USG elections off to controversial start

Taylor's presidential eligibility determined today when USG defines what GPA will be used

KAREN BLATTER
GOVERNMENT EDITOR

Rob Taylor will go before the Undergraduate Student Government Judicial Board today hoping to gain approval to run for USG president, despite conflicting reports of his cumulative grade point average.

Taylor

Because of two different definitions of what a cumulative GPA is based on, some in USG say Taylor is eligible to run based on his SIUC cumulative GPA, while Student Affairs said he was ineligible based on his career cumulative GPA.

Student Affairs denied Taylor's application to run for president, stating that his cumulative GPA was below the 2.25 needed, based on grades that were obtained at SIUC and his community college.

"They should not go on a record from six years ago," he said. "It can be detrimental to a life of someone who wants to make a difference; that's bad."

The judicial board will rule on what definition of cumulative GPA will be the standard for USG. Sean Henry, president of USG, said USG has always used just the GPA earned while at SIUC to determine eligibility, and Student Affairs should have been basing the GPA on just SIUC.

"It is wrong for them to change it," he said. "They should use one or the other."

Records produced by Taylor, including his SalukiNet transcript and a verification from Student Development, show he does have a 2.25 cumulative GPA, which is based entirely on his SIUC grades.

But on March 20, Student Affairs stated that Taylor was eligible to be on the senate, which only requires a 2.25 GPA.

Sharon Leonard, Student Affairs office assistant, said her office was making a mistake in allowing Taylor on the senate and they have made the mistake in the past.

"At one point, we did not take the career GPA," she said. "It was an error."

Both of the definitions from USG and Student Affairs are right, according to Steve Foster, assistant director for Records/Registration.

Foster said there is a cumulative GPA as it applies to just the grades that have been obtained while at SIUC and there is a career GPA that includes all the grades obtained in higher education.

He said the GPA that is used to determine financial aid and programs requiring academic standards depend on what type of cumulative GPA the program requires.

Three grievances filed dealing with First Amendment, Open Meetings Act and GPAs

KAREN BLATTER
GOVERNMENT EDITOR

Three days after Undergraduate Student Government elections started, three grievances have been filed by USG Senatos: Eric Waltmire.

Waltmire, who is running for USG vice president under Rob Taylor, found two grievances in the USG Campaign Guidelines that violate the Illinois Open Meetings Act and the First Amendment.

The third grievance deals with discrepancies in the USG Constitution in relation to grade point average requirements for presidential candidates and Taylor being found academically ineligible.

Waltmire said he filed the grievances because there are too many rules to run for student government.

"The rules keep people out of USG," he said. "Students who have been denied to run should be allowed to run and students should decide their government."

The USG grievance commissioners are reviewing the items and will reach a decision next week.

The first grievance states the campaign guidelines violate First Amendment rights because it requires all campaign fliers and posters to be approved by the USG

B-average scholarship similar to other states

The Higher Education Scholarship Act waits in Senate

ANNE MARIE TAVELLA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

An Illinois bill to pay full tuition for students with a B average or better upon graduating high school and while in college is a first for Illinois.

But similar scholarships have been available for years in different states, including Arkansas, Kentucky and Georgia.

The Higher Education Scholarship Act, or HB 3831, was passed by the House of Representatives and has been in the Senate Rules Committee since March 8.

A similar scholarship, the Arkansas Academic Challenge Scholarship, began assisting Arkansas residents in 1991.

Although both scholarships are merit based, there are some differences. The Arkansas scholarship does not pay full tuition, but pays up to $2,500 per year. Students with a grade point average of 2.5 or above are eligible. The amount of the award is dependent on GPA, calculated from only college preparatory courses, and ACT scores.

Melissa Goff, manager of student financial aid for the Arkansas Department of Higher Education, said the scholarship has helped increase the number of high school students taking college preparatory courses to 75 percent. "It has definitely driven student behavior," Goff said.

There is also an income cap for the Arkansas scholarship. The maximum income for a family with one dependent child is $70,000. The cap increases by $5,000 for each additional dependent child and by $10,000 for each dependent child in college full time.

Goff said the scholarship has been well received in Arkansas.

"It has been very popular for us," Goff said.

The Kentucky Education Excellence Scholarship is almost identical to the Arkansas scholarship, although it was predominately inspired by the Georgia HOPE scholarship.

In Kentucky, high school students with a GPA of 2.5 or above are eligible for up to $2,500 per year, with consideration of SAT and ACT scores.

The Kentucky scholarship does not have an income cap. George Graves, spokesman for Kentucky Council on Post Secondary Education, said the lack of an income cap is one concern facing the scholarship.

Because the scholarship was passed by the Kentucky legislature in 1998 and was available to students in the 1999-2000 school year, Graves said it is too soon to tell what problems the scholarship may have.

"We are going to track it to see what effect it has," Graves said.

He does not expect many problems because similar scholarships in other states were considered when the Kentucky scholarship was formed.

"We did have the benefit of looking at other states and seeing what they had worked out," Graves said.

The scholarship that inspired the Kentucky scholarship, the Georgia HOPE scholarship, has been available to Georgia residents since 1993.

Compared to Kentucky and Arkansas, the Georgia scholarship has the fewest limitations. The scholarships award all students with a B average or better full tuition, fees and provide a $150 per semester book allowance. Also, Georgia's scholarship is completely funded through the state lottery.

When the scholarship was created there was a $160,000 income cap, but the cap was abolished in 1995. Another major change occurred in 1996 when the GPA requirement was restricted to college

Dietz finds old friends in new job position

New vice chancellor gets reacquainted with SIUC

RHONDA SCIARRA
STUDENT AFFAIRS EDITOR

On his first day as SIUC's new vice chancellor, Larry Dietz ran into friends he went to high school with more than 30 years ago.

Dietz walked into the Disability Support Services office, under the Student Affairs division, and was reunited with high school classmate and DSS director Kathleen Plesko. While he and Plesko were friends in high school, they now have a different relationship.

"He is my boss now, and that's never happened to me before," Plesko said. "It is a little funny — it's going to be interesting. I feel like I am in good hands."

Dietz began as SIUC's vice chancellor for Student Affairs and enrollment management Monday, after being named to the position in January. The De Soto native attended Carbondale Community High School and continued at SIUC. He graduated from the University in 1970 with a degree in political science.

"I was a little uncanny," Dietz said of his return to SIUC. "In that, you recognize people when you haven't seen them in 30 years."

He left his stint as the vice chancellor of Student Affairs and enrollment management at the University of Missouri-Kansas City in March to take the position here.

Dietz spent Monday and Tuesday canvassing his new workplace and meeting with Student Affairs Staff, student government officials, college deans, students and administration.

Georgetown new apartment buildings approved

Georgetown Apartments, 1000 E. Grand Ave., will build two new buildings, providing eight new apartments, after the City Council approved the final development plan on Tuesday.

In addition to the eight, two-bedroom apartments, there will be increased parking and a storage facility added.

Primary construction on the buildings has already begun, and the apartments will be ready to be occupied by Aug. 1.

Student trustee petitions due next week

Candidates who wish to run for the office of student trustee can pick up petitions in the USG office on the 3rd floor of the Student Center.

All candidates must turn their petitions in to the Undergraduate Student Government office no later than 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Student Trustee elections will be April 19.

Tribune columnist comes to speak at SIUC

John McCarron, a weekly columnist for the Chicago Tribune and member of the Tribune's editorial board, will speak at 6 p.m. in the Dean's Conference Room of the Communications Building about his experiences in journalism and how students can prepare for their jobs in the field.

McCarron's appearance is being brought to SIUC by The Freedom Forum and the Society of Professional Journalists. Pizza and refreshments will be provided, and there is no cost to attend.

City Council reviews fiscal year 2001 budget

The City Council reviewed the fiscal year 2001 budget and capital improvement projects for the city on Tuesday.

The fiscal year 2001 budget is $37.5 million compared to the fiscal year 2000 budget of $32.5 million.

The highlights for capital improvement projects include continuing the Mill Street Underpass project, improvements to the parking system, visual improvements to East Main Street and improvements to the historic Woodlawn Cemetery.

The council will meet again on Tuesday to review and possibly approve parts of the budget.

The finalized budget will be completed in May.

Dean of Library Affairs to resign this summer

Snyder cites professional and personal reasons

DAVID OSBORNE
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Carolyn Snyder will step down from her post as the dean of Library Affairs after nine years in the position. Her resignation will be effective July 1.

Snyder said she is leaving for both personal and professional reasons.

Snyder

Snyder, a tenured professor, will return to the library faculty. A national search for a new dean will begin later this spring, and an internal search for an interim replacement will begin shortly, according to a University prepared statement.

"Carolyn Snyder's accomplishments are evident to anyone who walks into the library," interim Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Margaret Winters said in the statement.

"Her energy, commitment and vision have kept the heart of the academic community healthy and accessible. I appreciate her many contributions."

Snyder's accomplishments include the addition of computers that aid in data searches and collection, as well as expanded distance learning and instructional technology services for faculty, staff and students.

Interim Chancellor John Jackson said Snyder has been critical in the modernization of the University's library.

"I think Dean Snyder has been a good leader on modern technological needs," Jackson said. "She has brought much needed change and modern technological advances and service and library."

In the statement, Snyder thanked faculty, staff and the administration for their support. Snyder said the library has also moved forward in development and fund raising under her tenure, with the addition of a development officer and development plans.

"I want to acknowledge everything that we were able to accomplish together," she said.

Potential link in public indecency

Third similar incident on campus within a month

DAVID FERRARA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

A man who reportedly exposed and fondled himself in the Student Center Tuesday afternoon fits the description of a man involved in a string of similar incidents occurring on campus.

He was seen sitting across from a woman on a U-shaped couch in a hallway of the Student Center called Art Alley when he reportedly began masturbating while staring at the woman.

An SIUC student who said he was sitting about 15 feet away from the suspect when the incident occurred spoke to the DAILY EGYPTIAN Wednesday on the condition of anonymity for safety purposes.

The witness said the woman was "minding her own business and reading near the piano" in the center of the hallway. The suspect was also reading. But, the witness said, the suspect "seemed kind of odd because he looked around a lot — every time there was a noise."

The hallway was crowded with about five people sitting in surrounding couches, and the witness said at least five people walked through the hallway before the exposure occurred.

The witness arrived in Art Alley, which is a wide hallway on the second floor on the south end of the Student Center with various art adorning the walls, about 3 p.m. to study. The witness said he did not see the reported exposure occur because the suspect "was really, really shy about whatever he was doing."

But when the victim called out for help about 3:30 p.m. and the suspect sprang from his chair and fled out the center

OUR WORD

Student Affairs has gone too far

SIUC Student Affairs chose to exercise their authority, rather than empower students, when they elected to alter Undergraduate Student Government's GPA policies. Monday, Student Affairs decided USG senator Rob Taylor's eligibility would be based on the cumulative grade point average of his entire college career instead of his SIUC GPA. With the same stroke, they opened the door for questions concerning their motives and credibility in terms of serving the best interest of students.

The DAILY EGYPTIAN is neither endorsing Taylor, nor is in any way attempting to serve as an advocate for him. However, we refuse to sit idly by and watch any student, especially those looking to contribute to the betterment of SIUC, become a causality based on an ill conceived University policy.

In addition, Student Affairs unwittingly helped expose a problem that the DAILY EGYPTIAN reported on Tuesday, involving the glaring discrepancies in the USG constitution concerning GPA requirements for presidential and vice presidential candidates. Until Monday, USG only used a student's SIUC average to determine eligibility for its officers. Student Affairs has now stepped in and said that a student's entire academic record, including transferred grades from other institutions, will be used.

We strongly support the use of GPA requirements for students seeking leadership positions. This is good for SIUC and USG because it says the University is a place of excellence in terms of academics, and that we require our student leaders excel in their academic endeavors.

We also support Student Affairs' involvement to make sure these goals are met. However, Student Affairs grossly misused their authority by announcing at the last minute that a cumulative GPA for a candidate's entire academic career would now be used, thus eliminating Taylor from USG. Only three weeks ago, Student Affairs determined that Taylor was academically eligible to serve as a senator based on the same records. Student Affairs officials claimed that they made a mistake in not taking into account a student's total academic GPA. This may very well be a legitimate argument, but these matters should have been dealt with in well advance of the elections.

To change the policy at this juncture takes away from the students' right to choose who will represent them, or who will not. Students should not have their voices silenced because of bureaucratic policies that are out of their control. Taylor, or any student in his situation, has every right to question the logic behind such a move. A grievance was sent to the SIUC Election Commission on Taylor's behalf April 3 stating that Student Affairs once deemed him eligible. The letter also stated Student Affairs actions were unfair, and brought attention to the fact Student Development independently confirmed Taylor as eligible for a position in USG.

But, Student Affairs is not the only culprit in this matter. USG needs to address the confusion within their constitution concerning the academic status of its officers. A stronger and more concrete USG constitution may have prevented this situation all together. USG's duties do not only involve serving as the student body's elected representatives, but also acting as thorough managers of their own organizational house.

The primary job of campus leaders is to serve the students, and that objective is denied if our leaders' policies serve their own interest, and not that of the students. The decision as to who should represent the student body should be up to the students, not University administration.

Politeness an endangered habit in America

Even as Americans become richer and more technologically proficient, we are getting ruder. At home, on the highway and on the job, bad manners are likelier to win out over good ones.

Three-fourths of workers agree the workplace had become a ruder place in the past decade. Companies are paying the price for the growing lack of civility, according to Christine Pearson, professor at the University of North Carolina and director of the survey.

Fifty-two percent lost work time worrying and 22 percent intentionally cut back on their work effort in response to shabby treatment on the job.

Pearson theorized bad manners are a direct result of ill will from previous downsizing, and the increasing pressure to do more with less, as well as from technology like e-mail enabling employees to "zap" one another anonymously. If our language is any indication, then our manners have definitely slipped. During my own research, I found people swear an average of 16 times a day. One-third of us say if we have to belch, we simply let it rip.

A third of us admit that given the opportunity we sometimes or always poke around in other people's medicine cabinets. Slightly more of us sometimes or always steal a glance at other people's mail.

Yet shreds of decency and courtesy in America remain. Some 72 percent of the overall population--and, amazingly, 80 percent of Generation X--say they give up their seat on the bus for a pregnant or elderly person. Eighty-four percent say they typically step back to allow women to get off the elevator before them.

Seven percent of us confess to sometimes sticking our chewing gum under the furniture. Anyone who goes to the movies knows that some folks aren't fessing up here.

Yet our movie manners seem to have improved in other aspects. Where audiences once hissed and booted irritating theater ads, now they're essentially indifferent, getting up for popcorn or chatting. And once the film starts, two-thirds of us become vigilant, reminding talkers to mind their manners with a loud shush.

An amazing figure, given the current antisnoking attitude, is our attitude to cigarette smokers. If a fellow restaurant patron is puffing away and the smoke was bothering us, nearly three of four of us won't say anything but simply inhale and bear it.

MAILBOX
SGAs are well qualified for core curriculum

DEAR EDITOR:
Thank you for your thoughtful editorial on the University core curriculum Tuesday, April 4. On behalf of the more than 750 instructors and 18,000 students in the core, I want to emphasize how very important this program is to the University community, which your editorial expressed well. Plans to strengthen this vital feature of undergraduate life clearly merit everyone's attention and support.

I do wish, however, to correct one misleading impression in your editorial. You state, "Most graduate assistants are sent into the classroom with as little as one day of training." That is simply not true. In fact, most GAs in the core have years of training in their chosen fields of expertise before they set foot in the classroom. More than half of them have their Master's degree and are working on their Ph.D., a much higher level of academic achievement than exists on the staffs of the community colleges across the state, for example.

Moreover, their enthusiasm for learning and their engagement in teaching can and do make a significant difference in the lives of SIUC students. And most GAs receive a week or more of additional training in how to teach. In the Department of English, for example, GAs are required to attend 11 days of workshops during the summer and to enroll in a course on teaching during their first semester on the job.

What the planning document for the core, "Keeping Faith," calls for is better coordination of this training to ensure the very best instruction the University can provide its entry-level students. In many cases, this effort may require teacher training as a requirement for higher degrees at SIUC.

There are still other initiatives worth discussion, and I encourage you to consider them in future editorials: better curricular integration between the core and the major, more widespread use of the new learning technologies, and the deep commitment of the University's research faculty to the core.

All these efforts ultimately will help students to realize the true value of the University Core Curriculum to a lifetime of learning necessary in an information-rich economy and society. Thank you for your contribution to this important objective.

Hugg, keep on doing what you are doing

DEAR EDITOR:
I am writing this letter in response to Julie Hugg's column [DAILY EGYPTIAN Tuesday] "In response to the critics." I wish you would have included the names of your four critics so I could know who I should never cheat off of. These comments are meant for those critics.

First, stating facts about America's founders is not "trashing" them. These men not only condoned racism, theft and the abduction of human beings, they participated in it. The second critic wrote that Hugg's column is detrimental to students and an all-out embarrassment to SIU. If Hugg's column was removed, we would lose a thought out, well written column and that would be detrimental. Our third critic said that neither himself/herself or his/her family has ever owned a single slave, therefore the government representing the author has nothing to apologize for. I hate to be the one to let you know this, but you are not the only person that the U.S. government represents. There are millions of people in this country who have slave owners in their ancestry and even more with slave for great, great grandfathers.

The fourth critic wrote that civil rights is a real issue while "Indians" are not. If you don't see the relationship between the hardships imposed on Native Americans and civil rights, then you need to go back to high school. Julie, good job and I will try to keep up with your column. I am very happy to have the column instead of your small-minded critics.

Farm tours offered on McLafferty Road

University Farms open for children to tour this week

WILLIAM ALONSO
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

On McLafferty Road southwest of the SIUC campus, Fisier Price's See and Say has come to life for preschool and elementary children this week.

April 3-7 is Farm Tours Week at the four animal centers at University Farms. Volunteers from organizations such as the Equine Team, Future Farmers of America, and Sigma Alpha helped run the tours. Children from elementary schools in Geneva, Shawnee, and all over Southern Illinois as well as nursery schools and daycare centers took part in the farm tours.

Farm Tours Week has been a program at SIUC for more than 20 years and has switched sponsors this year to the Department of Animal Science. The tours take place at the Beef, Dairy, Horse and Swine centers.

Dr. Richard Roeder is chair of the Department of Animal Science, Food and Nutrition and a professor of Animal Science. This is Roeder's first year with the farm tours.

"Our objective, regardless of how old or young the students are, is to explain to them about farm animals, fit into agriculture and into food production systems," Roeder said.

The tours bring attention to the farms, but are really about the children, said Jennifer Logan, a freshman animal science major from Detroit.

"I think it's really good for the program because it brings publicity to the farms and to the agriculture programs," Logan said. "As a kid, I loved horses so any chance to get out of school and to go see horses I just thought it was the greatest thing."

Both Jenny Litton, a junior in equine science, and Misi Williamson, a freshman in animal science, volunteered for the first time at the Horse Center.

Litton, a member of the Equestrian Team, has really enjoyed her experiences with the farm tours so far.

"I enjoyed watching the kids with the smiles on their faces. I toured them through the barn and showed them what they ate. The kids really enjoyed playing with the baby horses and petting them," Litton said.

Williamson works and lives on the farms and volunteered because she had extra time and likes seeing little kids.

"It was fun, and I got the chance to educate little kids about horses and tell them the right way to say things like calling a cowboy's rope a lariat," Williamson said.

Karen Jelferies, a junior in agriculture education is a transfer student from Oregon State. She also lives and works on University Farms and helped at the Swine Center.

"I was in charge of the pigs. We talked about the similarities between pigs and humans. They weren't quite use to the smell, but they were all really excited to see them, and the questions they asked were really amazing," Jelferies said.

Some children don't get to see what it is like on a farm or see animals up close said Susan Graham, departmental accountant officer manager and Roeder's assistant.

"You drive down the road you get to see a cow or a horse, but you never get to go to a farm and see what it's like. I still remember my kindergarten field trips; those are something that stick with you all your life," Graham said.

The farm tours will take place at 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. today and tomorrow.

SIUC Cleanup sponsors contest for new name

Group dedicated to campus beautification offers a cash prize

JENNIFER WIG
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC Cleanup, a new group dedicated to beautifying campus, needs a name and will pay $1,500 to get one.

The organization, part of the Southern Illinois Cleanup Campaign, is sponsoring a contest to find a new name and logo by April 14. The winner will receive $1,500 in tuition next fall courtesy of the SIUC Foundation and the Center for Environmental Health and Safety.

Christine Dunn, an environmental ambassador for The Center for Environmental Health and Safety, is one student leading the subcommittee. She said the cleanup campaign, which begins Earth Week, will change the way people look at the world around them.

"I think it's very important for our environment," said Dunn, a sophomore in business education from Great Falls, Mont. "We have to live here. We unconsciously litter, and people aren't going to change if they don't realize they're doing it in the first place."

SIUC cleanup is part of the Southern Illinois Cleanup Campaign, a plan announced by Glenn Poshard at the Prosperity 2000 Luncheon Dec. 31. Poshard, vice chancellor for Administration, announced that the program was in development for Earth Week.

CONTEST
FOR MORE INFORMATION ABOUT SIUC CLEANUP, CALL THE CENTER FOR ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH AND SAFETY AT 453-7180 OR VISIT WWW.CEHS.SIUC.EDU/CLEANUP OR WWW.PSO.SIUC.EDU/SUSTAIN.

Poshard was unavailable for comment.

Cori Kristoff, a junior in information systems technology from Bunker Hill, is also an ambassador with the center. Kristoff said she and Dunn are passionate about the environment and hopeful for change.

The program will be launched during Earth Week. Once cleanup begins, the group will attempt to pick up campus litter as often as possible. SIUC cleanup is looking for volunteers and Registered Student Organizations for assistance. The group plans to eventually have sponsors to provide food and aid the cleanup program.

Paul Restivo, director of The Center for Environmental Health and Safety, said the cleanup program will prompt students to create change individually.

"If we can cleanup our campus and energize some students, they can do it back home too," Restivo said. "They will make a difference. They're going to take over the world."

Restivo also said SIUC's beauty is one thing that draws people to the area and he hopes students will recognize that.

"It's certainly more beautiful than any campus I've ever been to," Restivo said.

Steve Tompkins, director of communications for the Georgia Student Finance Commission, said the program also has expanded to non-traditional students in order to ensure all students have the opportunity to go to college.

"If you earn a B average in high school and maintain it in college, you can go to school in Georgia for free," Tompkins said.

The scholarship helps parents and students recognize academic achievement as something more important, Tompkins said.

"It's made academic achievement a number one priority at the dinner table and all around Georgia," Tompkins said.

The Illinois Higher Education Act closely resembles the Georgia's scholarship, although it was not based on it. Rep. Lewis Lang, D-Skokie, said he was aware of similar scholarships in other states but did not find out until after the bill was written how alike the scholarships actually were.

Lang, a sponsor of the bill, said he did not want to put an income cap on the scholarship because it is difficult to say if a family can afford to send a child to college. Families able to pay tuition may still have to go without other necessities to compensate.

The scholarship would be funded through the state's general fund.

Lang said with a $46.5 billion state budget and $1 billion surplus, funding should not be a problem for the program. The estimated cost of the program is $170 million per year.

"Even if we didn't have a surplus, we can afford this scholarship," Lang said.

He has received overwhelming support while traveling through 85 counties for spending tax dollars on higher education, Lang said.

He said the money could not be going to a better program.

"We are really in the right place here for families in Illinois," Lang said. Another state where a merit scholarship is in legislation is Alabama.

The Alabama HOPE Scholarship was originally designed to be funded, like Georgia's, by the state lottery. However, Alabama residents voted down a bill in October 1999 that would have funded the scholarship with lottery money.

The current bill proposes to pay for the scholarship with growth from the education fund, which funds all education in Alabama.

Dr. William Wall, director of scholarships for the Alabama Commission of Higher Education, said it is unlikely that the bill will pass because the amount of the education fund growth is unpredictable.

Election Committee before posted on campus.

Waltmire said the needed approval is a form of censorship.

The second grievance states that grievance procedures are against the Illinois Open Meetings Act because it allows closed meetings, except those called in by the grievance commissioners. Waltmire states since USG candidates are not employees or claim public office, the hearings have to be open under the Illinois law.

"The meetings should be open so people can vote as they please," he said.

The final grievance was filed based on two discrepancies found in the USG Constitution, one about Rob Taylor's GPA and the illegitimate petitions.

The grievance states the USG Constitution requires the birth date of those who sign petitions in support of USG candidates. Waltmire said all petitions were given out without birth dates, making all the petitions for all USG positions invalid. He requested that everyone who turned in a petition be allowed to run.

The USG judicial board will review Taylor's GPA and the invalid petitions tonight.

INDECENCY

through Thompson Woods, the witness knew something was amiss.

"She was hysterical and crying," the witness said. He asked her what was wrong, and she told him what had happened.

The witness tried unsuccessfully to apprehend the suspect.

The woman later reported the incident to University police.

While like descriptions have been given in two other similar incidents that occurred in the past four weeks, police have yet to establish a connection.

Twice in three weeks, a man has reportedly exposed and fondled himself in the Student Center's Art Alley. A man also was seen masturbating in Morris Library March 21.

The suspect in Tuesday's incident was described by the witness as a 180 to 190-pound, 5-foot-9-inch white man in his early 20s with dark, short hair. He was seen wearing a sweater and brown corduroy pants. He was carrying a black book bag, and the witness said, he appeared to be a student.

"It's not like the guy looked like a weirdo," the witness said. In an incident that reportedly occurred March 24 — also at the Student Center in Art Alley — a suspect who fondled himself in front of an SIUC woman was described as a 21 to 24-year-old, 6-to be specific to make sure which one you are up against," he said.

Because of Taylor's problems, Eric Waltmire, Taylor's vice president, filed a grievance with the USG election commission to review the GPA standard.

Waltmire said that the USG constitution does not require a GPA from first semester transfer students, which implies that community college grades should not be factored into an SIUC GPA. Henry agrees with keeping just the SIUC GPA based on this implication.

Henry said the Judicial Board will make the decision on what the standard will be for USG.

As for the rest of Taylor's campaign, the Judicial Board will rule as to whether or not Taylor and Waltmire can run for USG. The Judicial Board has the final say as to who is allowed to run for USG.

"I'm just going through the motions," Taylor said. "They should just let everyone back on to run."

The USG elections will be on April 19.

wanted to show me lots of things about their particular operations," Dietz said. "To me, that is something you don't cut short."

And the time that Dietz spent visiting with various offices impressed Steve Rogers, an attorney with the Student Legal Assistance office.

"Even though he is the vice chairman for all of Student Affairs, he took the time to meet with people in all of the offices that he will oversee," Rogers said. "That is unusual for someone so high up to go and talk with the lowest-level employees."

Dave Kammler, chairman of the Graduate Council, was also grateful for the time Dietz spent getting to know a little more about them.

"I very much appreciate Dr. Dietz taking the time to go about the campus," Kammler said. "I think that speaks very highly of him."

Recurring themes and interest in recruitment and retention, Dietz said, have surfaced in many of the discussions he has had this week.

"I find that there is energy around the whole idea of becoming more aggressive in marketing and recruiting, and bringing in an academically strong student population," Dietz said. "People care very much for this institution."

Dietz admits his schedule was a little ambitious Monday and Tuesday in that he could not keep all of the "walk-about" appointments he had made for his first days on the job.

"What I found is that people were proud of what they were doing, and they foot tall, white man with brown hair and sideburns. He was last seen carrying a black backpack, wearing khaki pants and a blue shirt.

A suspect described in an incident that reportedly occurred March 21 in the second floor of the library was described as a 190-pound 2-foot-10-inch white man with brown hair between the age of 23 and 25.

Reaction to the reported indecency in the Student Center was mixed Wednesday afternoon. Some students said the repeated incidents are "amusing and funny," while others say the public indecency can be "traumatizing" to women who have been targeted victims.

All work makes for better play

Men's tennis' Dante Santa Cruz working in practice, cruising through spring season

ANDY EGENSES
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Sometimes it's the extra things in life that make a difference.

SIU men's tennis player Dante Santa Cruz, a junior from the Philippines, has been doing the extra work necessary to make his final season a memorable one.

An all-Missouri Valley Conference singles team selection last season as the No. 5 player, Santa Cruz fit in nicely this season when he moved up a spot in the rotation. He is a perfect 7-0 in the No. 4 spot, and has been a nice surprise to the team.

"It's pretty rare that guys want to do extra work, but he's one of the guys that is willing to do stuff like that," Saluki head coach Brad Itner said.

Santa Cruz has a 9-4 overall record and plays on the No. 1 doubles team with top singles player Kenny Hutz. Itner said he put Santa Cruz on the No. 1 doubles team because he has good hands, efficient footwork and plays well near the net.

It is not uncommon for Santa Cruz to stay around for about 30 minutes after practice to hit extra balls and work on his game.

The team practices about 15-20 hours a week, not to mention a full class schedule, matches and travel time. But the extra sessions have probably benefited Santa Cruz most.

"He concentrates on his fitness probably as much or more than anybody on the team," Itner said. "He does the extra things to be successful."

Maybe it's the additional practice that allows him to be the fierce competitor that he is. Although he is just a junior, Santa Cruz has enough credit hours to graduate in December, but can stay for a third season if he crosses. "I have nothing to lose, so I give everything," Santa Cruz said. "I also want to get a good record for SIU. I want to win as much as possible...it's my goal because this is my last year."

The transition to the University and Carbondale setting has been a better transition for Santa Cruz than most foreign athletes encounter. Four of seven players on the squad are international student-athletes, making it easier for Santa Cruz to settle in. "That makes me adjust a little better this year," Santa Cruz said. "It's really easy to get along with these players."

In his second year at SIU, Santa Cruz is through the initial adjustment period of learning a new culture and environment in the United States. Tennis is now his main focus, and he wants to win every match.

Santa Cruz, who majors in economics, came to the United States for the opportunity to mix education with tennis. He has encountered just what he hoped for, and has been successful in the process.

"I get a better education [at SIU] and get to play tennis and go places," Santa Cruz said. "It's wonderful."

Hope still remains for men's golf team

Salukis continue to struggle, finish last in Indian Classic

JAVIER J. SERNA
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The mood of the SIU men's golf team remains upbeat after a disappointing start to the season, the latest blow being Tuesday's last-place finish in the three-day Indian Classic hosted by Arkansas State University.

The mood remains positive mainly because the team thinks it is just a matter of time before it plays the golf it is capable of playing when it counts — during competition. The Salukis also have been playing against some strong opposition.

"We don't have great talent, but the kids are working hard and getting better, and we're finishing last in pretty good competition," Saluki coach Leroy Newton said.

Senior Justin Long said so far, the team may be in a little bit over its head.

"The teams here were so good," Long said. "The kid (Stuart Anderson of Illinois State University) I was playing with in the second round shot a 65 (a course record seven under-par). He's one of the top-ten players in the country."

The tournament was won by host Arkansas State University with a score of 876. Wichita State University (879) followed in second place, while the University of South Florida (888) took third place.

The Salukis' total of 946 was highest among the 16 competing teams.

SIU freshman Mark Reuschel shot a three-day total of 236, one stroke behind Saluki leader, junior Brandon Bullard. Reuschel — who partly blames SIU's low finish on simple mistakes — has far from given up and still has faith in the team.

"I left a lot of shots out on the course. I know I could've done better, and I think everybody feels like that," Reuschel said. "We're starting to hit the ball good again. We're starting to play, things just didn't pan out."

defense needs to become stronger mentally.

"[The players] know it's going to be a challenge for them and I know it's going to be a challenge for the whole defense," Vite said. "Personally, I like challenges."

"We've got our work cut out for us ... if we've got to work 24 hours a day, we'll do that to get the kids in the proper position."

Vite intends on implementing an eight-man front on defense, as opposed to the traditional 4-3 scheme the Salukis have run in the past. Vite said the change should allow SIU to perform better against opponents' rushing attacks and promises aggressiveness out of his young Saluki defense.

"We're going to fly to the football, that's how you play defense," Vite said. "We've got a lot of young players, but we've got a lot of players that are intense."

One notable personnel change in the Saluki defense is the move of hard-hitting Bart Scott from safety back to his original linebacker position. Scott, who will be a junior next season, had an outstanding freshman season at linebacker, but was hit-and-miss in the secondary last year.

Elsewhere, SIU is using the spring workouts to mix newcomers in with returnees at a variety of positions on both sides of the ball. Less help from the outside is needed on offense.

Even without Craig, SIU's record-breaking senior wide receiver, the Salukis are well-stocked at the skill positions. Led by quarterback Sherad Poteete, who had a tremendous jun. or season (29), the SIU offense looks poised for another big season.

Molding quarterback Kevin Kobe into a dependable backup for Poteete is one of the primary objectives for the Saluki offense this spring. Kobe, who has thrown the ball well this spring, will be a sophomore next season.

Although Craig will be sorely missed, SIU has a handful of returning receivers who have shown above average ability. Quarless would like to think Poteete will use Craig's departure as incentive to better utilize his other weapons.

"We'd like to think maybe Poteete moving the football around even more could offset [Craig's] loss," Quarless said.

SIU's most serious losses come on the offensive line. Last season's starters Brandon Frick and Jim

"I think that they're riding high right now, but I told them that we can't depend just on games like these, we've got to come out and be prepared to do this every time," Blaylock said.

We're going to fly to the football, that's how you play defense. We've got a lot of young players, but we've got a lot of players that are intense.

MICHAEL VITE
SIU defensive coordinator

Lawhorn are out of eligibility, and reserve Martin Berishaj has left the program. Retooling the line appears to be the team's most challenging hurdle on offense.

On the injury front, defensive lineman Tavita Tovia (shoulder) and wide receiver Calvin Sims (finger) will be unable to practice for the duration of spring practice.

Quarless said when he studies his depth chart and compares it to when he took over in 1997, there's no question he has a vastly improved team. And, he said, a squad better suited to his intense coaching style.

"I think for the most part, we have a team that understands my temperament and we don't have to wait for players to adjust to me anymore," Quarless said. "That's a big plus."

Hit barrage leads to softball's sweep of Southeast Missouri

COREY CUSICK
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

After connecting on only 19 hits in its last four ballgames, the SIU softball team exploded for a combined total of 21 hits, leading to 10 runs in sweeping a doubleheader at Southeast Missouri State University Wednesday in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The Salukis, who had lost three straight prior to Wednesday, defeated SEMO 8-0 and 8-1, led by a barrage of multi-hit performances and stellar pitching from their pitching staff.

"We did all facets of the game well," Saluki head coach Kerri Blaylock said. "We hit the ball really, really well, we had great pitching from both of our pitchers and our defense was good."

In game one, the Salukis (28-12, 1-3 MVC) broke the game open with a five-run sixth inning, anchored by four hits.

Senior shortstop Jamie Campbell, junior designated player Erin Stremsterfer and junior center fielder Marta Viethaus all provided 2-for-4 efforts, while Campbell hit her second home run of the season and had three RBIs in the game.

Senior pitcher Carisa Winters shutout the Otahekians (11-15, 3-1 Ohio Valley Conference), pitching a complete game, striking out 10 to improve her record to 13-6.

In game two, the offensive surge continued as Campbell, Stremsterfer, Viethaus and junior third baseman Julie Meier all went 2-for-4, including Viethaus' third home run of the season, a three-run shot in the fifth inning.

"The difference is that they went up there focused and made the pitchers throw them pitches they wanted and didn't swing at pitches out of the [strike] zone," Blaylock said.

Freshman hurler Katie Kloss improved her record to 6-1 on the year, pitching four innings, allowing three hits and striking out five. Senior Tracy Rempescher pitched three innings of relief, allowing only one hit to seal the 8-1 victory.

Following Sunday's disappointing 18-inning, 2-1 setback to Bradley University, Blaylock said the victories helped lift the team's spirits.

Dog days persist with eighth loss in last 11 games for SIU

SIU baseball head coach Dan Callahan would like to know how many players are dedicated to his team.

The Salukis (12-16, 4-8) lost their eighth game in their last 11 contests when they fell 8-6 to Southeast Missouri State University Wednesday afternoon at Abe Martin Field.

"We've got a lot of guys that do care, but we've got some guys that think the game itself is not as important as [the coaching staff] would like it to be," Callahan said.

Callahan has been searching for the magic potion to turn the team around in the last couple of weeks, but wonders what it will take to put some wins together.

"Maybe we got a little too relaxed," Callahan said. "I think we're going to have to start putting more pressure on guys in practice. I don't know if I like the idea of just raising hell for three, three and a half hours ... We start to question whether we are putting enough pressure on guys over the course of practice so where maybe when it comes up in a game, they can be a little more productive."

SIU played well early in the game, but relief pitching, which has given the team nightmares this year, caved in once again.

The Indians (18-7) broke open a 4-4 game when they banged out a three-run seventh inning, beginning with a lead-off walk. Callahan brought in Brendon Fort, a left-handed pitcher to face a right-handed batter.

SEMO delivered back-to-back base hits, with designated hitter Shane Allen ripping a single that knocked in two runs, giving the Indians a 7-4 lead they would never relinquish.

Callahan said he had to get Ryan Aird out of the ball game after showing little command. Aird pitched two-plus innings, walked three batters, hit another and threw one pitch behind a hitter.

"A guy like that is living on the edge," Callahan said.

Despite the team's recent struggles, SIU does have a couple of guys showing signs of dependability and have proven they can play.

Shortstop Luke Nelson snapped an 8-for-8 hitting streak when he flew out in the eighth inning. First-baseman Jeff Houston hit his first home run of the season Wednesday, a two-run shot to left field. Houston has hit safely in 11 out of the last 13 games.

Nelson expects the team to start turning the season around and playing the way they are capable of.

"Some guys are just pressing it a little bit too much," Nelson said. "The main thing is that we just have to come out here and let it take its course."

New coaches, fresh approach have staff refusing to look back at '99 season

The SIU football team is using spring practice to put the heartache generated during the stormy 1999 season out of mind.

The Salukis, in the midst of spring ball, have several new assistant coaches and an upbeat mind-set as they officially begin working toward the 2000 season.

Even cantankerous SIU head coach Jan Quarless can't help but enjoy the sneak peek at the 2000 Salukis after weathering the trying '99 season. Quarless, who at the end of the season said he was unsure whether he would return, appears rejuvenated.

"What happens in losing some close ballgames or not playing as well as we should have at times, it's very frustrating," Quarless said. "We're a much better football team, so I am excited and it's been a fun spring for me."

SIU finished the 1999 season with a 5-6 record in a campaign during which the Salukis scored the most points in school history. However, the defense floundered most of the season, negating the offensive heroics of quarterback Sherard Potete, wide receiver Cornell Craig and running back Tom Koussos.

One of the primary rays of hope for the Saluki defense next season is the addition of Michael as the Salukis' defensive coordinator, is one of three new SIU assistants hired by Quarless.

Vite to SIU's coaching staff. Vite, who replaces Dave Dunkelberger

"I just think it's a welcome change over there from a coaching personality standpoint and a schematic viewpoint," Quarless said. "I think we're becoming the physical football team that we like."

Vite will be taking over an SIU defense that has been highly scrutinized for several years but hit rock bottom last season. Vite said what went on before his watch is of little interest to him.

"The bottom line is, the past is the past," Vite said. "I wasn't here and it doesn't matter to me. What matters to me is coach Quarless brought me in here to make this team a lot better, and that's our focus."

Vite, who came to SIU from Southern University, said SIU's
