Councilmen make plans

AGENDAS: Briggs, Budstick address bar-entry age, rental housing and towing.

City Council Elections

JENNIFER CAMDEN
DE POLITICS EDITOR

Larry Briggs, Carbondale City Councilman-elect, plans to suggest lowering the bar-entry age from 21 to 19 at his first council meeting next month.

"It's going to be the first thing, as far as I'm concerned," he said.

Briggs and Councilman-elect John Budstick, who also supports a lower bar-entry age, will be sworn in before the council's May 6 meeting, the first one in which they will participate.

Briggs and Budstick, who drew much of their support from student votes in Tuesday's election, have additional plans for council action next month.

Budstick will propose a landlord-student board to hear complaints about rental housing and bring them to the council's attention.

He also suggested occasionally scheduling council meetings on campus.

"This would be a chance for students who don't know or haven't met the council, who have something to say, to come out and say it," Budstick said.

Briggs said there should be a "major discussion" of Halloween at a future council meeting. He said there can be a positive, controlled celebration.

Briggs also wants to examine the city's towing companies.

"I'd like to look at the possibility of putting some sort of limit on the towing people and how they treat the people they tow," he said.

The topics on the two new councilmen's agendas are ones they emphasized when they campaigned to students.

Votes in four student-dominated precincts—21, 23, 25 and 26—comprised 41 percent, or 696, of Briggs' 1,702 votes. They comprised 39 percent, or 714, of Budstick's 1,816 votes.

Budstick said because students were the swing votes on Tuesday, they will be targeted

University, Amtrak to decide schedule

RECONSIDER:

University officials hope departure time not set in stone.

JENNIFER CAMDEN
DE POLITICS EDITOR

A coalition of city and University representatives want Amtrak and the Illinois Department of Transportation to reconsider their plans to change the train's departure time from Carbondale to Chicago.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said representatives of the city, student government, SIUC administration and local business met with Amtrak and IDOT officials Thursday to discuss the matter.

"Their proposal is not set in concrete, but the concrete is probably poured," he said.

In January, Amtrak and IDOT announced that their new three-year contract includes a plan to change the Carbondale-to-

Chicago departure time, now at 4:05 p.m. daily, to an early morning time that has not yet been scheduled.

The planned schedule change in the Illini route, the only one included in the new contract, is slated to take place by July 1.

Doherty said the morning departure time's potential impact on students was discussed at the meeting.

"They understand that student ridership is very important," he said, "and they understand under their current proposal, they would be giving that ridership up.

Vice chancellor resigns

LEAVING: Quatroche says ISU made him an offer he could not turn down.

JULIE RENDLEMAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC's vice chancellor for Institutional Advancement is resigning to accept a position at Indiana State University, because of an offer he says he could not refuse.

Robert Quatroche will be leaving SIUC no sooner than June 30 and no later than July 15 to accept a position at ISU Aug. 1.

Quatroche announced Thursday he would accept the position at ISU as the vice president for both University Advancement and the ISU Foundation.

"When opportunities present themselves, like this very attractive offer, you have to take it," he said. "I am looking forward to be able to use all my experience I have had at SIUC to gain more knowledge and help ISU's mission of public relations, alumni relations and fundraising programs and is helping with fund-raisers for the Paul Simon Foundation, the College of Engineering and the Athletic Department.

Quatroche's duties at ISU will be the identical to those at SIUC, but he also will oversee the fund raising for the ISU Foundation.

Quatroche said SIUC's changing administration had nothing to do with him leaving. John Guyon retired as president of the University last August, and SIUC chancellor Donald Beggs was appointed to his job.

"There is a degree of uncertainty of the future leadership on the SIUC campus with Beggs having another year left and a replacement still to be found," he said. "But this job at ISU was too great to pass up."

Quatroche said his relationship with John Moore, ISU's president, will be an asset to his new job.

"I have known him personally for a while," he said. "He is a proven president and administrator. It is important for success in this new job to have chemistry with a campus president."

Police looking for suspect in possible sexual assault

SIUC Police are investigating a possible attempted sexual assault that took place in broad daylight Wednesday morning.

At about 10 a.m. Wednesday, police received a report from a student about an incident that recently happened in front of the Northwest Annex on Lincoln Drive.

The student said she was approached from behind by a man who pulled her dress up over her head and pulled her close to him. The man reportedly ran from the scene when the woman began screaming.

The suspect is described as a black male, 5 feet 6 inches to 5 feet 7 inches tall, short hair and a medium complexion. He was wearing a red, hooded sweatshirt, dark blue sweat pants and black tennis shoes. If anyone has any information please call the SIUC police at 453-2381.

HEALING POWER: Project allows victims of sexual assault express emotions.

LA'KEISHA R. GRAY
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

As some people walked by the Clothesline Project Thursday, they had mixed feelings of anger and sadness, but for Julie, the project personified a big step in her healing process.

The Rape Action Committee presented the Clothesline Project, a visual display of T-shirts made by people like Julie who have been victims of sexual assault.

Julie, a Carbondale resident, said she is a survivor of countless sexual assaults, including molestation, acquaintance rape and rape.

"It has happened throughout my life. I had a very low self-esteem about myself," she said.

"I didn't like myself for a long, long time. It makes you feel like you're separate from everybody else. But when they start stuff like this, you see that you're not the only one."

Julie made a T-shirt for the project to help her heal and form a bond with other rape survivors.

"This allowed me to express myself, and it's almost like when they say it's better when you talk about it," she said. "This helps relieve some of the pressure and not keep it all inside."

For Carolyn Prinz, a member of the Rape Action Committee and the coordinator of the Clothesline Project at SIUC, the project is a means of raising the community's awareness about sexual assault.

A former mathematics professor and dean of the SIUC Graduate School died Monday at the age of 86.

John Meigs Olmsted, who served SIUC as dean of the Graduate School from 1970 to 1973, was pronounced dead at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, 405 W. Jackson St. Olmsted was born in Ithaca, N.Y., and received degrees in mathematics from the University of Minnesota. In 1940, he received his doctoral degree from Princeton University.

He taught at the University of Minnesota from 1940 to 1960 before coming to SIUC in 1960 as a professor and chairman of the Mathematics Department, replacing former chairman W.C. McDaniel.

Olmsted authored nine mathematical textbooks, including various professional journal articles, from 1947 to 1963. He also collaborated with another professor in 1964 to write a 10th textbook.

Olmsted retired from SIUC in 1976. His last position was professor of mathematics in 1976.

In 1955, Olmsted married Cynthia Dickman, his third wife. She survives along with three sons, Hugh, David and Gordon, and one daughter, Emily Evans.

Getting along

Student voters did not elect councilmen by themselves

TUESDAY'S ELECTION WAS NOT ABOUT lowering the bar-entry age or alcohol, but about bringing the community together.

In Tuesday's election, students only boosted council member-elect John Budslick's into victory, but really it was the residents who seated him.

Budslick's primary votes in the residential areas tripled in the general election — evidence that he was not elected by single-issue voters. In the general election, 55 percent of Budslick's votes came from the residential areas.

THOSE RESIDENTS WHO BELIEVE THAT Larry Briggs' and Budslick's victories are mandates for lowering the bar-entry age and making Carbondale more alcohol-friendly are blind.

They are the people who divide the city and entrench the perception that the city has two types of people: students and residents. This perception causes unnecessary tension and apprehension between the students and residents.

Instead of joining forces to help the community — which on occasion happens — the groups are separated and unable to help each other.

This — not alcohol — is Carbondale's true dilemma, and the main reason why Briggs and Budslick were elected on Tuesday.

THERE WERE OTHER IMPORTANT ISSUES — economic development and safe housing — in this election that were reasons why Briggs and Budslick were elected.

Their victories were mandates for refreshing the council's view of community and bettering the city relationship with the students, not making alcohol more-accessible by lowering the bar-entry age.

People need to recognize that the council serves all residents — including students.

IT IS UNFAIR TO LABEL CANDIDATES AS "one-issue candidates." It is more unfair to label this election as being won by people who only care about making Carbondale more alcohol-friendly.

The council is there to serve people, to hear different viewpoints and to take all ideas into consideration when deciding Carbondale's future.

And in this election, registered student voters were responsible enough to vote for those candidates who acknowledged their viewpoints and genuinely responded to them — candidates they believed would not just toss them aside and forget about them after the election.

IT IS UP TO BOTH GROUPS TO STEP ACROSS the lines and join each other. Briggs and Budslick only are two people who can help; it is up to the rest of us to lay the groundwork to join this community. Let us learn and thrive from each others' diversity.

It is time to lay all barriers aside and become one group in this community called Carbondale.

"Our Word" represents a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

Overheard

"I probably would have voted if [campaign workers] didn't bug me so much. It was just annoying. I guess advertising is good, but they overdid it. I just wanted to shoot the next person I saw who told me to vote."

Amy Malinowski, a freshman in zoology from Worth and a registered voter, on why she decided to skip the polls in this year's election.

Columnists not to blame if readers squander time

It seems to be the opinion of some that Daily Egyptian paid columnists have absolutely nothing to say, and that we spend about as much time thinking about what we are going to write as we do writing. Well, believe it or not, rhetorical poses and verbal dances take a long time to come up with, especially when trying to avoid substance.

In actuality, sometimes we do have nothing to say; Sometimes the one thing that truly inspires one of us is the exact topic one of the others already wrote about and turned in.

Other times, because of occasional error, part of a column is left out. Such was the case with my column on aggression (March 4) where the closing paragraph (containing wit and substance) was mistakenly deleted before going to press. It happens sometimes. It is just one of those unpleasant things that one has to deal with on a daily basis.

Unfortunately, no one can control what happens to us. What we can control, though, is what we do and how we choose to respond to those things which are unexpected or unappreciated.

I have always found that becoming angry is more self destructive than anything else. Anger tends to eat away at you until you become obsessed with it and eventually let it overcome you. That is certainly not healthy or fun.

One way of dealing with it that I have come across is to ignore it.

This is a method even Chaucer used to justify in his "Canterbury Tales" what many considered offensive or pointless.

In his prologue to the Miller's tale, Chaucer pretty much states that if the reader is offended by it, or misinterprets it, or does not get the meaning, then it is the reader's fault because no one forced that person to read it, and there are many other tales that reader had to choose from.

If it is going to make you mad, offend you or do nothing more than take time out of your busy schedule, then do not read it. Chaucer had the right idea.

This concept applies to a variety of aspects, though. For example, the racist issues that once again have been brought to surface by ignorant souls can be remedied by two simple words. Ignore it.

People have the tendency to get their underwear in a bunch about topics that are overlooked, and it is an unnecessary waste of a trip on the effervescent emotional roller coaster.

The fact of the matter is that no one makes you do anything, whether it be reading something, watching something or saying something.

So if you chose to do something, blame yourself for the consequence.

Gays need legal protection

Dear Editor:

In the state of Illinois it is legal to be denied housing, denied credit, refused service in a restaurant and to be fired from your job if you are, or are presumed to be, gay, lesbian or bisexual. To think that there is a significant portion of Illinois citizens who are not protected by the law from discrimination is disturbing. But what is more disheartening is that we the citizens of Illinois allow this to happen by not putting pressure on our state politicians to make all discrimination illegal.

The Illinois House of Representatives is set to vote on House Bill 1241 at the end of April. This bill would make discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation illegal in Illinois. It is important to remember that House Bill 1241 guarantees equal rights, not "special rights" for gays, lesbians and bisexuals. By passing this bill it would be illegal to deny housing, credit, service and employment based on sexual orientation.

On April 9, the Illinois Federation for Human Rights is sponsoring a Lobby Day in Springfield. This is a chance for citizens to urge their state politicians to support House Bill 1241. It is important that the entire state of Illinois be accurately represented on this day. It is time for Southern Illinois to be heard from on this matter because equality for all does not and should not be determined only by citizens of the Northern portion of the state.

We invite you to join us in our struggle for equality on April 9. We will travel to Springfield to join the Illinois Federation for Human Rights to lobby our state politicians on this day. All interested parties should meet at 7 a.m. at the east entrance across from McAndrew Stadium in front of the Student Center. Coffee, food and transportation will be provided.

We strongly encourage and welcome all to come and make a difference in state government on April 9.

Group raises enough to present powwow

SPIRITS: Organizers opt for smaller, but no less authentic event, with money raised.

LA'KEISHA R. GRAY
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Overcoming financial barriers has been a problem plaguing the American Indian Association's attempts at hosting the area's first powwow, yet the problem has not dampened the organization's spirits. Iris Creasy says.

Creasy, the president of the American Indian Association, said her group will present "Spirits of the Midwest," Southern Illinois' first American-Indian Pow Wow.

Although the organization was in jeopardy of canceling the powwow because it faced a dilemma in raising the funds needed for such a big event, it will now take place Saturday at the National Guard Armory, located at 900 W. Sycamore St.

She said her group has raised about $3,800, and she appreciates the help received from around the SIUC campus.

The Friends of Native Americans, the Graduate School and the Chancellor's office, have all played a part in helping donate money for the powwow.

Also, local businesses made contributions to assist with other aspects of the event, including donating roasters and food products. And while some stores in the area were not willing to make any contributions, Creasy said she is grateful for the ones who agreed to help out.

"A lot of the money we've been given year round came from the Graduate School, but we did receive support and encouragement from students and businesses we approached personally," she said. "I just want them to know that we appreciate them, because if it had not been for their support, this just could not have happened."

While the event will be smaller than previously planned, the content of it will not lack substance or representation of authentic American-Indian culture.

"Spirits of the Midwest" will feature authentic American-Indian foods, dancing, storytelling, hoop dancing and arts and crafts.

Becky Dielfield, the sales manager for Carbondale Tourism, said she has seen signs that the pow wow will attract many people.

"This past week we've gotten quite a few calls from people wanting directions to the armory and inquiring about the events," she said. "So people are showing interest."

Creasy assures everyone the event will be a lesson to all.

"This is the first, so we really don't know what to expect," she said. "All we can do is hope for the best. We want to share our heritage with the community. And at least let them know what a pow wow is, so they'll attend next year because we hope next year it will be even better."

National association honors outgoing SIUC vice chancellor

FIRST: Administrator honored for surveying anonymous leaders, jacks-of-all-trades.

DAVE ARMSTRONG
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Often referred to as the "anonymous leader," the presidential assistant of a university is a position requiring a jack-of-all-trades, an SIUC vice chancellor says.

Robert Quatroche, vice chancellor for Institutional Advancement at SIUC, was recognized Feb. 22 at the 10th annual meeting of the National Association of Presidential Assistants in Higher Education (NAPAHE) for his role in founding NAPAHE, as well as providing the only data collected about presidential assistants.

Quatroche announced Thursday he would be leaving SIUC this summer to accept a position at Indiana State University as the vice president for both University advancement and the ISU Foundation.

Quatroche was the assistant to the President of the University of Pittsburgh, where he was awarded the University of Pittsburgh Medallion for outstanding service, loyalty and dedication to the university.

Mark Curchack, a former chairman of NAPAHE and executive assistant to the president at Beaver College in Glenside, Pa., said Quatroche's involvement was key in the development of NAPAHE, which was founded in 1987.

"Bob was one of the earliest members involved," Curchack said. "He may have been the original person in a position like this. He came up with the idea of surveying presidential assistants in 1990, and that information is still being used today. It was the first information we had about people in our positions."

Quatroche said the purpose of the presidential assistant is many-fold and is hard to describe just one thing the assistant does.

"To put it simply, a presidential assistant influences and persuades, in a positive manner, the way a university moves," Quatroche said. "Ten years ago, we needed a voice. That is why we started it (NAPAHE). I'd say there are about 400 members of this organization today. It's a much more visible position now."

This visibility comes in part from a 1973 article Quatroche wrote for Techniques magazine, titled "The Anonymous Leader." In it, Quatroche describes the presidential assistant position in a way Curchack said was long before its time.

"At the time that article came out, nobody had really heard of this position," Curchack said. "He was definitely ahead of the game when it came to seeing the importance of the presidential assistant."

Susan Kern, assistant to the president of Illinois State University, said those honored at the NAPAHE conference were integral to NAPAHE.

"This was an honor for the founders," Kern said. "The recognition was for the people who had the idea to have an organization for the thousands of presidential assistants across the country."

Even though Quatroche no longer is a presidential assistant, he believes the position could be used at SIUC.

"I think this could become important at SIUC," Quatroche said. "We've been successful in bringing this idea to attention nationally, and it seems to have a good effect on those campuses."

embarking at a helicopter landing pad named for the fictional character and declaring the plan "not compatible" with the neighboring ecosystem.

Babbitt called on the chemical giant to make a "grand public gesture by simply withdrawing" its plan to extract titanium oxide from the edge of the Okefenokee National Wildlife Refuge.

He said DuPont's proposal is "much more threatening" to the 396,000-acre Okefenokee refuge — the largest wildlife preserve east of the Mississippi River — than a more-publicized plan to mine gold near Yellowstone National Park in Montana. The Clinton administration headed off the gold mine by swapping that location for mining rights elsewhere on federal land.

Babbitt urged DuPont to avoid an expensive and protracted regulatory battle by "looking elsewhere" for titanium, which he said is in plentiful supply at many less environmentally sensitive places.

A DuPont spokesman said it would be "premature to respond" to Babbitt's criticism.

Quality day care helps children's development

HEALTH STUDY: Federal survey reports positive findings on child day care.

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON—As a group, children in day care learn to think and talk just as well as those cared for by their mothers, a long-term national study has found.

The study, being released Friday by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, did find, however, that the quality of care matters: Children whose caregivers respond and speak frequently to them perform better on thinking and language tests than those in settings where they have less verbal interaction. It also confirmed an earlier finding by the same group of researchers, that day care has far less of an impact on children than their circumstances at home, including economic resources and their mother's psychological health.

While many of the findings should be reassuring to working parents, the study did indicate that placing a very young child in day care for many hours each week has a small negative impact on the mother-child relationship. Researchers found that the more hours children 6 months and younger spent in day care, the more likely their mothers were to show some negative interaction with them.

"The next candidates that run are going to look hard at the students and give them their dues," he said.

Briggs said he will not forget who voted for him.

"The folks who elected me are students," he said. "Without the student vote, I wouldn't have been elected. I am prepared to dance with the people who brought me."

Pat Kelly, who helped organize Briggs' and Budsluck's student volunteers, said the two new councilmen will respect their constituents.

"Both candidates know where their votes came from," he said. "Nearly 50 percent of their vote totals came from students."

Kelly, who received 422 votes in the February council primary, said the election was not a referendum on liquor issues.

"It's about the community respecting the students and the students respecting the community," said Kelly, a sophomore in philosophy from Carbondale. "We're going to end the (Halloween) riots, not by opposing people, but by working for the greater good of the community."

to some extent."

Doherty could not comment on the specific matters discussed by any parties, but he said another meeting is planned for mid-April.

Under the three-year contract, which guarantees train service until the year 2000, the state will contribute $7 million to Amtrak in 1997, $7.55 million in 1998 and $7.95 million in 1999.

IDOT spokeswoman Martha Schiebel said Amtrak must look for ways to save money.

"Leaving early in the morning would allow them to get extra revenue and save the state's money, which ultimately, of course, is the taxpayers' money," she said.

Doherty said the city is aware of Amtrak's financial situation.

"I think both sides understand the situation each is in, and we're talking about some different ideas," he said.

An Amtrak representative was unavailable for comment.

Dennis Lyle, Carbondale Chamber of Commerce board president, said the chamber has involved itself in the Amtrak negotiations because the departure time affects students, and student recruitment and retention is one of its priorities this year. Lyle said Amtrak's departure time also affects local business and tourism.

"From what I understand, depending on arrival and departure times, there could be some impact on weekend travel opportunities to Carbondale," he said.

Mark Terry, Graduate and Professional Student Council president, said a coalition of Carbondale interests could be more effective than a single body asking for change.

RESIGN

Beggs said even though Quatroche is handling some big fundraisers, a replacement will not be found any sooner than normal. Quatroche has a support staff that is also handling the fundraisers.

"We will start looking for a replacement as soon as we can," he said.

Beggs said Quatroche has been a real asset to SIUC and opened the door to new opportunities.

This University is losing a great asset.

JOHN JACKSON
VICE CHANCELLOR FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

"I think that Bob has done a good job of working with new administration and has helped us in all the ways he could, and ISU realized what an asset he is," he said.

John Jackson, vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, said he is sad to see Quatroche leave, because he works well with him.

"This University is losing a great asset," he said. "In the past the state always provided this University with enough money. But over the years a need for fund-raising has greatly increased because of the state pulling money out of universities."

Quatroche said he will miss the most watching SIUC grow over the years.

"SIUC has tremendous potential and is on the verge of being much better than what it is now," he said. "I have been extremely pleased to be part of this University."

Clinton investigation costly

BIG SPENDERS:

Counsel racks up costs during probe.

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON—Independent counsels investigating President Clinton, the first lady and other administration officials have spent nearly $36 million in two years, logging their most expensive six-month period yet by spending more than $10 million from April through September 1996, according to the most recent figures compiled by the General Accounting Office.

The GAO report provides further evidence that Whitewater independent counsel Kenneth W. Starr is carving out a place in special-prosecutor history with his spending. In the six-month period ending Sept. 30, 1996, he spent $5,049,625, bringing his total to $22,298,708. His investigation began in August 1994, but is approaching the cost of a longer-running probe into favoritism in the Reagan administration's Housing and Urban Development Department.

When you hear someone crying out, in the past years, no one seems to be listening. "This is a good way to bring attention to that." While Jennifer Hardacker, a graduate student in cinema and photography from Carbondale, studied the display she fought back mixed emotions. A look of anger was etched onto her face, and as she took several sighs, she spoke. "I feel partly anger and helplessness, but at the same time I realize this is a part of the women's healing process," she said.

to bear witness to the violence committed against women," she said. "This should hit home because it is not someone else's problem. It's our problem, the community's problem. It's an epidemic."

The best way to help prevent sexual assault is through education, and during April, Sexual Assault Awareness Month, Prinz wants to share the facts.

According to the Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence, a woman is battered every 45 seconds, and according to the American Medical Association, every nine seconds a woman is raped and sexually assaulted.

As some students walked by the project in Faner Hall breezeway, their attention was drawn to the messages screaming out to them. Some of the shirts stated:

"No more touch. No more feel. Get the message, it's for real!" "I was 4, he Stole, Murdered, Violated my childhood!" and "God saw what you did!"

All the shirts displayed were color coordinated by the type of assault each woman survived. Some of the shirts were made by survivors of incest or child molestation. Other shirts represented women who have been sexually assaulted, battered or attacked for their sexual orientation. And some were tributes to those who died at the hands of their perpetrators.

And while some of the shirts were designed by women who have survived sexual assaults by men, some male students said they were able to feel the victims' pain.

"I think it's an interesting way for them to express their feelings towards the people who did this to them," said Mike Ward, a freshman in business from Harrisburg. "(Sexual assault) is a terrible thing, a crime that needs to be addressed.

When you hear someone crying out, in the past years, no one seems to be listening.

"This is a good way to bring attention to that."

While Jennifer Hardacker, a graduate student in cinema and photography from Carbondale, studied the display she fought back mixed emotions. A look of anger was etched onto her face, and as she took several sighs, she spoke.

"I feel partly anger and helplessness, but at the same time I realize this is a part of the women's healing process," she said.

Hardacker wants others to become intolerant to any acts of violence against women.

"It's just a matter of not pretending that it'll go away," she said. "And the biggest problem is that people don't want to acknowledge that this exists."

"I just want to give them (survivors) a hug and let them know that there are people out here who do care."

gentleman in the 15 years they knew each other.

"He was thoughtful and courteous, always thinking of others," Roubos said. "He was also very athletic. He was always proud of the fact that he could swim two lengths of his pool without coming up for a breath."

Cynthia Olmsted said John had a passion for the outdoors and nature.

"He liked to spend his spare time skiing and camping," she said.

"We always invited our friends on what became an annual hike into the remote areas around Carbondale.

"John also had a rare talent. He could hear a melody, and then play it by ear on the piano. I don't think many people know that."

No visitation is planned. Cynthia Olmsted said friends may call at the home, 501 Cedar View St., any day after 10 a.m.

Salukis rank high in NCAA

FIFTH IN MIDWEST:
Salukis try not to let regional honors affect their conference play.

DONNA COLTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The SIUC softball team is ranked fifth in the NCAA Midwest region, but coach Kay Brechtelsbauer knows the ranking should be taken lightly when the team enters Missouri Valley Conference play Saturday.

Every two weeks the NCAA does rankings by region, with six regions in all. The NCAA looks at all the teams' records during that period of time and who they played, to determine regional rankings.

"We appreciate where we sit," she said. "We are going to spend a staff's No. 1 hurler. "I think he has responded really well," Saluki pitching coach Derek Johnson said. "It does not seem to be a pressure situation for him."

What little strain Frasor has had at the mound this season has come from pitching to lead-off hitters. Fourteen of 32 lead-off batters in each of Frasor's 32 innings have gotten base hits, pegging him for a .438 average.

However, with runners on base, Frasor has responded by holding hitters to a .188 average.

Hence the minuscule ERA. "That stat is amazing," Johnson said. "It seems when he gets in trouble he really concentrates more, bears down and gets the job done. A lot of that is because of his arm strength. He can overmatch some guys, maybe even make a mistake or two and get away with it."

"Our philosophy is to try and get the first guy out of the inning. But I guess in Frasor's case, it's not the worst thing that can happen."

Frasor said it makes the inning "a little more interesting."

Thanks in part to Frasor and an offense batting .777 in league action, the Salukis are 3-2 in the MVC and 9-15 overall. SIUC has won five of its last six games.

Frasor said he is happy with where he is in the rotation and feels comfortable with the way things have progressed since being called upon to lead the pitching staff.

That sits well with SIUC left-hander Donnie Chester, who is 2-4 and will start the first game of Saturday's doubleheader.

lot of time thinking of it.

"(The rankings) are nice, and it gives us some respect and recruiting. But it stops there. The respect is a big plus side of it. But we don't want to get caught up in that."

However, Brechtelsbauer knows the Salukis are deserving of the regional ranking.

"We're in pretty good company," Brechtelsbauer said. "We had some significant wins and significant losses. We had a pretty strong schedule to start the season, and we fared reasonably well."

The Salukis (19-10) begin Valley play against pre-season favorite Illinois State University (10-13) in Normal Saturday. SIUC was picked to finish fourth in the MVC.

SIUC has won its last five games and seven of its last eight, whereas Illinois State has been defeated in six of its last 10 contests.

The Salukis are ready to play Illinois State despite their first-place pre-season ranking.

"I think it's good starting off playing (ISU) since they are ranked No. 1 because we play better against better competition," second baseman Betsy Prater said.

The Lady Redbirds are returning more All-Conference players than any other team in the MVC and are led by seniors Priscilla Welch and Kerri Bartlow.

Welch is sixth in the Valley in hitting, leading Illinois State with a .373 average and 25 hits. Bartlow is the team's leading hurler, with a 5-5 record. The pitcher has a seventh-best 1.99 ERA in the conference.

The Salukis counteract Welch's offensive threat with strong pitching from senior Jamie Schutteck and freshman Carisa Winters, who was named the MVC pitcher of the week.

Schutteck leads the hurlers in and he has been great," Chester said of Frasor. "He is bearing down and getting guys out."

While he may have been asked to fill a big role, Johnson said he told Frasor to change nothing and just get the job done.

"The only thing that I mentioned to Frasor was, that his approach on what he does, cannot change," Johnson said. "No matter if you are the No. 1 starter or the No. 4 starter, the bottom line is, whatever game you get to pitch you have to perform to your capabilities."

"I just wanted him to know that his approach would be the same." SIUC coach Dan Callahan, who was searching for answers following the staff's adversity, has been pleased with how Frasor has adjusted to his role.

"Frasor has done a great job of stepping into the No. 1 role," Callahan said. "That is a great deal to ask of a sophomore, but he has responded well at a time when we certainly need some quality innings from him on Valley weekends."

Last season Frasor earned his way into a starting role by making 18 appearances and compiling a 4-3 record, including a 12-1 win over the Panthers, whom he will face today. The Panthers are 6-2 in the Valley.

Last season Frasor won three league games, and two of his three wins this season have come against MVC opponents.

"Last year I had a tendency to freak out a lot," Frasor said. "This year I am more calm and have more experience. I think I challenge hitters more. Last year I tried to hit the corners a lot. This year I'm getting more ground-ball outs instead of trying to strike everybody out this year."

Whatever works for Frasor works for the Salukis.

pitched with 103.1 and is 13-1 on the season. The senior pitcher has accumulated a .54 ERA with 81 strikeouts.

Winters has pitched two no-hitters in eight days, while striking out a career-high nine batters against the University of Northern Iowa in the championship game of the Western Illinois Invitational Saturday. The rookie pitcher has pitched 68.2 innings with 64 strikeouts and a 1.63 ERA.

Brechtelsbauer said the Salukis have to be psyched up to play the conference's No. 1 team. "Illinois State is the team at this point on paper," she said. "We are starting out with the No. 1 pick, so we have got to play hard and be prepared."

"They (ISU) have the strongest schedule. We are ready to go. We are always up for ISU. We will be fired up to play."

Senior third baseman Becky Lis knows the team must be prepared to play, but which team the Salukis play is not the main consideration.

"It really doesn't matter who we're playing as long as we keep playing the ball we are," she said. "The regional rankings are great to get acknowledged for the teams we have beat. But it doesn't mean we'll get a conference championship and go to the NCAA tournament."

"If we don't go to the tournament (the ranking) doesn't mean much."

an important meet because Illinois State will be there.

"ISU is there, so we want to compete against them and show them what we're made of," Park said.

SIUC already has competed against ISU earlier in the season, losing to them at the SIU Invitational.

The All Sport Relays is a unique meet because it is the only meet of the season that combines the men's score and women's score as one of the titles to be won.

The SIUC women's team competed at Eastern Illinois University Wednesday and Thursday and will travel to SEMO to join the men Friday.

Sweetin said the opportunity to compete with the women's team allows for more unity on the team. "I like the way we work together at this meet," he said. "I have no doubt we're going to win."

Cornell said besides this meet, the team still must focus on scoring better each week, if it is to have a chance at the Missouri Valley Conference Outdoor Championships in May.

"Come May we should be right in the hunt," he said. "It all depends on just how hard they want the championships."

SIUC TENNIS

Salukis hit road for matches

The Saluki men's and women's tennis teams head back on the road for Missouri Valley Conference matches this weekend.

The men's team travels to Evansville, Ind., for matches against host University of Evansville today and Southwest Missouri State University Saturday. The men carry a 3-8 record into this weekend's action.

The women's team travels to Normal for matches against host Illinois State University at 3 today, Drake University at 10 a.m. Saturday and Indiana State University at 10 a.m. Sunday. The women take a 4-5 record into this weekend's play.

SIUC GOLF

Golfers back on road

The Saluki men's and women's golf teams are back in action with tournaments on the road this weekend.

The men's team travels to Jonesboro, Ark., to compete in the Spring Classic Sunday and Monday.

The women's team heads to Bloomington, Ind., for the Indiana University Women's Invitational Saturday and Sunday. The women are coming off of a second-place finish at the Saluki Invitational March 23-24.

SIUC RUGBY

All Fools tournament comes to SIUC this weekend

Twenty six rugby teams (16 men's and eight women's) from across the Midwest will take part in the seventh annual All Fools tournament, the largest collegiate rugby tournament in the Midwest.

The SIUC men, last year's defending champs, will battle a field of teams that includes Illinois State University, Eastern Illinois University, Northern Illinois University, Western Illinois University, Western Kentucky University, Northwestern University and Iowa State University.

The tournament starts Saturday, rain or shine, at 9 a.m. with 36 games scheduled. The tournament will then continue with the Championship round Sunday at noon. The games will be played at the sports complex fields west of Abe Martin Field. Admission and parking are free.

Angel Velarde out for season

Anaheim Angels starting second baseman Randy Velarde will undergo surgery on a tendon in his right elbow next week and will miss the entire season. The team said Thursday he will not be able to play for up to a year.

Velarde developed soreness in the elbow during spring training and managed to play just seven games before being sidelined.

SIUC track squads ride high expectations into big meet in Cape Girardeau.

BRAD WEBER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC men's track and field coach Bill Cornell has been walking away from the track feeling more confident after seeing his young team get stronger with each competition.

Cornell said the extra practice time and learning how to jump or explode out of the blocks quicker has begun to pay dividends.

"In high school, there is a different type of training," he said. "You don't get to train year round in high school. The year-round practice in college can help an athlete get extra technique work on an area where they are struggling."

Beginning today, the men's track and field team will compete against 10 teams at the All Sport Relays in Cape Girardeau, Mo. Of the 10 teams, Illinois State University, Southwest Missouri State University and Southeast Missouri State University are the early favorites to give the Salukis tough competition.

Cornell said the outdoor season has been a nice change of pace because his team has performed at a higher level than in the indoor season.

"Right now we're doing a great job outdoor," he said. "Our expectations are high, and I think we can score in every event this weekend."

Aside from the 10 who made the trip to Purdue University last Saturday, the team has had the last week to prepare for the All Sport Relays.

ACCIDENTAL HERO:

MICHAEL DEFORD
DE SPORTS REPORTER

Searching for a solid starter late last month, the SIUC baseball team pointed a desperate finger toward sophomore right-hander Jason Frasor.

At the time of the request, SIUC's pitching staff was minus starter Tory Hattan and Aaron Bresko, both suspended 15 games for violating team rules March 19.

Then the staff lost the services of starter David Piazza, whose season-ending elbow injury left the Saluki pitching staff searching for someone to take over the rotation's top spot.

Someone with a strong, consistent arm had to answer the call, and Frasor was a popular candidate.

"I think it was kind of obvious that I was going to be there after the suspensions and the injury," Frasor said. "I knew it would happen. I was not surprised."

"But I think four of us, including Donnie Chester could have taken over the role."

Regardless of whether or not he saw his new role coming, or who else could have answered the call, Frasor has delivered everything asked of him.

Entering this weekend's four-game series against Missouri Valley Conference rival University of Northern Iowa at Abe Martin Field, Frasor owns a 3-0 record and a 2.76 ERA. Frasor has thrown 32 and 2/3 innings in nine appearances, including four starts.

In addition, the Oak Forest native is holding opponents to a .264 batting average.

Not bad for a pitcher who never even envisioned becoming the
