SIU-C's tuition below national norm

Costs are less than at other four-year state universities

By James J. Black
Staff Writer

Although tuition at SIU-C has increased considerably faster than the national average, SIU-C students still pay less than most students at four-year, public universities.

SIU-C tuition has risen 64 percent since the 1984-85 academic year, compared to the national average rise of 38 percent at similar universities, according to an article in the Chronicle of Higher Education. The statistics were based on a survey of 1,892 colleges and universities conducted by the College Board.

Despite its relatively high rate of increase, SIU-C tuition, which is $1,560, is well below the national average of $1,694. SIU-C tuition for 1989-90 will remain the same as in the 1988-89 academic year.

University President John C. Guyon said tuition at SIU-C has remained below that of most similar universities because of continuing effort by the Board of Trustees to keep SIU-C accessible to potential students.

"This University for a long time has attempted to maintain a tradition of accessibility and affordability," Guyon said.

SIU-C also compares favorably to the other major state universities in Illinois. Tuition at the University of Illinois at Urbana for the 1988-89 academic

Report: SIU-C has hired more women

But Sekaran says it's just a start

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

Uma Sekaran is pleased but not satisfied with a report from the affirmative action office stating that SIU-C is hiring more women to full-time positions and paying them better.

Sekaran, coordinator of the University Women's Professional Advancement, referred to the increase in hiring as "a launching pad. There are better things to come."

According to a report given to SIU-C President John C. Guyon by Seymor Bryson, special assistant to the president for affirmative action at SIU-C, the proportion of women on the University's payroll has increased from 39.5 percent in 1979 to 45 percent in 1988.

Bryson said the most important increase is in the number of full-time faculty positions held by women, up from 20.5 percent in 1979 to 25.9 percent in 1988. The increase in 1987-88 was 4.7 percent.

Sekaran said, "The University is definitely doing things to attempt the advancement of women faculty." However, she added that she felt there was still more that needed to be done.

Sekaran said the full-time faculty numbers are encouraging, but they do not tell the whole story. She said, "I'm looking at the tenured faculty. In the fall of 1988 the percentage of tenured faculty that were women was 16%."

Tenured faculty have more job security, while faculty members without tenure are usually hired on a year to year basis. Sekaran said she hopes the amount of women with tenure also will continue to increase.

"Given the stage we are at now, my hope is that at least 40% of the full-time faculty will be women in the next 10 years - that is my dream," Sekaran said.

She said she is excited about the hiring of women in non-traditional roles on campus.

"We have six new women faculty starting this semester. One is in electrical engineering, which is a non-traditional field. That kind of thing is happening at SIU."

In addition to the increase in hiring, there were also salary increases made possible by this summer's state tax increase.

Female faculty received salary increases of 10.5 percent, while the increase for male faculty was 9.7 percent.

Sekaran said the lack of funding the last few years have hampered all areas. "We can not complain. It affected everyone about the same."

Grace alters bad check policy

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The Jackson County State's Attorney's Office has adopted a program to manage and prosecute bad checks in Jackson County.

Because University students tend to move around often throughout Jackson County, it is sometimes difficult to track down someone who has written a bad check. Chuck Grace, Jackson County state's attorney, said.

Grace said that it was not uncommon for students to write bad checks on campus and then go to a different town in Jackson County, such as Murphysboro, and cash another one.

The new policy mandates the state's attorney's office will be the only office in Jackson county to accept reports on bad checks effective Aug. 14.

Grace said the main goal of this program is to reduce the number of bad checks written in Jackson County.

Prior to this program, different police agencies responded to the complaints of bad checks, Grace said. It sometimes took weeks before the state's attorney's office was made aware of the bad check, he said.

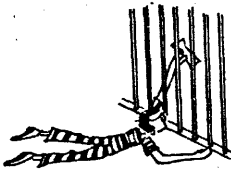

Local merchants will be called upon to help implement this program, Grace said.

Under this new policy, merchants will be required to get two forms of identification that could make prosecution easier if the check is bad;

train their employees to match the person with the face on the picture I.D.

Local National Guard unit under investigation

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

A formal investigation into the alleged improprieties of one or more officers of the Carbondale National Guard Unit has been opened, after the findings of an inquiry conducted last week were reported to the commanding officer of Illinois Guard units.

The inquiry was prompted by a letter sent to Adjutant Gen. Harold Holesinger from a member of the Carbondale unit, Guard spokesman Lt. Col. Donald Kunzweiler said.

The letter claimed there was misconduct by officers during the unit's two week training drill at Ft. McCoy Wisconsin, July 8-22. The unit, Company A of the 133rd Signal Battalion, earned the highest rating of any Illinois National Guard signal battalion during the drill.

Kunzweiler declined to say how many or which officers were named in the letter or the nature of the alleged misconduct.

Col. Leonard Florie, the inspector general who conducted the inquiries at the Carbondale Army Aug. 17, said Friday that he had been in contact with Holesinger concerning the matter, and that it would be the general's decision whether to pursue it further.

"It is a military matter so we're not going to give out a lot (of) information on it," Florie, who declined to say how many guard personnel he interviewed, said, "The general will be looking into it."

Kunzweiler said the general informed him late Friday of his decision to proceed with a formal investigation.

"It (the investigation) will begin right away," Kunzweiler said, adding that the general had probably appointed a board to the

International support sought for Colombian anti-drug plan

U.S. military action being considered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Colombia asked a special session of the Organization of American States Monday for international support for its crackdown on the narcotics industry, which has led to a reported 12,000 arrests.

In a draft resolution presented to the hastily called OAS session, the government of Colombia informed the organization of the recent wave of assassinations of judges and leading political figure and called for "international solidarity," but did not ask for any specific action by the 21-nation OAS council or its member nations.

The U.S. representative suggested the United States might support military action against countries that harbor drug traffickers.

In the Colombian draft resolution, which met with no opposition, the OAS member state reaffirmed their commitment "to cooperate in the efforts against all aspects of criminal drug-related activity." No specific actions were called for.

President Virgilio Barco revived extradition mechanisms and invoked a state-of-siege decree Friday. Reports from Colombia Monday said that more than 12,000 suspects have been arrested by some 20,000 soldiers and police officers who also confiscated an estimated $100 million in properties belonging to suspected drug barons after the declaration by the Colombian government.

The U.S. acting representative to the OAS, William Pryce, read a statement by President Bush, similar to the one released earlier from Kennebunkport, Maine.

That statement backed the crackdown by Barco and said that the United States is ready to coordinate the extradition of suspects in Colombia wanted in the United States.

Colombian reports said that more than 12,000 suspects had been arrested and $100 million in properties owned by suspected drug barons had been confiscated.

The Bush statement said, "We are considering very seriously ways for us to do more for the Andean countries (Colombia, Peru and Bolivia) in connection with the National Drug Strategy which (drug policy director) William Bennett will present to Congress on Sept. 5. I am ready to meet with President Barco at the earliest convenient moment to consider a coordinated approach to this problem."

In an apparent warning to Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega and the government of Cuba, Pryce suggested that the United States might support military action against governments that permit drug-related activities.

Pryce said, "To those few governments that protect and support drug traffickers, we issue the following warning: Countries that provide safe haven and other forms of support for the all-pervasive aggression and intervention committed by the international drug trafficking cartels menace to the peace and security of this hemisphere just as surely as if they were using their own conventional military forces to attack our frontiers.

"In fact, the imperative of self-defense against the aggression of the traffickers and their allies is all the more overwhelming because it is not limited to defined military targets ... but penetrates to damage the entire nation directly through its population."

The issue of Noriega's involvement in drug trafficking is expected to come up again on Wednesday at the OAS as the United States will seek firm action by the organization to help remove Noriega from power by Sept. 1.

Noriega has been indicted by two federal grand juries in Florida on drug-related charges. In Cuba, members of the armed forces and other agencies of the government were convicted and executed for drug trafficking, but U.S. officials said that the activities were so widespread that they must have been known to the leadership in the tight security of a police state like Cuba.

Community answer to homeless needed

CARBONDALE'S GOOD Samaritan House is struggling to make ends meet in providing food, shelter and clothing for the homeless. The bare necessities that many of us take for granted, are often a luxury to those who are forced to wonder where they will sleep or eat on a daily basis.

Southern Illinois is no different than any other section of the nation or world when evaluating the plight of the homeless. And in our own community the growing numbers of homeless have not kept pace with the amount of funding the Good Samaritan House has to provide the necessities for these people.

Of course, the House receives funding from state and federal agencies - $40,000 a year from the Illinois Department of Public Aid and $16,000 from Housing and Urban Development. Elsie Speck, of the Good Samaritan House, said private contributors have provided extra money to aid the homeless, but funds are being spread thin to accommodate residents and transients at the House. She said aid from local organizations "has been very miniscule."

WE THINK that the area and the community of Carbondale can find a way to aid the Good Samaritan House. If not actual funding, then possibly services or support for the homeless. Businesses, organizations and individuals should be able to contribute some portion of whatever their craft or profession might be. Be it the food that restaurants will throw away, materials a building company will not use, or the clothes that will never be worn again. There is always something that can be used by people who have virtually nothing.

Right now, there are eight people living in a semi-permanent status in the House and 16 adults and four children living in the basement as transients. The combined $56,000 plus that the House might receive during that year is not enough to cover the expenses for the volatile number of 28 at the Good Samaritan House. The $2,000 plus available to pay for the food, shelter and clothing for each individual just doesn't add up.

That amount is significantly less than what it costs to house the average inmate at any one of the state or federal correctional facilities.

WHEN A COMMUNITY examines the responsibility to the homeless, the moral duty can be pushed to the federal government, the homeless people themselves, or any type of scapegoat. This is not a solution. The homeless are everyone's problem. Knowing that the problem exists in virtually every community does not mean that one should ignore it in your own. The problem does exist in Carbondale, and to be oblivious to the fact would be unfair to one's self as well as those suffering. Small sacrifices that we in the community can make may be all the difference to a cold and hungry fellow citizen.

Student recalls Woody shuffle

Once again, I would like to congratulate you on the excellent job you have done in making my semesters interesting. I have been a student at this University for 5 and a half years, as an undergraduate and graduate student. I have experienced major problems with my registration for 9 of my 11 semesters.

Last applications and contracts, refusal of payroll to believe I was a student, cancelled waivers...the only humorous part of this is that the foul-up has been different each time. The only recent semester I have not had to trek to Woody Hall to fix a screw-up has been this last summer, leading me to believe that some administrator somewhere was on vacation.

My coworkers like me because my paperwork draws administrative errors to itself like a magnet, leaving their paperwork relatively unmolested.

This is now my last semester, and I must admit I will miss the incredible administrative bungling that has gone along with my studies.

I would like to take this opportunity to warn students - save your registration papers and contracts!

I must confess, I will be disappointed if someone doesn't lose my diploma - Allen Veazy, graduate student in microbiology.

Excusing terrorism not an easy task while innocent lives are being taken

A MAN named Samir Khalil is unhappy with columns I've written recently about terrorism, Israel and other related subjects.

Khalil, who runs the SKI insurance agency in Chicago, dropped me a line that said: "Your column is a pile of (obscenity). Your true color has shown, racism, close-mindedness and dumbness."

He's not alone in feeling that way. A staggering number of people have written or phoned to call me names, especially because of a column I wrote that, in effect, supports Israel's right not to be destroyed by its large, oil-rich, heavily armed neighbors.

In a way, I enjoy hearing from them because it's educational. It tells me how many people in this country have deep streaks of anti-Semitism and how many would enjoy seeing Israel obliterated. Quite a few, quite a few.

But I've also heard from others, including a man named Matthew S. Coyle, who lives in Wallingford, Conn.

UNLIKE MR. Khalil's letter, which contained words that I'm not allowed to print, Mr. Coyle's letter was polite.

He said: "My daughter, Tricia, was a victim of the terrorist attack against Pan Am 103. Now, and for the rest of our lives, my wife, Janice, and Tricia's sisters, Brenda and Kris (Tricia's twin) and I are victims - victims of inaction by our government, no action by Pan Am security and little action by our 'allies' in dealing with public murderers."

He sent along a picture of the late Patricia Mary Coyle, who was 21 and very pretty. And there was an article about her, written by a friend, telling how she overcame the handicap of being deaf to become an A student, a first-class tennis player and make the National Honor Society.

I mention Mr. Khalil's letter, and that of Mr. Coyle, because I'd like to extend an invitation to Mr. Khalil and others who share his views.

Mike Royko
Tribune Media Services

If Khalil can overcome his need to pepper a letter with obscenities, I would like him to explain why it was necessary for Patricia Coyle to be murdered. And the other 258 passengers on that jet.

MISS COYLE was not involved in the conflict between Israel, Palestinians and much of the Arab world. She never wrote books offensive to any ayatollahs. Why, she wasn't even a U.S. Marine taking a snooze in a barracks when a load of explosives went off. She was just a young tourist on an airplane.

So I'd like Mr. Khalil to tell, if he can, by what twist of logic his goals are served by Miss Coyle being blown out of the air? What has been accomplished by subjecting Miss Coyle's family to the lifelong agony of their loss?

It apparently bothered Mr. Khalil that I advocated this country taking tough military action against Iran, Syria or any other country that supports terrorism.

ONE WOMAN wrote: "I can't believe that you would recommend dropping bombs. Don't you realize that innocent people could be killed?"

Yes, I do realize that innocent people can be killed. I realize that just as fully as those who blew up that plane realized that innocent people would be killed.

To which some people will answer: But two wrongs don't make a right.

No, two wrongs don't make a right. But that's something the person who commits the first wrong should think about. If those who hate Israel are going to wage war on innocents like Miss Coyle, they shouldn't whine about two wrongs not making a right.

Israel is not a perfect ally. At times her leaders can be infuriating in their stubbornness. And there is no way anyone can apologize for or justify Israel's use of brutality.

But if any country has a lot to be paranoid about, it's Israel. And after more than 40 years of being threatened with extermination and fending off attacks - I find her lapses in judgment more understandable than, say, a decision to murder Miss Coyle.

ISRAEL DOESN'T kill American travelers. It doesn't videotape Marines dangling from a noose or force American hostages to read pathetic farewells to their wives.

And if we do spend billions on aid to Israel, at least we have a little to show for our money. At the United Nations last year, the top 50 recipients of foreign aid from this country voted with us 14 percent of the time. The rest of their votes on various issues went with the Soviets.

Israel voted with us 90 percent of the time. Considering that the U.N. is a useless gathering of babblers, that might not be much, but it's more than we're getting from anyone else.

So, Mr. Khalil, and others like you, take up your pen again. But this time tell the Coyle family (your fellow Americans, I presume, or what are you doing here?) why Patricia Mary Coyle had to die in her 21st year.

Explain, if you can, this form of heroic warfare. Tell me, is it done with chin up and shoulders back? Somehow I doubt it.

and restaurant business into thinking that SIU-C doesn't offer such a course of study. He said, as a result, students study some other discipline or attend universities out of state. The program is listed as a specialization in the food and nutrition department in the College of Agriculture, which Hobson said is deceiving. Hobson, who also serves as academic advisor in food and nutrition, said most of the approximately 125 students enrolled in the program found out about the program by word of mouth and many students have said they would have left SIU-C if they hadn't gotten the information through the grapevine. The problem affects not just SIU-C but all of Illinois, Hobson year was $2,070 for lowerclassmen and $2,316 for upperclassmen. University of Illinois - Chicago charged $1,935 for lowerclassmen and $2,181 for upperclassmen.

SIU-C tuition also is below that of Northern Illinois and Illinois State universities, which charged $1,714 in the 1988-89 academic year. One of the few four-year, public universities in Illinois to charge lower tuition than SIU-C is its sister school, SIU-Edwardsville, which asked $1,461 in 1988-89.

Although SIU-C tuition is below the national average, the estimated total cost of attending SIU-C for nine months is higher than the average for four-year, public universities.

The Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance estimates that an in-state student who resides in campus housing will spend $7,000 for tuition, fees, room, board, books and personal expenses in 1989-90. The average among similar universities is $6,671.

The Chronicle of Higher Education article pointed out that college costs have outrun inflation for each of the last eight years. The inflation rate for the 12 months ending in June was 5.2 percent as determined by the Consumer Price Index.

There is no opposition to changing the name of the program. It is just a matter of going through the bureaucratic motions, Perry Hobson said.

said. The hotel and restaurant industry in the state needs more than 1,400 graduates a year to step into management positions, Hobson said, yet Illinois universities turn out less than 200 graduates annually. "Illinois is not educating people in the state for jobs in the state,"

he said. "The job openings are excellent."

To remedy the situation, Hobson submitted a request in June to change the name to Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration. The form was returned to Hobson because of minor mistakes in filing and resubmitted last week.

The request must go through the office of the vice president of academic affairs and approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education before the change can take place.

Hobson said there is no opposition to changing the name and it is just a matter of going through the bureaucratic motions.

Hobson said he hopes changing the name of the program will make it more visible.

Navy sued by Marine after AIDS-related death of wife

BOSTON (UPI) - A lawyer for a Marine who filed a $55 million malpractice suit against the Navy Monday blamed incompetent Navy doctors for the AIDS-related deaths of the man's wife and son.

Martin Gaffney, 40, who has tested positive for the AIDS virus, claims his wife contracted the deadly disease during a blood transfusion at a Navy hospital - a transfusion he contends would have been unnecessary had his wife received adequate care during her pregnancy.

"Had Mrs. Gaffney received minimal care during her 43rd and 44th weeks of pregnancy the family would be intact today," Gaffney's attorney, Jaclyn McKeeney, said in opening statements in U.S. District Court.

The Navy, however, contends its doctors acted in good faith.

"Yes, a series of unfortunate events have befallen the Gaffney family but not by any wrongdoing by the United States," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Marianne Bowler. "They (doctors) acted consistently with the accepted medical practices at the time."

Gaffney, a chief warrant officer based in South Weymouth, Mass., Naval Air Station, said his wife Mutsuko underwent a Caesarian during her pregnancy in 1981 and then required a blood transfusion, during which she contracted AIDS.

The pregnancy ended in a stillbirth at the Long Beach Naval Hospital in California.

Gaffney testified that Navy physicians did not suggest inducing labor, even though the birth was several weeks overdue. He said one doctor advised him, "Let these things happen naturally, let these things take their course."

Unaware that Mutsuko Gaffney had contracted the disease, the couple went on to have two more children. Their son was born with the AIDS virus and died in 1986 at the age of 13 months. Their daughter, Maureene, now 6, has consistently tested negative for the disease.

Mutsuko Gaffney died of AIDS in 1987.

Asked about his own condition, Martin Gaffney said, "I'm infected but healthy."

Gaffney claims he became infected through sexual contact with his wife, an assertion supported by his physician, Dr. Michael Barry of Massachusetts General Hospital.

"I believe that Mrs. Gaffney was infected from one of the two units of blood" she received in the 1981 transfusion, Barry said, "and that Mr. Gaffney was subsequently infected through heterosexual relations with his wife."

One of the two donors of blood used in the 1981 transfusion acknowledged in a deposition that he had engaged in sexual behavior that could have put him at high risk of contracting the virus. But the donor, who has not been identified publicly, said he has not been tested for AIDS.

Questioned by both attorneys, Gaffney denied he had ever engaged in homosexual relations or intravenous drug use.

Barry said he had also questioned Mrs. Gaffney about her sexual history and concluded she contracted the virus through the blood transfusion.

State-run media publish tributes to Chinese leader

BEIJING (UPI) — Senior leader Deng Xiaoping turns 85 Tuesday on the most troubled birthday of his decade as China's most powerful man, with his health uncertain, his legacy tarnished and his nation groping for direction in the era that will succeed him.

In the year since his last birthday, Deng has been impelled to roll back his cherished free-market economic reforms, dump his chosen successor and send tanks against the people of his capital in the brutal June crackdown on the student-led democracy movement.

With his reputation at its nadir both at home and abroad in the aftermath of the crackdown, the government has begun building the foundations of a personality cult around Deng for the first time since he emerged as supreme leader in the late 1970s.

State-run media on Monday published the latest in a series of glowing tributes to Deng, marking the publication of a new book of speeches and articles he authored between 1938 and 1965. Several books and a film about Deng's life and works have appeared.

The Communist Party newspaper People's Daily carried one such speech from 1957 in its Tuesday editions with an editor's note calling it of "great significance" for the present and future.

The tributes have not approached the deification once accorded Mao Tse-tung, but are puzzling because Deng has in the past eschewed them and opposed the canonizing of a single leader.

"I don't think we'll see Deng badges or little books of his quotations," said a veteran Chinese journalist. "But the leadership is having trouble with what will happen after he dies, and they need him as a symbol to support themselves."

As the architect of the open-door policy and the economic reforms that raised living standards for most Chinese, Deng will remain a legendary figure for rescuing the country from the destruction of the 1966-1976 Cultural Revolution.

"But he may go down with an official reckoning similar to Mao's, as a great man who made serious mistakes late in life," the diplomat added.

Deng's personal life has always been one of the nation's most closely held secrets, but his 85th birthday is shrouded in more mystery than usual. Although unconfirmed, reports have increased that his health has deteriorated, possibly from cancer.

Chernobyl mess costs $16 billion

MOSCOW (UPI) — More than 100,000 people must be relocated from areas of Byelorussia contaminated by radiation from the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear accident under a plan that will cost $16 billion, the official news agency Tass said Monday.

"If cleanup operations are carried out by the republic on its own, Byelorussia's economic and social development will grind to a halt for several years," Vladimir Yevtuikh, first deputy premier of Byelorussia, told Tass.

Yevtuikh revealed the scope of the upcoming cleanup more than three years after Chernobyl's No. 4 reactor exploded in the Ukraine, spewing and permeating its radioactive particles into the soil of neighboring Byelorussia in the worst nuclear accident in history. The April 26, 1986, accident killed 31 people.

"Decontamination efforts have failed to eliminate the effects of radiation which affected one-third of the republic's territory and one-fifth of its agricultural lands," Tass said.

"More than 100,000 people are yet to be relocated," it said.

"This will require more than 10 billion rubles ($16 billion), which is almost equal to Byelorussia's annual budget," the Tass agency said.

The cost appeared to be staggering, considering that Tass announced in January 1988 that the total cost of the Chernobyl nuclear accident, including lost production in surrounding areas, was $12.8 billion. That figure has undoubtedly risen since.

Yevtuikh appealed for donations to fund the cleanup and help his republic avoid bankruptcy.

"We hope that losses will be partially compensated by those who are guilty of inflicting them, but the necessary funds will not be collected even if all departments guilty of the breakdown pay all the damages," he said. "Therefore we also count on help from people of good will."

Tass said the appeal for donations was addressed as well to people in other countries because foreign currency is needed to buy such equipment as fit out the Radiation Medicine Institute to monitor the health in the affected regions.

12 injured at NAACP office

Box releases noxious gas

ATLANTA (UPI) — A booby-trapped package spewed noxious gas at the Southeastern regional headquarters of the NAACP Monday, sending at least 12 people to hospitals.

Earl Shinhoster, executive director of the NAACP's regional headquarters, said the incident occurred about 12:30 p.m. when he and his secretary opened the package, a white hat box that had been part of the day's mail delivered an hour earlier.

"My secretary and myself were both working on either side of the box," Shinhoster said. "We opened it. We flipped the last piece of tape off and we could see a sparkle come up through the bottom of the box."

"There was some cylinder type of device in the bottom where the sparkles were coming from and there was a rapid succession of pop, pop," he said. "Between those two pops, smoke began to emit some kind of gaseous substance."

Shinhoster said the yellow-colored gas spread through the three-story red brick building within two minutes — irritating eyes, making breathing difficult and forcing the evacuation of everyone inside.

Although the gas had not been identified, firefighters believe it was tear gas, Adams said.

The yellow-colored gas spread through the three-story red brick building within two minutes.

"I can't imagine why anyone would do this," said the visibly shaken Shinhoster. "I could not imagine the evil that would propel someone to take this kind of action."

Rep. John Lewis, D-Ga., who arrived minutes after hearing reports of an accident at the NAACP offices, called for a federal investigation.

"This office is a strong symbol of the civil rights movement," Lewis said. "Without looking at any of the evidence, I would say it was racially motivated."

The package contained a return address as well as a name on it, he said.

Al Adams, a U.S. Postal Service inspector, said firefighters were unsure whether the device was intended to cause an explosion or just to release smoke.

Investigators were examining the container, which was still inside the building.

Atlanta Police spokesman Kevin Iosty said 12 people were sent to various hospitals, including nearby Grady Memorial Hospital.

"There were no injuries as a result of fire or shrapnel," said Atlanta Public Safety Department spokesman Keith Williams. "We think it's a tear gas canister. We don't know the extent of the injuries."

Shinhoster and his secretary were not taken to the hospital.

Firefighters said the majority of injured apparently were patients.

58 USS Iowa gunners uncertified for posts

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — None of the 58 sailors in the USS Iowa's No. 2 gun turret were properly certified for their posts when 47 of them were killed in an April 19 blast that gutted the turret, a newspaper reported Monday.

Sailors from the battleship and a Navy officer close to the investigation into the tragedy told the Daily Press of Newport News that a Qualification Board required to certify sailors handling weapons was never convened on the Iowa during the past three years.

One source told the newspaper that a few days after the explosion a group of officers and petty officers aboard the Iowa were presented with letters dated prior to April 19, appointing them to the board.

Navy regulations require that all sailors and Navy civilians who work with explosives must be first certified by the board at the post where they serve. Sailors who are not certified by the board are permitted to handle weapons, but only in the presence of a certified supervisor.

Navy personnel also said many Iowa sailors were not issued Performance Qualification Standard booklets, which include tests that must be passed and signed by supervisors before sailors can be reviewed by the board.

Phi Kappa Phi honor society represented at convention

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

Terry D. Mathias represented the University chapter of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi at the Society's Triennial Convention, Aug. 6 through 9 in Salt Lake City.

Mathias served on three panels during the meeting, including a promotional and publicity panel; a panel from the North Central Region committee; and a panel which judged convention exhibits.

Mathias has been a member of the North Central Region committee since it began in 1987. At the convention, he made a presentation on ways to increase the percentage of eligible student candidates who accept a chapter's invitation to join.

"Increasing the percentage of students who join is an important goal for the society," Mathias said.

The honor society is a multi-disciplinary honor society whose purpose is to recognize and encourage academic excellence. There are 251 chapters on campuses in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Philippines.

"I am pleased to represent the SIU-C chapter," Mathias said. "SIU-C gained considerable visibility with the other chapters of the society at this meeting."

Since the meeting, Mathias said he has heard from the president of the honor society, who said he will be asked to serve on two national committees.

The University chapter was established in 1956 and initiates more than 250 new members each spring. Juniors, seniors and graduate students must rank at the top of their class to be considered.

The University chapter also inducts one or two faculty scholars annually and awards scholarships and fellowships to recognize superior performance by students.

Mathias is director of the SIU-C Office of University Relations.

Materials center gets added research funds

By Theresa Livingston
Staff Writer

The University's Materials and Technology Center has coordinated a new industrial affiliates program this semester that will provide an additional $300,000 for research on structural carbons and composites, the director of the center said.

"The creation of an MTC affiliates program has been discussed since 1984, but we wanted to wait until the center had established its credibility in the research community," Maurice A. Wright said.

The research program is the first university-based research center dealing with structural carbons in the United States, although there are similar centers in Germany, Japan and England, Wright said.

Through the program, 10 international companies have pledged to support the center's research for a two-year period. The group of affiliates, which is comprised of five American, two English, two Japanese and one French company, deal with structural carbons in manufacturing and research.

The companies will directly benefit from the research, Wright said, and representatives of the companies will form an advisory board that will help define the urgency of research topics and review research proposals.

"We'll let them see the results of the research first, then publish it in professional journals and papers. Anybody will be able to call us up and have access to what we're doing," he said.

The program will be administered by the center and will involve faculty, staff and students from the physics and chemistry departments in the College of Science and all engineering departments.

"This will enable the departments to expand. It will support research assistants, student research and generally stimulate learning all together," Wright said.

The program is a major extension of the center, which was created in 1983 on the recommendation of the Governor's Commission on Science and Technology by the University's College of Engineering and Technology to strengthen the department's research capabilities, Wright said.

"This is the first time research of this level has been done at the University," he said.

Lawyer announces bid for comptroller

CHICAGO (UPI) — Attorney Shawn Collins Monday attacked the spending practices of state agencies as a "real kick in the teeth to taxpayers" in announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Illinois comptroller.

Collins, 32, Joliet, became the third Democrat to announce his candidacy for the post being vacated by Comptroller Roland Burris, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

Attorney Shawn Collins became the third Democrat to announce his candidacy for Illinois comptroller.

Also seeking the post are state Rep. Woods Bowman, D-Evanston, and Kane County Democratic Chairman William Sarto.

"The old way of doing business in Illinois must end," Collins said.

Collins attacked the state's Medicaid system as "abiding Medicaid fraud" leading to "the multi-million dollar plundering of our Medicaid fund.

Collins termed roadbuilding costs in Illinois "ridiculous," and questioned why it costs Illinois six times as much — $1.1 million — to build one mile of road in the Land of Lincoln while it costs only $168,000 in Ohio.

Collins, a commissioner on the Joliet Housing Authority, also said he would try to end "no-bid, closed-door deals and 'golden parachutes' for ex-government officials. He said Illinois Department of Transportation last year signed 6,500 no-bid contracts totaling $260 million, including a $705,000 contract to former Lottery Director Michael Jones.

The Department of Commerce and Community Affairs "lends millions to companies which aren't supposed to get it."

"The old way of doing business is a real kick in the teeth to taxpayers," said Collins. "They just can't afford to subsidize Medicaid fraud, IDOT's love affair with roadbuildings, no-bid contracting, revolving-door deals."

As comptroller, he said he would ask the governor and General Assembly to reveal who gets no-bid state business and pledge to "not issue a single no-bid contract in the comptroller's office."

U.S. politician accused of dirty political tricks

CHICAGO (UPI) — While Rep. Gus Savage is accused the media of racially biased reporting, a Rhodes scholar who is considering challenging Savage for his seat is accusing the congressman of political dirty tricks.

Mel Reynolds, a former minority programs coordinator at the University of Illinois, Monday said Savage is behind an attempt by a 20-year-old university student to extort money from him.

Sharon Coleman, the daughter of a Chicago police officer, last week filed a complaint charging Reynolds with offering her $6,000 to dance naked. The complaint also accuses Reynolds of attempted sexual assault.

"How can we prove this?" Reynolds asked. "It's her word against mine. If her father was not a police officer, those charges never would have been filed."

Reynolds filed a cross-complaint Saturday, accusing Coleman of extortion and saying the only reason the student filed her complaint was because she had a witness — a police officer friend — to her alleged extortion attempt.

Reynolds said Coleman lured him to a meeting Thursday.

Cincinnati Kroger implicated in selling poor orange juice

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cincinnati-based Kroger foods is suspected of knowingly selling adulterated orange juice made by a Chicago firm under federal indictment, a broadcast report said Monday.

Kroger's business dealings with Chicago-based Bodine's is the subject of a federal grand jury investigation in Cincinnati, CBS This Morning reported.

Kroger between 1980 and 1985 bought frozen orange juice from Bodine's, a firm indicted in July in Chicago on federal charges of selling millions of gallons of adulterated orange juice, and sold it under the well-known Avondale and Costcutter labels, the report said.

Bodine's was accused of using beet sugar, corn sugar, monosodium glutamate, potassium sulfate, orange pulp wash and waste distillate water in producing its juice that sold at lower prices than competing brands.

In a 1979 letter to the Food and Drug Administration, Kroger reported its lab had found "the presence of added sugar" in Bodine's juice. In 1980, the same lab found the juice "unacceptable," the report said.

Despite an April 1982 memo in which a Kroger lab supervisor recommended "Bodine be dropped as an approved supplier" and calling for a recall of all Bodine-supplied products, Kroger continued buying Bodine products until 1985. That is when the FDA seized thousands of cases of orange juice produced by the Chicago company under Kroger labels.

The juice, billed as 100 percent pure orange juice, in fact contained some grapefruit juice.

"The company chose to ignore the recommendations of their own lab because if independent tests and Bodine's repeated assurances that the orange juice was pure and properly labeled," the report paraphrased a Kroger attorney.

"But some in the industry say the real deciding factor may have been Bodine's low price," the report said.

Voyager meets moon Triton as it races out of solar system

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Pictures from Voyager 2, racing toward a Thursday flyby of Neptune, indicate that the planet's bizarre moon Triton has a transparent atmosphere and deposits of solidified natural gas on its pinkish surface, scientists said Monday.

With Voyager 2 closing in on Neptune, tiny rocket thrusters were fired early Monday in a final, critical maneuver to gently nudge the 1-ton spacecraft to one side, fine-tuning a celestial billiards shot that will carry it through a daring low-altitude flyby of Neptune late Thursday.

The primary goal of the maneuver was to put Voyager 2 on a flight path that will allow it to conduct critical studies of Triton's methane atmosphere five hours after the Neptune flyby.

Excited scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said

Monday they are tracking several giant storm systems on Neptune, including a "great dark spot" big enough to nearly swallow Earth and a smaller "scooter" that races through the atmosphere faster than the planet rotates.

Spectacular color pictures were released that showed dark bands circling the blue planet's southern hemisphere with long, wispy streamers of high-altitude methane cirrus clouds trailing away from the great dark spot.

Equally enticing to researchers, preliminary images of Triton show unresolved features that appear to rotate with the moon. And that means Voyager 2's cameras probably are looking through a transparent atmosphere at features on the surface of the frigid 1,728-mile-wide satellite.

"In a certain sense, this is the final movement in the Voyager symphony of the outer planets, which began with Jupiter 10 years ago," Voyager 2 project scientist Edward Stone said at a news conference.

Racing toward Neptune at nearly 38,000 mph and steadily picking up speed, Voyager 2 will sail over the north polar region of Neptune about 10:55 p.m. CDT Thursday, passing just 3,000 miles above the planet's cloudtops.

Miami couple survives sea ordeal

MIAMI (UPI) — A Miami couple said they fended off shark attacks and caught fish by hand as they drifted aimlessly in a life raft for 66 days after a group of whales sank their boat in the Pacific Ocean.

William Butler, 60, and his wife, Simone Butler, 52, were picked up Saturday by the Costa Rican coast guard and taken to a hospital in the coastal city of Golfito. The Butlers lost about 50 pounds each during the ordeal. The Miami Herald reported Monday.

"I forced myself to eat almost two pounds of raw fish a day, and I forced my wife to eat it too," William Butler said in a telephone interview from his hospital bed.

A spokesman for Golfito Hospital said the Butlers were in good condition and were walking around Monday morning, though they were still a little dehydrated. He said they probably would remain hospitalized for at least four more days.

The Butlers left Matheson Hammock Park Marina in Miami April 14 aboard their 38-foot boat Siboney. They planned to sail around the world.

The Siboney was recorded crossing the Panama Canal on May 23. On June 15, about 1,200 miles southwest of Costa Rica, dozens of whales attacked the boat, the couple said.

"They started bashing the boat around until they finally holed the fiberglass. We heard the water coming in, sent a mayday, loaded the life raft and in 15 minutes the boat sank," William Butler said.

"I forced myself to eat almost two pounds of fish a day, and I forced my wife to eat it too."

—William Butler

As the vessel was going down, the Butlers grabbed fishing hooks and a purifier to convert salt water to drinking water, and got into a rubber life boat, the couple said.

They had no bait, but caught fish with the hook, they said.

"When a turtle came by, I pulled him out of the water and cut his throat. That started our food chain," William Butler said.

He used the remains of a triggerfish he caught to attract other fish, but three to four weeks ago he lost the hook. From then on, he said, he dangled bait over the side of the raft with one hand and grabbed the fish that came by with the other.

"I don't even recognize myself," he said, having dropped to about 128 pounds.

The Butlers survived shark attacks by sealing punctures in the raft with a repair kit.

Their son, Joe Butler of Miami, said William Butler learned to sail as a boy in Havana and had prepared for the round-the-world voyage for three years.

"It's something he had wanted to do all his life and was finally in a position to do it," Joe Butler said. "That boat was like a member of the family," he said.

William Butler said that, while floating aimlessly, they spotted nearly 40 ships but couldn't flag any down.

"No one saw us, and we fired our last flare the night before (the rescue), but the freighter we saw shined lights at us but never saw us."

Elementary school district adopts AIDS policy before Assembly does

Illinois government seeking to pass bill

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The Carbondale elementary school district got the jump on the Illinois General Assembly by establishing a policy for students with AIDS over a year before the assembly took action on the same issue.

Carbondale's District Policy Board adopted a policy in Spring 1988 that requires the district to maintain its responsibility in providing an education to children with chronic illnesses.

"The bill won't have any impact on us because we established our own policy," Superintendent Larry Jacober said.

The bill sponsored by Rep. John F. Dunn, D-Decatur, passed the Assembly and is waiting action by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The measure would require school districts to formulate a policy for students with AIDS. Carbondale's policy for children with AIDS is modeled after procedures for special education children, Jacober said.

A medical doctor, county health official and parents agree on the appropriate placement of the ill child.

"There is no question about the child receiving an education from our school," Jacober said.

The bill passed the Senate with 30 votes, the number required for passage.

If the bill is approved, school districts would be able to set their own policies without guidelines from the law.

Quayle: U.S. obliged to aid Contra rebels

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Vice President Dan Quayle, citing a "moral obligation" to the Nicaraguan Contras, said Monday the Bush administration wants to continue aid for the rebels, perhaps even after next year's planned elections in the Central American nation.

Quayle, addressing a crowd of about 7,000 at the 90th convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, added that there were "significant grounds for suspicion" about the Nicaraguan government's new commitment to democracy.

Earlier this month, the five Central American presidents signed a peace accord in Teja, Honduras, which included a commitment to democracy and the voluntary demobilization of armed resistance groups in the region.

The vice president, delivering what his office billed as the official administration response to the accord, said the United States favors the approach, but is not convinced Nicaragua's Marxist Sandinista leaders had good intentions.

"On the contrary, there are significant grounds for suspicion," said Quayle, stressing that the main concern of the administration must be for the Contra rebels who have been supported for the last seven years by the United States.

$116 billion budget deficit predicted, but spending cuts could be avoided

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration projected Monday that next year's budget deficit will be $16.2 billion higher than allowed by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law, but mandatory spending cuts still can be avoided.

Director Richard Darman of the Office of Management and Budget released the required August "snapshot" of whether the Gramm Rudman law is being complied with. Darman said that under current law, it appears the budget deficit for fiscal year 1990 will be $116.2 billion.

The Gramm-Rudman law requires the deficit not exceed $100 billion next year, $64 billion in fiscal 1991, $36 billion in fiscal 1992 and that the budget be balanced in fiscal 1993. Failure to meet those targets is supposed to trigger automatic, across-the-board spending cuts split between defense and non-defense programs.

But the law also gives Congress an extra 10 percent cushion, meaning the automatic spending cuts, called sequestration, would not take effect unless the OMB on Oct. 1 placed the fiscal 1990 deficit at more than $110 billion.

Darman, in a letter to President Bush, said he was "cautiously optimistic" that spending cuts would not be necessary.

Darman, in a letter to President Bush, said he was "cautiously optimistic" that spending cuts would not be necessary.

"Sequestration remains avoidable," Darman told Bush. "Clearly the margin for error is very small — and the margin available for additional spending is nil."

He said sequestration will only be avoidable if Congress follows the budget resolution it passed earlier this year. That resolution includes new revenues of $5.3 billion and $9 billion in other savings that would produce $14 billion for the Treasury.

Darman said that would be enough to offset expected spending increases and bring the fiscal 1990 deficit to just below the $110 billion mark, avoiding sequestration.

"We are cutting it very close," Darman told reporters at a briefing.

He said Congress would "try to find a way to spend every last dime up to the sequester trigger" and predicted the final deficit number "will be $109.999 billion" — just below the Gramm-Rudman threshold.

European community sends Beirut mission

PARIS (UPI) — Europe's Economic Community decided Monday to send a mission to Lebanon to determine civilian needs of the war-torn country and to try to help restore "conditions of normal existence," the French Foreign Ministry said.

The announcement by France in its role as rotating president of the Common Market came shortly after the Defense Ministry said it was sending two more ships to join a French armada approaching Lebanon's coast.

The Foreign Ministry said the 12 Economic Community members decided at a meeting of political directors in Paris to send "a needs-evaluating mission" to Beirut that not only would seek ways to alleviate immediate suffering but also would look at longer-term reconstruction if fighting could be halted.

The EC members also voiced support for the stalled efforts of an Arab League committee on Lebanon consisting of Saudi Arabia, Algeria and Morocco.

Hostages a 'lever' says Iranian paper

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — An Iranian newspaper suggested Monday that hostages should be used as a lever to prevent Western governments from intervening in Lebanon to support Christian strongman Gen. Michel Aoun against Syrian-backed Moslem forces.

The "susceptibility of Western governments vis-a-vis the hostage issue" is a "lever in the hands of Moslem combatants" to prevent foreign intervention, said the government-supervised daily Abrar.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted the newspaper as saying there was a link between the Lebanese crisis and the hostage issue now more than ever, and that Western governments could no longer ignore that fact.

The comments in the Iranian newspaper came a day after a terrorist group in Beirut threatened to kill two American hostages if the French use warships off the coast of Lebanon to back Aoun.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization, believed to be an offshoot of the Iranian-inspired Hezbollah, made the threat Sunday in a statement authenticated by a new black-and-white close-up photograph of U.S. hostage Edward A. Tracy.

The group charged that the United States was implicitly supporting the deployment of French warships off the Lebanese coast to back the Christians in their conflict against Syrian-backed Moslem groups.

The French aircraft carrier Foch and the frigate Cassard left the southern French port of Toulon Saturday bound for the Lebanese coast and a French hospital ship left the Atlantic port of Brest. A fuel ship and another frigate already are in the eastern Mediterranean.

French President Francois Mitterrand said Sunday the warships were on a purely humanitarian mission to protect French nationals in Lebanon and add'd the armada has "no military significance."

Moslem leaders have charged that the deployment of the naval force was a prelude to French military assistance to the Christian forces.

Campus Ministries offer variety of faith options

By Britt Parrutt
Staff Writer

Students are faced with a multitude of choices each school year, and they have a wide selection of religious choices as well. The Campus Ministries provide a plethora of options for students who are searching for a place to worship. "We encourage students to stay around," Rev. Knodt Knodt of the University Christian Ministries, said. "Talk to different campus ministries. Each one has its own personality and does different things."

If students don't want to shop around by themselves, Knodt advises grabbing a few friends and visiting the ministries as a group. Another option is to call one of the ministers and ask to be put on each ministry's mailing list, she said.

The newsletters list the activities of each ministry but vary in frequency—weekly, monthly or per semester.

Most of the ministries have a relationship with a congregation in town and some congregations offer an Adopt-a-Student program. If a student expresses an interest in joining a church or synagogue with a family, that student is hooked up with a volunteer family, Knodt said.

The Campus Ministries include: American Baptist Campus Ministry, B'Nai B'Rith, Campus Crusade for Christ, Canterbury Fellowship, Christian Campus Ministry.

Solidarity working on Cabinet, no talks until Parliament votes

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Prime Minister-designate Tadeusz Mazowiecki may offer six Cabinet posts to the Communist Party in his new Solidarity-led government, with only seven ministries controlled by the independent labor movement, a Solidarity Parliament source said Monday.

Mazowiecki said Monday he is not planning to hold talks with the Communists on their part in the country's first non-Communist government since World War II until he is approved by Parliament later this week.

The Solidarity source speculated that Mazowiecki would appoint seven Solidarity members to his Cabinet and allow the Communist Party to control six seats, including the crucial Defense and Interior ministries, "as a gesture of a compromise."

The Peasant party, one of Solidarity's coalition partners, would get five Cabinet seats, according to the source, and three would go to the other coalition partner, the Democratic party. One of the smaller coalition parties may get the Foreign Ministry seat, the source said.

Mazowiecki has said he will attempt to form his Cabinet by the end of August after being approved by the Sejm, or lower house of Parliament, in a vote expected later this week.

Navigation blamed in sinking

Criminal charges considered after cruise boat parties perish

LONDON (UPI) — Port investigators Monday blamed "a navigational mistake" for the sinking of a crowded pleasure boat during a cruise on the River Thames, England, and police considered criminal charges in the weekend accident that killed at least 25 people.

As many as 150 people at a birthday party were plunged in the river's muddy and polluted waters about 1:40 a.m. Sunday when the 1,475-ton barge Bowbelle slammed into the Marchioness, splitting the 80-ton pleasure boat in half and sinking it within minutes.

After finishing Monday's search, Scotland Yard said that 25 bodies from the Marchioness had been recovered and police had identified 87 survivors.

The spokesman also said police are searching for 38 people identified as possible passengers whose whereabouts have not been accounted for since the disaster.

A spokesman said earlier that police believed there were 120 people on board the boat at the time of the accident, but cautioned it may have been carrying up to its listed capacity of 150 passengers.

Among the missing was Antonio de Valconcellos, a Portuguese banker and socialist who was the host of the glitzy party to celebrate his 26th birthday when the collision occurred. The party was attended by several top figures in the London fashion and modeling community.

Police said it could be days before they are able to compile a final death toll because of the difficulty in determining how many people were on board. More than 25 police launches were cruising the Thames in an intensive search for bodies, which may have been washed far downstream by the river's swift current.

In the response to the disaster, Transport Secretary Cecil Parkinson announced stringent new measures controlling pleasure boats to be implemented within 24 hours. Under the rules, the number of passenger aboard all charter vessels must be left ashore and passengers must be briefed on what they should do in an emergency.

Debbie Faldo, wife of the Marchioness' skipper Steven Faldo, dropped six red roses in the Thames in memory of her husband.

The London port authority will also increase river patrols on the Thames and will set up a meeting of groups representing river users to consider whether further measures should be taken, a Transport Department spokesman said.

The 150-foot hull of the Marchioness was hoisted in two pieces from the Thames about 18 hours after the accident and hauled at daybreak Monday to shallow waters on the river's north shore. Most of the bodies so far recovered were located in the wreckage when it was raised Sunday.

Among the dead was the Marchioness's skipper, Stephen Faldo, whose wife Debbie Faldo dropped six red roses Monday into the Thames in memory of her husband. They had been married only a few weeks.

Port authorities sought Monday to determine why the Marchioness was cruising in the Thames' central channel, a deep thoroughfare usually reserved for the largest ships on the river.

Terry Hatton, a spokesman for the Port of London Authority, said the authority opened its investigation of the accident Monday in conjunction with the Transport Department.

"The point is to find out how it happened and make sure it doesn't happen again," Hatton said. "It's a navigational mistake of some sort."

Hatton said he would not comment on who had the right of way through the main channel, but added "it forms part of the investigation."

"In general, the smaller vessels, because of their better maneuverability, would normally keep to one side of the river, but it's up to the individual captains."

The London daily The Independent reported Tuesday that the crews of the two vessels argued over their radios just before the collision about who had the right of way through the central span of London's Southwark Bridge.

William Ludgrove, a spokesman for Tidal Cruises said the vessel was within its navigational rights.

'Super' fire ants found plaguing southern U.S.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Researchers say they've identified a hybrid "super" fire ant that is bigger, meaner and tougher than those that already plague much of the southern United States.

That's not all the bad news, either — these hybrids appear to be more tolerant to cold than their ancestors and could eventually migrate northward.

And that's still not the end of the bad news — the researchers say they're finding an increasing number of fire ant colonies with multiple queens, which means a potential populations explosion.

David Williams, a research entomologist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said one of his colleagues calls the fire ant research "witnessing evolution" because of the changes that are unfolding.

"I think these things are evolving," Williams told the Florida Times-Union in a story published Monday. The hybrids and multiple-queens phenomena are troublesome because scientists believe eradication is no longer possible.

Fire ants "feed on anything," Williams said, and can kill people who are hypersensitive to stings or too small or frail to move away.

In the case of the multiple-queen colonies, a pasture that may have had 30 or 40 mounds to the acre of the typical single-queen colonies, there may be 200 to 300 multiple-queen colonies with up to 500 queens per mound.

If the numbers of multiple-queen colonies continue to grow, the ant numbers could increase so much it would make "ecological deserts" of the areas where they appear, Williams said.

The multi-queen colonies first "popped up in Texas" several years ago.

University shows contributions to region at fair

Displays presented daily in Du Quoin

By Christine Broda
Staff Writer

Contributing to the quality of life in Southern Illinois is more than just the theme of the University's participation in this year's Du Quoin State Fair.

It's the opportunity for SIU-C to demonstrate what contributions it has made to the region and this is exactly what about 30 organizations from the University plan to do.

The Department of Geology will be demonstrating the use of a seismograph.

"We are interested in seeing lots of people come by and seeing what the University can do for them," Terry Nathias, project director for University Relations, said.

Displays, information and videotapes will be presented daily at the SIU Dome and will represent a wide range of departments, offices and services at SIU.

Highlights of special features at the fair include a live interview with Gov. James R. Thompson that will be broadcast from the dome at 7 p.m. on Aug. 31.

The Department of Geology is a first time participant and will be demonstrating the use of a seismograph, a collecting and recording instrument for earthquakes.

Charts displaying the seismography of the New Madrid fault will also be on exhibit.

"The fault is one of the most active in the southeastern United States and continues to be of interest because it could affect Carbondale and surrounding areas," John Sexton, of the geology department, said.

SIU-C Fisheries Research Laboratory will be making its third appearance at the fair and although the exhibit has maintained the same look for the last two years, it should be a smashing success if it is anything like previous years,

Graphics by Mike Bailey

Dan Selock, aquaculture technology transfer specialist, said.

Selock said the exhibit will consist of five tanks of fish and storyboards providing information about the fish which include large mouth bass, hybrid striped, sunfish, golden shiners and rosey redds. However, Selock said the cray fish always make the biggest hit with the kids who are allowed to handle them and enjoy letting them run up their arms and pinch their fingers.

For more serious fishers, the exhibit will include a catfish skinning machine, testing kits, oxygen meters and a spawning trough.

Selock said the department has been receiving many inquiries about aquaculture

Men's glee club revived after six year absence

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

A men's glee club will be offered at SIU-C this fall for the first time in over six years.

John V. Mochnick, director of choral activities in SIU-C's School of Music, said he decided to start the glee club again because of recent interest in men's choruses.

Mochnick said not enough men are singing anymore and the School of Music decided to spark interest by "meeting the challenge head-on and starting up the glee club again."

Mochnick said there is no audition required for the group and he would not turn any interested person away, regardless of prior vocal experience. He said he wants at least 30 members in the club, but will take as many members as he can get.

A. B. Miffiin, a part-time consultant for University Relations who has been associated with the glee club since it first started in 1962, said he is glad to see the vocal group return to SIU-C.

Rehearsals for the glee club will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 12:00-12:50 in room 115 of Altgeld Hall. Members can obtain one credit hour by registering for MUS 365A.

The SIU-C men's glee club began in 1962 under the direction of Bob Kingley, who was the director of choral activity at SIU-C for 23 years.

State Fair attendance reaches record level

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Cooler weather and generally happier participants made this year's Illinois State Fair the largest ever, event officials said Monday.

Fair Superintendent Merle Miller said the event drew 1,061,947 for its 11-day run from Aug. 10 to 20. The largest single-day attendance was 143,826 on Aug. 12, he said.

As of Monday afternoon, officials had tallied $195,845.55 in sales tax from the fair's 361 concessionaires and 181 exhibitors. Helen Adorjan, spokeswoman for the state Department of Revenue, said another $2,000 to $3,000 would be added to the sales tax figure.

Adorjan said $215,177.85 was collected in total taxes. That figure includes sales, income, bingo and other taxes. She said she expects that figures to increase from $4,000 to $5,000. The previous record has $200,553 set in 1987.

The attendance figure represents the fourth time since 1985 the fair drew more than 1 million people. The old record — 1,059,464 in 1986 — was followed by a 1,020,746 turnout in 1987. But attendance dropped to 912,933 last year when fairgoers had to contend with temperatures of more than 100 degrees for several days of the event.

"I think this year's was one of the greatest," Miller said. "When I went down the street people were smiling. Last year it was just too hot, people were getting down here and not wanting to stay. This year was really fun.

"The weather was a big part of it. But I would like to think we put a show together that people really enjoyed. The big thing was we did a good job of expanding the things we had done in the past. People just seemed to be in the mood to go to a fair."

The country-rock group Alabama drew about 8,000 to the grandstand area for the event's largest paying concert, fair spokesman Mark Randall said. A free concert by the Chicago Symphony also drew about 8,000. Randall said musicians Bob Dylan and the Judds drew approximately 7,000 concertgoers.

But the backbone of the fair, Miller said, was agriculture.

k.d. lang wants in the Nashville establishment

By Jon Bream
Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune

k.d. lang has been all over television — "The Tonight Show," "The Country Music Association Awards," "Salute to the American Songwriter," "Late Night With David Letterman," Roy Orbison's cable-TV special — but you can't hear her music on country radio stations.

"I grew up in a small town where eccentricity was individuality."

—k.d. lang

"It's kind of a weird paradox," said lang, who is from Consort, Alberta, population 650, and now lives in Vancouver, British Columbia. "I'm accepted artistically in Nashville. I performed on the CMA Awards; but I'm not nominated for any. (She was nominated for three Grammys last year.) Country is intimidated by me or scared."

"It's hard to second-guess radio," she said. "I could grow my hair, wear pretty little dresses and then go around to all the country stations. Gimmicks don't make it with me. If it was meant to happen, it'll happen. I do the regular (promotional) things all artists do — phone interviews, in-stores (autograph sessions) and radio (visits)."

Somehow, audiences find out about lang. Her new album, "Absolute Torch 'n' Twang," has sold about 300,000 copies in less than three months and ranks No. 16 on Billboard's country chart. By lang's measure, those are encouraging sales figures. She said a good-selling pop album does 3 million copies and a good-selling country LP 500,000. Moreover, she has been playing concerts in front of good-sized crowds.

The singer would like to be "user friendly" with the Nashville establishment the way Orbison and Ray Charles have been at various points of their careers. She wants the respect of the country-music community and the opportunity to occasionally be part of it while maintaining the freedom to make music her own way.

lang's last album

"Shadowland," was a stone-cold country record, recorded in Nashville with revered producer Owen Bradley, who had worked with Patsy Cline, Loretta Lynn and other stars of an earlier era. lang recreated Cline classics with a little help from Lynn, Kitty Wells and Brenda Lee.

The singer would like to be "user friendly" with the Nashville establishment the way Roy Orbison and Ray Charles have been at various points of their careers.

"I learned a lot from 'Shadowland,'" lang said. "My obsession with Patsy subsided. I grew up a lot. I started to feel comfortable with going in a new direction."

"Shadowland" was a curveball after lang's left-field 1987 debut, rock, swing, country and tearjerker ballads. With "Angel," lang thought her colorful image overshadowed her voice. "Shadowland" was the opposite — a pure vocal showcase. "I think I've got the balance on 'Absolute Torch 'n' Twang,'" she said.

The widest exposure for lang has come from her duet with the late Orbison on his "Cryin'." Their 1988 recording led to her appearance on his much-lauded cable-TV special and, after his death last year, on TV's "Salute to the American Songwriter."

She said singing with Orbison was "self-satisfying" and gave her credibility in the music industry.

lang, 27, is an artist who must be seen as well as heard. Kathy Dawn Lang, who played piano and guitar in her youth, became involved in painting and performance art in college. In 1982, she began focusing on her country music, which she considers "white North American blues." With her 6-year-old band, the reclines, she has combined performance art with her broad view of country music, giving concerts that are as kitschy and campy as they are musically rewarding.

"I grew up in a small town where eccentricity was individuality," lang said. "I think the Judds are eccentric. I think Lyle Lovett and Reba McEntire and K.T. Oslin are eccentric."

The widest exposure for lang has come from her duet with late Orbison on his "Cryin'." Their 1988 recording led to her appearance on his much-lauded cable-TV special Except all of those eccentric country stars of the late '80s get radio airplay.

"I have a solid base of fans and my popularity is growing," lang said. "But if you want to buy a house, you need to be on the radio."

Conservationist Adamson killed in shootout with African robbers

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Conservationist George Adamson, whose efforts with his wife Joy to return lions to the wild were chronicled in her book "Born Free," was shot to death in a clash with robbers at his camp in a remote nature reserve, officials said Monday.

The slaying Sunday came nearly 10 years after Joy Adamson was stabbed to death at another remote camp in Kenya by a young worker she had fired for alleged theft.

George Adamson, a British citizen in his early 80s, was killed Sunday along with two assistants in the Kora National Reserve about 160 miles northwest of the capital Nairobi, said Richard Leakey, Kenya's director of wildlife.

Leakey said Adamson died while brandishing a pistol and charging in a vehicle toward the robbers, who minutes earlier had way laid another vehicle from his camp and broken the legs of one of the occupants.

The three bandits fired with automatic weapons, riddling Adamson's car with bullets and killing him and the assistants.

Adamson was "a very brave man who having spent his life fighting poachers and protecting wildlife, decided he was not going to back off," Leakey said.

By midday Monday, about 350 security officers had spread a cordon in an 80-mile radius around Adamson's camp, said Leakey.

"The government is going to spare no effort," he said. "It is our intention to find these men and bring them to justice."

The slaying Sunday came nearly 10 years after Joy Adamson was stabbed to death in Kenya by a young worker she had fired in an alleged theft.

The killing comes at a sensitive time for Kenya, a poor country for which tourism is the leading foreign exchange earner.

Three tourists — two French and one American — were killed last month in encounters with armed men in and near game parks

Adamson and his wife attained international renown with her book and the subsequent movie "Born Free," which detailed their successful effort to return to the wilds the lioness Elsa. A sequel, "Living Free," followed the story of Elsa and her cubs.

Joy Adamson was stabbed to death Jan 3, 1980, at a campsite at the Shaba Game Reserve in northern Kenya. Paul Ekai, a young Turkana tribesman who had worked briefly for Adamson but was fired after being accused of stealing a small sum of money, was convicted of her murder and sentenced to prison.

The couple had separated before Joy was killed — she to pursue work with leopards in Shaba National Reserve and he to live at Kora. Between the film, which was made in 1963, and their separation they spent five years in Meru National Park, located just west of Kora.

George Adamson, who was born in 1906 in India, had lived at Kora since 1970. Under his influence it became a national reserve.

Thousands protest Warsaw Pact invasion

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Thousands of people chanting "Freedom" and "Long Live Poland" commemorated the 21st anniversary of the 1968 Warsaw Pact invasion of their country Monday in Wenceslas Square, but were quickly driven away by police.

Several protesters who sat down in the square and refused to move were hit by police before being hauled into paddy wagons, but there were no reports on the number of casualties.

Witnesses said they saw about a dozen people detained on the square.

Hundreds of uniformed police with riot shields, helmets and nightsticks, backed by trucks with screaming sirens, pushed the crowd out of a mile-long street in about a 2-hour into side streets, where the confrontations continued.

"This man doesn't have a heart," grumbled one Czech in disgust as a commander ordered a police van onto the sidewalk to push into the crowd of mostly young demonstrators.

Police followed as demonstrators scattered through the city breaking up other clusters of protesters. After the square was cleared, the scream of sirens and the blare of bullhorns in the police vans could be heard moving down the cobblestone streets.

Two hours after the rally began, police had departed and Prague's Wenceslas Square was once more open and filled with tourists.

Despite strong warnings by authorities against any demonstrations to mark the day, five opposition groups, including the human rights organization Charter 77, called for two minutes of silence at 5 p.m. to mark the anniversary of the invasion by troops from five Warsaw pact that smothered the so-called "Prague Spring" of reforms initiated by then Communist Party leader Alexander Dubcek.

The old regime that was installed by Moscow after 1968 still holds the power in Czechoslovakia, which has stubbornly resisted the economic and political reforms of the Soviet Union or of its more liberal neighbors, Hungary and Poland.

"We are afraid, but we are afraid for our children who will come after us," said 18-year-old Martin Slamar. "We want the society we would like to have, not the society they would like to have... and not a society where the people up there are not accountable."

Authorities last week detained several opposition activists in advance of the commemoration, and some 30 protesters were arrested Sunday in a smaller demonstration.

The demonstration began quietly on a blistering hot day, under a strong sun, at Prague's Wenceslas Square. The situation had been tense all day, with a visible police presence at nearly every street corner who frequently checked the identities of passersby.

When a group of Hungarians put up a sign saying, "The Bolsheviks came with tanks, We come with flowers," police began making detentions.

That brought cries of "shame" from the crowd, which then launched into chants of "Freedom," and "Long Live Poland," where a prime minister from the independent Solidarity movement has been named to lead the first non-communist government in Eastern Europe since the communist takeover on Czechoslovakia in 1948.

As they began singing the Czech and Slovak national anthem, a romantic ballad that begins "Where is my home?" police started moving in. Several tourists apparently were caught in the fray.

$100 million in cocaine confiscated

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — More than 12,000 suspects have been arrested in Colombia's most extensive dragnet against narcotic traffickers, but Defense Minister Gen. Oscar Botero said Monday the most important druglords remain at large.

Empowered under a state of siege to make raids without a judicial order, more than 20,000 soldiers and police officers also confiscated an estimated $100 million in properties belonging to suspected drug barons such as Pablo Escobar and Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha.

The suspects are accused by Colombian authorities of participating in several murders of judges and journalists, and U.S. authorities put them on an extradition list of 120 Colombians wanted in the United States for cocaine smuggling.

President Virgilio Barco on Friday revived extradition mechanisms and invoked a state-of-siege decree in response to the killings of a top politician and other officials by assassins suspected linked to cocaine smuggling groups.

Botero announced Monday that more than 12,000 suspects have been arrested in 600 raids under the massive crackdown, but that the key barons were eluding authorities.

"The most important traffickers are either leaving the country or have gone into hiding. Sooner or later we will get them," the defense minister said. "Right now the important thing is to get their collaborators. And then eventually we'll get them."

Police, meanwhile, were interrogating witnesses and suspects in the gangland-type killings last week of Superior Judge Carlos Valencia, Medellin Police Chief Valdemar Franklin Quintero and presidential candidate Luis Carlos Galana.

"So far we have no announcements to make, but we expect to make fast progress in the next days in regards to these murders that jolted public opinion not only in Colombia but in the rest of the world," Botero said.

Yankee outfielder guilty in sex case

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — New York Yankee outfielder Luis Polonia was found guilty of having sexual intercourse with a child Monday after pleading no contest to a misdemeanor charge that he had relations with a 15-year-old girl.

Circuit Judge Thomas Doherty ordered a pre-sentence investigation and scheduled sentencing for Oct. 2, the day after the regular season ends. Polonia faced a maximum sentence of 90 days in the county House of Corrections and a $10,000 fine.

Under a no contest plea, a defendant does not acknowledge innocence or guilt. Doherty accepted the plea and found Polonia guilty. Polonia and his attorneys declined comment. The outfielder remained free on a $5,000 bond.

Assistant District Attorney John DiMotto asked Doherty to sentence Polonia immediately but Doherty said he did not know enough about the case and ordered the pre-sentence investigation.

"The family would like finality to the matter today," DiMotto said.

DiMotto also read a statement from the girl's family members, saying they did not seek felony charges because of embarrassment to the family and publicity for the child. DiMotto had consulted with the family about the charges.

"We, the family of the girl, think the effect and pressure of publicity of this case might hurt our daughter," the family's statement said.

Polonia's attorney, Dennis Coffey of Milwaukee, said he was concerned about possible deportation for the outfielder, a citizen of the Dominican Republic. "We've heard that the federal government is investigating the matter and that concerns us," Coffey said.

The criminal complaint said Polonia, 24, had sexual intercourse with the girl twice in his hotel room, once after she had admitted to him she was a minor. He was arrested in the room about 3 a.m. Wednesday, after the girl's mother called police.

Under Wisconsin law, an adult having sex with a person under 16 constitutes second-degree sexual assault, regardless of the circumstances. The law says someone under that age is incapable of giving consent.

Polonia saw the girl in the stands at County Stadium during Tuesday night's game with the Milwaukee Brewers and asked how old she was, the complaint said. A friend of the girl answered she was 19, and the two made arrangements to meet at the team bus after the game.

They drove to downtown Milwaukee in a car, and Polonia asked whether she was really 19, the complaint said. When the girl said she had no identification, they went to the hotel and ordered room service.

A plea agreement was reached after the girl's family asked she not be required to testify in court, DiMotto said.

Polonia, who is single, is in his second year in the major leagues. He was signed as a free agent by Oakland on Jan. 3, 1984.

He was called up from the minor leagues by the A's on June 15, 1988. He played in 82 of 89 regular season games as well as the American League Championship Series and the World Series.

Topps art sold to hotel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marriott Hotels and Resorts said Monday it paid $209,000 this weekend for the original 1953 Topps baseball card artwork of Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays.

Mantle, at $121,000, and Mays, at $88,000, were the top sellers at the two-day sports memorabilia auction held at Hunter College in New York City.

The two 3-by-5-inch paintings will be displayed at Marriott hotels throughout the country including those that feature Champions sports bars. The paintings of Mantle and Mays were created by Topps in 1953 for that season's series of baseball cards. That was the only year illustrations were used instead of photographs for baseball card production.

The one-of-a-kind paintings were part of a set of six auctioned off at Hunter College. The other four paintings sold included Jackie Robinson, $71,000; Whitey Ford, $35,200; Bob Feller, $33,000.

Timberwolves sign Leonard

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Minnesota Timberwolves said Monday they have signed former University of Missouri center Gary Leonard to a three-year contract.

Leonard, 7-1, 240 pounds, was a second-round selection in the 1989 NBA draft and the 34th player selected overall.

Timberwolves President Bob Stein also hired Tom Thibodeau.

Ryan Express rolls on to 5,000th stop

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — Nolan Ryan, who at age 42 continues to throw 95 mph fastballs past yet another generation of befuddled batters, Tuesday night reaches for another milestone in a fabulous career.

With the Oakland Athletics serving as the opposition, Ryan will try for his 5,000th strikeout. It would be one more proud achievement for the man who has thrown the most no-hitters (five) and who has established strikeout standards that may be forever unmatched.

Ryan will take the mound for the Texas Rangers Tuesday night needing six strikeouts to reach 5,000. In only two outings this season has he failed to strike out that many.

A sellout crowd of more than 42,000 will be on hand. Within hours after Ryan's most recent outing, in which he struck out eight in Seattle to come up six short of 5,000, the last 10,000 tickets to Tuesday night's game were sold. One fan in Maryland called the Rangers ticket office in an attempt to buy 12 tickets — not to see the game, but to have the ticket stubs as potentially valuable souvenirs.

"My attitude has always been that I didn't want the fans to go away disappointed," Ryan said. "Naturally, I'd like to do it Tuesday night. If I didn't, I'd probably feel worse about it than the fans would."

When his 5,000th strikeout comes, be it Tuesday night or in his next scheduled outing Sunday night against the California Angels, it will serve as a symbol for an amazing career.

This is Ryan's 22nd season in the big leagues. He is the oldest player in the majors and he is having his best season in years.

"During the spring," Ryan said, "I didn't know what to expect this year. I was with a new team (having signed as a free agent with the Rangers). I knew there would be heat in Arlington. I was pitching in a new league. But I felt if I pitched enough innings, I'd have a good shot at it (5,000)."

Not only has Ryan closed quickly toward 5,000 this year, but he is in the midst of his best season of the 1980s. He is on a pace that could bring him close to 300 strikeouts this year, something he has not achieved since 1977.

In addition, a strong finish could bring him 20 victories and he has done that only twice in his career — in 1973 and 1974.

Through it all, however, the fact that he is close to 5,000 strikeouts still comes as a shock to Ryan.

"I remember when I struck out my 4,000th man (in 1985), somebody asked me about 5,000," he said. "They just said it in jest.

"I thought, 'Lord, help me. I never thought I would have a chance for 5,000 because it would be so hard for me to stay around long enough to do it.'"

So what about 6,000? "I may be able to do it if I play that 35-and-over league they are talking about," he said.

Ryan's bid for 5,000 strikeouts will come in the opening game of a six-game homestand against the two leading teams in the American League West.

"I don't think it (the excitement over his achievement) will be a distraction to our players," Ryan said. "Hopefully, the big crowd we will have will cause excitement in the ballpark and that will have an affect on our team and we can get the homestand off to a good start. We are still in the pennant race."

In addition to the sellout crowd, the Rangers have received 200 requests for media credentials for the game — most in club history.

Arrowhead Stadium says 'no' to rowdies

By GIB TWYMAN
Kansas City Star and Times

It's the fourth quarter and the loudmouthed lout near you and your family is spewing a beery string of four-letter words that would stretch from here to the nearest gutter.

Who you gonna call? A nosebuster? If you're at Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City, you call an usher. The usher informs said lout that unless he puts a lid on it, he is out of there. One warning. One more obscenity, security ejects him.

This is just one of the policies that Carl Peterson, team president and general manager, has pledged to customers as part of Fan Fair, a comprehensive program aimed at making the stadium environment optimum for safe, sane family entertainment.

"Our fans are our reason for being," said Tim Connolly, executive vice president who helped formulate Fan Fair. "They are special to us, and they deserve to be treated that way."

Fan Fair has three main parts — an automated ticket system with 36 phones to replace the antiquated, frustrating operation of the past; a Clean Team of 66 workers to keep the stadium spiffy during games; new conduct policies, including a family section without beer, stopping beer sales after the third quarter and training ushers to handle excessive drinkers.

Security personnel will stay on the move, checking with ushers, trying to head off problems before they get worse. Signs and scoreboard messages will remind fans of policies.

Such steps may seem superfluous to building a sound football organization. Inevitably, someone will say, "Spare me the cutesy-wutesey slogans, dirt-death squads and swearword SWAT teams; just give me playoffs."

Some will see alcohol policies as denying their right to life, liberty and the pursuit of bombing themselves back to the Stone Age.

But the Chiefs are to be congratulated for Fan Fair — because it matters. Building a winning football team is a tricky business which even competent people can find difficult. But an organization can take care of its paying customers.

Connolly and his staff conducted two-hour interviews with 100 fans. Peterson spoke to 150 groups, Connolly 50. Wherever they went, they found one overriding theme.

"Rowdiness," Connolly said. "Yes, I'd like to come back to Arrowhead," they'd say, "but I can't bring my wife and daughter anymore because of the way people act."

New Jersey Nets tab Fitch as next coach

SECAUCUS, N.J. (UPI) — The New Jersey Nets, seeking veteran leadership to turn around a young, struggling team, Monday named Bill Fitch coach.

Fitch, 55, replaces Willis Reed, who moved into the Nets' front office Aug. 11. Fitch led the Boston Celtics to the league championship in 1981 and is the fifth winningest coach in NBA history with a record of 762-714.

He spent nine years with the Cleveland Cavaliers, four with the Celtics and five with the Houston Rockets. He was fired by Houston in June 1988.

The Nets were 33-77 under Reed, who became coach with 28 games left in the 1987-88 season. New Jersey finished fifth in the Atlantic Division last season.

Fitch said after sitting out a year, he was looking for the right situation to return to coaching.

"If it wasn't a good organization, it wouldn't have gotten my attention," he said. "I don't have to be here."

"I certainly wouldn't go somewhere where I didn't think we had a good chance of winning. I like the youth of this team. It's a case of the green apple turning red."

General Manager Harry Weltman said Fitch was his first choice to replace Reed, but declined to say if he interviewed other candidates. He added that Fitch was the right man to work with a team filled with young players.

Weltman and Fitch pointed to players like rookie Mookie Blaylock, Dennis Hopson, Charles Shackleford and Chris Morris as building blocks for the future.

Fitch said he took up golf during the offseason and that helped him decide to coach again.

"I spent the last year on the golf course," he said. "I was out there in deserts, water and forest. God didn't mean for me to be a golfer."

Fitch said he was stung when the Rockets fired him, but the itch to coach returned last February when he was watching one or two games every night on television.

Otto moves on despite bad legs

By DWIGHT CHAPIN
San Francisco Examiner

When you see Jim Otto struggling to get around on legs that have been carved up so many times he's almost lost count, one inescapable question keeps coming up:

Was it worth it?

Was being the iron man of pro football — 210 consecutive regular-season games over 15 years as the Raiders center — and a perennial All-Pro worth 15 years of post-football agony, and an uncertain future?

"When you lay in bed after those operations and have complications, you wonder," Otto says. "I had tremendous stress-related gout the last time I had a knee operation. But in a week or 10 days your thoughts heal, and you don't wonder anymore. You say to yourself yes, you'd do it all over again."

"Without football, I never would have been where I am today. I'm injured, but I'm living in California, have a good business and a lot of friends."

Otto, who in 1980 became the first Raider voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, is a man's man. Two objects dominate his office, which is next to one of the five Burger Kings he owns near Auburn, Calif. One is a portrait of John Wayne, which hangs behind his desk. The other is a giant stuffed Alaskan brown bear Otto shot in 1973.

He's always loved outdoor activities. His legs won't let him hunt and fish like normal outdoorsmen anymore. He does his hunting while sitting on a rock, his fishing from a boat.

"I can't play volleyball or tennis or golf, either," he says. "I can't work in my restaurants or my walnut orchards. My day is just this — being in my office. I can sit here and have meetings until I'm blue in the face, but my income is hampered because I can't be out doing what I want to do."

Hart, Smith want McAndrew sellout

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Coming from the University of Illinois, first-year head coach Bob Smith is familiar with the roar of a full stadium and University Athletic Director Jim Hart is trying to make him feel right at home.

In late June Hart began a promotion, called "Stadium Sellout Day," which will attempt to fill McAndrew Stadium's 17,324 seats on Sept. 9. The Salukis will be playing their first home game of the season against the Western Illinois University Leathernecks, the defending Gateway Conference champions.

Smith said he wanted to provide the students and the community with a team everyone could be proud of.

"We need the student body there in mass," Smith said. "Just there being loud and obnoxious and giving the Leathernecks some heck could mean the difference of a touchdown."

Smith said football is part of a any major university and having the students attending the game will be a good way to start off the fall semester for everyone involved.

Hart said the community and student leaders have been very helpful in getting the word out about the promotion.

"The city is preparing a proclamation for Coach Bob Smith in support of keeping football," Hart said. The proclamation will be given at the Aug. 29 City Council meeting.

On campus Hart has met with members of the freshman class, Student Life Advisers, representatives of student government and Greek organizations seeking support for the promotion.

Hart said he has seen a great deal of excitement from the groups he has met with and has received a "strong endorsement of football" from the student government.

Tim Hildebrand, president of the Undergraduate Student Government, said he has met with Hart and will be cooperating in the promotion.

Hildebrand said the nearly 150 members of USG have been asked to spread the word about the promotion to their friends and contacts.

Starting the game at 4 p.m.

instead of the usual 1:30 p.m. starting time was something Hildebrand that Hart discussed. Starting the game later would allow for people to participate in other activities early in the day and avoid the hot summer sun. The Sept. 16 game against Eastern Illinois also will start at 4 p.m.

Hildebrand said RAs also will be asked to sponsor floor outtings for their residents going to the game as a group.

Fred Huff, men's sports information director, said the promotion still needs a lot of work and what is needed is for people to come and buy blocks of tickets.

"I like what I see and I like what I hear," Huff said.

"The greatest thing that could happen is to go out and upset Nevada-Reno," Huff said.

Hart said that if football was to remain at the University the Athletic Department would have to work hard at promoting the sport. "It's scary, we've put our necks out for this promotion," he said.

During the spring semester Anthropology Professor Jerome Handler sought to have football dropped from the University seeking to have the money saved from the elimination channeled into academic areas.

McAndrew Stadium has never been sold out but has come close on a few occasions.

Huff said the closest the stadium ever came to being sold out came on Sept. 13, 1980 when 17,100 fans watched the Salukis beat Eastern Illinois University 37-35. The game was played in honor of Mark Hemphill, a defensive back, who had been paralyzed playing for the Salukis the previous season.

Masters swimmers set records at event

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The Saluki Masters swim club had 11 first place finishes and set nine individual state records through the weekend at the United States Masters long course championships held at the University of North Dakota in Grand Fork, ND.

The event, held Aug. 17-20, is held once every year and is open to individuals 25 years old and over. More than 100 teams were represented by the 586 swimmers involved in the meet. Competitors came from all over the U.S., Puerto Rico, Canada, Australia and the Virgin Islands.

Larry Good, assistant professor of physical education, had an outstanding weekend at the event, placing first in four individual events. Swimming in the 55-59 age group, Good set Illinois state records in the 800 meter freestyle at 11:31.75; 200 meter individual medley at 2:56.44; 400 meter individual medley at 6:27.27; and placed first in the 100 meter backstroke at 1:20.28.

Mary Pohlmann, staff physician at the SIU-C health service, entered into the women's, 40-44 age group and finished second in the 800 meter freestyle, 50 and 100 meter backstroke. Pohlmann also received two third place finishes for her effort in the 200 meter backstroke and 200 meter butterfly.

Edward Shea, retired professor of physical education, set state records in the 800 meter freestyle with a time of 13:37.45; 200 meter freestyle at 3:06.56; and the 400 meter medley at 6:37.47. Shea received a first, second and third place finish respectively. All three times were state records in the 70-74 age bracket.

Pohlmann said Larry Good was the outstanding Saluki through the weekend. "He was awesome. He is a former national champion and he repeated the past performances this weekend," she said.

Tomczak wins starting job against Chiefs on Sunday

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bears quarterback Mike Tomczak has been given No. 1 status by Coach Mike Ditka — at least for now.

Tomczak, the heir-apparent to Jim McMahon, will start against the Kansas City Chiefs in the third preseason game Sunday at Soldier Field.

"I'm not saying that can't change, but that's the way I'm leaning," Ditka said. "If I do have to make a change, I will. We can't set things in cement unless the performance dictates that. I think that's a mistake you sometimes get locked into."

McMahon, the Bears' oft-injured quarterback since 1982, was traded to the Chargers Friday for a conditional 1990 draft pick.

Tomczak, a four-year veteran out of Ohio State, took over the starting role last year when McMahon sprained a knee and retained it even after McMahon returned from injured reserve. He led the Bears into the playoffs and to the NFC Championship game before having to sit out because of a shoulder injury.

"He really believes," Ditka said of Tomczak. "There was a time there he probably thought he was a backup quarterback, and after watching the performance of No. 9 (McMahon), I think he said, 'No, I'm as good as as him in every area — except I haven't played as much.' Then he wasn't satisfied watching or backing up."

"Last year, he played a few games as good as we've had anybody play since I've been here. Anybody."

Neither Tomczak nor Harbaugh was effective against San Diego Saturday, with rookie Brent Snyder guiding the team to its only score in the closing minutes.

Tomczak was 2 of 9 for 32 yards with an interception that was returned 49 yards for a touchdown. Harbaugh, who played the entire first half, was 9 of 14 for 84 yards with a fumble.

Ailing White Sox recall hot Sosa, Pasqua slated for knee surgery

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox Monday recalled outfielder Sammy Sosa from Vancouver to replace Dan Pasqua, who was sidelined with a knee injury.

Sosa, 20, batted .367 with one home run and five RBI in 13 Pacific Coast League games. He was acquired from the Texas Rangers with second baseman Scott Fletcher and left-handed pitcher Wilson Alvarez on July 29 in exchange for outfielder/designated hitter Harold Baines and infielder Fred Manrique.

Sosa was scheduled to make his White Sox debut Tuesday against Minnesota.

The 6-foot, 175-pound Sosa began the season with the Rangers' AA Tulsa team, where he batted .297 with 15 doubles, four triples, seven home runs and 31 RBI.

Sosa debuted with the Rangers June 16, hitting .238 with three doubles, one home run and three RBI in 25 games before being optioned to AAA Oklahoma City.

The Sox put Pasqua on the extended 60-day disabled list Sunday. He was scheduled to undergo arthroscopic surgery on his right knee to repair damaged cartilage Tuesday.
