Bracy funds' status still unconfirmed

By Anne Flasza Staff Writer

An aide to Gov. James Thompson said Wednesday that funds to purchase the Bracy Building in Marion "are available" but would not say whether they had actually been released by the state Bureau of the Budget.

There is money available and we are in negotiations for the purchase of the building," said Woody Mosgers. Mosgers said the governor's office "is aware of the situation."

"Everyone is in agreement that we should go with it and see what happens," he said.

Mosgers said he did not know what stage the negotiations are

Also, Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, on Wednesday disclosed letters exchanged with the legal representative of the building's owner in August 1982. The disclosure came after questions arose regarding the University's commitment to purchase the building

The first letter was sent by the University to Harry Melvin, the son and legal representative of owner Virginia Cline. It says that although the University could not continue paying the $120,000 lease charge on the $120,000 lease charge building, it wanted to continue under the terms of the lease

The letter, dated Aug. 6, 1982, was written by Dougherty and sent just prior to the expiration of the original one-year lease held by the University.

The letter states that University officials "are still pursuing the appropriation and recease of funds for the purchase of the Bracy Building."

The second letter, Melvin's response to Dougherty dated Aug. 31, 1982, states that Melvin Aug. 31, 1982, states that Melvin received the first letter "stating (the University's) wishes to eliminate the payment of rent on (the) property and exercise (the University's) option to pur-chase upon receipt of funds." Dougherty said he did not know whether the letters are legally binding, or about any other legal ramifications of the

Dougherty also said the University contracted Dale Norman of ICM Engineering and Service in Marion to maintain the building after the original lease ran out in September 1982

In 1983, the University paid Norman $2,092 for maintenance 66 000-square-foot the structure for one year. Norman had formerly maintained the property for Mrs. Cline.

ISSC might publish lists of loan defaulters

If you want to keep your name out of the paper, don't default on an Illinois Guaranteed Student Loan.

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission plans to publish names of nearly 7,800 student loan defaulters in newspapers throughout the state sometime within a year, Bob Clement, ISSC informational services director, said Wednesday. Those 7,800 borrowers have not made a payment since the ISSC assumed their loans, he said The ISSC hopes the list w.ll shrink before it is published, as borrowers begin paying again. The list will be triple-checked before ap-pearing in print anywhere, he

Clement said the ISSC has not chosen a method for publication of names, but the agency is considering three options: c_nsidering three options: making names available so that newspapers can request groups from specific locations, publishing names in legal notices in selected papers, or releasing lists of the names in a series of news conferences.

Until the method of release is picked, he said, the cost of the publication plan cannot be escertained — but the cost to the state of defaulted loans can.

"Within the group on the list for publication, the total of defaulted loans is million," Clement said. million.

The ISSC guarantees it will pay back loans taken out by students in the event of default. But Clement reminded students thinking of defaulting that more than the loan money itself is at stake.

"A lot of times, students don't realize the impact of student loan default on their credit rating," Clement said. "Students will need credit later on unless they have an awful lot of money."

Clement said publication of loan defaulters' names has been tried in Pennsylvania and New Jersey with some success as both a deterrent to would-be defaulters and a way to recover defaulted loans

The ISSC has 837 cases The ISSC has 837 cases pending in court for loan defaults occurring before June 30, 1983, Clement said. The interest rate for guaranteed loans has gone from Epton says independent race for U.S. Senate seat in doubt Former Chicago mayoral contender Bernard Epton said Wednesday that chances were slim that he would launch an independent campaign for U.S. Charles Percy's seat.

The 62-year-old Epton said in an interview from his Chicago law office that logistics are a major factor in his decision not to enter the Senate race under the heading of the New Republican Organization, a group of moderates who say they are dissatisfied with both Cook County Democrats and Republicans.

The consensus now is that a third party candidate would not only involve a candidate for the U.S. Senate, but also candidates for other state offices as well as presidential presidential and vice-presidential candidates,''

Grad faculty standards to be studied nesponding to a call to not allow "unproductive" graduate faculty members to direct doctoral dissertations, a Graduate Council committee will ask for clarification and public disclosure of criteria necessary for graduate faculty status

The council will also consider resolutions changing the graduate student grievance procedures and policy, in support of more funding for Morris library and a previously passed resolution on classified research.

A letter from George Gumerman, director of the Center for Archaeologica! Investigations, stated that a number of associate and full professors had not kept pace with their fields, and that they no longer deserve the right to direct dissertations.

The letter was forwarded to the Graduate Council's Educational Policy Committee, which could not deal with Gumerman's proposal until it had clarified what was required to achieve such graduate faculty status, said Joel Thirer, chairman of the committee. The committee's recommendations ask Barbara Harsen, dean of the Graduate School, to dissolve the Graduate Faculty Membership Committee and create a new committee which meets Graduate School requirements. After a new committee decides and makes public procedures and criteria for graduate faculty status public, the Educational Policies committee recommends that a periodic review of graduate faculty take place.

The Graduate Council will also consider a new graduate student grievance policy, which provides for handling of complaints by a student-faculty panel for academic grievances. Sexual harassment charges would be handled by the Sexual Harassment Policy Board.

Also, the Educational Policies Committee will review the current policy on classified research, passed in 1970, which provides that research cannot be conducted which intends to destroy or incapacitate human beings.

Reagan defends Meese pick, claims 'guilt by accusation'

American tradition that people are innocent until proven guilty. "We're having an awful lot of guilt by accusation," he said. "I reject the use of the word 'sleaze,'" Reagan said at a news conference when asked about Democrats who cite what they call "the sleaze factor" in his administration. Walter Mondale and Gary Hart have both accused Reagan of ignoring violations of ethical standards in his official family.

Democrats hope to capitalize on the issue. They have started using a television commercial emphasizing ethical questions raised against Reagan apnointees

"I believe the halls of government are as sacred as are temples of worship," the president said. He said he expects high standards of integrity among his people.

Reagan opened his news conference with an announcement that Vice President George Bush will go to Geneva in two weeks with a new American proposal aimed at breaking stalled 40-nation United Nations negotiations on a treaty banning development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons.

Reagan said this country is developing "bold and sound" means of verifying compliance with a treaty. The United States will propose a worldwide ban on the weapons; the Soviet Union has proposed a ban applying to Europe.

He was asked whether his proposal represents an attempt to get Congress to appropriate money for chemical weapons, which it has refused to do for several years.

"I don't think the accusation would stand up," the president replied. "... We haven't produced any such weapons for is years. The Soviet Union has a massive arsenal and is ahead of us in many areas having to do with chemical warfare."

Patchett said that while he shares some views with Buzbee, he also shares a few with Gray. He said the only difference between his and Buzbee's campaign is that he plans to win.

Patchett used an oft-repeated theme of Buzbee's campaign: Gray is out of touch and Congress has changed since Gray retired in 1975. He said that experience is likely to be an issue Gray will raise. Throughout his primary bid, the West Frankfort native cited his 10 terms on Capitol Hill as a reason b) nominate him over Buzbee.

Patchett spoke to a mixed audience. There were supporters of Sen. Charles Percy, members of presidential contender Sen. Gary Hart's Southern Illinois campaign and even two former Buzbee supporters who later told Patchett that they will back him in November.

Patchett said that cross-over votes from Democrats and students would be important in his election.

On economic development, Patchett took shots at Gray's view that "pork barrel" jobs can improve the region's economy. He said that he believes in involving both the government and private industry in putting Southern Illinois back on its feet.

Book charging plan needs more attention

ON THE SURFACE, the proposal to allow students to charge books at the University Bookstore seem one has gone much below the surface. store seems great. Unfortunately, no

The idea was first proposed nine months ago by Bruce Joseph, Undergraduate Student Organization president. Somehow, between the USO office and Anthony Hall, it died of inattention.

A book charging system would be a great help to students who find themselves short of cash at the beginning of the semester. Many students, after paying tuidion, fees and housing costs, don't have enough money to buy books.

STUDENT'S cash-flow problems are compounded because financial aid checks usually don't arrive until the third week of classes. Student workers are in a similar hind; paychecks arrive a month after they begin work. Many students don't qualif, for the limited number of available short-term loans, and for many students, the loans don't cover the cost of books.

Some students are disadvantaged by temporary financial binds. That is why the book charging proposal is so appealing. Students would have a month to pay for their books before interest charges would be levied. This would allow them to defer payment until their aid or paychecks arrive.

ADMINISTRATORS, however, are concerned about how to handle the reduced eash flow that would plague the bookstore. The bookstore would likely need the University to provide temporary cash until students begin paying for books.

But neither this problem, nor any of the others noted by administrators, appears to be insurmountable. Other universities have book charging systems which work very well. Whether these systems would be applicable to SIU-C needs to be investigated — as does the entire proposal.

The book charging proposal seems like a good idea. Let's find out

Election already muddied

Andrew Leighton, the Action Party candidate for the Un-dergraduate Student dergraduate Organization presidency, recently accused the USO Committee on Internal Affairs (in a Daily Egyptian article) of "stifling new ideas." The purpose of the committee is not really to deal with new ideas, except when amerding the USO constitution.

This school year, the CIA took on the task of revising portions of the constitution, but not without asking our fellow senators and the USO executive branch for suggestions. The committee received four suggestions and was instrumental in seeing that each one became incorporated into the USO constitution.

The only new idea the committee has so far rejected is the current plan to eliminate the USO Minority Affairs Commission. It is not that we were necessarily opposed to or in favor of the idea, but the submitter has so far neglected to contact all the student groups which could be affected by such a change and inform them of the ramifications.

Better anthem might inspire more singing

This is an answer to Cathy Dyslin's question (posed in a recent letter to the editor) of why most people do not sing the national anthem at public functions. If "The Star Spangled Banner" were written in a range that the average person could sing, I am sure most people, and I, too, would gladly join in full song at public functions. As it is, no matter how patriotic we may feel, there are very few people who have the vocal range and ability to sing "The Star Spangled Sanner" all the way through without changing register or just giving up after making a valiant attemnt to do so.

without changing register or just giving up after making a valiant attempt to do so.

My suggestion as a solution to this problem is that the U.S. government discard "The Star Spangled Banner" — the tune of which is merely an old college drinking song (perhaps it can be sung after one has had several beets)—as its national anthem and adopt one that everyone can feel confident about singing. I propose we adopt "America the Beautiful" as our national anthem. Not only does it have a tune that is well within the range of the average person, but its sentiments, it seems to me, are not only poetic, but also are more in keeping with the philosophy of our nation; it extolis the physical and spiritual beauty of our country and people, and lacks the tongue-twisting militaristic expressions of "The Star Spangled Banner" or the saccharine mentality of "God Bless America." Beam defenses violate no treaties

Karen Greenburg's letter of March 26, which critiqued President Reagan's proposals for a space-based anti-ballistic missile defense system, should be considered very carefully by anyone concerned with the future of civilization. However, I would suggest that reality deviates considerably from her portrayal of it.

Ms. Greenburg hegins her argument by stating that "a U.S. ABM (system) in space will pressure the Soviet Union to build more missiles in order to increase the charce of some weapons getting through," and that the Soviets would be encouraged "to produce weapons capable of destroying our 'defensive' system." Why would the Soviets wish to

Why would the Soviets wish to do that? Are they so committed to attacking and destroying us that they would assume the enormous economic load needed to try to outflank the most precise and efficient defense yet conceived? Consider that a ballistic missile achieves a velocity of about 17,000 miles per hour at the peak of its boost phase, while a chemical or X-ray beam travels at or near tree speed of light, 186,000 miles per second! Moreover, beams of sufficient power could destroy missiles in milliseconds. If a beam defense is potentially as effective as Edward Teller and other proponents claim, then the strategic balance can be shifted decisively in favor of defensive systems. Although it is true that the nation which first deploys an effective ABM system would gain a first-strike advantage, President Reagan's offer to the Soviets of a cooperative effort to develop defensive beam systems is a way to circumvent that nossibility that possibility.

deployment of space-based ABM systems, Article II, Section I very narrowly defines an ABM system as "currently consisting of: (a) ABM interceptor missiles; (b) ABM launchers; and (c) ABM radars." Directed-energy beam systems are not prohibited by the treaty but are made subject to negotiation. The Soviets may have already abrogated the treaty by testing and deploying their surface-to-air missile system as an ABM system. These missiles are reportedly capable of intercepting submarine-launched ballistic missiles at an allitude of 100,000 feet Furthermore, there is evidence that the Soviets are even more advanced than the United States in research on a deployable beam defense system.

As far as the Treaty on Outer

As far as the Treaty on Outer Space is concerned, beam defense systems targeted at ICEMs cannot be construed to be "weapons of mass destruction."

Finally, one should not neglect the expert critics who say that it cannot be done. We need only recall with fondness the wise words of Lord Kelvin, president of the Royal Society, who, in 1895, said, "X-rays will prove to be a boax," and added some years later, "radio has no future."— Les Polgar, Graduate Student, Zoology

Compromising defenses won't guarantee peace

I would like to present several arguments for President agan's proposals for an antiballistic missile system in space. Since 1972 the Soviet Union has actively been pursuing ABMs. Reportedly, the Soviet Union has built facilities for mass-production of ABM system components that would give them the capability for rapid deployment of a nationwide ABM system. According to the Defense Department, the Soviet Union is Defense spending 3 to 5 times more than the Unit States on research States on research and development of weapons in space and could deploy the first sattelite within the next five years. The Soviet Union is also presently con-ducting tests of pointing and tracking mechanisms for laser weapons while similar U.S. tests are not scheduled until

The argument that space weapons would escalate the arms race falsely assumes that a Soviet military buildup is contingent on a U.S. buildup. As President Carter's Secretary of Defense Harold Brown stated "When we build, the Soviets build." The Soviets appear to be embarked on a buildup aimed at nothing less than superiority.

The Soviet Union's track record is also less than honorable when it comes to keeping treaties. The Reagan Administration's report on Soviet arms-control violations states the Soviets have violated the 1972 ABM Treaty by testing rapid-reload launchers, deploying battle management radars for a nationwide ABM system, deploying and testing mobile radars and missile launchers and testing surface-to-air missiles in an ABM mode to upgrade air defense. According to the New York Times, on Feb. 8, the Soviets tested a new light intercontinental ballistic missile, the PL-5, in violation of SALT II. The Soviets announced a "freeze" on deployment of the SS-20 in March '982 but' since then have developed 40 additional SS-20s. The State Department has evidence the Soviets are in violation of the 1972 Biological Weapons Convention by using chemical warfare in Afghanistan, Laos and Cambodia. The Soviets have also hedged any "mutual verification" of frozen weapons. Peace is an admirable objective, but I do not believe it will be attained by compromising our defenses.—

Keeping ahead of Soviets is road to peace

We disagree with Ms. Greenburg's argument and wish to express a different point of view.

Missiles aren't an infinite resource that cen be produced until a substantial percentage of anti-ballistic missile evaders is assured. The Soviet people are already poverty-stricken and can't adequately supply the finances for the production of 10,000 missiles. (8,500 more than they currently would have). The production cost of such a vast number of missiles would cost the Soviets billions of dollars outside of their current enormous defense budget.

The Soviet Union is now

The Soviet Union is now spending $3 billion more per year on space weaponry than the United States. The Soviets were the first to instigate the space arms race by fielding an anti-satellite weapon. The Soviets have violated the ABM treaty by deploying surface-to-air missiles as ABMs. A special ABM-3 concerning early warning against ballistic missiles, also in violation of the treaty, has been deployed by the Soviets. The Soviets violated the ABM treaty, defaced the SALT agreement, and have yet to show any response to the freeze proposal. This is clearly illustrated by

This is clearly illustrated by their actions (walking out) at the Geneva START negotiations supposedly because of Pershing II and Cruise missile deployment in Europe.

However, few people recall how the Soviets continued their prepianned deployment of SS-20 missiles throughout Eastern Europe during the SALT talks (the United States did not walk out). In addition to all of this there is one key point in relation to the freeze issue. Under the Kennedy-Hatfield proposal, space based weapons are not frozen because they are non-muclear, as is the case with chemical weapons. This omitted area leaves many consopen in continuing the arms buildups.

Our only choice is to take the necessary steps to stay ahead of the Soviets. The purpose of the reaty was to prevent a race for deployment from occurring.

That being the case, there is no reason to sign such empty documents. The concept of a mutually verifiable bilateral nuclear freeze is admirable, but the Soviets refuse any a. empts of the United States to verify compliance of treaties. Our only verifications are those which they can't prevent, such as satellite detection. A freeze will put political pressures only on the U.S. There are no plans to show "The Day After" on Moscow television. In a sense, we are stuck with an unverifiable unilateral nuclear moratorium on U.S. weapons. If any individual has a solution to this problem, please let us know.

Ms. Greenburg's statement in relation to the Soviet's building more missiles to penetrate the ABM system should reveal Soviet's aggressive Ladencies. We don't even know if a nuclear "surprise attack" of such magnitude is possible.

Today, it is very annoignous whether the deployment of any kind of nuclear hardware will increase the possibilities of Today, it is very amoignous whether the deployment of any kind of nuclear hardware will increase the possibilities of nuclear war. The button or chain of buttons that must be pushed, which would lead to an unimaginative helocaust is a decision that is made by human minds and not systematically calculated by the "brain" of the machir—— Bryan Mickelson, Sophemere, Business, Chris Briddick, Sophemere, Prychology

EPCOT class to give students a glimpse of future technology

By Joyce Vonderheide Staff Writer

SIU C students can study behind-ine-scenes details at Disney World's EPCOT Center through a travel study class designed by two SIU-C professors.

Richard Archer and Larry Busch, both assistant professors of design, created the four-credit course, which will take tudents to the Exper al Prototype Community of Tomorrow in Orlando, Fla.

Archer said EPCOT has the technologies that students need to learn about, all in one place.

Before the center opened, Archer, who did early work in EPCOT's development, went to a "sneak preview" and asked the center's staff about bringing in students to see how it operates. At first the answer was no, but later the staff said that if Archer developed a program, they would consider participating.

participating.
Archer and Busch spent six months developing the course, which was held for the first time last summer. The University of Georgia and the University of West Virginia have also designed approved programs which will begin this summer. Archer said 18 universities presented programs for approval, but only a few were selected.

529-5700

Through the course, students are able to "see technologies that we will be forced to go to in the near future," Archer said

Last year students brought home large notebooks full of information gained on the trip, Archer said.

Students will attend lectures given by managers of the different sections at EPCOT, he said. General managers from the Bell System, General Motors Corp., Exxon Corp. and Sperry Computers are among the lecturers, all of whom work regularly at the EPCOT exhibits.

Students in many majors would benefit from the two-week course, Archer said. He said students will study a methane digester used to convert sewage to natural gas and an experimental torest exhibit which uses sewage to grow the trees and plants.

Other areas that students will be exposed to include the light-wave communication, system, which uses glass fibers instead of wire, the hydroponics exhibit, the monorall system and a workshop dealing with how the staff takes an idea and creates an actual display, he said.

The class will arrive at EPCOT on June 1 and return to Carbondale on June 10. The cost of the class is $412 for lectures and entry to EPCOT and $149 for tuition.

Archer said the group will camp at a resort campground costing less than $3 a night.

Those interested should register at the Continuing Education office. An organizational and informational meeting will be held at 5 p.m. April 12 in Room 102 of the Blue Barracks, near Brush Towers.

Abdul-Jabbar on brink of scoring record

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) Los Angeles Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar needs 21 points Thursday night against the Utah Jazz to break Wilt Chamberlain's all-time National Basketball Association scoring record—a mark that once was considered unst.rpassable

The nation's gambling capital rolling out the red carpet for the game, which is expected to draw a capacity crowd of more than 18,000 fans, with 14,000 tickets already sold by Wednesday.

Those expected to attend include Chamberlain, NBA Commissioner David Stern, Nevada Gov. Richard Bryan, and Abdul-Jabbar's parents, Ferdinand and Cora Alcindor.

In his 15th season in the NBA In his 15th season in the NBA, Abdul-Jabbar has 31,399 regular-season points after scoring 27 against the San Antonio Spurs Tuesday night. Chamberlain, who played 14 seasons, scored 31,419 points. However, Abdul-Jabbar already is the leader in total points. - regular-season and points - regular-season and "To be No. 1 in anything in American sport is something to be proud of. I'm very thankful and I hope everyone thinks I deserve it."

Chamberlain is one who agrees that Abdul-Jabbar deserves it.

"If anyone is deserving to hreak break that record, it's definitely definitely him," said Chamberlain. "I'm proud that he will have it."

The 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar has averaged 20.3 points per game against the Jazz this season, but scored 29 in their last meeting at Los Angeles. He has scored 20 or more points in the Lakers' last 17 games.

Scoring, however, has not been Abdul-Jabbar's only strong point.

He has been named the NBA's most valuable player six times, played in 14 All-Star Games and was named the league's Rookie of the Year when he broke in with the Milwaukee Bucks in the 1969-70 season.

Las Vegas has served as the Jazz' nome-away-from-home for 11 games this season.

Murray State won all six singles matches and one of the two doubles matches. The only match the Salukis won was in No. 2 doubles where Gabriel Coch and Chris Visconti beat Steve Massad and Bard Gunderson 6-7, 6-3, 6-3. Per Wad-mark and Lars Nilsson were into the third set of their No. 1 doubles match against Bob Montgomery and Barry Thomas when it was canceled by tornado warnings. Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre had some thoughts about the loss to Murray State.

"Well, they beat us 7-2 when we were at full strength last semester," LeFevre said. "We really couldn't expect to do much better against the team that will probably win the Ohio Valley Conference this year. We just have to buckle down and do the best we can with the MVC championship coming up."

When the Salukis lost to Murray State last semester, they had Rollie Oliquino playing No. 2 singles and Scott Krueger playing No. 5. They're both out for the season with injuries.

This time around, Mon-tgomery outlasted Saluki Wadmark in No. 1 singles 6-3, 6-7. 7-6. For Wadmark, it was his 19th loss against two victories.

"Per u not playing up to his capability because of the flu he had that lasted a month," LeFevre said. "He !! come around."

The tests will be administered to all competing athletes, not

Baseball team tumbles to 6th straight defeat

By Daryl Van Schouwen Staff Writer

MURRAY, Ky. - When the Salukis overcame a 7-1 deficit with an eight-run outburst in the third inning of Wednesday's rain-soaked baseball game at Murray State, it appeared as though SIU-C would break out of its slump with a come-from-

But in the end, it was the Racers who came from behind to win by pushing across three runs in the bottom of the sixth to defeat the Salukis 10-9.

defeat the Salukis 10-9.
Murray State's cozy field had been rained upon off and on throughout the contest, but the rain fell hard enough in the sixth inning that the umpires called an end to it after Murray had scored the go-ahead run.

"As comebacks go, we did a nice job," Coach Itchy Jones said, "but we should have won the game.

The loss was SIU-C's sixth straight and dropped the Salukis to 6-12. The Racers improved their record to 10-7.

After Scott Bridges' run-scoring single put the Salukis ahead 1-0 in the top of the first, Murray State scored seven runs in the bottom half. Murray State's first-inning explosion was ignited by three home runs, off the bats of Gary Blaine, Mike Gargiulo and Tom Gargiulo.

The victim of the Racers' hot bats was Paul Saikta, who retired just one of nine batters he faced in the opening frame before Rich Koch entered to put out the fire.

The Salukis topped the Racers' big inning with an eight-run third off Murray State's ace left-hander, Don Neufelder, SIU-C loaded the bases for Robert Jones, whose sacrifice fly scored Terry Jones. Joe Spiewak's grounder to shortstop brought home Steve Finley, making the score

7-4. Then, after a pair of walks, Jay Hammond, pinch-hitter Dan Cassidy and Terry Jones singled in succession before Finley doubled to right field. Cassidy's hit had knocked out Neufelder, who was relieved by ex-Saluki David Young lood. By the time the iming was over, SIU-C bad sent 11 hitters to the plate and led 9-7.

Koch, meanwhile, silenced the Racer bats with scoreless pitching through the fourth, when he gave way to Gary Bockhorn.

"Koch did what he had to do,"

Jones said. "He beld them and allowed us to get back in it."

Bockhorn pitched a accordess fifth but got himself in trouble in the fatal sixth. After David Butts reached base with a single, Blain hit a tailor-made double play grounder back to Bockhorn, but the Saluki hurler's throw to second sailed into center field.

After a fielder's choice and a walk, designated hitter Chris Barber drilled a bases-loaded double to right-center field. scoring two runs to tie the game at 9-9. A wild pitch then allowed the go-ahead run to score from third base, and since the rain was falling hard and the field getting swampy, the umpires getting swampy, the umpres called the game. "It seems like when you struggle," Jones said, "things don't work out right. The key play was Bockhorn not getting the out at second base."

Saluki gymnastics Coach Bill Meade gave a and the Salukis are preparing for the NCAA helping hand to Murph Melton in practice. Meade championships next week in Los Angeles.

Meade has led Saluki gymnasts through long journey of success

By George Pappas Staff Writer

Saluki gymnastics Coach Bill

Meade has done it again.
In his 28 years as head coach at SIU-C, Meade has again led the Salukis to the NCAA Gymnastics Championships — this will be his 18th journey. Of those 18, he's led the Salukis to four national championships

What is the secret behind

Meade's success?
"Well," Meade said, "getting good kids, have them work hard and being lucky."

But the gymnasts said other things about Meade's coaching

"Meade diagnoses you and then motivates you," Saluki pommel borseman Heri Voss said. "If he cuts me down about something, he somehov, negatively motivates me. It will make me mad, which will make me work harder."

However, Meade doesn't agree with the motivating tactic.

"That's 'cause they don't know what else to say," Meade explained. "They can't say I'm a technician, they don't betieve that. They don't say I'm a nice guy, 'cause I'm not that. So the only thing they can say safely hat will go in the paper is that I'm a motivator."

BUT WHEN MEADE was asked what really made him a better coach than others in the nation, he came back with a reasonable answer

There are a lot of things that I do 1 3ht. I work hard and we have a good gym, plus there are a few things that I think I can teach," Meade said.

Basically, Meade was being modest. Meade does things that other coaches don't. He does his homework. Several weeks ago, the Salukis had a dual meet against Illinois Illini Coach Yoshi Havasaki had to ask how the Salukis were doing this season whereas Meade could spend 30 minutes telling someone about the Illini gymnastics team. He knows the strengths and weaknesses of teams going to the NCAA championships next week. "Vell, I like to look at the personnel the other teams have and check their scores," Meade said. "I like to know what's going on around me."

Even though it might seem that Meade has mastered being a gymnastics coach, he still thinks there is one thing that is harder than any other.

"IT WOULD HAVE to be recruiting," Meade said. "Because you're at the mercy of a 17-year-old who really doesn't know where he wants to go. Either he likes the facilities or he likes the school because it's a big football school or something.

"Then you have the kid who doesn't like the coach or he doesn't like the competition or he wants to work all-around yet there's only room for him as a specialist. The worst thing is when you lose him to another school and he turns out to be a great gymnast."

Even Meade had goals when he first started as Saluki coach in 1956. The first was to win the conference, which he did. Then it was to make it the NCAA

NCAA votes down shot clock

SEATTLE (AP) National Collegiste Athletic Association's Rules Committee, in a surprise vote, decided Wednesday to put off for at least another season using a 45-second shot clock in college basketball.

The committee will next consider the shot clock issue at a meeting after next year's Final Four tournament in Lexington, Ky. Ed Steitz, the committee's secretary-rules editor, predicted its adoption Steitz athletic director at Springfield (Mass.) College, was the only committee member to appear at a news conference after the closed-door meeting.

"The vote was very, very close," he said, but he refused to disclose the exact balloting.
Steitz said the committee decided not to go with the shot clock because of uncertainty over whether to use it for the

Some wanted the clock used during the entire game while others favored shutting it off in the last few minutes, he said. In order for the rules committee to adopt a uniform, nationwide shot clock, it would have required a two-thirds vote of the 13-member committee.

He said his earlier prediction that the 45-second shot clock would be adopted for the 1984-85 season was "just my personal opinion."

NCAA Division II and III schools will continue to ex-periment with the shot clock

Steitz said the committee was leaning toward a shot clock to take the stall out of college sketball because the sketball because slowdown game was not exciting to watch on television and TV generated a lot of revenue for Division I schools.

Twelve conferences, 10 in Division I, experimented with the 45-second shot clock this Wednesday's announcement came just two days after Georgetown beat Houston 84-75 for the NCAA basketball title in sor the NCAA desketdan ture in Seattle's Kingdome. In the second round of the tour-nament, Georgetown was in-volved in a 37-36 game with Southern Methodist.

The committee failed to respond to a survey of the nation's college noop coaches disclosed by the National nation's college noop coacnes disclosed by the National Association of Basketball Coaches here last Thursday, in which 53 per cent of the college coaches favored a shot clock.

Injury to keep sprinter from women's meet

Indiana is favored to win the Two by Three Quadrangular Saturday at Illinois for the fifth consecutive year.
SIU-C women's track Coach

Pon DeNoon, whose squad will oe without sprinter Denise Blackman because of a hamstring injury, doesn't expect the Salukis or Illinois to upset the

"I think it is going to be a situation where we go for in-dividual performance and ignere the team scores, DeNoon said.

Blackman, who pulled her right hamstring last weekend at the Saluki Relays, will be unable to run in the 100- and 200-meter dashes, and the 4x100 and 4x400 relay teams. Karen Cooper, who will run in the 400 hurdles, is probably going to replace Black han in the relay

"There are 16 events and three teams competing, and it will be a good experience for us if we can win five events against two strong teams like Illinois and Indiana," DeNoon

The Salukis were clobbered by Indiana at the Indiana Quad, the opening meet of the indoor season for SIU-C. The Hoosiers won eight of 14 events and scored 55 points to win the meet, while the Salukis failed to win an event and totaled only three DeNoon thinks one of the reasons the Salukis will do better against Indiana is because they are strong in the discus and javelin events, which are not held in the indoor season.

"We will show our strength in the throwing events, with Rhonda McCausland competing in all three events (javelin, discus, and shot put) and Cynthia Joy in the javelin," DeNoon said.

The Salukis faced Illinois last weekend at the Saluki Relays, a non-scoring meet. Illinois led all teams by winning seven of 18 events, and SIU-C finished second with four first-place finishes. But if the meet was scored, the Salukis would have outpointed the Illini, 124.5 to 116.

In addition to McCausland and Joy, DeNoon said he ex-pects solid performances from Debra Davis in the 800, Jennifer Bartley and Cathy Davis in the 100 and 200, Sally Zack and Lisa Hicks in the 3,000 and 5,000, Odette James in the 5,000, Kathryn Doelling in the 1,500, Sue Anderson in the high jump and triple jump.

Debra Davis will run in the 800 for just the second time in her SIU-C career. On March 14, she won the 800 at the Rat-tleratter invitational at Florida A&M with a time of 2:14.07.

"Moving Debra to the 800 is a gamble but we have to see how she can do at that event," DeNoon said.

According to DeNoon, there is a 90 percent chance distance runner Lisa Rein and will miss the remainder of the season because of a stress fracture in her left leg. Reimund was ex-pected to be the Salu is' top distance runner this spring after coming on strong in the fall cross country season. She hasn't competed for the Salukis since suffering the injury before
