CIPS customers protest rate hikes

By Jim McCarthy
Staff Writer

More than 100 angry customers of the Central Illinois Public Service Co. crowded into the Williamson County Courthouse Tuesday to protest rate hikes by CIPS before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The ICC was also criticized for granting CIPS an 11.5 percent rate increase in April. Protesters urged the commission to reject CIPS' request for an additional 12 percent rate increase.

The subject which received the most criticism was the proposed CIPS summer differential rate increase of one cent per kilowatt hour for all customers. Most of the speakers said the summer differential rate is especially unfair to the poor, the elderly and others on fixed incomes.

Christine Heston, spokeswoman for the Southern Counties Action Movement, said the last rate increase resulted in CIPS' revenues increasing $227.5 million. The combination of this rate increase and the summer differential forced consumers to pay a 28 percent rate increase during June, July, August and September, instead of an 11.5 percent increase, Heston said.

In addition to these costs, she said, CIPS customers pay an electric fuel adjustment charge that CIPS uses to recover fuel costs which are not met through its regular charging formula. The adjustment charge cost CIPS customers $4.5 million last summer, Heston said.

She also said the price of electricity has increased 28 percent faster than the rate of inflation. Arlen W. Reardon, a CIPS customer, said he was surprised to hear that CIPS raises its rates.

Helen S. L. E. Levi, also a CIPS customer, said the ICC did not consider Southern Illinois economic factors when it let CIPS raise its rates.

Levi said 14 percent of the population in Jackson County lives on less than $3,000 a year. 6.8 percent receive some form of public assistance. 2.9 percent live in substandard housing and 19.1 percent are 65 years old or older.

He presented similar statistics for Franklin, Williamson, Union and Public utilities and said economic conditions in these areas are worse than in the rest of the state and most of the country.

"The Commission cannot sit in Springfield ignorant of the social and economic realities of Southern Illinois. Our evidence that the differential is excessive and must be reduced is clear," Levi said.

"Most the poorest provide the profits for CIPS investors," Levi asked.

Although no one from the ICC or CIPS was present to answer their personal questions about the ICC's decision, a former CIPS customer and former professor of economics at SIU, made a brief statement outlining the ICC's role in rate increases.

"The ICC is a 260-person staff which must oversee and regulate more than 400 public utilities," John said.

Because of the heavy workload on the ICC, it must depend on hearings officers to conduct hearings and report to the four commissioners, he said. John stressed that the commissioners would make their decision based on the report of Robert Diallock, hearings officer. John said he was only present to observe the proceedings.

Diallock chose the time and place of the hearing and was criticized for those decisions. The original hearing room could only accommodate about 30 people. Since more than 100 showed up, the hearing had to be moved to the lobby of the courthouse.

But the decision was also criticized for holding the hearing during working hours when many people could not afford to leave work to appear.

Sen. Gene John, D-Marion, did not attend because he was in Paris, France. But his legislative assistant, Kevin F. John, told the audience that CIPS is not as stringent as it asks its customers to be. John said CIPS should save money for itself and its customers by buying coal on long-term lease and should be allowed to advertise.

Other speakers at the hearing urged the ICC to force CIPS to:

- Reduce the summer differential to 12 cents per kw.
- Raise the number of kw's used from 500 to 750 before applying the differential.
- Eliminate the differential altogether.
- Reduce CIPS' recent request for an additional 12 percent rate increase.

The next hearing will be at the Jonesboro Courthouse at 16 PM Feb. 15.
Students to present analysis report of Bond Retirement Fee to council

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

An 80-page analysis report condemning the Bond Retirement Fee will be presented to the Graduate Student Council at the GSC meeting Wednesday night.

The report, written by GSC members Gary Brown, history department representative, and Charles Chapman, thesaurus, was reviewed and may be reworded by the GSC and voted on Wednesday.

Brown and Chapman state in the report that the $38.40 fee is unfair to students and an attack on the administration.

The proposed fee is being presented to the student body by the administration, who say that the fee is necessary to cover the costs of maintaining dormitory and graduate student housing. These funds were previously paid off by retained earnings and are now being discontinued last year by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The fee is a percentage of tuition monies which the state allows the University to use for its own purposes.

Twelve dollars of the fee is allocated to the University administration, and the remaining $14.40 will go to University Housing. Brown and Chapman feel this fee is being charged in order to keep dormitory rooms and graduate student rooms rates as low as possible.

An $8-on-campus rent increase from $76 to $78 per semester, has been proposed by University Housing. GSC President Ricardo Calaborro-Aquino said the rates should be closer to $80 so that the Bond Retirement Fee could be lowered.

Brown seems unfail to us that dorms- dwellers will receive rent, food, electricity, heat, air conditioning, water, and local phone service all included in a rate kept artificially low by a subsidy levied on the student body," the report states. "In effect, the fees will serve to attract new students with seemingly low housing costs.

"Graduate students, already well draned by graduate and undergraduate tuition, fees and housing costs, will have to bear the full weight of inflation, in addition to a disproportionate share of this latest administrative stratagem," Brown and Chapman concluded.

The scholarships and grants which will relieve the burden of this fee from a healthy percentage of undergraduates are unavailable to graduate students, and the report added. "A single full-time graduate student will lose $2.80 for two semesters under this plan," the authors conclude.

The report also quotes Bruce Swisborne, vice president for student affairs, as calling the fee "a backdoor increase in tuition costs.

Brown and Chapman list several "arguments against this unnecessary fee. They include:

- Should bonds on state-owned buildings be supported by a special fee (tax) on students?

- Should the dorms be charged by non-graduates, so that residents get a reduction in room and board in constant dollars?

- Should the state require students to live in state-owned buildings which the state is willing to support?

- Is the ethical to attract new students with artificially low housing costs, demasculated by the student body?

Robert Seely, GSC administrative vice president, said the fee question will be the main topic at the meeting.

Fry recommends taxi fare increase

By Ed Lemmings

Higher taxi fares for Carbondale residents were virtually guaranteed when City Manager Carroll Fry recommended Monday night approval of a 5 percent fare increase.

Fry's recommendations were delivered to the City Council and council members expressed no objections to the increases.

The council will vote on the increase in two weeks, and if it is approved the base rate for a bathroom will be increased from $1.20 to $1.40. In addition, rates for additional passengers traveling from the same point of departure to the same destination would be increased from $2.50 to $3.00.

Rates for Carbondale's only taxi company have not increased since August, 1976.

"I support the increase, and I think they need it," Fry told the council. His recommendation, however, came with the "limiting condition.

The first of those conditions was that the base rate be increased by 25 percent from 1976 to 1979 in the city.

That stipulation was satisfied Monday afternoon when the payments were sent to the city's clerk's office.

The second condition was that "quarter assurances of maintenance of service be imposed by the council." Fry said he has received complaints from some residents about the company's service, and he suggested that the council link that to the cab company's assurance that service will maintain.

"I don't think it is the lack of service that upsets people as much as the company's not answering their phone," Fry said.

He said telephone calls are, not intentionally left unanswered, the volume of business at some makes it difficult for the dispatcher to answer every call.

He explained that the company uses its one dispatcher for the 30 cab fleet, and that the dispatcher is often already on one phone when calls come in on the other.

"I think people's expectations are a lot different sometimes in what they can expect one person to do," Kimmel told the council.

Fry said Tuesday that company management has reemphasized to its employees the need to answer as many calls as possible.

But, he said, "Anybody in business has complaints, and you just have to do your best to take care of the complaints and do the best you can. We're doing our best, but people don't always like the service that's done.

The Carbondale Yellow Cab Co has risen costs for fuel, maintenance, and new cars in its request for the rate increase.

In other council action Monday night the council unanimously passed a resolution lowering the number of election judges in each of the city's 28 precincts from three to two for municipal elections.

The measure was proposed by City Clerk Leland West in an effort to lower costs for municipal elections.

The council also approved a new system for determining public opinion on capital improvement projects. The "capital improvements checklist" requires the city to hold public meetings before initiating any new building or improvement project in addition, it allows citizens the opportunity to suggest projects that had not been suggested by the council or the city administration.

Beg your pardon

Due to a typographical error, a quote was attributed to Mayor Brandy in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian, which should have been attributed to Kevin Wright, student trustee.

The quote, in the story headlined "Women's Center policy aidsrape," said, "He made pretty heavy accusations against the Women's Center." Wright said.

Iranians

Activists no longer fear returning to homeland

By Katie Wall

Iranian students who have a record of political activism in the United States may no longer have to fear returning to their homeland if they choose to return home, say several Iranian students at SIU.

Afsch Fanazazi, graduate student in sociology, said she had been afraid of returning home while Iran was under the rule of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi because she didn't know what information the Iranian government had on her activities in the United States. But now, as a political activist, she would have been picked up from the airport, Razani said.

She had lived several years ago after the country experienced 12 months of violent demonstrations against his 26-year-old government. Previously, those students who demonstrated against the shah's monarchy in the United States have been reported as being picked up at the机场 and detained by American police.

But Razani, a graduate student in sociology, said Iranians attending college in the United States have been watched and reported on by SAVAK agents (the Islamic secret police).

Tof feed their fears, a group of Iranian students at the University of Purdue was notified by the government that students in the United States would be picked up from their dormitories or they would be forced to torturing their family, Dadjou said.

Americans who resent the Iranian students' demonstrations in the United States have questioned the students' claim that the American government is supporting them. The CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) attends the protests and waits for one of the students to step out of the line they have imposed and then they act. They drive along a protest route in their cars and if they see the student they bump their cars and the students have no arms, Dadjou said.

"We appreciate the education we receive but do we have to give up our rights as people for it?" FalakHakhragahi asked.

She said Iranian students have nothing against the American government or the American police. They object to the policies of the United States under the shah's government.

"To Americans westernization means industrialism and a flow of Iranian oil. But to the Iranians it means enslavement of the people, repression and economic disaster," Razani explained.

FalakHakhragahi added, "By building a few tall buildings in Iran the Iranian government thought they were modernizing Iran. But they neglected the social, economic and trade aspects of modernization."

Razani said the formation of an Islamic state proposed by the Moslem religious leader, Ayatollah Khomeini, will not return Iran to the tenth century. Khomeini returned to Iran recently after a long self-imposed exile in France. He has vowed to overthrow the Islamic government of Prime Minister Shahpur Bakhtiar, which is as formed by the shah before he left Iran to abdicate.

The concept of an Islamic republic has been maintained as an independent country, freedom and brotherhood to the country," Razani said.

He explained that Iran has recently passed through two important stages. The first stage was to eliminate the rule of the Shah. The second stage, which is now being considered, is to eliminate the seeds of his monarchy." Razani said.

"American college students are ignorant of the activities of the Iranian government."

Khomeini has promised freedom of the press, freedom of worship for religious minorities and freedom of foreigun in a country where they refuse from activities "harmful to the country."

There are currently 131 Iranian students attending SIU. Most are willing to travel the 13,000 miles to attend American colleges because it is difficult to accept into Iranian universities. Dadjou said that every year 500 students apply to private American colleges but only a small percentage of them are accepted. They then leave their homeland to attend American universities, Razani stated.

"When you decide to go to America you contact American Friends in the Middle East or one of the other American institutions in Iran to get assistance in applying to American colleges," Razani explained.

He said the American Friends in the Middle East works in conjunction with the Central Intelligence Agency. The distribution of foreign political freedom in the United States.

Enrollment for spring semester decreases from fall

By Donna Kunkel

Staff Writer

The number of students enrolled at SIU for the spring semester decreased compared to the fall semester last year but is still considered a good enrollment figure of the same time last year.

Enrollment for the spring semester is 9,467 students. Fall enrollment totaled 22,549 students. Last spring 21,174 students attended SIU.

B. Kirby Browning, director of admissions and records, said a decrease in the spring enrollment is not unusual. He said the decrease is the result of a number of students graduating at midterm and other students not returning to school. He added that there are more new students in the fall to balance the decrease leaving in the spring.

The on-campus enrollment total is 19,621. In the fall, 30,659 students enrolled in college programs. At off-campus sites, mainly military bases, spring enrollment is 2,638, a slight decrease from the fall total of 3,180.

According to Browning, there are 468 new freshmen this semester, an increase of 113 over last spring.

Browning said he expects a decrease in the number of college students within the next five years because of the decline in graduating high school seniors.

A decrease in enrollment would probably result unless a greater number of high school students enrolled in college programs or the number of educational programs increases. Browning said.

In comparison to last spring, 250 more students enrolled in the College of Business and Administration and 175 more students enrolled in the School of Engineering and Technology. The School of Technical Careers bachelor's degree program increased by 187 students and the College of Education increased by 117. Decreases, however, are evident in the College of Human Resources, which had 120 fewer students than last year.

By 1981 General Programs recorded 99 fewer students. Science has 99 fewer and the College of Communications and Fine Arts enrollment decreased by 115.

The total graduate enrollment is 3,956, an increase of five over last spring. The School of Law has 28 student enrolled, a decrease of 20. The Medical School enrollment is 221, an increase of 20 from last spring.

Although the total number of students enrolled has increased from last spring, the on-campus count has decreased by 154 students.
Call for local involvement in anti-abortion movement

At least 60,000 people recently marched against abortion in Washington, D.C. Such marches have been given considerable media coverage by the national media.

Perhaps the winter date of the Supreme Court decision will be emphasized on the local level and a similar day should be adopted for the march against abortion in Washington. No doubt the crowd would be more than doubled.

The anti-abortion movement is growing political strength. If it moves to defeat certain senators and members of Congress, the mass movement could have tremendous impact.

A great deal of the anti-abortion struggle comes from Conservative Catholics. The backbone of the Republican Party is the old South. Catholics, by large, have tended to be part of the liberal coalition that Franklin Roosevelt put together with the then solid South.

Catholics have been ever so patient, continuing to support the liberal coalition, but over and over again

Carbondale rated prize location for gift

Another very successful Red Cross Bloodmobile conducted last week at the Student Center during the two days. 568 units were donated. This is a successful volunteer help by nurses and staff. Just to mention one that more than two gallons for him alone.

It is not surprising to receive a promotional gift. The Red Cross collection and Miss Annubin also have donated by hundreds of students. Without you there would have been little success at all.

The St. Louis Cross Regional Office looks upon Carbondale as one of its prize blood donation locations. There are three convenient downtown locations in its area. Visitors are made here several times a year and are sponsored by local organizations.

Illegal parking shortage

In last Wednesday’s edition of the DE, a certain Mr. McGarr is quoted as saying, “There is always a place to park on campus.”

I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to those who have helped me with this project. I am proud to be a part of the liberal coalition that Franklin Roosevelt put together with the then solid South.

Mr. McGarr has a conflict of interest because of her job as an official of the Illinois Federation of Teachers. As such, Gov. Thompson will not or should not reapportion her for this position.

The board deals with issues affecting the interests of every employee, be they bankers, lawyers or educators. They make decisions that may affect their personal interests. The board deals with issues affecting their personal careers. They make decisions that may affect their personal careers.

To say that Mrs. Blackshear is in conflict simply by the fact that she is a member of the S.U.I. Board of Trustees is not an accurate reflection of her personal interests or policies. She is a woman of integrity who has always been an advocate for the disabled and handicapped.

I wish to direct this letter to all fellow students. With all this white stuff on the ground and snow on the roads, you are doing your best to keep yourself and your fellow students safe. I wish to express my thanks to those who are helping the handicapped who are in the weather’s mercy. You are doing a great job of helping those in need and are doing this because of your goodness.

On behalf of myself and my fellow Hall of Fame inductees, I wish to express our thanks and appreciation to those who have helped us with this project. We are proud to be a part of the liberal coalition that Franklin Roosevelt put together with the then solid South.

I have spent over half of my life at Southern Illinois University and have been greatly rewarded through sharing my life with students. Your reception last Saturday again convinced me that I made the right decision some 30 years ago when this great University extended to me an invitation to become a faculty member. I have been very fortunate to have a wonderful wife and a teacher walking along life’s path with young people such as you.

Ducks at play

The group may be stupid, but "Duck's Breath Mystery Theater" is funny. The group will perform at 7 p.m. on Feb. 11 in the Student Center Ballrooms. "Duck's Breath" combines improvisation, stand-up comedy, experimental theater, rock music and typical satire. Duckster Dan Coffey, wearing white coat in photo, describes the act as "like playing in your basement on a rainy afternoon." Tickets are $2 and will go on sale Wednesday at the Student Center ticket office. The "Ducks" are from left Jim Turner Colley, Merle Kessler, the phantom Astronaut, Leon Dartnell and Bill Allard as Jon, the Boy Millionaire. The group has made numerous television appearances, including a spot on "The Great American Laugh-Off," produced by NBC-TV.

Radiation and IQ

PERRY, Ohio (AP) Four scores on college entrance examinations and IQ's may be partially a result of the atomic testing after World War II and its radioactive fallout, a physicist says.

Dr. Ernest Sternglass, University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine professor of radiation physics, told a nuclear power conference at Lakeland Community College recently that widespread atomic testing in the 1950's and early 1960's contributed to the fact that IQ tests now read too high.

The drop in levels of students' ability to read and write is correlated to the fallout at that time, Sternglass said. Children born in 1963 and later will show higher scores on national tests and IQ's, he said.

Auditions for Lab Theater to be held

MANITO Today's Behvorers looters, short-order cooks, teachers, clerks, secretaries and other southern Illinoisans are invited to participate in the production of "Dynamite" to be presented April 11 through 15. The play, written by Richard W. Morgan, is the winner of the 1978 National Playwriting Competition sponsored by the Chicago Daily News.

"Dynamite" takes a look at the capital's labor situation of the time in the case of the bombing of the Los Angeles Times building. The defendants are represented by the famous attorneys Clarence Darrow and well known journalist Lincoln Steffens. A cleverly written, sharply drawn portrait of the dramatic courtroom.

There are 20 roles to be filled by 10 actors and actresses, one of whom, each of about 12 and 13 years. Auditions for adult roles will be held at 7 p.m. on Feb. 19 and 20 in the Laboratory Theater of the Communications Building.

Kevin Burns, Muddy Waters, Al DiMaggio, Cheap Trick, Peter Tosh and the \"National Lampoon\" show were the leading vote-getters in their respective divisions on a survey conducted by the Student Government Activities Council's contests committee.

The SGAC survey was conducted late last semester. More than 1,000 students, performers and groups from six categories were included in the poll. Students voted for acts they would like to see in Shroyer Auditorium. Only acts that fell in the price range affordable for SGAC concerts in Shroyer were included in the poll.

Peter Katsis, chairman of the SGAC contests committee, said the poll in essence was an inquiry into determining what concerts come to Shroyer.

\"We couldn't operate without getting at least a general idea of what the people want to see,\" Katsis said. \"And since we're spending students' money, we feel they should have some input.\"

Katsis said SGAC would like to bring to Shroyer 'anybody on the list that scored well and was on tour within the limits of our budget, of course.\"

\"We would like to bring everybody that got a lot of votes, but naturally that's impossible,\" he said.

\"More than 1,000 people voted in the poll. Voters were allowed to pick up to four names in each musical category.\"

Out of the acts in the rock category, the leading vote-getter was Cheap Trick with 1,181. Joe Tex finished second with 518. Also doing well were Fleetwood Mac, Van Halen, Chicago and Ambrosia with 138. Elvin Bishop, Peter Gabriel, UFO, Rory Gallagher and Patti Smith rounded out the top ten.

Katsis said Cheap Trick performed on tour and that the possibility of the group performing in Shroyer was "very real.\"

Al DiMaggio edged out John McLaughlin in the jazz category, 204 to 194. John Coltrane finished third with 115 votes. Also receiving at least 100 votes were Brian Auger, Harry Connick Jr., George Benson and Al Jarreau.

Katsis said the Crusaders and the Jackson enjoyed the only acts currently on tour and the only candidates.

Emmylou Harris' 118 votes was the highest vote-getter in the folk country category, edging out Tom Waits by three votes. Also receiving at least 100 votes were Jerry Jeff Walker, Bob Dylan, Arlo Guthrie and John Young. Also receiving at least 100 votes were Brian Auger, Harry Connick Jr., George Benson and Al Jarreau.

Katsis said that the Crusaders, the Jackson and Al Jarreau were the only acts currently on tour and the only candidates.

Katsis said he knew of no other folk and country acts that were going on tour, but \"SGAC would try to book something from that category.\"

Of the 13 acts in the blues category, only Muddy Waters received 266 votes. John Mayall followed with 211 and Paul Butterfield topped the poll with 151.

\"It's hard to say anything about Muddy Waters because they are outgoing on tour all year,\" Katsis said.

Katsis said the National Lampoon show outdistanced Martin Mull and four others in the comedy division of the poll.

The 441 votes garnered by the group were the highest total among the acts in any category. The group's total of 441 is just 10 votes ahead of the Bohemian Bakerfield, 431, with 111 votes.

The National Lampoon show performs on tour and is \"a strong possibility for performing here.\"

Peter Tosh was the voters' favorite for a reggae category, beating Jimmy Cliff by a 2-to-1 margin.

Although nearly all of the tours are touring now, Katsis says SGAC has a reggae concert \"almost ready to go.\"

\"In addition to the reggae concert,\" Katsis says, \"we hope to have four more Shroyer concerts, a concert in the ballroom in the Student Center and a free outdoor concert show.\"

Students in the SGAC contests committee have considered adding The Grateful Dead and the Beach Boys to the survey list. But the committee has not yet decided whether to add these groups to the survey list.

\"We would like to bring the Dead to Shroyer,\" Katsis said, \"but we're waiting until the spring semester.\"

The survey has been completed, but the results have not yet been tabulated.

Flowers rated on performance

By University News Service

If house-wifie's winter visitor, that prickly show of snow, and icy roads and dark nights give you the 'flu, Southern Illinois University-Carbondale horticulturist Donald Courts has a remedy.

Get out those seed catalogs now popping up in mailboxes, drool over the colorful pictures, and plan your needs for spring and summer flower or vegetable gardens.

To help with decisions on the most desirable varieties of flowers to grow in Southern Illinois, Courts has compiled a summary of the 200 kinds of plants grown in the Carbondale plant and soil science department's display flower gardens during 1976. The plants were started from seed in a greenhouse, transplanted to garde-n beds in mid-May with black plastic as a mulch, and irrigated as necessary, during the growing season. All were summer annuals, and all were evaluated during the growing season and rated on performance and beauty, including height and spread of each plant at the end of the season.

General kinds of flowers included in the display gardens were: ageratum, alunaria, amaranthus, calendula, celosia, cleome, cosmos, hissop, mimulus, vervain, veronica, violets, and zinnias. Cultivars of each were selected for one or more of as many as 45 for marigold and 29 for petunias. Among the highly reputed cultivars of each are:

Ageratum: Bucaya, Golden Agreta and Blue Danube
Calendula: Carpet of Snow, Pastel Carpet and Royal Carpet
Cleome: Early Splendor, Illumination, Tricolor Prefecta and Scarlet
Calendula: Gaeata Ganita only variety tested, rated fair
Colonia: Cristada Kurnae Scarlet and Orange Creme
Cosmos: Cosmos Forest Fire, Golden Forest, Golden Torch and Red Fire
Cleome: All varieties highly rated—Cherie, Cherie Queen, Helela Campbell, Pink Sensation, Purple Queen and Royal Queen
Cineraria: Fiji Mix and Sabor Mix both rated fair to good
Cosmos White Sensation, Radiance and Sensation Inferior
Dahlia: Sundart Burst, Damask, Queens of Hearts, Snowbird and Snowflake
Gazania: Cozomera—Pure Red and true Red

Cardiovascular system improved by exercise

By Barbara Maddox

Safely designating exercise to improve the cardiovascular system helps reduce weight and prevents lower back problems, according to Ronald Knowlton of the physical education department at SJC.

It is an excellent exercise for the average person because it helps prevent the problems Americans' sedentary lifestyle produces, he said.

Physical fitness should be a lifelong program for maximum benefit, said Knowlton who has been a recreation physical education at SJC for 12 years. "A minimum goal for the average person should be 30 minutes of vigorous three times a week.

Americans are experiencing a physical fitness boom that is similar to that of the pre-depression period, according to Knowlton.

However, I think this fitness concern is not just a passing fancy. People are realizing the importance of daily exercise as a way of life," he added.

Other exercises such as Knowlton mentioned can be done in producing cardiovascular efficiency across country sking, swimming and bicycling.

Cardannels exercise raise the heart rate, increase heart rate, cause the heartbeat to pump more blood by opening up the circulatory system and improving the heart's ability to pump blood.

However, Knowlton also recommended swimming.

In some respects, swimming is better than running because it exercises the entire body, he said. The problem with swimming is that only a limited number of people know how to swim. Students who do swim will also encounter problems after they finish school because there are few pools open in the public year round.

Bicycling is also one of the best forms of exercise, Knowlton said.

"Bicycling is an excellent exercise. In our research we have found it to be the most efficient form of movement, which means there is more work done for the amount of energy output," he said.

In addition to exercises that produce maximum cardiovascular fitness, Knowlton recommended games, as well as supplement physical activities. Ball game sports such as squash and tennis, are not adverse exercises because the movements are less monotonous, he said.

"For the average person there is a small amount of movement in games. It is not an activity of a startling nature, and therefore should not be considered the mere exercise of any fitness program," he explained.

Bicycling is an excellent exercise for people who are not physically fit or who are in poor shape. It is a form of exercise that can be done in the comfort of your own home, Knowlton said.

There is a certain level of fitness that is necessary for people to participate in any physical activity, Knowlton said. "We have had positive results with our students and I don't see why there would be no benefit for the future," he said. At SJC we have a unique opportunity to expose the participants to the physical fitness needs of the handicapped. There has been little research done on special populations, and we need to explore this area.

Nature center plans trip
By Peter Hastings

A cross-country ski trip to Yellowstone National Park, and a summer course on the Blue Ridge Mountains have been planned for the spring break by Touch of Nature Environmental Center.

The ski trip is scheduled for March 21-24 and will cost $389 per person, according to Carl Stemp, director of Touch of Nature. Excluding food, is limited to eight people. Stemp said.

A van will be transported by Touch of Nature to take the group to the Yellowstone ski area. The cost of transportation is included in the $20 fare. Touch of Nature will also provide food, ski equipment and camping gear for the participants. Those who have snow skis, boots and clothing may substitute them for the Touch of Nature equipment, which will be charged only $137 for the week.

The agenda calls for overnight camping while the group is in the park. Stemp said. Touch of Nature has also planned a wilderness course for spring break, entitled "Backpacking in the Blue Ridge Mountains".

A 35-day course is scheduled for March 12-29, and is open to women 21 and older. Stemp said.

The course will feature instruction in backpacking, camping and wilderness survival. It will be conducted at the Lovelace George Wildlife Center in North Carolina, Stemp said. The Tuition is $1,88, and enrollment is limited to 20 people.

The cost of the class includes food transportation and equipment. Sleeping bags and packs can be rented for $2.50 per day, Stemp said.

A van will transport the participants to North Carolina, and the students will spend their nights camping out. Stemp said.

Both the cross-country ski trip, and the wilderness course for women are new offerings by Touch of Nature this year.

CRL hired for Brush Towers
By Steve Weidman, Student Writer

In a sense, Elaine Mitchell is the second to more than 1,400 people—Carbondale, Ill. Mitchell, 21, is another married student who has attended or will attend residence at Brush Towers.

Mitchell began her job this semester, replacing Virginia Remon, who had held the job for the last seven years. Remon resigned because she had to coordinate her residence life and gain a professional experience and advancement.

Mitchell, a Nashville, Tenn., native, spent almost three years at the University of Tennessee at Martin, where she received her master's degree in psychology and guidance. She worked as an assistant resident for two-and-a-half years and as a full-time resident counselor for four years.

With all the experience Mitchell has, she feels like she has adjusted to the work that she was at Martin. She works as a resident counselor with 32 students. She said she dealt with more than three times as many students last fall.

Elaine Mitchell

CRL person points out that "an excellent opportunity to grow professionally and to gain administrative experience."

Mitchell said she brought up in a large family with eight brothers and sisters. Mitchell said she also left warm and accommodated to the group living. "You can expect a person in his real self when you find him in a relaxed environment. I like people and I believe the resident hall function is very important since the majority of residents move in apart in the residence hall," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said she believes students really learn as much outside class as they do in class. She also said that the residence halls need to set up more programs and keep trying to get students to participate.

"We have that an active student is a more productive student," she said.

One of Mitchell's goals this semester is to see more student awareness and input into their food service.

"I think there are some problems, not major, but there are some things students want, and they should be able to expect some satisfaction," Mitchell said.

Another goal Mitchell has is the new CRL is to maintain a good rapport with the staff of Brush Towers. "There are so many people living in the Towers, the need for effective communication becomes very important," she said.

Mitchell said she would also like to see more programs initiated in the area to improve unity between the two towers.

Career Day to promote jobs
By Phyllis Masters

Information on job opportunities will be supplied to all students at Career Day at the Student Center.

The event will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 14. Sponsored by the Career Planning and Placement Center, students will have a chance to talk directly with government representatives about various jobs available.

"This is a good way for students to find out what options are available and what requirements they have to attend the course," said student counselor Michelle Wilson.

Wilson said the representatives will have tables set up to answer questions and provide information. "It's their goal to get the student interested in the field," she said.

Wilson's goal for the event is "not only students but their parents and others. A lot of information pertaining to summer jobs and internships will be given out." So far 32 agencies have confirmed their attendance. Wilson said. Job-hunting students will have a chance to talk directly to the representatives.

The Government Career Day is sponsored by the Career Center. Last year's event was held at the Spring 2002 Career Education Career Day will be held. Wilson said. More than 200 students attended the Business Career Day last semester. Wilson said.

A full table will also be set up from the Career Planning and Placement Center to get seniors to register with the placement service.

"As far as the undecided students are concerned, a representative from the Career Counseling and Placement office will be there to answer questions," she said.

According to Wilson, the Illinois Department of Labor Enforcement has 300 job openings and will be there recruiting prospective employees.

"Persons not majoring in a technical area engineering or accounting will have a chance to sign up for the PACE (Professional Administrative Career Examination test. "Some government jobs require the PACE test. Students can find out if the job they're interested in requires it," Wilson said.

Wilson said the Student Alumni Board will be present in the program.

"They'll be helping set up tables and assisting at the door," she said.

New Schoolers say 'it's fun to learn'

Many people have memories of elementary school, which are anything but pleasant—such as paddlings, drab-colored walls and regimented schedules. Several parents in the Carbondale area also remembered elementary school that way; so they created the Carbondale New School in the hope that learning can be fun.

The New School, located at 900 Reed St., is a private institution in which children from kindergarten through eighth grade can progress at their own rates, according to Linda Reed, secretary to the board of directors.

“ar child can do however many pages he or she wants to do,” she said. “In a public school, a child must sit through an hour of math whether the assignment takes him that long or not. That results in the child becoming frustrated, bored and uncomfortable.”

Reed said that time slots are set aside for subjects at the new school, but if a child finishes early he can go to another subject.

“I don’t think the children feel any competition,” she added. “Every child is praised for his own accomplishments.”

The school board, which is composed of parents and staff, is headed by Jeanne Kurtz-Weiss, director. She said that there is more to the school than just the curriculum.

“It’s not so much the different subjects as it is the different atmosphere that sees our school apart,” she said. “There is an informal, family type atmosphere here. Parents and staff members get to know each other well.”

Tuition at the New School, which has an enrollment of 45, is $100 for the first child from a family, with a 33 percent discount for each additional child enrolled, according to Kurtz-Weiss, who added that the charge was “very low” for a private school.

Reed said the school, a non-profit corporation, gets along “very poorly financially.”

The younger students at the school are divided into three grade levels—lower, middle and upper.

Marianne Patterson, who has a master’s degree in Spanish from SUU, teaches upper school. She said she doesn’t like to adhere strictly to the book.

“If we are studying math and a student wants to take time off for something else, they do the math later,” she said, although she admitted there are exceptions to the rule.

Patterson said students are taught foreign languages such as Spanish, German and French.

“That is something the public schools don’t do,” she said.

Parents seem to be as enthusiastic about the New School as the administration. Rick and Chris Stollar, who have one child enrolled, are pleased with the attention their child gets.

“The kids get more one-to-one attention here than they do at public schools,” said Rick, a graduate student at SUU. “Parents help out a lot and that takes a load off the teacher.”

Parents are not only encouraged to help out at the New School; they are rewarded financially, in the form of a rebate, according to Kurtz-Weiss.

She said some parents teach and help make the curriculum while others help with materials and the physical maintenance of the two-story schoolhouse.

Barbara Meier, who has one child enrolled in the school, said the six weeks that her child spent in a public school were more than enough to convince her that there was a better way.

“‘There was a great lack of communication between me and the teachers,” she said. “I felt that I was shut out. The public school has a philosophy that doesn’t count for individual differences—there was no flexibility.”

“They are the exact opposite here,” she said. “My child is curious about things now. He is motivated and encouraged to be creative.”

Meier also said he disagreed with the discipline at the public school.

“Spanking is unnecessary,” she said. “What they do here never hurts a child’s dignity or self-respect.”

She explained that a child is punished by non-violent means, such as losing privileges.

“At the public school my child felt threatened,” Meier said.

And what about the students? Apparently they, too, like the New School. Heather Bellmeyer, 9, says she likes the school because she doesn’t get scared when she’s bad. She said she also likes the idea of working at her own pace.

Jessica Cook, who has never been to a public school, says, “I love the New School, and perhaps echoes the sentiments of all the youngsters and adults alike.

RADIOACTIVE WASTE

RICHLAND, Wash. - A recent Department of Energy study indicates that incorporating radioactive wastes into glass may offer a chance for decontamination of environmental radioactive waste. Energy planners are considering a new concept for handling radioactive wastes for long term storage of wastes from various factories. There is a little possibility of radioactive material being spread to the environment as the waste has been mixed and stabilised as glass.
Tankers exert rights; write lineup

By David Gabrick
Staff Writer

Rock Powers leaped against the wall of the coaches' office at the Recreation Building pool. Reading the back muscles of one of his swimmers. "I'm thinking. "Oh. He's a much slave driver." she said.

"You bet.," the coach replied.

"You know," she added. "He's making me swim the butterfly.

The coach raised his eyes and smiled. "But you looked so good swimming it at Indiana. didn't you?"

"Yeah, but there's another 25 yards to go in this race.

The last was done. The back muscles were gone.

And the tension is gone from the team, too.

The Salukis, fresh from a second-place finish at the Terre Tabbie Invitational, are preparing for a home meet Wednesday against Eastern Illinois, a team which should not provide nearly as much competition as those in the invitational did. The dual meet begins at 6:00 P.M.

Powers has no set lineup against the Panthers. In fact, he didn't write it. The swimmers decided which events they wanted to swim.

"They wrote most of the lineup," Powers said. "Everyone is going to try an odd event. This will take the pressure off them for this meet.

Eastern is not a very strong team. "I was talking to their coach this morning and they have only one good swimmer. They have no drivers. Our drivers will be good; the medley."

Barring coaching woes, which can't be overridden by two-heads voice at the team, the Salukis will swim in events they normally wouldn't. Anne Gobick will make her seasonal debut in the breaststroke. Jan Saimon will give it a whirl in the back stroke. Larry Scott will try the butterfly and Carol Lammers will swim the individual medley.

"We're still strong in just about every event," Powers said of the new look lineup. The Salukis, 63 in dual meets, will have at least two swimmers, and as many as four in one event. Earlier this season, Powers said the Salukis have four swimmers who can swim the individual medley.

Unlike the divers, the Salukis will not be going through the motions. SIC will swim a 3,000-yard workout before the meet. Powers is expecting good times in the meet, too.

"When there is no pressure, swimmers will go their best times," Powers said.

Terriers 16th in AP cage poll

By The Associated Press

The Carbondale Terriers made their first appearance in the Associated Press Class AA Illinois high school basketball poll this week. Carbondale, 14-1, tied Collinsville, 14-2, for this place.

Quincy's undefeated Blue Devils maintained the No. 1 position in the poll this week, but after that there was considerable reshuffling.

The Blue Devils, 19-0 after victories over Rock Island Alleman and Moline, collected 44 first-place votes from a panel of 12 sportswriters and broadcasters and had 194 poll points out of a possible 312.

Chicago Manley, in second place most of the season, suffered a 72-71 loss to Chicago Marshall and plunged from second to seventh. Du Quoin, 16-2, climbed into second place. The Pirates failed to receive any first-place votes but had 177 poll points, 12 above Park Forest's 160 for first place, 13 for second, down to 1 for third.

Westchester St. Joseph, 15-2, gained the other three first-place votes and had 186 points to move into third place.

Defending champion Lockport, 17-1, jumped from sixth to fourth place with 164 points.

Diving aids swimming successes

By David Gafrich

Ask a swimmer what the most overlooked part of swimming is, he might answer, "That's the breathing."

Ask a diver the same question, and he might say "That's the kicking and his teammates."

Add a coaching staff which is more overlooked and they'll grill Men's Coach Bob Stielau, Rich Powers and diving Coach Julian Krug realize that both swimming and diving are needed for a team to add winning to its vocabulary.

Diving is like a cog in a machine. When the cog is functional, the machine operates and wins. When the cog is missing, a team usually acts as a unit.

"What is most important is that our divers, both men and women, feel that they're part of the same team," Krug said. "Our swimmers support our divers and our divers support our swimmers. With a good diving squad, our team is competitive at every event. To win, our whole program is stronger with diving.

Diving wasn't always a strong point. There were many factors.

Coaches had to become meshed with the ceiling tiles of Pulliam pool, where the team was used to diving. Much of the talent wasn't there.

"As the team became more experienced," Krug said, "the divers became more competitive in our abilities to even or even move to a 16-second advantage for a long time to come.

The first step to rebuilding the program began with the hiring of a coach. Bob Stielau, a veteran of 26 national AUI diving championships, and as an assistant diving coach at Harvard, High Diving Championships twice.

"He is certainly one of the few coaches who can handle both," Stielau said. "As a member of the National AUI Diving Committee, Julian is a well qualified contributor to the American diving scene. He has many great ideas.

"That was Krug's first problem. In his first year Bill Carlson, Gary Oakes and Rick Theobald joined the team. Three novices who then joined that young squad: George Greenleaf, Alan Lenie and Bill Grisbee. As coach of the men's team, Krug added Julia Werner, Penny Hoffman, Tracey Terrell and Lynne Brawer. All were needed to win or at least to bring out the talent.

After two years, the work is beginning to pay off. Carlson, Massey and Theobald, now one of the nation's top three divers, both qualified for the nationals. Kristin Werner was a national qualifier in her freshman year. This season, Werner and Terrell both qualified for the nationals.

Improvement, especially in the three-meter event, is the best word in 1978, according to Krug. Experience and practice factors are two fast factors that the Salukis have in their favor. But both are young and "we're Cashmore, Massey and Theobald are juniors. Werner is a sophomore.

For some divers, it takes two or three years to make the adjustment from one meter to two meters, and one to three meters. Krug said: "Very few divers are truly good on the three meters in high school. There aren't too many three-meter boards around to practice. High school competition is all on the one-meter board.

Dedication, determination and competitiveness: they are the four primary qualities on this year's squad, according to Krug. Many divers sometimes work more than just the allotted practice time in perfecting their dives. "Krug, remember the diver that can make more than that, "he added. "It's hard to keep Tracey off the boards." Krug laughed. "Some times, I've got to grab her and hold her just to tell her what she's done wrong."

Face and arms tensed, Stielau McBrone gets into the swing of his parallel bar routine. McBrone scored an 8.8 on the apparatus and finished with a total all-around total in Saturday's meet against Northern Illinois and Brigham Young.

Gymnast Adams returns

By Brad Becker

Sports Editor

Rick Adams must sense it.

The gymnastics team was beset quite handily Saturday, and even though the team's performance was not too discouraging considering the circumstances, it is clear that StU needs the all-American performer.

Adams, who dislocated his knee in a meet against Illinois State two-and-a-half weeks ago, worked the parallel horse and scored an 8.8 Saturday. Coach Bill Meade can't wait for Adams to get going on some of the other apparatus, notably high bar and parallel bars.

Five performers on parallel bars and floor and high bar leave little margin for the error that the Salukis made in Saturday's meet on those events. Those two events happen to be among Adams' specialties: "...now if we can get Adams back, and he and I feel better off better today—he was in pain and all that stuff," Meade said Saturday, "...we'll be in good shape.

Adams was to come back soon is possible, of course, especially because this is his final year, nor is he likely to compete. He did ask after he got hurt. Injuries or not, he is quitting. It doesn't make any sense to quit, really, because the team has younger competitors that have two or three more years to look forward to. This is a learning year for them, anyway.

Meade says that, in most cases, most gymnasts don't "come into their own" until the end of their sophomore year.

Dan Muenz was an exception. Meade said. He is helping now.

"Brian still thinks he's in high school sometimes," Meade said after Saturday's meet. "He competes like that. He makes freshman mistakes. Like today, he did a new dismount on the high beam and landed like a sack of crap, but he's a competitor. He didn't want to look bad. Nobody does if you do. If other people were to "not look bad," there would be a lot of mediocrity in their own." He added. "So the Salukis, as a team, possibly are "looking bad" for a while, it may make them stronger later.

Six teams vie for second as Valley race tightens

After Saturday, only two weeks remain in the Missouri Valley Conference regular season, and the only thing that is almost certain is that Indiana State will win the conference and West Texas State and Drake will fight it out to escape the cellar.

The Valley has several loose spots, however, any team has a chance to finish second, including the Salukis, who finished place finish last in the MVC, guarantees a team at least one homecoming victory. The Valley Conference, which begins the Tuesday following the end of the regular season.

In the battle for second behind the Sycamores, New Mexico State, Creighton and Drake, the Roadrunners, are up for the track. The most difficult part of its season, has to have to play Indiana State or Drake again.

Drake Aggies host Wichita State Thursday, then finish the season at West Texas, at Wichita, and at home against SIU and Creighton.

If the Bluejays get past two road games this week at Tulsa and Wichita, coming down the stretch they have a chance to determine their own fate.

Creighton is at home against Bradley and Drake, and finishes the road at New Mexico State and Drake. The Salukis, however, appear to have to play Indiana State or Drake again.

Drake, perhaps the surprise in the conference this year after finishing ninth a year ago, appears to face the toughest schedule of the three. The Salukis, play in DelMones Monday, and then the Bulldogs finish with three of their remaining four games on the road. The Roadrunners, however, with Creighton and a home date with Indiana State sandwiched between Tulsa, if it can handle Creighton at home and Drake on the road this week, faces an enviable stretch to the end of its final three at home. The Hurricane has SIU and West Texas at home and Bradley on the road.

Wichita State, also a part of the Valley crowd at least a year ago for a rugged finish, at New Mexico State and at home against Creighton this week, and then at home against Drake and New Mexico State and on the road against Bradley and Indiana State.

And the Salukis? After a home game with, West Texas Saturday and the game in Les Staley Memorial Saturday, SIU finishes at New Mexico State and Tulsa and at home against Drake on Feb. 24, the final night of the season.
