Filipino rebels begin to release captive tourists

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Exuberant American, European and Asian tourists emerged from luxury hotels in Manila's financial district and rode buses to safety Wednesday after rebels who confined them for five days relented and allowed them to depart.

Government and rebel negotiators agreed on a second cease-fire after the first collapsed a day earlier, enabling eight buses to drive to the Inter-Continental, Nikko Manila Garden and Peninsula hotels at 7 a.m.

The buses quickly brought more than 800 guests to hotels outside the battle-torn Makati financial district.

The evacuation followed a day of frustrating talks marked by bursts of gunfire that thwarted the departure of 2,000 tourists from hotels in Manila's most luxurious district. Guests at the Inter-Continental were about to board buses Tuesday when the shooting forced them to retreat back into the lobby.

The visitors cheered as they departed. They had been trapped and used as pawns since Friday, when the mutinous soldiers began their coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino, the sixth and most serious threat to her nearly 4-year-old government.

"Under the agreement between the government soldiers and the rebels, we can only evacuate with two buses at a time," Tourism Undersecretary Narzafina Lim said. "The cease-fire will remain in force until all the tourists and residents who want to leave are out."

The number of foreigners staying in financial district hotels numbered about 2,000, but an additional 8,000 foreigners are residents of Makati, and they also have been pinned down and are anxious to leave.

"We will have a cease-fire up to late this (Wednesday) afternoon to allow all hotel guests and residents of the condominiums to leave," Lt. Col. Rafael Galvez, head of about 500 rebels occupying Makati, told Cable News Network by telephone. "They are being bused right now."

Galvez said his forces would not surrender and denied detaining

Americans to pressure Washington not to provide military support to the government.

"It was reported in the papers that we were not allowing Americans to leave. That is a lie," Galvez said. "We never took any hostages. They were free to leave. Of course they had to take the risk because there were sporadic fire-fights going on."

The evacuation was regarded as a victory for Aquino, who balked at using martial law to quell the

Enrollment up for minorities SIU-C above Illinois average

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

In contrast to lower enrollments of blacks in higher education in the state, overall black enrollment at SIU-C has increased since 1986 and Hispanic enrollment increased by almost seven times the state average during that time.

According to a report released in late November by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, black enrollment at public universities from 1986 to 1988 had fallen almost 1 percent, with a more than 2 percent decline at community colleges.

Data provided by the University's Center for Institutional Research showed that since fall 1986, total black enrollment has increased by 67 students, or just over 3 percent. Black enrollment increased every year but 1988, which showed a decrease of about 2 percent, or 43 students, from the previous year.

Additional data not included in the IBHE report showed black enrollment continued to increase by another 13 students in fall 1989.

German secret police hold Honecker, officials

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — Ousted East German leader Erich Honecker was under house arrest Tuesday, and all top officials of East Germany's once-feared state security police were reported to have resigned or were sacked.

The developments came amid growing public outrage over official corruption, which was fueled by an official announcement last week that valuable luxury items — including fine wines, stereo sets and televisions unobtainable by most East Germans — were found in Honecker's hunting lodges.

East German authorities also reported the arrest of Wolfgang Vogel, a prominent East Berlin lawyer who negotiated the free passage of tens of thousands of East Germans to the West.

Vogel, said to be suspected of "criminal blackmail," was a close confidant of Honecker, who resigned Oct. 18 amid massive and mounting pressure for reform in the hard-line communist state.

The government said it had placed Honecker and several other ousted Communist Party leaders under house arrest on suspicion of engaging in widespread abuse of power and corruption while in office.

Meanwhile, 17 directors in the state security ministry were fired Tuesday and the state security department's entire governing council resigned, the official East German news agency ADN reported.

Poshard, Oklahoma representative speak on rural health care issue

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

A leading spokesman for rural health care in the U.S. House of Representatives visited St. Joseph Memorial Hospital in Murphysboro Tuesday afternoon to let health care personnel know the strides being made in rural health care.

Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., and Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, told medical personnel that the House Rural Health Care Coalition, of which both are members, is helping stabilize the rural health care industry and is beginning to make needed improvements in the availability and affordability of health care for rural residents.

The coalition included a number of provisions in the Budget Reconciliation bill, which passed during this session of Congress.

If the Budget Reconciliation bill is signed into law, rural hospitals would receive a market basket plus three percent to help make up the difference in payment rates between larger and smaller hospitals for procedures covered by Medicare.

Synar said rural health care medical personnel also need incentives to lure them to lower-paying areas of the country to practice medicine.

"There are no financial incentives, (currently)," Synar said. "The chances of getting medical personnel to rural areas is impossible."

Both Synar and Poshard said one of the ways to stop discriminatory

Region, nation to feel effect of summit

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and President George Bush came to an understanding this past weekend at the Malta Summit. The cooperation of two superpowers working together has long-term benefits for the citizens of the Soviet Union and the United States.

With this cooperation between two nations that have been at odds with each other for more than three decades, University students and citizens of Southern Illinois and the nation could feel the far-reaching effects of the summit well into the next century.

University College of Liberal Arts Dean John Jackson said SIUC students should be concerned with the results of the summit and the changes in Eastern Europe because in the philosophical sense,

"we are all citizens of the world." And in another sense, Jackson said, what happened in Malta also affects Southern Illinois through the potential for trade between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Although no formal agreements were reached at the summit, Bush offered Gorbachev better access to the Western trading bloc and lower

Medellin judge who headed drug probe killed in street

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A Medellin judge who led an investigation into rural cocaine processing laboratories was killed in a hail of bullets on a street Tuesday by gunmen who fled in two automobiles, police said. The assassination came as a Colombian aviation official said U.S. and Colombian experts had concluded that a bomb caused the Nov. 27 crash of an Avianca airliner that killed 111 people. Judge Bernardo Jaramillo Uribe was driving to his office Tuesday when attackers in two cars cut him down with automatic gunfire, police said. No one was apprehended, and no group has taken responsibility for the attack.

Church worker arraigned in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — American church worker Jennifer Jean Casolo appeared before a Salvadoran military court Tuesday for arraignment on charges she hid large amounts of weapons for leftist rebels in her home. Casolo, 28, of Thomaston, Conn., whose arraignment was postponed Monday, worked for a U.S. religious group called Christian Educational Seminars, which organizes tours in El Salvador for American lawmakers, religious leaders and other Americans. Salvadoran security forces, acting on a tip from a captured guerrilla, raided Casolo's San Salvador residence on Nov. 26.

Bush pleased with summit, NATO meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush believes he "achieved his objectives" in his first summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, White House national security adviser Brent Scowcroft said Tuesday. Scowcroft said Bush also was pleased with the reaction from NATO allies who heard his report on the summit Monday in Brussels, Belgium. "The president is very pleased with his trip and in his opinion, he achieved his objectives both in Malta and with his allies in NATO," Scowcroft said. "So he's quite comfortable with the outcome."

Lawyer seeks to overturn pornography law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Ohio law prohibiting the possession of child pornography is "the broadest statute in the country" and should be found unconstitutional, an attorney told the Supreme Court on Tuesday. The justices heard arguments in the obscenity case involving a Columbus, Ohio, man who was arrested after authorities found four sexually explicit snapshots of a young boy inside a photo album in the man's bedroom. A ruling in the case is expected next year. Clyde Osborne, 64, appealed his 1985 conviction, arguing that the law is too broad and vague and violates his rights to free speech and privacy.

'Little sisters' program ban to begin at U of I in January

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — Women's auxiliary groups generally known as "little sisters" have been banned at fraternities at University of Illinois' Champaign-Urbana campus, the UI Interfraternity Council said Tuesday. The action is effective Jan. 1, said John Ehler, who heads the fraternity president's council. "We actually brought this up ourselves, we have been evaluating the Greek system," Ehler said. "A lot of people perceive 'little sisters' as a subservient group and we want to get away from that."

Censorship in arts is discussion topic

Panel to address concerns tonight at 7

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

In the last year, the art world has seen its freedom of expression threatened by government attempts to limit the kinds of art that can be funded with public money.

The School of Art and Design's Visiting Artist Program will address this issue in a panel discussion, "Censorship on the Arts: A Closer Look," at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Auditorium. The discussion is free and open to the public.

Panelists will be artist Buzz Spector, art curators Diane Douglas and Martha Winans Slaughter, art critic Peter Schjeldahl; Arlene Rakoncaj, executive director of the Chicago Artists Coalition, and Tony Jones, president of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. The discussion will be moderated by University art professor Ed Shay.

The past year has seen government and art clash repeatedly. A government-funded exhibit by artist Robert Mapplethorpe that included nude photographs of homosexual men and controversial works by other artists, such as a photograph of a crucifix in urine.

The furor began with a painting of Chicago's late mayor Harold Washington in women's lingerie by a student at the Art Institute of Chicago, which spurred Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to introduce legislation to limit federal funding.

The bill, modified in Congress, proposed that government funding be restricted for art judged "obscene or indecent, which denigrates or debases a person, group or class of citizens on the basis of race, creed, sex, handicap, age or national origin."

The modified legislation allowed the National Endowment for the Arts to withhold public funds from art deemed obscene. Obscene art was defined as the depiction of sadomasochism, homoeroticism, exploitation of children and sex that is devoid of artistic merit.

Shay said artists find it disturbing that government officials are being allowed to determine what has artistic merit.

"It's a very ironic situation with what's happening right now in Germany, Czechoslovakia, even what they tried to start in China, that the government is now trying to put a cap on freedoms over here," Shay said.

Trade shows, other events scheduled at Arena

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Spring semester at the SIU-C Arena will feature trade shows, sporting events, music concerts and Oscar the Grouch, Michelle Suarez, promotions director for the Arena, said.

The Arena will sponsor a sports trade show in early February, Suarez said. Booths will be available for merchants to display and sell boats, recreational vehicles and golf equipment, among other items. Anything people need to enjoy the outdoors will be available at the show, she said.

A home show will be featured the first weekend in March. Similar to the sports show, the exhibition will include aluminum siding, lawn and garden supplies, window fixtures and carpet cleaning equipment. The shows are very popular, Suarez said.

NWA Wrestling, originally scheduled to appear at the Arena in mid-November, was postponed until the spring.

Saluki debate team a consistent winner

FOR A team to win a national championship in any given year is a major accomplishment. To win two in a row is exceptional. But to hold national honors four years in a row and have the chance for a fifth is extraordinary.

The SIU-C debate team is currently tied with UCLA for winning consecutive national championships with four. The Saluki team is now attempting to attain its fifth straight championship.

THE DEBATE season began in September and will conclude in the spring. No university has ever won five consecutive national championships.

Academic teams are not given enough credit for their accomplishments.

We would like to congratulate the team on its past success and wish it luck in its bid for an unprecedented fifth title.

Greg Simerly, debate team coach, said about 40 hours a week are required to research the designated topic for the semester by the team. These hours are in addition to the student's other academic studies.

TOPICS FOR debate remain the same for an entire semester. The current topic used in competition is "Resolved: that violence being a justified response to political oppression." A new topic will be designated for spring semester on Dec. 10.

We applaud the obvious dedication the students and coaches have put into the championship streak and are proud of their successes as representatives of the University.

Letters

Bible a guide for general behavior but no better than self help books

I must admit that I thoroughly enjoyed John and Roberts' sarcastic reply to some of the more religiously enthusiastic letters the DE was receiving just a short time ago. After all the time I've spent here I should have realized that nothing remotely like that letter would be let go easily. Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Penny both decided to cite their "facts" for us so now please allow me to cite a few as well (you'll forgive me if I use a source less emotionally charged than the Christian book of theology).

Fact #1- no one living today, or the last 1,800 years has ever read the Bible. At the time of it's authorship it was written in code to avoid religious persecution and since that millennia old time it has been adapted, "re-translated", twisted, destroyed, rewritten, and generally abused by every agency in every western nation seeking temporal, religious, economic, social, political or sexual power to suit that person(s) or agency's whims and desires of that moment. The resulting book most probably resembles a sows ear.

Conclusion #1 (based on Fact #1)- While the Bible is a good guide to life and general behavior it is no more the word of any god, existent or not, in its present form than any other novel or self help book. This does not negate the possible existence of the Christian God. It does, however, call into question the actual spiritual purity of a literary work that may use daily as a specific guide to any action (though I've noticed they usually know the word but miss the intent or "spirit" of the thing).

Most frequently the Christian Bible is used to coerce specific behaviors out of people with threats of terror, pain, fire, even death, and with promises of paradise if you behave the way they tell you to through their narrow interpretation of a highly subjective work.

Fact(s) #2- Some handy definitions courtesy of Webster's Third International Unabridged

- Dictionary:
- god-1-a being of more than human attributes or powers.
- 2-an artificial or natural object that is thought to be the seat of a divine personality or itself a divine or supernatural agency.
- God-3-the supreme or ultimate reality
- 4-the one ultimate, infinite reality that is pure existence, consciousness and bliss without distinctions.
- 5-the ideal or essence of what is best in human life.
- Sorcery-6-the use of power gained from evil spirits.
- Witchcraft-7-casting of spells with malevolent intent.
- Deviation-8-to foretell future events through supernatural powers.
- 9-unusual insight or intuitive perception.
- Creation-10-the act or process of making, devising, fashioning or producing (ie. art).

Insights on Fact(s) #2-Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Penny; Most people, right or not, believe there is something of the eternal in all human life therefore, according to #'s 1,2,4,&5 above the assertion that we are all God is essentially correct if you believe in the human soul.

According to the definition of creation if you believe in the human soul. According to the definition of creation we are all capable of that act. Mr. Penny, not only your God. You will both please note that the definitions of witchcraft and sorcery center on evil intent, they do not condemn herbalists for meditating over the ill, or Druids for worshipping nature.

Mr. Penny, if you utilized natural forces for evil purposes that makes your intent evil, not the natural forces for evil purposes that makes your intent evil, not the natural forces that you attempted to twist to your selfish, human will (the same goes for Mr. Crowley if the intent behind his books and practices is evil, and who among us have the temerity to judge someone else's spiritual intent).

The denunciation of those that practice deviation condemns all those who have ever had a flash of insight that they acted upon, or lightly read a cheap newspaper horoscope for fun. To call this sin sounds more like words of any God worthy of worship.

As to Adam and Eve (and this is purely my personal opinion) and God who would create paradise and say "Do anything you want. Oh, but don't touch that tree." Then jump out from behind that tree with a big "AH HAH!" has the kind of thought process that will find a way to condemn you no matter what you do.

If God knows all, he has no need of tests to see the future and into the hearts of men. Given these two notions it seems more reasonable to assume that these fables are again the expression of a human mind (not one of a perfect God) that needed an explanation for the ugliness in the world and sought a better place through atonement for what it imagined must be sin.

Mr. Penny, the Bible is laden with instances of God recanting or changing his mind, I don't know how you could have missed them.

In Gethsemane Jesus expressed fear and doubt, is this absolute perfection and infallibility that you spoke of sirs? Or is this another example of your complete rejection of anything that does not fit with your personal interpretation? Genesis 40:8 says that interpretations of the word of God belong only to God, while 2 Peter 3:6 warns against personal interpretation as it leads to twisting the scriptures to your own destruction.

While I, personally, do not believe in these things both of you seem to and it strikes me as more than slightly hypocritical that you ignore so much to suit your own ends. Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Penny, I suggest you look to your own house. — Thea Venita Karch, senior, business administration and biology

Opinions from elsewhere

Providence Journal

As Malta's soggy summit drew to a close, a smiling President Bush, pleased by his talks with Mikhail Gorbachev, announced the start of "a brand-new era in U.S.-Soviet relations." Even allowing for White House hyperbole, this was a sweeping statement; but it's largely true, and both governments now share the immense challenge of shaping this new era along constructive lines.

In both mood and substance, the discussions at Malta appeared to meet or even exceed expectations on both sides. Gorbachev announced that the arms race and ideological struggle "should be things of the past," while Bush promised to help the Soviet leader try to breathe life into his country's enfeebled economy.

Political changes are coming so fast that what would have seemed extraordinary a few months ago has now become almost routine. Ronald Reagan's tart description of the Soviet Union as an "evil empire" now sounds like a vestige from the distant past. Bush, newly enrolled in the Gorbach Home Club, sees that the changes being wrought by the Gorbachev retrenchment have opened a precious opportunity that cannot be ignored.

This improved mood and this more frequent contact are all to the good. For more than a generation, the pivotal U.S.-Soviet relationship, badly frayed by parries and thrusts from both sides, was poisoned even further by the icy silence with which each side treated the other. Such common interests as existed were buried under cascades of bristling rhetoric. The Cold War became a way of life.

Nothing said or done at Malta guarantees that these fearsome old habits are gone for good. But most of the signs are auspicious, and now that the two leaders have agreed on a more cooperative arrangement, it will be interesting to see where they focus their efforts.

Malta formalized progress already reached in one area, the START negotiations on long-range nuclear weapons. With extensive preparatory work already done, both sides had agreed to step up the pace of the talks and now agree to try for a treaty in 1990. If at the same time they could agree to sharp cuts in chemical weapons, so much the better.

The dynamics at Malta also persuaded Bush to sign up with offers to help Gorbachev's uphill efforts to revive the dismal Soviet economy. Here, there is less reason to think that U.S. efforts can make much difference: The Soviets have messed up their economy so badly that even the most generous U.S. assistance couldn't do the job. (Besides, we're rather strapped ourselves just now.) Even so, the Bush gestures on trade liberalization may bolster Gorbachev's stock among the unhappy folks at home, thus buying some precious time for his radical economic ideas to take hold.

Both these areas — arms and the economy — had been predictable areas for the Malta discussions. The political turmoil in Eastern Europe, with all that it implies for the future of the continent and its two opposing military pacts, was an obvious priority topic.

Equally interesting, however, are troubled areas beyond Europe where energetic U.S.-Soviet cooperation could be put to the test. Is this to be a newly harmonious relationship or not?

Truthfulness of Bible questioned by reader

On Thursday while reading your letter section, I found it particularly painful to read two rather lengthy letters from students who felt it necessary to prove that there is a god through biblical quotations.

How can a book written hundreds of years ago by certain men be the so called word of God? Stories depicting barbaric tales, contradictions and dogmatic rules of life can only narrow one's mind.

It makes no sense to me to take a book seriously that deals with miracles, a devil and the so called son of god. All these things go against what the sober observer has experienced in life.

It is obvious that natural disasters, diseases and misfortune do not discriminate between the holy and unholy. This leads one to ask himself (facetiously speaking) if we as humanity can forgive God for these injustices.

The words of a great thinker, Albert Einstein best describes the concept of God: "I cannot imagine a God who rewards and punishes the objects of his creation, whose purposes are molded after are own — a god, in short, who is but a reflection of human frailty. — Peter Jerome, junior, psychology

Letters

Reader cold toward preaching

Mr. David Penny, I enjoyed your letter published in the Daily Egyptian on Nov. 30. You have a future as a preacher.

So, let's talk about God. But this is such a general category since we have so many gods to choose from. We'll narrow it down and talk about your God. I certainly don't have your expertise in biblical interpretations, but I did serve 12 years in Catholic schools.

In the beginning, God put Adam and Eve into the garden of Eden. Paradise. Everything they could possibly ever want was conveniently rolled up in one earthly paradise. But if they had everything they wanted, why do you suppose that they chose the one thing which was forbidden? Maybe they were bored; life was too easy. Maybe they didn't have everything they wanted. Maybe God neglected to ask the first couple what they wanted when he was designing paradise.

But let's examine this further. If Eden was truly a paradise, then why was a serpent put there? Was this the ghetto of Eden? Think about God's intent. Why would He make Adam and Eve vulnerable to evil? They were His children. I've never known a mother who would intentionally jeopardize the well being of her baby. In school I learned that the temptation in Eden was humanity's big test. But why did Adam and Eve have to prove themselves in the first place? They were expected to trust in God when God didn't trust them. Children tend to imitate their parents.

Mr. David Penny said, "The God I know doesn't change His mind because of being mad." Of course, this is not godly.

Remember the Great Flood? Justify it. This was a case in which God slaughtered an entire race of unredeemable people. I suppose that this catastrophe occurred centuries before such free thinking as "All can be saved" (John 3:16-18). But it sounds to me like God lost His temper. I find it amazing how few people understand that Hitler was trying to do the same thing. I'm not calling Hitler a god. I'm comparing genocide to genocide. What is the "wrath of God," anyway?

Free will is the ability to exercise the versatility of individual interpretation. I am obviously not a "believer" of God. However, I am not against the existence of organized religions. Everyone is free to believe what they want to believe.

But I really don't care to hear narrow minded preaching intended to threaten me into conforming to someone else's beliefs. Let's get this straight: Either I believe in your god or I will be subject to eternal damnation. Free will, Mr. Penny, or terrorism?

I look forward to your response. But please, this time don't just string together biblical quotes. If you cannot say it in your own words, then perhaps you don't know what you're trying to say. — Andrew Gentile, senior in English.

Religious tolerance advocated

To Mr. David H. Penny, and many of the other Christians on Campus, using Tarot cards, seances, etc., may be sins to your god, Yahweh. However not everybody worships Him (as much as you might wish). Yes, some of us are religious without being Christian. This includes Muslims (although, I think the two are much closer than they like to think), Jews, Buddhists and neo-pagans.

What's a neo-pagan you ask? One who follows the older, "pagan" religions, primarily European, but also Native American and African religions could be counted. The ones whose religious forerunners were burnt as witches during the Middle Ages.

I am proud to not wear the armor of Yahweh. My religion does not seek to make war on everyone, including the planet herself. Pagans seek to live in harmony with Gaea (Mother Nature). I have found pagans to be more accepting of people in general than many (not all) Christians.

I guess my main point is this: there are other religions, with different views of sin out there.

Just because Yahweh said something is a sin for the ancient Hebrews (and by extension, modern Jews, Christians and as Allah, the Muslims) doesn't make it a sin to all religions. This is supposed to be a religiously free country, where one religion isn't set above the others. Unfortunately, the Christian religion is the de facto state religion.

By the way, how many of you are wearing clothing made of mixed fibers? That is a sin, according to the Jewish/Old Testament. — Victor Scott Rose, senior in religious studies.

Common religious reality not met

A lot of ideas of who God is or isn't have been thrown around lately. As long as I point to one book and you point to another we can never meet in the same reality tunnel. From your point of view: there are certain practices that God forbids in the Bible; the people who do these practices shall be punished if they don't repent; it is your mission to make these known to the people so they can repent and be saved.

OK. If I accept this as truth, then what about the pagan celebration of Dec. 25, or the yule rite of the Christmas tree. Your Bible states Jeremiah 10:2-4 "thus sayeth the Lord, learn not way of the heathen, for the customs of the people are vain: for one cutteth a tree out of the forest, the work of the hands of the workman. Then fasten it with nails: and with hammers, that it move not."

This seems a clear indication that God forbids the Christmas tree. OK, you want me to agree with your point of view. When it's Christmas Eve or Mr. Penny and the children with tears in their eyes ask, "Was it the Grinch that took our Christmas tree?" You step forward and state, "No, it was God."

But Mr. Penny when you get to my children save the quotes from Jeremiah. Just quote good old Saint Aleister. "There is no grace, there is no guilt, this is the law, do what thou wilt."

Whose laws? Take a drive around Carbondale or look on a street lamp on the Strip. You'll see. — John Moro, Panaeonic, Carbondale

God is merely a creation to serve humans

How can we all be human? How can anybody not be human except humans? Who and what are humans? God, being a creation of humans, can only serve as the mumbo jumbo of lunch plate garnish, our fodder (Idlewhile 1:15; yet I'm late for dinner). Yet, god cannot be human, for She, He, It, They, Here, Now, Then, There, Where . . . may be incorporal or at least on a premium farm land, and unable to eat turkey combos, who's to say? But being or not being a trinity can create a tasty triple cheese. Is god a vegetarian or does god prefer barbecue ribs; see Garden of Eden in Genesis? These are enduring questions.

Sin? Try sin. Rub it on, wash it off to remove those damaging warts (Compound W, back label). When you die, your carcass must be hauled off squeaky clean, no unsightly blemishes (Streets and Sanitation, second now to eternity). If you are not hauled off, god is less clean and green (local park service and rock bands, 1989) This is the law! Humans put laws in the books (see Hoyle or Roberts Rules of Order) so that they could play poker hands (as in red hot).

Thus, "whoever believeth in one iota of the integrity of the bible thumper or witch/warlock debaters should not perish but wear everlasting boxer shorts." (Don King, 15th) For on the eighth day of the eighth round of the eighth level of the eighth aster of the eighth movement . . . the "tarot touters" and "chapter and versers" created absurdity in a blessedly obsessed sort of way. — Vincent Miholic, Carbondale

Writer who spoke to God mispoke, finds Him

This letter is addressed to all the people who misinterpreted my letter on Nov. 17.

When I said that I spoke with God, it was meant as a joke. The idea was that I could make fun of this stupid evangelical letter writing movement at SIU.

But you see all of this has changed. With the two letters written, I know now that God does truly love me.

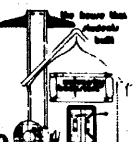

I've found God at last. And it was really funny how it happened. I was walking down Grand avenue and I heard this cry and turned around to see this burning bush. (Maybe if I had been a Christian I would have recognized the situation faster). Anyway at the base of this bush was Christ! — Robert D. Kemnitz, junior, English education.

coup attempt. The military played a key role in ousting her predecessor, Ferdinand Marcos, in February 1986.

Aquino vowed to use what she called "sufficient powers" to deal with the bloodiest uprising yet. At least 76 people have been killed and 553 wounded in the insurgency, in its sixth day Wednesday.

Aquino accused the rebels of using "urban terrorist tactics" but said the government "is handling this very sensitive situation with utmost concern for the safety of civilians."

"I do not contemplate declaring martial law," Aquino said. "I have sufficient powers to deal with the situation."

On Tuesday, Vice President Salvador Laurel urged Aquino and Congress to resign to allow for new general elections. A longtime Aquino foe, Laurel said he would serve on a civilian-military junta if the rebels created one.

"We must now be honest with ourselves and be ready to make any personal sacrifice in order to save democracy and restore law and order," Laurel said.

In Washington, the State Department voiced concern for the trapped Americans, but one official said U.S. forces were unable to provide military assistance to the evacuation effort.

"This isn't taking place in the United States. It may not be as simple as bringing in armored vehicles," the official said. "When the rebels see things like that happening they might take certain actions, and nobody wants more bodies lying in the streets."

No major fighting was reported in Manila overnight. Government troops made steady gains against the rebels Tuesday, recovering eight commercial and residential buildings in Makati.

Loyalist troops crouched behind armored vehicles and tanks kept up a barrage of gunfire as they edged into the rebel-held buildings.

IBHE, from Page 1

The IBHE report stated that Hispanic enrollment increased from 7 percent of total enrollment in 1986 to more than 8 percent in 1988. However, Hispanic enrollment at SIU-C has increased by almost 9 percent, from 380 students in 1986 to 416 in 1988.

Data for fall 1989 showed the trend continuing by about another 3 percent over 1988.

Seymour Bryson, assistant to the president for affirmative action, said SIU-C's history of being accessible to minorities played a role in the increases.

"Our door is much wider than many institutions in that we look at the potential of minority students as well as standardized test scores in granting admission," Bryson said. "We are more willing to work with students."

Bryson noted that "SIU has a good reputation in the Chicago area, which is where many minority students come from," adding that the University was in the process of hiring a recruiter for the Chicago area. "We are trying to use unique and creative tactics," he said.

health care from rural citizens is to implement a national health care system.

"I feel the time has come when this nation develops a national health care system," Poshard said. "We need to develop an articulate, thorough health care system."

Poshard said the present health care system is inefficient.

In implementing a national health care system, he added, Congress and the nation will have to face the tax issue of paying for the program.

University professors explore soybean disease

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

Three University professors from the College of Agriculture's Department of Plant and Soil Science are involved in ongoing research into soybean disease.

Paul Gibson, Michael Schmidt and Oval Myers, Jr. are researching and developing the resistance in some strains of soybean plants to two diseases.

"We are developing strains of soybeans that are resistant to the Soybean Cyst Nematode and to Soybean Sudden Death Syndrome," Schmidt said.

He said the team has been researching the nematode, which is a wormlike microscopic organism, and developing new breeds of nematode-resistant soybeans since 1976.

"The nematode, which is one millimeter long, resides in the soil and infests the roots of the plant," he said. "This infestation causes a disruption in the vascular system, resulting in poor water uptake and eventual growth-stunting or death of the plant."

Schmidt said 80 percent of soybean fields south of Interstate 70 are infested to some degree and that one half of those result in significant yield loss. In some drastic cases the nematode is capable of reducing a field's production 50 percent.

"There are over 10,000 varieties of soybeans. Only 32 of them are resistant to the nematode," Schmidt said. "The resistant strains originated in Manchuria and have been bred into the American strains."

The University team has taken the genes that give rise to resistance from the wild Manchuria varieties and hand-hybridized them into hearty local strains. The problem has been to develop a hybrid that is both resistant and hearty, he said.

"Nematode resistance is an elusive characteristic. It is an ongoing process to develop new strain and it takes many cycles to get a breed that has both characteristics," he said.

Thus far, the team has produced three marketable soybean breeds: the Egyptian in 1984, the Pyramid in 1985, and the Pharaoh in 1989.

University research into the Soybean Sudden Death Syndrome was started in 1985 and has not been nearly as developed, Gibson said.

"The condition was discovered in Southern Illinois in 1980 and is continuing to spread north. It's becoming a serious problem," he said.

Gibson said SDS symptoms are caused as the organism enters the soybean root and goes through the veins. It hides until the plant begins to fill its pods. Then yellowing appears between the veins, which progresses to spots that turn brown and die.

In more serious cases the spots enlarge, the leaves fall off, the pods fall off and the plant dies. SDS has been known to cut yield up to 60 percent, he said.

"We are not totally certain of all the causal organisms of SDS, although we are certain the primary organism is the Fusarium fungus. In 1986 we reproduced the same symptoms with a Xanthomonas type bacteria, but further research in that area has been discontinued due to lack of funds," Gibson said.

"We currently are in the process of testing the commercial and experimental varieties in Southern Illinois for SDS resistance," Gibson said. "We also have started a few resistant hybridizations, but we will not have evaluations for a couple of years."

He said the plantings, which has covered over 500 strains and found 20 appearing to be less susceptible to SDS, is done on rented farmland that is SDS-infested and the hybridization is done at the University experimental farm in Carbondale.

"We planted the soybeans that are to be crossed in a crossing block, which is a close space making it easy to breed the plants," Gibson said.

Next summer the team will begin studying the inheritance of SDS resistance.

Ex-Marion council member indicted for child molestation

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

A former Marion City Council member was arrested and taken to the Williamson County Jail shortly after he was found guilty in Williamson County Court Tuesday of sexually abusing a boy younger than 13.

"Rex Presson was found guilty of aggravated criminal sexual abuse for fondling a boy at a Williamson County swimming facility and at his home in Marion," Charles Garnati, Williamson County State's Attorney, said.

Presson's two-day bench trial ended Tuesday after Judge David C. Nelson found Presson guilty on one of three charges, Garnati said.

The state filed three charges of aggravated criminal sexual abuse against Presson.

Presson, of 304 S. Second St. in Marion, faces two more charges of sexual abuse against two other Williamson County youths who were between the ages of 13 and 17 at the time of the assaults.

Garnati said he called the two older of the three youths to the witness stand Tuesday and they claimed Presson fondled them.

Monday the youngest youth took the stand and told Judge Nelson he and his friends spent time at Presson's home, and Presson had taken them swimming, Garnati said.

Also Monday, Diane Hood of Herrin and Mary Jane Estrada of Marion took the stand. Garnati said the two women testified that they witnessed Presson fondle the youths while at the swimming facility.

Presson's defense attorney Bernard A. Paul of Marion declined to comment on the conviction.

Grand jury indicts graduate student on criminal sexual assault charges

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

A University graduate student in education was indicted by a grand jury last Friday on 11 counts of criminal sexual assault against a 10-year-old Wabash County boy.

Gary L. Auerswald, 45, was charged with 10 counts of criminal sexual assault before the grand jury convened Friday, but Steve Sawyer, Wabash County State's Attorney, said the grand jury found sufficient evidence to indict Auerswald on 11 counts.

Auerswald, a Wabash County native, was arrested by University Police in Jackson County on Nov. 17 and later posted $10,000 bond after an appearance before a judge in Wabash County.

The charges Auerswald faces stem from an investigation conducted by several law enforcement agencies, including the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and the Illinois Department of Criminal Investigations.

The charges contend that during August, September and October of 1986, Auerswald sexually assaulted the boy, who was ten years old at the time.

The assaults allegedly occurred in rural Wabash County, Sawyer said.

Evidence supporting the charges was first uncovered by law enforcement authorities within the last few months during a separate investigation, Sgt. Larry Eaton, of the University Police Department, said.

Sawyer said he called to the stand four agents from three different investigative agencies during the grand jury hearing, but declined to comment at length on what went on during the closed hearing.

Auerswald was scheduled for a preliminary hearing last Monday, but Sawyer opted for the grand jury.

Sawyer said there are two methods a state's attorney can choose to obtain a true bill of indictment, and he chose the grand jury.

Auerswald's trial date will not be set until he has been arraigned, Sawyer said.

Auerswald, who is free on bond, also declined to comment.

Thatcher defeats rival in parliamentary vote

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher survived the first challenge to her leadership of the Conservative Party in 14 years Tuesday, decisively beating a fellow Conservative who disliked her attitude toward the European Community.

Thatcher defeated Sir Anthony Meyer by a vote of 314-33, with 24 abstentions, said Member of Parliament Cranley Onslow, chairman of the committee that oversaw the vote.

Three of 374 members did not vote. MP Michael Heseltine, who was considered a possible successor to Thatcher until he resigned from the Cabinet in a defense dispute, refused to participate. Two others were ill.

"I'd like to say how very pleased I am with this result, and very pleased that I have the overwhelming support of my colleagues in the House and of people from the party in the country," Thatcher said.

The result leaves the government free to concentrate on "real issues," she said, such as reducing inflation, the European Community and reforms in Eastern Europe.

Immediately after the result was announced, Thatcher left the House of Commons without comment for a regular appointment with Queen Elizabeth II.

On her way to hear the result, Thatcher was asked whether she was confident of winning. She held up both hands to show crossed fingers and said, "Yes, yes."

Even before the ballots were counted Meyer said he expected to lose.

"I got more votes than I expected to get," he said. "The total of votes for me plus abstentions was rather higher than I expected."

Meyer, who was viewed as a stalking-horse candidate who may clear the way for a more serious challenge to Thatcher, said, "I will not be running again. Once is enough. But it is now for others to decide if the leadership question needs to be reopened."

The challenge was the first since Thatcher unseated party leader Edward Heath in 1975.

While detractors pointed out that 60 party members did not vote for Thatcher, her supporters were delighted with the easy win of the woman who has carried them to three election victories.

"I think it's a troublesome result for her," said John Cole, a commentator for the British Broadcasting Corp. "They're not disastrously bad figures but they are not as good as she might have hoped."

Former Conservative Party Chairman Norman Tebbit said, "This is very close to an absolute triumph."

"Certainly, I think her authority is positively reinforced by this," said Defense Secretary George Younger, who ran Thatcher's campaign. "After 15 years, it's really remarkable that out of 371 people voting, 314 still gave her their full and wholehearted support."

"It's worth it because it's raised the whole question of whether Mrs. Thatcher's policies and Mrs. Thatcher's style of leadership are the ones which are most likely to win the next election for the Conservative Party and the ones most suited to British needs at this critical juncture in the history of Europe."

Soldiers kill five infiltrators crossing into Israeli territory

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers killed five infiltrators who crossed into Israel's Negev Desert from Egypt Tuesday in an apparent effort to make a dramatic attack for the second anniversary of the start of the Palestinian uprising, the military said.

No Israelis were wounded or killed in the incident that occurred early Tuesday near the Egyptian border. The military did not release information on the clash until at least 12 hours later.

"The cell was on their way to a strike in Israeli territory," a spokesman for the Israeli army said. "At this stage it is not clear to which organization the terrorists belonged."

Israeli warplanes, meanwhile, bombed Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon, wounding at least seven people.

The Israeli military said its jets pounded the bases of Ahmed Jibril's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command and Talaat Yacoub's Palestine Liberation Front, in the village of Majdelyoun, 2.5 miles east of Sidon.

A U.N. official in Lebanon said Israeli artillery also hit the village of Hadatha on the edge of Israel's self-declared "security zone."

The raid, the 15th this year on guerrilla bases, came as Israel and its surrogate militia, South Lebanon Army, continued shelling the market town of Nabatiyeh, 33 miles south of Beirut, for a fourth consecutive day.

In the infiltration attempt, an army patrol encountered guerrillas who had crossed from the Sinai Peninsula into Israel. The patrol chased the guerrillas and killed the five, who were armed with five automatic assault rifles, a pistol, 51 hand grenades and ammunition, officials said.

Maj. Gen. Matan Vilna'i, head of the Israeli Southern Command, said the large amount of equipment "points at the intention to simply kill, not to argue too much, not to carry out a bargaining strike, but a killing strike."

Vilna'i also said the infiltration attempt probably was linked to the second anniversary of the start of the Palestinian uprising on Saturday.

"We are all aware of the fact that (Dec.) 9 is two years from the official date of the beginning of the uprising," Vilna'i told Army Radio.

"There is no doubt that the organizations we are dealing with will make attempts to carry out a strike of this sort."

Military officials have said they expected some Palestinian organizations to attempt attacks to draw attention to the anniversary.

Two days before the Nov. 15 anniversary of the "declaration of independence" by the Palestine Liberation Organization, two soldiers were shot to death in an ambush outside Gaza City.

Egypt is the only Arab nation with a peace treaty with Israel, and the border between the two countries is considered fairly quiet and secure.

Tuesday's infiltration attempt was the fifth across the Egyptian border in the last two years.

On March 7, 1988, three guerrillas hijacked a bus near Dimona in the Negev Desert. The guerrillas and three Israeli civilians were killed when an Israeli anti-terrorism force stormed the bus.

In the occupied Gaza Strip Tuesday, soldiers shot and killed an Arab youth, Naser Abdel Aziz, 17, during clashes in Gaza City, Palestinian sources reported.

Christians, Moslems clash

Fighting in Lebanon spreads panic; five people wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian and Moslem factions exchanged fire on Beirut's Green Line Tuesday, wounding at least five people and triggering panic among residents who fear another wave of violence.

Newly elected President Elias Hrawi said in remarks published Tuesday he will ask Syria to withdraw its troops from areas where the Lebanese government can extend its authority once the "abnormal situation" in Christian east Beirut ends.

Hrawi said he received two telephone contacts two days ago from U.S. Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly "who confirmed on behalf of the United States that a solution is forthcoming and that stability will return to Lebanon and its sovereignty will be re-established on its territory soon."

Fighting erupted for one hour along the Green Line that divides the capital into Moslem and Christian sectors and shells crashed on residential areas close to the demarcation line.

Police said three people were wounded in the Christian enclave, among them a Christian army officer, and a woman was wounded in Moslem west Beirut. Another soldier was wounded by a sniper bullet in the Dahr Al-Wahesh front in the mountains.

police played a key role in preventing dissent and crushing pro-democracy demonstrations just before Honecker resigned and never have enjoyed public support.

Outrage over the alleged abuses has spread, driving demonstrators back into the streets by the hundreds of thousands in Leipzig and other cities.

Indignant protesters stormed state security police offices in at least three cities Monday and Tuesday in the hope of discovering evidence implicating party officials. Pro-democracy groups, appealing for calm, tried to stop the crowds from entering the police buildings.

Sunday, the government announced the resignation of the Communist Party Politburo and the Central Committee, including recently named party chief Egon Krenz — in effect the party's entire leadership. The party leadership in explaining its resignation acknowledged its failure to stamp out official corruption.

The party resignations virtually stripped Krenz of power, although he remains titular head of state. The government is being run by Prime Minister Hans Modrow, while a special committee has been entrusted with party affairs pending an emergency Communist Party congress later this month, when new officials are expected to be named.

Just before resigning, the party leadership purged 11 discredited former officials from the party, including Honecker.

Two key members of Honecker's Politburo were arrested last week and at least 30 other officials are being investigated.

Former Secretary of State for Economic Coordination Alexander

Schalck-Golodowski apparently fled the country and was named as a fugitive by East German authorities, who asked several Western governments to help find him.

Schalck-Golodowski, who had been in charge of foreign currency procurements, is suspected of having used his post for "personal enrichment and favoritism," ADN reported.

Vogel, the lawyer who was arrested Tuesday, had said earlier this week he had been asked in a telephone call from outside the country to represent Schalck-Golodowski, should the former official's case go to court.

Vogel had gained an international reputation after negotiating a series of East-West spy swaps. He also played a key role in negotiating a massive exodus of East Germans to the West from other East Bloc countries earlier this year.

tariffs on Soviet products in the United States, if the Soviet leader keeps his promise to put into place relaxed emigration laws in the Soviet Union.

With this offer on the table, Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, said Southern Illinois has an additional market for its export products.

"As long as the Soviet Union is willing to tone down military intervention with other parts of the world and to let reforms in Eastern Europe proceed rapidly, then the United States should extend favored-nation status upon them," Poshard said.

U.S. officials said Bush also told Gorbachev he would support the Soviet Union's entrance into the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, a 97-nation trade organization, as soon as the Soviet Union eases emigration restrictions.

Jonathan Gaffney, research associate for the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies, said the Soviet Union needs about every consumer product that the United States and other Western nations could offer.

"The Soviets need all kinds of products, but they have no money," he said. "They are looking more for direct investments."

Increased trade between the two nations would bring a direct return through profits for the business that invest in the Soviet Union, Gaffney said.

An indirect return through the trade, he added, would be the Soviet Union becoming somewhat of an ally.

Gaffney said he hopes University students realize what a truly historical figure Gorbachev has been in making these changes.

Robert Berls, deputy director of the American Committee on U.S.-Soviet Relations, said even though the potential for increased trade between the two countries is monumental, it will be a long time before anyone sees an upturn in U.S.-Soviet trade.

"The short-term benefits of increased trade to the Soviet Union is the rapid increase of consumer goods in that country," Berls said.

The Soviet Union, however, will have to be able to develop and process these goods itself, he explained.

Poshard said the United States might need this market for its consumer exports when the European Common Market opens in 1992.

"When the trade barriers come down, the likelihood is that they may choose to start shutting out more U.S. products, and we then will need more markets (such as the Soviet Union) for our exports," he said.

On the arms-control front, Bush and Gorbachev talked about signing a pact to reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear weapons by 30 to 50 percent, state department officials said.

The pact would be signed at a superpower summit in the United States next summer.

President Bush said Monday in a press conference from Belgium, as seen on a television report, money saved from the defense budget would be used for social programs in the United States.

Bush said, however, that some problems are not going to be solved simply by putting more money into the programs.

The best answer to helping people, Bush said, is through a sound economy brought on by reducing the deficit.

Poshard and Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, agreed with the President.

"The President is right. The American people need to demand that we apply these savings toward the debt," Poshard said.

Simon said if the United States can have an improved relationship with the Soviet Union, defense spending could be cut by $1 billion.

Half of that money, Simon said, could be used toward decreasing the massive budget deficit, and the other half of the savings could be split between health care and education.

But after meeting with NATO in Belgium early this week, Bush said he is in no hurry to significantly cut military arms without NATO approval, according to United Press International.

In fact, Bush said NATO and the Warsaw Pact must continue to exist separately.

"But is the cold war raging like it was?" Bush asked. "Absolutely not."

While the two superpowers were meeting in Malta last weekend, Bush said nothing less than a peaceful revolution was occurring in Eastern Europe.

"It's all very much connected, the summit and Eastern European changes," Berls said. "The changes in Eastern Europe have underscored the potential of destabilizing (U.S.-Soviet relations) because of problems that could arise if the changes get out of control."

"It's important for the leaders to come to that understanding," he added.

University Associate Political Science Professor Leland Stauber said both the U.S. and Soviet governments, along with the West German government, see eye to eye on the movement of changes in Eastern Europe.

"They don't want an outburst of violence," he said. "The Soviets and the U.S. are concerned that changes come about in an orderly and peaceful way, and I think the way changes have been taking place has surprised most experts in this region."

Stauber said the President made a wise decision in having the Malta Summit in light of the European changes.

"The changes in Eastern Europe are reducing conflict between the two nations, not removing conflict," he said. "The two countries have always had different ideas, but the changes are lowering the level of tension between them."

Stauber said one of the most enormous impacts of this reduced tension is the loosening of the two military alliances.

And this makes these days a truly remarkable time in history, Gaffney said.

Student spends energies on internship, work, school

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Working three jobs and attending school full-time is not a schedule most people attempt to wrestle with, but University engineering student Linda Straley is not most people.

Two of the jobs Straley works are providing her with valuable work experience, in addition to paying for her education. One is an engineering internship and the other involves working as an engineering consultant.

"I would rather be real busy," Straley said of handling her full schedule. "And I'm really excited about working in my major."

Straley, from Dewner's Grove, is a senior at majoring in industrial technology. Her intern work at Rehabilitation and Vocational Education this summer and at Magic Chef in Herrin this fall has been very important to her, she said.

"In any major, if you have the opportunity to work at an internship, take it," Straley said. "There's textbook learning and then there's real-life learning. When I walk into Magic Chef, I'm not a college student anymore."

Aside from her everyday duties including paperwork, Straley has worked on several different projects, part of her role as a maintenance engineer intern at Magic Chef. She said she enjoys working in the machine shop atmosphere, getting serial numbers, assigning asset numbers and designing filing systems.

Her job at RAVE consisted of different duties. She would take small components apart and while reconstructing it, come up with ideas for new tool designs that would assist physically-disabled workers.

"I worked with them to show them how to assemble things or cut wire," Straley said. "These folks were learning something. They were really proud when they did. That was neat, their being so proud of what they could do, because they should be. It was almost like watching a child growing up."

"It was a different job," she said.

"I enjoyed going to work."

Besides the wages she earns as an intern, Straley said she also receives three hours of credit for every semester she works at least 20 hours as an intern.

"There's no better education than that," Straley said. "It takes the place of just taking elective hours and it can really help point you in the direction you're going."

Straley, who will graduate in May, said she doesn't have a job lined up after graduation because she has marriage plans in June. Her fiancé lives in California, so she said she is not sure where she will look for a job.

Aside from her valuable work experience, Straley said she will have another advantage in finding work in that, as a female, she is a minority in engineering positions.

"It's an advantage that I'm going to take," Straley said, "but it's sad for the average white male, because companies have to fill their quotas."

Engineering exam refresher course slated for January

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Engineering graduates planning to take either the Engineer in Training exam or the Professional Engineer exam can enroll in a 10-week refresher course that will be offered at the University.

Graduates must register by Jan. 16 to enroll in the course, which costs $170. Classes will begin Jan. 23 and will meet Tuesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Engineering and Technology Building.

The course is designed to help graduates who have been fulfilling experience requirements. Graduates are required to have four years of experience working in an engineering position under a qualified engineer before taking the Professional Engineer exam. Passing the exam will register the graduate as a professional engineer in Illinois.

"The chances of passing the exam are not very good when you've been out working," E. E. Cook, associate dean of engineering, said. "These things really get away from you."

The professional engineer exam is not given at SIU-C, but is offered at other state locations. The EIT, an engineering fundamentals exam, will be given April 19 at the University by the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation.

"Our students have a 90 percent pass rate on the EIT," Cook said. "We're pretty sure it's one of the highest rates in the state."

The EIT tests students on the fundamentals of engineering learned in school. The Professional Engineer exam differs in that it tests the day-to-day ability of engineers in such things as designing a bridge or a robotic system.

"If you pass the Professional Engineer exam, you're judged by your peers and found to be competent of being a practicing engineer," Cook said.

The SIU-C refresher course will cover engineering fundamentals in engineering mathematics, chemistry, physics, engineering economics and basic engineering science. The Division of Continuing Education, phone 536-7751, has information on enrolling in the course.

Applications for the EIT and Professional Engineer exams must be obtained through the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation, 320 W. Washington, Third Floor, Springfield, IL 62786, phone (217) 785-0800. Applications need to be on file at the office 90 days before the exam date.

Post-Dispatch writer describes tales of covering Olympic Games

By Marto Millikin
Staff Writer

As the only American to carry the 1988 Olympic torch through the streets of Seoul, South Korea, Dave Dorr said thoughts of pride, humbleness and fear of tripping ran through his head.

"I kept thinking that if it (the flame) went out, it would be the first time in history," Dorr said in a lecture held at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Lawson 231.

A sports writer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch since 1966, Dorr was selected as a torch bearer for the 1988 games as a result of his coverage of several Olympic Games.

Dorr said the fact he had been a runner for a number of years also brought his name to the attention of the selection committee.

Dorr was nominated three times for a Pulitzer Prize for his work on the Olympic Games. He began his career of Olympic coverage at the 1972 Munich, West Germany, Games.

During the 1950s and 1960s, when the Games mainly were covered by newspapers, Dorr said the demands of reporting on Olympic events were comparable to front-line war reporting.

Dorr was nominated three times for the Pulitzer Prize for his work on the Olympic Games of which he said is similar to front-line war reporting.

"You were lucky if an athlete wanted to talk to you," Dorr said.

The 1980 Lake Placid Winter games changed this because sports information directors began projects such as writing athlete biographies for journalists, Dorr said.

Dorr said reporting on up to 24 different events creates a necessity for fellow journalists' support and sharing of notes and resources. It also provides 18-hour days for 20 to 25 days.

"You find yourself trying to find time to eat," Dorr said.

Language barriers and transportation breakdowns are problems common to covering games outside the United States, Dorr said.

Meeting deadlines also is a problem because of different time zones, he said.

Dorr is also the author of "Running Back," a non-fiction work about Steve Heidenreich, one of America's top milers in the late 1970s who was struck by a hit-and-run driver, suffered brain damage and returned to run again.

Dorr's other accomplishments include his three-part profile of Olympian Jacki Joyner-Kersey in 1988 which was one of 35 stories chosen from 800 entries for inclusion in the "Best Sports Stories."

He also served on a committee that nominated the first group of inductees for the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame.

The Society of Professional Journalists sponsored the lecture.

Chinese student movement wins rights award

BOSTON (UPI) — The Chinese student movement, which sparked last spring's deadly fight for freedom of expression and democracy in Beijing, Tuesday was awarded one of three 1989 international Reebok Human Rights Awards.

To a standing ovation, as other recipients stood misty-eyed, Chinese Student Movement leaders Li Lu, 23, and Wu'er Kaixi, 20 said they accepted their awards "on behalf of the hundreds of thousands of students who belong to the democracy movement in China."

The other named recipients from China were Chai Ling, 24, presumed to be either dead or in hiding, and Wang Dan, 24, who is now imprisoned and believed to have been tortured by his government. "This award reminds us that even in the darkest winter, the hopes of a warm spring will still be held. We will again see spring in Beijing," said Li.

The second annual awards, totaling $100,000, were presented by rock star Sting and former Olympic athlete Rafer Johnson at historic Faneuil Hall.

"I'm speaking as an ordinary working man with four children and concerns about their future," said Sting, a driving force in last year's two-month, 20-city Amnesty International human rights concert tour with Bruce Springsteen, Peter Gabriel, Tracy Chapman and Youssou N'dour.

"It is very frightening to me that I live, and my children live, in a world where governments cynically and routinely discard basic decency and violate their citizens' fundamental human rights," he said.

Reebok, the Stoughton, Mass.-based footwear manufacturer, began the awards program last year to honor those under age 30 who, against great odds, have significantly increased awareness of human rights.

The $30,000 cash prize accompanying the award to the Chinese students will be used to establish a special fund to seek the release of imprisoned student activists in China.

The other recipients are:
 ■ Dawat Lupung, 25, a native of the endangered Malaysian rain forest who has rallied his Penan people to form human blockades to battle government-sponsored logging that is destroying their homeland. ($10,000 to the Sarawak Penans Association).

■ Mercedes Doretti, 30, and Luis Fondebrider, 25, of Argentina's forensic anthropology team, whose exhumations of thousands of people who "disappeared" during their country's military reign of terror from 1976-1983 brought truth to families and legal evidence against officials responsible. ($10,000 to Equipo Argentino de Antropologia Forense).

Historian claims author lied about characters in novel

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — A historian who studied artifacts from a salvaged Civil War steamer and diaries of prominent citizens claims "Gone With the Wind" author Margaret Mitchell lied about the basis for her characters.

E. Lee Spence of Charleston said Tuesday he's not "trying to rain on anyone's parade," particularly with celebrations upcoming in Atlanta to mark the 50th anniversary of the revered movie version of Mitchell's work.

"Margaret Mitchell lied when she claimed her characters were pure fiction," he said.

Spence credited Mitchell with being a "superb historian and storyteller," but said she intentionally concealed the true origin of her characters.

Based on his research, Spence is convinced the real Rhett Butler was the tall, handsome, outspoken Charlestonian George Alfred Trenholm, owner of more than 60 steamers that tried to outrun Union naval blockades in the Civil War.

Spence said other principal characters in the story also can be connected to real people.

"Although the plot in GWTW was fictional, virtually every one of Margaret's characters were based on real people," he said, "and incidents in their lives formed the real meat of the story."

Nadia Comaneci settles in Florida, considers putting life story on film

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Celebrity Romanian defector Nadia Comaneci said Tuesday she has given up gymnastics and will settle in Florida, possibly making a movie about her life.

In a brief appearance at Hollywood City Hall, Comaneci, who stunned the world with a historic string of perfect 10s in the 1976 Olympics, was asked if she planned to teach gymnastics.

"Not at all," she replied, speaking hesitantly in English. "Because I want to do other things. I intend to make a movie, about my story."

She did not elaborate on the movie plans.

Comaneci, 28, appeared with Constantin Panait, 38, a Romanian exile who helped her defect. Panait is married and has four children but has been romantically linked to Comaneci.

Asked about their relationship and whether they planned to be married, Comaneci laughed and said the matter was private.

Said Panait, "I can't answer, I let you know."

Comaneci said she was currently staying in Miami, at a hotel she would not identify, and plans to settle somewhere in south Florida.

Hollywood Mayor Mara Giuliani gave her a ceremonial 7-inch key to the city Tuesday and other city officials welcomed her to Florida.

Comaneci crossed the Romanian border into Hungary Nov. 28 after a six-hour march through ice and snow and was granted asylum in New York, where she had been since Friday.

She expressed concern for her relatives back in Romania and said she was scared during her journey across the Romanian border "because it was dangerous for somebody to catch me."

"I feel very well. I wanted to come from many years ago, but I didn't find somebody to help me," Comaneci said.

State Department representatives greeted Comaneci and Panait as they stepped off a flight from New York Monday night and took them to an undisclosed hotel in Miami.

Comaneci had said earlier she would not be involved with the U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

Herrin man reprints works of 1938 English professor

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

Gordon Pruett, a Herrin resident who said he became a publisher by chance, has reprinted a book originally published by a professor at the University in 1938.

The book, "Tales and Songs of Southern Illinois," is a collection of more than 90 stories and 80 songs of local folklore compiled by Charles Neely, who was an English professor at Southern Illinois Normal University from 1932 until his death in 1937. The book is the result of over 12 years of extensive research.

Pruett, whose Crossfire Press reprinted a book last year about local prohibitionist S. Glenn Young, said Neely's book was brought to his attention by Gary DeNeal, the editor of the folk tale magazine "Springhouse." After looking up the book in the rare book room at Morris Library, Pruett said he immediately was interested in publishing the book.

"I thought it deserved being reprinted because of its charm and interesting stories. It's fairly obscure," he said, noting the book had been pretty much forgotten by readers and scholars.

Pruett said the book includes local folklore such as folk songs, ghost stories, graveyard stories, tall tales and treasure stories, and contains specific references to Southern Illinois sites.

"Some of the stories have a moral thread. Some are legitimately scary," he said. Pruett described one of his favorite stories as the tale of a dead man hanging a live man in a Grand Tower cemetery.

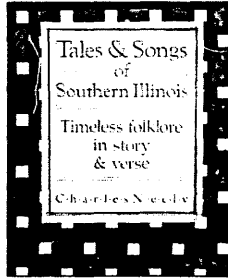

Another story tailor-made for scaring people around a campfire is "Death of a Grave-Robber," which tells of a medical student stealing bodies for dissection who finds an insane woman who had been buried alive.

Pruett said the songs in the book are fairly obscure, although a few of the songs have become familiar in Southern Illinois. He said a few natives might recognize "The Death of Charlie Burger," which tells of an area bootlegger who became a Robin Hood figure to locals. Pruett said it was ironic that Neely, a literary scholar, misspelled the bootlegger's name Bigger as Burger.

Pruett said Neely seemed to have preserved the distinctive voices of the Southern Illinoisans who told him their favorite stories and songs.

"There's a different tone in each story, so I think he maintained the integrity of each one," he said.

Many of the stories and songs date back to the settlers who first populated the area in the 1800s, Pruett said. He said Neely attempted to trace the lineage of Southern Illinois folklore.

Pruett, who has printed about 2,000 paperback copies and a limited number of hardcover copies of the book, said he plans on printing more, if the book is successful in its first run.

He said the first person to order this book of local history through the mail was a woman who contributed to local history herself, the 1935 editor of the University newspaper, The Egyptian.

The book is available at Waldenbooks in the University Mall, Kaleidoscope, Book World and Hundley House. Paperback copies are $12.95 and hardcover editions, available by mail only, are $18.95. For more information about the book, contact Pruett at Crossfire Press, P.O. Box 365, Herrin, IL 62948.

Duran ready for Sugar Ray; vows no surrender this time

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Roberto Duran says Sugar Ray Leonard cannot beat him again by taunting and dancing Thursday night in the rubber match of their decade-long rivalry.

He vows to be prepared for the flashy tactics that prompted him to surrender in their second bout Nov. 25, 1980 in New Orleans — the infamous "No mas" fight.

"Let him clown," Duran said. "I come to box. Sooner or later, he has to stop clowning. If he wants to fight, let him. Sooner or later, he has to fight."

Leonard says he will use a different strategy this time in the 12-round bout for his World Boxing Council super middleweight title. He expresses doubt that what worked when he was a 24-year-old welterweight in his prime will work as a 33-year-old super middleweight. And Duran, 38, would not be as surprised as in New Orleans.

"I don't think it's going to work this time around," Leonard said. "We're both a little older now, both different fighters."

Leonard says he'll use different strategy

Leonard set the pace for both of his battles against Duran. In their first fight June 20, 1980, he decided to slug with Duran and lost a brutal 15-round decision. The second time, his dancing, jabbing and teasing frustrated Duran into muttering "No mas" in the eighth round.

"I want to outspeed, outmove and outfinesse Duran. I think being elusive is the key."

—Sugar Ray Leonard

This time, expect Leonard to fight as he did against Marvin Hagler April 6, 1987 in his most surprising victory. Leonard circled for most of the 12 rounds, content to box his way to a decision and won on two of the three judges' cards.

In subsequent fights against Donny Lalonde and Thomas Hearns, Leonard was forced to work inside his taller opponents' reach. He paid the price, going down once from a Lalonde right hand and twice from Hearns' rights. He stopped Lalonde and earned a disputed draw with Hearns in what was considered a bad performance for Leonard.

"I pretty much have concentrated on movement for Duran, who's a slugger," Leonard said. "For Hearns and Lalonde I worked on being more flat-footed so I could get inside and do damage."

"For Duran, I will use speed and more speed. I want to outspeed, outmove and outfinesse Duran. I think being elusive is the key. A decision is what I look forward to."

"The key is controlling the tempo of the fight, not falling into his fight — slowing down, going punch for punch. I believe he'll try to do the same thing, set his pace."

Duran says he fears a decision because the judges favor Leonard, and will probably fight more aggressively than Leonard.

"Yeah, I'm a little afraid, that's the reason I'm looking for a knockout," he said.

Duran scored a surprising victory of his own when he won a 12-round decision to take the WBC middleweight championship from Iran Barkley in February.

Against Barkley, Duran let his less experienced opponent lead and countered with superior speed and accuracy. A barrage of right hands decked Barkley in the 11th round, sealing a split decision for Duran.

"He has very fast hands, which is one of his greatest attributes," Leonard said of Duran.

Barkley said Duran's ring intelligence is his greatest asset.

"This man has a lot of knowledge upstairs," Barkley said. "If you're not a thinker and prepared for the things he can do, he will get you."

But Duran is the one who must be prepared for anything Thursday.

"He can do whatever he wants," Duran said. "To beat Roberto Duran he will have to fight. I come to fight, not to clown around. I'm a fighter, not a clown. The clowns are in the circus."

Sugar Ray considers retirement after fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The final news conference for Thursday night's Sugar Ray Leonard-Roberto Duran fight sounded like a boxing farewell to Leonard.

Leonard, his attorney Mike Trainer and promoter Bob Arum said Leonard's third fight against Duran might be his last bout. Leonard will defend his World Boxing Council super middleweight title at the Mirage Hotel and Casino.

"I don't know how many more chances I'll have to talk about Ray Leonard," Trainer said Tuesday. "Ray Leonard has always given 100 percent to the promoters. Ray Leonard's always given 100 percent to the press and Ray Leonard's always given 100 percent to the public. He will give 100 percent Thursday night."

Arum, who has had a hot and cold relationship with Leonard over the years, added: "Ray Leonard, like Ali before him, has been a tremendous promoter. Thursday night might be the end of the line for him. If it is, it's been a hell of a ride."

Leonard then repeated statements made in the past few days about his possible retirement.

"This could be possibly my last fight, or next to last fight," he said. "I made a promise to myself never to announce a retirement again. I'm going to fade into the sunset. If you don't see me for 10 years, you know I retired."

But Leonard was quick to dispute a claim by Duran's adviser

Mike Acri that Leonard lacks motivation.

"Competition motivates me," Leonard said. "I'm motivated because Duran thinks he can win. The key has been intensity for me and Duran. Mentally and physically, we've changed. Spiritually, we haven't changed."

Duran said he has aimed for this fight for over nine years, since he quit in the "No mas" fight Nov. 25, 1980.

"I don't know what motivates Sugar Ray Leonard, that's his problem," Duran said. "All I know is what's stimulated me the last 9 1/2 years. When I signed for this fight, I was the happiest man on earth."

A $7.6 million payday, compared with Leonard's $12.6 million guarantee, was just one source of Duran's happiness. He was also ecstatic for the chance to erase the public stain of his "No mas" loss to Leonard and to settle the score in their long rivalry.

Leonard credited the 38-year-old Panamanian for coming back from the shame of the "No mas" fight, which often overshadows Duran's four world titles and 85-7 record.

"Duran has been the butt of jokes, I respect his resiliency," Leonard said. "Duran's been able to rise to the occasion."

Steve Wynn, owner of the new $600 million Mirage, said less than 500 tickets remain and predicted a sellout of the 16,000-seat outdoor stadium.

Oakland A's 'dynasty' falls; pundits give nod to Angels

San Francisco Examiner

NASHVILLE — The Oakland A's are starting to learn the truth about baseball dynasties.

A month ago, the A's were going to be the team of the '90s. Today, they are falling behind in their own division.

"The L.A. papers have already given the pennant to the Angels," A's general manager Sandy Alderson joked. "So we're here to see what we get for second place."

The A's suffered a significant loss when designated hitter Dave Parker signed a two-year contract with the Milwaukee Brewers. That leaves the A's with big decisions in the next few days on replacing Parker and re-signing free agents Storm Davis and Tony Phillips.

"I think the division's going to improve, but I believe in taking care of our own business," said A's manager Tony La Russa. "We're putting together a club that can win 95 to 100 games. If we can do that, we've got a hell of a chance of winning."

It may well take 100 wins for a title in what is shaping up to be the best division in baseball.

The Angels have already signed pitcher Mark Langston. And they are rumored to be key bidders for outfielder Robin Yount and pitcher Mark Davis, free agents. Kansas City is trying to add talent and the Texas Rangers are expected to improve significantly with the addition of young players.

Is all this enough to leave the A's quaking in their tennies?

"I think we'll be better, too," Alderson said. "What we all have to recognize is this is a constant practice of renewal. You can't take a snapshot and reprint it every year. It doesn't work that way."

Alderson believes some of his younger players will improve enough to compensate for the loss of Parker and the possible defections of Phillips and Davis. Alderson also said his team has matured enough that Parker's leadership and dominating clubhouse presence may not be as vital as they were the last two years.

Parker signed for a minimum of $3.25 million over two years. He gets a $400,000 signing bonus, $1 million in '90, $1.4 million in '91 and either $1.4 million or a $225,000 buyout in '92. In addition, there are incentives worth $250,000 a year.

Parker and Alderson agreed the sticking point in their talks was length of contract. Parker will be 40 when renewal time comes on his current contract, and history has shown hitters who remain productive at 40 are rare indeed.

Still, the deal could make a big difference to the Brewers. They are trying to convince Yount to return, and he has stipulated that he would not come back unless the Brewers appeared competitive.

"I think I'm at the stage of my career where I can be the one player to help a team win," said Parker.

SHIPLEY, from PAGE 24

"At the first of the season, I set one goal," Shipley said. "That was to be consistent. Every game I wanted to go out and play good defense. I need to cut my turnovers down. Sometimes I try to make the extra pass when I don't have to."

"I like to try and get every rebound, every loose ball if I can," Shipley said. "There are times I do have laddowns but I try to keep up the intensity during the whole game."

His increased dedication to defense was evident against Northern Illinois, when he helped hold Huskie forward Donell Thomas, an All-American candidate averaging 20 points per game, to 16 points on five of 14 shooting.

"He's a good player," Shipley said. "When he gets down low he's like Jerry Jones, he's either going to score or get fouled every time. Whenever he got down on the block I tried to get in front of him so he couldn't get the ball."

"It's hard to hold a good player down," Shipley said. "When he was out on the floor I tried to get up and put pressure on him. I wanted to pressure him and maybe force him into a turnover or something, try to make him do something he didn't want to do. That was the key. We made him take a lot more shots to get his points."

As a team, Shipley said the Salukis have the ingredients to take the MVC championship this season and will not be intimidated by anyone in their path.

"Right now I have confidence that this team can play with a lot of people in the country," Shipley said. "Our goal right now is to improve every game. I want to make it into the NCAA and I want to win the conference. Those goals are definitely realistic. I think so far you've seen that we can play."

Although he will not look past Eastern Illinois, Murray State or Evansville — the next opponents in line for the Salukis — Shipley is keeping Dec. 15 in the back of his mind.

That is when ESPN, a nationally-televised cable network, will air a game between the Salukis and St. Louis University. The game marks the first time the Arena will hold a nationally broadcast sporting event.

The Billikens defeated the Salukis in the first round of the National Invitational Tournament last season 87-54. The Billikens advanced to the championship game of the NIT before falling to St. John's.

Herzog hopes 1990 will bring healthy team

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Whitey Herzog isn't asking much. The St. Louis Cardinals manager just wants healthy bodies.

Last year, center fielder Willie McGee wasn't well all season and pitchers Greg Mathews and Danny Cox didn't pitch an inning.

Reliever Todd Worrell came down with a sore right elbow that a fall of rest didn't cure. Last Friday, he underwent ligament surgery and will be out until at least July.

"I expect to have Worrell in July. At least that's what they say it will be if it's successful."

—Whitey Herzog

ment surgery and will be out until at least July.

Losing Worrell, who still had 20 saves and was 3-5 with a 2.96 ERA in 47 games, wasn't the best way to start a season that hasn't even started yet.

"I expect to have Worrell in July," manager Whitey Herzog said. "At least that's what they say it will be if it's successful. And I've never seen a doctor operate on a guy and say it was unsuccessful. So I expect to have him about July."

Scott Terry will be shifted to the bullpen by Herzog until Worrell comes back. He will also try John Costello and Dan Quisenberry as closers.

The biggest problem for Herzog may be hitting. The Cardinals scored 632 runs last season. That wasn't the fewest in the National League, but it was too close to the bottom for a team near the top.

Vince Coleman hit 254 and walked only 59 times. His on-base percentage was .316, poor for a leadoff hitter.

"We've got some things we've got to change offensively," Herzog said. "We've got to retool a little bit. But we might have a lot more offense without doing anything."

Getting McGee in shape so he can hit in front of Tom Brunansky and Pedro Guerrero would be a start. As would getting Coleman to reach base more often, so he can steal more than his 65 bases last season.

Big things are expected of rookie catcher Todd Zeile, who hit .289 in the American Association and .256 in a month with St. Louis. He's the reason the Cardinals were content to let Boston sign Tony Pena.

"I wouldn't be afraid to start the season with this club," Herzog said. "Especially if we sign Tudor. And he's all right."

Carter may become a Padre

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The San Diego Padres acquired the rights to slugger Joe Carter Tuesday, enlivening what has thus far been one of the slowest winter meetings in years.

The Padres and Cleveland Indians agreed on a package that includes catching prospect Sandy Alomar Jr. Carter will go to the Padres if they can satisfy him with a long-term contract.

Jack McKeon, the Padres manager and general manager, refused to say how long he has to forge a contract, but said it was "enough" time. McKeon said he hoped to meet with Carter's agent, Jim Turner, Tuesday.

In another move, the New York Mets acquired outfielder Keith Hughes and right-hander Cesar Mejia from Baltimore for right-hander John Mitchell and outfielder Joaquin Contreras.

Those moves raised to three the number of trades thus far. The inactivity apparently stems from clubs waiting to see which teams will land the key free agents.

"Carter, Robin Yount and Mark Davis, until these are resolved, people are at a standstill," said John McNamara, Cleveland's new manager.

California General Manager Mike Port denied the Angels have made Yount an offer. Detroit has offered free agent first baseman Pete O'Brien a four-year deal worth $7.5 million. White Sox Manager Jeff Torborg says Chicago would like to have O'Brien, too.

Seattle mayor-elect vows to keep SuperSonics there

SEATTLE (UPI) — Officials from seven cities have expressed interest in providing a new home to the NBA's Seattle SuperSonics, but Mayor-elect Norm Rice says he's made retaining the team one of his administration's top priorities.

Tacoma, Wash.; Toronto; Memphis, Cincinnati, Kansas City, Mo.; San Diego and Anaheim, Calif., have expressed interest in obtaining the Sonics, whose owner has expressed dissatisfaction with the team's lease at Seattle Center Coliseum and indicated he is willing to relocate the franchise.

Rice, who was elected mayor of Seattle in November, said retaining the Sonics will be "a high priority" when he takes office in January.

Rice met Monday with Sonics President Bob Whitsitt, after Tacoma Mayor Doug Sutherland and a group of civic investors said they would try to lure the Sonics to Tacoma.

Rice, however, said he made no commitments to Whitsitt and the two did not discuss any deadlines.

"We didn't talk about that, nor about Tacoma nor about any other city," Rice said.

The Sonics are in the fifth year of a 10-year lease at the coliseum. Sonics owner Barry Ackerley has indicated he may exercise a buyout option next spring to pay about $500,000 to be released from the lease.

Ackerley has said he doubts the team can be profitable in the coliseum.

Whitsitt has said Ackerley set a deadline for the end of the current season to find an acceptable alternative to the coliseum. If he's unsuccessful, Ackerley will make the team available to other cities, Whitsitt said.

Whitsitt has indicated Ackerley would prefer to keep the team in the Seattle area. Tacoma is about 35 miles south of Seattle.

If the Sonics are to move to Tacoma in the near future, they would play at the Tacoma Dome, which seats 25,000 people. The Seattle coliseum seats 14,250 for basketball.

The Tacoma Dome has 3,000 parking spaces, compared to 2,500 at the coliseum.

Under a proposal by Tacoma City Attorney John Messina, who also is president of the Tacoma Stars of the Major Indoor Soccer League, the Sonics could have at least partial control over parking and concession revenues at the Tacoma Dome, neither of which they have at the coliseum.

ting ready for the ball game.

"I do believe the officials will be on top of their game and hopefully the officials can temper these kinds of altercations."

But if Johnson wants to downplay the furor, why is the locker room bulletin board filled with Philadelphia comments, including Ryan's remark that, "I didn't know Dallas had anybody good enough to put a bounty on."

"Well," Johnson said, "we want to remind them (Dallas players) of that (Thanksgiving) game. But we will downplay it as far as conversation back and forth."

And as for Ryan's request for an apology from Johnson, the Cowboys coach simply smiled and said:

"Please!" Ryan, speaking to Dallas area writers and broadcasters, made it clear he did not want to discuss the incident.

"I'm tired of talking about that stuff," he said. "If you want to ask something about the game, go ahead."

But Ryan did say he was still expecting an apology.

"I'm sure the league will have him do it before long," Ryan said. "It's a bunch of bull."

"I think we will be ready to play this game. I think if there was a vote of players in Dallas, it would show they would have more respect for me than for Jimmy. It would have to be a secret vote, though."

Ryan said he sent game films of the Small-Zendejas incident to the league on request. He said the films show Small attempted to block a Dallas player and missed, then went downfield and

"Zendejas tried to kick him in the head.

Johnson had a different viewpoint.

"They can have all kinds of denials and laugh about it," he said. "But I haven't yet heard an explanation of why Jessie Small bypassed three of our best defenders, including Bill Bates, one of our leading tacklers, and blocked someone who is not one of our better wedge busters.

"I don't think Zendejas has a tackle for us this year. Normally, he doesn't cross the 50-yard line. Usually he kicks the ball and heads right for the sideline. If they are going to get him this week, they had better get him in a hurry because he is going to be out of there."

In a game against Northern Illinois, Shipley played a major role in limiting the Huskies' star forward, Donnell Thomas, to just 16 points. More importantly,

Thomas was harassed into shooting 35 percent from the field. Herrin described Shipley's effort as "outstanding."

"He really came out there and challenged him," Herrin said. "He's a good defensive player because he's a smart defensive player. He gets in the passing lanes and he gets the position he needs."

Lone Star hockey? Dallas, Houston mull possibilities

HOUSTON (UPI) — A renewed effort to bring professional hockey to the South could hinge on a proposal to create a Texas team that would be shared by the unlikely alliance of Houston and Dallas.

Ray Patterson, president of the Houston Rockets, is representing Rockets' owner Charlie Thomas in a bid to bring a National Hockey League team to Texas.

The league's Board of Governors is meeting in Palm Beach, Fla., and is to vote later this week on expansion.

"I don't think Houston or Dallas has a chance of getting a hockey franchise on their own," Patterson told the Houston Chronicle in an interview published Tuesday. "But if they try to share one, with 20 or 21 games in each city, I think the NHL might go for that. And I think we can sell a 21-game package here."

Patterson's proposal would create a "Lone Star team" that would play at Houston in The Summit, where the Rockets get a 49 percent share of receipts for all events in the building.

"The Rockets' net revenues have been dropping because The Summit has too many empty dates," he said.

Patterson believes that by linking hockey and basketball season tickets, in a plan similar to that used by the Los Angeles Lakers and Kings, The Summit could increase revenues substantially.

But it's uncertain whether the NHL would buy the idea of hockey in the South.

A World Hockey Association team in Houston failed in the 1970s, as did an NHL team in Atlanta.

But they were not total failures. The Houston Aeros drew capacity crowds of 9,500 at Sam Houston Coliseum. But the team began losing popularity after moving to the 16,000-seat Summit, a problem aggravated by weak ownership and lack of marketing.

The Atlanta Flames enjoyed an initial burst of popularity, averaging around 13,000 fans a game during their first three years in the NHL. But the team moved to Canada after dropping attendance made it financially untenable.

A primary selling point Patterson holds is that he and Jack Stanfield of Home Sports Entertainment, a cable network, are trying to lure the NHL with television exposure HSE can give hockey in the South.

"We can put hockey into a lot of homes in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas," Patterson said. "The NHL needs southern exposure and we can provide it."

Although Atlanta is pushing for another chance at an NHL franchise, Patterson considers his strongest competition to be Milwaukee, Wis.; San Jose, Calif.; and Hamilton, Ontario.

The NHL Board of Governors is expected to decide by Saturday on expansion. In subsequent meetings, the league will consider proposals from cities applying for franchises.

If the league does vote to expand, Patterson said he will contact potential investors in Houston and Dallas to try to form a coalition between Texas' two largest, and intensely competitive, cities.

Pittsburgh Penguins axe Esposito

Scripps Howard News Service

The Pittsburgh Penguins fired general manager Tony Esposito and coach Gene Ubriaco Tuesday.

Craig Patrick, former general manager of the New York Rangers, was named Esposito's replacement. Patrick also will be interim coach until he can select Ubriaco's successor.

Assistant coaches Rick Paterson and Rick Kehoe were not fired, but Patrick said he "plans to evaluate the current staff."

Blair MacDonald, coach of the Penguins' minor-league affiliate in Muskegon, Mich. is expected to be added to the coaching staff.

Civic Arena Corp. President Paul Martha, who announced the moves, called it "a major change in our franchise."

Edward J. DeBartolo Jr., son of the team's owner, said the moves had been "contemplated for some time" because of concerns about the "leadership and direction" of the team, which was a preseason favorite to win the Patrick Division but is in fifth place with a 10-14-2 record.

"We're not making a change just to make a change," DeBartolo said.

Patrick was general manager and vice president of the Rangers from 1980-86 and had been athletic director at the University of Denver for the past two years.

He was an interim coach for the Rangers twice. In 1980-81, he replaced Fred Shero and had a 26-23-11 record. He took over from Herb Brooks in 1984-85 and was 11-22-2.

He was replaced as general manager of the Rangers after the 1985-86 by Phil Esposito, Tony's brother. Patrick, also was assistant coach and assistant general manager of the 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team, which won a gold medal at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Patrick said he rejected "several opportunities" to return to the NHL before accepting the Penguins' offer.

Esposito and Ubriaco could not be reached for comment. Skip Thayer, the Penguins' trainer and Esposito's close friend, said Esposito was "stunned" to learn the news Tuesday morning.

"He'll handle it as he did when he was playing. He lost some big games, but he's always been a gentleman about it. He'll handle this real well."

Esposito had replaced Eddie Johnston as general manager on April 14, 1988, in a surprising and controversial move. Johnston had been credited with building the Penguins into a competitive franchise and Esposito, a Hall of Fame goaltender, had no managerial experience.

Esposito's first major move was to hire Ubriaco to replace Pierre Cremer as coach.

Ubriaco leaves the Penguins with a career record of 50-47-9, a winning percentage of 51.5 percent — second-best in franchise history. Marc Boileau, coach from 1973-74 to 1975-76, had a record of 66-61-24 (51.7 percent).

Ubriaco led the team to a second-place finish in the Patrick Division last season, when the Penguins came within one victory of a berth in the Stanley Cup playoff semifinals, but the team has not been able to build on that performance this season.

Fan unhappiness with Ubriaco was apparent during the Penguins' 6-3 loss to the Philadelphia Flyers at the Civic Arena last Wednesday, when there were chants of "Fire the Coach" and "We Want a Coach."

This is the first time the Penguins have made a midseason coaching change since Jan. 17, 1976, when Ken Schinkel was named to replace Boileau.

Wyche to set Bengals win record

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Bengals coach Sam Wyche, nearly fired two years ago, has rebounded so strongly that he's on the verge of becoming the winningest coach in the club's 22-year history.

Last Sunday's victory over the Cleveland Browns was the 50th of Wyche's six-year career at Cincinnati, pushing his career win-lost mark to 50-45.

The Bengals have had five coaches since beginning play in 1968 and the winningest coach is the first — team founder Paul Brown, who coached the club its first eight years and wound up 55-59-1.

Brown probably would have had more victories had it not been for the lack of good, experienced players in the first few seasons of the Bengals existence.

Coach Bill Johnson posted an 18-15 record, Homer Rice was 8-19 and Forrest Gregg was 32-25.

Wyche was surprised when a reporter told him this week he had reached the 50-win level.

"You're telling me something I didn't have any idea of," said Wyche. "Since I'm hearing it for the first time, I'm not sure how much that means. Victory No. 50 was important mostly because we got, but we've kept believing in what we're doing and ownership has kept believing."

But, as for how long he can remain field boss of the Bengals, Wyche says, "I'm making no predictions. This job takes a toll on

"We've been through a lot, but we've kept believing in what we're doing and the ownership kept believing."

—Sam Wyche

beat Cleveland in Cleveland."

Two years ago, it appeared highly unlikely Wyche would last long enough to win 50 games with the Bengals. Following 1987's miserable 4-11 season, Wyche was nearly fired, but was given one more season to turn things around.

He answered with a 14-5 record last year and a trip to the Super Bowl.

"His coaching staff is a survivor, no question about that," said Wyche. "We've been through a you every game and it takes a few chunks of your hide now and then. I have no idea who much longer I might want to do it."

Wyche, however, is predicting one thing for Cincinnati this season — a division championship.

Despite trailing AFC Central division leader Houston by one game and second-place Cleveland by a half-game, Wyche believes his Bengals will win their final three games to take the title.

Junior forward Rick Shipley skies for a layup against Tennessee State Thursday at the Arena. Shipley averages 11.7 points and 9.3 rebounds per game on the year.

3rd-year starter fills many roles

Shipley says team has right chemistry

Junior forward Rick Shipley came to SIU-C when the men's basketball program was in a rebuilding phase. Now he is looking to help propel the Salukis into the NCAA tournament and capture the 1989-90 Missouri Valley Conference crown.

"The Salukis' newfound willingness to play aggressive defense will play a key role in the team's success this season, Shipley said.

"We want to play defense," Shipley said. "We want to win. We finally realized that it takes defense to win big ballgames. Even now, we're winning by 15, 20 points, but we're still not playing nearly as well as we can. We haven't even scratched our potential."

"In the past, we were known for our offense," Shipley said. "I think they're (Valley teams) going to be in for a surprise when they see what kind of defense we're playing because we've never been known for that."

After three games this season, the Salukis average 81 points per game while holding opponents to an average of 60.3 points, allowing them to shoot only 35 percent.

While it is too early in the season to suggest the Salukis will stifle all of their opponents in this fashion, the team's defensive philosophies have shown a marked improvement over the 78.4 points per game they surrendered in 34 games last season. The new defensive strategies should help the Salukis improve the 6-8 mark they posted in the Valley a year ago.

Shipley came to SIU-C in the fall of '87 after starring at Centralia High School. He wanted to play his college basketball relatively close to home and chose SIU-C over Evansville, Eastern Illinois and St. Louis. Ironically, the Salukis play all three teams in the next ten days.

Playing in the area meant his parents could attend his home games.

"My parents have always followed me," Shipley said. "I wanted to pay them back a little bit for their support. I knew Coach Herrin from high school and what kind of coach he was. I could see the program was on the way up. That was the big thing."

"I want to make it into the NCAA and I want to win the conference. Those goals are realistic."

—Rick Shipley

He made an immediate impact for the Salukis during his freshman year when he averaged 8.4 points and 6.9 rebounds per game. His sophomore year he averaged 8.8 points and 7.3 rebounds in helping the Salukis to a 20-14 season.

All told, he started 56 games during his first two seasons and led the team in total rebounds each year.

When tournament time came, he increased his level of intensity as he averaged 11 points and 11.3 rebounds per game in helping the Salukis defeat Tulsa and Illinois State before bowing to Creighton, 79-77, in the championship game.

In the game against Tulsa, Shipley established the MVC single-game record of 20 rebounds. The old record was shared by Larry Bird of Indiana State and Robert Gunn of New Mexico State, which left the MVC after the 1982-83 campaign.

Shipley, an accounting major, has seen his role in the offense change since last season. He spends his time switching from the small forward and the power forward position. This allows Herrin more versatility to adjust his lineup depending on the team the opposition puts on the floor on any given night.

"It has been somewhat of an adjustment," Shipley said. "I'm used to once in a while getting down low and posting people up and I haven't done that much this year."

Although he has been described as the team's most complete player, Shipley realizes he has room for improvement and put forth the effort to improve his defense and shooting touch in the offseason.

"Last spring and summer I worked on my defense and shooting," Shipley said. "I have had to work on more things like ball handling and passing."

"With time, the more you handle the ball the better you get," Shipley said. "In games, my shot isn't as consistent yet. I think down the road when I gain some confidence it will come along."

The dedication seems to be paying off. Through three games this season, Shipley averages 11.7 points while playing a team-high 34 minutes per game. At 6-8, 230, he can muscle his way underneath the boards as shown by his 9.3 rebounding average.

Herrin: Salukis depend on Shipley's versatility

If the Salukis men's basketball coaching staff awarded a trophy to the best all-around performer on the team, chances are junior Rick Shipley would have it sitting on his shelf at the end of the season.

According to head coach Rich Herrin, Shipley, a 6-8, 230-pound forward now in his third year as a starter, is the most complete player on the team.

With his ability to play different areas of the court, Shipley fills a key role in that Herrin can alter his lineup depending on the physical size of the opposing team.

If Shipley plays at small forward, Herrin can play a much bigger, stronger lineup. If Herrin puts Shipley in the game at power forward, the Salukis will have a much quicker team on the floor.

"Shipley is a very complete basketball player, in all phases of the game," Herrin said. "He can play inside. He can play outside. He can play the three (small forward) or four (power forward) spot. He has great court awareness."

Herrin said Shipley shows competence in all aspects of the game including offense, defense, passing, shooting and rebounding. The best thing though, Herrin said, is that Shipley has the potential to improve throughout his career.

"His desire is very high," Herrin said. "He has made great strides in improving his game but he needs to improve his ball handling. He could have a great future in basketball because he is 6-8 and he can do a lot of things."

"He has the physical capabilities to get better and better," Herrin said. "If his outside shooting continues to improve — which it has — that's a great plus for him."

Shipley has one of the best work ethics on the hardwood floor, according to Herrin.

"He is a very dedicated basketball player," Herrin said. "He is one of the most dedicated workers we have as far as being on time to practice and overall effort."

"He's a good team player and a good role player," Herrin said. "He does what it takes to win basketball games. He'll do anything he can to win the ballgame. He has great knowledge of the game and he's a competitor."

Cowboys' head coach downplays prior accusations against Eagles

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Jimmy Johnson said Tuesday he wants to downplay his prior accusations of bounty hunting by Philadelphia players and yet a bulletin board in the locker room was loaded with remarks by the Eagles.

Philadelphia Coach Buddy Ryan, meanwhile, suggested the Cowboys had more respect for him than they did for their own coach.

The barbs being thrown back and forth Tuesday were simply part of the expected buildup for what has become known locally as the "Bounty Bowl."

Dallas and Philadelphia meet Sunday in a rematch of their Thanksgiving Day encounter, after which Johnson contended bounties were offered for putting Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman and place kicker Luis Zendejas out of action.

Johnson said he did not think anything of pre-game warnings directed toward Zendejas until Zendejas was hit on the second-half kickoff by Philadelphia linebacker Jessie Small.

"I don't think there is any question the emotions will be high this Sunday," Johnson said. "Their team will be emotional and ours will be as well. It will be a game that people will want to watch. If I wasn't coaching, I would want to watch it."

"But if we get caught up in the distractions too much, it will take away from the play of our team. We have a very young team and young players will be distracted much more so than an experienced player. For that reason we have downplayed the incident and tried to concentrate on get-

Saluki netter highly regarded in rankings

Despite two losses in the National Intercollegiate Clay Court Championships Nov. 17-19 in Hilton Head, N.C., Saluki men's tennis player Mickey Maule is highly regarded in the NCAA Region Five Rankings.

Maule is ranked third in Region Five, which includes schools from the Missouri Valley and Big Eight Conferences. Jeff Neumann of Oklahoma State and John Falbo of Kansas are ranked No. 1 and No. 2 respectively in the Region. There are approximately 114 players in Region Five, according to Saluki coach Dick LeFevre.

In the Clay Court Championships, Maule lost to Mark Feitries of Mississippi State 6-4, 6-1 and Juan Rios, also of Mississippi State. Rios defeated

Maule 3-6, 6-3 and 6-3. Rios was the eventual winner of the consolation tournament.

As a team, the Salukis are No. 4 in the Region. Only Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado are ranked ahead of SIU-C.

Maule will play in the National Indoor Championships Feb. 8-11 in Minneapolis.
