Adler, Draper Draw Almost Capacity Crowd

By Jane DeLap and Lou Walker

On Friday, December 14, in Shroyck Auditorium Larry Adler, harmonica virtuoso, and Paul Draper, appeared in the second of the season's Cooperative Concert series. Their joint recital proved to be one of the most popular ever presented and drew enthusiastic applause from an almost capacity crowd.

Larry Adler opened the program with Paul Berger's Concerto for Harmonica, written for Mr. Adler and played by him for the first time in 1942 with the St. Louis Symphony.

Following this, he interpreted several classical numbers by Bloch, Bach, Diniou, and Saint-Saens. In this group his favorite by Bach and Dondo Capriccioso by Saint-Saens were definite high points.

Other fine numbers by Mr. Adler which seemed to be the most popular with audience were Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue, Ravel's Habenera, and Debussy's Claire de Lune. His encores were much lighter than the rest, including such favorites as a Blues medley consisting of Blues in the Night and St. Louis Blues, Hand to Mouth Rag, It Might As Well Be Spring, and Embraceable You, the last two with Mr. Adler at the piano playing his own left hand accompaniment.

Draper Combines Forms of Dancing

Mr. Draper in his part of the program employed a combination of the classical ballet form, modern tap, and interpretive dancing. Very fine were his interpretations of Paradies' Tocatta, Grahms' Intermezzo, a Dance Without Music, two Spanish dances and Knipper's Song of the Palms. The highlights of Mr. Draper's program, which brought spontaneous applause from the audience, were his closing number and his last encore: R. Roger's Surrey with the Fringe on Top, and a portrayal of several American Folk Songs.

Two Artists Improvise

The artists united in two groups to improvise. The second group allowed the audience to participate by requesting numbers which were included in the last medley with Mr. Adler accompanying Mr. Draper's dances. This medley included Smoke Gets In Your Eyes, In the Mood, Polonaise, Swanee, Begin the Beguine, Symphony, Fire Dance and others.

Upon completion of this tour, Adler will appear in several broadcasts from New York and as guest artist on the Ford Symphony Hour in April. He also will appear in a motion picture for Fox Studios in the near future.

JOY TO THE WORLD

This year more than at any time in our lives for the most of us, we should enjoy a very merry Christmas—one which holds more for us than just a gift, but one which is meant to be spent at home with the parents and people we love. For some of you it is the first Christmas home in several years. You can revive the Christmas spirit in the rest of us who still think of Christmas as a "gift day."

STRING ENSEMBLE OPENS CHAPEL YESTERDAY

The newly formed string ensemble under the leadership of Mr. John Wharton, instructor in music, opened the chapel program, Thursday, December 20.

The program continued with selections by the mixed chorus, singing from the balcony. Members were dressed in robes and carried lighted candles. Mr. Floyd W. Wakeland, associate professor of music, directed the singing.

A Christmas play was presented by the Little Theatre with Mr. Julia Neely, associate professor of English, directing.

President Chester F. Lay gave Christmas greetings following the dramatic production, after which the whole student body joined the chorus in singing old familiar carols.

MOTT RECOMMENDS CHILDREN GIFTS FOR HOLIDAY

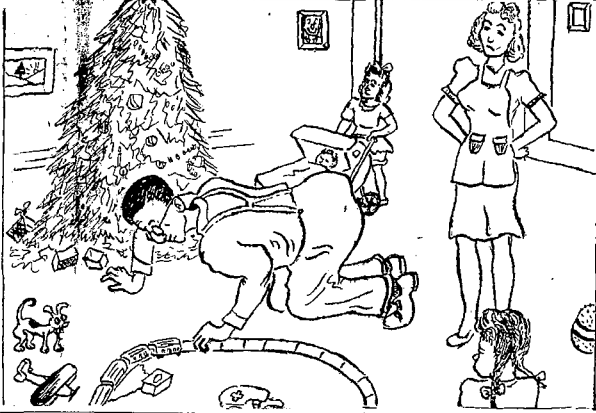

Gifts evoking creativeness in the pre-school child from three to five years of age, according to Dr. Sina M. Mott, assistant professor of pre-school education and director of the pre-school and kindergarten.

Commenting on the scarcity of available gifts for the coming holiday, Dr. Mott and her assistant, Mrs. Lucy Fligor, recommend homemade, small, sturdy table and chairs as possibly one of the most useful possessions a child could have. Saving for varied activities, from carpentering to coloring, such a table should be about 24 inches high, Dr. Mott believes.

Another prized article the young child especially enjoys is a portable victrola or phonograph with his own collection of story records, as these of the Dubble Books series or a Mother Goose collection. An attractive luncheon cloth, a tea set, or better, three or four heavy cups and saucers together with a few small square pans for tea table play; a nurse-and-doctor kit, traveling bag with a few pieces of interesting clothing for dramatic play, are desirable for the youngster, reminds Dr. Mott.

Recommended by Dr. Mott and Mrs. Fligor for evening play are soft cuddly animals and dolls, and a wide selection of appropriate story books or pictures of animals.

Suggester for reading to the preschool child are the following books: And Then, Alexander Van Rensselaer; The Very First Day, Ann Weil; Little Lost Lamb, Goldie MacDonald; My Mother is the Most Beautiful Woman in the World, Becky Reyher; The Rooster Crows, Maud and Mike Petersham; Two Big, Ingi and Edgar Parin D'Sainje; The Skittie-Skatie the Monkey, Dorothy Lathrop; The Antque Cat, Bianca Bradbury; Augustus, Clare Huchet Bishop; Stiggles, K. K. deKoroff; Belinda's New Shoes, Winifred Bromhall; The Little Fisherman, Margaret Wise Brown.

'AG CLUB' SEES MOVIE ON MEXICO

The Agriculture Club enjoyed an interesting movie Thursday, December 19, on "The Peoples and Customs of Mexico". A group picture of the Agriculture Club members was taken for the OBELISK.

At the December 5th meeting, Dean Rehn presented a colorful account of his experiences, and of the customs of the people in China.

Anyone interested in Agriculture for a major, a minor, or a pastime, may join. See Dr. Charles Stinson or be present at the next meeting, January 10, 1946.

Education Council Discusses Shortage of Elem. Teachers

Two measures of action were taken at the Illinois Council on Higher Education, held at Eastern Illinois State Teachers College at Charleston, Illinois, Monday, December 17.

First, the 35 representatives of the six state supported institutions of higher learning in Illinois discussed how Illinois could meet the rising demand for elementary teachers. All schools presented reported an elementary teacher shortage and that the schools were not coming anyway close to meeting the demand. A committee was appointed to study the matter and make recommendations on how to train elementary teachers to meet the shortage to the spring assembly meeting.

Second, since extension work seemed to be receiving increasing emphasis to the group, a committee was appointed to study methods for co-ordinating extension.

The representatives were guests of a home economics group at the college for luncheon.

Robert G. Buzzard, President of Eastern, was chairman of this council.

Tau Deltas Discuss Housing Situation At Southern

Tau Delta Rho, University discussion society, held its regular meeting Wednesday evening, December 19, at 7:30, in room 101 of Old Main building. The guests of the evening were Mrs. Mable Fulliam, Miss Susie Ogden, Mr. Edward Allen, and Miss Helen Mataya.

The topic up for discussion was the housing situation at Southern. The discussion centered around what was being done to alleviate the shortage and possible future housing projects.

During the business meeting Dr. J. W. Harris of the English department was elected counselor of the group.

The next meeting of Tau Delta Rho will be Wednesday evening January 16, 1946, at 7:30. The topic will be announced later. The topic will still be the same.

There will also be an executive council meeting on Wednesday, January 9, at 12:30 in the office of the English department.

KIRK HOUSE TO PROVIDE OFFICE SPACE

The Kirk house leased at 901 South Illinois will provide office space for the Veterans Guidance Bureau on the campus, not housing for veterans which the EGYPTIAN implied in last week's issue. "The Bureau now has a staff of seven full-time employees. They are Mr. W. A. Pfinkert, chief; Mr. Ernest R. Wolfe; Mrs. Lois Norman, secretary; and four appraisers from the university faculty, Dr. Laird L. Hites, Dr. Lawrence Clark, William Hande, and Dr. Victor Randolph.

CORRECTION

In the list of Who's Who members carried over from last year the name of Dorothy Rush, senior from Herrin, was omitted. Miss Rush is president of Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, Anthony Hall, English major, honor student, and has engaged prominently in campus life.

SHROYCK EXHIBITS FOUR PAINTINGS IN CURRENT ART SHOWS

Mr. Bernard Shroyck, former Director of the Art Department at Southern is exhibiting four of his paintings in two current art shows.

Since the middle of November the 4th Annual Missouri Show has been on exhibition in the St. Louis Art Museum. Mr. Shroyck has three paintings in the show. One, a portrait in oil, posed by Misses Ann Harding of Kansas City, a former resident of Carbondale; the others, two gouaches entitled "Texas Junction" and "Sunday-Gaspe."

The show will go to the William Rockhill Nelson Galleries in Kansas City, Missouri, the first part of January.

The other show in which Mr. Shroyck is exhibiting his work is the artists for Victory Show. It is put on by LaTuesca Pearls and will open in New York sometime in January, remaining there for a month. The show will then tour the country. The subject of the entries, "Woman With Pearls," could be treated either abstractly or realistically. The portrait by Mr. Shroyck that won a place in the show was posed by his wife and entitled "Denno."

The Madrigal singers under the direction of Mr. Floyd V. Wakeland left for Belleville at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday, December 18th.

They sang at 11:15 before 1,200 students of the Belleville High School. In return, the students gave a dinner in honor of their guests.

In the afternoon, the chorus gave a 40 minute program for the Belleville Rotary Club, which was having its ladies day program. The Rotary Club showed its appreciation by giving the six male members of the chorus a selection of ties and the seven women members genuine nylon hosiery.

That evening, they returned to Carbondale to entertain the A. A. U. W. at Anthony Hall.

Weather Observers Receives Shelters From Government

Government inspectors have recently furnished University with a new weather shelter. Dr. Thomas F. Barton, chairman of the geography and geology department is in charge of weather observations here.

Two new instruments for weather readings, an anemometer and a fan psychrometer, have also been given the University, Dr. Barton said.

Southern now has three weather observers, James and Jamie McGee of Granite City; and Alice Vravick of West Frankfort. Miss Vravick, who very recently passed the civil service exam and received her certificate of authority to take airway weather observations, is the first woman weather observer enrolled at Southern.

Weather readings are taken every six hours, at 6 a. m., 12 noon, 6 p. m., and 12 midnight.

Southern To Have One Summer Term

Southern will have one eight-week term in 1946. This term will open June 19 and end August 2. The summer of 1946 there were two terms; an eight-week term beginning June 4 and ending August 3 and a four-week term beginning August 6 and ending August 31. The stepped-up summer session fell in with the extensive country-wide program of acceleration.

New Faculty Assistant Hired

John Jacobs of Murphyboro has been appointed as faculty assistant assigned to full-time instructional and supervisory work in vocational agriculture in University High School.

Jacobs holds the bachelor of science degree in vocational agriculture from the University of Illinois. For the past three years he has been in the armed forces.

Mr. Burnett H. Shroyck, former head of the fine and applied arts department at Southern, is now appearing in two current art shows in Kansas City, where he is the chairman of the art department at the University of Kansas City.

HAPPY YULETIDE SEASON

THE ATHLETE: SUIVI'S FORGOTTEN MAN

My span of time on Southern's campus has acquainted me with certain athletic camps and their many opinions. Should we bring to the light our constructive discussion. Through unassuming campus problems often inflicted sore spots upon the ego of the individual or individuals concerned. I think such inflections prove more constructive than destructive in establishing on campus life.

Southern has gained much recognition in the last few years. Despite unfavorable publicity due to internal college politics, the university's administrative machine, Southern managed to lick its wounds and survive. However, discontent is still very much alive at Southern. Housing conditions and registration problems present some of the semi-important topics of contention, but the status of the athlete, in my opinion, is one issue that should be discussed and thrashed out completely and immediately.

The names of the "Maroon and White" of Southern has spread far beyond local and provincial boundaries; it has penetrated deeply into the heart of Dixie; it has spread west to Kansas City and indirectly as far west as California. Yet, the carriers of Southern's fame have only a trifle more than tired, exhausted bodies as evidence of their contribution to their Alma Mater; they have ornaments as trophies.

I fail to recognize this as adequate compensation for the long, grueling hours of preparation the athlete has to undergo in order to perform efficiently in his assignment. The athlete has to train, and he has to practice the minimum of three hours a day, every day preceding his contests; he has to carry the minimum load of twelve hours of scholastic work in which he must attain a passing average before he can be eligible to participate in any varsity sport activity, and he must prepare his studies in order to attain his passing average and maintain his eligibility rating. In his unoccupied time, the athlete must work to keep himself financially supplied. This is the athlete's daily program. Most of us are thoroughly convinced that the athlete thrives on applause and that old "RAH, RAH, SPIRIT," but let me appeal to your sense of reasoning: Do you think applause lightens the financial burden involved in attending school?

I have no idea how the granting of musical scholarships at Southern became a practice. I offer no adverse criticism; on the contrary, I think it is very commendable to foster the finer arts. However, I do seek the answer to one question: if Southern did not have athletic activities, would music have been outstanding enough to raise Southern to its present realm of renown and distinction?

The grant of scholarships to outstanding and deserving athletes is only fair in view of how much Southern has benefited from the athlete. The outstanding athlete is as good an investment for the school as any outstanding individual in any other field. Precision, agility, and quick decision are essential athletic requirements, and quick decision are rewarded as well as recognized and exploited. I know that somewhere there probably is a fund for athletes, but how many deserving athletes have benefited by this fund?

THE STUDENT'S STOMACH GROWLS

No student can properly over the week-end in Carbondale for less than $2.50 unless he is staying at Anthony Hall, home-springs house which serves over week-ends or guests' quarters.

The restaurants in Carbondale have made no provision for a good "student meal." By a good "student meal" it is meant a meal with the right amount of food value in it and at an economical cost.

The average cost of plate lunches at the various restaurants is approximately forty cents PLUS extra cost for a drink and dessert. A plate lunch of a hot sandwich and milk or coffee can be bought for 25 cents, but a hot sandwich and drink, according to nutritionists, will not keep a person in good healthy condition.

On Sundays, a good dinner will cost about sixty cents anywhere. For breakfast many students have rolls and milk in their own rooms, and others just skip that meal on week-ends.

Students, who are willing to pay $2.50 over the week-end should get "good food." As it is, $2.50 is stretching the student's pocketbook and not paying off in "good food" either.

It seems a logical solution to both the problem of the student's daily diet and week-end menu is to revise the cafeteria for the benefit of the student's pocketbook and stomach.

FRANKLIN HAMILTON REVIEWS THE NEWS

From recent political developments, it seems that the State Department is at last taking a definite stand in our foreign relations with China. The Communist leaders of China are now, as Chungking for talks with the Chiang Kai Shek Government, and it seems possible that political help may come from this meeting as the United States has demanded that fighting stop in China or the United States will not favor China's requests for loans and will stop what present economical aid that has been going into China.

President Truman recalled former General of the Army Marshall from his week-old retirement and appointed Marshall as his personal envoy to China. George Marshall's first assignment is to stop the fighting between the Communist and Nationalist troops in China. Marshall's appointment came at a critical time. Maj. Gen Patrick J. Hurley had retired from the same post because he felt his support of the National Government in China was not America's true view. Hurley delivered an unparalleled blast at the State Department personnel and procedures which, he charged, had effectively weakened America's hand in the Far East. So Marshall's task is made more critical by Hurley's charge.

Marshall is a very able and qualified man who believes that the peace of the world may depend in large measure on China's success in reaching unity and strength. From recent developments, it seems that the United States will insist that Chiang Kai Shek abandon the one-party government and bring in other democratic elements. Marshall will undoubtedly strengthen the United States' position in China.

THE EDITOR SPEAKS

Last week a letter was printed in which a faculty member was criticized by a group of students in behalf of a veteran friend who left school. Since last week I have received from faculty members a great deal of unfavorable criticism about the wisdom of printing his letter.

Freedom of the press was no doubt foremost in the mind of the writer when the letter was written and submitted for publication. The person accused, however, has denied the charges brought against him, and the high opinion of this faculty member has gone greatly in his favor.

Whatever results from the charges made by this writer, this fact remains—that accusations made against any person, whether faculty or student, should be well-grounded.

The faculty is not immune to criticism, and as long as we continue to have freedom of the press, that criticism will be printed—if it is well founded.

POLITENESS, CONSIDERATION LACKING IN STUDENT BODY ASSEMBLIES

The student conduct in assembly has been disgraceful to the school. With students walking out of chapel, slumping in their seats, reading while speakers are on the stage, and the serious other rude acts the students have shown in chapel, the co-operative concerts and other assemblies, this school is displaying a bad impression of the product of its culture.

The problem is much simpler though than bringing in the culture of this area and other factors which are so remote that sight of the problem is lost. The student can just show more politeness not for anyone else's sake, but his own. Politeness and consideration are what every person must sometime learn in his life.

'EXAMPLE IS GREATER THAN PRECEPT'

For the effective uprooting of the conditions that made possible the German aggression, the denazification program should require the abolishment of group participation of any kind which means the subordination of the individual to pre-determine ideologies. Indetermination is an essential part of a person's learning, but a democratic society emphasizes "the individual." It is only comparatively recent that academic circles have accepted the philosophy of pragmatism, an American invention, which forces the individual from absolutism and a priori reasoning.

The philosophy of Nazism which expresses the dependency of the citizen to an ideal, as the state or race, is in part due to the common misconception that a person is naturally amoral and hence restrictions must be arbitrarily imposed upon him. Although conformity is emphasized by the very word organization, the critical significance of it is that it does not develop a self-reliant and responsible citizen that the American frontier spirit produced.

The program of denazification demanded group marching, group working, group singing and group playing, in brief group regimentation. In Nazi Germany we see the friction of endeavors to mold a social order. The individual was made dependent upon certain doctrines for his social outlook, and he was evaluated by Nazi party criteria, recognition being given only to those who furthered party

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reverberations On 'A Veteran Speaks'

To the Editor of the EGYPTIAN: A great many faculty members have expressed extreme disapproval of your policy of printing anonymous letters attacking faculty members. The writer of such a letter is cowardly.

Very sincerely yours,
Emma L. Bowyer

To the EGYPTIAN Editor: The article in last week's EGYPTIAN attacking Dean Ter Keupstis, in my opinion, not representative of the standards of our University. Our paper, as the voice of the students and the teachers, should represent fairness, justice, and above all, the American meaning of the word COURAGE.

Yours truly,
Elizabeth Cox

More Said About Christmas Chapel

This column is usually filled with gripes and complaints, which I'm sure EGYPTIAN readers are getting tired of. It seems to me that some of the more pleasant happenings on this campus can be commented on for a change. For instance, the wonderful assembly program yesterday morning was enough to make students glad to be here at Southern, and I'm convinced that the whole student body and perhaps some of the faculty will back me up on this statement.

Chapel, being a have-to-go case, is usually frowned upon by most students with utter distaste, and they dread to see Thursday morning roll around. I must say that the faculty doesn't seem to have too much love for chapel since they aren't too well represented.

This week's assembly program was different, however, and I'd like to compliment Mr. Wakeland, Mr. Wharton, and Mrs. Neely, plus all the students participating for their splendid Christmas program. Dr. Lay certainly contributed to its success also with his fine Christmas message.

This program meant more to me than an expression of Southern's Christmas spirit; it also meant that someone around this campus is trying to make chapel more appealing to the students, trying to make them realize that this one hour per week assembly can really be worth while. As long as we have chapel programs similar to the one yesterday and the one held recently when fine campus talent was displayed, students will attend chapel and will like it too.

A New Year's Resolution!

Dear Editor: Yesterday morning's chapel program was very impressive. In fact, I personally, enjoyed it very much. I think the students will agree with me that they would appreciate more programs of this type. Even the faculty should be getting a little disgusted with the speeches which have been so popular in chapel. However, I do not object to speeches, if they are interesting, but the majority of speeches we have had this year have been more boring than interesting.

There is talent on this campus, and I think something should be done about it. I'm sure that the students are willing to cooperate in making chapel something to look forward to, instead of something to dread. However, there must be cooperation on both sides.

Let us make this year a resolute one. "Better chapel programs equal better attendance records."

REVIEW OF TEACHER COLLEGE NEEDS MARKS A TURNING POINT IN ILLINOIS TEACHER EDUCATION

By Joe McGovern

A decision was made in the offices of the Illinois Post-War Planning Commission in Chicago, on April 2, 1944, which shall prove the turning point in teacher education in Illinois. The Illinois Post-War Planning Commission, headed by the Department of Registration and Education, is the first of its kind in the country. Its members are the teachers, college presidents, the teachers college presidents, Chance Hill, and their staffs met with the Commission to discuss the needs of the colleges.

Director Thompson instructed those assembled to look ahead a quarter of a century since many future considerations had a vital effect on the work at the start. The results of this study were turned over to the Post War Planning Commission, who placed the plan before the sixty-fourth session of the General Assembly. Funds for the first steps were approved by the legislature and the program is officially underway now. Drs. Clyde M. Hill and Samuel Brownell, both of Yale University, in a report to the governor's "Commission to Survey Higher Educational Facilities in Illinois" stated, "The minimum physical plant for a teachers college should include the necessary classrooms, laboratories, auditorium, administration and power plant facilities for the curriculum approved by the Teachers' College Board, a campus observation and practice school with all of the grades from the nursery school, through high school, good library facilities, health education facilities, and proper living quarters for students. None of the Teachers' Colleges have this minimum plant at the present time."

As if these deficiencies were not enough, the State legislature passed the Health and Physical Education Law in 1943, which became effective July 1, 1944. This law requires that each student of the state's teachers colleges spend at least 20 minutes each week in organized physical exercise and that each student shall periodically receive medical examinations. Courses must also be offered in the "methods and materials" of physical education. All graduates after July 1944, must have taken at least one course in this work to graduate. This means that each student at Southern must spend over three hours a week in baseball, football, tennis, hockey, soccer, and other sports and games. Multiply this by 4,000, the expected total enrollment at Southern and one may have some idea as to the scope of the law and its desired results. This requires game and activity areas, both in the open and indoors, the latter to provide protection during the winter months and the inclement weather of spring, summer, and fall.

These are some of the main problems confronting that group in its efforts to bring colleges up to the minimum requirements. Director Thompson's advice after a 25 year plan of development opened the door to a new trend, and the following planning steps were taken to complete the overall solution.

First, a typical campus was considered. There is the student body and its faculty. Their health should be cared for requiring space to train, exercise, play, and compete. The teacher must have a classroom for his class. Subjects as biology, physics, chemistry, drama, speech, music, and others require added facilities—places to grow things, laboratories, sound-proof rooms, fully equipped stages and scenery, shops. The student body and faculty must meet occasionally in an auditorium. All of these activities must be coordinated—the administration building, the library with its great wheel is the hub of this great wheel is the library which must be centrally located.

All of these units must be arranged in an orderly fashion with a minimum of confusion and a maximum of efficiency. Students must pass from building to building. Buildings must be serviced and supplies delivered. Cars must be safely parked. The well-arranged campus is divided into zones according to use. Men's dormitories should be close to the Men's intramural athletic field.

The preparation of these plans required constant attention as to technical problems. Building costs vary over the years and it was necessary to look into the future and forecast what the structures are expected to cost during the post-war era. This demands an exacting analysis of all factors which might influence the building industry.

To arrive at the final result within 25 years one must be careful to avoid making certain moves which may prove disastrous and before presenting the drawings and reports to the Post War Planning Commission it was necessary to prepare "step by step" program for each campus to enable the Commission to determine the allotments for each college.

SONNET ON WHEN I WAS A TRAMP

Once I was a tramp upon the road, I had my clothes, my hat, and two pairs of underwear and socks. I slept in hay-stacks, culverts and in frost bitten leaves.

Once I caught a hen and wrang her neck and fed her head to a pig, and baked her breast.

Once I went to sleep in a ditch and the rain blew so hard it washed the dirt from the sole of my shoes, and then the next day when I couldn't buy anything to eat, I cursed the dew to hell for getting me wet in darkness.

Once I found a cane along a railway. I suppose it fell out of a train. I carried it for a mile or so until I came to a creek; I threw it far down into the water and mud and left the dry thing to lord over itself.

Once I got tired of everything, and was a tramp no more!

The Christmas Spirit

By Rosemary Woolard

There are many reasons why the Christmas seasons appeal to us. It is a time when the imagination is more sprightly than at other periods of the year. Christmas seems to release even the most solemn of us from the Scrooge realism that occasionally besets all of us.

Christmas is a time when our imagination must not be timid or dwarfed, but we must limber up our minds and give it bounce and resilience. We must possess the feeling of beyondness, and the ability to recognize through imagination the intangible factors which sharpen our perceptions.

Many of us listen attentively to old legends told enthusiastically by aged members of our families.

One lovely legend which many of us have heard each Christmas is the story of the first Christmas Tree. It seems unreal to us that America once denounced the Christmas tree as a "pagan absurdity." Although the American people observed the Saviour's birthday and heard the ever-new Divine tidings of peace on earth and good will toward men, they did not know of the old custom of having a Christmas tree. A young minister who came from the old country brought this custom to America. He was greatly denounced for his greening of "Merry Christmas," and for his bringing of a Christmas tree to the Church. Many people thought that they were to worship the tree, and since they were unwise of the age old custom, they declared it to be satanic.

After that Christmas of 1851 the people of this town returned to their daily tasks, but many of the people remembered the beautiful tree, and secretly wanted to possess one. There was much quarreling about the tree, and when the young minister was told that the tree could not be in the Church he carried it protectively in his arms to his own home.

The people were willing to accept the custom of a tree when they were told the legend of the holy night when Our Lord was born. All creatures came to worship in Bethlehem. And the trees did likewise. None of the other trees could be fat as the least among them, a small spruce. It was so weary it could hardly stand, and the trees with fragrant blossoms, great trunks and leafy boughs all but obscured the drab stranger. But the stars took pity on it, and to a rain of them fell from Heaven, and the bright Christmas star alighted in the top of the spruce, and all the rest of its branches. And the Child in the manger saw the spruce and blessed it with a smile.

Thus the Christmas tree came to America and today the custom is spread throughout the land.

Maroons Play Host to Arkansas State Tonight

Martinsen Take Floor Without Services of Sam Milosevich

By Bob McDowell

Southern Illinois Normal University will be seeking the win of the season when they tangle with the Arkansas State boys tonight at the Evansville gymnasium at 8:00 p. m.

The Maroons will be without the services of Sam Milosevich, Ziegler, and other key men, who is out with the flu. In his absence Dick Harmon has moved to center and Roy Ragsdale has been installed with Leedio Cabutti in the forward line while Don Sheffer and Dick Foley are holding down the guard positions.

Coach Glenn "Abe" Martin, Maroon mentor, indicated that these men, will constitute his initial lineup. This is the same team that took the floor against Evansville College last Wednesday night.

Agg's Lineup Over Six Feet
Not much information is available on Coach Tom Linson's Aggie quintet, but it is known that they have a starting lineup that averages over six feet. Arkansas will wind up an extensive road trip with tonight's contest.

Coach Glenn "Abe" Martin has announced that all Southern Illinois high school basketball teams are invited to tonight's contest. Each high school player should identify himself at the door either by a letter from his coach, or by entering the gym with his coach, and he will be admitted free except for a tax ticket. Since school has been dismissed for the Christmas vacation, Martin expects large turnout of high school players. Arkansas marks a new foe for Southern, as the two teams did not meet last season. The Aggies will probably be out to reverse the 6-0 win and 6-6 tie handed them by the Maroons during the football season. A top rate contest is anticipated tonight, as the Arkansas Indians, located at Jonesboro, Arkansas, come from a section of the country that takes its basketball seriously and always turns out a good team.

Stabler Excited Upon Hearing News of MacAndrew Award

JOHN STABLER

"I hate to admit it," related Johnny Stabler of Eastern, "but after hearing that I had received the MacAndrew Trophy, I was so excited I couldn't eat my dinner."

The trophy, dedicated by the "I" Club of Southern to their late Athletic Director William MacAndrew, will go annually to the football player in the IAC voted by conference. No coach is allowed to vote for his own player.

Stabler, who is a first quarter Junior at the Charleston school, states that the phone call informing him that he was the recipient of the Trophy, announced by Dr. L. W. Miller of Normal, reached him just before dinner and as a result he went without his calories.

A halfback, Stabler was the leading scorer for Eastern. Against Butler University in Indianapolis, he counted on a 97-yard run and he also chalked up a 50-yard scoring sprint against Macomb. He got off a 91 yard punt in the latter game. Modestly, Stabler conceded most of the credit for his outstanding performance this year to the line he had in front of him.

In presentation ceremonies at chapel at Eastern last Wednesday, Dr. R. G. Buzzard, president of Eastern, paid high tribute to Gen. MacAndrew, stating that if he gave him a great degree of personal pleasure and enjoyment to present "a trophy honoring William MacAndrew for his splendid work in Physical education and Illinois college athletics at Southern?"

"General MacAndrew was a man I had known since our high school days, since our boyhood homes were but 15 miles apart," continued Dr. Buzzard.

Concluding, the president stated that "William MacAndrew along with Eastern's Charles P. Lantz were the two men longest in service as Illinois college coaches. Each stood out in demanding clean cut playing performance, rather than winning as the sole end of the game."

"Just as there is a Charles P. Lantz baseball trophy, it is extremely fitting that there be a William MacAndrew football trophy."

Evansville Aces Slip Past Southern Maroons, 44-43

Coach Glenn "Abe" Martin's Maroons, weakened by the loss of Sam Milosevich, first-string center, who was sidelined due to sickness, battled gamely, but lost a hard-fought bout with the Evansville College Aces on the Evansville, Indiana hardwood December 19 by a score of 44-43.

The Maroons rattled off to a good start, hanging up a 22-12 lead on 1st Aces midway in the first half, but a last minute spurt by the Evansville outfit left the Aces on the small end of a 25-20 Maroon lead. Even though the Evansville squad lost Paul Scott, their 6 feet 4 inch defensive star, the Aces began to make more of their down court drives pay off against the tight Maroon defense.

Aces Gain In Second Period

Through efficient shooting the Aces piled up a small edge of 43-39 over the Maroons, the most that they led the local aggregation at any time. By this time only a matter of two minutes remained. Gene Stotlar then hit a fine two-pointer

FROM THE PRESSBOX

By Ted Cain

Coach Martin's men proved to be the master of the situation in last Friday night's encounter with the Loyola Wolves. After Southern had piled up a twelve point lead in the first quarter, an old gentleman, who was sitting behind me, made the following statement: "These boys from New Orleans don't have anything." However, this observer believes that it was Southern's brilliant defensive play that often made the visitors look bad.

The drawings for the 2nd annual Midwest College Tournament were made Saturday, December 15. The yuletide tourney will be held in the Indiana State Teachers gymnasium December 27-30.

The Maroons' inmost contest will be with the Evansville College Purple Aces Friday, December 28 at 7:15 p. m. First round winners will meet Saturday afternoon for the right to play in the final game Saturday night.

Many local fans will recall that Murray State Teachers grabbed top honors in last year's tourney, with Eastern State Teachers of Charleston finishing second. Eight schools have entered this year's round robin tournament.

Roy Ragsdale received the starting center assignment in Wednesday night's game with Evansville College. Sam Milosevich, one of the best centers in the I.L.A. conference, is another victim of what is termed "the worst flu epidemic in twenty-five years."

This year Bill Freeburg, of the Men's Physical Education Department, has been selected to stage the annual Intra-Mural Basketball Tournament. At present, eight team managers have reported to Coach Freeburg. The teams listed are: Faculty, Sigma Beta Mu, Kappa Delta Alpha, Chi Delta Chi, Nu Epsilon Alpha, Carter's Aces, and the Dumbies.

Any college man interested in playing intra-mural ball should sign his name on the bulletin board on the men's side of the gymnasium before 3:00 p. m. Tuesday, January 8, 1946. The first games will be played the following night.

The fraternities have entered teams and there should be a great deal of added enthusiasm in this year's round-robin struggle. Those interested in playing have expressed thanks to Coach Freeburg and other members of the P. E. Department for making these intra-school games possible.

Campus baseball enthusiasts will be interested in hearing that members of the Budget Committee agree that baseball should be added to the Sports Program here at Southern. The other teams in the I.L.A. Conference play intra-collegiate baseball. Coach Glenn "Abe" Martin, Southern's Athletic Director, in a short address to "I" Club members last Monday night expressed hope that conference baseball games will be played during the coming season.

Preceding the varsity basketball game with Arkansas State here tonight, the third and fourth teams will play the recently re-organized Carter's Aces. This year's edition of the well known independent team includes several men who are former Southern athletes. The game will start at 6:30 with the feature game getting under way at 8:00.

Southern Blitzes Highly Touted Loyola Wolves

By Richard Jackson

Playing one of the outstanding offensive games of the season to date, the Southern Illinois Normal University Maroons battled their way to a 57-38 decision over a highly rated Loyola University, New Orleans, Louisiana, cage team before a near capacity crowd December 15 in the local gym.

For the New Orleans boys it was a simple case of lack of offensive power, while the Maroons were notably well versed in the scoring department, and also played a smart, tight defensive bottling up the Loyola attack. Coach Wolves were fighting a losing battle. After the first twenty minutes of play, the Maroons had dropped in a total of 13 field goals and 8 free throws for a 34-17 lead, committing only 5 personal fouls to their opponents 12.

Leading scorer for the losers was Guard Vincent Greco, former Louisiana high school star, who hit the hoop for 3 goals and 2 foul shots for 8 points. Tied for the second spot behind Greco were Jim Hulberg and A. C. Waldrep, each hitting up 6 points each.

Sheffer, Milosevich Share Scoring Honors

Jointly holding scoring honors for the Maroons were Sam Milosevich, and Don Sheffer, both of Ziegler, who rang the bell for 14 counters each. Again in this game the rebounding ability of big Sam Milosevich and the deadly shooting of Don Sheffer, proved to be the key factors in the Maroons' victory. After the strenuous first half it was plain to see that the Loyola
