Fischer named new mayor

By Pam Dalley

Steve Ritner, a resident and three-term council member, was unanimously appointed mayor of Carbondale Monday night by the City Council. Fischer, 46, replaced Neal Eckert, who resigned early this month after serving more than seven years as mayor to become sales director for a Texas cosmetics firm.

"I'd like to say I'm humbled by the responsibilities the council has placed upon me," said Fischer, as he accepted the post. "Neal Eckert set a fine precedent, and it will be difficult to fill his shoes. But I know the cooperation by the City Council will continue."

Councilman Eldon Ray nominated Fischer for mayor, and Councilman Archie Jonas promptly seconded the motion. No other nominations were offered and approval was swift. Fischer, who as mayor pro tem served as acting mayor while the post was vacant, will fulfill the duties of mayor until April 1, when Eckert's term of office expires and the victor of the regular election assumes office.

Fischer said he is proud of the way the City Council has operated in the past and plans to make only a few minor changes. One change he hopes to accomplish is increased participation by individual council members in municipal government workshops.

"It's a good learning experience and it spreads out the responsibility," he explained.

He said he also hopes to improve the efficiency and organization of the mayor's office.

"I am a pretty nay sayn," Fischer said. "I am going to achieve a little of self-discipline and rely on the administrative staff to help monitor the time required of the mayor."

He said it is too soon to say whether he will run for mayor in the spring, adding that it depends on how the job affects his business and private life and how the public reacts.

Politics has long been a way of life for Fischer. After being elected councilman in 1969, the same year Eckert began his political career, as a council member—he challenged Eckert in 1971—mayoral race. Although Fischer was not recommended by the council, he was appointed mayor pro tem in March after councilman John McNeil resigned to become a member of the state's Prisoner Review Board.

Fischer has also been involved in local civic affairs for many years. He was appointed to a position on the Board of Safety in 1966. He is now serving on the City Council as a voting member.

Housing shortage forces students into basements

By Donna Kunkel

Approximately 100 students are housed in the basements of University residence halls, waiting to be moved to permanent housing. Others are still looking for places to live in apartments, trailers and houses, with little luck.

Acc-ziding to Sam Rinella, "using director, students housed in temporary quarters will begin moving to permanent rooms on Tuesday. Students housed in temporary quarters are looking for places to live."

"We have made every available effort to locate housing for students through advertising campaigns," Rinella said. "Students housed in the basements of permanent quarters are trying to locate places for them." Rinella said.

"Over assignment problems have been the same for the past three years, but only exist these overcrowded conditions for one more year," said Rinella.

"We have had a good time and getting along real well, but it is getting crowded," said Rinella.

Student vice president post disputed

By Susan Fernandez and Cindy Michael

Staff Writers

The students over who will be the next student vice president seems ready to come to a boil. The UCI Senate, which was elected Student Senate president pro tem in the spring, has appealed to the Campus Judicial Board for Governance to resolve the matter of the vacancy.

The position has been vacant since early June, when Jane Stoneburner, who was elected to the position in April, resigned. The campus is facing several personal financial difficulties.

Umholz has claimed that since he was elected to office and the Student Senate for the spring semester, he served as the student vice president. Student President Garrick-Clinton Matthews has said that the senate should appoint someone appoint to fill the vacancy.

According to Bo Beller, chairman of the School Board, Umholz officially notified Beller on August 7, requesting a hearing. Beller has scheduled a hearing for August 31 at 3 p.m. in the Student Government offices.

Umholz said he is assuming the vice presidency until the matter is resolved.

According to the Student Government constitution, weekly meetings are required. Therefore, I have scheduled a meeting at 7 p.m. in the Student Government offices.

According to Umholz, Matthews does not discuss the matter with him personally, nor does he discuss the matter with the student vice president, who is supposed to be an administrative assistant, spoke for Matthews.

Essentially, our position has not changed," Adams said. Matthews refuted to comment on the matter.

Adams said that Matthews challenges Umholz' eligibility for the position due to what he feels is a violation of residency requirements.

Umholz, who won a full term as East Campus senate seat in the November 1976 elections, applied for East Campus housing before he left SIU at the end of spring semester, 1977.

He subsequently lost his housing contract due to a lack of receipt of required payment.

One might say that since the bill did not apply to SIU, for a change of address, he did not violate residency requirements.

According to the Student Government constitution, the vice president is not permitted to live in the student services department.

Beller requests that all Judicial Board members contact him at Student Government offices, 336-6677.

Thompson to act on building money for law school

By Joe Scherry

Gov. James Thompson is scheduled to take action early this week on a state Senate bill appropriating $15 million to build a new SIU law school building, according to a spokesman in Thompson's office.

Clyde Choate, director of external affairs for SIU, said Monday that he expects the governor to take action on the bill by Wednesday, but that no timetable has been made by the governor.

Thompson must sign or veto the bill within 10 legislative days of being presented by the Senate or the money will be appropriated by default. The bill was signed into law on June 4.

The money is released, said David Johnson, associate dean of the School of Law, the building construction could be taken in January. He said he expects the building could be completed by 1980.

Hiram Lesar, dean of the School of Law, said Thursday in an interview that the building could be completed by 1980.

Johnson added that the $15 million approved by the bill may not be enough. John erestimated that the School of Law may need a total of $20 million to finish and equip the building.

The building is located near University Aviation, on a field presently occupied by tennis courts.

Question on tax revenue use won’t be on November ballot

The board’s request to research the possible changes on the November ballot came at its August meeting after David W, present the county courthouse building in the courthouse.

At that meeting, Watt urged the board to consider the possibility of a special election to add additional space for the planned First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Sparta building to be constructed near the courthouse. The request was followed by the board’s unanimous decision to not pursue such a proposal.

Kelley said he would not recommend the project since a majority of the taxpayers should be consulted, but because there is a question of legality concerning the binding of future county officers, he also said the plan seemed like a "dumber, more overt" approach to the problem.

Watt, who emphasized he was not trying to do more than to start a "thought process," said in its commitment to not enter into long-term agreements, the board had committed the citizens of Jackson County to inadequate court facilities.

Said Watt, "If a recently completed study titled "The Illinois Statewide Judicial Facilities Program, Vol. I, and that Jackson County had inadequate facilities in 13 of 17 areas studied in its judicial system.

Among those areas listed as being deficient, there were courtroom facilities, judges chambers and jury deliberation rooms.

"There's money put in the county budget for arresting and drawing up charges against people," Watt said. "But there is no money to dispose of them.

The Murphyborough attorney said the space shortage not only affects those in the Judy Library, but also the county office located in the courthouse.

"Everybody is screaming for high property taxes, but personal property taxes account for 14.7 percent of the county revenue used to cover the annual budget," Watt said. "With revenue from county offices nearly 24 percent, they are more than paying their way. They deserve better facilities,"

The ABA spokesman also cited this issue as the reason for nonsupervision of the funding from the county's 17 percent contingency fund or from the estimated surplus of $270,000 for the 1978-79 fiscal year budget.

Watt said the ABA was set up a committee to study and formulate possible solutions to the shortage of courtroom space and will ask the board to hear the committee's recommendations at its next meeting Monday in September.

Library fine changes may not take effect until spring

By Joe Sobczyk

Staff Writer

Faculty and administrators, long exasperated by fines on overdue library books, may have another year before they can be penalized for misuse of library materials.

After two years of review, the recommendation of the Library committee on circulation policy was approved by the Faculty committee's recommendation to Dr. Robert J. Walford, the present acting college's president for academic affairs and research, according to Sidney Matthews, the present acting librarian of Morris College.

The advisory committee began its work in fall 1975. Horton said the amount of time for the review wasn’t unusual for a change in university policy.

Horton said that any changes made in the library circulation policy as a result of the review will probably not be made until the end of the spring semester. While Matthews said any changes in policy might be made in the summer.

Under the proposed guidelines, faculty members may check out books for a 12-week period, with an adorable number of renewals. Faculty are recommended that all users, including faculty, administrators, civil service employees, and students, are to be charged the same fines for overdue, lost or mutilated library materials. In addition to the basic policy, faculty, civil service and courtesy card holders are not assessed for overdue items.

The recommendations also would take the loan period for periodicals from the present seven days to three days.

The committee also advised giving students and undergraduate students the right to indefinite numbers of renewals, though the books must be physically presented to the circulation desk for renewal. All library materials would be subject to recalls.

Horton said the faculty seemed to be split on the issue of penalties for faculty members. In a memo to the members of the Faculty Senate dated Jan. 24, 1976, Larry Taylor, who was then president of the senate, said that a campus-wide advisory referendum showed that 8 percent of the faculty favored some form of penalty for misuse of library privileges. A 4 to 1 percent plurality felt that suspension of library privileges should be the penalty, rather than fines.

Matthews said he did not know whether the library would have the power to collect fines.

Election board holds Bakalis audit

By Bob Sprunger

Associated Press Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - The state Board of Elections refused Monday to make a public an audit that it said showed substantial discrepancies in Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Bakalis’ 1977 election finance reports.

The board had ordered the audit after news reports indicated Bakalis had under-reported his 1977 financial disclosure reports for the year that ended June 30, 1977.

Rather than order the audit as requested by elections board staff, Bakalis campaign committee, the board acted after a report from the state auditor July 23. The report said that Bakalis’ campaign committee had wrongfully paid for services of more than $100,000 in debts.

The board also ordered its staff to review the campaign committee’s records to determine the true source of $37,000 contributed to De Grazia.

De Grazia contributed $48,300 in 1975 to the campaign committee, formed to retire Walker’s 1971 gubernatorial campaign debt. During the same year, De Grazia put his net worth at $43,670.
Eckert worked for students’ concerns

In an era where all levels of government are often criticized for being too large or too distant from the people, efforts to make government more responsive to the citizens should be applauded. For example, Neil Eckert, who resigned as mayor of Carbondale earlier this month, did tact work to make government an instrument that can respond effectively to the needs and desires of citizens. Both students and more people are aware of Eckert’s efforts.

Eckert is particularly aware of student concerns during his two terms as mayor, despite low student voter turnout in city elections. In 1984, Eckert was part of the city council minority that voted in favor of an anti-Vietnam war resolution. He had at least partially been responsible for encouraging students to participate in city government and decision-making. In 1984, he approved the appointment of nine students to an advisory group.

Opponents of tuition tax credit ‘full of steam’

By James Kicilof

Opponents of tuition tax credits are in a bad way. They have come down with swinepox, headaches and hypoglycemia. Think of it, if you please, this splendid denunciation from Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina.

"This proposal would turn our education on its head, benefit the few at the expense of the many, proliferate substandard segregation academies, add to the federal deficit, violate the First Amendment, and deny access to the poor to our public high schools."

And after that, the skies would fall, the planet would spin on its axis, and tidal waves would engulf South Carolina as far inland as Columbia, Camden and Kershaw. The entire eastern seaboard, all the way to the Arctic Circle, and serpents would wind in the Sand River.

There, there, one would like to say of those few victims, holding the Summer down! Let us take things one at a time.

What is proposed is an amendment to the Tax Code that would permit parents to take a tax credit up to $250 for each dependent in college, up to $100 for each dependent in an accredited non-public elementary or secondary school. In terms of administration, the plan is clean, clear-cut, and could be put into effect by a simple declaration on a Form 1040. A qualifying taxpayer would have the same right to the credit that he has to deduct low interest on his mortgage in computing not taxable income.

By contrast, the administration’s idea is vast: to encourage the enrollment of blacks in the existingEducational Opportunity Grants. The two approaches could not be more diametrically opposite. Mr. Frist’s plan involves applications, approvals, disapprovals, rules, regulations, eligibility standards. It would produce a whole host of lawyers, lobbyists who have appeared politically unwise to take a stand against a major commercial interest. Eckert at times sided against Carbondale landlords in court disputes. More often than not, students benefitted from such vigilance.

In recent years, Carbondale residents have been provided with a number of useful programs. From various agents of city government, residents may borrow money to make improvements to their homes and receive advice on ways to make houses, apartments and trailers more energy efficient.

While Eckert also may not take credit for the establishment of these other programs, they were established while he was at the helm of the city. Perhaps, with the leadership he showed in his council-manager form of government to become a leader only on the council. Mr. Frist’s amendment indicates that his leadership was something more than 100%.

The next mayor of Carbondale, whether or not that person comes from the city council, will do well to not only Eckert’s record, but his methods as well.

Muffie defies stereotypes, fails life

By Arthur Hoppe

Everyone I know in these enlightened times believes wholeheartedly in sexual equality. We can all accept women lawyers, executives and steeplejacks without batting an eyelash. Yes, sir, we’re better people for it.

Sexual equality has had no greater champion than my friend, Herbert Muffie.

Muffie was born perfect. His parents were Jewish, and his father was a在地上第二．

Muffie was raised amidst dolls, sewing kits and recipe books so he would not be burdened by having to play a stereotyped sexual role.

And they were very proud of him, even when he came home from high school and announced he wanted to be an actress. That’s wonderful. Muffie’s father, as long as you go to engineering school first so that you can be able to support yourself. Muffie did go to college, but he majored in nursing.

It’s a good way to get to meet a lot of women doctors, he explained to his father.

"Then, you’re not, you know," said his father.

"Not that I mind, of course," he added hastily.

"Guy Gable, no, Dad. The phone at the first never stops ringing with girls calling up to ask me for a date. Next, I really need to be elected Homecoming King and Most Popular Guy of campus."

With that, his social life. Muffie’s grades suffered. But as he told his mother, "I just want to find a good wife, get married and raise a family." He didn’t find any, of course, but even so, he found a job. It was as secretary for Malvina Potvin, I, vice president of the Potvin Construction Corp. Muffie’s parents told friends their son was a "management trainer."

At last came the glorious day when Malvina asked Muffie to marry her. He accepted on the spot. At first, he kept on working. But by the time they had three children, Muffie saw that it made much more sense for him to stay home and raise the family as Malvina had far the better job.

But Muffie was also a real ideal househusband or "homemaker," as he preferred to be called. Everyone agreed that he had managed to please his family. In fact, he parties invariably "really fun," and his coffee good that even his neighbor, Mrs. Olsen, never complained.

He was so successful a homemaker that Malvina never batting an eyelash when she brought business friends home for dinner occasionally. Not, although he served as president of the PTA and chairman of the County. Club’s Entertainment Committee he somehow still found time for golf on Tuesday mornings and bridge on Thursday afternoons.

At age 47, tragedy struck. Muffie, who was never very mechanical was electrocuted while trying to rescue the cat from the clothes dryer. He left behind a bereft wife and grieving children who agreed he was the best husband and father they had. Yes, as Muffie’s own father sadly said of him, "He was always talented and intelligent. If only he’d done some drive and ambition, he could have made something of himself."

University Museum and Art Galleries houses more than 1,250 pieces of art

By Jim McCarty
Staff Writer

The University Museum and Art Galleries have served campus and community since 1967. Its permanent collection includes more than 1,250 pieces of art as well as research collections from all parts of the world.

The museum was housed in the Altgeld, Parkerston and Hill Vann buildings. It is now located in the Fair Hall.

Janet McAndrew, acting director for University Museum and Art Galleries, said that the main problem in 1967 was selecting which pieces to display.

"The museum is basically a show room," she said. "It is a family of pieces that we feel is important."

A donated collection of Southern Illinois is on display, McAndrew said. The collection includes works by local artists, including paintings, sculpture, photographs and prints.

The collection is divided into sections, with each section dedicated to a particular artist or period. The gallery is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and admission is free.

The exhibition and sale of fine art prints has been scheduled for Aug. 28 thru Sept. 1 Ballroom C, Student Center 10:00 a.m. - 6:30 p.m.

Variety marks Celebrity Series

By Mario Herman Entertainment Editor

A wide variety of entertainment is represented in the Celebrity Series this fall. Spring semester brings a Chinese circus, a musical vaudeville, a ballet, and a musical based on the life of Jesus Christ. The Chicago Philharmonic, directed by Fred Lewis, opens the season on Friday, Oct. 20. The band recreates turn-of-the-century music and settings in a 19th-century band concert held in the town square. The band uses scenery, costumes and a narrator to help turn back the history pages. "Romeo and Juliet," the Shakespearean tragedy, will be performed by The Acting Company on Sunday, Nov. 12. The Acting Company is under the direction of John Houseman of "Paper Chase" fame. The company, which was founded by Houseman, has performed "Carnival of Venice," "The Italian Straw Hat," and "Mother Courage," most recently.

The World of Philharmonic music will be widespread in a variety of forms. "The Prison," "Buffalo Bill and the Indians," "Adams and Copper," and "Death at a Saloon." Playing on all-over instruments reproduced from antique originals will be Mr. Jack Daniel's Original New York Band. On Friday, Oct. 20, the band recreates turn-of-the-century music and settings in a 19th-century band concert held in the town square. The band uses scenery, costumes and a narrator to help turn back the history pages. "Romeo and Juliet," the Shakespearean tragedy, will be performed by The Acting Company. The company was founded by Houseman and performed "Carnival of Venice," "The Italian Straw Hat," and "Mother Courage," most recently.

Those persons slightly older than college students will remember the name of Fred Waring. Waring is still going strong, bringing his singers and dancers for an evening of big band style entertainment on Tuesday, Nov. 28. The group was founded 63 years ago but has changed with the years and will perform tunes from both yesterday and today.

Starting off spring semester's repertoire in the Celebrity Series will be The Chinese Circus on Saturday, Feb. 5. The Chinese Circus will present an exotic display of tumbling, juggling and balancing acts. The company, based in Taiwan, contains acts of all with delicate animal dances. The circus does not use the traditional animals like western ones. But, the Dragon Dance, performed by girls, causes the fire of the mythical beast.

The musical vaudeville "Chicago" is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 27.

Folk musicians live on WSIU

Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie perform their own kind of folk music in a live performance from Wolf Trap Farm Park on WSIU-TV, Channel 8. Their performance will include American ballads, the Revolutionary and Civil Wars and ragtime, folk and country music. Seeger was the same professional musician and learned to play the fiddling which he was taught by his youth, Guthrie, 51, son of the folk musician Woody Guthrie, grew up in a family that often composed songs, while riding in the family car to farm towns. Seeger and Guthrie abandoned college to write music. Seeger went to Harvard for less than two years and then spent a year listening to the recording in the Archives of American Folk Music at the Library of Congress. He spent months traveling around the United States.

SIU attracts Chicago students because the word gets around

By Veronika Banks
Student Writer

"Are you from Chicago?" is a natural question among SIU students, indicating that the majority of the student population is from Chicago or the surrounding area.

The majority of students tested positive for SIU's"mix of" student body, with almost half of the students being from Chicago and the surrounding area.

Wallace Transled, assistant dean of student life, said, "Students tell me that they don't see a difference between SIU and their friends back home. They say they enjoy the same campus activities and have some positive experiences at SIU."

Some students, however, found the transition to be challenging. "I was surprised by the size of the campus. It was much bigger than I expected," said one student.

In addition to the size of the campus, some students found the academic workload to be demanding. "The classes are very challenging, and the workload is bigger than I expected," said another student.

Despite these challenges, many students found the transition to SIU to be positive. "I've made some great friends here, and I've had some great experiences," said one student.

SIU is known for its strong academic programs and its emphasis on student life. The university offers a wide range of majors, including business, engineering, and health sciences.

In conclusion, SIU attracts Chicago students because it offers a unique mix of academic and social opportunities, which allows students to continue their education while also enjoying the city's vibrant life.
Rock stars taking over film capital

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When rock star Alice Cooper announced this summer that he would donate $27,000 to help save the 175-year-old Hollywood sign, he could rest a little easier now. There are so many stars for not coming to the aid of the movie capital's famous hillside landmark.

"The movie people have always looked down on rock & roll," he said. "This is to show that rockers have a little class, too."

"Hell," responded an old-time publicist. "no movie people could afford that kind of money."

An exaggeration, of course, but the press agent's remark reflected the altered facts of life in the entertainment subculture called Hollywood. Pop music is the new sugar daddy here.

The movies gave Hollywood its glamour, and the industry has ever since been the soul, if not the substance of the city. The glamour - make that glitter, now - lives on. Beverly Hills still has its mansions, Hollywood its clubs and the streets their parade of exotic cars.

But the movies no longer foot the bill.

Pop stars and record company executives are the ones footing the Sunset Boulevard in Encino and Ferrars now. And they are paying big prices for mansions left vacant by film stars, some of whom are acquiring more modest digs.

"This is the capital of the world for the record business, they're coming here from New York, Chicago, London, everywhere," said Stan Herman, a Beverly Hills real estate man who specializes in homes the size of some small towns. "It (the burgeoning of the recording industry) has bolstered the economy of Beverly Hills very much."

"When you read in the paper about certain areas having a recession and you've just sold a rock star a home for some million dollars, cash, it makes you feel pretty good."

"The rock stars brought back the old manor houses," Herman says, adding in his voice, "They usually come from meager beginnings and they know they are millionaires. They're making so much money they don't care what they spend."

Money is just water, it doesn't matter to them."

A Pop star sings on a stage in Dodger Stadium for a week and makes a million dollars—what's the money to him?"

Herman says Beverly Hills mansions have quadrupled in price in four years, "just based on rock stars bidding against each other."

In nearby Malibu, once an exclusive beach retreat for the movie colony, music people have swarmed in. Bob Dylan built his dream house above the beach at an estimated cost of $2 million.

Elton John recently took a fancy to Jennifer Jones' old five-acre estate and bought it for $1 million. It's worth about $2.5 million now.

When Alice Cooper took up golf, he ordered a chip-and-putt area added to the backyard of his Bel Air home. Rod Stewart said price was no object when he ordered electronic gates for his Beverly Hills estate.

Music millionaires are spending fortunes and indulging whims the way movie stars did in the days of old Hollywood.

The old Beverly Hills Hotel, home of the Polo Lounge, remains a favorite of the film people. But increasingly, the elaborate parties at the big pink palace are thrown by music people.

One of the old hotel's regular guests is Atlantic Records President Ahmet Ertegun. He has bought not only an estate but also a ranch, which, he comes West pays for his $500,000-a-year life in Beverly Hills. It's worth $250,000 a year for the movie people have bought a lot of million-dollar homes here.

Hollywood's new rich are rich in money and in stature.

Ehrlichman hired by network

By See TheBenarger

CHICAGO—AP—Convicted Watergate conspirator John Ehrlichman says the nation is not ready for Richard Nixon to return to public life.

"I think that's the role he wants for but I don't think the country is ready for that," the former White House aide said in a new conference Monday billed as his first public appearance since he was freed from federal prison.

Ehrlichman, who lives in Santa Fe N.M., said in Chicago to promote a daily syndicated radio program which he has agreed to do for the Mutual Broadcasting System, asked about Nixon's reported plans for a return to public life, including travel in Europe and China, and that the ex-president probably would use his influence.

"Nixon would want the secretary of State, Cyrus Vance and a President Carter to be calling and saying, 'We have a problem in Romania, or Houston going through a major policy decision in Africa, and we'd like your view,'" Ehrlichman said.

"But I don't think that's in the cards. I don't think people are ready to turn to him for his views," he said.

Ehrlichman, who is bearded, heavy and peppered with gray, jaded frequent fly-over the city's bleacher gatherings in one of the city's most elegant hotels.

He said he believed his life "out among the people" has prepared him to continue on national news events from a local perspective.

"I have the added advantage of pretty well knowing the Washington story," he said.

Mutual President E. Edward Little said the system's hiring of Ehrlichman was in no way "checkbook journalism" because Ehrlichman "has been there" and can comment insightfully on national affairs.

Asked if some people wouldn't prefer that he kept quiet after serving his prison term, Ehrlichman, who would not reveal his salary, said he didn't know if the public was any more ready to accept him than Nixon.

He cited the success of his recent novel, "Company," the basis of a television series, "Washington Behind Closed Doors."

"I'm not off Watergate as such. If I couldn't carry my own weight as a commentator, I wouldn't do it. I have to come back to the question of whether I can care with it. That's the last analysis. I'm sure it's one radio program is worth it on its merits. If I were running around like some kind of freak, that would be another thing. But if people are listening to me because I inform them, that's great," Ehrlichman said.

"Nixon's former top domestic aide, asserted he had not spoken to Nixon or read his book, "R.N."

"There's no social basis for our relationship and it's not necessary," he said.

Ehrlichman said he is not better toward ex-former president.

"Butterflies is a very wasteful and debilitating emotion. It's not a very satisfying way to live," Ehrlichman said.

"I can honestly say I'm not better about anything I pray a lot. It's all worked out of me over the years. I don't go out for a job for 1½ years without tears. The loss of liberty is a devastating thing."

In connection with his 1974 dismissal by Nixon and his subsequent conviction on federal charges of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury, Ehrlichman has claimed that Nixon misled and lied to him about the Watergate affair.

Asked about an 18-minute gap if silence in a taped White House conversation between Haldeman and Nixon three days after the Watergate break-in, one of the remaining mysteries of Watergate, Ehrlichman said: "I know nothing of it and never have."

But Ehrlichman attacked former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, saying Jaworski's book "didn't know what he was talking about" when he suggested that Nixon might have been responsible for the gap.

"My overall impression of the gentleman Jaworski was that he was not terribly well-informed about the investigations his office was conducting. There were a lot of mistakes in his book. My overall impression was that he was a great witness in the investigation but he was not really in touch with it. He rested too heavily on the young men in his office."

Ozark disease baffles doctors

PHOENIX (AP) — The mysterious epidermide at Ozark Airlines appears to be spreading, officials said, and Rose Anne Kuniggenberg is scared about what nobody else seems to care.

For the past four days, her colleagues at the airline's central reservation department have been striking, one-by-one, by a strange malaise that officials say is difficult to identify. They began suddenly feeling ill over at their consoles, unable to work as they made their way down the stairs and outside to the smoking area.

By the end of the week, more than 100 workers are expected to join the strike of nobody could explain.

"This is a strange one," said Richard Ricks, the Ozark spokesman who shuttled back and forth for the interview. "I was at the main office several times last week, and finally today, I knew what was happening. It's not what happened, it's what happened after the flight..." he said.

The employees say a kind of panic set in. Ambulances were called, and workers surged out of the building to the airport parking lots. At least three persons were taken to a hospital, but none was hospitalized.

"It's not only that we don't know what's causing the illness, we don't even have a specific illness," said Linda Elbert, Monday. "There are lots of symptoms, but they don't point to a single illness."

"We have no idea what's causing the illness," she said. "It's not that we don't know what's happening. It's just that there's no idea what's happening after the flight..." he said.

Elbert refiled to him in that maybe he wasn't right.

Scientists familiar with the phenomenon are quick to point out that those symptoms are nothing but merely taking an illness, but suggest some are taking in just a classic psychosomatic symptom. Elbert admitted that his work force had been decimated only a strong suggestion of a disease.

County Board injunction granted; ex-investigator's payment delayed

By Deb Brown Staff Writer

A temporary injunction which would delay the Jackson County Board of Commissioners from removing the ex-investigator in the public defender's office was dropped Monday by Circuit Judge Preston Kunci.

The injunction, which was requested by Public Defender Lawrence Rippe, involved a cash judgment taken against the county board and the investigator, who had been dismissed by the county board and the investigator, who had been dismissed by

The board was responsible for firing the investigator. The county board's Leavenworth County Committee apparently settled the case by Aug. 9 board meeting.

Green was employed with Federal Credit Union for Employment and Training Act funds, which are designed to help employ the economically disadvantaged. As program agent, the board is required by CETA graneous procedures to investigate and transmit a detailed report on the findings of the investigation to the Governor's Office of Migrant and Home Development.

"It's no reason for anyone... anywhere... but..." he said.

As program agent, the board is required by CETA graneous procedures to investigate and transmit a detailed report on the findings of the investigation to the Governor's Office of Migrant and Home Development.

Rippe said no such report had been filed anywhere.

Before the vote, Rippe asked the Committee to state their findings for the record and then voted to dismiss the case. This request was rejected.

Rippe said the board had taken a short time to look at CETA procedures as well as procedures as how to act on the matter. "The significance of this is that..." he said.

Elbert said Monday that an industrial hygienist will be able to come up with something based on air samples taken last Thursday and Friday. The Federal Insectical Safety and Health Administration has air samples and the Poison City County Health Department is looking for air samples, but none was able to pinpoint the cause.

Elbert refuses to talk about the possibilities that the outbreak was psychosomatic, even though the outbreak was psychosomatic, even though it virtually parallels an incident in New York City.

Hartzog’s harriers set for run at Fighting Illini

By Brad Beaker
Staff Writer

The SIU men’s cross country team opens its schedule with a Midland Heights meet against familiar rival Illinois last week. Coach Lew Hartzog can’t wait.

Illinois hosted the state’s cross country competition in recent years, but with an improved squad running at home on Midland’s hills and at least a measure of success expected, Hartzog is reaching for a “tremendous” meet.

A more realistic goal for the cast of runners returning from last year’s meet — placed 12th of 15 pounds, the Altman native will compete for the sandal’s top runner last year.

By virtue of his winning the NCAA District 3 meet last fall and his season, Hartzog qualified for the national meet in November, and he ran against competitors that included the indomitable Henry Rone.

Also returning this fall are Paul Craig and Mike Branch, who unanimously ran second and third, respectively, behind Sawyer last year.

Three others, Hartzog said,
make the team a real possibility:
French Langston, David Mathews
and Troy Baker. None, however, ran at all in the national meet.

Nevertheless, whether the Salukis can improve as a team will depend largely on the effects of second-year men, and the key to improving Kentucky and personally strong squad,” Hartzog said.

Branch, who has been with the Salukis since Sept. 1, and the only cross country teams have at least five runners who any of running in their total potential,” every time out.

The improvement of these two McAllister and Fitzpatrick will make us a tough team, he added.

Fittipaldi also pointed out that improvement would come year after year, especially as the Indus (International) Salukis
founded by Illinois, which now comprised a third of the team.

Hartzog reported to the Salukis with a new look for next season.

Fregosi sparks Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Jim Fregosi added a little heart of gold while played for the California Angels and other teams. Now he returns to his big league roots and proudly leads as the Angels in a club for the first time in the Major League West pennant
chase.

At 47, Fregosi became a regular player with the Angels after being one of several NL teams who expanded their talent to the golden boy, who is the youngest manager in the major leagues
under club owner Gene Autry.

Fregosi became a player for the Angels in 1970 and achieved the dream of a pennant
chase.

“My goal,” said the unobtrusive skipper, “is to become the biggest manager in history.”

Fregosi played under five managers and was the surprising fourth in the Angels’ ranks. His experience included several roles at Pacific Bell Park.

“I’ve never been shy when it comes to asking questions and I believe that has served me well,”
the manager said.

“I learned from all the managers I played for.

“It may help me to be able to use the best of each in my career with the Angels. I have my own ideas, of course, but it’s really according to the club, the players and the situation.”

This year’s team on the premise that some good competition from several national news outlets will ensure that each runner performs as well as he is capable of doing.

Fregosi, who started as a Saluki football player who was the state’s high school champions in cross country and in the indoor mile, was with Hartzog High School’s Bill Moran to give the Saluki harriers a formidable youth corps.

Several other freshmen, including with their progress so far.

“I’ve been working out hard and several freshmen who look good,” Hartzog said. “But who in the game?”

As of now, practice consists of

“We probably won’t go out

Lasorda: Dodgers still family

NEW YORK - Manager Tom Lasorda is well aware that the Los Angeles Dodgers are one big happy family - and he tries to make sure they understand that in the wake of their locker room rumbles.

Parking time for California and first baseman Steve Garvey were involved in an altercation Sunday before the Dodgers' 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants. Both were ejected from the locker room floor. "There was more talking and clashing than punchers being thrown," said a Dodger source.

Following the incident, Lasorda said he expected to meet with his two stars before the Dodgers' two-game set with the Expo in Montreal Monday night.

"We are a lot of love and respect for each other," Lasorda said of his team. "Our philosophy is superhuman and this will be rectified.

A story in the Washington Post sparked Sunday's scuffle: It quoted Garvey as saying, "All you have to do is out run him, the All-American boy. We're the best player on the team the last two years, and we all know it."

While Lasorda seems to think Garvey goes, so goes

"Fruge doesn't go out and publicize himself. He doesn't smile at the right people or say the right things. He tells the truth even if he sometimes makes people feel he's not a facade or a facade."

He and Rennie Allen are the two most totally unrepresentative players I ever met. They are wonderful people with good reputations.

Horton powers Jays past Rangers

TORONTO - Wilf Horton hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning, and Alan Ashby's two-run single capped a five-run fifth that propelled the Toronto Blue Jays past the Texas Rangers 8-4 Monday.

With Texas ahead 3-2, Dave Mackey led off the Toronto fifth with a single off Dock Ellis and Tim Johnson doubled him to third. First baseman Mike Hargrove then dropped a routine throw on Rock Bowles' grounder, allowing the first run of the inning to score.

Ron Howell's grand slam scored the second run. Horton's single delivered another and chased Ellis, then Jim Umbarger. Ashby walked.

Brewer was the winner and Art Haggerty took second. Skipper Ernie Alon won the Sundial division competition.

Coots took the Hobe 18 race with Gordon Icen and Greg Nelson (23). Ron Galchuk won the Hobe 18 division and Tom Evans.

Tunde Swanson and Lee Johnson took the next three spots.

In the Hobe 14 division, Chuck Ford took the No. 1 spot followed by John Maxberry and Otto Vecs before Ashby's 7-4 Ashby hot his eighth homer of the season for Toronto in the eighth inning.

Tom Murphy, 5-0, blanked the Rangers over the final 3 2-11 innings for the victory in relief of Bayor Moore.

Proposed athletics budgets may have to be trimmed

The Mad Serbian

By George Csikos
Sports Editor

Committee (IAC) reviewed the budget proposal and presented it to the student Senate. The Senate earlier in the summer and recommended that both programs be funded and because the coaches are related to the university, the athletic director should make a commitment to fund the programs.

The committee also said that SIU should continue its attempt to increase the current sources of generating revenue. And the university should also consider alternative sources of funding, including state funds, local funds, re-allocating unincorporated funds and an increase in student fees. The student fee increase was approved on a pre-budget budget that will include these recommendations for additional sources of funding. The recommendations will be discussed with SIU President Warren Brandt.

The proposed fiscal year budget includes $250,000 in student athletic fees, $646,000 in state salaries for coaches, $400,000 from ticket sales, $75,000 in contribution money from alumni and friends, $12,000 in concession money, $10,000 from advertising and program sales and $64,500 in guarantees from other teams that play SIU.

All of these figures are projected sources of funding, except the estimated销售收入. This money should be added to the total budget for the upcoming seasons. The total proposed budget for the upcoming seasons is $1,194,290.

The SIU athletics director also included in his proposal what he labeled as estimated general income. His projected budget figures were $330,000 in state money from ticket sales, $75,000 in contribution money from alumni and friends, $12,000 in concession money, $10,000 from advertising and program sales and $64,500 in guarantees from other teams that play SIU.

The proposed budget has been approved by both the student Senate and the university administration. The budget includes $250,000 in student athletic fees, $646,000 in state salaries for coaches, $400,000 from ticket sales, $75,000 in contribution money from alumni and friends, $12,000 in concession money, $10,000 from advertising and program sales and $64,500 in guarantees from other teams that play SIU.
