Gubernatorial debate to be held at McLeod

By Vicki Olgeaty
Student Editor-in-Chief

Gov. James Thompson and his gubernatorial opponent Adlai Stevenson will hold one of four scheduled debates at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 5 in McLeod Theater.

The candidates agreed to the Carbondale site because of requests made by two SIUC students, according to Gayle Klam, vice president of the Carbondale League of Women Voters.

Klam said both candidates suggested Carbondale as a debate site to the League. "Apparently, the deciding factors were that they thought Carbondale was a good location and there were these two requests that showed student interest," she said.

The requests were made by Stan Irvin, student trustee, and Joan Bretsch, senior in political science, both of whom made the requests independent of the other.

"I feel there is a real need to get statewide events downstate," Bretsch said. "There are a lot of voters down here."

Irvin contacted both candidates' campaign organizations because he also feels the candidates "need exposure down here and the people need exposure to them."

"I'd also like to see students get more involved and aware," he said. "Something on campus of this magnitude will help educate students about what could happen over the next four years."

Irvin also suggested Jonesboro as a debate site, but he said the campaign offices were more receptive to the idea of Carbondale because of its central, convenient location.

The debate will be the third in a series of four and will be the only "head-to-head" debate, Klam said. Both candidates will answer questions from the audience for 35 minutes, and audience members will be handed notecards on which to write their questions as they walk in the door.

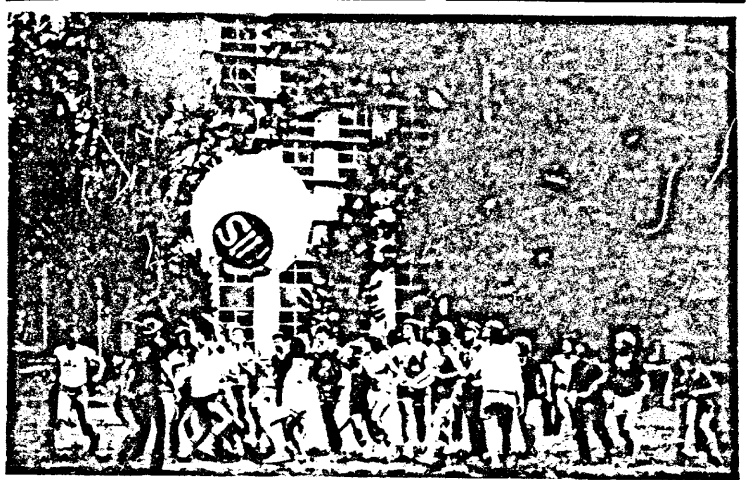

The cards will be given to the candidates after League members remove duplicate questions. The League wants to avoid repetition and ensure a variety of approaches and questions, Klam said.

Warehouse to be home for thousands of books

By Bob Bondurant
Staff Writer

A warehouse facility in Marion will become the home for thousands of old Morris library books this fall, thanks to Gov. James Thompson's approval of $1.6 million to purchase the Bracy building.

University administrators are busy with preparations to transfer the books from the library to the warehouse, which is 15 miles from the University, located at 201 N. Fourth St.

Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs, will be meeting soon with John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs to arrange funding for the transfer of the materials to the warehouse.

Transfer of the books will take place gradually, as funds become available, Guyon said. The money to pay for the transfer will probably be spread out over more than one fiscal year, with the money coming from the academic affairs budget.

Guyon estimated that the first transfer would cost $28,000.

Initially, there will be shelving for 60,000 to 65,000 volumes. The warehouse has the capacity to hold from 300,000 to 500,000 volumes, given sufficient funding, Peterson said.

The University began renting the building, formerly a grocery warehouse, in January, but no books have been moved there while funding to purchase the building was pending, Peterson said.

An ad hoc committee was formed last year to look at the feasibility of the project, he said, but now it is being reactivated to look at the proposals on moving the books and to set up the budget for operating the warehouse.

Only part of the warehouse is suitable for storing books, Guyon said. The other portion of the warehouse will be used for storage of other material.

60 grads affected

Tuition waivers canceled

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

About 60 graduate students got an unpleasant surprise on their Aug. 15 billing from the University.

Due to a gremlin in the computer system, some graduate assistants found their tuition waivers had been cancelled. Grad assistants are entitled to these waivers, said Dennis Leitner, associate dean of the graduate school, as part of their employment with the University.

"It's weird. We really don't know what the heck happened. All I know is it's messing up a lot of billings and making some of the grad students a little upset," he said.

Dan Mann, assistant director of student work and financial aid, said his department wasn't sure what the foul-up was either but "we're working on it." He said his department was made aware of the situation when students began calling his office demanding to know what had happened.

"We haven't determined what the problem is at this time. For the time being (the graduate students) should just relax."

Mann said he thinks the problem lies in the computer which handles the graduate assistant billing. The computer, he said, might have read the wrong "decision rules."

"The student must have at least six hours for the fall semester to qualify for the waiver. In the summer, they must have at least half of that. Apparently, the computer read only the summer hours and cancelled their waivers," Mann explained.

Leitner said graduate students whose tuition waivers were cancelled should call the Graduate School and leave their name and student number.

"If they don't tell us, it's likely we won't know about it," Leitner said.

According to Mann, the error will then be corrected on the Sept. 15 billing.

Gus says the University computer wasn't ready for summer to turn to fall, and it wasn't alone.

PLO guerrillas set sail from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Cheered on by their leaders and exhorted to conduct "merciless underground war" against Israel, some of the PLO's most radical guerrillas sailed from the port of Beirut Monday on a ship bound for South Yemen.

Both sides of the divided capital erupted into volleys of victorious gunfire as Moslem west Beirut saluted the third group of departing guerrillas, and residents of the Christian eastern sector celebrated the election of Bashir Gemayel, the rightist leader of Lebanon's biggest Christian militia, as president of Lebanon.

The trucks bearing the guerrillas to the port were delayed about an hour when a car bomb exploded a mile away and Palestine Liberation Organization security officers checked the convoy route for more explosives. No one was hurt in the blast.

The loading of the fighters onto the ship also was delayed while some turned over rocket-propelled grenade launchers, not covered by the U.S.-negotiated agreement that allows each departing guerrilla one pistol, rifle or machine gun.

Meanwhile, the Tel Aviv military command said its soldiers returned bazooka fire from PLO forces in east Lebanon Sunday night without taking any casualties. It also said those troops were shelled but did not know if the artillery fire came from PLO or Syrian positions in the area.

Israeli spokesmen in east Beirut and Israel's state-run radio said 620 PLO guerrillas were on the Cypriot passenger ship Alkyon, which sailed at 4:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m. EDT) for Aden, capital of Marxist-ruled South Yemen at the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula. But the PLO and Lebanon's state radio said 1,000 were aboard.

On Saturday and Sunday, nearly 1,500 guerrillas left west Beirut, where an estimated 7,000 PLO fighters had been trapped by Israeli troops who invaded Lebanon June 6.

Another 1,000 guerrillas are slated for sea evacuation to North Yemen on Tuesday.

In Limassol, Cyprus, hundreds of Palestinians shouting for revenge against Israel jammed the rails of the Cypriot ferry Sol Phyrne as it steamed off to Tunisia after unloading 21 jeeps that had delayed the ship's departure from Beirut Sunday.

Israel blockaded the Beirut port for six hours, saying the jeeps violated the evacuation agreement. But the ship was allowed to leave with 1,095 guerrillas after the United States said the jeeps would be unloaded in Cyprus, and the blockade was the only major hitch so far in the guerrillas' departure.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John Hughes said, "It is remarkable that it is proceeding as well as it is, given the conditions on the ground, the complexity of the operation and the number of parties involved."

He said the United States was concerned about the situation in eastern Lebanon, which he called "very volatile."

Israel calls the scheduled 14-day operation an "expulsion" and Prime Minister Menachem Begin has contended it will give his country a long period of Court rejects plea of parents to stop closing of Dixon Center

CHICAGO (AP) — A Cook County judge on Monday dismissed a challenge to a state plan to close the Dixon Developmental Center and transfer more than 800 persons who live there.

Circuit Judge Marjan P. Staniec ordered the case closed as a result of an opinion issued Friday by the Illinois Supreme Court.

However, Patrick Murphy, an attorney representing a group of parents who challenged the state's plan, said he will seek a preliminary injunction in federal court to block the transfer.

Murphy said he will take that action next month. He also said another lawsuit is pending in federal court challenging the state's plans.

The Dixon center, located about 80 miles west of Chicago, currently houses some 830 handicapped and retarded residents.

Earlier this year, Gov. James R. Thompson announced plans to convert Dixon into a prison.

Shortly after, the Dixon Parents Association, representing more than a quarter of the patients, filed suit to bar the transfer and was granted a preliminary injunction in May.

The state Supreme Court overturned the injunction on June 29 and Friday's opinion explained the action.

The justices said the Illinois Department of Mental Health met its statutory requirements in planning the transfer of the Dixon residents to eight other treatment centers in the state.

Part of the high court decision said: "Those who devise the relocation plan and those who administer it are qualified professionals whom the law vested with the authority to make such decisions."

Attorney Samuel Skinner, representing the governor, told the judge on Monday it was Thompson's position that the case was over because of the Supreme Court opinion.

Welcome awaits PLO in Tunisia

By Mort Rosenblum
AP Special Correspondent

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — This north African nation on Monday prepared a hero's welcome for about 1,000 Palestinian guerrillas who, along with PLO chief Yasser Arafat and his command structure, are expected to make Tunis their next unofficial capital.

A Cypriot ferry carrying 1,000 Palestine Liberation Organization fighters sailed from Limassol, Cyprus, Monday and was expected to arrive Wednesday. Later, 150 PLO leaders are to fly in from Damascus, the Syrian capital where the PLO has had administrative offices for years.

Arafat is slated to travel to Damascus at the end of the scheduled two-week PLO evacuation from Beirut, and then is expected to come here. "We expect him, but we have no details," government spokesman Abdallah Amami said.

Though separated from Israel by Egypt and Libya, Tunisia is headquarters of the Arab League, and, with free movement promised by the moderate government, it is a promising base for Arafat's campaign to create a Palestinian homeland.

But the guerrillas will be disarmed on their arrival and the government's warm welcome might cool if they carry out the threat expressed by some of their leaders to wage an underground war against Israel.

The PLO was driven out of Jordan, where it was accused of fomenting revolution, in 1970-71, and the government of Lebanon was eager to see it leave after 12 years in that war-torn nation.

As the ferry left Limassol for Tunis, hundreds of guerrillas jammed its rails, screaming for revenge against the Israelis who invaded Lebanon on June 6.

"We left our hearts in Lebanon and our souls in Palestine," the guerrillas shouted.

The PLO's expulsion from Beirut will leave its executive committee divided geographically, with the eight factions that make up the group spread through such countries as Tunisia, Iraq, Jordan, Syria, North and South Yemen, Sudan and Algeria.

Civil service union's contract demands ask for job bidding and pay adjustments

By Andrew Herrmanns
Staff Writer

The civil service union at SIU-C has presented its contract demands to university officials and a spokesman for the group said it's "now up to the University" to act on the requests.

Job bidding by seniority and the adjustment of pay scales to be more comparable to those of non-union "range sensitive employees" are two major demands the Civil Service Bargaining Organization is making, said Max Waldron, chairman of the contract and salary committee.

"These are the most important demands we're making at this time," he said. "As for actual salary demands, that's still in limbo."

Giving union employees who work on jobs that are on a 24-hour schedule the privilege of filling spots on other shifts is the objective of the seniority job bidding demand, said Waldron. The union is asking the University to allow present employees to fill vacancies on other shifts, rather than having them filled by new employees.

"If you worked on, say, the 4 to 12 shift for 15 years, then somebody on days retired and you wanted to take that position, as it stands now, you couldn't. And that's what we want," Waldron said. "There are people who are actually stuck working on shifts they don't want to be on while other shifts have vacancies and the University hires new people." Waldron said seniority should be the deciding factor in filling jobs.

"If someone has been working for 15 years and another person has been working for five years, and they both want to fill a position, then the one with the most seniority would get it," he said.

He said he did not foresee any problems with one shift having all the experienced personnel and another shift being depleted.

"That problem is a possibility, true. But a lot of people like working nights, for example, and that's fine with them. We just want to give people some initiative and some reward for seniority."

Waldron also said the union wants its members to have comparable pay scales with the "range sensitive employees." These employees are non-union people who work in the offices of administrators or are in sensitive positions where they have access to classified information.

"We're not asking for pay raises," he said. "We are striving to keep their salaries close to our own people in administrative positions. Up to this point, this has not been the case."

The civil service contract expired June 30. Waldron expects to meet with University officials again Friday. A contract compromise should be made by "at least the middle of September," Waldron said.

Thompson scrutinizing tax increase

CHICAGO (AP) — Governor James R. Thompson is taking "a closer look" at controversial legislation authorizing a property tax increase for Chicago schools, his aides said Monday.

Thompson was reported to have been considering vetoing the legislation, in part because the Chicago Teachers Union had refused to budge in its opposition to contract concessions.

"He's taking a look at some options," said Thompson press aide David Fields. "I don't know what he's going to do at this point. He just wants to take a closer look at this."

CTU President Robert M. Healey said it was a "hopeful" sign that Thompson took no action on the bill, which would grant the Board of Education power to levy a property tax.

Healey said he hoped the governor was considering "the good government aspect (of signing the bill) rather than the political aspect."

The bill would enable the school board to increase its tax rate by up to 46 cents per $100 of equalized assessed valuation to cover $57 million in pension costs it took over from employees as part of last year's contract.

Healey said had "nothing new" to report on progress in contract negotiations, which resumed Monday.

He said no decisions could be reached regarding the pension plan until the governor takes action on the bill. He added that the union considers unacceptable the board's proposed budget cuts.

Buzbee may try to save $352,600

Thompson vetoes $1.4 million for farm

By Bob Delaney
Staff Writer

Gov. James Thompson's veto of $1.4 million for agricultural projects at SIU-C has left Southern Illinois legislators steaming and SIU-C School of Agriculture officials disappointed.

Thompson approved $1.6 million for SIU-C to buy a Marion grocery warehouse for library storage but vetoed most of the Food for Century III project money approved by the legislature for SIU-C and the University of Illinois.

SIU-C's share had included $1,439,200 for livestock and teaching research facilities, many of which would have replaced old and outdated buildings and laboratories at the School of Agriculture farms.

SIU Chancellor Kenneth A. Shaw expressed disappointment with the veto of agriculture funds. State Sen. Ken Buzbee, D-58th District, said Friday the veto was "ludicrous" because of the pressing need for the projects. He said he and Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-58th District, would attempt to restore some of the funds during an override session in November.

Buzbee indicated he may concentrate on restoring $522,600 for rebuilding a dairy barn that was lost to fire, updating a beef center built in 1950 and constructing a swine center and horse shelter.

A $541,000 appropriation had been requested for construction of new beef animal feeding barns, better swine breeding facilities and a replacement poultry house. Another $345,600 was sought to bring an animal waste disposal site into compliance with federal regulations.

Buzbee, who sponsored the projects in the Senate, said they had been put off way too long.

William Doerr, assistant dean of agriculture, said the existing structures have outlived their normal lifetimes. Doerr said normal lifetimes would be about 15 years and most of the buildings were constructed in the mid-1950s.

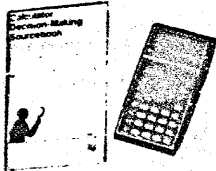

"Some rural farmers have more modern equipment than we do and we're supposed to be doing research," he said.

Richmond, who sponsored the projects in the House, said he would lead a strong effort to restore the funds.

Congress proposal on draft legislation more trouble than help

LEGISLATION HAS RECENTLY been proposed which would stop federal student aid to young men between the ages of 18 and 21 who have not registered for the draft, as required by law.

Supporters of the provision claim that this action would provide further incentive to the 674,000 not registered.

Detractors contend that the measure exposes those not registered to inequitable and unnecessary punishment while also creating an "administrative nightmare" for colleges and universities if they are to be responsible for enforcing it.

The legislation, which has been approved in different versions in the two houses, applies to the six major financial aid programs administered by the Department of Education. Both the Senate and House versions would ban Guaranteed Student Loans, Pell Grants, College Work-Study, National Direct Student Loans, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, and State Student Incentive Grants.

THE PROVISION, attached to the bill to authorize funds for the Defense Department for fiscal year 1963, was proposed by Rep. young men who have registered sorely resent the other 7 percent of Americans who have either intentionally or unintentionally chosen not to register.

Rep. Thomas F. Hartlett, R-S.C., said, "I think the American people fully expect their young men, if they are going to receive financial aid from this government, to at least abide by the laws of this land."

Both of the above statements bring some important questions to mind. First of all, why is this provision necessary? Eligible men who fail to register already face criminal penalties of up to five years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

SECOND, HOW IS this measure to be enforced? If the responsibility for enforcement falls upon the colleges and universities, serious delays in the processing of financial aid could be the end result. The financial aid offices of most schools are not capable, nor should they be, of acting as police agents of the federal government.

The paperwork alone would be monumental in cost and time in any attempt to enforce such legislation.

The third question raised by most groups opposing this provision is the question of discrimination. Critics contend that the provision applies only to middle-class and poor students who require financial aid to attend college, while not affecting male students not requiring financial aid, nor affecting female students at all. The biggest question is whether there is need for this legislation at all. Congress contends that the American public wants this legislation. But there are sufficient laws to deal with those who do not register. This new law is a bad idea and it should be scuttled.

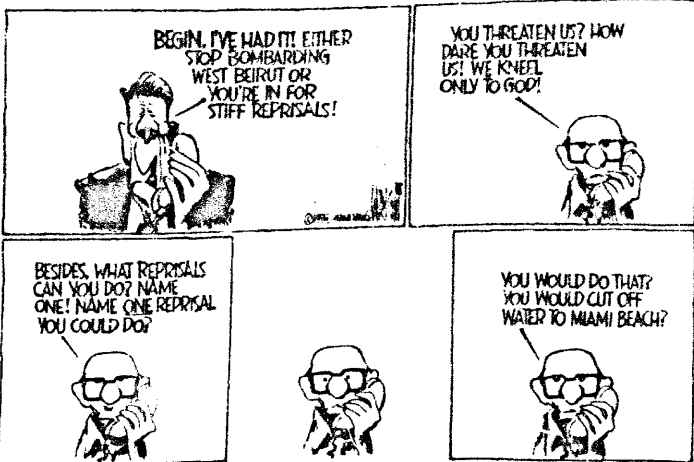

DE editorial is right to spotlight Salvador

I refer to the editorial, "Congress should stop all aid to El Salvador," in the Aug 3 issue of the Daily Egyptian.

The DE must be proud of a writer who not only knows "the United States is having the wool pulled over its eyes," but who also seems certain that anyone who believes that the government of El Salvador is making progress in human rights "is not living in the real world."

As one who has spent quite a bit of time in all sections of El Salvador, I should like to be enlightened with respect to the "real world." I might suggest that in the process of this enlightenment, he might consider an election held April in which a million "salvadoresnos" voted for their own future under the eyes of many foreign observers and under the guns of a foreign supplied death squad that does not believe in elections. — D. Lincoln Canfield, Professor Emeritus, Foreign Languages and Literatures.

Zionism has hidden and diabolic hold on American foreign policy

By Khalid M. Suleiman, Graduate Student, Journalism

America was meant to be a land in which freedom of speech would flourish and be protected by the law of the land. The founding fathers of this country so carefully framed the Constitution as to prevent the monopolization and concentration of information in a few hands. The enactment of the First Amendment was a consummation of a long and bitter struggle between the advocates of liberty and the proponents of tyranny. And so was the First Amendment the beating heart of freedom, the soul of American democracy, and most important, the unflinching weapon of the poor and the weak against the rich and the powerful.

The American Constitution emphasized the separation of powers in order to prevent the domination of the country and its various institutions by a single power. Power and responsibility went hand in hand.

Shockingly, democracy and liberty as were meant to be are no longer so. Recent years have witnessed the emergence and diabolic functioning of the barely-known but immensely dangerous invisible government of international Zionism. No other political, ethnic or religious group in the United States has such overwhelming power and control over the political destiny and economic life of America.

Please don't prematurely and hastily dismiss what I am going to reveal to you as anti-semitic propaganda for I am a semite myself. Truth, as Mark Twain once said, is sometimes stranger than fiction, but not quite so popular.

Let me take you back to the 1940s when the Zionists moved their headquarters from Europe to the United States. The Zionist cabal realized that England and France, which supported the Zionists in occupying Palestine from 1916 to 1947 had become second-class powers. World influence and leadership had moved to the United States.

Although David Ben-Gurion and Golda Meir (the first Zionist ambassador to the Soviet Union) wanted to establish an alliance with the Soviets, American Zionists stopped the consummation of that alliance. They feared this alliance would smear the Jewish community in the United States as communists, and told Ben-Gurion that the financial support for Israel could only come from the United States. They argued that in view of the life in America, the Zionists can control the political life in the United States while it is impossible to do so in the Soviet Union. The first step in controlling U.S. policy toward Israel was to control the media of mass information, brainwash the American people (by constantly reminding them of the holocaust as if the American people were guilty of its perpetration), control U.S. politicians, the U.S. Congress, the U.S. administrations, and even state governments. The objectives of this control were to guarantee the United States constant support for Israel, politically, militarily and financially.

As an extra constitutional power-block, international

Zionism has infiltrated and solidly consolidated itself in every major sector of American life. It has created a thought-control mechanism with very few analogues in history. The tight political control it arrogated, partly because of political naivete and reckless apathy on the part of the majority of the American people, is, though not very conspicuous, very hardly felt by politicians, religious and civic leaders.

International Zionism has the power and the will to dictate its wishes on Congress, the president and the public opinion and the implementation of foreign policy. The more power they arrogate, the hungrier they become. The more land they usurp and the more women and children they slaughter, the more brutal and barbaric they become.

The nature of Zionism is based on international control of power-politics and exploitation of American taxpayers, United Jewish Appeal, a tax-deductible Zionist machine for sending money to Menachem Begin, is a safe refuge for the Zionists not to pay taxes to the U.S. government. The more they exploit the American people, the more arrogant and defiant of the United States they become. The more F-15s and F-16s they obtain free from America, the more ungrateful they become, the more disrespectful they behave.

Then it is time to ask who stands for American interests. We should ask, as George Ball, former undersecretary of state asked, "How far dare we let Israeli paranoia determine American policy?"

Rabid bat found near Arena might have infected large area

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

A rabid bat was found Friday near the west entrance to the Arena by an Arena employee, according to Vicki Ashley of Jackson County Animal and Rabies Control.

This was the second time in 10 days that a rabid bat had been sighted in Carbondale. The previous sighting occurred on Aug. 10 along Giant City Road, Ashley said.

The bat found near the Arena was alive and slowly flapping its wings when first sighted, said Ashley, but died shortly after officials of Carbondale Animal Control arrived to take it to a laboratory for rabies testing.

The bat was taken to the State of Illinois Public Health Department Laboratory in Carbondale where tests conducted on the brain tissue of the animal confirmed rabies, she said.

Ashley said that any case involving a rabid bat is very serious because a bat is a mobile animal. "Because a bat is aerial, it has the potential to infect a very large area, whereas a dog or cat might only infect a small area," she said.

Bats and skunks are the most common carriers of rabies, an incurable disease which attacks the central nervous system of its victims, Ashley said.

There is no known cure for rabies. However, Ashley said, rabies is a frail virus that can often be killed by vigorously washing the wound with plenty of soap and warm water. After the wound has been thoroughly cleaned, a series of vaccine treatments are administered to the victim, she said.

The current program of preventive treatment utilizes a new diploid vaccine and a human rabies-immune globulin, which provide a combined immunity of approximately two years, Ashley said.

She said the new rabies treatment is considerably less painful than past Jack embryo treatment, which involved a lengthy series of painful injections.

Ashley said a person who has been bitten by what is believed to be a rabid animal should first clean the wound and then try to keep the animal in sight, so that it can be quarantined by Public Health Department officials. Ashley said it is an Illinois state law that any animal must be quarantined for a minimum of 10 days after it has bitten someone. "This allows animal control officials to conduct the necessary tests for rabies and to prevent the animal from infecting more persons or animals with the disease," she said.

Ashley said that there are several noticeable symptoms which tend to appear in rabid animals. They include personality changes, staggering, striking out and biting at imaginary objects, overreacting to noises, loss of appetite and difficulty in swallowing.

Ashley said that excessive salivation, or "foaming at the mouth" occurs in the final stages of the disease, when the animal is close to death.

Ashley said that the most important thing people can do to prevent rabies is to have their pets vaccinated against the disease. She urged that anyone who sights what appears to be a rabid animal to contact law enforcement officials immediately.

A photographic exhibit, "Harry Callahan," is being shown now through Sept. 15 at the University Museum's Mitchell Gallery.

Callahan is one of the most celebrated photographers in the nation. The touring show consists of 125 black and white prints produced by him between 1941 and 1976. All are from the Hallmark Photographic Collection and the show was organized by Hallmark Cards, Inc.

Callahan is currently the head of the photography department of the Rhode Island School of Design. His photographs are included in the collections of virtually every major museum in the world.

Devoted dance teacher leaves Carbondale and many friends

By Juliana Arastasioff
Staff Writer

Jackie Thompson is leaving Carbondale.

To many, her name may not be familiar. But to her students and friends, who make up a large portion of the dancers and dance enthusiasts in Southern Illinois, her departure represents the loss of a great friend, teacher and inspiration.

Thompson started teaching jazz dance in Carbondale five years ago after a stint in the world-renowned Katherine Dunham Dance Company. She is leaving this week to open a dance studio in Oakland, Calif.

Thompson said she started dancing in high school because she wasn't very communicative. "The only way to express myself, to bring myself out, was to dance. I could talk through the dancing," said Thompson.

Just before her high school graduation she auditioned for the Katherine Dunham Dance Company and School of Performing Arts and she received an eight-year scholarship.

"Three months after I auditioned for Miss Dunham, I was teaching in the East St. Louis public schools," said Thompson. "Miss Dunham believes in learning by doing, so I would have dance classes in the morning, go teach in the afternoon and then return for more classes with Miss Dunham. She believed that if you can teach children, you can teach anyone."

During her years with Dunham, she worked as a counselor for women in the company, as costume coordinator and as make-up coordinator in addition to dancing with the company.

After leaving the Dunham School, she moved to Springfield, where she opened the Thompson School of Dunham Technique and Allied Arts.

"Dunham Technique encompasses every form of dance imaginable," said Thompson.

Jazz dance instructor Jackie Thompson reflects on her future and on the students and friends she will leave behind.

"To that, I add love, that feeling that comes from deep inside when there is a blending and union of people — black, white or polka dot — who can work together and feel excitement and expression in dance."

In addition to teaching dance at the Eurma Hayes Center, John A. Logan College and SIU-C, Thompson worked for two years as activities director at Southern Manor Nursing Home. She has also worked with the Black Fire Dancers, the Quality of Life Services and numerous other organizations throughout Carbondale.

"When I am teaching, I am talking to each and every student, from my toes on up. I try to bring out the individual dancer in every student," Thompson said. "This kind of communication is very stimulating to me and it's so rewarding to see that you've reached someone.

"In this everyday living, you may be afraid of this or that, but when you dance, you can do anything you want to do, be anyone you want to be and no one can take that away from you. That is what I love most about dancing and that's what I try to communicate to my dancers."

Thompson said she is leaving Carbondale because it is time for her to move on. "Carbondale to me was a nice rest area where I could collect myself and develop as a teacher," said Thompson. "The amazing thing is that I have made so many friends through my teaching. Many people tell me that I've sparked their lives but they have really sparked mine and made me grow."

development. University activities will peak on Sept. 5, SIU Day, at the fairgrounds. Headquarters will be a reception-entertainment tent near the grandstand.

SIU-C administrators are expected to be on hand to visit and answer questions about the University. Coaches and players from various men's and women's Sahki teams also will join in for similar visits.

The SIU-C dome will be loaned to the National Coal Museum. The museum display will include a mine model, a slide-film and artifacts from old coal mines.

According to Terry Mathias, special assistant for university relations and development, the museum exhibit will then be more visible to the public.

"We feel coal is important to Southern Illinois," said Mathias, "and it will also help the museum get started."

The University is also participating in other ways. Serving as official hostess for the fair will be 20-year-old Tami Loring, a junior in elementary education.

The Marching Sahukis will perform at the World Trotting Derby Sept. 4. Faculty from the School of Agriculture will help judge livestock events during the fair.

"We want to maintain our presence at the fair," said Somit. "We'll simply be meeting our friends and showing our colors in different ways."

Rushen concert tickets on sale

Student Programming Council Consorts and the Black Affairs Council will present Patricia Rushen in concert at 8 p.m., Sept. 2, in Shryock Auditorium. Tickets go on sale Tuesday at the Student Center Central Ticket Office and are priced $10.50 and $9.50.

A keyboard artist, composer and vocalist, Rushen has expanded on her early jazz and jazz-fusion styles on the latest album of her solo career.

Opening for Rushen will be Gus Papeilis Fusion, who recently won the Midwest Music Exchange's Jazz Division competition.

In one way or another, SIU-C has been part of the Du Quoin State Fair for over 30 years.

This year, due to budget constraints, University officials came up with a way to beat the $20,000 operating cost of past years, and to perform a public service at the same time.

In recent years, the SIU-C exhibit has consisted mainly of a slide-tape show, accompanied by an audio presentation about the University. The exhibit has been shown in the University-owned dome on the fair grounds. SIU-C has produced dome-based events since the mid-1960s.

President Albert Somit said the University's participation in the 60th annual Du Quoin State Fair, which runs from Aug. 27 to Sept. 6, will consist of more "informal public activities."

Scholarship fund for Civil Service in works

By Bob Bendurant
Staff Writer

A scholarship fund may be set up this school year for all SIU-C civil service employee's dependents attending the University.

A survey was sent out last week to help define the scope of the fund by the Civil Service Employees Council committee overseeing the program, and will be collected next Friday, with the results to be given at the Sept. 1 meeting of the council.

The survey will help determine the rules for collection and disbursement of the scholarship funds, determine who would qualify for the scholarship and find out how many would contribute to such a fund, said Gary Auld, the committee's chairperson.

The scholarships will probably be limited to those students attending SIU in Carbondale or Edwardsville, and to undergraduate students, Auld said.

Auld said the survey would help in deciding whether the scholarships should be based on financial need, scholastic achievement or other criteria.

Auld said the program would go into effect with even a minimal amount of interest shown by the civil service employees.

"Even if we have to operate on a shoestring, even if the students receive a nominal financial award," Auld said, "the program would continue. He said that as time passed, more people would participate."

No minimal contribution to the fund will be set, Auld said. It is important to find out how many would contribute to the fund although they do not have any dependents who would receive aid, he added.

"As a unit, we can represent a significant fund raising effort," Auld said.

If each of the 1,837 civil service employees contributed $2 monthly, there would be enough money for 88 full tuition and fee awards on a full and spring basis, Auld said.

Students feeling more stress these days, says clinic intern

Deborah Goldstein
Student Writer

Frustration hits and anxiety increases. The pressure builds and motivation diminishes. Stress burnout has arrived.

A person suffering from minor stress burnout may experience weariness, exhaustion and anxiety due to excessive demands on one's energy.

But stress can be much worse. It can be a serious problem leading to emotional withdrawal, a nervous breakdown and sometimes suicide.

Stress burnout occurs when "you are overwhelmed by everyday situations and conflicts that may arise," according to Ken Skoff, an intern at the Clinical Center.

Skoff said students experience one of the highest levels of stress that a person can experience in a lifetime. High levels can also result from the death of a loved one, marital problems or a job.

He stated that peer pressure, particularly around finals week, contributes to stress.

"Stress burnout cases are low throughout the year, but usually peak at the end of a semester, during finals week," Skoff said.

Stress burnout among students is worse today than in the past, according to Skoff. Today's economic pressures add to the problem.

"Students' financial situations are more strained these days," he said. Student jobs are not readily available. Grants and scholarships have been cut.

"The change in lifestyle after graduation today is stressful," Skoff said. "Students do not only have to adjust to a new environment after they leave the University, they are concerned with whether they can even get a job."

Stress signs are different for everyone and it is important to recognize individual stress patterns, Skoff said.

Carol McDermott, Clinical Center counselor, agrees. "It is important to think about yourself and how you react to things," she said.

McDermott has encountered students who have experienced so much stress that their hearts began "beating so hard it got to the point where it was frightening."

"After you've had one of those attacks, you are determined never to have another one," she said.

But stress is not all bad.

"It's productive," McDermott said. "If you feel a little anxious and stressful about a test, you'll study a little harder."

The symptoms of stress burnout can be alleviated by organizing one's time, McDermott said.

"Burnout comes from the inability to say 'no,'" McDermott said. "You make up your mind to do things you enjoy doing and things you have to do, but you keep saying 'yes' to any number of requests and all of a sudden, they've accumulated."

Recreational activities may help put things in perspective. "Some types of recreation are therapy," McDermott said.

Time should be reserved for friends, work and solitude.

"Many students never have a half hour alone. They're either with a roommate or a group of friends. We all need time by ourselves to think," McDermott said.

Skoff said the "natural way" to deal with stress is to remove oneself from the conflict through self-relaxation techniques or a form of meditation, such as listening to music.

But when stress becomes so great that it immobilizes a person, counseling should be considered.

The Clinical Center, the Wellness Center and the Network Crisis Intervention program are available to those seeking help. The Clinical Center provides one-on-one sessions. Network has a 24-hour telephone service.

Lightning strikes Centralia couple

FAIRPLAY, Colo. (AP) — Jay Woolridge and Tanya Honecker, who had grown up together in Centralia, Ill., and were thinking about marriage, were riding a motorcycle together when a bolt of lightning killed him and critically injured her.

"I think they drove right into the lightning," said Ronnie Honecker, who was watching with his wife, Judith, as their 20-year-old daughter and her boyfriend were hit.

Ms. Honecker was at St. Anthony Hospital in Denver, and her parents were expected to decide Monday whether to remove her from life-support systems to see whether she can breathe on her own.

She and Woolridge, 18, had moved to Colorado earlier this year from Centralia with the Honeckers for what Honecker described as a new life for the family.

The couple were driving up to the Honeckers' subdivision home on Woolridge's motorcycle Saturday when the lightning struck.

Honecker said they were about 200 yards away when he felt the hair on his arms and head stand up.

"I don't think they had a chance," Honecker said. "You couldn't see the lightning because we were so close."

Key to campus politics success is persistence, says GSC chief

By Robert Green
Staff Writer

Paul Matalonis, a veteran of student government for the past three years, reflected for a moment before revealing the main thing he has learned in his years in office.

"I've found that, with a lot of hard work and persistence, things can get done."

The new president of the Graduate Student Council has seen his efforts result in a number of accomplishments which, he says, have helped to restore student respect for student government.

Matalonis, a second year law student, helped found the Maverick Party in 1980 and was the Undergraduate Student Organization president in 1980-81. Last year he served as a GSC representative.

His student government activities have kept him busy for the past few years, but Matalonis, who has attended SIU-C since 1976, says he once shared in the apathy of students regarding student government.

"I used to complain about things here and about the failure of student government to do anything," he said. "But one day I was sitting in El Greco's reading the paper and I thought, 'Instead of complaining, why not do something?' I helped put together the Mavericks and we ran. We all won."

The Mavericks have since become a dominant force in student government politics here, but Matalonis said that the party had humble beginnings.

"We got together about 20

Paul Matalonis... "We students can have some input."

people who had no prior experience in student government," he said. "There were a lot of interesting people from a wide variety of departments.

Matalonis cited a number of accomplishments during his term as USO president. He said he is especially pleased about helping initiate the Carbondale Cleanup Day.

"The annual Cleanup Day has done a lot to help relations between the community and the University," he said. "After the disturbances here in the early '70s there was a gap in relations that still exists, but we have tried to narrow that gap."

Other major accomplishments noted by Matalonis during his term were the printing of the student telephone directory and the idea of banning the sale of alcohol in glass bottles during Halloween.

Matalonis said his main goal as the new president of the Graduate Student Council will be to emphasize access to education. He said he hopes to work with other student leaders to maintain a unified voice so that, "when the scrambling for funds goes on, we as students can have some input."

"The easiest way to make up budget deficits is to raise tuition and fees, and we hope we can make that a difficult task by forcing the administration to be accountable," he said.

Matalonis said an issue that will be of particular concern to him during his term will be extending more financial aid to graduate students.

Repair work to slow traffic

Traffic at the intersection of U.S. 51 and East Grand will be slowed a bit due to an Illinois Department of Transportation resurfacing project scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Bill Hubenthal, resident engineer for the department, estimated that the work at East Grand would begin sometime this week. The traffic flow will be maintained at all times throughout the one-week, $43,600 project, Hubenthal said.

"We'll have one lane closed while we're doing the resurfacing," he said, "but we'll funnel the traffic around the work."

The project, which has been sub-contracted by E.T. Sizemonds Construction Co. of Carbondale, is part of a series of resurfacings in Carbondale, Hubenthal said.

Other areas to be resurfaced are University Ave. from Walnut to Elm Streets and the section of West Main in front of the Carbondale Savings and Loan Association.

Pac Man in the Navy? NAVTAG trains forces

By R.D. Gersh
Associated Press Writer

NORFOLK, Va. — The Navy's newest war game is just that — a computer contest destined for use aboard ship and likened to Pac-Man, although it doesn't flash, zing, beep or chomp on the bad guys.

Opposing forces can be sunk, shot down or evaded only by making the same tactical decisions — identifying the enemy, maneuvering the ship, firing weapons — that would have to be made in case of a real war.

But the players say the training device called NAVTAG — for Navy Tactical Action Game — seems to be as addictive as its arcade kin.

"It's designed to train junior officers in tactics," said Lt. Cmdr. Bob Owen, chairman of the team testing the computer's educational effectiveness. "They can experience the type of things they do at sea in this."

Adm. Thomas Hayward, the former chief of naval operations, gave orders to "capitalize on the Atari mentality," Owen said, and NAVTAG was quickly born from a board game already used for training.

Designed to fit on a wardroom table, the final models are due for delivery in November and scheduled to be placed on all surface ships, Owen said.

NAVTAG comes with three computer terminals — one for the blue, or U.S. player; one for the red, or Soviet combatant; and a third for the "game director," who advises, referees, scores and scrambles the program to make things more interesting.

The game doesn't train technical or mechanical ability — how to drive a ship or operate its systems. It tests tactical thought.

The computer gives the players essential information on video display terminals in written or graph form — what their radar targets are, how much fuel their aircraft have — and the players have to decide how to deploy their ships, weapons and aircraft. The computer digests their orders and tells them the results.

The information is real, down to the ship's names, the range and accuracy probability of weapons and call signs of aircraft squadrons.

The programmed scenarios have ships fighting ships, fleets against fleets, ships vs. submarines, air attacks and patrol boat raids.

In the simplest program, "Blue" operates the destroyer Charles F. Adams; "Red" runs a modified Kashin-class vessel, an equivalent Soviet ship.

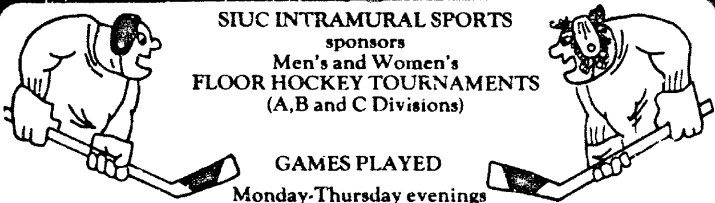

It's wartime. The Adams is sailing the Mediterranean to meet a battle group southwest of Crete. Blue knows neutral merchant ships are in the area and has orders to engage Red vessels only if "such engagements are adjudged winnable." Red is patrolling the area, prepared to fight enemy ship.

The players can ask the computer what visual or electronic targets they have on radar. They can turn detecting systems on and off. They can maneuver the ship and fire up its boilers. They can launch and recover aircraft. They can load and fire weapons. They can find out if a target was hit and what damage it suffered.

"They're practicing that drill so they will be capable of considering those same things in real life," Owen said. "We play hot war. We don't play rules of engagement. We operate in a cold war environment every day at sea."

Owen has tested the computer system on East Coast naval bases, with everyone from four-star admirals to enlisted men. Players were quizzed on their knowledge of their vessels' and opposing ships' capabilities before and after playing, and "the average number of correct answers goes from 13 to 18 out of 25," he said.

"And we've found that it's a lot of fun. An awful lot of people find it just as addictive as Pac-Man," he said.

24,000 enrolled at SIU-C; figure close to last year's

By Bob Bondurant
Staff Writer

Approximately 24,000 people will be known as SIU-C students this fall, a number more or less equal to last year's figure.

Fewer registrations have been canceled this year than in the last four fall semesters, according to Roland Keim, associate director for records and registration in the Office of Admissions and Records.

Keim said that only 1,579 registrations were canceled this fall, compared to 1,650 a year ago, 2,578 two years ago and 1,962 in the fall of 1979.

Keim said the number of cancellations may have dropped because students are becoming familiar with the billings and receivable system initiated by the University a year ago.

Although the official count of enrollment will not be known for two or three weeks, enrollment is expected to be about the same as last fall, said Harold Richard, director of institutional research and studies.

Richard said the figures indicated that those students who needed financial aid were able to get it. He also said the state of the economy may have forced more people to come back and others to postpone graduation.

WORKERS FROM E.T. SIMONDS Construction Co. resurface Lincoln Drive as part of a $450,000 campus-wide project. The work, which began earlier this summer, will cover about 7,000 feet of road and nine parking lots when completed. In addition to the resurfacing, sub-surface draining and "weeping" tiles were added, according to SIU-C Site Planner Duane Schroeder. Schroeder said that this system should keep the roads dry and increase the blacktop's life span. Funding for the project came from the sale of bike and car permits, fines and penalties and campus parking meters. Only a few parking lots in outlying areas remain to be completed.

POLICY CHANGE

STUDENT HEALTH PROGRAM EMERGENCY BENEFIT

Beginning Fall Semester, 1982, the $10 emergency room charge will be discontinued for students who visit the emergency room with TRUE EMERGENCIES (medical trauma/medical crisis).

STUDENTS WHO VISIT THE EMERGENCY ROOM FOR NON-EMERGENT MEDICAL CONDITIONS CAN EXPECT THE HEALTH SERVICE TO PAY $30 OF THE BILL FOR THAT VISIT AND THE REMAINDER OF THE BILL TO BE THEIR RESPONSIBILITY.

The determination of the nature of the visit will be the responsibility of the emergency room physician.

Radiation investigation at U of I held up

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Investigation of an X-ray accident at the University of Illinois is being complicated by the fact that employees involved took more than two days to report it.

"We were caught by surprise," Hector Mandel of the UI Division of Environmental Health and Safety said.

Mandel said the delay in reporting the accident "makes things much more difficult for us. It just puts more time between what happened and when we could talk to them. It's harder to remember."

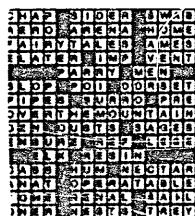

If they had called immediately, he said, officials also might have been able to determine the radiation level in the nuclear physics laboratory.

Six people were in the lab when a linear accelerator produced and released X-rays Aug. 13. A warning monitor alerted the people — five UI employees and the girl friend of one of them.

Mandel said school officials realized there had been an accident the following Monday when they read a note on the blackboard saying there were high radiation levels around the machine.

Initial blood tests showed no abnormalities, according to Dr. Laurence Hursh of the campus health center.

Variety of counseling services offered by Synergy program

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a two-part series on crisis intervention agencies.

By Michele Iman
Staff Writer

ANOTHER ORGANIZATION THAT PROVIDES crisis intervention is Synergy.

Synergy is a 24-hour crisis intervention and counseling agency. Bill Vollmer, administrative coordinator, said. It provides peer counseling, alcohol and drug abuse counseling, emergency food, transient assistance and emergency housing on occasion, he said.

"The biggest complication that people deal with is the lack of support in the environment," Vollmer revealed. "We provide support to an extent that's possible from someone who is not a close relation or friend."

The 24-hour hotline calls are mostly problems of coping and relationships dealing with transitions, Vollmer said.

"We get suicide calls about once a week in which suicide is considered a significant alternative."

During the academic year, Synergy handles 100-150 crisis calls a month, both from phones and walk-ins, John Holt, emergency services coordinator said.

"We probably see about that many more people who come in for other things that are not crises, such as emergency food and transient aid," he added.

Emergency food is provided for Carbondale residents, but "we don't feed anybody here," Vollmer said. Walk-ins are supplied with cans of food.

"We sometimes provide gasoline, bus tickets and food on an emergency basis for people who are transient and run out of money," Holt explained. Emergency housing is available for a fee.

"We used to do a lot of that," Holt said. But the facilities, which are located upstairs, have been cut back.

"If we assess them (the clients) to be in a crisis situation or feel they are in need of supervision or pressured at home, they can stay," Holt said. Housing is $10 a night for those who walk in, he said.

SYNERGY HAS A GREAT deal of expertise in drug information and education, Holt said. In Synergy's early days, (it's now in its 13th year of existence), there was a heavy orientation toward illicit drugs counseling, Holt said. Synergy was mostly involved with drug counseling, but now it has broadened to crisis intervention.

Because of the previous heavy focus on drugs, many people who work at Synergy have first-hand experience with people who have had drug problems, Holt said.

"The agency has always had a drug focus," Holt said. "We train all our volunteers in the Physician's Desk Reference and other manuals of prescription drugs that are used by doctors."

There are two professionals working at Synergy, but 85 workers are volunteers, said Vollmer, who has a Masters' degree in Rehabilitation Counseling. There are 40 volunteers who work in crisis intervention, answering phone calls and dealing with people coming in.

"Our first response is to be supportive, and we believe you don't have to be a professional to do that," Vollmer said. "The assumption we make is that everybody has the ability to help another person. That ability needs to be developed."

People that are not considered for volunteer work are those "who are rigid in their approach to others," he added.

"Several training programs are held each semester to equip volunteers to deal with various problems they may encounter," he said. Communication skills, crisis intervention techniques and human relations are taught.

Many volunteers are recruited by personal contact with other volunteers, according to Vollmer.

"We do some active recruiting," Chris presentations at SIU-C, handbills, news releases to local papers, and public service announcements are some of the recruitment strategies, he said. SYNERGY IS AFFECTED by budget cuts, Vollmer said. 40 full-time people working were cut by 75 percent in 1980.

"One and a half years ago we had 44 full-time people working here. Now we only have two full-time and two part-time." He added that seven or eight CETA workers were dropped.

"Tangerous Drugs has been phasing out funds but Carbondale township government provided new funding last year," he said. The Illinois Dangerous Drugs Commission provides grants on a contractual basis to private non-profit agencies.

"United Way has been real helpful with an increase last year," he said.

All of Synergy's services operate on the philosophy of providing non-judgmental support in a relaxed atmosphere, Holt said.

"If a client has problems that Synergy is not equipped to handle, the staff will make referrals to other agencies, Holt said.

Instructor in Bangkok on grant to teach abroad

Michele Inman
Staff Writer

William S. Turley, associate professor of political science at SIU-C, left for Bangkok, Thailand in mid-July to lecture and conduct research after being awarded a Fulbright grant.

The Fulbright grant is administered through the Council of the International Exchange Scholars, said Tom Saville, International Opportunities Adviser, Office of International Education. There are two levels of the grant, Saville said. Culturally qualified candidates at the senior level apply directly to the Council for the International Exchange of Scholars, while graduate student candidates of the junior level must apply through the university, Saville said. He said that a special committee for this grant is located in the Office of International Education.

These awards are for certain countries, and certain situations within these countries," Jared H. Dorn, assistant director of International Education said.

The grants, which were established in 1946 under congressional legislation inroduced by former Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, are awarded according to the professional qualifications, training, academic rank, various accomplishments, and reputation as a teacher or scholar, Saville said. He added that generally a doctorate degree is required.

"The grants are to encourage the exchange of benefits between the United States and other countries, Saville said. "You contribute something to the host country," he said.

Turley is now a John F. Kennedy visiting professor of American Studies in the faculty of political science at Chulalongkorn University, according to a letter written by him to the Political Science department at SIU-C. He teaches U.S. foreign policy to undergraduates and also lectures to other classes, according to the letter. He will deliver a public lecture on Indochina and problems for U.S. and Thailand foreign policy which the John F. Kennedy grant foundation of Thailand will publish.

Turley will be back next fall to continue lecturing here at SIU-C.

Variety of religious viewpoints preached near Student Center

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

People can frequently be seen reading from the Bible and shouting about God to those who pass through the doors of the Student Center. People react in different ways to this "preaching". Some people listen, some sit and talk, some hurry past and ignore it.

"They don't have to listen. I'm giving them the opportunity," said Dan Slack, 22, a preacher from the Maranatha Christian Center 715 S. University.

"People will get upset by Christianity, not for any other reason than that their spirit is calling them," he said.

Slack said people from different churches speak at the Student Center. The church that he represents is a campus organization and a few different people from his church speak outside the Student Center, Slack said.

"I spread the word of God as Jesus told all people to do," he said.

Jim Lewis, director of the Maranatha Christian Center, who also can occasionally be found speaking outside the Student Center, said, "The University is a place for the exchange of ideas. I get a number of varied responses to my preaching. If they reject the gospel, it's not personal to me. It's Jesus they reject."

Gwen Olds, 19, SIU-C student in court reporting, said, "It doesn't bother me. I'm usually in a hurry on my way to classes and I don't pay any attention to them."

"I don't care about any religious nonsense," said a middle-aged woman who abruptly turned and walked away toward Paner Hall.

"If you believe, of course, you enjoy it. If you don't believe, it would bother you," said Selma Tong, 21, of computer science.

"They are always screaming," said Charlene Gulleage, 22, of marketing. "They don't seem to be bothering anyone, but I have heard people say they think it should be done somewhere else."

"The fact that it is public property makes it an even better place for it," said Lewis. "We have the freedom of speech."

"I've committed my life to doing the Lord's will," Slack said, "and I believe God is calling me to do this. Some of what I say is persuasion and some is praise."

Diana Munoz, 19, marketing, said, "I think they want to help people by telling everybody what they believe. I talked to one of them and he told me about their group. It's a different life."

A middle-aged man said he thought that most of the speakers stick to the religious theme, but that he really wasn't sure about what they say.

"I think they are trying to get more people into religion," he said. "I don't feel they are imposing on me."

"Blessed are the feet of those who bring good news," Lewis said. "Gospel means good news. I've been preaching at the Student Center for about six months to a year. It has given me a new heart and a new life."

Slack said that the first time he "preached" was more than a year ago and he was scared. However, he says he now just stands up and starts to talk.

"I pray to God about what to talk about," he said. "Some days I just read from the Bible."

Slack said he tries to speak at the Student Center about once or twice a week, depending on his schedule. In the fall, he said that he will probably go a little less often, but that he will continue going.

"Like the mailman, we will be there in any weather," he said.

CONTEMPORARY POLAND: PROCESSES AND PARADOXES

A Course in Political Sociology

For almost two years the political crisis of Poland has been attracting attention all around the world. Yet, for the most part, studies of Polish affairs are very unsystematic. In the Fall semester, the department of Sociology is focusing its course in Political Sociology on contemporary Polish society. The course will be taught by Bronislaw Misztal, a visiting faculty member. Dr. Misztal is from Poland and is widely experienced in Polish politics as a participant and a scholar. This course combines the insider's understanding with theoretical analysis of major social processes that appeared in Poland since 1945 and culminated in the 1980 uprising. The course is cross-listed with the department of Political Science.

Campers given computer lessons

By Jay Small
News Editor

Computers. Their sophisticated controls can be frightening. Their unending logic can be frustrating. But their widespread capabilities can be very fascinating. The fascination shows in the faces of high-school-age participants in summer computer camps at SIU-C... but the fear and frustration are virtually nonexistent.

The camps, entitled "Computers and Computer Programming in Basic," were sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education. High school students from all over the state received individualized instruction with computer terminals at Faneer Hall.

One introductory camp and one intermediate camp, each five days in length, were run this summer. The intermediate camp ended Friday, marking the third year of the program's existence, according to Marie Malinauskas, program coordinator.

The program originally called for three camps over the summer, Malinauskas said. The first introductory camp, slated for June 6-11, was canceled because of late school closings in Illinois.

"Because of all the snow days school was still in session when we wanted to have the first camp," she said.

The introductory camp, which was held Aug. 8 through 13, was designed for students with a high interest, but little or no experience with computers, Malinauskas said. The intermediate camp was available for students who had attended the basic camp, or who had acquired some knowledge of computers in classes at their schools.

Two applications for the camps were sent to each high school in the state, Malinauskas said. Though the returns were widespread, many of the 45 students who attended the two sessions were from within a 60-mile radius, she said.

Lowell Carmony, associate professor of mathematics and computer studies at Lake Forest College, directed the camps. He said the greatest benefit available to campers through the program was the opportunity to learn to program computers.

"Programming is a very exact, very logical process," he said. "That type of thinking is something that some people have trouble understanding."

"These students get a real sense of accomplishment when they finally write a program correctly. It's exciting," Carmony said.

Carmony said the growing importance of computers makes it necessary to start teaching the devices to youngsters early.

"Some experts are advocating introduction of computers at the elementary school level," he said. "At the present, the introductory course in computers at a lot of universities could probably be taught at high school instead."

"Computer programming belongs at the high school level. The equipment is getting more affordable for school systems. The problem is finding qualified instructors," Carmony said.

Tim Marks, 16, of West Salem, said his high school had computers, but no computer class. He said he learned about computers in three years at the camps and on his own.

"My 8th-grade principal told me about them. He persuaded me to get involved with computers," Marks said. "I am still considering computers as a career."

Marks said the computer revolution has affected people more extensively than they know.

"In a way, it's already started. A lot of things we all have at home are computers, of a sort, and a lot of people don't even know it," he said. "The time will come when everyone will have a home computer."

BECOME A 4-LETTER MAN.

Why... is a lot of college men and women becoming leaders in Army ROTC? Probably because Army ROTC is full of the kind of people other people go out of their way to meet.

ROTC students tend to be high achievers who are interested in more than their studies. They're popular students... with a serious side. How else do you have a great time?

In other words, when people join Army ROTC they often meet people a lot like themselves.

For more information, contact your Professor of Military Science.

New archbishop prepares for installation

CHICAGO (AP) — Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin spent Monday — his first full day in his new home — out of the public eye, preparing for a week-long celebration of his installation as leader of the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese.

Bernardin, former archbishop of Cincinnati, arrived on Sunday to take over his new role as spiritual leader of the Chicago area's 2.4 million Catholics.

The archbishop says he is coming to Chicago with only one purpose: "To proclaim the Lord and his gospel, to be a good pastor ... and to build up a vibrant community of faith."

His 77-year-old mother, Marie, has moved to Chicago to be with her son. Bernardin, 54, had no public activities on his schedule for Monday and was preparing privately for the upcoming services in the Holy Name Cathedral rectory, archdiocese spokesman Bernard Hanley said.

Bernardin will officially assume the role of Chicago's seventh archbishop on Tuesday when he takes canonical possession of the archdiocese. The installing prelate at the liturgy will be the Most Rev. Pio Laghi, apostolic delegate to the United States.

The Very Rev. John R. Keating, who has acted as temporary administrator of the archdiocese since the April 25 death of Cardinal John P. Cody, will read a letter from Pope John Paul II appointing Bernardin archbishop.

Bernardin will then preach his first homily to a gathering of priests from the Chicago area.

On Wednesday, church and other religious leaders from across the nation will gather in Holy Name for the installation Mass.

Bernardin, after having received his staff, called a crozier will sit in the cathedra — the chair of the archbishop. That tradition dates back to the early centuries of Christianity in which bishops would preach from the cathedra. The chair represents the teaching authority of Bernardin, who is appointed by the pope as the church's official teacher.

Bernardin will then preach a homily and give his first episcopal blessing as archbishop.

On Thursday, Bernardin will celebrate his installation with the religious brothers and sisters of the archdiocese and greet them at a reception following a morning prayer. That evening he will lead an evening prayer session for more than 400 deacons and their wives.

Because many permanent deacons are Hispanic, Bernardin will sing a psalm prayer in Spanish.

On Friday, various employees of archdiocesan agencies will join Bernardin in celebrating the Eucharist.

The installation festivities will culminate on Sunday with a people's Mass at Grant Park, the same lakefront setting in which the pope was greeted by hundreds of thousands in his visit to the city in 1979.

A picnic will follow the Mass. Bernardin replaces Cody, who died at age 74 after heading the city's archdiocese for nearly 17 years.

The actual head-to-head debate will fill the second half of the program. "It's the only one we know of the four debates where they will debate, question and argue each other," Irvin said.

During the first debate of the series, scheduled for Aug. 30 in Peoria, the candidates will also respond to audience questions. They will respond to questions from a panel of four journalists Sept. 10 in Chicago, Klam said.

Major-party candidates from all statewide offices, as well as Thompson and Stevenson, have been asked to participate in the fourth debate on Oct. 23 in Chicago, Klam said.

Because of the limited seating in McLeod Theater, only about 500 people can attend the debate in Carbondale. Shryock Auditorium, which seats 1,239, cannot be used because it has been booked for Oct. 5, Irvin said.

Klam said tickets will be required but will not be available until after Aug. 30, and as many as 200 tickets will be distributed by mail to the general public on a first-come, first-served basis.

"The ticket distribution system is unfortunate," Irvin said. "The biggest problem is the limited number of tickets."

Another 100 tickets will be distributed by the Graduate Student Council, the Undergraduate Student Organization and Irvin.

It hasn't been decided how these tickets will be distributed. Irvin said it could be by lottery or also on a first-come, first-served basis. "I'd like to give anyone interested an equal chance to get tickets," he said.

UAW reopen talks with Deere to hammer out new contract

MOLINE (AP) — Negotiators for the United Auto Workers and Deere & Co. reopened talks here on Monday aimed at hammering out a new contract for more than 28,000 union employees at plants in six states.

Neither side disclosed bargaining goals but union officials are sticking by earlier statements that they do not favor any concessions. Deere officials have refused to discuss the contract, which will replace one expiring Oct. 1.

The new contract would cover 28,930 union employees at 10 factories and six parts distribution centers in six states.

The current average pay of a typical Deere factory worker is $20.41 an hour, including fringe benefits but not including overtime pay, according to a background statement provided earlier this month by the company.

That figure includes $13.40 per hour in straight-time earnings.

Three years ago the average pay, including fringe benefits, was $14.67 per hour, according to the statement. That included $9.90 per hour in straight-time pay.

When contract talks opened earlier this month, UAW President Douglas Fraser noted that Deere has had average after-tax earnings of $229 million to $330 million between 1978 and 1980.

He also noted that the company made $1.6 billion in capital expenditures and said this induced the firm is financially healthy.

Fraser said Deere was the "healthiest" company economically" he had dealt with in recent months.

However, Deere reported profits for the first quarter of this year were down 72 percent from the same period last year, and profits for the second quarter were down 96 percent. The company said it lost money on machinery manufacturing, with insurance and finance profits providing the profit edge.

Fraser and the union's top negotiator, Stephen Yokich, UAW agricultural implement department vice president, said they don't expect a strike. Both said they hope a strike vote isn't even needed.

Twelve-year-old Arkansas boy admits fatally stabbing friend

SPARKMAN, Ark. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who admitted stabbing a playmate to death was described as an "all-American kid" who had played on the same baseball team as his victim.

The boy who admitted to the stabbing had recently seen a horror movie containing graphic scenes of murders, police said. But Deputy Prosecutor Tommy May said he didn't believe the movie led to the killing, although he said he would stop taking the cable service that showed the movie "Friday the 13th."

Police and the victim's father declined Monday to discuss what impact the movie may have had on the youth.

Edward Johnson, 43, father of victim Eric Daniels, 12, said he had no idea about a motive for the slaying. Daniels was killed as he and the other student played in the football bleachers at Spartan Junior High School.

Johnson said the boys were close friends.

"They played baseball together all through the season, played on the same all-star team," Johnson said.

Asked about punishment if the boy charged in the stabbing is convicted, Johnson said: "That's not for me to say. That's strictly left up to the law."

On Friday, a judge placed the accused youth in the South Arkansas Youth Center at Magnolia. He was not identified because of his age. Under Arkansas law, a boy was charged with delinquency.

State Medical Examiner Dr.

Fahmy Malak said Monday Daniels died after being stabbed three times in the back. He said the stab wounds punctured Daniel's lungs. Malak also said the youth had been cut twice around the neck, but that the wounds were superficial.

Daniels, who was to be the quarterback of the junior high football team, was stabbed with a knife with a 4 1/2-inch blade, which was recovered by police.

May, who will prosecute the seventh grader, described the youth as an "all-American kid."

"It just broke my heart when I saw him Friday," May said Monday.

May said no court appearance has been scheduled for the boy, who is charged in the stabbing as a delinquent and is undergoing emotional tests.

peace.

The PLO repeatedly has claimed a political victory in Israel's failure to storm west Beirut during the three-month siege, and residents of the Moslem sector on Monday gave the departing guerrillas the same hero's sendoff accorded their comrades during the weekend.

As the convoy wound through the shell-shattered streets, crowds of women chanted in ululating Arabic and children held their hands aloft in "V" victory signs. The volleys of machine-gun fire were so steady they sounded like a crowd stamping wooden stadium bleachers.

The guerrillas — most from George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and Nayef Hawatme's pro-Moscow Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, two of the most radical factions of the PLO — had assembled in the west Beirut sports stadium and both Habash and Hawatme were on hand.

The men hugged and kissed their leaders, chanting "With blood we defend you, Palestine," and brandishing unloaded submachine guns with photographs of PLO chief Yasser Arafat on the barrels.

In an interview on the PLO's Voice of Palestine radio, Salah Khalaf, the PLO security chief code-named Abu Iyad, vowed a "merciless underground war" against Israel.

Khalaf, reputed mastermind of the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the 1972 Olympics in Munich, declared:

"Our underground fighters will penetrate Israel from all directions. The world will witness in the coming days that kind of action that will make Menachem Begin's hair stand straight up."

For the first time since the guerrillas began leaving, victorious gunfire also echoed through Christian east Beirut — to celebrate the election of the 34-year-old Gemayel as Lebanon's seventh president in 59 years of independence from France. He succeeds President Elias Sarkis, whose term expires Sept. 23.

Gemayel, whose 8,000 Christian militiamen fought a PLO-leftist alliance in the 1975-76 civil war, was elected on the second ballot by a vote of 57-4 with five abstentions. There are 92 parliament members, 51 of them Christians, and Gemayel's supporters had trouble beating a Moslem boycott to rally the required quorum of 62.

In a broadcast on the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio, Gemayel called for "a new era of peace."

Business fraternity tops in the nation

By Anita Jackson
Staff Writer

SIU-C's chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity, has been named No. 1 in the nation for the first time in 10 years, according to Wilson Loch, president of the fraternity.

Loch said the fraternity was chosen by the national chapter because of its performance last spring and fall in the categories of finance, general administration, membership, professional programs and scholarship. Each category is worth 20,000 points and the fraternity that achieves 100,000 points is named No. 1, he said.

Loch said the group has been socially as well as academically active. They have participated in the March of Dimes and have distributed student directories at the Student Center for the last two years, he said. Members of the fraternity have also done research projects and written educational articles.

Alpha Kappa Psi was founded in 1904 and is one of the largest and oldest professional business fraternities in the nation. He said there are 139 chapters and 100,000 members nationwide.

Loch said the SIU-C chapter was formed in 1969 and there are presently 15 members. He said the fraternity will have a rush at 7 p.m., Sept. 1, in the Illinois Room of the Student Center.

The fraternity is coed and is open to majors in the College of Business and Administration, Loch said. However, seven business majors outside of the COBA are being reviewed to see if they qualify for membership. These majors are business education, clothing and textiles with a specialization in retailing; agribusiness economics; family economics and management; food and nutrition with a food and lodging systems specialization; plant and soil science with a specialization in business; and recreation with a specialization in commercial recreation management.

Workshop to aid returning women

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

"Choices and Challenges," a Women's Services workshop for and about women who return to school, will be at 3 p.m., Wednesday, in Room B-144, Woody Hall.

The workshop will explore the emotional and practical aspects of the decision to return to school. The practical angle will be tackled by representatives from admissions, career counseling, financial aid and health services who will provide information about academic and University services.

Women who have experienced the transition of returning to college as an adult will share their experiences and offer suggestions. The workshop will be an open forum, according to a Women's Services employee.

An eight-week extension of this workshop will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday night at the Counseling Center. Also sponsored by Women's Services, it will delve deeper into areas discussed at the "Choices and Challenges" workshop, according to a Women's Center employee.

Some issues to be discussed will be: obtaining an education, enhancing self esteem, juggling time and responsibilities and maintaining an intimate relationship during time of change.

Women's Services will also sponsor workshops at noon every other Wednesday. The workshops will address various women's interests, such as gaining leisure time, understanding divorce, some women's fear of success and women's relationship to food.

Soccer with 6-foot ball helps frosh get to know way around

By Art Herroon
Staff Writer

The freshmen orientation that began last Wednesday officially came to a close Sunday at the Alumni Association Watermelonfest. Although the Watermelonfest was the last big event on the agenda, it was not the only one to take place over the weekend.

Friday night proved to be exciting for many freshmen. Campus ministries sponsored an event on the Intramural fields across from the Newman Center at 7 p.m. The activities included games involving a canvas ball 6-feet in diameter.

Since the object of the exercise was to have a good time, most of the 40 to 50 people present set about to do just that, either as participators or as spectators.

What type of games can one possibly play with a 6-foot ball? It's surprising. Games ranged from a distorted form of volleyball to an equally bizarre variation of soccer.

The activity was set up as a way for new students to break the ice, but the fun was open to people of all ages and the games lasted as long as the daylight.

The Student Programming Council and the Student Center also sponsored an event Friday evening. The "Rock Around The Dock" took place at the Campus Lake boat docks until around 1 a.m. New students were treated to an evening of music in a relaxed environment.

Saturday, students had their choice of either working out at the Student Recreation Center, taking tour trains through downtown Carbondale or experiencing SIU-C's Touch of Nature preserve. For those wishing to do some last minute shopping before classes started, buses shuttled students to and from the University Mall.

Sunday offered an opportunity to tour the University Museum or attend different workshops set up to help the new student cope with campus life.

A highlight of the day, and possibly the weekend, was the Alumni Association's Watermelonfest which started at 4 p.m. The event took place in front of Shryock Auditorium in the Old Main area.

An excellent turnout and beautiful weather allowed for a fun time for those involved. Radio station WIDB provided the music. The crowd appreciated it, as the dancing in front of the Shryock steps helped prove.

The afternoon consisted of volleyball, casual conversation and the occasional roller skater and skate boarder. Food and soft drinks were available, as well as free watermelon.

The SIU-C marching band and cheerleaders put in an appearance, as did members of the school's administration.

Bob Odaniel, executive director of the SIU-C Alumni Association helped introduce university President Albert Scanzii and Bruce Swinburne, vice president for academic affairs. Somit and Swinburne both expressed their welcomes and offered their thanks to the many Student Life Advisors for their efforts in the past weeks.

Tim Fiodin, student chairman for the whole orientation program, was also in attendance. He also applauded the efforts of the SLA's.

With the exception of the speeches, the majority of the afternoon consisted of food and music.

Dorms filled to capacity; 196 in temporary housing

The dorms on campus this year are once again full. A total of 5,184 students are currently lodged in the Brush Towers, University Park and Thompson Point facilities. This figure includes those students in temporary housing.

According to Assistant Housing Director Joseph Gasser, there are 196 students currently in temporary housing. University Park has 87 students in that position, compared to 72 in the Brush Towers area and 40 at Thompson Point.

How long these students will remain in temporary housing depends on a number of things according to Gasser. Either a student moves out and creates an opening, or a student cancels his contract. Students have until Wednesday morning to pick up their contracts, otherwise they are considered "no shows."

Gasser expects to know more on the situation by Thursday morning.

SIU offers courses at Rend

Three SIU-C courses will be offered at the Rend Lake College campus this fall through the Division of Continuing Education.

Two of the classes, PSYC 330-4 "Psychology Applied to Personal Adjustment" and VES 402-3 "Introduction to Office Information Systems," began Monday evening. The third course, ADSC 318-3 "Production-Operations Management," will begin Wednesday.

Prospective students may sign up for any of the three courses at the first class meeting. Tuition is $33.75 per semester-hour of credit.

Men's harriers to be 'strong'

Dean Kirk
Writer

We should be at least as strong as last year's team," said SIU-C men's cross country coach Bill Cornell describing the 1982 squad.

Cornell is hoping that this year's squad members will be able to fill the void left by 1982 graduates Karsten Schulz and Moran, the number two and three runners last year. Also returning from last year's squad are graduates Mike Chofin and Laser.

However, Cornell said, this year's squad will include three experienced runners, juniors Mike Keane and Tom Breen and senior Tom Ross. Keane, from Wood Park, was the number one runner on the squad last year. Keane also finished fourth at last season's NCAA District Five Championship Meet.

Keane, the first-year men's harrier, took over for 20-year veteran Lew Hartzog, now the men's athletic director, said that Ross was one of the squad's top runners last season, finishing third. Breen, a junior from Down, Northern Ireland, usually finished fourth or fifth at last season's meets, Cornell said.

He also said Gary Munson, a sophomore from University City, Mo., who came on strong at the end of last season, will be returning, as will Mike Gonzalez, a sophomore from Peoria.

Cornell is also counting on some freshmen recruits to help this year's squad. He hopes Kevin Sturman, a freshman recruit from Cheam, England, will be of the "same calibre" as Keane and Ross. Sturman has run the 5000-meter run in 14:10, a time 15 seconds short of SIU-C's record set by Mike Sawyer in 1979.

Another promising freshman recruit is Mike Elliott. The Belvidere native was the 1982 Illinois State High School champion in the 800-meter dash.

The other freshmen members of the cross country squad are walk-ons and include Dave Behm from Georgetown, Walter Bell from Cleveland, Tim Harris from Peoria Heights, Eric Kugelman from Naperville, David Johnson from Rankin, and Jim Van'oorhis from DuQuoin.

Last season the squad posted a 1-3 record in dual meets, but placed first in the Illinois Intercollegiate and the Missouri Valley Conference Championships. They placed second at the NCAA Men's District Five Championship Meet and 15th at the NCAA National Championships.

Cornell said that anyone interested in trying out for the team may attend a meeting at 3:15 p.m. on Monday in room 119 at the Arena.

The harriers' first meet will be at 10 a.m. Sept. 18 at Illinois State University in Normal.

was fine but Dempsey wasn't taking any chances.

Rich Williams then assumed the quarterbacking duties and threw for another touchdown, this time more Tony Anderson leading on a short rush. Kicker Allen Leslie, under heavy pressure to fill the boots of the departed Paul Molla, missed the extra point attempt. Later, however, he kicked a 40-yard field goal.

The Saluki defense, led by all-conference selections John Harper and Gregg Shipp, and eight other returnees, dealt brutally with Reitmeyer and the second- and third-string offense. The overmatched offense had to be given first downs to keep them on the field for more than three plays. Harper had an interception and the defensive line was in the backfield almost every time Reitmeyer could get up.

The next Saluki scrimmage is tentatively set for Thursday.

Cubs win

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Buckner had four hits, drove in two runs and scored three times today to lead the Chicago Cubs to an 8-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Byrne Sandberg had three hits and two RBI, and Jay Johnstone had two hits, two RBI and drove a runner out at the plate. Doug Bird, 8-11, was the winner. Renie Martin, 5-7, took the loss.

The Cubs got to Martin for two runs in the first with Sandberg, Buckner, and Johnstone driving in one apiece.

Ski champs find Du Quoin 'ideal'

A few of the more than 60 competitors wait for their chance to compete (above), while Fred Krueger (below) speeds around a buoy in the Senior Men's Slalom event.

Both water skiers and spectators took advantage of the weather and enjoyed the 1982 Annual Water Ski Championships at Du Quoin last week.

The weather and lake conditions have been just ideal for the Du Quoin, Ill., press event for the competition, said during the championships. "The wind was down and the water perfect."

Over 400 male and female skiers from all over the country competed in 39 divisions of slalom, trick and jump events.

Cory Pickos, 18, set a world's record by totaling 9,580 points in the Men's Open Trick Division.

Each contestant is allowed two passes of 20 seconds each through the 200-yard long course and is scored on the basis of tricks performed. Pickos performed 19 tricks in his first pass and 18 in his second.

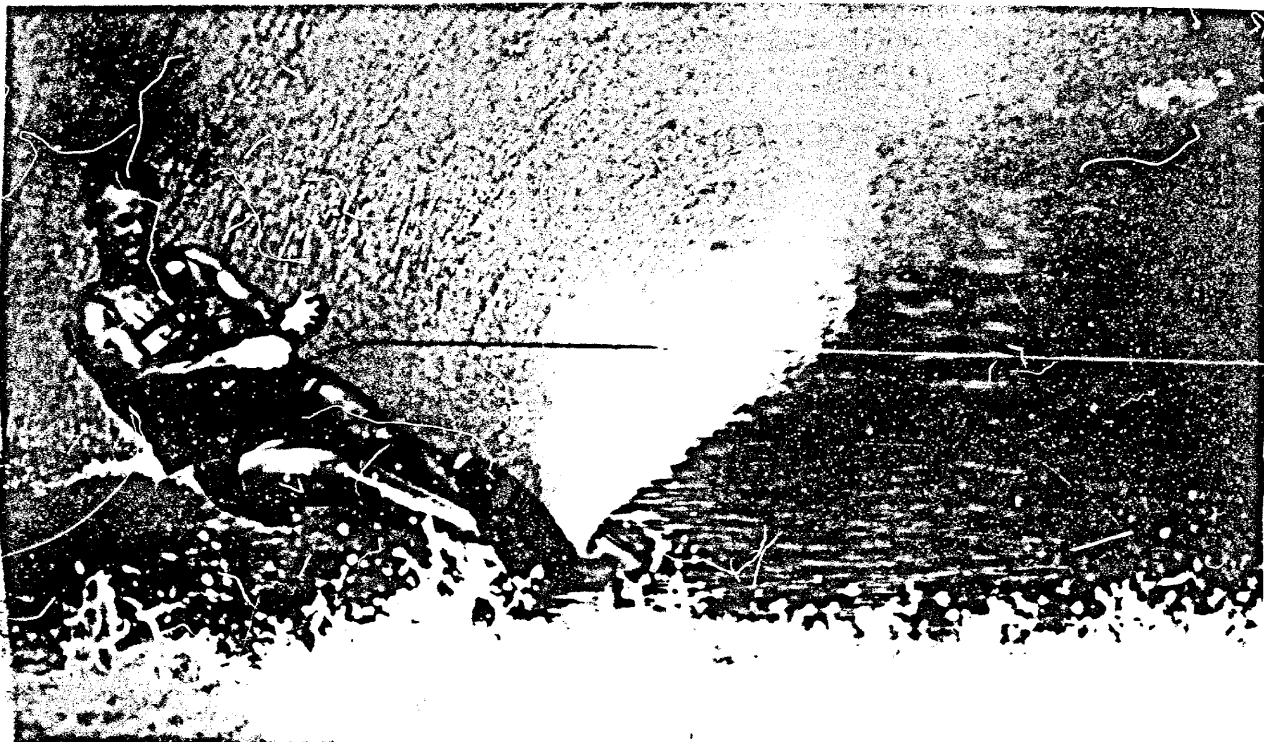

Carl Roberge, of Orlando, won the Men's Overall title with a second in tricks, jumping and slalom. Cyndi Benzel took the women's title with a first in tricks, and thirds in jumping and slalom.

Kris LaPoint of Elk Grove, Calif., took first in the Open Men's Slalom with 57 bouys and Deena Brush of West Sacramento was the winner of the Open Women's Slalom.

Each slalom contestant passes around six bouys, with speed increasing on each trip. The trip is made until maximum speeds in each division are reached. Ties resulting from imperfect runs are broken by repeating the run in which the bouy was missed.

Open Men's jumping was won by Sammy Duvall of Orlando with an 185-foot effort. Cindy Todd of Pierson, Fla., took the Open Women's title with 132.

A busy fall set for intramural sports

It's only the second day of classes, but some students are already looking for ways to release some tension. Intramural sports may be one way to work off pent-up energy. Students who have paid any portion of the Recreation fee and SIU-C faculty and staff, and houses who have paid the use or event entry fee are eligible to participate. Rosters are available at the Information Desk at the Recreation Center. All pre-tournament and captains' meetings will be held in room 158.

Rosters with 10 members' signatures and ID numbers will be due at the 12-inch slow pitch softball captains' meeting 4 p.m. Monday. Men's, women's and co-rec teams can register. Play will begin Sept. 7.

Also starting Sept. 7 in Pulliam Gymnasium will be floor hockey tournaments. Rosters with a minimum of six team members will be due at the captains' meeting 4 p.m. August 31.

Men's, women's and co-rec singles and doubles tennis tournaments will be played this fall on novice, intermediate, advanced and open levels. Registration will be taken at the Information Desk and a $1 forfeit fee is required. A pre-tournament meeting will be at 2 p.m. Sept. 1.

Beginning Sept. 13, registration will be taken for a doubles clinic which will be held Sept. 21. Basic techniques and strategies will be taught by members of the Saluki women's tennis team and Coach Judy Auld.

Intramural Sports will sponsor a 36-hole golf tour-namment Sept. 14-15 at Midland Hills Golf Club. Each participant must sign up for a preferred tee-off time when registering. A pre-tournament meeting will be 4 p.m. Sept. 7. A greens fee of $5 for 18-holes will be due at the course club house before play begins. Clubs can be rented from Midland Hills Golf Club for $1 per day.

Other sports and activities sponsored by Intramural Sports this fall will be volleyball, flag football, racquetball, badminton, indoor mini-soccer, innertube water polo, wrest-

Football team to hold tryouts

According to Jim Mackie, assistant SIU-C football coach, tryouts will be held Tuesday at 6 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium for anyone interested in trying out for the football team.

Mackie said that participants should come prepared to workout.

The men's and women's Frisbee clubs will conduct a recruitment meeting at 7:30 Wednesday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

McGirr optimistic about this year's Saluki golf squads

By Dean Kirk
Staff Writer

Mary Beth McGirr, SIU-C's women's golf coach since 1979, will once again coach women's golf for the 1982-83 season.

But this year, she'll be coaching the men's team as well.

McGirr replaces Jim Reburn, the former men's golf coach who resigned from SIU-C in April to accept a teaching position at Centenary College in Shreveport, La. McGirr's appointment makes her one of the first women in the country to be selected to coach an NCAA Division I men's team.

McGirr is not worried about assuming the untraditional title.

"I've gotten very positive feedback from the guys on the team," McGirr said.

She added that rapport and mutual respect are the important elements between herself and the men's team.

She also said that 1982-83 season will be "a year to pick up the pieces and try to get back on track."

The "pieces" McGirr referred to are the remnants of last year's men's golf team. Four of the team's top six players have left SIU-C.

Mark Young and Randy Harris have transferred to junior colleges in Texas and New Mexico. Craig Doiron is attending a St. Louis culinary school. And Glen Carpenter has transferred to the University of Evansville.

But McGirr said she has "some excellent prospects coming out for the team." These prospects are all walk-ons, she said, and include 10-15 incoming freshmen and junior college transfers.

She also has juniors Kirk Drapp, Tom Jones and John Schaefer and senior Rob Hammond returning this year. Jones, Hammond and Schaefer were among the squad's top six players last season.

McGirr also has high hopes for the women's squad.

"I think there are tremendous possibilities this year for the women's team," she said.

Joining this year's five returning squad members will be Jill Bertram, a freshman from St. Louis and Lisa Kartheiser, a sophomore who transferred from Ball State University after the golf program was dropped. The Port Washington, Wis., native was the top scorer for the Cardinals last season, averaging 81.9 in 16 rounds with a personal low of 74.

Bertram is a two-time Missouri State High School champion.

McGirr said she expects Bertram and Kartheiser "to seriously challenge" the rest of the squad, which includes juniors Barb Anderson, Sue Arbogast, Dania Meador and Lisa Rottman-Bremer and sophomore Kim Oliver.

Missing from this year's squad will be Tracy Keller, McGirr said, transferred to North Texas State.

In spring, the women's team finished first, third and fifth, respectively, at the Illini, Purdue and Stephens College Invationals.

The women's team will begin play Sept. 3-4 at the Lady Boilermaker Classic at West Lafayette, Ind., while the men will start Sept. 17-18 at Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

Coach Rey Dempsey discusses the Saluki offense practice. Johnson figures to be the Saluki starting quarterback again this year.

Salukis' best weapon lies in passing game

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

When Rick Johnson was afforded the luxury of decent pass protection by a still unsettled offensive line, he showed why that line could be the key to the Saluki season. Johnson unofficially completed 11 of 12 passes and sharply moved the Salukis' first team to an early touchdown during Friday's intersquad scrimmage. The Saluki's first scrimmage was held under the lights at the grass field at Du Quoin High School—conditions the team will encounter when it opens the season Sept. 4 at Western Illinois.

Officially the first-string offensive and defensive units beat their second-string counterparts 16-0, but by the end of the evening the distinction between teams was blurred as coach Rey Dempsey substituted frequently and switched players from team to team. Dempsey didn't care about the score, of course.

"I think that in general for the first time out we did pretty good," said the Saluki coach. "We had a couple of drives that looked snappy."

Johnson's performance aside, and also Rich William's five-for-seven evening, Dempsey wasn't satisfied with the pass blocking he saw. It held up long enough for the top Saluki quarterbacks to flip short passes to their running backs, but it wasn't there on the long patterns and it fell apart altogether when junior Pat Reitmeyer took control of the offensive. Reitmeyer was sacked, chased from the pocket, and rattled into several fumbles.

"It's a daily thing," said Dempsey, still looking for players to take charge of the three contested offensive line openings.

With center Steve Pihl still recovering from a knee injury, Dempsey employed junior Ed Barret and converted tackle Tom Baugh to the middle of the line.

"No one's done well enough so that you can say he's the center," said Dempsey, who hopes to have Pihl ready for the season opener.

No such confusion exists behind the line where Johnson returns to take up where he left off last fall, when the senior quarterback was the most accurate passer in the Missouri Valley Conference and its fifth leading quarterback. Johnson completed 119 of 211 passes (.564) for 11 touchdowns and 1296 yards and only six interceptions.

Also returning in the backfield is fullback Corky Fields, a blocking back who gained 249 yards a year ago. Derrick Taylor and Jeff Ware will try and replace Walter Poole, the league's number two rusher last year with almost 1100 yards (Poole is currently clinging to a spot on the St. Louis Cardinals' roster).

"I think Derrick was the most impressive running back," said Dempsey two days after the scrimmage.

Taylor scored the first team's initial touchdown by snaring a swing pass from Johnson to cap a drive highlighted by Johnson's accurate throws. Moments later Johnson was shook up and spent the rest of the night on the sidelines; he

No lights in Wrigley: Thompson

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs may not always win, but they'll never lose in the dark at home as a result of legislation signed Monday that essentially outlaw's night baseball at Wrigley Field.

Gov. James R. Thompson, saying night baseball at the National League field would unduly disrupt lives of nearby residents, signed a measure imposing strict night noise pollution standards around Wrigley Field, home of the Cubs.

In effect, those noise standards bar night games from being played at Wrigley Field. The standards are enforced by the Illinois Pollution Control Board, and for night games to be played, a variance to the standards would have to be obtained from the board.

"Nighttime baseball would increase traffic and parking problems that exist in an already crowded neighborhood," Thompson said in a statement announcing his action. "The problem would be compounded during rush hour when spectators would be trying to reach Wrigley Field at the same time neighborhood residents are returning from work."

The Cubs are the only major league team that plays all its home games during the day.

The team recently was purchased by the Tribune Co., the parent firm of the Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News. The sale fired speculation that the new owners might install lights and launch a new era for the Cubs — nighttime baseball.

That speculation in turn irked residents around Wrigley Field and Cubs fans who oppose night baseball.

Tankers place at Nationals

By Jackie Rodgers

Maybe SIU-C should consider holding all its athletic events in Indianapolis, Ind.

After SIU-C athletes dominated their events at the National Sports Festival last month in Indianapolis, four SIU-C swimmers fared well at the U.S. Swimming Nationals last weekend in Indy.

Roxanne Carlton, a freshman who has yet to swim as a Saluki, set three SIU-C long course records in the 200, 400 and 800-meter freestyle events. Carlton placed 12th in the 400 with a time of 4:18.0 and 10th in the 800 with a time of 8:47.3. Her 200-meter freestyle time of 2:05.2 was set as part of a relay team.

Roger VonJouanne, a former Saluki All-American and now an SIU-C graduate student, placed third in the 200-meter butterfly, fourth in the 200 individual medley, eighth in the 400 IM and 10th in the 100 butterfly. His showings earned him a place on the U.S. National team that will compete against a Russian squad this weekend in Knoxville, Tenn.

Sophomores Janie Coontz and Amanda Martin also competed. Coontz finished 19th in the 800-meter freestyle and 20th in the 400 free.

Martin placed 25th in the 100-meter breaststroke and had a time of 2:46 in the 200 breast.

Saluki Coach Tim Hill said he was pleased with his swimmers' showings, especially Carlton, who was swimming for her club team, the Tacoma Swim Club.

"Those were all lifetime best times for her," Hill said. "Her coach, Dick Hannula, said he was pleased with all her times, although her 1,500 could have been better."

Hill said Coontz swam well, despite the fact that she "has been swimming a lot, and probably needs a break."

Hill also said that Claudia Zierald, a freshman from Switzerland, just returned from the World Swimming Championships in Ecuador. Zierald competed for her native country, but did not have a good meet because of a severe ear infection.
