Addition To Library Set For August

Construction of a five-story addition to Morris Library is expected to get underway in August, according to Charles Pulley, University architect. When the addition is completed in two years, the library will have study facilities for more than 3,000 students. It presently accommodates 1,100 students.

Pulley said plans for the addition have been approved and blueprints are now being drawn by Burnham and Hammond, Chicago architects. Plans will be completed by May and bids will be received during June and July.

The need of additional floors was expressed by Ralph McCoy, director of libraries, who explained that "the accrediting organizations recommend that school libraries be capable of seating twenty per cent of the student body." Morris library now holds about nine per cent of the students, but the percentage will rise to 25 per cent.

When the work is completed the second and third floors will be completely finished inside. The second floor will house the humanities and rare books, while the third will house science and education libraries.

The top four floors will be unfinished inside. They will be used primarily for storage.

Morris library will double its present book capacity of one-half million and increase its square footage by 128,797, when the additional floors are completed.

Work will be finished in stages and the floors will be used as they are completed, McCoy said.

***** Classes Scheduled For Good Friday

Classes will be held on Good Friday--April 20, I. Clark Davis, dean of student affairs, has announced.

Any student who has a class at the time of a religious service of his choice in Carbondale or vicinity is requested to sign a statement which may be obtained from the receptionist at the Office of Student Affairs on or before April 19, he said.

An explanation of an absence from one class period will be sent to the student's instructor of the class missed, Dean Davis added.

Dog Doesn't Dig Determined Duo

A dog may be man's best friend but the feeling probably isn't mutual as far as one campus dog is concerned.

Two students walking through Thompson Point Woods recently saw the tail and legs of a dog protruding from a trash receptacle. They thought he was stuck so they pulled him out. The dog didn't seem to appreciate it.

The students found out why when they looked into the trash can and discovered a frightened squirrel huddling in the bottom.

How To Succeed In Latin American Business - Just Try

American businessmen can succeed in Latin America if they really try, area businessmen, educators and government officials were told here this week.

The method--have local stockholders, native managers, stay out of politics, use few non-Latin personnel and make sure all employees there speak Spanish.

That system apparently pays off. W. R. Grace & Co. didn't lose a business by expropriation in 106 years of activity in Latin America.

"Castro broke our record two years ago in Cuba," John D. J. Moore, the firm's executive vice president, said. The company controls a vast petroleum and chemical complex in Latin America.

Moore was one of several speakers at the Latin American trade conference here Wednesday and Thursday. The conference, sponsored by the Latin American, Small Business and Transportation institutes, was part of Pan American Week.

operation "Big Sweep." This year's project is to clean all major streets from downtown Carbondale to campus.

The annual Greek Sing, traditionally a high point of the annual event, which will be the same night in Shryock Auditorium.

The Greeks will migrate to Little Grassy April 29 where the annual Greek picnic will be held.

Monday night Greek Week serve as mistress of ceremonies at 10:40 a.m. for a series of skits by students on careers offered in home economics. The AFOTC Singing Squadron will entertain the visitors.

Lunch and conference periods will begin at 11:45 a.m. and continue until 1:30. High School students will be given an opportunity to voice any questions concerning college.

A fashion show at Shryock ends the agenda, at 1:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, the agriculture program will show prospective students the facilities and courses available here.

The morning program, opening at 8:30 in the University Center ballroom, will feature discussions of SIU's admission, housing and student work policies by representatives of the Student Affairs Office.

Careers in agriculture will be the topic at 11 a.m. in Muckelroy auditorium by Herman Haag, acting dean of the School of Agriculture; Walter Wills, chairman of the Agriculture Industries; Joseph Burnside, chairman of the Animal Industries department; A. B. Caster, chairman of Plant Industries; and Neil Hosley, chairman of the forestry department.

Small groups will tour departmental exhibits and demonstrations and the experimental farms and research centers.

Following the presentation of scholarships and awards at 2 p.m. in Muckelroy Auditorium, the program will end with a pork barbecue dinner served in the auditorium arena.

ends on a high note at McAndrew Stadium where the track meet will be held. Girls tricycle races will be included along with a chariot race.

The purpose of Greek Week is to illustrate the wide range of interest of fraternities and sororities and to emphasize their relationship to the school and to each other.

Co-chairman of the Greek Week Committee are Mary Jo Oldham, Sigma Kappa and John Lundgren, Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Queen Of Thompson Point Will Be Selected Tonight

Miss Thompson Point and her court will be chosen from the 14 contestants tonight at 8 o'clock in Lentz hall.

All that is needed to vote is a TP meal ticket.

Results of the voting will be announced at the coronation ball Saturday. The ball will be held from 8:30 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. in Lentz hall.

Each year Miss Thompson Point is chosen by the residents of the Point to represent them in the Miss Southern contest, and to reign as their queen for the following year.

The contestants are Connie Dexon, Sandy Horning, Carolyn Leach, Jean Taylor, Shirley Gold, Bonita Deputy, Ruth Horton, Ruth Ann Woodrome, Judy Ashley, Cindy Milligan, Karen Woelfer, Merle Ann Stahlberg, Lynda Walker, and Pam Powell. Mrs. Marianne Horned, program consultant for Thompson Point, said, "All of the girls are TP residents, and they are each sponsored by a floor of one of the dorms."

The chairman for the gala weekend is Chuck DiVito, junior from Wheaton, Ill.

Council Names 2 To Student Posts

Steve Segner has been appointed to the Student Affairs Commission by the Student Council. He replaces Bill Seaway.

The Council also named Gerry Howe chairman of the Social Senate, replacing Alex Urban.

Both Seaway and Urban resigned.

In other action, the Council set November 10 as Parents Day and voted to support an African Affairs Conference scheduled here April 28.

SIU - One-horse School? No! - Twenty

Is SIU a cow college or horse college? Will the days of horses and buggies return to southern Illinois? Will corrals take the place of parking lots?

University records failed to show any students with cows on campus, but at least 20 students are known to have horses in the Carbondale area. The problems of parking stickers and gasoline prices are outdated for horse lovers. Nowadays a major concern is the room and board for their equine friends.

Three university coeds who board horses in the area agree that horses are becoming a popular pastime.

"Southern Illinois is a good conditioning place," Salley Dimiceli, an animal industry major and Quarter horse owner from Elgin, said. "It gives the horses an opportunity to stretch and grow."

Two education majors, Ann Schultz, of Columbia, and Judy Reeb, of Deerfield, share the "horsy duties," which can be a full-time job. Judy serves breakfast consisting of alfalfa hay and grain mixture while Ann puts on the evening feed and cleans the stalls. Ann says that it costs $150 a school year to feed and shelter Bounty, her Arabian horse.

The three equestriennes hastily admit that caring for their horses "does not take away from study time."

Pleasure riding in western garb is almost a daily occurrence for Judy and Ann. Trail rides through the tourist spots of Southern Illinois, such as Devil's Kitchen and Giant City, attracts many horse enthusiasts. Sally spends weekends training her two-year-old Joe K for the spring and summer horse shows.

Baptist Installation Revives Glories Of Greece

The glories of ancient Greece will be revived when the Baptist Student Union installs its newly elected officers at a Greek banquet May 5 in the Giant City Lodge.

The lounge and dining room will be decorated with Grecian columns, urns, torches, flowers and plants. And the banquet will be served by toga-wearing waiters.

Instead of receiving a gavel as symbol of office, the new officers will have laurel wreaths placed upon their heads.

Heading the list of entertainment will be Joe Thomas Jr., music major who recently won a scholarship to study at the Metropolitan Opera training school.

Richard Chu, a student from Hong Kong, will demonstrate the ancient art of Chinese shadow boxing.

After this brief detour from Greece, a Latin Club from an area high school will present a Greek play.

Tickets are on sale at the Baptist Foundation for the semi-formal occasion. Transportation from the campus to the lodge will be provided.

Swim, Sing, Or Swing Your Way Into Spring

There's no doubt, spring is in the air, and a sure cure for the campus epidemic of "spring fever" is the coming social whirl.

In accord with the gaiety, a number of special dances and social events have been planned. So girls, fluff up your favorite frills, and fellows, restore the creases in your favorite spring suit, and prepare to take time out from those long hours of study and join in the spring swing--there's fun for everyone!

Superstitious? Come on, "Play the Odds." Dance your worries and superstitions away Friday at the Roman Room, to the tune of Bob Shimpaugh's band.

Girls of TP, have you tried on that bathing suit recently? Feel like modeling it? Fellows, feel like making some critical observations? If so, the Miss TP contest will interest you, April 13. The coronation dance will be held on April 14, at Lentz Hall.

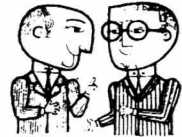

Woody Hall girls are doing it again--making plans to lure the male students to their annual Scholarship Dance, April 20, at Woody Hall.

Busy hands, firmly grasping hammers, saws, and sandpaper, plus late hours: this is the formula necessary to produce Spring Festival, May 11-12. The midway opens Friday night. Saturday the final judging of Miss Southern takes place at Woody Hall and Saturday night the Spring Festival Dance will be held at the University Center ballroom.

The silent retreat will be followed by an Easter Sunrise Service at Giant City State Park. The Office of Student Affairs announced that classes will be held as scheduled on Friday, April 20. Any student who has a class at the time of a religious service in Carbondale or vicinity is requested to sign a statement which may be obtained from the receptionist at the Office of Student Affairs on or before April 19. An explanation of an absence will then be sent to the student's instructor of the class missed.

Grades Only First Step Toward Those Sheepskins

One of the first "tests" an SIU education is put to, it appears, is going through the process of being graduated.

Initially, an application for graduation must be filed at the Registrar's office. Though the deadline for June graduation is May 23, the university recommends that it be submitted early in the student's final quarter. There are enough other things that must be done around May 23.

A $17 graduation fee must be turned in with the application—in most cases. Under some scholarships and education laws, students do not need to pay this fee. The Registrar's office can supply additional information about this.

While undergraduates fill out one application, graduate students and individuals working for associate degrees must fill out two forms. One is submitted to the Registrar's office, and the other to either the Graduate school or Vocational Technical Institute.

Graduating seniors should fill out their names as they wish them to appear on their diploma on the IBM card sent to them by the Registrar Office. Extra cards are available at the Registrar Office.

The next step after submitting the applications is measurement for cap and gown. For this, the student must go to the University book store. If the student is not in residence the quarter before graduation, the cap and gown may be ordered by mail.

Information and instructions for graduation exercises will be mailed to each graduating senior by the Registrar's Office.

Approximately two weeks before graduation, the prospective graduate may obtain five copies of the graduation invitation. These, also, may be obtained at the book store, and can be ordered by mail if the student is not in Carbondale.

The week before graduation, the student must complete and return a financial clearance slip to the Registrar's office. No diploma will be issued if a student has any financial obligation to the University.

To get a financial clearance slip, a student should be sure his record is clear with the library, textbook service, Placement service, Bursar's office and office of the director of Auxiliary Enterprises.

And, finally, there is commencement itself, which is compulsory.

Graduate School Extends Deadline

Deadline for Graduate School tuition award applications and foreign student award applications has been extended to April 29, according to Dean Willis G. Swartz of the Graduate School.

Separate forms are needed for the summer term and the 1962-63 school year, he added.

The foreign Student office in the Graduate School will be open each Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon during the absence of Mrs. Mary Wakeland April 15-30. An assistant will be available for information regarding tuition awards, immigration forms and summer work permits.

Help for foreign students is available at the Graduate Office at all times.

What Conservative Trend?

LAST OF A SERIES

At Stanford University, Ron Rapoport, editor of the Stanford Daily, reports the "conservative element is making quite a bit of noise these days, but a great conservative 'movement' is hardly evident."

"The same five or six names keep appearing on letters to the Daily and in conservative demonstrations to such an extent that we often wonder where the rest of them are. Stanford, as you may know, is a pretty wealthy campus in terms of the median income of the parents of its student body, so one could expect great waves of conservatives to drown the liberal element in the sheer weight of their numbers. Such is absolutely not the case.

"In fact, a recent scandal within the Stanford Young Republican organization has uncovered the possibility that the 'great move toward conservatism' is a carefully cultivated myth."

As was pointed out at the outset of this brief look at a trend on the campus toward conservatism, it is neither intended nor desired to draw any conclusions. But it is perhaps worthwhile to review the opinions of the five college editors whose comments have appeared in this series and then to compare or contrast those evaluations with the situation at SIU.

With the notable exception of the University of Washington, where apparently there is a great deal of interest on both sides of the political fence, all of our few editors indicated there was no conservative trend on their campus. One editor came right out and said that he thought the whole business was a myth. Another said conservatism was a "dead letter" on his campus. Going back to the first article in this series, although it was not from a college editor, Jack Newfield in THE COMMONWEAL piece wrote about a movement quite liberal, rejecting any conservative trend at all.

Editors from the University of Maine and Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, noted a certain amount of apathy toward much political activity of any sort. A general lethargy on many campuses is apparent from reading college newspapers from all over the country. We suspect that the political realm--evident at SIU is the case in the vast majority of American college campuses.

The situation at SIU is relatively easy to sum up: If any interest at all--be it liberal or conservative--exists, it is quite well hidden. A recent attempt to get together any conservatives for purposes of organizing netted nil. And as far as campus organizations go, other than the Young Democrats and Young Republicans, the only other campus organization with any sort of political leanings is the local Student Peace Union. We know of no new or old conservative groups.

Perhaps as Prof. Arthur L. Peterson out at Ohio Wesleyan University brought out in a recent survey, the case at SIU, as we suggested in reviewing Prof. Peterson's conclusions, is that everyone is keeping his opinion to himself. But we can without fear of valid contradiction state that any claims to a Great Conservative Movement at SIU--or a Great Liberal Movement or a trend toward "New" or old Conservatism--is as Editor Rapoport from Stanford put it, "a carefully cultivated myth."

On New Conservatism

According to Walter Lippman the current political rage of the campuses in the U.S., New Conservatism, is a political figment of the imagination of the Conservative leaders of America. But Senator Barry Goldwater says: "We are caught up in a wave of Conservatism...the wave of our time." Regardless of whether it is a wave or a ripple, Conservatism has scored many gains on the campuses of America. But just what is this political philosophy that is (supposedly) storming our Universities.

The Editor of the Egyptian in his editorial on March 6 wonders..."just what is this new Conservatism". Otto von Hapsburg in an article in National Review presents one of the finest descriptions of the conservative philosophy. "Conservatism reflects an attitude of mind that gives allegiance to enduring principles.... It is founded on the recognition of God, and a belief in a moral order superior to human law...monarch...and majority. ...he deduces the necessity of individual liberty and...inalienable rights of man. ...he justifies the power of the state only as it conduces to the preservation of the rights and collectivities within the state."

Nice as it sounds, how does this apply to the everyday political life of the individual. Let us start on that note; that you are an individual and you have certain rights that cannot be transgressed or limited in a free society. Among the most important rights is freedom of the economy. The province of the government in the economy should be limited to the issuance of currency, regulatory monetary policies and of taxing power. The market economy should be unhampered in its work, so that efficient allocation of goods and resources can take place.

The most important right that we have is that of political freedom. The Conservative believes that this freedom can exist only through the separation of powers in the republican form of government. When one branch of our government gains a preponderance of power, it is inherent that there will be subsequent concentration and abuse of that power. Closely coupled with the right of political freedom is correct form of our foreign policy.

Not only is it a rational assumption but it is also an established fact that the foreign policy of 103 nations of the world serve the national interest of each of those states. So it must be with the United States. No policy can be justified unless it serves the national interest. Might I add that it is now in the national interest to eradicate the Marxist-Leninist doctrine of violent revolution (not necessarily Communism).

The Conservative believes in the absolute freedom of religion.

In summation, the Conservative believes in an organic society of individuals governed through the tempered historic traditions of the past. Conservatism is evolutionary, not revolutionary. Regardless of the blathering of some of my brethren on the Far Right, the New Conservatives are the heirs and the apostles of the great men of the past, among them Burke, Disraeli, the Federalists, Churchill, Taft and others. The great challenge of Conservatism in the 60's is to overcome the Birchites and to become the Burkeites.

Comments On Behavior

Editor:

I am writing this letter in relation to the events that transpired at Lentz Hall on the evening of April 3. As you may know the film Operation Abolition was shown by State Senator Paul W. Broyles on that evening.

I would like to take this opportunity to comment on the discussion that transpired after the end of the film.

While I think that on the whole the students were polite in their questioning of the Senator and showed him all respect to which he is entitled by virtue of his position, there were a few students who showed an utter contempt for the Senator in the manner in which they asked their questions.

There was one student who was particularly insolent in his attitude toward the Senator. While one does not have to agree with what a person is saying, he should at least be able to control his temper and not have to be called down in a sarcastic way such as the Senator was forced to do.

I also think that the catcalls from the audience were uncalled for when the Senator was answering the questions

Photographer BABA H. REHANA prompted the students shown above into posing for a series of gag shots illustrating the ever-increasing housing problem at SIU.

Ronald Arnold, left, and Donald Rousseau, hopped under the covers (but couldn't help grinning) to represent the two-to-a-bed situation which may already exist.

In the second photo, James Modlo joins his pals in the gag to show the predicted situation for next year; and finally Charles Ingham squeezes in on the far right to depict a possible four-to-a-bed condition by 1964.

At the present rate of forestation, the trees will out-number the students 3-1 by 1970.

Can't figure out why, with all the nooks and crannies in the U. Center, people must do their noon-hour conversing in the main passageway.

Formosan Government, University Host SIU President Morris, Family

TAIPEI, Taiwan—SIU President Delyte W. Morris and his family visited here for several days with Chinese government and university officials before continuing their round-the-world trip.

While on the island, Dr. Morris, his wife, Dorothy, and their son, Michael, were entertained at dinner parties, visited the American embassy, toured one of Formosa's major newspaper plants and visited with numerous Chinese who had been students or visiting professors at SIU.

Upon arrival, the Morris family were greeted by Gen. and Mrs. Chen Chia-hsian who gave a dinner party in their honor that night.

Dr. Morris and his family were honored at a luncheon the following day given by Mr. Chi Hung Liu, president of Cheng-Chi University in Taipei's internationally-known Liberty House.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Charles Clayton, professor of journalism at SIU who is teaching at Cheng-Chi this year, and Mrs. Clayton.

Milton J. T. Shieh, former visiting professor at SIU and publisher of the Shin Sheng Pao Daily News, accompanied the tour through the downtown area.

Following a visit to the American Embassy, Dr. Morris and Michael visited Shieh's newspaper plant where they examined the Chinese composing system and plate-making process. In the evening, the Morris family were invited to a dinner by the Fullbright Foundation.

Before departing for Viet Nam, where he will visit SIU teaching missions, Dr. Morris and his family were guests at a luncheon party following a trip to the Ulai Resort where they viewed an aboriginal dance.

While on Formosa, the Morris family stayed at the Grand Hotel, an old Shinto temple converted into a hotel and decorated in the classical Chinese style with red and gold tones predominating. Travel experts have labeled it one of the plushiest hotels in the Far East.

The Morris family will spend two weeks in Saigon, Viet Nam with Southern's teaching and study groups there before moving on to Cambodia and Angkor. They also will visit Thailand, Burma, Iran, and Iraq, Lebanon, India and Greece.

After leaving Greece, the Morris family will drive along the French Riviera to Nice and then to Cannes, France, where they will board the S. S. Independence for the trip to the United States.

Dr. and Mrs. Morris will be back in time for the June 13 commencement. Michael is expected to stay in Europe and begin study on a master's degree.

A plan to wish SIU President, Dr. Delyte W. Morris, a happy 55th birthday by telephone, fell through Tuesday, as technical difficulties caused an hour's wait.

Aides of President Morris, who is visiting an SIU project in Saigon, Viet Nam, gathered for the personal call Tuesday evening, but after the hour's wait, decided on sending a cable instead.

'Bernarda Alba' Opens Tonight

LOUISE GORDON (standing) and Kathy Whitelock rehearse a scene from "The House of Bernarda Alba". The play opens tonight in the Southern Playhouse. Photo by Henry Jaffe.

"The House of Bernarda Alba," a Garcia Lorca drama, will open tonight at the Southern Playhouse under the direction of Mordecai Gorelik, research professor in the Theatre Department.

The production will feature a forestage thrusting into the audience to produce a more intimate atmosphere. The forestage was built by the Southern Players' backstage crew, under direction of Charles Zoeckler.

"Bernarda Alba" is a sympathetic study of female subservience in Latin countries. It deals with five daughters of a tyrannical mother in a provincial Spanish town, who are suppressed from normal association with men by their mother.

Gorelik was a New York stage designer before coming to SIU in 1960. His credits include "Hatful of Rain" and other leading Broadway productions.
