Sign-up continues for the unregistered

By Scott Canon
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Post Office reports that 646 men have registered with the Selective Service since draft registration began in July.

Carla Olkoski, post office district examiner, said that was the total as of Friday. Registration is continuing for those who have not registered.

Draft registration began for the first time in five years on July 21, and all 19- and 20-year-olds were to register within two weeks.

Following that period, the Selective Service granted a 30-day grace period for men who could not register because of reasons beyond their control. Selective Service spokesperson Marjorie Davidson said.

Failure to register within the grace period could result in prosecution, Davidson said.

Selective Service will release preliminary figures next week revealing how many men complied with registration.

She said it is impossible to determine how many men have not registered in a college town like Carbondale because of the transient student population. She said it is especially difficult to determine how many students were in town during the summer when registration began.

Once registration is completed, the next step will be to track down those men who didn't register.

"We don't anticipate having any difficulty finding these people," Davidson said.

"Anyone who thinks we can't find them isn't being realistic." The Selective Service hasn't determined what methods it will use to find non-registrants, but there are many resources available to find them, she said.

High school, motor vehicle, Internal Revenue Service and college records may provide useful lists of 19- and 20-year-old men for the Selective Service, Davidson said.

The high school and motor vehicle records will probably provide most of the names the Selective Service will be pursuing, she said. However, she said the Selective Service may have to file a petition in federal court to gain IRS records since they are protected by privacy laws.

If the Selective Service attempts to get a list of 19- and 20-year-olds from SIU-C, it will have to get a court order to do so, Roland Keim, associate director of admissions and records, said.

"Our policy does not permit us to give a list of 19- and 20-year olds to anyone," Keim said. "It's been our policy since 1972 not to give out records on students unless it applies to financial aid eligibility."

Residents reluctant to get in on census

By Tony Gordon
Staff Writer

Carbondale residents who were not counted in the 1980 U.S. Census count are not exactly beating down the doors to City Hall to fill out a form so that they can be counted.

Donald Monty, assistant city manager for community development, said that even though some of the persons not counted in April may have been SIU-C students, Monty said that an exchange of information between the University and the city would not be of any value in the attempt to bring the population figure up.

The Census Bureau criteria for registering a person in the total make it almost impossible for a secondary source to identify a person as a resident. The minimum amount of information that the Census Bureau requires to count a person as a resident is name, age, sex and race. Monty said collection of such information is the Census Bureau's responsibility and that the city and the University will not become involved in it.

No absolute deadline for a person to register appears to have been established by the Census Bureau, but Monty pointed out that the Census Bureau must prepare a final report on population for the President by the end of the year.

The short forms available at City Hall can be picked up by persons who think they were not counted in April any time during regular business hours.

With a few bits of colored paper and a lot of ingenuity, Jenny Mumbower took home a first place in the Crazy Hat Contest at the Du Quoin State Fair. The 82-year-old Benton resident's hat was selected by the judges as the best in the "prettiest hat category" during Wednesday's contest. Benton residents seemed to have the inside line on what it takes to create a winning hat, since they claimed first places in three of the four categories. Other categories included the tallest and ugliest hats.

development, said that only two of the forms, which are available for people who were missed during census-counting last spring, had been filled out since they became available last week.

Two estimates of the population of Carbondale, one by the Census Bureau and one by the city, may show as many as 2,000 people that the Census Bureau did not count.

Although the Census Bureau has removed all its field workers from Carbondale, Monty said that the bureau had notified him that some of its employees were beginning to make phone calls in the area trying to track down those people not counted by the April 1 deadline.

Government offers help in paying utility bills

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

Low-income families in Southern Illinois may be eligible to receive up to $100 from the federal government to help pay high utility bills caused by the heat wave this summer.

The bulk of $1.8 million in federal grants allotted to Illinois under the Low Income Energy Assistance Program will go to Southern Illinois, according to U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale.

However, the funds will not be distributed for another month, said Bennett Stewart, coordinator for the energy assistance program of the Community Service Administration in Chicago. Simon's office apparently sent a news release about the funds to local media offices and the information was publicized before regional offices of the CSA were notified, Stewart said.

"We informed regional directors Aug. 21 that they can begin taking applications for the money," Stewart said Wednesday. "The grants are processed and signed, but the money won't be available for another 30 to 45 days."

The funds are part of a program established last winter to help low-income families pay

Marion prisoner support group plans 110-mile protest walk

By Dean Athans
Staff Writer

A 110-mile walk to focus attention on alleged "interrogation by torture, cruel punishment and excessive prison sentences" at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion will start Tuesday from East St. Louis and finish with a rally near the maximum security facility Sept. 13.

Janine Egan, a member of the Southern Illinois Committee to Support the Marion Brothers, an inmate support group, said the walk was planned to protest the use of the prison's "control unit." Egan charges that prisoners in the unit have been subjected to "brainwashing and interrogation by torture."

Audrey Myers, co-chairman of the National Committee to Support the Marion Brothers, said she hopes to gain support—and walkers—in the nine towns where the group will stop. She said she wants to "build a movement for human and democratic rights."

Myers called the Marion facility a "modern, technological, behavior control prison."

The walk, which has gained support from about 25 religious, civil rights and prison support groups, will stop in Carbondale Sept. 11 and 12. Myers said the group will have a rally Sept. 13, the ninth anniversary of the "Attica Massacre," to "protest prison oppression." She predicted a turnout of 1,000 people at the Southern Illinois Dance Barn, four miles south of Illinois 13 on Illinois 148.

Prison spokesman Ron Beai said Wednesday the prison will not allow the protesters on prison property. The penitentiary is located at the center of a 950-acre government reservation.

"All their arguments—about the control unit and beatings—are nothing new," Beai said. "We've heard all those arguments before. And we'll just stand on our previous statements on those issues."

Prison officials have repeatedly denied allegations of inmate abuse.

U.S. District Judge James Foreman said, in the Bono vs. Saxbe case, that the prison administrators "see it as their mission to inflict suffering upon prisoners, rather than simply to keep them in custody," and that conditions there are "purposefully miserable and dehumanizing."

The decision is being appealed by the Justice Department's Bureau of Prisons.

Bomb in Nevada casino explodes

STATELINE, Nev. (AP)—A bomb, placed in a Lake Tahoe casino with an extortion note demanding $3 million, exploded Wednesday with a loud blast and columns of smoke. There were no immediate reports of injuries but damage at Harvey's Hotel-Casino was extensive, police said.

The blast was heard at 5:43 p.m. CDT, ending a tense stalemate that had lasted since the bomb was found in a second-floor office in the hotel early Tuesday.

Extortionists had left a type-written letter demanding $3 million and a helicopter. Douglas County Sheriff John Maple had earlier refused to say whether authorities had attempted to make the payoff.

Carter, Reagan argue debate details

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter and his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan, were locked in a fierce debate Wednesday over how, when and with whom to kick off the 1980 presidential campaign debates.

Both sides were insisting they're eager to debate each other, one on one, but they were stymied over whether independent candidate John B. Anderson ought to be included in the opening forum.

Their disagreement left uncertain whether Carter will reach agreement on any of the debate invitations from the League of Women Voters, the National Press Club or other organizations.

Ethiopia invades neighboring Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ethiopian infantry forces backed by combat aircraft invaded northwestern Somalia early Wednesday and fighting was in progress along a 27-mile front, Somalia's Defense Ministry claimed.

The announcement, distributed in neighboring Kenya by Somalia's national news agency, said the invasion started shortly before dawn when Ethiopian infantry units crossed the border and Ethiopian warplanes bombed at least five towns in the northwestern region of the northeast African country.

The Somali claims could not be immediately confirmed by independent sources.

Polish strike leaders claim victory

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Polish strike leaders claimed victory on their major demand — independent trade unions — in negotiations Wednesday. If true, the agreement could signal the end of Poland's worst labor crisis in a decade and give workers in a Soviet-bloc state their own unions for the first time ever.

At about the same time in Moscow, the official Soviet news agency issued a tough commentary attacking "anti-socialist" elements within Poland that it said were striving to push the Soviet ally "off the socialist road."

City studying mortgage loan plan

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

Headway was made by the City Council Monday night toward completing a plan to provide lower, down payments and interest rates on home mortgage loans in Carbondale.

Proposed changes were discussed to the original "Carbondale Plan" under which the city would issue tax-exempt bonds to generate mortgage funds. Discussion included raising the maximum loan amount to $65,000, increasing the maximum annual income eligible for the loans to $30,000 and possibly providing either an interest rate discount or having a higher loan limit for applicants with plans to build homes fueled by solar energy.

Finalization of the plan had been delayed because of introduction in the U.S. House of Representatives of legislation limiting the issuance of such bonds. However, the Senate has indicated it will take no action on the measure this year, in effect, "providing no limitation on the issuance of such bonds," according to a report by City Manager Carroll Fry.

The plan to finance mortgage bonds was originally presented to the council in 1979 as a means to encourage home ownership for low- and moderate-income families, to meet the need for housing loan funds by local lenders and to help maintain an active real estate market in "this inflationary period with rising interest rates," the report said.

"Final conclusions" regarding the plan will be discussed by the council at its Sept. 22 informal meeting. Final guidelines are expected to be approved when the council meets Oct. 6.

Simon sees tough re-election fight because of local 'Republican trend'

By Mike Anton
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon says that a "Republican trend" in the area will make the race for the 24th District seat in the U.S. House more difficult for him in the upcoming general election.

Simon characterized his race against Republican opponent John T. Anderson as "tougher than usual" because of a "Republican trend in the district," and also the similarity of his opponent's name and that of independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson.

Moreover, Simon said he is unsure what effect his past support of former presidential hopeful Sen. Edward Kennedy and his subsequent support of President Carter would have on his own re-election plans.

"I don't regret it (supporting Kennedy)," Simon said from his office in Washington. "Whether it will hurt me politically, I don't know. In this for high heating bills, Stewart said. Under the program, a family of four must earn $8,500 or less to be eligible. A family may receive $100 for payment of utility bills for cooling purposes, he said.

In Jackson County, the funds will be distributed by the Northeast Community Development Congress, the regional CSA office located in Carbondale. The office has business you have to do what you think is right."

The switch in support to Carter came only after it was clear Kennedy couldn't get the Democratic nomination, he said. His main concern now is to campaign for Carter in order to defeat former California Gov. Ronald Reagan this fall, he added.

Simon said Carter "would not win" if the election were held today, but that once voters get a chance to compare the Republican and Democratic candidates, support for Carter will grow from a "reflection of what a Reagan presidency will mean to the nation."

Simon said he is concerned, for example, about the kinds of Supreme Court justices Reagan would appoint if elected. With received about 100 calls, mostly from senior citizens, following distribution of Simon's news release, Cordella Scott, director of the office, said. She said she was told by the CSA in Chicago that the program was to start July 1.

"All the counties in the area have been confronted by the same problem," Scott said. "Someone jumped the gun and got the information out before we knew about it."

five out of nine justices over the age of 70, there is definite possibility that several vacancies will occur within the next four years, he said.

"I'd have much greater confidence in five Carter appointees than I would in five Reagan appointees," he said.

Simon said the candidacy of independent John Anderson "is going to fade somewhat. People don't want to waste their vote on him."

Unlike other pre-convention Kennedy supporters who jumped to the Anderson camp, Simon said that that kind of support by him would just be "helping Reagan."

University has him mad

It's only the first day of the semester and already the University has my blood boiling. It was very helpful to read about all the rules and regulations of parking a bike on campus, but it is lunacy to think there are enough bike racks to accommodate all the bikes on campus.

There are some places on campus where there must be 6 million bikes for every bike space in the racks. So, what do we do with our bikes? Suspend them in mid-air? I certainly hope the Saluki Patrol will not be ticketing bikes that cannot possibly find a convenient and proper rack.—Tim Cawley, Junior, Radio-Television.

What to write when the ideas for a column just don't come

Cindy Hix

Associate
Editorial Page Editor

What's wrong with me? Some journalism students would go to great lengths to get the opportunity I had thrown at me today, but I'm sitting here blowing it. I have the chance to say anything—well, almost anything—I good and well please, but my mind is as blank as the sheet of paper staring up at me from the typewriter.

Since I can't think of one thing that I want to say, now is my chance to say many.

I guess I could comment on the weather. It's certainly not the dull topic it once was, especially after this summer. Mother Nature was making headlines all over the country. But no, you're all tired of reading about the heat wave, the devastating storms and Hurricane (or should I say "Himmicane") Allen.

Don't like that? I'll try another topic. How about the hassles of trying to get everything done at Woody Hall? That might work except I have miraculously managed to avoid that building so far this semester.

I suppose I could try something many of my teachers have used to kill time.

I'll tell you a story. It happened to me last Friday and I was somewhat embarrassed. First graders can be expected to fall off their bicycles once in a while, but college seniors are supposed to be a little bit more coordinated. Enough said.

That didn't work either. I only have one more real idea to try—food. I heard of a new diet while I was on a seafood diet—everything he sees he eats.

On a more serious note, let me give you some food for thought that I've collected over the years:

Laughter is the shortest distance between two people.

The more strongly one stands up for his rights,

What does John Anderson offer? 'Not too much' if you look closely

Let me get back to Parson John. To John Anderson, that is, the peripatetic, renegade Republican on his presidential ego trip. At some point we have to take a critical look at the gent. What does he have to offer?

The short, blunt and accurate answer is: Not much. The polls continue to give him 20 percent of the popular vote "if the election were to be held tomorrow," but if the election actually were to be held tomorrow, Parson John would wind up in a dead heat with Libertarian Ed Clark at maybe 3 to 5 percent instead. For this reason only, the Anderson candidacy has to be taken seriously. We have to look at his ideas, and to look at his record.

Reading over a mass of material, I find but one novel idea in the Anderson campaign. This is a lousy idea. The gentleman proposes a new tax on gasoline of 50 cents a gallon. His purpose is to induce conservation. But simultaneously he would cut Social Security taxes by enough to replace the higher tax. The blue collar worker would pay $400 a year more for gas, but he would save the $400 in taxes, thus precisely negating the conservation notion. And what would this cost the hard-pressed Social Security fund? The gentleman from Illinois has been remarkably quiet on this aspect of his plan.

So much for the ideas of John Anderson. The gentleman has no executive experience whatever. Outside the 16th Congressional District of Illinois, he never has been elected to anything. Earlier this year he ran in nine presidential primaries as a Republican; he lost every one of them. Even in his home state he finished 11 points behind Ronald Reagan. On April 24, suffering the pangs of unrequited love, he picked up his doll dishes and went home: He announced he would run as an independent, thus pitting himself against the nominee of his own party.

In this summer of national discontent—a not unusual political malaise—the maverick Anderson has offered little more than his fair white body: He is an alternative to Reagan and Carter. He does have certain assets, though a consistent political philosophy is not among them. He is a fine orator, though he tends to get preachy, and he has served 20 years in the House. What else is there?

Let me harp on one part of the record. Three times—in 1961, 1963 and again in 1965—John Anderson, the lawyer, sponsored a proposed the more likely he is to fall down on his duties. Strange how much you've got to know before you know how little you know.

Don't find fault—find the remedy.

The most difficult secret for a man to keep is his opinion of himself. (Please don't yell at me for saying "man" instead of "person.")

Tomorrow is the biggest labor-saving device ever invented.

Doing beats stewing.

Getting up early in the morning is merely a question of mind over mattress.

The only people to get even with are the ones who have helped you.

Temper is a valuable possession—don't lose it. Flattery is counterfeit money which, but for vanity, would have no circulation.

Do you do your job well enough each day that you would hire yourself?

For every minute you are angry, you lose 60 seconds of happiness.

Helen Keller said, "Use your eyes as if tomorrow you would be struck blind; hear the music of voices, the song of a bird, as if you would be struck deaf. Touch each object as if tomorrow your sense of touch would fail. Smell the perfume of flowers, taste with relish each morsel, as if tomorrow you could never smell or taste again."

Perhaps my food for thought wasn't the tastiest, but on a slow news day like this, you'll try "eating" almost anything.

constitutional amendment. He wanted to write into the supreme law of the land a formal recognition of "the authority and laws of Jesus Christ, Savior and Ruler of Nations." Questioned about this bizarre proposition, Anderson has waffled. He once said he had sponsored the resolution as a favor to an old minister; again, that someone on his staff had drafted it and that he had introduced it without much thought; still again, that he didn't remember why he had done it.

The editorial staff of the Wall Street Journal recently pressed him. This was Anderson's answer: "Actually, I found out who did draft that. It was Senator Carlson...Do you remember Frank Carlson? He used to be chairman on the Senate Post Office Committee. Well, it was old Uncle Frank that originally introduced that amendment. I think, back in 1955. And nobody on the staff drafted it; it was just handed to me. I promptly forgot about it."

But why, inquired a Journal editor, had he sponsored it three different times? This was Anderson's response: "You have been around Capitol Hill long enough to know that many, many resolutions are introduced and then, almost as a matter pro forma, a whole bunch of resolutions are bundled up and dropped in a succeeding Congress by a legislative assistant and not much thought is given to the matter."

All right. If Parson John wants to leave it at that, OK by me. But I am reminded of Samuel Johnson's comment on the person who saw no distinction between virtue and vice: When he leaves our houses, let us count our spoons. Many of us remember old Uncle Frank, a onetime governor of Kansas; a nice guy. And we all know gung-ho legislative aides. But when a member of the House finds no difference between...responsibility...and irresponsibility...something is missing.—Copyright, 1960, Universal Press Syndicate

Actors' talents well above fluff of poorly-written 'Smokey II'

By Bill Crowe
Entertainment Editor

There's something really frustrating about "Smokey and the Bandit II," the latest Burt Reynolds-Sally Field, car crash-filled comedy. Reynolds, Field and co-star Jackie Gleason's talents are so much above this low-rent material that it's downright galling to see them waste their time with this fluff.

Review

"Smokey I," a smash hit a few years back, was a somewhat refreshing, light-hearted success filled with car wrecks, a silly Reynolds-Field love story and Gleason's constant mugging and cussing as Southern-fried sheriff Buford T. Justice. It never took itself seriously and played as a full-length cartoon starring people rather than an artist's drawings.

However, "Smokey II" tries to make the Bandit (Reynolds) and his girl (Field) seem like real people through a series of poorly written arguments between the two. It fails miserably. The film as a whole comes off as a badly paced series of action and dramatic scenes strung together by a paper-thin script.

"Smokey II" begins with Reynolds' truck driving partner (Jerry Reed) accepting another offer from rich Texan Pat McCormick to transport illegal cargo—this time a pregnant elephant—at illegal speeds across state lines.

Reed finds his buddy, who has just failed as a country singer, in a drunken stupor after Field had left him to again try to marry Gleason's dim-witted son. Reynolds naturally needs an intense training program to cure himself of the DT's, so Reed calls Field and she again leaves junior at the altar for the Bandit.

Once this excuse for a plot is out of the way, "Smokey II" simply alternates between the car crash scenes, expertly directed by former stunt man Hal Needham, and several all-too-serious love scenes between Reynolds and Field.

It seems that Field wants to settle down and marry while the Bandit would rather continue his egomaniacal life style of drinkin' and womanizin'. The question the viewers will undoubtedly ask is, "Who cares?"

The last thing people care about in a car crash film like this is development of characters. They've paid their hard-earned bucks to see smash-ups, and plenty of 'em, not a bunch of silly dialogue scenes with virtually no action.

In fact, why should such talents as Reynolds, Field and Gleason bother with these "junk food films" at all?

Reynolds is an underrated actor who can deftly handle serio-comic roles in such films as "The Longest Yard," "The End" and "Starting Over." But he always seems to revert to his macho persona in such air-headed entertainment flicks as "Hooper" and the "Smokey" films. He's better than this material and he knows it. But, he keeps doing it. That's awfully frustrating.

Local rock band getting in tune for free Friday show

By Linda Albert
Staff Writer

A "people hunt" and a free concert by Rudy and the Bouquets have been scheduled for Friday evening in an effort to help SIUC students make new friends.

Local rock band Rudy and the Bouquets, which includes several members of the old Dr. Bombay group, will be performing in the Free Forum Area at 8:30 p.m. Admission to the concert is free.

Sponsored by the Office of Student Development and the Student Programming Council, the "people hunt" will begin at 5:30 p.m. in the Free Forum Area across from Parkinson Laboratory. According to Joanne Granneman, assistant university programming coordinator, students who wish to participate in the event should register in teams of six at the Office of Student Development on the third floor of the Student Center before 3 p.m. Friday.

Granneman said each team will be given two hours to search for individuals throughout the area who fit various categories, such as having a specific eye color or hair color. The team finding subjects in the most categories will receive a free month pass to upcoming SPC films in the Student Center.

Community access TV sought

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

If one community group has its way, Carbondale area residents may soon produce their own television shows and see them aired on cable TV.

The group, following the lead of promoters of "community access" television across the country, wants to provide Carbondale residents with the chance to produce a program, air an opinion or just see themselves on television.

And while this may be a great creative outlet, it also serves as an excellent communications medium between Carbondale groups, student groups and students to townspeople, Charles Shipley, Chairman of the Carbondale Cable TV Commission, said.

"Public (community) access is vital to the community to keep it in touch with itself," agrees Anthony Esposito, former SIU student and member of the group.

But while the group's members are long on enthusiasm, they are short on necessary equipment and funding. Esposito said. They have no video equipment now, but are exploring the possibility of obtaining some.

He said the group was going to try to request funds from the city or a private investor, or may solicit used equipment from people who do not use it.

The group's long range plans include setting up a studio where anyone can rent equipment at a minimal charge. Training programs and production services would also be offered to community organizations or to private citizens, Esposito said.

The programs will then be shown on Channel 7, the designated community access channel for Carbondale.

"From every indication they have given us, they would air our programs at no charge," he said.

The Carbondale Cable TV Commission, while not directly involved with the group, encourages the growth of community access programs in Carbondale to further cable TV's goal of better quality and community involvement in television programming. Shipley said.

Freewheelin' will team up with Thom Bishop at T.J.'s Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Variety of sounds on tap at T.J.'s

An interesting combination of folk, rock and rhythm-and-blues sounds will be presented this weekend when Thom Bishop teams up with Freewheelin' for shows Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Sgt. T.J. McFly's. Bishop, a Midwestern folk musician, last performed in Carbondale when he opened for John Prine at Shryock Auditorium in February. An amiable performer best known for his casual stage appearance, Bishop has written "Guadalupe," "Way Up in the Sky," "The Street Where You Live," and many other songs. Bishop also produced Freewheelin's first album about four months ago.

Freewheelin' is a name which should sound familiar to fans of live music in Carbondale because the group has performed at many of the downtown bars in the recent past. Kevin Fabish, a member of Freewheelin', said the band and Bishop will share the stage, and each will perform some of their original compositions.

The performances are set to start at about 9:30 p.m. every night.

'Smokey II' low-rent material

(Continued from Page 5) performance in "Norma Rae" with "Smokey II." She can certainly find a little high-class work instead of this. That is also frustrating.

A comic genius like Gleason isn't much of an actor but he certainly can do better than endlessly growing "sumbitch" and other useless cuss words in between car wrecks. His true talents have been overlooked by Hollywood for years.

In other words, "Smokey II" is wasting the talent of some pretty heavyweight performers with material which could be performed just as well by Bugs Bunny and Elmer Fudd.

Early favorites get Hambo post spots

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

The Hambletonian Trotting Classic will end its 24-year run at Du Quoin on Saturday with a field of 19 entries. The drawing for post positions was held Wednesday morning at the Du Quoin State Fair Grandstand with former St. Louis Cardinal star Stan Musial doing the honors.

Since the field of 3-year-old trotters exceeds 16, two elimination heats will be run.

Noble Hustle, owned by Californian Richard Staley, was listed as a 2-1 favorite on Wednesday morning's line and will occupy the post position for the first elimination heat at 1:50 p.m. The second heat, scheduled for 2:10 p.m., will have Thor Viking at the post spot. Thor Viking, also a 2-1 favorite, is one of four Hambo entries from the talent-laden Swedish stable of driver Hakan Wallner and trainer Jan Johnson.

The top five finishers from the two elimination runs will then be matched in the next heat, which is scheduled for 3:20 p.m. to determine the winner. Since a horse must win two heats in order to win the Hambletonian, a possible fourth heat could be run at 4:40 p.m.

This year's purse of $293,570 is the second-highest in Hambletonian history.

Choctaw Brave drew the No. 2 spot for the first elimination heat, and another product of the Wallner-Johnson stable. Native Reel, will line up to the right of Choctaw Brave. No. 4 will be Marino Hanover. No. 5 Wonder Child. No. 6 Devil Hanover. No. 7 Able Mission. No. 8 Final Score. No. 9 Balboa and No. 10 Speedy Bones, another Wallner-Johnson entry.

In the second elimination heat, Demon Renavaeh drew the No. 2 spot. Dixon Hanover, the fourth Swedish entry, drew No. 3. Nevelle Impulse No. 4.

Netters hoping for continuation of spring success

By Scott Stahmer
Associate Sports Editor

The SIU women's tennis team enjoyed the success it tasted last spring so much that the victories should continue this fall, according to Saluki Coach Judy Auld.

"Basically, I feel we can pick up where we left off last spring," Auld, entering her sixth year as coach, said. "I had good doubles teams last year and that's going to be hard to replace, but we've got the people to do it."

Last fall, the Salukis were tennis' version of Murphy's Law, as injuries and illness contributed to a 6-12 dual meet record. But everyone was healthy for the spring season, and the netters' slate improved to 9-2, including a respectable fourth-place finish in the Missouri Valley tennis tournament.

Three players—Fran Watson, who transferred to Eastern Kentucky and Mauri Kohler and Carol Foss, who graduated—are gone from that team, but Auld has confidence in the five returning netters and three recruits.

"I feel we'll be in as good of shape as last year, if not better," she said. "I feel good about depth. We've got eight players who can step in and play."

Holdovers from last year include seniors Debbie Martin and Jeannie Jones, juniors Tammy Kurtz and Mona Etchison, and sophomore Lisa Warrem. The recruits are freshman Stacy Sherman from Setanket, N.Y., and transfers Paula Etchison (no relation to Mona) from St. Ambrose College and Becky Ingram from the University of Alabama.

Auld said she hasn't decided on her lineup yet, adding that the team has practiced only since Monday.

"If I go on the basis of last year, Lisa and Jeannie probably will be contending for the No. 1 spot," Auld said. "But that's not to say Stacy or Debbie couldn't work their way up."

Warrem, a native of Mattoon, and Jones, from Anna, both played No. 1 singles last year.

"I saw Lisa play this summer and I think her game has improved in that she's trying to move the ball around a lot more," Auld said. "Jeannie won some tournaments over the summer and I think that will help her confidence."

Auld is hoping for improvement from Martin, Kurtz and Mona Etchison. Martin always was in the lineup last year, while Etchison and Kurtz played less.

"Tammy is a really good little worker," Auld said. "She wants to improve. Debbie has changed her grip at the net, which should be very beneficial to her. She won't get caught out of position like she used to."

Auld said Paula Etchison, Ingram and Sherman have played well, adding that she wouldn't be able to evaluate them until they are put in game situations.

"Paula played quite a bit at St. Ambrose," Auld said. "Becky didn't play much at Alabama, but she's still an experienced player. And I was pleased with what I saw of Sherman the first day of practice."

Auld said perennial power Northwestern, which SIU will play Sept. 27, once again will be the favorite to win the state championship. But the Salukis may get an idea where they stand Sept. 5-6, when they play a quadrangular against Illinois, Illinois State and Western Illinois. Results of the match could affect seeding for the state tournament.

"I'd prefer to have it a week later," Auld said of the all-Illinois quadrangular. "We'll go into it with less than two weeks of practice."

RAQUET RETURNEE—Debbie Martin is one of five players who are returning from last season's women's tennis team. Martin, a senior from Setanket, N.Y., saw extensive action for the Salukis, who were 9-2 last spring.

'Green' secondary is slowly ripening

By Rod Smith
Sports Editor

When assessing the fortunes of this year's Saluki football team, one of the major areas of concern is the defensive secondary, where a large void exists because of the graduation of all four 1979 starters.

The job of replacing cornerbacks John Palermo and Ty Henry, monster back Alvin Reed and free safety Oyd Craddock belongs to assistant football coach and defensive coordinator Jim Caldwell.

Despite having only two defensive backs with game experience returning, the former Big Ten interception leader has seen progress in his players and confidence in their ability.

"We've been working real hard with the backs and they are getting better at the details," Caldwell said. "We haven't quite gotten to where we want to be yet, but I'll feel confident about the four guys we put on the field."

The two returning lettermen are free safety Neal Furlong and strong safety, or monster back, Trey Washington. Furlong, a senior from Ladue, Mo., was frequently used last year in passing situations as a fifth pass defender. Washington, a junior from Oklahoma City, Okla., began last season as the starting monster back, but gave way to

Alvin Reed and never won the job back. Battles for starting positions are still going on at cornerback, where the starters for the Wichita State game

— Jim Caldwell

Sept. 6 are still uncertain. James Davis, a junior college transfer from Coffeyville, Kan., is presently the starter for the wide side of the field. He is being contested by sophomore speedster Walter Nuby.

On the short side of the field, sophomore Eugene Walker is the leading candidate. Walker, a walk-on last year, had a good spring game but is being pushed by senior Ty Payne.

Caldwell said Payne and Furlong, the two seniors in the secondary, are looked up to by the other defensive backs in drills and scrimmages. Carbondale native Roger Ollie, a transfer from Independence, Kan., Junior College, provides depth at the short corner.

Caldwell said freshmen William Thomas from East St. Louis and Terry Taylor from Youngstown, Ohio, also could see playing time. Taylor has been raising some eyebrows with his speed.

"Right now, we're learning how to read certain cuts and how to prepare for an opponent," Caldwell said.

"Although we're inexperienced, we do have good hitters," Caldwell added. "We need to get better on intermediate routes and getting to the ball quicker."

The Saluki pass defenders will be put to a test early this year. Wichita State is led by 1979's Missouri Valley Conference "Newcomer of the Year," sophomore quarterback Prince McJunkins, who has all the starting receivers from last year's squad returning.

Fans can see for themselves how the secondary is shaping up when the Salukis scrimmage Friday at 3 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium. Admission to the practice is free.

Retarded couple seeks return of daughter to their custody

EAST DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—Stephanie Diesing was 3 months old when police found her, alone in an East Detroit house except for a watchful dog. Her parents, both mentally retarded, had gone to a dentist appointment.

The child, suffering from malnutrition, was ordered placed in the care of her paternal grandmother. That was 11 months ago.

On Wednesday, David and Dorothy Diesing kept another appointment: They went to court to ask a judge to give them back their daughter along with a new chance to prove themselves as parents.

Before the hearing, their attorney, John Devers Jr., had told a reporter: "They're afraid that Stephanie doesn't know them, that they will be strangers in her life. They have become very concerned about the time Stephanie has been out of their home."

In a 15-minute juvenile court meeting, Macomb County Probate Judge Robert Spier extended the hearing an additional 90 days. He said a final decision on Stephanie's custody would be issued when the Diesings have completed an American Red Cross child care course and resolve a dispute with their landlord.

Devers said the Diesings have been withholding rent because of the landlord's alleged refusal to make repairs on their rented house.

"The court and the Diesings are very happy that somebody finally has come up with a program to serve their needs," Devers said. "They want to do it because they feel it will benefit Stephanie."

Last October, Spier removed the child from the Diesings' care on a negligence charge. Officers had found the child after the Diesings' dentist, worried when he saw his patients arrive together but without their baby, inquired of her whereabouts. Told she was home, freshly diapered and guarded by the family dog, he alerted police.

The Diesings' case has highlighted the issue of the rights of retarded citizens, who are entering everyday society in ever increasing numbers; Michigan's "mainstreaming" of developmentally disabled persons has caused a drop in population at institutions from 12,515 in June 1966 to 4,887 in June 1980.

"There's a general assumption that retarded people can't raise a family. I think that's simply not true," said Terry Hunt, assistant executive director of the Michigan Association for Retarded Citizens.

Nevertheless, the experts also agree that retarded people need help to learn proper child care procedures. And Devers said that help was hard to find—the available classes don't address the most ordinary procedures which retarded individuals must master first.

"We're talking about getting down to basic parenting skills," said Bob Slaine of Life Consultants Inc., a Macomb County agency that provides services to the mentally retarded. "There's no type of curriculum or program to educate the developmentally disabled on parenting."

A solution was found with a Red Cross baby-sitting course normally aimed at youngsters aged 9-11. It covers such matters as nutrition, hygiene, cooking and home safety, says Red Cross spokeswoman Jane Reschke.

Both David, 30, and Dorothy, 37, spent much of their lives in state institutions and other supervised facilities for the mentally retarded. They left state supervision in 1976. On Christmas Eve of that year, they married.

Each has held jobs in the past but they are on public assistance now, says Devers. The Diesings declined to be interviewed, either privately or at court.

Stephanie recently celebrated her first birthday. Her latest checkup indicated she was growing normally and was ahead of her age group mentally. Since October, she has been living two miles away from her parents—at the home of David's mother, Bernice Ferry.

Last March, Spier ordered the Diesings to take parenting classes and ruled that they could visit Stephanie "as often as can be worked out" to re-establish family bonds.

According to Devers, Ferry initially resisted working with the couple—he said the Diesings told him she had opposed their decision to have a child—but that their visits with Stephanie are now averaging about one a week.

"They've begun to re-establish contact with the child and there's beginning to be a meaningful interplay," he said.

Shortage of plates means no tickets

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

Ticketing for unregistered bicycles will not begin for at least two weeks when the University expects to replenish its supply of license plates, according to Marilyn Hogan, manager of the SIU-C Parking Division.

The supply of bicycle license plates has run out because a shipment that was supposed to arrive in July has not come, Hogan said.

Neither the Saluki Patrol nor the Carbondale police will ticket bicycles without plates until the new supply comes in.

However, the Carbondale police have plates available and are still registering bicycles at the police station at 610 E. College St.

There is a $2 charge and bikes must be brought to the station in order to be registered. When the University gets license plates, registration will resume at the dormitory dining halls, the Student Center, and the Parking Division at Washington Square D.

City police are issuing warning tickets for unregistered bikes in the meantime.

Shooting threats end in one arrest

By Andy Strang
Staff Writer

An SIU-C student was arrested Wednesday after he allegedly threatened to shoot several people who were sitting on a car that was parked in front of his house at 207 W. Oak St.

Carbondale police arrested Paul Templeton, 19, for aggravated assault at 2:38 a.m. Wednesday. Police also confiscated a shotgun that he allegedly was threatening the people with.

Templeton was taken to the Jackson County Jail to await a bond hearing.

Police said they did not know if Templeton owned the car.

Group criticizes proposed rules for nursing homes

CHICAGO (AP) — Nursing home consultants and residents' rights advocates representing six Midwestern states have criticized a proposed federal "bill of rights" for nursing home residents.

"In an effort to contain costs, they made proposals that are really untenable in terms of patient care," said Virginia Lawton, executive director of Illinois Citizens for Better Care, a non-profit nursing home resident advocacy group.

The regulations, proposed by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, deal with guidelines that nursing homes would have to meet to receive Medicare or Medicaid funds. They would bar facilities which do not provide such basics as privacy or decent food from receiving federal funds.

While speakers at a department-sponsored public hearing praised the agency's effort to protect residents' rights, they criticized several other proposed regulations.

One recommendation would allow nursing home administrators to dismiss consultants in the areas of nutrition, occupational therapy or other fields if, after one year, they felt their staffs could carry on the same work.

Funding cut at Morris Library forces subscription reduction

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

A state appropriations bill providing a 7 percent increase in funding for Morris Library has caused a reduction in subscriptions and in standing orders of about $50,000 for the library.

Dean of Library Affairs Kenneth Peterson said that science and science-related fields would be hardest hit by the reduction. He added that the field of social studies would also be adversely affected.

"These fields are the heaviest users of these materials and are bound to be affected the most," Peterson said.

Inflation is the primary cause of the cuts, according to Peterson. He said the cost of library materials is increasing at a higher rate than either the general cost of living or higher education price indexes. According to a survey of American periodicals in the July 1980 issue of the Library Journal, an average subscription price is $34.54, which is 13.7 percent higher than last year's figure.

Peterson said libraries are having funding problems across the United States, but compared to other states Illinois is doing fairly well.

"The University of Wisconsin recently had to stop ordering any books at all because of serious funding problems," he said.

Division librarians will decide which subscriptions should be discontinued based on their knowledge of faculty research interests and overall usage, according to Peterson. He added that emphasis would be placed on duplicate copies, foreign language materials and little used materials.

Presently, Morris Library has 17,337 standing orders. Peterson said that the amount of orders to be cancelled was unknown at this time, but said he and his staff would be working towards the $50,000 mark.

Peterson said that subscriptions and standing orders were reduced by $13,000 last year, but the library still closed the year with $38,000 in unpaid bills.

At a meeting of the State University Libraries of Illinois Council of Directors, Peterson introduced a resolution that passed unanimously and was sent to the Illinois Board of Higher Education expressing concern about the size of the funding increase. The council expressed a need for a 15 percent increase to keep up with inflation.

Peterson said that the funding problem was not a crisis, but it was a serious problem. "We are able to compensate for the problem this year," Peterson said. "But if inflation continues to increase by 15 percent each year and our increases only amount to 7 percent a year we will be in trouble in a few years."

Efforts are being continued to increase funding for Morris Library, Peterson said. Members of the University administration are continuing efforts to obtain the 15 percent increases needed. A portion of the money obtained from research contracts and grants is being directly allocated to the library.

Liaison officer appointed between attorney, blacks

CHICAGO—In response to charges that there has been increased police brutality of black persons, U.S. Attorney Thomas P. Sullivan has appointed a liaison between his office and the black community.

Sullivan made the announcement Tuesday after a one-hour meeting with the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, national president of Operation PUSH.

Jackson charged that there is "an epidemic of police aggression" in the Chicago area, called for increased federal prosecution of brutality cases and presented a list of seven alleged incidents of police brutality against citizens.

Sullivan later told reporters in his office that he was appointing Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel E. Reidy as liaison to the black community and would look into the charges by Jackson.

People 'who want to get involved' sought for USO committee positions

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

Fifty applications for about 100 open positions on University committees and student government commissions have been received by the Undergraduate Student Organization, according to Paul Matalonis, USO president.

Matalonis said he will recommend undergraduates for appointment to seven USO executive commissions and about 50 administrative committees. His recommendations will be submitted to the Student Senate for final approval.

"We're looking for people with available time who are really concerned with filling student needs," Matalonis said. "We want people who want to work and who really want to get involved."

Of about 30 spots on executive commissions, Matalonis said he has four names in mind for senate approval. He said spots remain open on the Public Relations, Student Welfare, Elections, Fee Allocations, Academic Affairs, Campus Development and Service, and Housing, Tuition, and Fees Commissions.

Matalonis said he has 15 persons in mind for University committees, leaving about 80 seats open. His highest priorities include vacancies on the Student Health Service Policy Review, Student Work and Financial Assistance Committees and the Arena Advisory, Student Legal Assistance and Student Center Boards, he said.

In order to avoid the lack of dedication which some appointments have shown in the past, Matalonis said all qualified applicants will be interviewed by USO officials. "We hope we can avoid that kind of thing by really looking at the applications," he said. To be qualified, he said, an applicant must have a 2.0 grade point average in addition to showing a willingness to work.

Knife-wielding man surrenders after seven-hour siege

DES PLAINES, (AP) — Police said a team of three negotiators spent more than seven hours talking to an armed man before he put down his weapons and left his locked room early Wednesday.

Police Chief Leroy A. Alfano identified the man as Douglas K. Wertepny, 25, of Des Plaines.

The chief said Wertepny was taken to Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge after the incident, and a hospital spokesman said the man was later transferred to another unidentified institution.

Alfano said Wertepny allegedly began to brandish a knife and make threats shortly after 6 p.m. and his father called the police.

Wertepny had locked himself in his room when police arrived, and police, using a nightscope, spotted several kitchen knives in his room throw a window, Alfano said. He added that the man's parents told police their son owned a gun.

After police spent hours talking to the man, he finally left his bedroom. The chief said it took police six hours to get the man to come out of the upstairs bedroom and another hour and a half to persuade him to leave the landing and come downstairs.

Police later found a "lead pipe rigged up with a shotgun shell and a couple of kitchen knives" in the bedroom, Alfano said.

He said he did not know exactly what the man's problem was. "From the conversation we had with him there were indications that he may have been on drugs," Alfano said.

The chief said he doubted Wertepny would be charged with anything.

Silica mine blast hurts six workers

ELCO (AP)—Six employees of the Illinois Mineral Co. silica mine near Elco were injured in an explosion and fire at the southern Illinois plant Wednesday.

A company spokesman said a park from a welder ignited a can of flammable liquid and caused the explosion. Four workers were treated and released and two were hospitalized at the Union County Hospital in Anna, but the spokesman declined to reveal the names or the extent of the injuries.

The Mine Safety and Health Administration inspected the mine following the accident and allowed officials to continue operations.

Funds for animal research facilities now awaiting Thompson's approval

By John Ambrosia
Staff Writer

Waiting for "the cows to come home" may take a long time if Gov. James R. Thompson doesn't approve a bill designed to provide research funds for the School of Agriculture.

The $520,000 bill, approved by the General Assembly in July, provides for the construction of new beef, swine, dairy, poultry and horse research and housing facilities. The bill is an amendment to a $600,000 ethical alternative energy proposal. If Thompson doesn't sign the bill by Sept. 15, it becomes law.

Facilities now being used to house animal research are outdated and deteriorating and could hamper research efforts in the next few years, according to Gordon Billingsley, public information specialist for the school.

"If the bill is signed, it would be like the cavalry coming in to the rescue," said Billingsley. "We're not dead yet, although we could come close to it, and this bill would save us just in time."

Billingsley explained, "The problem of inadequate and outdated research facilities is here with us now, but so far we've been able to handle all of the problems they've presented. But in three or four or five years, they may be problems we just can't overcome. We're looking down the road to the near future with this bill."

Dairy calves are being kept in a remodeled poultry house and other animals are in desperate need of new "homes," said Billingsley. Some of the structures have little or no heating and ventilation, while other buildings are rusting out or already contain holes in their walls, he added.

During the winter, some of the structures must be insulated from the outside with plastic sheets to prevent animals from getting sick, Billingsley said. He added that the possibility of holes opening up enough to allow animals to escape is a constant worry for the future.

"Whenever an animal gets sick, which has often happened in the winter to our dairy calves, all research must stop because you obviously can't use information gathered from unhealthy animals. That holds up our work and doesn't do anybody any good," he said.

"And if we run into an instance of an animal escaping for a short period of time, that would also ruin any research," he added. "Say you're working with the idea of how feed affects beef cattle, and they escape and eat something aside from what you're feeding them. How can you then have a successful experiment?"

Funding for the new structures is being asked for indirectly under the state's Food for Century III program, begun in 1977. The program was started to provide money to the University of Illinois and SIU for construction of facilities to provide expanded capacities for food research to increase crop and meat output in Illinois.

The School of Agriculture was granted more than $1 million in 1978 for a new feed mill and some updated laboratories. According to Billingsley, although the current research update project shouldn't technically come under the three-year old food project, the school is hoping to slip it "in through the back door" and get Thompson's approval.

"The original intent of the Century III program was to provide advanced methods for obtaining food, and help Illinois farmers in their crop and animal raising methods. I think these new facilities would do the same thing because they will allow us to continue our current research and expand beyond that."

The ability to teach agriculture students about the sometimes difficult care of farm animals would also be enhanced by the new structures, he said. "The areas we have to work in now are hard enough to do research in, let alone teach in. The money for the new facilities would make our agriculture program quite comprehensive," he added.

"The only problem I see is that Thompson hasn't lived up to his past promises about keeping Illinois advanced agriculturally," said Billingsley. "Last year the Board of Higher Education asked the governor for $8.6 million in agriculture research money to be distributed across the state. By the time the arguing and slashing was over, he had the figure down to $571,000. That's about how much our whole project is."

The school currently provides facilities for more than 7,000 horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and chickens and hopes to expand this amount once the proposed facilities are constructed, according to Billingsley.

DIRECTORY INFORMATION

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY

AT CARBONDALE

Under the University policy on the Release of Student Information and Public Law 93380 as amended, the University may make accessible to any person external to the University "directory information" concerning a student, unless that student notifies the Office of Admissions and Records that he or she objects to the release of such information. Directory information is considered to be public in nature and will be released at any time upon request without prior approval from the student. Notice is therefore given that directory information listed below in respect to each student enrolled at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale will be available to any person unless the student files in writing with the Office of Admissions and Records a request to restrict release of student directory information to external sources.

The University has designed as directory information the following student information:

- Student name.
- Student local address and telephone number.
- Student home address and telephone number.
- Date of birth.
- Current term hours carried.
- Classification (freshman, sophomore, etc.)
- Academic unit.
- Major.
- Dates of attendance.
- Degrees and honors earned and dates.
- The most previous educational agency or institution attended prior to enrollment at Southern Illinois University.
- Participation in officially recognized activity or sport and weight, height and picture of members of athletic teams.
- Picture.

Any student enrolled for the Fall Semester who does not wish to have released any or all of the above listed items of information should contact, in person, the Office of Admissions and Records, Woody Hall by Thursday, September 4, 1980. Students who elect to restrict release of student information must sign a statement to that effect. The restriction on the release of student information will be valid until September 1, 1981, and must be renewed annually each Fall Semester.

Students who wish to verify or correct the existing student directory information must also contact in person the Office of Admissions and Records, Woody Hall.

Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

Find yourself in the woods.

Orienteering...it's an old sport recently added to the Olympics. It's like running cross-country with compass and map as your guide.

Contestants race against the clock, navigating through unfamiliar terrain. At each hidden control point, they punch a special mark on their score cards to prove they've been there.

Orienteering is rapidly expanding in the United States. Because Army ROTC is introducing it on many college campuses. It's one way our students practice the "land navigation" theory they learn in class.

Many Army ROTC courses and extracurricular activities offer you the same kind of challenge as orienteering. To prepare you, mentally and physically, for your leadership position as an Army officer when you graduate.

If you're looking for a challenge, in college and afterwards, you'll find some of it out running in the woods.

Ex-security chief sentenced for robbery

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge Wednesday sentenced a former security chief at O'Hare International Airport to five years in prison and fined him $100,000 for bank robbery.

However, U.S. District Judge Nicholas J. Bua told the defendant, Ronald J. Stewart, 34, that his sentence might be reduced if he identifies the man to whom he allegedly gave some of the loot.

Stewart contended he took $170,500 from a North Side bank because he feared his family would be harmed if he did not pay a $100,000 gambling debt to underworld figures. Bua noted that Stewart took $70,500 more than he said he needed.

Stewart has refused to tell investigators to whom he paid the $100,000. Bua told Stewart to return to court if the defendant decides to divulge the name.

The judge added that the action was "one of the toughest" he has ever faced.

Stewart had lost his O'Hare job the day before the holdup.

Rugby Club opens practice

Anyone interested in trying out for the men's Rugby Club should attend its first practice, Monday, Sept. 1, at 4 p.m. on the fields south of the SIU Arena.

Physicals will not be needed. Dues will be collected once the team is chosen.

The club's first match will be Sept. 20 against Illinois State University.

Mall plans 'Saluki Saturday'

Football strategy and game plans, taping procedures and autograph signing will all be part of the "Saluki Saturday," Aug. 30 at the University Mall.

Members of the Saluki football team will begin the afternoon at a mock training room where Head Trainer Harry Schulz will demonstrate taping procedures.

The players will then move to another part of the mall to receive pads, pants and jerseys from Equipment Manager Steve Ward.

Offensive and defensive strategy and game plan will be discussed by three assistant coaches while Head Coach Rey Dempsey and key SIU players sign autographs at the "Celebrity Station."

What is Socialism?

What are the facts? What are the distortions?
Here's what the Socialist Labor Party says.

Who owns what

Socialism is the collective ownership by all the people of the factories, mills, mines, railroads, land and all other instruments of production.

Who benefits

Socialism means production to satisfy human needs, not as under capitalism, for sale and profit.

Who runs things

Socialism means direct control and management of the industries and social services by the workers through a democratic government based on their nationwide economic organization.

Under socialism, all authority will originate from the workers, integrally united in socialist industrial unions. In each workplace, the rank and file will elect whatever committees or representatives are needed to facilitate production. Within each shop or office division of a plant, the rank and file will participate directly in formulating and implementing all plans necessary for efficient operations.

Local & national gov't.

Besides electing all necessary shop officers, the workers will also elect representatives to a local and national council of their industry or service and to a central congress representing all the industries and services. This all-industrial congress will plan and coordinate production in all areas of the economy.

Democratic control

All persons elected to any post in the socialist government, from the lowest to the highest level, will be directly accountable to the rank and file. They will be subject to removal at any time that a majority of those who elected them decide it is necessary.

Such a system would make possible the fullest democracy and freedom. It would be a society based on the most primary freedom-economic freedom.

What can you do?

2. Get involved

Contact the SLP subdivision in your area and find out about local activities like lectures, leafletting and classes in Marxism.

3. Join us

The SLP is open to all who agree with its program of political and economic organization to replace capitalism with a new socialist society. Learn more about the SLP's ideas and program. If you agree, you belong in the SLP.

Individual rights

For individuals, socialism means an end to economic insecurity and exploitation. It means workers cease to be commodities bought and sold on the labor market, and forced to work as appendages to tools owned by someone else. It means a chance to develop all individual capacities and potentials within a free community of free individuals. It means a classless society that guarantees full democratic rights for all workers.

What socialism is not

- Socialism does not mean government or state ownership.
- It does not mean a state bureaucracy as in the U.S.S.R., with the working class oppressed by a new bureaucratic class.
- It does not mean a closed Party-run system without democratic rights.
- It does not mean "nationalization," or "labor-management boards," or state capitalism of any kind.
- It means a complete end to all capitalist social relations.

How we can get socialism

To win the struggle for socialist freedom requires enormous efforts of organizational and educational work. It requires building a political party of socialism to contest the power of the capitalist class on the political field, and to educate the majority of workers about the need for socialism. It requires building socialist industrial union organizations to unite all workers in a class-conscious industrial force, and to prepare them to take hold and operate the tools of production.

You are needed in the ranks of socialists fighting for a better world, to end poverty, racism, environmental disaster and to avert a catastrophic nuclear war. Find out more about the program and work of the Socialist Labor Party and join us to help make the promise of socialism a reality.

Early favorites get Hambo post spots

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

The Hambletonian Trotting Classic will end its 24-year run at Du Quoin on Saturday with a field of 19 entries. The drawing for post positions was held Wednesday morning at the Du Quoin State Fair Grandstand with former St. Louis Cardinal star Stan Musial doing the honors.

Since the field of 3-year-old trotters exceeds 16, two elimination heats will be run.

Noble Hustle, owned by Californian Richard Staley, was listed as a 2-1 favorite on Wednesday morning's line and will occupy the post position for the first elimination heat at 1:50 p.m. The second heat, scheduled for 2:10 p.m., will have Thor Viking at the post spot. Thor Viking, also a 2-1 favorite, is one of four Hambo entries from the talent-laden Swedish stable of driver Hakan Wallner and trainer Jan Johnson.

The top five finishers from the two elimination runs will then be matched in the next heat, which is scheduled for 3:20 p.m. to determine the winner. Since a horse must win two heats in order to win the Hambletonian, a possible fourth heat could be run at 4:40 p.m.

This year's purse of $293,570 is the second-highest in Hambletonian history.

Choctaw Brave drew the No. 2 spot for the first elimination heat, and another product of the Wallner-Johnson stable, Native Reel, will line up to the right of Choctaw Brave. No. 4 will be Marino Hanover, No. 5 Wonder Child, No. 6 Devil Hanover, No. 7 Able Mission, No. 8 Final Score, No. 9 Balboa and No. 10 Speedy Bones, another Wallner-Johnson entry.

In the second elimination heat, Demon Renavaeh drew the No. 2 spot, Dixon Hanover the fourth Swedish entry, drew No. 3, Nettle Impulse No. 4.

Netters hoping for continuation of spring success

By Scott Stahmer
Associate Sports Editor

The SIU women's tennis team enjoyed the success it tasted last spring so much that the victories should continue this fall, according to Saluki Coach Judy Auld.

"Basically, I feel we can pick up where we left off last spring," Auld, entering her sixth year as coach, said. "I had good doubles teams last year and that's going to be hard to replace, but we've got the people to do it."

Last fall, the Salukis were tennis' version of Murphy's Law, as injuries and illness contributed to a 6-12 dual meet record. But everyone was healthy for the spring season, and the netters' slate improved to 9-2, including a respectable fourth-place finish in the Missouri Valley tennis tournament.

Three players—Fran Watson, who transferred to Eastern Kentucky and Mauri Kohler and Carol Foss, who graduated—are gone from that team, but Auld has confidence in the five returning netters and three recruits.

"I feel we'll be in as good of shape as last year, if not better," she said. "I feel good about depth. We've got eight players who can step in and play."

Holdovers from last year include seniors Debbie Martin and Jeannie Jones, juniors Tammy Kurtz and Mona Etchison, and sophomore Lisa Warrem. The recruits are freshman Stacy Sherman from Setanket, N.Y., and transfers Paula Etchison (no relation to Mona) from St. Ambrose College and Becky Ingram from the University of Alabama.

Auld said she hasn't decided on her lineup yet, adding that the team has practiced only since Monday.

"If I go on the basis of last year, Lisa and Jeannie probably will be contending for the No. 1 spot," Auld said.

"But that's not to say Stacy or Debbie couldn't work their way up."

Warrem, a native of Mattoon, and Jones, from Anna, both played No. 1 singles last year.

"I saw Lisa play this summer and I think her game has improved in that she's trying to move the ball around a lot more," Auld said. "Jeannie won some tournaments over the summer and I think that will help her confidence."

Auld is hoping for improvement from Martin, Kurtz and Mona Etchison. Martin always was in the lineup last year, while Etchison and Kurtz played less.

"Tammy is a really good little worker," Auld said. "She wants to improve. Debbie has changed her grip at the net, which should be very beneficial to her. She won't get caught out of position like she used to."

Auld said Paula Etchison, Ingram and Sherman have played well, adding that she wouldn't be able to evaluate them until they are put in game situations.

"Paula played quite a bit at St. Ambrose," Auld said. "Becky didn't play much at Alabama, but she's still an experienced player. And I was pleased with what I saw of Sherman the first day of practice."

Auld said perennial power Northwestern, which SIU will play Sept. 27, once again will be the favorite to win the state championship. But the Salukis may get an idea where they stand Sept. 5-6, when they play a quadrangular against Illinois, Illinois State and Western Illinois. Results of the match could affect seeding for the state tournament.

"I'd prefer to have it a week later," Auld said of the all-Illinois quadrangular. "We'll go into it with less than two weeks of practice."

RAQUET RETURNEE—Debbie Martin is one of five players who are returning from last season's women's tennis team. Martin, a senior from Setanket, N.Y., saw extensive action for the Salukis, who were 9-2 last spring.

'Green' secondary is slowly ripening

By Rod Smith
Sports Editor

When assessing the fortunes of this year's Saluki football team, one of the major areas of concern is the defensive secondary, where a large void exists because of the graduation of all four 1979 starters.

The job of replacing cornerbacks John Palermo and Ty Henry, monster back Alvin Reed and free safety Oyd Craddock belongs to assistant football coach and defensive coordinator Jim Caldwell.

Despite having only two defensive backs with game experience returning, the former Big Ten interception leader has seen progress in his players and confidence in their ability.

"We've been working real hard with the backs and they are getting better at the details," Caldwell said. "We haven't quite gotten to where we want to be yet, but I'll feel confident about the four guys we put on the field."

The two returning lettermen are free safety Neal Furlong and strong safety, or monster back, Trey Washington. Furlong, a senior from Ladue, Mo., was frequently used last year in passing situations as a fifth pass defender. Washington, a junior from Oklahoma City, Okla., began last season as the starting monster back, but gave way to Alvin Reed and never won the job back.

Battles for starting positions are still going on at cornerback, where the starters for the Wichita State game

"We haven't quite gotten to where we want to be yet, but I'll feel confident about the four guys we put on the field."

— Jim Caldwell

Sept. 6 are still uncertain. James Davis, a junior college transfer from Coffeyville, Kan., is presently the starter for the wide side of the field. He is being contended by sophomore speedster Walter Nuby.

On the short side of the field, sophomore Eugene Walker is the leading candidate. Walker, a walk-on last year, had a good spring game but is being pushed by senior Ty Payne.

Caldwell said Payne and Furlong, the two seniors in the secondary, are looked up to by the other defensive backs in drills and scrimmages. Carbondale native Roger Ollie, a transfer from Independence, Kan., junior College, provides depth at the short corner.

Caldwell said freshmen William Thomas from East St. Louis and Terry Taylor from Youngstown, Ohio, also could see playing time. Taylor has been raising some eyebrows with his speed.

"Right now, we're learning how to read certain cuts and how to prepare for an opponent," Caldwell said.

"Although we're inexperienced, we do have good hitters," Caldwell added. "We need to get better on intermediate routes and getting to the ball quicker."

The Saluki pass defenders will be put to a test early this year. Wichita State is led by 1979's Missouri Valley Conference "Newcomer of the Year," sophomore quarterback Prince McJunkins, who has all the starting receivers from last year's squad returning.

Fans can see for themselves how the secondary is shaping up when the Salukis scrimmage Friday at 3 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium. Admission to the practice is free.

Surprised cities disagree with low census count for Illinois

Cities throughout Illinois, shocked by U.S. Census Bureau estimates showing substantial population losses, are working feverishly to prove the figures wrong, according to an Associated Press survey.

"People weren't prepared to recognize that they were going down even under an accurate census," says Richard E. Carter, planning director for the city of Evanston, which dropped nearly 5 percent.

The preliminary figures show that almost every major city in the state appears to have lost substantial population during the 1970s. East St. Louis, Des Plaines, DeKalb, Alton, Kankakee and Rock Island are among cities shown to have lost at least 10 percent of their 1970 population.

The U.S. Census Bureau, however, says a new round of statistics available in September should be much closer to the mark.

"Nobody in his right mind believes these preliminary figures," says Steve Hyman, director of advance planning for the city of Moline. "I don't even know why they give them out."

At least $657 million per year is doled out to municipalities from state and federal coffers under formulas affected by census figures, officials say. The programs span education, transportation, social services and water works.

Associated Press member newspapers from around the state contributed reports on disputes between the Census Bureau and cities trying to find additional citizens. Among their findings:

—Census takers appear to have failed to count students living at several colleges, including Lewis University, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, Northern Illinois University, Judson College and Augustana College.

—Residents of state mental health facilities and prisons were overlooked near Kankakee, Pontiac, Decatur and Alton. Students, patients, inmates and other residents are supposed to be counted where they were living on April 1, under Census Bureau rules.

—Thousands of homes in Elgin, Rock Island and Decatur were improperly listed as "unclassified" with no residents simply because no census forms were returned by the residents.

—Annexations and subdivisions were missed in Peoria, Glen Carbon, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Moline, East Moline, Alton and Eureka.

In response, U.S. Census Bureau officials say they expect Illinois communities to challenge the "working figures" mailed in late July. They describe the checking process by localities as a partnership with the bureau.

"We're now in the process of updating all our maps and working toward the final census figures," says Barbara Hilmas, a census official in Belleville. "The current figures are just ballpark."

Here is a sampling of disputes:

—Southern Illinois University at Carbondale reported 4,900 persons living in two housing areas that are part of the university. However, the Census Bureau could only account for 3,331 persons.

—Woodford County's population increased 16.5 percent, from 28,012 to 32,638. But the Olio Township section of Eureka went from 3,018 to 1,867, for a 38.1 percent loss. Olio Township was recorded as losing 1,416 persons, or 36.3 percent. County Clerk Cecil Nohl said the loss was impossible.

"Where did all those people go?" he asked. "The houses aren't empty. There's been quite a bit of growth in that section. It should be greater than the 1970 figure. There are extra buildings and extra families."

—Parts of an apartment complex and an entire child care center were wrongly placed in Peoria suburbs instead of in the city, causing a 750-person loss to Peoria, Mrs.

Harkrader said. Alton Mayor Paul Lenz said the Alton Mental Health Center, with 275 patients, did not appear to have been counted.

In Decatur, chief city planner Bob Menzies said four nursing homes, the Macon County Jail and a state prisoner detention facility totaling more than 500 persons were missed by census takers.

—An entire annexed tract containing 2,189 persons was left out of Glen Carbon's count. Belleville census officials acknowledged after village officials registered a protest. "I have no rhyme or reason for it," (Continued on Page 26) said Barbara Hilmes, census representative in the Belleville office. The oversight dropped Glen Carbon's population to 2,907, even though a special, $2,500 census in 1975 showed 3,802. In 1970 the tally was 1,897. The forgotten tract is an area in which Glen Carbon residents have Edwardsville mailing addresses. Postal officials have refused to make a change.

Illinois cities say census count low

—In Des Plaines, near O'Hare International Airport, Planning Director Michael Richardson said census counters placed one census district in neighboring Mount Prospect and gave Des Plaines one of Mount Prospect's areas, decreasing Des Plaines' population by 4,727.

"We told them on the telephone but they didn't really acknowledge it in any sense," said Richardson. "They just said they'd take a look at it."

—The small township of Sunbury, north of Pontiac, was made even smaller by the preliminary count when its population was reported to have dropped 99.2 percent from 391 in 1970 to three in 1980. A quick check by the township supervisor there gave a total count of 324 — 321 of whom had been misplaced by the census bureau in another township.

—In Hoopston, 20 miles north of Danville, village officials are hoping to boost their count because the Census Bureau apparently did not count migrant Mexican-American laborers who spend 4½ months of the year there. A census official told the city, however, that the laborers have homes in Texas and should be counted there.

—DeKalb, home of Northern Illinois University, protested against its figures because the Census Bureau came up with only 2,542 students living in dormitories and other group residences such as rooming houses.

"We got the numbers from the university and their occupancy in April was over 6,800," said James P. Connors, the city's community development director. "We have all group quarters down as 10,473."

He said he didn't know how the Census Bureau missed so many students. "I have no idea," he says. "School was in session during the time we believe they went around."

On the other hand, Mattoon Mayor Roger Dettro criticized the Census Bureau for failing to count college students as residing at their parents' homes.

"This is highly unfair," he says. "This deletes from a community like Mattoon..." He says the city stands to lose more than $60,000 a year in state and federal funds because of an overall drop of 8.5 percent.

—In East Moline, Mayor Dennis Jacobs said the bureau counted 4,097 people living in 1,198 housing units in one township tract during 1970. This year, the bureau found only 33 people living in 12 housing units there, he said. The city later determined a Census Bureau computer had placed 1970 figures for an entire township onto a line reserved for a single tract.

In a subsection of that tract, the mayor added, census officials counted four housing units and said none were vacant — but tallied only two persons living in them.

City officials also allege severe undercounting of the city's Spanish-speaking population.

Officials in Milan, a suburb of the Quad Cities, were shocked to find the community lost 281 persons during the past 10 years even though it had been thought to be one of the fastest-growing towns in the area.

Then they learned that neighboring Oak Grove, which had just 618 residents in 1970 — had swollen to 2,579 persons in 1980. "We must have part of Milan's (population) in there," says Mary Bremner, village clerk and treasurer of Oak Grove.

Village administrator Steve Seiver said the Census Bureau counted 347 people living in one area that consists of an empty lot and an adjoining yard with a vacant house.

"It is unfortunate that the Census Bureau released preliminary figures with such gross inaccuracies," he said.

—In the Quad Cities area, citizens reported that they had been told stories by census takers who asked them to fill out a second form.

One census taker said the first form had been mangled by a computer.

Cities disclose census counts

CHICAGO (AP) — Because they are officially called "working figures," the U.S. Census Bureau has declined to release population figures for Illinois communities.

However, most cities in the state received the figures from the bureau in late July and have disclosed them publicly. Chicago and Jacksonville have not. Here is a compilation of available figures with the city, 1970 population, 1980 preliminary population and percent change:

Gasification plant construction scheduled to begin next year

By Dean Athans
Staff Writer

The construction of a $55 million coal gasification plant in Perry County just north of Jackson County will begin late next year, according to U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale.

"During its five-year construction, the plant will create almost 1,900 construction jobs," Steve Tackett-Hull, an aide to Simon, said this week. "After completion it will employ 450 permanent workers."

Tackett-Hull said although "co-gas" legislation has not yet reached the U.S. Senate for approval, it is expected to pass easily once it is out of subcommittee. The bill passed the House last month 334-61.

"The full Senate approved an energy bill recently which contained language that basically said it approves of both plants," Tackett-Hull said. "And Carter has said he would sign the bill to include both plants."

Last year the U.S. Department of Energy told Congress it would fund only one of the plant sites. But, Simon said in a press release, the endless delays in the Energy Department's decision and the feeling in Congress that both plants are needed prompted the House to approve both sites.

The co-gas plant is a "technological breakthrough," according to Tackett-Hull, and is needed primarily for demonstration and experimentation on the process of converting coal to natural gas and crude oil.

Simon said "unless something dramatic occurs" the plant should be built as scheduled. He added that its passage is "the biggest victory yet" in the project's five-year fight for approval.

Half of the state's clean-burning, low-sulphur coal mines are in a six-county region in Southwestern Illinois, according to a geological study by the Federal Systems Division of IBM. The study said that up to 700 million tons of Illinois' recoverable coal reserves are buried beneath Southern Illinois

Solar energy said to help mindset

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Use of solar energy in some form does more for people than reduce their utility bills, says a psychology graduate student. She says it seems to have positive psychological effects on them.

Jane Zimmerman, a psychology student at the University of Arizona, says that over the last year she made observations of nine families that use solar water heaters or house-heating systems.

"Solar energy seems to represent an approach to life," Zimmerman says. "It involves the values of independence and self-sufficiency. For many of these people, it is a symbolic means of taking personal responsibility for the energy situation."

Zimmerman says she found that many members of those solar-energy families were joggers, bikers or hikers. Many also practiced some form of meditation, and all of them recycled cans, bottles, newspapers and other products.

What she found with the solar-energy systems themselves was that people had problems, but were not as upset as would be expected.

New test allows doctors to predict when leukemia patients will relapse

BOSTON (AP)—For the first time, a new test allows doctors to predict accurately when patients treated for leukemia will relapse and suffer a new bout of the disease.

The test, given to people whose leukemia is in remission, spots cancerous cells in the bone marrow before they have multiplied and spread the disease throughout the blood stream.

"It can give advance notice to the physician that the patient may go into relapse three or four months from now," Dr. Potu Rao, a biologist, said in an interview. "It gives him time to take steps and make a preventive strike to head off that onset."

Doctors would then use traditional chemotherapy or drug treatment to battle the relapse, he said.

Rao developed the test, called the PCC technique, at M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston. A report on the first use of the technique was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. The report was written by several doctors connected with the institute.

Leukemia kills 16,000 Americans each year, but until now, doctors have not been able to predict how long victims will remain healthy once their disease goes into remission.

"The physician has no way of knowing whether the patient has been cured or is in temporary remission or whether the disease has become resistant to continued therapy and the patient is about to relapse," the doctors wrote.

Using the PCC technique, the doctors followed the progress of 19 patients whose leukemia was in remission. During the study, 14 of them relapsed, and the test accurately predicted the fate of 11 of these patients.

The doctors found that the test gave them an average of

Air conditioning to be turned on at Thompson Point

By Alan Sculley
Staff Writer

Thompson Point dormitories will have air conditioning in two weeks, barring any further problems with getting the air conditioning units working, Sam Rinella, director of housing, said.

Installation of the units, originally set for Aug. 1, was delayed because of water damage to high-voltage electrical cables during heavy thunderstorms in June and July. About 600 feet of cable had to be replaced, Rinella said.

The project was also delayed by a decrease in worker productivity caused by hot summer weather, Rinella said.

Air conditioning cables, running from an electrical substation south of Wright Hall on East Campus to Thompson Point, will be tested on Sept. 4 and 5 to see if they are functioning. Further delays could be caused if any of the cables fail to carry an electrical current. The defective cables would then have to be replaced, Rinella said.

Rinella said if the cables are operative, workers would then re-check the connector lines carrying electricity from the cables to the Thompson Point dorms.

The connector lines and air conditioning units have been tested recently and are working, Rinella said.

3½ months warning that the patients were about to suffer a relapse.

The test, still considered to be experimental, now takes two days to perform and is too complicated for the average physician to use. But Rao said the team is working on a simpler version with which doctors could spot the cancerous signs with dyes.

The PCC technique, which stands for prematurely condense chromosomes, allows doctors to see genetic material in immature bone marrow cells. The doctors discovered that healthy chromosomes are compactly constructed, while cancerous ones are more diffuse.

Leukemia, a cancer of the blood-forming tissues, is usually fatal. Overall, only about 20 percent of the victims survive for five years after the disease develops.

AIR FORCE ALWAYS NEEDS MORE LEADERS.

We're looking for pilots, navigators, messmen, engineers, math majors, people managers, doctors, scientists, journalists and more. And the Air Force ROTC program is a great way to get into a job like one of these which can help you improve your leadership ability and your professional competence.

As a commissioned officer in the Air Force, you can be proud of the role you play in your community and the contribution you make to your country's security. You know that you're doing a job of importance, a job with responsibility.

The Air Force ROTC program offers a way to help you achieve these goals. As an AFROTC cadet, you'll learn about leadership, management, and more. You'll learn about benefits of being an officer or later on, like an excellent salary, medical and dental care, housing and food allowances, and 30 days of paid vacation each year. You'll discover a whole new world, open to you in the Air Force. And you can get there through AFROTC.

Look into it right now. You'll be glad you did.

Special opportunities for BEAT MEMBERS. Stop in at 807 S. University (across from Woody Hall parking lot) or call us at 453-2481 today for an interview.

What's in it for you?

Textbooks. Shelves of them. And more shelves. Everything you'll need for the coming year of reading, writing, and arithmetic. All the required course materials and suggested readings. Accounting through Zoology, with the alphabet of knowledge in between. In one place, at one time. To make it easier on you.

Supplies. The ones you'd expect to find. Notebooks and pens, pencils and folders. And the ones you may not know about. Like the engineering supplies, the art supplies. It's all right there, so you can stock up when you buy your books. No running around to collect everything you need to start the semester. You're busy enough as it is.

Employees in University Bookstore aprons, who are there when you need them. And know the answers to your questions. They keep the shelves stocked. Keep the lines moving. Help you get through book buying as quickly as possible.

There's even prices that don't leave a hole in your pocket. Used books save you 25% and we have lots of them.

Master Charge and Visa may be used for any purchase at the Main Office or in the Supply Dept.

And it's nice to know that what you pay for books goes back into the operation of the Student Center. To help pay for the free coin return lockers, the TV lounges and Info Desk. It's one of the reasons the low prices of bowling and billiards stay low.

What's it all add up to? Convenience. Low prices and help when you need it. A return on your investment. Through the door of the University Bookstore. That's what's in it for you.
