was still filing in when the Mellow Fellows band warmed up the grandstand Tuesday night with its heated brand of Chicago blues, featuring the electric organ of Sid Wingfield, tenor saxophonist Terry Ogolini and lead guitarist Pete Special.

After a song, which highlighted Wingfield’s energetic organ playing and singing, Larry “Big Twist” Nolan strutted out. His large frame was covered in his trademark outfit: three-piece suit and white Panama hat. He stepped up to the microphone and said with gentlemanly blue charm, “It’s good to be home again.”

Although the band is now based in Chicago, Southern Illinois is truly home to Big Twist. He met Mellow Fellows, Ogolini and Special during the early 1970s in Carbondale. Twist spent most of the fifties singing and playing drums in local bars and roadhouses.

“Hey, boy, baby I’m your boy,” Twist said delict as he lowered his gruff, gravely voice into his signature tune, Willie Dixon’s blues classic, “300 Pounds of Heavenly Joy.”

The Mellow Fellows are a tight group. There were moments during their short set when Twist would hail his big voice and step back from the microphone and let the band work.

Melnin’s tenor sax solos were especially devastating. His horns were bookended by a high note that is usually the smaller soprano sax’s territory. The big sound, however, though it would burst, sending backshrapnel into the audience.

Just as the band and audience started to groove off of each other, Twist announced, "We need to get out of the way for Mr. Michael McDonald." Some members of the crowd shouted their disapproval of Twist’s leaving. "We want more Big Twist." However, Twist and his band left the stage.

Traditional Chicago rhythm and blues then gave way to the hi-tech sound of Top-40 oriented music. Headline act

Michael McDonald came out and after adjusting himself behind his keyboard and strapping on a portable keyboard, he said "Hello Illinois.

The ensuing sounds bombarded the audience with big beats. Even Thad, Twist’s sax had come on strong, but McDonald seemed determined to appear even stronger. The decibel level climbed to levels that are beyond hearing with heavy metal concerts.

While McDonald and his six-piece combo of two keyboardists, guitarist, saxophonist, bassist and drummer played well together, the overall sound was too boom too boom for the Du Quoin grandstand. McDonald’s vocals were often obscured by the heavy-handed drums and bass.

The crowd did enjoy McDonald’s selection though. His show included both new solo material and old Doobie hits such as "Shine a Little Freedom" and "Minute By Minute." He closed his set with a soulful cover of Percy Sledge’s "When A Man Loves A Woman.

While McDonald played and sung well, clearly getting down to entertaining the audience, the contrast of his music against Big Twist’s was too much. He and his band didn’t put the emotion, personality and drive into their music as the Mellow Fellows had.

After McDonald finished his set, Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows returned to treat the audience to an encore. Twist was later seen that evening in Carbondale, standing at the bar of Hangar 9, enjoying the music of the local cover band, Boom Scene.

Although he agreed that his appearance at DuQuoin was a bit brief, he had respectful words for McDonald.

"He’s a fine musician," said Twist. He also said he was looking forward to playing longer at the Student Center’s E-Night and he will appear with fellow Alligator Records artist, blues queen Koko Taylor.

"That’ll be our show," he added.

Teen-ager on fast track to doctorate

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Andy Fingerhut skipped high school, breezed through college and jumped straight into a doctoral program in computer science at Washington University. Fingerhut is 18.

After taking classes at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville at age 11, while still in junior high school, Fingerhut decided to cut the next four years of classes.

"I went to SIU part time in junior high school before I went full time, so I knew I could take classes there," he said in a recent telephone interview.

Based on his scores in the Scholastic Aptitude Test and completion of college-level algebra and biology courses, Fingerhut was offered an SIU presidential scholarship, one of 20 awarded SIU freshmen.

"I had a scholarship that paid for all tuition, and a job at the computer lab that paid for books and food," he said.

Fingerhut, who lives with his family on their farm in Fairmont City, graduated from SIU this spring with a 4.8 grade point average on a scale of 5, majoring in computer science and physics.

Despite his academic maturity, Fingerhut is a typical teenager in many ways, his father said.

Like many other youths, he plays Dungeons and Dragons, stays up all hours of the night and sleeps all day, said John Fingerhut, a former and data processor at the St. Clair County courthouse in Belleville, Ill.

Commission gives OK to multi-state lottery

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — The Kansas Lottery Commission has authorized its director to enter Kansas in a multi-state lottery designed to award larger cash prizes than individual state lotteries can offer, a spokeswoman said

Wednesday.

On a unanimous vote, the five-member commission adopted a resolution that gives Executive Director Larry Montgomery the authority to enter Kansas in the multi-state lottery if he decides the move is prudent, said Nancy Zogelman, lottery spokeswoman.

Montgomery must make his decision by Sept. 16, when states interested in joining the lottery are scheduled to meet in Washington D.C. At least nine states have announced an interest in joining, but New York and Illinois — two of the biggest in population — have run into problems that could prevent them from participating.

Zogelman said the other states are Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, Oregon, Rhode Island, West Virginia and Montana, along with the District of Columbia.

Montgomery has been a supporter of the multi-state lottery, saying the potential for large prizes would encourage people to play the game, thus boosting Kansas lottery revenue.

Based on the lottery's sales, Fingerhut was a typical teenager in many ways, his father said.

Like many other youths, he plays

Dungeons and Dragons, stays up all hours of the night and sleeps all day, said John

Fingerhut, a former and data processor

at the St. Clair County courthouse in Belleville, Ill.

Infection-fighting protein may help AIDS patients

BOSTON (UPI) — A natural protein given intravenously raised white blood cell levels in AIDS patients, a study showed Tuesday, providing a new way for victims of the disease as well as cancer patients to fight off life-threatening secondary infections.

The study, done at the Massachusetts General Hospital, may provide hope for those who are infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) and the cancerous cells of leukemia and lymphoma.

"This is important in terms of evidence that the white blood cell count in man can be regulated," said Dr. Jerome Groopman. "The implications for AIDS, cancer and bone marrow transplant patients are pretty broad."

Groopman is chief of hematology at New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston and associate professor of medicine at Harvard School of Medical Sciences.

The protein stimulates muscle and bone marrow to produce two types of white blood cells that are crucial to the body's defense against disease. Production of these cells is severely reduced by cancer chemotherapy and in patients who require bone marrow transplants.

Bone marrow is a site of white blood cell production.

The AIDS virus, when it enters the body, causes monocytopenia and lymphocytopenia.

This can be regulated by a protein that is believed to naturally regulate the white cell count," said Dr. Jerome Groopman. "The implications for AIDS, cancer and bone marrow transplant patients are pretty broad."

Agency locates runaways, teaches parents safety tips

By Tracy Barton

Helping find missing or runaway children and educating both adults and children about potentially dangerous situations are the main goals of the Illinois State Enforcement Agencies to Runaways and Missing Children program, said Neal Jacobson, project director for I-SEARCH in two Southern Illinois counties.

According to a report published in 1983 by the Department of Health and Human Services, 1.3 million children are missing each year. Jacobson said 241 out of 245 missing children from Jackson and Union counties have been found through the I-SEARCH program since it began here in 1985. Four children still are missing.

The I-SEARCH program, headquartered in Springfield, is part of the Illinois Department of State police.

"Illinois was a leader in forming a network of state and local agencies whose main purpose is to provide education for both children and adults, and also to investigate a missing, abused or exploited child," Jacobson said.

Only about one percent of missing children cases are stranger abductions, according to the I-SEARCH agency. The agency also said 96 percent of missing children are runaways. Parental abductions account for 3 percent of missing children.

Many steps are taken when a child is missing, Jacobson said.

First, a report is filed that describes the child's physical characteristics, his or her hobbies and places the child often goes. Police also talk to the child's friends, Jacobson said.

Second, information about the child is entered into the Law Enforcement Data System and given to the National Crime Information Center in Washington, D.C.

After police have an idea of where the child might be, they notify the local police agency and forward photo and a description of the child.

Jacobson said the majority of runaways stay nearby, but runaways from this area have been found as far away as Texas and Florida.

Jacobson warned that children who run away, the majority of which are in their early teens, risk being exploited and abused, either physically or sexually. Runaways risk being enlisted into gangs or prostitution, he said.

I-SEARCH's goals in finding runaways are to discover why they ran, where they go and what happens to them while they are gone.

The majority of runaways return home on their own or are recovered by a police agency, he said.

In Jackson and Union counties in 1986, 75 children were reported missing. Of these, 74 were runaways. Thirteen ran from shelter homes or foster homes.

When runaways are found or return on their own, the investigation is not over, Jacobson said.

Although most do not need medical attention, referrals to a doctor or psychologist can be made by I-SEARCH or another agency. Jacobson said his I-SEARCH unit works in conjunction with the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, the National Center for Missing Children and Hill House, a local agency that helps children.

I-SEARCH presents programs about child safety to grades schools, day care centers, churches and civic groups free of charge.

"All programs are designed to inform the audience," Jacobson said, ranging from pre-schoolers to adults.

McGruff, the famous anti-crime dog, goes with a police officer when the presentation is being made to children.

Jacobson said there is no particular "look" or characteristic of someone who might try to abduct a child.

Director calls insurance crisis hoax

Assembly's profit, losses report misses deadline
By Dana Schulte
Staff Writer

"The so-called insurance crisis is no more than a hoax perpetrated against the Illinois General Assembly and the consuming public," said Steve Banker, staff director of the Southern Counties Action Movement, at a press conference Tuesday.

Wearing a button reading "Stop the Insurance Ripoff," Banker said the Illinois Department of Insurance has failed to meet its August 15 deadline to disclose a report on the industry's real losses and profits. The purpose of the report was to provide the Illinois General Assembly with accurate information so it could assess the true nature of the so-called insurance crisis, Banker said.

The Illinois Department of Insurance is responsible for regulating insurance companies. A spokesperson for the department said they receive phone calls "eight hours a day" from people who feel they have just reason to complain about their insurance companies.

The only real insurance crisis in Illinois is the exorbitant cost of the insurance industries and their refusal to offer coverage to anyone the think may make a claim for benefits, Banker said.

A report compiled by the Coalition for Consumer Rights, of which SCAM, a Herald-based citizen group is a member, shows an increase of 242 percent in profits for the first six months of 1987. This increase makes a total of $6.5 million, triple the profit for the first six months in 1986. Despite this increase, the report shows that insurance rates continue to climb for policy holders. During the first six months of 1987 policy holders of auto insurance paid 9.5 percent more than they did last year, making the total increase of auto insurance rates almost 61 percent for the last five years, Banker said.

"The Illinois Department of Insurance has demonstrated contempt for the Legislature and an unwillingness to take even minimal steps to protect consumers from unjust insurance rates."

—Steve Banker

Homeowners insurance has increased 3.8 percent over last year, he said.

Illinois accounted for 5.88 percent of insurance industry profit for the first half of 1987, making the contribution of Illinois households $3.82 million, Banker said.

By not releasing a report of its insurance rate increases and its profits, Banker said, "the Illinois Department of Insurance has demonstrated both contempt for the Legislature and an unwillingness to take even minimal steps to protect consumers from unjust insurance rates."

There are 292 insurance companies in Illinois, more than that found in any other state, Banker said. Yet, Illinois is one of the few states that place no regulations on insurance rates. "One wonders what the $9.5 million annually budgeted Department of Insurance does," Banker said.

"Insurance Companies charge outrageous premiums on one hand while refusing to provide insurance on the other. We feel it is past time that our public officials took action."
Men golfers scramble for spot

By Todd Mounce Staff Writer

The Salukis men's golf team, which finished fourth in the Missouri Valley Conference last year, added four freshman to the team after losing five of its veterans over the summer.

Team co-captains Jay Sala and Mike Tu were joined by Clark Dixon, Todd Eastin and Mark Maslak.

According to coach Lew Hartog, the team is usually restricted to playing only five golfers per tournament, so continuous qualifying is necessary in order to keep the best players competing. The Monday and Tuesday following each qualifier, the team will scramble for spot at the final tournament.

"I think we will be a better team this year than last year," Hartog said.

Although it's hard for Hartog to rate his players so early in the season, he tabbed Jeff Mullican, 22, as the No. 1 golfer so far. Mullican, a former business major, carded a 77.6 average last season with a low score of 70. Twist.

Mullican's greatest strength is his consistent play, Hartog said.

According to Hartog, Mike Cowen, 19, and Tom Neuman are ranked even by Hartog. Cowen, 19, carded a 79.44 average last season with a low score of 75. Cowen, a sophomore in business, had a stomach virus over the summer and lost valuable practice time. The virus still affects Cowen's play, Hartog said.

Neuman, 21, carried a 81.22 average last season and sported a low of 73. Neuman is capable of having an outstanding season, Hartog said.

Mike Tu, 19, carded a 79.33 average last season with a low score of 75. Kolisek is a senior pre-dentistry major from Benton.

Brett Dees, 21, carded a 81.1 average last season and had a low score of 71. Dees is a junior electronics technology major from West Frankfort.

One new player is Mark Bellas of Addison, who is described by Hartog as "long off the tee."

Hartog rates Mark Metivier and Brit Pavelonis as even. Metivier, from Vandalia, was eighth in the Class A state championship last year. Brit Pavelonis, younger brother of veteran Saluki linkster Bob Pavelonis, it's good golfing experience as well, Hartog said.

Jamie McNair also has a golfing background. McNair follows in the footsteps of his father, Leon, who was a Saluki golfer in the 1960s.

Ex-Salukis get waivered

Ralph Van Dyke and Saren Tippey, members of last year's Saluki football team, were waivered by their NFL teams Monday. Van Dyke, a tackle, was waived by the Atlanta Falcons after being chosen in the fourth round.

Tippey, a wide receiver, was waivered by the Dallas Cowboys after joining them as a free agent. Last season at SIU-C he caught 25 passes for 356 yards and four touchdowns.

Both players were waived in the next-to-last cut of the season.

Injuries plague spiker team

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Injury problems continue to mount for the Saluki volleyball team, and head coach Debbie Hueter is at wit’s end trying to prepare for the home-opener at 7 p.m. Thursday night against Tennessee in Davies Gym.

“People who know me well think I’m stretched out,” Hueter said. “It’s been a very bizarre week. I can’t commit myself to specifics — I’m problem solving every minute.

“The bottom line is that I’m still focused on our team and I can’t even concentrate on any specific opponent,” Hueter said.

Here is an example of the Salukis’ personnel difficulties.

Three players — Sue Sinclair (right knee), Amy Johnson (vertebra) and Teri Noble (tendonitis) — have been out for nearly a week.

Or Monday, freshman Lori Simpson left practice with an apparent injury to her left foot. By Tuesday, though, the trainer said Simpson wasn’t injured.

Good news, until moments later when Joann Wallenberg reported that she was coming down with a cold.

Probable starters are Dawn Thompson at the setter, Nina Brackin and Dorothy Buchanan at middle blocker, Beth Winsett and Joann Wallenberg at outside hitter and either Simpson or freshman Margaret Cooney in the last hitter’s slot.

If it’s any consolation, Tennessee is also looking for bedfellows, but for a different reason. Three players — senior Donna Maranix, Moreen Skalitzky and Barb Mannix — have left the Lady Volunteers with a roster of seven.

First-year coach Sandy Lynn said in a press release press release that “without being negative, I don’t think we’re ready to play right now.”

Tennessee, which posted a 22-13 record last year, has only one senior, Laurie Careher, a 5-5 setter. Two sophomores and a freshman are expected to fill out the roster.

Lynn formerly coached at Illinois State, where she led the Redbirds to four consecutive Gateway titles. Hueter said that Lynn will have the Vol ready come game time.

“I’ve never seen Sandy get anything but the most from her players. She’s got good athletes. They tend to override us and they play defense as well as any team,” Hueter said.

The Salukis and the Lady Vols last met on Sept. 30, 1983 in Knoxville, Tenn. Tennessee won in three straight games, 15-7, 15-12, 15-8. The series is tied at 3-3.

The Salukis are 0-2 after being blitzed by sixth-ranked Illinois and a tough Notre Dame squad.

Funny looking Birkenstock sandals

You’ve probably heard of them. They’re the sandals that more than three million people swear by. The sandals with a 270-year tradition. Funny looking, sure. But Birkenstocks shapes to your feet like soft sand, making them the most comfortable sandals in the world for work, home and play.

They give you proper support without getting in the way of normal foot and leg movement. They improve your posture and circulation to let you walk healthier, more naturally. And they last and last. Birkenstock. Made funny looking so you can smile more wearing them. 20 years and women’s styles in prefer. $18.00 colors. You’ve gone without them long enough.
Women harriers sport potent lineup

With the return of cross country standout seniors Vivian Sinou and junior Lisa Judicek, Coach Don DeNeon thinks the 1987 women's team has the talent and drive to capture the Gateway Conference title.

"I have a feeling that this team can put five people in the top ten in conference. The top two should be Vivian and Lisa," DeNeon said.

Leadership for the squad should come from Sinou, who set the school record 5,000-meter cross country record of 16:52 last year, and from Judicek, who has the fifth-fastest cross country time in SIU-C history. Sinou won six of eight regular season meets last year.

Only five letter-winners out of a seventeen members team return to the squad this year. However, four of this year's runners rank in the SIU-C all-time top twenty-five: Sinou, Judicek, sophomore Amber Wiencek and sophomore Cathy Brown. Kelly Flynn and Michelle Sciano, both freshmen, also join the cross country cart.

Sinou and Judicek hold the top spots, but five open spots are still undecided. Likely candidates are Brown, who ranked fifth on the team last year, and top recruit Jane Schumacher, who placed second in the national junior college track and field championships in the 1,500-meters last year at Parkland Junior College.

"We're expecting a good meet this weekend," DeNeon said. "Murray State returns almost intact from last year when we beat them in two of three meets. I expect Vivian to be far ahead and I wouldn't be surprised if Lisa finishes second." DeNeon.

The cross country team opens its season at 1 p.m. Sept. 5, against Murray State and Eastern Illinois in Murray, Ky.

Plans for '87 Tailgate bigger, better than '86

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The athletics department wants this year's Great Saluki Tailgate to be bigger and better than the inaugural event held in 1986.

"We're trying to build an extravaganza," said Bruce McCutcheon, assistant athletics director for marketing and promotions. "Coming to a football game should be a full day's event, with fun, family activity and picnicking."

The Tailgate will be held Sept. 12 at McDermott Stadium as part of the Southwest Missouri State football game.

Last year's Tailgate for the Youngstown State game drew an estimated 25,000 spectators to the stadium area and 15,100 in game attendance - the largest home crowd of the season.

"We were 2,000 shy of capacity last year. We feel we can fill it this year," McCutcheon said.

The Tailgate is a themed tailgate party competition in which entries are judged on the basis of creativity, originality and consistency of theme. Decorations, quality of costume, food and vehicles are also considered.

"We had a tremendous amount of involvement from the students, especially from the recognized student organizations. Indications are the same for this year already there have been numerous entries and people are talking about it." McCutcheon said.

All entries are judged in one or four categories. They are as follows: the Student Competition, open to all SJU-C students only, the students choose a group size and then make up their theme; the Traditional Saluki Tailgate, where conventional tailgating activities are featured; the Saluki Showtime, where ten minutes are allotted for the performance of a skit, dance, game or other activity, and the Saluki Business Spirit, in which businesses and non-profit organizations can exhibit their spirit with a theme.

The grand prize is a four-day trip for eight to Fresno, Calif., for the SIU-Fresno State football game. Runner-up receives a four-day trip for eight to the Lake of the Ozarks.

The official entry deadline is Sept. 4.

New turf and track wins praise from coaches

By Dave Miller
Staff writer

McAndrew Stadium’s renovation will make it the second-best athletic complex among state schools, ranking only behind The University of Illinois’ Memorial Stadium, Ray Dorf, head football coach, said.

The renovation brought the football team a new artificial surface. The track teams received a state-of-the-art track. Gone is the faded carpet with the split seams that resembled a football field and the old track, which had more potholes than a city street.

The new surfaces are a "moral booster" to the teams, Charlotte West, interim athletic director, said.

She said the renovation will cost the University more than $1 million by the time it is completed for in 1995.

Although the football and track teams will receive the primary benefits of the renovation, the entire University will get a chance to take advantage of the new surfaces. The intramural track meet to be held in the spring will take place at McAndrew Stadium, Buddy Goldammer, coordinator of intramural sports, said.

In addition, joggers will be able to run on a five-foot running lane, which will be located on the inside of the track next to lane one.

Assistant athletic director Mike Perkins, in charge of facility management and scheduling, said it took SporTech International five weeks over the summer to install the new surface.

Perkins said Intracor still has to lay a red, rubberized surface on the track’s asphalt base. He said the track should be completed by the beginning of October.

All the coaches agreed that the newly installed surfaces will have a positive effect on their athletes.

"It (the new turf) will have a tremendous impact on our track," Dorf said.

The new turf is safer since the impact is lessened by being spread over a larger area, Dorf said. The field had a more natural grass feeling and will drain better.

The field has an asphalt base covered with a layer of sand. The actual synthetic turf, called Omnitrack, lies on top of the padding. A layer of sand supports the fibers of synthetic turf. Perkins said a total of 500,000 pounds of sand was spread over the field.

Both coaches agree the new track will help their team’s performance.

"It will have two basic effects," Bill DeNoon, woman’s track coach, said. "The primary effect will be a reduction in injuries. The second fact is we will be able to host track meets and get a reasonable number of teams willing to come here and compete."

Last year there was only one woman’s and one men’s home meet. DeNoon said that was a direct result of the poor condition of the track.

A number of teams—Illinois, Purdue, Central Michigan, Kentucky, Murray State, Western Illinois, Indiana State, Bradley, and Eastern Illinois—have shown interest in traveling to McAndrew Stadium.

The renovation also includes a new scoreboard, dedication plaques for individuals and merchants, and will have a message area similar to the one in the old track.

Dorf said he would like lights and a new press box installed to complete the renovation. He said the projected cost of lights is between $250,000 and $300,000.

"We have stretched our pockets as far as we can go. We will I don’t foresee light in the next couple of years unless a gift from above come down."

POSTER DAY
SALUKI FOOTBALL POSTERS TO FIRST 7,000 FANS!
Gateway title chase led by Northern Iowa

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

In 1986, the second year for football in the Gateway Conference, three league teams began the season with rankings.

In the 1987 NCAA preseason poll, both Northern Iowa and SIU-C were ranked in the nation’s top 20. The Gateway Conference, it seems, is making a name for itself.

In August, Gateway Commissioner Patty Viverito was informed by the NCAA Football Committee that the conference would receive an automatic berth to the I-AA playoffs. Normally, a conference must wait two years before being awarded an automatic playoff berth, but Viverito’s petition was accepted on the merits of the conference’s overall strength.

“By granting an automatic berth to the conference, the NCAA has assured that they have confidence in both the success and the quality of the conference,” Viverito said. “Getting the automatic bid a year early was a real shot in the arm.”

The conference proved worthy of the bid, with at least two teams ranking in the NCAA’s top 20 for nine of the 10 weeks the poll was issued. Eastern Illinois made a run at the national championship before falling out of the race in the semifinal round, while SIU-C missed the playoffs by a hair, finishing 10th.

In two full seasons and the first weekend of the ’87 season, the Gateway had at least one team ranked in the nation’s top 20. That’s 21 consecutive weeks, dating back to the first-ever weekend of Gateway football.

NORTHERN IOWA — The Panthers have the distinction of being picked No. 1 last year and all three years the Gateway Conference for football has existed, but they’ll never by more serious about a league title than this year.

Returning are 12 offensive starters from a group that averaged a gaudy 737.8 yards of total offense per game. Led by Mike Smith (62.7 percent completions, 37 touchdowns, 264 passing yards per game), the nation’s most efficient I-AA passer last season, UNI’s offense should be dynamic.

Running backs Carl Boyd and Errol Pfeiffer, ranked No. 1 and 3 in final Gateway rushing stats, will combine talents with All-America tight end Brian Baker to give the Panthers punch on the ground and in the air.

Five defensive losses — including all-everything linebacker Mark Farley — will hurt the Panthers some, but the defense should be able to put more points on the board than the defense will allow.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS — The Salukis finished No. 17 in the nation last year with a 7-4 record, but darn that 1-son-ending loss to Western Illinois.

This year, 12 letterman — most in the league — return for the Salukis, which should help develop depth and avoid the injury bug.

Byron Mitchell, returning from a knee surgery that sidelined him all of ’86, is looking good, and should contribute to yet another grueling group of running backs. The offensive line has the potential to develop into one of the league’s best.

Graduation losses took record-holders Drew Morrison, punter, and Ron Miller, kicker, which could leave SIU-C’s kicking game as a question mark.

Defensively, SIU-C is both strong and deep, and a much-improved Brian Baker should be less suspect to the

Las t and 326 yards per game, offense that averaged two downfield targets.

WESTERN ILLINOIS — The Leathernecks' biggest asset in '96 was a bone-jarring defense. And even even though that group has been decimated by graduation losses, coach Bruce Craddock is still promising a rock-solid defense. Gone are defensive tackle Todd Auer, linebackers Mike Hyrm and Deon Melvin and defensive end Shannon Berry, who combined for 431 tackles last season.

Adding problems is the loss of of­ defensive tackle John Wisnosky, a passing a revamped and preseason AU-league selection, to a defense.

 prosecution.

The Bears’ finished 2-1, 6-1-4 overall last season, which isn’t that bad con­ considering their schedule. During one saga last season, the Bears played six straight opponents who were ranked in the 1-AAA top 10.

Nine returning starters on both of­ ence and defense should make the Bears a bit more balanced than a year ago, but the secondary will be suspect to be pass.

Linedmen and linebackers are the strong suit for coach Jesse Branch, who also has an experienced quarterback returning to lead the filet-bone option attack. The Bears threw for only two touchdowns all of last season.

INDIANA STATE — Returning for the Sycamores are four of five starting offensive linemen and most to the defensive line, along with quarterback Kyle Frondorf, but that won’t be enough to make ISU competitive.

Frondorf has struggled through the first half, failing to No. 3 on the depth charts. If Frondorf can stay the same, ISU will be forced to use an inexperienced quarterback.

Injuries have caused some changes, especially in the defense. The running game expects to be improved.

pass and long play.

ILLINOIS STATE — The Redbirds were a solid pick for No. 3 by league sports information directors, but that was before six starters were lost in fall preseason play.

Gone for the season are all-conference picks Tim Turner, a wide receiver, to grades, and linebacker Brett Brindley, to back surgery. Joining the list are linebacker Vic Rodriguez (shoulder injury), defensive end John Jurkus, Henry Waiters (grades) and tight end Vonnie Williams (to concentrate on school).

Left standing after fall drills are quarterback Pat Williams and all of his receivers, All-America Jeff Smith and the entire two-deep oftensive line. They’ll have to pick up the slack caused by the departure of so many regulars from the lineup.

EASTERN ILLINOIS — Last year, an offense that averaged two touchdowns and 336 yards per game, all via the pass, helped Eli’II make a serious run at the 1-AAA nation’s title.

But ‘96 will be a dramatic change for the Panthers, who’ve lost their coach and All-America quarterback Seam Payton.

Departing along with Payton were all the vital cogs of the highly-touted “Air Eastern” offense — wide receiver
Roy Banks and slotback Calvin Pierce.

The trio of All-Americans, needless to say, will be difficult to replace.

New coach Bob Spoer is promising an improved defense and a grounding ground game. Returning backs DuWayne Pitts and James Marable, ranked in both the league’s rushing and scoring stats, will give Spoer a good foundation for the run.

meter hurdles (13.80), the long jump (23-feet-2-inches) and the triple jump (50-9).

LINDY NELSON, now Mrs. Ted Rushing, was a walk-on when she began her Saluki career in 1978. But that was about the only time the Springfield, Ill. native walked during her three years at SIU-C.

Her mark of 16:44.8 in the 5,000 meter run in 1981 remains a school record. Rushing won 21 races in three outdoor seasons, and grabbed firsts in 17 of 20 meets.

She is the only female SIU-C runner to double in back-to-back Illinois AIAW state championships and captured first place wins in the 3,000 and 5,000 meter runs in 1980 and 1981.

TRACY TERRELL, a Miami native spent three years with the swimming program.

From her freshman year in 1978-79, and then again from 1980 to 1982, Terrell's accomplishments bolstered the women's team. She claimed the one-meter diving title at the Illinois AIAW state diving tournament three times and established three state records in the process.

The physical education major received the Virginia Gordon Award in 1981, and the Outstanding Leader-Athlete Award in 1982. Both awards are from the SIU-C women's athletics department.

ROGER VON JOUANNE, who hailed from Renton, Wash., was named the Saluki most valuable swimmer for three of the four years he spent as a letterman on the team.

Von Jouanne captured NCAA All-American honors 10 times, including six in 1982. He set an American record in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 1:45.00 in 1980, and still holds school records in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly, the 200- and 500-yard individual medley and the 100-yard backstroke.

induction brunch, starting at 10:30 in Ballroom D at the Student Center. Tickets for the brunch are $10 and are available at Davies Gym or at the Arena. The event is open to the public.

The last event is the induction ceremony.

The Saluki-Delta State match is set to kick off at 1:30 p.m. and the inductions will be made at halftime.

The inductions are traditionally made at the first home game.

This year a new event is scheduled, as all Saluki sports teams currently in town will be a part of the ceremony.

The athletes, dressed in their respective uniforms, will march around the track before getting into a formation and presenting themselves to the new Hall of Famers. The Saluki Marching Band will also take part in the presentation.

The halftime activities will showcase not only the inductions, but also the athletes and the newly renovated McAndrew Stadium.

Sports Hall of Fame induction set

Five Stars earn places in SIU-C history books

Five inductees, honored for their contribution to SIU-C athletics, will be formally inducted into the Saluki Hall of Fame at halftime of Saturday's home opener at McAndrew Stadium.

The inductees are Lew Hartzog, David Lee, Lindy Nelson, Tracey Terrell and Roger von Joanne.

"This year there is one selection committee," said Assistant Athletics Director Gary Carney. "It's a significant change and is in concert with the merger of men's and women's sports into one common organization. I think it's worked out quite well."

The addition of the five individuals brings the number of people selected to the Saluki Hall of Fame to 120.

Previously there were two selection committees, one each for women's and men's athletics. This year the selections were made by a 12-person Hall of Fame advisory committee.

LEW HARTZOG, currently working with the men's golf team, also spent time working as assistant director at many track meets in the Midwest.

The native Texan has put together a solid track record during his 27 years with Saluki athletics.

Twice named Division I Coach of the Year at the national level, Hartzog was also named district Coach of the Year 10 times in his specialty areas of cross country, indoor track and outdoor track. He is a member of the Drake Relays Hall of Fame.

During his 24 years at the helm of SIU-C's track program, he has seen 64 of his athletes named to All-American honors, nine become NCAA individual champions and seven go on to become Olympians.

Hartzog also spent three years as director of men's athletics.

DAVID LEE, a track and field specialist at SIU from 1978 to 1981, became a "driving force on the team during his junior and senior years."

In 1980, Lee garnered 13 individual titles in the Missouri Valley Conference and was on three winning relay teams during those two seasons. He was seven individual titles and participated on five championship relay teams in the Illinois Intercollegiate meet.

The time of 48.87 seconds set by Lee in the hurdles was the top mark set in the NCAA in 1980 and remains the all-time record at SIU.

He also remains in the Top 10 in 110-
