Student wins Miss Illinois title

By Kellie Huttes Senior Reporter

A confident attitude, a constant smile and a shimmering red gown was what it took for an SIUC student to walk away with a sparkling crown and the Miss Illinois USA title last week

Nichole Holmes, 20, a junior in elementary education from Marion, walked away from the state pageant after Thanksgiving with several gifts and a trip to South Padre Island to compete in the national Miss USA pageant in February, broadcast live on CBS. With the title came a 1995 agenta and white Geo Tracker, which Holmes said will come in handy since she was in a car accident last week, which totaled her previous car.

After judges narrowed down the state-wide pageant from 700 applications. Holmes competed in Schaumburg for the recent title with 83 other women."

A strenuous workout routine and a low-fat diet helped Holmes get in shape for the competition, which she will continue until February. She said she competed in an interview session, evening gown and swimsuit sequences during the last pageant.

Holmes attributes her win to her calm state of mind and ability to get ready quickly. "I was really alm and comfortable this time, she said. "It also helps that I know how to do my hair really quick."

In addition to preparing for the spring competition. Holmes will make several appearances at chari-table organizations, the state House and Senate, fairs and the inaugural ball. She also is paid for certain showings.

Holmes said by participating in pageants, she is getting ready for the real world. "The interviews get me ready for a real job," she said. I have learned a lot of poise and composure that lead to bigger and better things."

One officer concluded that the airfield "must be busy again." Others said the helicopters, both fitted with missile systems for use in fighting around the Bihac pocket in adjacent northwestern Bosnia, could have come from several Serb military bases in the region.

'ICE MAN' HAD UNUSUAL MEDICAL HISTORY

The Bronze Age figure known as the "Ice Man" put on a lot of miles before he met his death at 10,000 feet in the Tyrolean Alps. X-ray studies reveal he had at least eight ribs broken earlier in his life. (All had healed.) He had arthritis of the neck, right hip and lower back, and showed evidence of atherosclerosis, the thickening of arteries that underlies most modern heart disease. Because the Ice Man is thought to have been less than 40 years old when he died, the latter two findings are a surprise. So far, only "non-inva-sive" research has been done on the mummified corpse, which was found by a hiker on the Austria-Italy border in September 1991. Most of the anatomical insights gained to date have come from about 2.000 X-ray images, most of them cross-sectional CAT scan views of the body.

However, the United States appeared to be growing cooler by the day to expanding NAFTA-like trade ties farther to the south. The intense congressions sional debate about tariff-lowering under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade served as a warning of what Latin American heads of state can expect from the United States when they gather at the Summit of the Americas in Miami on Friday and Saturday.

Glaser's death needs more than sympathy

FOLLOWING THE OBSERVANCE OF WORLD AIDS Day Friday was the death of AIDS activist and cofounder of the Pediatric AIDS Foundation, Elizabeth Glaser. But, Glaser's death needs to be seen as an even greater motivation to find a cure for the disease that has taken so many lives already.

Glaser, who contracted AIDS from a blood transfusion in 1981, died of AIDS-related complications at age 47. Glaser was most notably remembered for her speech at the 1992 Democratic convention. In her speech, Glaser implored both the President and nation to begin a committed effort towards a cure. Also in the speech, she shared the story of losing her 7-year-old daughter Ariel to AIDS (passed by nursing) and dealing with a 10-year-old son, Jake. who has the disease and may not live to see his teen years.

Through her tireless petitioning of Congress. Glaser helped raise the budget for pediatric AIDS research from $3.3 million to $8.8 million. Additionally, Glaser helped change the seigma surrounding AIDS of being an exclusively homosexual disease. Glaser helped bring to light the fact that AIDS does not discriminate between color, race or any other different human factor. Focusing the country's efforts in researching the disease in order to understand and cure it instead of remaining rooted in fear of AIDS and those with it was one of Glaser's primary goals.

GLASER'S WORK WITH THE PEDIATRIC AIDS Foundation was surely rooted in a desire for her children to experience more of life than the statistics said they would. As a result of her efforts, the total raised for research grants in 1993 was $23 million.

AIDS is currently, according to the U.S. Center for Disease Control, the number one killer of men ages 25-44 and the number four killer of women in the same group. Overall, according to the CDC, the HIV infection rate across the entire country is estimated at two percent of the population.

The Wellness Center on campus, which focuses much of its efforts on education, said many college students still see AIDS as a "gay" disease. As a result, there is a feeling of immunity among the heterosexual population on college campuses. This fact alone shows that many do not fully understand the risk they are putting themselves at, and are not aware of how AIDS is being transmitted.

UNTIL A CURE IS FOUND, PREVENTION IS the key in combating AIDS. Until the myths and attitudes surrounding the disease can be thrown out many people will remain fearful, ignorant and at risk. And while the efforts of people like Elizabeth Glaser have made great progress toward curing the disease, people are still getting AIDS and dying. It must be remembered that even though World AIDS Day for this year is over, the struggle and efforts by Mrs. Glaser are far from it.

Solutions rest within community

Now that Halloween has passed it is refreshing to pick up the DE and read a little news that does not have to do with either student's right to party. Halloween destruction, or the overall problem of the "party image" of SIU.

Although it may not seem readily apparent, a solution to this mess is actually quite simple if the Carbondale City Council has the guts to implement it.

The age of consent in Illinois is 21. Yet to appease the bar owners on the strip, the City of Carbondale has bent the 21 rule down to age 19. But then they say that although you can get into a bar at age 19, you can't drink. Who are they kidding?

Many establishments on Southern Illinois Avenue live parasitically off of students. offering them a dive facility but s variety of cheap drinks to keep packing them in. However, if the city would have the courage to make things 21, a rapid transformation would beset the strip.

Let me predict what would happen. Several dumps on Southern Illinois Avenue would fold and we'd probably all be better for it. The owners of several other establishments would smarten up and realize that 21 year-olds won't settle for a musty old bar with overflowing toilets, and would take appropriate action.

To survive, the better places would start taking a look at their menus and would quickly realize that good food is needed to draw in the 21 and over crowd.

Moreover, they would also quickly realize that people over 21

 $SIUC\ professor$

will not patronize places in which the decor looks that a scene from "Animal House" and the atmosphere is saturated with beer.

Eventually there would be a rebirth of downtown Carbondale as far as Liquor establishments go, with "pubs" replacing "bars" and food and atmosphere, instead of beer and liquor, the focus of surviving establishments. It would be a type of Darwinian evolution-survival of the fittest one could say- and everyone would benefit including SIU.

The reason I know this could work is that I have seen such a scenario in action. I spent three years as a post-doctoral fellow at Indiana University In University Bloomington before coming to SIU.

Although a little larger than Carbondale, Bloomington is a small rural community that is home to a major university. The drinking age in Bloomington is 21. Period.

Bloomington has a wonderful assortment of Pubs and restaurants, each specializing in certain foods and all with beer and liquor available.

But it is the food, not the .25 speedrails and .10 pitchers of beer we see offered as enticements on the Carbondale strip, that bring in the customers to Bloomington's many fine watering-Hole/eatery establishments.

For some students the change to 21 would be a sacrifice, no doubt. I am sure there are thousands of students at SIU under the age of 21 who can have a couple of beers and enjoy themselves without having to climb light poles, throw bricks through windows and turn over automobiles. But for many others, the only way to have a good time is to get blasted on the Strip.

To the former I would say please take advantage of all SIÚ and Southern Illinois has to offer, a world class library, a wonderful Rec center and the beautiful surroundings for outdoor

For the latter I say "good riddance"-if all you came to SIU for was to party, we don't need your tuition dollars that badly.

Thus, there is a solution to the problems that have been discussed these past few months in the DE Downtown Carbondale does not need to be doomed forever to a sea of dumpy tavems.

It can greatly change itself, but only if the City Council recognizes that the "19 law" is phony and proceeds to change the law to 21. opinion such action would also help in a major way to change the image of SIU from that of a "party school" to that of a university that is serious about academics. It's certainly worth a try.

Let it be: Beatles release album

The Hartford Courant

Don't expect a wave of Beatlemania to hit. But there's a chance some middle-age people may be longing for their old Beatles wigs after hearing the band's first officially released studio recordings in more than 20 years.
"Live at the BBC" (Capitol), in stores Tuesday, is not the unreleas reunion recording of the three surviving Beatles. Instead, it is a wealth of songs and jokey interview bits culled from a series of regular visits to the BBC in London from

In the style of older radio shows. these much-heard broadcasts were released in the early 1980s on a series syndicated to FM rock stations, and fans and bootleggers captured most of them on tape

Charming, sharp recordings of songs that were generally looser and more rocking than they were on the smoother recorded versions, the music made delightful additions to the collections of die-hard Beatles fans, who had not had anything new to add to their collections since a mid-'60s Hollywood Bowl live show was released in 1977.

On the Island hosts poetry reading

By Dave Katzman

Eight SIUC graduate students will present poetry written for class to the public as "Monster Poetry Reading."Which will take place Wednesday night.

Rodney Jones, a professor in the Department of English and instructor of English 592 Creative Writing Seminar, said he felt this semester's crop of poets was exceptionally good.

"This is an unusually strong group of poets," Jones said. "They're from all over the United States. They write in different styles that don't bear a lot of resemblance

Jones said the strength of the poetry led him to think a reading would be a good way for the poets to display their work to the public.

"I felt like it would be a contribution to the entire creative writing community that they hold a public reading because the work is so strong and varied," he said.

I think it will be one of the most exciting readings of the

Tom Costello, a graduate student in creative writing from Binghampton, New York, helped organize the event.

"We were down to the end of the semester and Rodney said we should do a reading, so we came up with a list (of poets)," Costello

"I was a little surprised that there wasn't a regular poetry series besides Melangé and the Artists Collective," Costello said about Carbondale.

Costello said he expects a good crowd for the one-shot reading. Each poet will read for about 10 minutes, and the event is expected

Institute of Medicine calls obesity a 'chronic, degenerative disease'

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—The Institute of Medicine Monday called for a fundamental change in public thinking about obesity, saying that the condition should be regarded not as a cosmetic problem but as an important, chronic, degenerative disease that debilitates individuals and kills prematurely."

Treatment goals and programs should be aimed toward long-term weight management, rather than weight loss alone-with the goal of achieving and maintaining the appropriate weight for an individ-ual's overall health, instead of for appearance only, the institute said. Anti-obesity medications and surgery, for example, "deserve a new look as potentially powerful and effective weight-management treatments, if used properly, for some people," specifically those who have failed with other approaches, the report said.

Specifically, the panel urged health professionals to consider changing the way anti-obesity drugs are administered-typically they are limited to several months use-so that such medications are treated similarly to those used for the treatment of other medical problems, such as hypertension."

Holiday snacking made easy: Eat, shop, travel at the same time

By Kate Zager Student Health Programs

During the holidays folks seem to find it more dificult to maintain their best eating habits. With the extra rushing around, shopping, entertaining and traveling it is a challenge to find creative and healthful ways to snack. But whether you are on a long road home, shopping at the mall, or having friends over for some holiday cheer, holiday eating can be nutritious and tasty.

If you are traveling, pack some portable snacks for the trip. Fresh or dried fruit, bananas, raisins, apples and oranges travel well and are great, low fat sources of vitamins, minerals and fiber.

Pretzels, mini-bagels, low-fat crackers or muffins and ready-toeat cereals are also substantial trav-el companions. Frozen turkey breast or lean roast beef sandwiches are good en route (eat them within an hour of when they thaw) and help save money for that shop-

Once you have arrived at your destination and the holiday festivities begin, your nutrition need not suffer. Keep cups of cut broccoli, cauliflower, celery and carrots in

Livin' the fast lane: Sacred Pyramids face new highway

The Washington Post

CAIRO, Egypt-Eroded by time, plundered by grave robbers, assaulted by air pollution, the pyramids have taken their knocks over the centuries. But now they may be facing the gravest threat of all; urban sprawl.

To the alarm of archaeologists and U.N. cultural authorities, the Egyptian government is building an eight-lane highway across the desert plateau that includes the site of the three pyramids of Giza, one of the world's most famous tourist destinations and also the home of the Sphinx. Critics say a land rush is sure to follow.

The new highway, if completed as planned, will pass within about two miles of the Giza pyramids. It violates both Egyptian law and an international convention protect-ing such globally significant sites, according to Said Zulficar, director of safeguarding activities of the cultural heritage division of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural (UNESCO). Organization

Enjoy these with a dip prepared from low-fat plain yogurt or non-fat sour cream combined with salsa

When entertaining, prepare a pot of soup or meatless chili and invite everyone to serve themselves. Prepare a large bowl of baked spiced fruit (apples, pears, bananas, apricots, topped with cinnamon and allspice). Top with low-fat vanilla yogurt. When serving drinks, make sure that there are plenty of non-alcoholic choices available. Punches, sodas, club soda with fruit juice and ice water are all greatly appreciated by those who choose not to imbibe in traditional holiday cheer. It might not even be a bad idea to make sure there are alternatives to driving for those who may have had too much to drink,

However you spend your holiday season, make it a safe and healthy

Andrew Ensor, former USG commissioner for housing, tuition and fees, said he is running for mayor and has talked to Parsons and Henderson about it.

"I've talked to both those people (Parsons and Henderson). Lorenzo (Henderson) thought it was a good idea, and Matt (Parsons) didn't object to it. Nothing is final though."

Eagles' Kotite stirs controversy, considers benching quarterback

The Allentown Morning Call

PHILADELPHIA-As if the heat on Rich Kotite isn't intense enough as a result of a four-game losing streak, the Philadelphia Eagles' coach further fanned the flames Monday by starting a quarterback controversy.

All along this season and particularly during Randall Cunningham's current slump, Kotite has continually insisted the thought of switching quarterbacks has never entered his mind.

Monday at his weekly news conference at Veterans Stadium, Kotite said he and his staff are going to review the film of Sunday's loss to the Dallas Cowboys and changes might be made.

"I'm not ruling anything out for anybody," Kotite said. "I'm not hesitant to do anything. In my mind. I'm not happy with some of the play we're having, including Randall."

said. Kotite although Cunningham played well in stretches Sunday, in fact better than he has in weeks, he also may have cost the Eagles the game when he threw an interception when he threw an interception that was returned 94 yards by Cowboy safety Darren Woodson. "It's concerning," Kotite said of that play. "It's one of the plays he Cunningham was trying to get us to call. You have to convert that into a touchdown.

Cunningham himself designed the play and talked the Eagles' coaches into calling it a few times before in the game and it worked. Kotite said it also might have worked that final time, but Cunningham соуставе

Kotite said Herschel Walker, the first read on the play, was open, but Cunningham didn't see It and went to his fourth option, James Joseph, who was not only covered, but hadn't completely run his pattern.

"He made a decision that cost us late in the game," Kotite said of Cunningham. "Walker was pen. He made a mistake."

decision by Wednesday on whether to stick with Cunningham or go to backup Bubby Brister, who hasn't played down this season. Kotite said he's worried that some of Cunningham's offensive mates might be losing their confidence in him. "I'm concerned I really am," Kotite Kotite said Brister takes about 30 percent of the snaps in practice. "He's in good shape. His arm is strong," Kotite said.

Kotite said he doesn't think there's anything wrong with Cunningham physically, despite injuries that have caused him to miss most of two of the last three

And he added that Cunningham shown flashes of his former hirlliance. "I also yesterday saw hirm make some great throws," Kotite said. "There was a point where he was playing as well as he has in a long, long time."

Kotite explained his review of Cunningham by saying, "I think when you lose four games in a row you have to be more cognizant of what you're doing, and who you're doing it with."

But he said he needed some time to think about it. "I'm not ready to make any decisions right; now," he said. "I think we have to look a little closer at everything."

The SIUC women won six events, including a sweep of the 100-yard butterfly and 200-yard eestyle events.

Melanie Davis won the 400-yard individual medley in a time of 4:27.26 and finished second in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:07.42).

Melodie Dickerson also made a strong showing Saturday, winning the 200-yard freestyle and finishing third in the 100-yard backstroke events.

Although the Saluki women held a slim lead, swim coach Mark Kluemper said his team was performing well.

"I'm pleased with our effort so far this weekend. I'm probably more proud of this group now than any time this season for what they've done this weekend," he said. "We found a way to get up and do the job despite suffering from injuries and illnesses earlier in the

On the one-meter board, Siracusano earned an 11-dive score of 551.55. The score is both a Recreation Center pool record as well as an SIUC varsity record.

SIUC diving coach Dave Ardrey said Siracusano's feat is a great accomplishment.

"Rob continues to improve, if that's possible, by changing the record book at this facility as well as many others around the country," he said. The Saluki diving trio of Lisa Holland, Jodi Mulvihill and Amy Gende swept the women's one-meter competition. Holland scored a 366.50, while Mulvihill and Gende earned scores of 280.10 and 275.90.

The MVC Championship is the last meet for the Salukis until Jan. 14, when SIUC tangles with Missouri, Illinois and Southwest Missouri in St. Louis, Mo.

SLU bruises Salukis at Arena, 72-65

Spoonhour's crew crushes SIUC defensively

By Grant Deady Sports Editor

It was not exactly Spoonball at its best, but the St. Louis Billiken men's basketball team played just well enough to knock-off a surging Saluki squad, 72-65, Monday night in front of a near capacity crowd at the SIUC

With the Dawgs leading 35-31 at the half, SLU head coach Charlie Spoonhour altered his Billiken defense into a half-court trap strategy that gave SIUC fits offensively.

The Salukis ended up turning the ball over 23 times before the final buzzer sounded and were forced operate most of their second half offense beyond the three-point arc.

"The thing that makes us defensively is ball pressure. It's pressure with the guards. The perimeter guys have to go work hard." Spoonhour said. "If we let somebody come down and run an offense, they'd dunk it about 25hundred times so we have to go out and trap."
SLU also held an advantage over

SIUC in the experience catagory as the Billikens start five seniors

H Waldman, a 6-3 senior guard for SLU who led the team in scoring with 22 points, said the bottom line for his team is to just play hard.

We're sort of a veteran team, somewhat, and knew we had to come out and pick-up the defense a little," he said, "We just gotta play hard. As small as we are, one of our advantages is just playing hard and

SIUC led by as many as eight with just over two minutes left in the first half after Chris Carr scored seven unanswered points in less than a minute, but SLU was able to come within four at intermission.

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin said his team played well early in the game and if it weren't for so many turnovers, the outcome may have been different.

"If you turn it over like we did. that's gonna kill you, but I thought we played very, very hard early, he

We took care of the basketball early. Carr had a real great spurt for a period of about three or four minutes. Timmons rebounded hard again, but 23 turnovers in a not upmpo game is a lot of turnovers."
SIUC lost the lead for good with just over 12-minutes remaining in the game and trailed by as many as points with under two-minutes left

Billiken guard Erwin Clagget joined Waldman in double figures with 19 points, while SLU forward be the difference in the game.

"In the second half, they went to a match-up zone and we wanted to dribble way too much," he said. "We really didn't attack the zone like we should have.

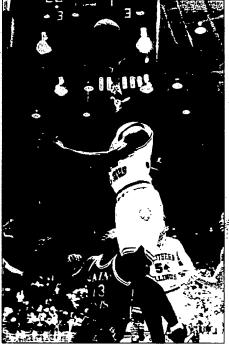

SIUC (2-2) now begins a htreegame road swing that starts Saturday at North Carolina-Charlotte. After the UNC-C game, the Salukis head to Southeast Missouri State and Austin Peay.

SLU is slated to face-off with Missouri- Kansas City.

CORRECTION

The SIUC women's basketball team beat Tennessee Tech 83-67 Saturday night at the Arena. The final score was stated incorrectly in the headline of the December 5 Daily Egyptian due to a copyediting error. The editor apologizes for the error.

SIUC men's basketball guard Jaratio Tucker, goes strong to the basket during the first half of the game against SLU. The Salukis lost the game, 72-65.

Ransom returns to hoops after serious knee injury

By Doug Durso

One of SIUC's brightest stars made her return Saturday from a devastating knee injury, which has sidelined her for 11 months.

Rockey Ransom, a 6-1 senior forward from East St. Louis. saw her first action of the year in the Salukis 83-67 victory over Tennessee Tech.

Ransom started 15 games last ear before going down with a ractured knee against fractured Southwest Missouri State on Jan, 27, which wiped out the rest of her junior campaign.

On Saturday, she saw eight minutes of action and took and missed e le shot.

Ransom said getting back on the court was a good experience. "I felt pretty good out there and I was excited to be back and help the team," she said.

As far as her performance on Saturday, Ransom said she thought she helped the team from a leadership role. I think being on the court helped our team emotionally just knowing I was out there playing," she said.

Before going down with her injury Ransom was averaging 17 points and seven rebounds a game. She nopes to continue her play this year for the Salukis.

"Hopefully I'll be able to do the same things I have been doing and do it better," Ransom "i would really like to help said. I would really like to help the team with rebounding because we have been struggling in that area, except for last la her eight minutes of play Ransom suffered a sprained ankle, which kept her out of practice on Monday

Ransom said the knee is not 100 percent, but will continue to play. She is looking at January to be fully healthy. "Hopefully, I can be ready to well at the start of rence play, because conference play, because conference is the most important goal," she said.

Sally Perkins, athletic trainer for the Salukis, said that the ankle is just slightly sprained and the knee is better.

"Her knee is stable, it's going to ache but that's to be expected with anybody who has played basketball for this long," she said, "Right now her knee is about 90 percent and all she needs to do is conditioning she wasn't able to do earlier.

SHIC women's head coach Cindy Scott said she played Ransom not to evaluate her performance, but just to get her on the court.

"I wasn't trying to assess her progress. I just wanted to see her get comfortable and get in some game conditions." she said.

Scott is optimistic Ransom will be able to play a lot of minutes soon for the Salukis.

"At practice it's like she hasn't missed a beat," Scott said.

Swimming, diving teams capture Missouri Valley Championships

By Chris Clark

The SIUC swimming and diving teams went head first into the inaugural Missouri Conference Championships on Friday. But by Sunday, the Salukis drowned any hopes the competition had of taking the title.

Going into Sunday's finals, the SIUC men and women were both involved in two-way races for the MVC crown. The Saluki men held a 101-point lead over second place Southwest Missouri State, while the women clung to a 63-point advantage over Illinois State. The three remaining teams in the field- Bradley, Evansville and Northern Iowa-weren't even

The SIUC men's team secured the championship trophy with a 398-point performance Sunday. The Salukis finished first in five of the six events, including Rob Siracusano's pool record 398.05 on the three-meter diving board. Rick Walker's squad got a big boost Sunday in the 200-yard breaststroke. The Salukis occupied seven of the 13 positions, and all seven finished in the top-ten, SIUC compiled 89 points in the event and the meet out of reach for Sunday was also a championship day for the Saluki women's team as wen.

" SIUC held Illinois State at bay by winning all seven events, sweeping three of them en route to 391 points and the MVC title.

Saluki swim coach Mark Kluemper said keeping his squad focused throughout the three-day meet wasn't difficult.

'It (keping the team focused) wasn't hard because they (Salukis) weren't that far ahead," he said They knew they had a job to do and they just stuck with it."

The Saluki men amassed 324 points in Saturday's finals, finishing first in six of the seven events slated for the evening. Southwest Missouri State's Eddie Gaylord won the 400-yard individual medley in a time of 4:03.81, but SIUC's Will Enoch (4:06.31) and Tony Brazzale (4:08.57) finished second and third. respectively.

SIUC men's swim coach Rick Walker said although his squad vas consistently winning events. SWMS was able to stay close becuase of its depth.

"We may be finishing first, but they're (SWMS) finishing in the middle," he said, "We're getting the first place points, but they're getting the points in the middle
