Education Elsewhere
Washington—Learned that Dr. Bernhard Rust, Nazi minister of education, has issued a decree ordering propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels to "Tutary National Commitments for the German People" to be taught in German schools.

The Commandments are to be taught in a manner "defeating their political and educational" importance. Teaching will be mandatory in the upper elementary schools and in higher schools. Teachers' training colleges and in continuation high trade schools.

Dr. Goebbels' "Tutary National Commitments," included in a morale manual circulated by the Nazi propaganda ministry, is based on an article written by Goebbels and recently published in a Nazi newspaper.

NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

NEW ORLEANS, La.—The question whether Axis countries should be merely restrained or completely controlled by the Allies after the war has a large majority of Loyola students in a quandary.

A student opinion poll at Loyola shows that 75 per cent of students in all colleges of the university are strictly against complete control of any nation in time of peace.

I propose that the Axis countries be allowed to have their own rulers, but that these men be subjected to representing the rest of our country," stated Carolyn Stier, Junior.

Another student who holds that restraint on Axis countries is sufficient is Emily Law, sophomore, who believes "it is utterly impossible for the Allies to completely control the Axis countries. The result would be a lasting one," she said.

Steno Bertel, a freshman, holds that defeated nations should have complete liberty after the war. "It would be very definitely inflicting upon them all the things we're fighting against. Nothing but a complete and total victory would therefore believe that they should be allowed to govern themselves with no other supervision but their own," he stated.

On the other hand, Anthony Carlin, freshman, says, "A system of restraint will never work, for after the war, these countries will just rise up again. The Allies should enforce strict military rule upon these people for a period of ten years, long enough to enable them to get a taste of the democratic way of living. Children should be brought up according to religious ideals."

BERKELEY, Cal.—The "Enter the Axis" campaign has been having its eighth campus. Plans are being made now for the incorporation of Santa Barbara State College into the University of California's state-wide system.

The incorporation plans are in accordance with recent action by the Board of Regents, the University Board of Regents.

In voting to accept the new plan, the Regents declared that it is the duty of the state to provide instruction at Santa Barbara to the full curriculum offered by Berkeley or a substitute.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—It's the caviar and truffle crowd, not the red heads and fire folks who have the most complaints about New Orleans.

That is the conclusion if Newcomb College students have drawn after knocking at doors all over New Orleans to find from housewives what difference point rationing has made in their choice of foods.

ALASKAN RESOURCES AS YET UNTOUCHED

More and more people are saying, "After the war I want to go to Alaska to homestead or establish my own business. What are the opportunities for me there?"

Because of the individual differences in abilities, imagination, resourcefulness, ambition and energy, it is dangerous for one person to assure another that he can make a success of a particular venture.

However, there is one advantage in Alaska which is sure to attract thousands of families soon after the war. It is the fact that many men make their fortunes in the lumber business there.

The gold, fish, and fur resources of Alaska are so spectacular that few people are aware of Alaska's forests. Yet the Tongass and the Chitina National Forests together comprise the greatest areas of wooded public and private lands in the United States.

Most of these forests are virgin timber, hitherto untouched because they are more difficult of access than the forests of the States, which are nearer to the points of consumption.

However, those forests in the States, under the pressing demands of the war construction program, have been depleted at an alarming rate during the past few years.

The spruce, especially, is of excellent quality and very desirable for plywood aircraft construction. Because of its slower growth, there are more growthings to the inch of Alaska spruce than in the spruce from either Canada or the States, and the wood is therefore stronger and more durable.

After the war, the Alaska forestry development will continue to grow. The forests of southeastern Alaska are capable of supplying the raw material for one hundred million tons of paper pulp annually or one-fourth of the nation's requirements.

The incorporation of Alaska into the United States is being expedited with success. Unquestionably, other wood-working industries will come a development to install plants in the heavily-wooded areas of Southeastern and Central Alaska, and with these industries will come a development in the forests which will be complementary to and assist in the development of Alaska through an influx of the thousands of people who plan to make their homes here after the war.

It is estimated that many who commented that they had seen the complaint about such minor hardships as rationing.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—Art professors at the College of New Rochelle are not confined to ivory towers in wartime. Rather, they are making an unusual and generous contribution to service morale.

BY THEIR INSIGNIA YOU SHALL KNOW THEM

The Navy blue uniform of the WAVES is now a familiar sight of wooded public and private lands in the United States.

From the insignia on the sleeve of her blouse you know the possessor is a Yeoman rating (she crossed this insignia this) and is a Petty Officer third class (indicated by the four stripes on the sleeve).

Insignia not only identifies but demonstrates the variety and real importance of work being performed by WAVES in terms of vital war service.

For complete information on these Navy jobs, go to the nearest Recruiting Station or Office of Naval Officer Procurement.

The most impressive thing about the project," comments Mrs. Thompson, an instructor in design, "is the boost in morale which it gives to the men."

In addition to the hospital work, the artists also work on portraits of men interested in life. He is typical of the men who, through portraits done by the artists "save themselves as individuals against being lost in the anonymity of the huge machinery of war."

Committee Approves Change in Social Studies Requirements

At its regular January meeting the curriculum committee voted unanimous approval of a change in the requirements for social studies major in the College of Education.

The heads of the social studies departments also recommended a modification in the general education requirements for a social studies major.

The curriculum committee last year first approved field majors for graduates of the College of Education.

According to committee rules, the chairman of the division of social studies is the one who advises of students completing one of the field majors.

Announcements made by the graduate board indicate that a major in physical sciences is to be recognized for a five-year degree.
