Top advisers sent to assess gulf war

United Press International

President Bush ordered his top military advisers to Saudi Arabia Tuesday to assess the constant pounding given Iraq's troops and help him decide whether a ground assault was needed to liberate Kuwait.

Tuesday's pounding took the form of more shelling of enemy positions in Kuwait by the USS Missouri, more than 2,800 air sorties flown by allied planes and some cross-border artillery firings along the Saudi-Kuwaiti border. A U.S. military official said the activity was "softening up" Iraq troops.

About 10 more Iraqi planes, most of them fighters, took off and landed in Iran bringing the number of Saddam Hussein's planes on his neighbor's soil to about 110, officials said.

And for the first time since the Persian Gulf war began almost three weeks ago, Syrian forces got involved in an allied clash with Iraqi troops.

Bush indicated at a White House news conference that any ground war would be at least a week away, waiting until after the return of Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, from meeting with Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the U.S. commander of allied forces.

"I will have to make that decision, if we go to ground forces, and I will do it on serious consideration of the recommendations of our military, including our secretary of defense and the chairman (Powell), of course, but also of our commanders in the field," Bush said.

'Scud buster' proves worth against Iraq

Patriot packs powerful punch in Persian Gulf

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

After 25 years and $12.5 billion of development, the Patriot missile system has proved its worth in the Persian Gulf war.

The missile, assembled by the Martin Marietta Corp., Orlando, Fla., was designed to be the world's best anti-aircraft missile, said Dave Harris, spokesman for the U.S. Army Missile Command.

During the gulf war, the Patriot missile system has gained fame for being able to knock down Iraqi Scud missiles.

Although the technology that made the Patriot a missile killer has been added to the system within the last five years, the Patriot still is fully capable of shooting down aircraft, Harris said.

The Patriot system is not part of the Strategic Defense Initiative, also known as Star Wars. It was researched and developed by the Army for field use, he said.

On the battlefield, the Patriots have been effective against Scud missile attacks because the Scuds have been termed outdated and not a key military threat.

But Harris said Scuds still provide a challenge for any defense system.

"The Scud is a very small radar target and travels very fast," he said. "With the speed of engagement between the Scud and Patriot, you either hit it or miss it. There's no second chance."

The Patriot missile battery is composed of several truck-mounted components including a radar-equipped firing unit, engagement controls, a generator and up to eight trailer-mounted launchers that carry four ready-to-fire Patriots.

"The area the battery covers depends on the tactical situation," Harris said. "You could set everything up on a football field, but of course it's spread out for protection."

Each Patriot missile battery costs $82 million and the individual missiles carry a $600,000 price tag. The Patriot missiles have a range of 50 or more miles, Harris said.

The Army has been "tickled pink" by the performance of the Patriot in the Persian Gulf war, Harris said.

Other countries also have been impressed with the Patriot, both before and after its use in the Persian Gulf. Germany, Japan, Italy, Israel and Saudi Arabia are a few of the many countries with Patriot systems or trying to obtain them. The Army is expecting additional customers for the Patriot system when the Persian Gulf war is over, he said.

"The Israelis bought two Patriot batteries from the United States last October, and since Jan. 16 the Army has moved in several additional batteries," Harris said.

The Army is in the last year of manufacturing Patriots, a process which began in 1981.

"When we complete this year we will have everything the Army intended to have, but it's not the end of the Patriot," he said.

"Technology will be added as it becomes known. The Patriot will be around for many years."

New budget to reduce financial aid

By Natalie Boehme

Students will scramble to find financial aid if President George Bush's proposed 1992 budget is accepted, a financial aid official said.

Dallas Martin, president of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, said although Bush's proposed budget will add $400 million to the Pell Grant program, the gain will be offset by cuts to other financial aid programs.

The maximum Pell Grant will increase from $2,400 to $3,700, and the minimum gift from $200 to $400, according to Bush's

Student DUI charges on the rise

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

Recently released figures show an increase in driving under the influence on campus, SIUC Police said.

Police have not reported any DUI deaths, but arrests have increased by almost 44 percent since 1988.

SIUC Police statistical clerk Theresa Nesler said University police arrested and charged 79 people with DUI in 1990.

This number has increased from 1988, when 55 people were arrested and charged with DUI, and 1989, when 65 were arrested and charged.

SIUC Police Chief Bob Harris said the reason on-campus DUI arrests are increasing is that people still are getting drunk, and many new young, "gung-ho" officers are making the arrests.

"The young officers are eager and aggressive to get out and make arrests," Harris said.

Nesler said in 1988 six accidents were reported to be alcohol-related and four tickets were issued.

In 1989, seven alcohol-related accidents were reported — one resulting in injury — and six tickets issued.

The 1990 statistics show seven

Pettit warns deans about possible cuts

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

SIUC deans are looking for fat to trim off their current budgets in case money must be returned to the state.

Deans from the 11 SIUC academic units received a letter from SIUC Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's office Jan. 18 asking them what cuts they could make if a rescission of 1 or 2 percent is needed. "We are not expecting a rescission, but we know the state has a cash flow problem — we want to be prepared as best we can," Pettit said.

SIUC received about $236.5 million from the state for the 1990 fiscal year. A 1-percent rescission would total $2.365 million and a 2-percent rescission would total $4.73 million.

Pettit said he had no idea what percentage of a rescission the state would ask for, and he asked the deans to use 1 percent and 2 percent as bench marks to see what effect a rescission could have on the University.

Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research, said a rescission is just speculation, and he does not anticipate a budget recall.

"I have told the deans to act as business as usual," he said. "I think the good people in Springfield know better than to ask us to do this at this time of the fiscal year."

The 1990 fiscal year ends June 30, and colleges will operate under new budgets beginning July 1.

John H. Yopp, graduate school dean, said he did not believe the state legislature would ask for a budget recall, but felt it was reasonable for the University to ask

Salukis set to steal show from Bears

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The new kids on the block could run away with the show if they can knock off SIUC tonight.

Southwest Missouri State, in it's first season in the Missouri Valley Conference, leads the race with an 8-2 mark. If the Salukis (5-4) don't pull off an upset in Springfield, Mo., Coach Rich Herrin doesn't think anyone will pass the Bears in the Valley standings.

"I think somebody's got to beat Southwest," Herrin said. "If we don't beat them, it's going to be tough for anyone to overhaul them.

If we beat them we have a chance."

To upset the Bears, the Dawgs will have to overhaul the entire Southwest team. Four Bears are scoring in double figures. Leading the way for Southwest is its speedy outside duo of guards Darryl Reid and Arnold Bernard. Reid leads the team with a 16.8 scoring average, while Bernard sparks the Bears' offense with 71/2 assists and 11.4 points a game.

Inside, the Bears dump off to forward Ryan Thornton, averaging 15.2 points a game while pulling down 7.4 boards a game.

"If we go down there and win that's a big confidence builder for us because it's such a tough place to play," senior forward Rick Shipley said. "Plus, if we beat them it brings them back in the pack a little bit."

The big difference between the two teams has been the decisions of the close ballgames. Southwest has won six ballgames by six points or less, while the Dawgs have not lost by more than six points.

"We've got to take one game at a time," Shipley said. "We've got to go out to win. Not just make a good showing, but to win."

Mahaira honored by Gateway

Saluki swimmer junior Tonia Mahaira made a big splash at the Saluki Invitational Saturday and Sunday and has been selected as Gateway Conference's Swimmer of the Week.

Mahaira won first place in the 100-meter freestyle with a time of :52.31. This was a meet record for the Saluki Invitational.

"My time for the 100 free was my fastest time so far this season," Mahaira said. "It was a good time and I was really happy."

Mahaira said she was named the Swimmer of the Week last year and did not think she would win it again this year.

"Winning this award two years in a row is an honor," Mahaira said. "It just shows that SIUC has some of the best swimmers in the conference. The Gateway Conference is not all that prestigious of a conference, but if we win these awards, it is telling us we are the best swimmers."

Mahaira also took a first place win in the 200 free with a time of 1:53.83. Mahaira said her time for the 200 free was okay, but not her best.

"Those are still far from my best times," Mahaira said. "I know I have a lot more inside me."

Rakers continues to drive Saluki force in all areas, strives toward NCAA title

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Success and Saluki senior center Amy Rakers seem to go hand in hand.

The 6-foot-3 All-American candidate has witnessed nothing but success since picking up a basketball at SIUC. In four seasons in a Saluki uniform Rakers, with her hustle and intense style of play, has been a key in compiling a 70-36 overall record and 53-5 in the Gateway Conference.

Individually, Rakers' numbers are even more impressive.

She has scored 1,366 career points for SIUC, and will move up to the No. 4 position on the all-time list with 15 points Thursday night against Bradley. With at least nine ballgames remaining, Rakers needs to average 18.3 points a game to surpass Char Warring in the top spot at 1,530. Rakers is averaging 18.7 points a game this season.

"She's such a prolific scorer," SIUC coach Cindy Scott said. "She's the best scorer I've ever coached. It will be a long time before we have someone like that again."

On the boards, Rakers has been just as dominating during her career. She is presently at the No. 4 spot on the all-time list with 842 rebounds. If she stays at her average of 11 a game through the remainder of the season, she could move up to No. 3.

"She's the best I've ever coached," Scott said. "I haven't made that statement up until now, but she is. I really think she is as talented as they come."

"She's a very intense competitor, almost to a fault sometimes," Scott said. "There are times that she wants to win so badly that it is almost too much. I would say one of her best assets is her ability to compete and go after it and not back down."

Rakers isn't worried about any individual accomplishments. She has her sights set on another successful season for her team.

"I just want to get back to the (NCAA) Tournament and win some games there," Rakers said. "I think this team has a good chance at that."

Rakers ventured to SIUC from Belleville Township High School West where she was the all-time scoring and rebound leader for the Maroons. She notched All-State and Honorable Mention Converse All-American honors her senior year.

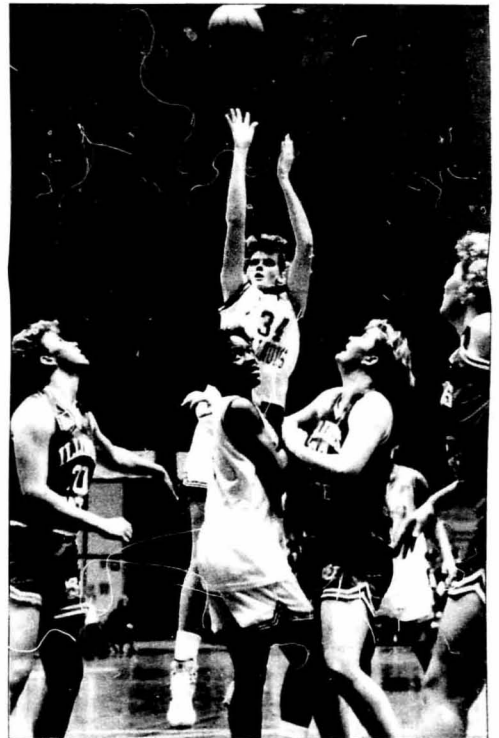

Last year, Rakers had a career year, leading the Salukis in scoring (20.7 p.p.g.), rebounding (10.5 p.p.g.), field goal percentage (.574), blocks (27), steals (40), and minutes played (1,111). She set single season school records with 643 points and 325 rebounds a year ago.

Besides leading SIUC Rakers also led the entire Gateway Conference in scoring, rebounding, and field goal percentage.

The 1990 Gateway Conference Player of the Year has picked up right where she left off a year ago. Rakers has already been honored as the Gateway Player of the Week twice this season.

Rakers has scored in double figures in 48 consecutive games, including 14 times this season. She is averaging 18.7 games and 11

Big East forms new conference

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The Big East formed a new eight-team football conference Tuesday, adding Rutgers, Temple, Virginia Tech and West Virginia to the four football schools already included.

The four new schools will play only football in the conference. They were added to Boston College, Pittsburgh, Syracuse and Miami, who are full members for all sports including football and basketball.

Big East Commissioner Mike Tranghese said the eight schools will be required to play a five-game schedule by 1995, and sooner if possible. He said he hopes a conference champion can be determined next fall.

The conference will begin in name this year, however, and will establish its own officiating bureau and a syndicated television package.

"This is a historic day for the Big East," Tranghese said. "We have an excellent group of institutions that are steeped in football tradition. We are going to be very aggressive. I think it's going to be exciting for our schools and for college football fans everywhere."

The Big East began pushing for football early last year when there were strong indications that the football conferences around the nation were going to expand and shift. It was feared that Pittsburgh, Boston College and Syracuse—the three major college football schools in the Big East—might bolt for fear of being shut out of attractive scheduling.

The first step was to bring in Miami as a full member, which was accomplished in December. The Hurricanes have finished in the top three nationally in football the last five years.

"We plan to take an immediate and active role in pursuing a bowl tie-in," Tranghese said. "We all believe that Big East football has great potential. Recent history has shown that our schools are often among the nation's best."

Ditka signs on for three years

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mike Ditka, who has guided Chicago to six NFC Central Division titles in seven years, will remain as coach of the Bears for at least three more seasons after both sides agreed to a new contract, the team announced Tuesday.

"We're delighted. We think he's an excellent coach, and we look forward to continued success over the next three years," team president Michael McCaskey told radio station WBBM-AM.

Ditka, 51, a member of football's Hall of Fame, became the Bears' 10th head coach on Jan. 20, 1982. He led the franchise to its first Super Bowl title following the 1985 season.

The Bears hit hard times in 1989 with a 6-10 finish, and Ditka even speculated at times he might not be back when his contract expired after the 1990 season.

But Chicago rebounded to go 11-5 in 1990 and again captured the NFC Central. The Bears were eliminated from the playoffs in the second round by the eventual Super Bowl champion New York Giants.

Money commitments to help front line nations of gulf war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commitments of $14.3 billion have been received for the three frontline nations — Egypt, Turkey and Jordan — most affected economically by the Persian Gulf war, a Treasury official said Tuesday. David Mulford, treasury under secretary for international affairs and the U.S. representative on the Gulf Crisis Financial Coordination Group, said the amount of commitments has increased from $13.5 billion at the group's last meeting in Rome last November. The group includes finance officials from 26 nations, the European Commission, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.

World oil demand down; production backs up

PARIS (UPI) — Slackening world demand for oil has resulted in OPEC production backing up on storage tankers at sea even though the cartel's output dropped sharply in January, the International Energy Agency said Tuesday. The IEA said daily output of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries fell 800,000 barrels to 22.9 million barrels in January, while the cartel's surplus stocks rose to about 120 million barrels, 20 million barrels higher than the previous month. The drop in consumption was attributed to lower economic growth, higher prices, mild weather, stock building and conservation efforts. IEA forecast slack demand would continue.

Court finds lack of evidence against Mandela

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A trial court found Tuesday prosecutors had insufficient preliminary evidence against Winnie Mandela, wife of black leader Nelson Mandela, in a case involving the slaying of a 14-year-old boy and adjourned the case until next week. Police earlier used batons to disperse more than 300 Mandela supporters outside Johannesburg's Rand Supreme Court building, witnesses said, leaving at least one woman injured after officers accused the crowd of blocking traffic.

Terrorism not likely tied to bombs near Navy base

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Authorities have not ruled out terrorism in a probe to find out who planted six pipe bombs at a chemical storage complex, but they said Tuesday the threat was probably not linked to terrorist activity. One official close to the investigation said the probability that the incident involved terrorists was "exceptionally low." The possibility of terrorism has been raised in part because the site of the threat is only about a 20-minute drive from the country's largest Navy base, where security was tightened at the onset of the Persian Gulf war.

Champaign paper to send news to local troops in gulf

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — A Champaign newspaper has revived a World War II-vintage idea to make sure local troops overseas can keep up with the news at home. The Champaign News-Gazette is sending a one-page, stripped-down version of the paper to 250 central Illinois soldiers, sailors and airmen serving in the Persian Gulf. The paper's "Persian Gulf Edition" is a folded legal-size sheet the troops will receive each week featuring news, sports and photos culled from News-Gazette's regular editions. The first copies of the free newsletter were mailed last week.

Task force disagrees on effects of betting

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Members of the City Council's off-track wagering facility task force disagree on what impact off-track betting will have on Carbondale.

They will have their first opportunity to discuss the issue Wednesday.

Richard Fasano, a Wellness Center graduate assistant, said he is concerned that students will become addicted to wagering if a facility is located in Carbondale.

Students may spend their school loan checks at the facility instead of on tuition, he said.

Harry D. Wirth, director of service enterprises, however, compared placing wagers on horses to lotteries.

While task force members have different degrees of knowledge on off-track wagering, those contacted said they would attend the first meeting with an open mind to try to understand all aspects of the issue.

Harvey Welch, vice president for student affairs, said he wants to know what a wagering facility will mean to Southern Illinois.

"Will this be an economic blessing or will it bring problems we don't want?" he said.

The 11-member task force was created by the City Council last week to study the possible effects off-track betting would have on Carbondale.

Brian Zantler, vice president and general manager of Fairmount Park race track in Collinsville, will be at the meeting to answer questions, said City Manager Steve Hoffner.

Since summer 1990, officials from Fairmount Park have been in contact with city officials about locating an off-track wagering facility in Carbondale.

Exact locations have not been released, but Hoffner said sites on the east side of town are being considered.

In addition to Welch, Wirth and Fasano, other at-large members include Linda Flowers and Robert Stalls, both Carbondale residents.

Other task force members are Charlie Travelstead and Gary Schaefer from the Chamber of Commerce, Don Jackson and Collynn Pearl from the Convention and Tourism Bureau and Bill Whitson and John Ryan from the Carbondale Business Development Corporation.

Residents having questions or concerns about off-track betting in Carbondale should direct them through City Hall or one of the task force members, Hoffner said.

SIUC foot patrol a 'big help' to official University police

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

SIUC security combines rule enforcement with preventative measures on campus.

The SIUC foot patrol walks the campus for the safety of the students.

Bob Harris, chief of the SIUC Police, said the patrol is a big help to the official sworn-in police that cover the campus in patrol cars.

"They are the eyes and ears of the group," Harris said.

Like any other work on campus, it is a job, said Rich Lazik, a sophomore foot patrolman.

"You have to apply, you have to be accepted, and once you're accepted, they will train you on the job," he said.

Harris said basic training for foot patrol is not as intensive as basic training for police.

"The (on-the-job) training includes self-defense and handcuff techniques, and the use of a nightstick," Harris said.

The foot patrol keeps in touch with the dispatcher and police cars with radios.

"When a patrolman sees something suspicious, like a break-in, he calls in what he sees and the dispatcher sends police backup to the scene," Harris said.

Some of the patrol serves as undercover security, he said.

"Some of the patrolmen are sent out in their plainclothes, on foot or on a bike," Harris said. "When seen, they look like they are heading for class or the library with a backpack. What you don't see is the radio and handcuffs inside the pack."

Jim Benbow, senior in anthropology, identifies artifacts from the settling pond site at Lake Kinkaid, west of Carbondale, Tuesday afternoon.

Ancient artifacts unearthed by SIUC diggers at lake site

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

RESEARCHERS from the SIUC Center of Archaeological Investigations spent a month combing a site near Kinkaid Lake, attempting to piece together the past.

Most remains found on the site represent the Early and Middle Woodland period, which dates 600 B.C. to 400 A.D. Native American cultures of that time are termed the Crab Orchard tradition, said Michael Hargrave, director of the research team.

"OUR MOST IMPORTANT find is the remains of a Middle Woodland house, represented by a pattern of small, dark soil stains that mark holes dug to support the wall posts," Hargrave said. "The house was rectangular and about 30 feet long. It was probably a wigwam structure."

Hargrave said few remains of houses from the Middle Woodland period have been found in Southern Illinois.

ARTIFACTS SUCH AS pieces of pottery, broken tools and plant remains have been brought back to the center, located in the brown barracks between Phaner Hall and Morris Library. The artifacts will be cleaned and analyzed.

A number of pits were found on the site, which probably were used for storing food or cooking, Hargrave said.

"FROM THE CLUES, we're trying to reconstruct the daily lives and also things about the technology and the economic system of these people as they changed through time," Hargrave said.

"Usually the clues are very fragmentary and to actually find a house that a family has built in response to their own needs, how big their family is, and the season they were living under at the site, it really gives you more information than you usually have."

THE MOST IMPORTANT research questions are whether the prehistoric Indians lived at the site all year long or on a seasonal basis and how they gathered food. Hargrave said one site will not provide all the answers, but it is a piece in the puzzle of history in this area.

"We try to excavate different sites whenever we have the opportunity and then put the clues together from all the different sites to figure out a whole way of life,"

Hargrave said.

THE JOB IS DIFFICULT because archaeologists must work with fragmentary clues, and the lifestyle studied has undergone constant change, he said.

Archaeology is not only about studying the major projects like pyramids, mound sites or huge villages, like some people believe, Hargrave said.

"YOU COULDN'T GET a picture of what American life is like by just looking at New York City," Hargrave said. "You have to look at the small towns in Illinois and everywhere else to get the view. The same is true with archaeological sites."

State and federal law stated the research be done before improvements to the Kinkaid water treatment system could begin.

BEFORE CONSTRUCTION, the area must be scanned for archaeological sites that will be destroyed.

Funding for the $21,000 research project was provided by Blankinship JT and Associates, a civil engineering and construction firm in Murphysboro

Treatment of POWs typical of Iraqi leader

SADDAM HUSSEIN has violated almost every aspect of human decency possible since trouble in the gulf began last August.

It's not surprising that he has extended this indecency to allied prisoners of war.

Iraq was among the 163 nations who signed the Geneva Conventions which stipulate that prisoners of war cannot be marched before hostile crowds, beaten, mistreated or used as a propaganda tool.

Apparently, that agreement was only a signature on a piece of paper.

THE BEATEN FACES of seven American and allied POWs sat in front of Iraqi cameras last week somewhere in Baghdad.

Their black eyes and swollen lips bluntly showed the world Saddam's latest display of brutality. Statements condemning U.S. military involvement in the gulf the POWs were forced to read continued Saddam's power game.

When families of the seven POWs requested that the International Red Cross be permitted to examine the airmen, Saddam refused.

POOR TREATMENT of POWs is not a new atrocity in war. More than 141,000 American POWs were captured in WWI, WWII, Korea and Vietnam.

Washington already is gearing up for postwar judicial proceedings against Saddam for war crimes.

But in the meantime, while it is still wartime, allied POWs physically and emotionally remain in Iraqi authority and wait.

Saddam's reign of inhumanity began with the invasion of Kuwait and the abuse of the Kuwaiti people and then progressed to the killing of his own top officials.

IT THEN spread along the coast line in the form of an oil spill. And now, it has been extended to us.

Time magazine reported that a nation could measure its raw power by its success at arms, but a gauge of its moral fiber is how it treats prisoners of war.

Saddam has again shown himself void of this "moral fiber," this time at the expense of allied forces.

Quotable Quotes

"It was a small act and could happen anywhere...I would characterize it as a small incident."—A spokesman for the Joint Arab Forces in reference to shots fired at a bus carrying U.S. soldiers.

"Moving on means letting go."—Vice President for Financial Affairs Charles Hindersman said about his upcoming retirement.

"The press has already turned from covering the war to covering its own coverage of the war."—SIUC journalism faculty member William Elliot said about the media's role in the Persian Gulf.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters will be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multiplicity of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed by its author. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Magnetic strips on student IDs could save lives

The new student IDs are supposed to do a lot for us—can they save lives too?

The magnetic strip on the back of the ID could be encoded with the allergies, medications or other medical information about students.

A list of these things, or a medic-alert sticker could also be laminated into the ID itself.

For those times when nurses and doctors need to know these things, and the student isn't able to tell them, these IDs could save lives. All it takes is a simple addition to the present ones.

How about it SIU? This could be a good way to show you care about us.—Larry Roemer, undergraduate, english.

Freedom of speech tossed out in sports

I would like to take this opportunity to show my disgust to the Missouri Valley Conference for blatantly violating the First Amendment of the Constitution when they suspended basketball coach Rich Herrin for publicly criticizing the referee on his radio show after the game.

Apparently the referees in basketball have become a big bunch of crybabies since they can no longer take criticism and have influenced the MVC to pass a law barring coaches from making derogatory statements toward referees or face suspension.

Who gives the MVC authority to take away an American's freedom of speech?

This is just another in a long line of idiotic rulings by the NCAA and its branches that serve no purpose for anyone and damage the careers of the players and the administrators.

If I were a basketball coach, I would intentionally get suspended. Then I'd take MVC to federal court to have that law declared unconstitutional and stricken from the books.

Someone has to send a message to the NCAA and conferences that their dictatorship will not be tolerated in our democratic society.

For now, since no one in basketball is allowed to criticize the refs, I will. The referees are blind, deaf, dumb, make too many bad calls and are a bunch of wimpy crybabies.

After the refs read this they'll probably run to their mommies crying, "Waaaaa! Somebody chewed me out in the DE! Waaaaa!"

Spoiled brats!—Steve Lucas, freshman, computer information processing.

International problems can be solved without invasion of smaller countries

On Mr. Alacaci's question on how someone's letter can be propagandistic if his information comes by citing chronological events from the international press, the answer is obvious: by accepting only the articles that are in his favor or the chronological period of his choice without looking at the previous and later events of his side's actions.

Are 50,000 Turkish, not Turkish-Cypriot, troops stationed there to keep "rescuing," as you have named the invasion and annexation of Cyprus?

Are 80,000 settlers from the poorest and most undeveloped areas of Turkey there to keep "rescuing" while the population of Turkish-Cypriots is only 120,000?

The population of Cyprus is 600,000 with 80 percent Greeks who lived there for 4,000 years and 120,000 Turks who lived there for 300 years.

If changing the demographics of the island is a rescue, and if what the United Nations, United States, Europe and the whole world except for two countries says (that Turkey's invasion of Cyprus is a rescue mission), then I think that your nationalistic obsession has totally blinded you.

If your opinion is right, have you ever thought what would happen to the international community?

Imagine if every country sent its troops for undefined time to a foreign country whenever it thought that its minority is being harassed.

What about Turkey's massacring 1.5 million Armenians in the early 1900s? A Turkish mob terrorized and threw out 150,000 Greeks like the Nazis did to Jews in Germany.

Today the Kurds in Turkey are not even allowed to talk their own language.

During the summer, Kurdish refugees said that more than 10,300 Kurds were evacuated from their villages and sent by force to other places in Turkey.

Mr. Alacaci, I say to you once there are other ways to solve international problems than "rescue" missions of Saddam's and Turkey's type.—Gregory Georgatatos, graduate, electrical engineering.

Coalition disapproves of budget

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

Six speakers gathered Tuesday at the Williamson County Courthouse in Marion to express their disapproval of the amount of military spending in President George Bush's proposed budget.

The speakers, from the Williamson and Jackson county chapters of the Common Agenda Coalition, are part of a national grass roots response to the federal budget, said Marjorie Parker, a speaker on economic conversion.

Members of the coalition responded during 140 press conferences throughout the nation Tuesday, Parker said.

"Neither the war in the Middle East nor the federal budget agreement should be allowed to divert attention and funding from the true security needs of our nation," Parker said.

The speakers said the $2 billion cost of one day of a ground war in Iraq, based on information from former assistant secretary of defense Lawrence Korb, is equal to one-third of the allocated budget for environmental protection.

The daily cost of war is equal to one-half of the annual child nutrition budget, speakers said. The coalition stresses that less money should be spent on the military and more on housing and food, said Elsie Speck, director of Good Samaritan Ministries in Carbondale.

"The budget priorities in this country have neglected the citizens. This must cease, and our priorities must return to seeing that our people are adequately fed and housed," she said.

To fund the Pell Grant increase, Bush proposed cuts in the College Work/Study program, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Guaranteed Student Loans, Perkins Loans and the Student Incentive program.

The increase in Pell Grant funding also would be accompanied by stricter eligibility requirements limiting the grants to students whose yearly family income does not exceed $10,000.

The new requirements would exclude 400,000 students who received Pell Grants in 1991, Martin said.

Pamela Britton, SIUC director of Financial Aid, said the current limit on family income to receive Pell Grants is $23,000.

Cutting back further than that still hurts the needy who are making more than $10,000 a year, she said.

An increase in Stafford Loans will help students who are ineligible for grants, Britton said.

Brian Monahan, field director for the Illinois Student Association, said shifting more students to loans is not good.

"One of our major priorities is to shift the emphasis from loans back to grants," Monahan said.

Bush proposed to budget $1.98 million less for the College Work/Study program and $1.73 million less for the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants than was allocated in 1991, Martin said.

Both programs are funded by the federal and state government. Along with the cuts, Bush will ask states to increase their match from 30 percent to 50 percent for College Work/Study and from 15 percent to 50 percent for the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Martin said. This will result in less available student work/study jobs, he said.

"For a school like SIU, if your legislature doesn't come up with the extra match," funds, they will have to raise the cost of education," Martin said. "It is self-defeating to try to increase financial aid if it eventually drives up tuition."

The proposal also failed to allot new funds for the Perkins Loan, cut the Student Incentive program and asked states to share the risk in backing Guaranteed Student Loans. "When you start adding up the cuts in other programs, you realize the increase in the Pell Grant isn't that good," Martin said.

SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said the proposed budget was "pretty dismal news," but he thinks after Congress is done altering the budget the programs won't be as crippled.

The main problem is that many people do not understand the process of creating a federal budget. They may consider Bush's proposal to be the final budget, Pettit said.

the colleges to be prepared—even if a recall is not probable.

Planning for a budget recall was a state wide directive, said Richard H. Moy, School of Medicine dean.

If the legislature does ask state universities for a budget recall, finding money that has not been spent or allocated will be difficult, according to all nine deans interviewed.

The great concern is that more than half of the fiscal year is gone, so the colleges aren't dealing with an entire budget, said Donald Beggs, College of Education dean.

"As the timing moves away from us, we won't have as much money to work with," Beggs said.

John Jackson, College of Liberal

Arts dean, said if his college is asked to make a rescission, it will have to scramble to find money that has been left unused or uncommitted.

The more time that passes, the less funds will be available, he said.

The nine deans contacted—Beggs, Jackson, Moy, Yopp, James A. Tweedy, College of Agriculture; Thomas Gutteridge, College of Business and Administration; Marvin D. Kleinau, College of Communications and Fine Arts; Kenneth G. Peterson, dean of libraries, and Juh Wah Chen, College of Engineering and Technology—said the main areas effected would be personnel for the summer semester and support costs. Support costs include everything except salaries.

Peterson said cutbacks would include decreasing library hours and materials.

A 1-percent cut would result in reducing library hours by five hours a week and cutting the purchase of 400 books.

Besides limiting personnel and support costs, the Graduate School also would have to cut dissertation research awards, Yopp said.

Russell R. Dutcher, College of Science dean, Elaine Vitello, College of Technical Careers dean, and Harry Haysworth, School of Law dean, could not be reached for comment.

Cheney and Powell were to go "later this week" on a short trip to the Saudi desert.

The decision about a ground war is a major one since it could result in heavy casualties on both sides and could represent Saddam's best chance to use chemical weapons on allied forces.

"Would air power alone get the job done?" Bush said. "My own view is I'm somewhat skeptical that it would."

But he denied a decision was right around the corner and said he would not overrule his military people if they said wait.

Marine Lt. Gen. Tom Kelly, speaking at a Pentagon briefing about the preparedness of U.S. troops, said:

"I think that they're as ready as they can reasonably be. A little more time certainly is not going to hurt them. They're not going to begin to suffer from just sitting there."

alcohol-related accidents — three resulting in injuries — and one ticket issued.

When people become aware that they could be serving jail time or see the fines getting bigger sense will get them to stop driving before they lose their license, Harris said.

Official statewide statistics for 1990 are not yet released, but according to the Fatal Accident Reporting System 40 percent of the traffic fatalities in Illinois in 1989 were alcohol-related.

Brent Mosel, deputy sheriff for Jackson County who reconstructs accidents, said the percentage was less in Jackson County, where 35 percent of traffic fatalities were related to alcohol.

In November 1989, an ordinance pulled back the hours that bars may be opened from 4 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Jackson County Sheriff William Kilquist said that at this time it has been hard to tell if the ordinance has had much effect on DUI accidents and the times of the accidents.

"So many things can have a bearing on statistics—war, weather—but we are seeing less accidents from the 3 to 5 a.m. range," Kilquist said.

Most DUI's are on U.S. Highway 51 between Carbondale and DeSoto or Illinois Route 13 between Carbondale and Murphysboro, he said, but they are way down from last year.

Protestant reformation start of Nazi Germany

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Nazi anti-Semitism originated in 16th century Germany, a speaker at the 26th session of Carbondale's Jewish Christian Conversations said.

During the event, sponsored by SIUC's Department of Religious Studies, the Hillel Foundation, Campus Ministries and other local religious organizations, five panelists were asked, "Did the Protestant reformation help pave the way for Nazi Germany?"

Guest speaker Stan Anderman told the small audience gathered at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Carbondale the answer was yes.

"For Jews, Martin Luther, born 1483 and died 1546, has to be characterized as one of history's most virulent Jew-haters," said Anderman, executive director of the Jewish Federation of Southern Illinois.

To support his argument, Anderman paraphrased Luther's writings. Luther was a German religious reformer who founded the Protestant Church.

Luther recommended extreme actions against German Jews, including the destruction of synagogues, the burning of Jewish holy books, forced physical labor, and the expulsion of Jews from Christian provinces of Germany, Anderman said.

Luther's argument for persecution of Jews influenced German Christian thought for centuries, and was one of the foundations of Adolf Hitler's anti-Semitic philosophy, he said.

Panelist Linda Horrell, pastor of Wolf Lake United Methodist Church in Wolf Lake, was in opposition to Anderman's views. She said prejudicial writings made up a negligible part of Luther's works.

"Martin Luther concentrated so much more of his writings on freedom and the law of love," Horrell said. "How can we go back 400 years and lay blame? Where's the historical steps to Martin Luther?"

Panelist Leonar i Zoll said that parts of Luther's teachings had been stolen and misused by the Nazis to justify their actions.

"Religion is a rationalization to do whatever it is you want to do," said Zoll, a rabbi with the Temple Israel Synagogue in Paducah, Ky., and a religious studies lecturer.

"When he said nice things about us, did people listen?" Zoll asked. "Did they say, 'He's right, be nice to them?'"

During the meeting, a young woman tried to shout down the discussion, accusing the panel and Zoll in particular, of lying about German history.

"My two grandfathers fought in the Wehrmacht," she said. "What gives you the right to judge my people?"

"I don't see any Christians in this room," she said. "I see a lot of Judeo-Christians."

The woman left the church after being asked not to speak out of turn.

The Southern Illinois Small Business Incubator, which opened in August, provides office space, laboratories and manufacturing areas for local businesses.

Incubator programs prepare prospective entrepreneurs

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

THE RED AND WHITE building at 150 E. Pleasant Hill road offers more than office space — it offers technological and professional support to new area businesses.

The Southern Illinois Small Business Incubator was built last summer and began housing new businesses in August. The building has attracted seven tenants, ranging from a tutoring service to a desktop publishing company.

THE INCUBATOR has offices, laboratories and manufacturing areas to fill the needs of almost any business, said Irene Carlton, director of the Small Business Development Center, also located at the incubator.

The center assists in setting up classes and providing residents with information and training.

In addition to the businesses, the incubator also is home to a research center, a computer lab and business library.

Prospective incubator tenants must fill out applications for assistance and devise a basic business plan to be reviewed by a development team, said Carlton.

Once approved, tenants can reap the benefits of the many programs and classes offered at the incubator.

Some of the programs include "Business Breakfasts," "ABC's of Business" and a large number of personal computer seminars.

THESE PROGRAMS are developed through a partnership of the U.S. Small Business Administration, the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, the Small Business Development Center, the SIUC College of Business and Administration and the SIUC Division for Continuing Education.

Once a business tenant is capable of going out on their own, they will "graduate" from the incubator, said Carlton.

"We've had one graduate already. He's moved out and is now operating on his own," she said.

A popular area of the incubator is its computer lab, which is open to the businesses for use with loan forms, business plans and other various business applications, said Lynn Andersen Lindberg, a seminar instructor.

"OUR COMPUTER lab consists of 15 IBM PS2 computers, and we hold two seminars each week that are open to the public," Lindberg said.

"They are run by COBA and are the same programs that were previously offered in their lab," she said. "They have just been moved here because of the newer facilities."

The incubator also offers a convenient location for University students to conduct market research projects and do surveys.

"Classes come in to do projects all the time," Carlton said.

"THIS IS A GREAT location. It's close to the campus, but not hidden away in a little building somewhere," she said. "Being at the incubator gives a different image to the businesses."

Council to train, assist local businesswomen

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

The Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs chose Carbondale as part of a program to gain support and increase the visibility of business women.

Mollie Cole of Illinois Women's Business Enterprises, said that the Women's Business Advocate, an Illinois-based organization, has organized educational seminars and conferences statewide since 1985. She said the next step is to develop local business councils.

Women's Business Councils will be set up at five Illinois locations this month — Carbondale, Peoria, Rockford, Rock Island and Springfield, according to DCCA.

In a statement, the DCCA described the WBCouncils as "a statewide network of community based organizations that support all women business owners by providing ongoing technical assistance with outreach, training, communication and resource availability.

WBCouncils strive to achieve effective policy, appropriations and program opportunities for all female entrepreneurs," according to the statement.

To achieve their goals, the councils have planned leader training sessions, a statewide council meeting scheduled for May and five "mini-expos," one at each council area, to enhance public relations for the program.

Irene Carlton of the Southern Illinois Small Business Development Center will administer the WBCouncil in Carbondale.

Carlton said the WBCouncils have open membership. One need not own a business to be involved, and women from all areas of business are accepted, she said.

The WBCouncils provide services at no cost. They identify issues of local concern, and develop programs that adequately meet the needs of the community.

"We will try and focus on areas of business that women experience the most problems with, such as pension plans and lack of loan funds," Carlton said

Bank reform greeted with uncertainty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bush administration's landmark proposals to overhaul and strengthen the nation's banks and deposit insurance system received mixed reviews Tuesday on Capitol Hill and in the financial community.

The long-awaited proposals are designed to modernize the financial system while making banks more competitive and minimizing risks to depositors and taxpayers.

The reforms concentrate on three areas: deposit insurance and banking reform, restructuring banking regulation and recapitalizing the Bank Insurance Fund.

In a report, the Treasury said the federal deposit insurance system is over-extended and in need of reform.

Visiting artists animate crafts in minds of Illinois children

By Stephanie Steiner
Staff Writer

A child's mind is an incredible thing to inspire.

Three of SIUC's visiting artists joined forces Monday in an effort to inspire art in the young minds of the children at the Eurma Hayes Center in Carbondale.

The works of Mr. Imagination, David Philpot and Simon Sparrow are on display at the University Museum.

In cooperation with Najjar Musawwir, coordinator of the Fareedah Arts and Crafts Program for children, and Robert Paulson, director of the visiting artists program, the three visiting artists made a stop at the Eurma Hayes Center to present an art demonstration to the children.

Mr. Imagination, a native of Chicago, said that he has the ability to "see things within other things." From this ability, he produces art by using various recycled material, including bottle caps, sandstone blocks and old paintbrushes.

The name Mr. Imagination came to him in 1978 after he was robbed at gun point and shot.

The bullet wound put him in a coma for several weeks. During his state of unconsciousness, Mr. Imagination saw himself as an Egyptian pharaoh and several African kings.

Upon waking from his coma with these visions intact, he took on the identity of Mr. Imagination. Many of his works are on display at the University Museum. The works include Egyptian masks made of sandstone.

When Mr. Imagination presented himself to the children at the Eurma Hayes Center he was dressed in a matching jacket, hat, tie and cummerbund made out of bottle caps.

The children began to touch Mr. Imagination's jacket and ask him questions like, "Did you really do this?"

Mr. Imagination answered the children by saying, "Yes. I did. And so an you."

Mr. Imagination brought in blocks of sandstone, wood pieces of various sizes, nails for carving instruments, glue and a huge bag of bottle caps as part of his demonstration.

He began to instruct the children on how they can use absolutely anything to create art.

"I think it is important to let the children see what you can do with waste material," Mr. Imagination said. "I'm here today to show them what they can make with anything around them."

Philpot, also from Chicago, wanted to create the world's prettiest walking cane when he was a kid.

In 1971, Philpot got the urge to go "downtown" in Chicago to visit cane shops on Michigan Avenue.

Later, Philpot became inspired by the movie "The Bible," in which he saw Moses perform miracles with his staff. It was at this moment when Philpot felt that he was "blessed by a higher spirit," which gave him the ability to create art.

About a week later, Philpot was walking through "the projects" and he heard someone or something calling him. He soon realized that a bush was calling his name.

Philpot went back into the projects in the early morning hours to cut down the bush. "I thought everyone would be asleep," he said. But a man shouted out to him and sent Philpot running for his life with the bush under his arm.

From that bush, Philpot created his first staff. "It took me a year to do, but it still remains the best one I have ever done," he said. "I am still trying to create a staff as magnificent as the first."

The children were very excited to see Philpot's staff. It was decorated with costume jewels and other types of baubles, which the children wanted to touch and hold.

"I want the children to learn that if you have a feeling or desire, then go on that," Philpot said.

Sparrow, who was born in West Africa, said the spirit of God controls his hands. His hands, in turn, create his artwork.

"I want to teach the children what the spirit brings out in me," Sparrow said. "If the children try to do what they feel or think, they lose what would be brought to them by the spirit."

Sparrow got the inspiration to create art at age seven when his family moved to North Carolina.

"I sat atop a beautiful hill and in my hand I had a stick with which I began doodling," Sparrow said. "I drew a marvelous picture of a house and two people."

Later, Sparrow found a piece of cardboard and drew another picture on it with a pencil. "I didn't know what I was doing," he said. "The spirit helped me to create."

To Sparrow's surprise, a man bought his picture for $25.

Together, the three artists helped to inspire art within the minds of the children at the Eurma Hayes Center.

Mark Crymes, 6, of St. Louis, worked on a sandstone creation. "I liked all of the artists and I really like art," he said.

Maria Gails, 6, of Lake Heights, and her friend Kajuana Moore, 6, of Carbondale, thought that Mr. Imagination was the best. They also thought M.C. Hammer was great too, even though he wasn't present at the art demonstration.

"We had lots of fun," they exclaimed, both working hard on their sandstone carvings.

Maria's brother Anton, 6, said that Philpot's decorative staff was his favorite part of the demonstration.

Maryland officials cool flag flap

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — University of Maryland officials Tuesday denied reports they are discouraging students from displaying flags and banners expressing support for the Persian Gulf war and said the issue was "blown out of proportion."

The Diamondback, the campus newspaper, reported Monday that Director of Residence Life Pat Mielke asked students not to display flags and banners because of concern that expressions about the war could lead to conflicts. "This is a time when tempers are running short," Mielke told the paper. "We are making a judgment on how not to offend students."

And Jan Davidson, Mielke's assistant, told The Washington Post that school officials were concerned that if they did not crack down on war-related banners and flags while public opinion about U.S. military involvement is fairly unified, they could later find themselves in the position of settling disputes about which displays are acceptable and which are offensive.

"We don't want to get drawn into a situation where we are making decisions based on content," Davidson said. "So we are appealing to individuals who wish to hang a banner to recognize that this is a very diverse community, and what may be innocent to one person may be insulting to another."

Police Blotter

Andrew K. Russell, 20, was arrested and charged with aggravated battery at 3:04 a.m. Saturday, Carbondale Police said. David S. Cisketti, 21, was found beaten and unconscious in Room 27 at the Bel-Aire Motel, 905 E. Main St., police said. Russell was taken to Jackson County Jail and Cisketti was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, police said. The incident occurred while the men were attending a convention with the Golconda Job Core. Others from the group were arrested for underage drinking and released on bond.

Todd C. Probst, 19, of Teutopolis, was arrested and charged with DUI and illegal transportation of alcohol at 12:49 a.m. Sunday, SIUC Police said. Passenger Keberca A. Jenkins, 19, of Springfield, also was arrested and charged with illegal transportation of alcohol, police said. The arresting officer reported Probst's vehicle was drifting from side the side in the road. Probst later failed a field sobriety test. A court date is set for Feb. 20.

Student groups to debate how high for health fee

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

SIUC students will pay a higher health fee next semester, but the amount is still being debated.

Health Service has requested a $6 increase to the $71 Student Health Fee for fall and spring semester and a $3.50 increase to the $45 fee for each summer session, effective in summer 1991.

Sam McVay, director of Health Service, said the increase is needed to offset rising costs of medical supplies, an anticipated 7-percent salary increase for staff and a projected 4.3-percent drop in enrollment in the fall semester.

The three costs will create a $243,000 deficit in the Health Service budget by June 1992, McVay said. The proposed $6 fee increase would generate $240,000.

At its Jan. 25 meeting, the Student Advisory Board recommended to pay for the deficit with a $2 increase to the Student Health fee, a $2.50 increase to the $5 walk-in fee at Health Service and an increase in the cost of over-the-counter products at the student pharmacy from 67 percent to 85 percent of the retail price.

Brad Cole, board member and Undergraduate Student Government chief of staff, said he supported the latter proposal because of the smaller fee increase.

Cole said the board's proposal will target students who use Health Service instead of all students.

McVay will present the proposed fee increase to the Graduate and Professional Student Council tonight. Ron Smith, GPSC vice president for graduate school affairs, said he is not sure if GPSC will take action on the proposal.

Smith said he needs more information before he can make up his mind, but he is opposed to an increase in the walk-in fee at Health Service because it could affect whether students go there.

Lawrence Juhlin, associate vice president for student affairs, said he is not convinced the Student Health Advisory Board's plan will generate the money needed.

Juhlin said he prefers to have all students pay a $6 fee rather than to have students pay more at the door. He said he feels a front-door fee is justified, but wonders at what point the fee will keep students away.

"I don't think we want to discourage people from going to Health Service if they want to," he said.

Juhlin said if the $6 fee increase is enacted, health coverage will cost $34.23 a month for students.

Prof receives alumnus award

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

George Hussey, SIUC professor of music, has been chosen to receive the Outstanding Alumnus Award Saturday from his alma mater.

Hussey, who leaves Thursday for the Conservatory of Music at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio, said he was touring Japan when he was notified about the award.

"For some reason they couldn't locate me. But I got (the announcement) in the mail," Hussey said.

Melvin Hakola, chairman of the Baldwin-Wallace Voice Department, said the award selection process is very intensive.

The school keeps lists of its graduates, he said. An elected board reviews candidates' portfolios and finalists are nominated for the awards.

Hussey's name and achievement will be engraved on a nameplate that will hang in the music department's main hall, Hakola said.

Hakola, who will present the award, has served on the review board for 20 years.

"The person has had to make some significant contribution of achievement (in music)," Hakola said. "George belongs there (with his name on the wall). He is an outstanding performer and very deserving of this award."

Hussey graduated from Baldwin-Wallace in 1951 with a bachelor's degree in music education.

He played the oboe with several symphonies, including the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and toured around the world with various other groups.

Robert Roubos, director of the School of Music, said Hussey has remained an active member of the SIUC faculty.

"Not only has he been a very strong contributor in (the field of) woodwinds, but in music theory and general studies as well," Roubos said.

Hussey, who began teaching at SIUC in 1963, has represented SIUC's School of Music internationally, Roubos said.

"He was the first faculty member to organize and teach music at the Nakajo campus in Japan," he said.

He was one of the founding members of the New American Woodwind Quintet, a SIUC music faculty group that has performed around the world.

Roubos said Baldwin-Wallace has a reputation for being one of the top music schools in the country.

"The honor is a very great one for him and the School of Music," Roubos said.

Hussey has fond memories of Baldwin-Wallace and credits his teachers for his education.

George Hussey

In addition to receiving the award, Hussey will give an instructional lab for oboe students at Baldwin-Wallace.

Appeals court decides against random drug testing of jockeys

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal appeals court has struck down an Illinois Racing Board rule requiring random drug testing of jockeys and other racing personnel, the American Civil Liberties Union said Tuesday.

The ruling, dated Monday and delivered to the parties Tuesday, held the rule violated Fourth Amendment guarantees against unreasonable search and seizure, ACLU attorney Alan Chen said Tuesday.

An appeals court in New Jersey earlier upheld a similar rule, Chen said, leaving the procedure legal in one jurisdiction and illegal in others.

The Chicago court, in a 2-1 ruling, held the board failed to prove that state laws against illegal drug use cannot be relied upon to keep racing clean.

"A good cause and a practical solution is not enough to make a constitutionally illegal search legal," the ruling said.

The majority opinion said there are "good and valid reasons to strive to keep drugs out of horse racing. But, as important as that is, that cannot be accomplished by disregarding the Constitution."

The IRB in early 1988 ordered random drug testing for jockeys, harness drivers, starters, assistant starters, outriders and parade marshals at the state's race tracks. U.S. District Judge Milton Shadur entered an injunction Aug. 25, 1989, prohibiting enforcement of the rule. The appeals court ruling upheld that order.

IRB attorney Jim East said the board received the ruling at its regular meeting Tuesday and heard an assistant attorney general explain the options available.

He said the staff will poll board members by telephone within the next two weeks to get a decision whether to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

East said the Illinois decision may have been made on the basis of more recent precedent than the New Jersey ruling. He said board members will take that into consideration in deciding whether to appeal.

New England to install grass field

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots will replace their artificial turf field at Foxboro Stadium with a natural grass field that will include a heating system, the team announced Tuesday.

Work will begin within the next two weeks. The Patriots had played on artificial turf since 1984.

The soil-heating system will consist of coated heating cables spaced six inches apart at 10 inches below the surface. This will help the footing during December and January.

Beneath the new grass will be a 10-inch top layer of coarse sand and gravel. The next layer will be four inches of pea-sized gravel. Perforated drainage pipes will be underneath this layer for the purpose of draining off excess water into a storm sewer system.

Patriots coach Dick MacPherson said, "This switch to grass will help continue the progress of this organization. It is something that our players and the rest of the players in the NFL will be happy to hear."

Andy Wasynczuk, chief operating officer of Foxboro Stadium Associates, said the change to grass will help the stadium's bid to host some of the 1994 World Cup soccer games.

Michael Chang upset in Milan tennis

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Carl Uwe Steeb pulled off the first upset of the $600,000 Muratti Time ATP tournament Tuesday night, ousting Michael Chang 6-1, 7-5.

"I needed a victory like this one," said Steeb, ranked No. 73 in the world. "I've been waiting for it since last year."

In another late-night match in the first European men's tournament since the Gulf war began, Italian wild-card entry Cristiano Caratti eliminated Peter Lundgren of Sweden 7-6 (7-4), 6-2.

Chang, the No. 4 seed, couldn't find his rhythm, losing seven straight games in the first and second sets. Steeb led 1-0 in the second set before Chang held serve to even the set.

Chang broke in the fifth game to lead 3-2, but three games later the Californian lost serve. Steeb, who sat out Germany's Davis Cup victory last weekend over Italy, then also dropped serve.

But the German broke again to tie it 5-5 and fired a running backhand Chang couldn't reach to end the 1 hour, 23 minute match.

In other opening-round play at the new Forum facility, No. 3 Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union and No. 8 compatriot Alexander Volkov advanced against qualifiers.

Chesnokov stopped Italy's Sebastian Sorensini 6-3, 6-3, but Volkov needed three sets before overcoming Cedric Pioline of France 6-4, 6-7 (4-7), 6-4.

Swedish veteran Anders Jarryd ended the hopes of yet another qualifier, Roberto Raffa of Italy, with a brief 6-0, 6-1 decision to gain a second-round meeting with Switzerland's Jakob Hlasek, the No. 5 seed.

Czechoslovakia's Karel Novacek advanced 6-4, 6-2 at the expense of Ronald Agoner, running his career mark over the Haitian to 2-0.

Chang's tournament earnings this year total less than $5,000. "It's pretty disappointing to train well and then not be able to put it together in the match," he said. "I worked on my strength a lot in the off season (after the Grand Slam Cup in mid-December).

rebounds a game, leading SIUC in each category.

In a 1-point overtime loss to Northern Illinois, Rakers notched a season-high 33 points and grabbed 15 rebounds.

She leads the Gateway in rebounding and blocks and is No. 3 in field goal (.547) and free throw (.862) percentage. In the scoring department she is No. 4 in the conference.

Despite leading the Salukis and the Gateway in many statistical categories, Rakers numbers are down a little from a year ago. But not because of a lack of effort. Rakers has been double and triple-teamed by many teams and has learned to dish the ball off to the open players, Scott said.

"She's a great passer," Scott said. "She passes the ball as well as any 6-foot-3 player that I've ever seen."

Rakers also has not seen as much playing time this year because of the way the Salukis have handily beaten many of their opponents.

Street and Smith magazine recognized Rakers, naming her to its preseason honorable mention All-American team. Rakers still has a chance to be named an All-American even though her statistics aren't as high as in the past, but that isn't all that important to her.

"I can honestly say I don't worry about stuff like that," Rakers said. "Of course making the Top 10 All-Americans would be great. I'd be ecstatic. But that has to go along with my team goals. As long as we do well, I think my honors will come along."

Rakers is unsure what she plans to do after graduation, but continuing to play basketball is something she is interested in. Eventually she plans to fall back on her degree in elementary education and teach somewhere between third and sixth grade.

"We played a very good basketball game against them here," Herrin said. "It was one of our most intense games of the year. We were really confident going into their first win on an opponent's

The 2-point difference in the game at the Arena could be combated by the fans that will fill Hammons Student Center. The Bears are averaging 8,183 fans for their home contests in an arena that only holds 8,858.

"It's a tough place to play," Herrin said. They (Southwest fans) know the game of basketball and they do a tremendous job and that's helped us a lot. I think we were a lot more confident going into Southwest."

floor. SIUC's bench contributed 25 points against the Redbirds and should be called upon again tonight to lend a hand against Southwest.

"The coaches have let me play a lot more in the last few games and that's given me a lot of confidence," said freshman guard Chris Lowery, who came off the bench to score 8 points against ISU. "We got our first road win and that's helped us a lot. I think we were a lot more confident going into Southwest."

Holyfield says soldiers deserve special treatment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield Tuesday said the U.S. soldiers who fight for a lot less money and face far more danger than he does should be compensated when they return from the war in the Persian Gulf.

Holyfield said fighting for the heavyweight title of the world is dwarfed by the battle waged in the Persian Gulf.

"The only thing you can ever do is support the soldiers," Holyfield said at a U.S. Olympic Committee news conference. "I'm the champion, but these are the people who fight to give you the right to fight for the championship in the ring.

"When they come back, they should do something special for them: increase their salary, give them special benefits and not cut their veterans' disability."

Holyfield is well paid for his battles. He earned $8 million when he won the heavyweight title by knocking out James 'Buster' Douglas last October, and will be paid more than $20 million for his April 19 defense against 44-year-old George Foreman.

But he realizes fighting with padded gloves is child's play compared to the missiles and heavy artillery used in war.

"My sport is entertainment — these people are putting their lives on the line. They're the real champions of the world," he said.

"Look at what happened after Vietnam, the soldiers came back and had no jobs. These people are heroes, we have to give them special treatment."

Holyfield says the special treatment that goes with his title has some drawbacks. For instance, he would rather be training instead of promoting his upcoming bout with a 10-city tour that ends Friday in Washington. While Foreman enjoys the promotional end of the sport, Holyfield has a more business-like attitude.

"It's a new experience for me," Holyfield said. "It's the first time ever on a promotional tour. The only good thing is George Foreman is doing the same thing — and he's older and heavier than me.

"I'm getting more attention, and that takes me away from what I have to do. I'm looking forward to getting back and spending eight weeks (training) in Houston."

Holyfield has also taken time to help promote other events, like the 1996 Summer Olympics in his hometown of Atlanta. He attended Tuesday's news conference to announce Anheuser-Busch's $5 million sponsorship of the U.S. Olympic team. Holyfield benefited from a jobs program run by Anheuser-Busch while training for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, where he settled for a bronze medal after a controversial disqualification.

"Without that program, I wouldn't have had the opportunity to make the Olympic team," Holyfield remembered Tuesday.

Olympic planners eye Gulf War

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the Olympics only a year away, the U.S. Olympic Committee is keeping a close eye on the Persian Gulf war and tightening security for its athletes abroad.

USOC executives say they have been in regular contact with the State Department and the FBI concerning international travel since the United States and its allies attacked Iraq last month.

Both Olympics are scheduled for Europe in 1992 — the Winter Games in Albertville, France, next February, with the Summer Games in Barcelona, Spain, to follow that July.

The USOC, the organizing body for the Olympics in the United States, has suggested its athletes keep a low profile while competing overseas in events leading to the Games. They are advised to act discreetly, especially in airports, and avoid traveling in packs with USA insignias emblazoned on their clothing.

Representatives for the governing bodies of individual sports are to check in with U.S. consulates when their teams arrive at their destinations. The governing bodies are responsible for deciding whether it is safe to compete at a given site.

However, the USOC says apart from these steps it has not made significant changes in planning for the Olympics.

"Nothings been affected," Dr. Harvey Schiller, executive director of the USOC, said Tuesday after a news conference to announce Anheuser-Busch's Olympic sponsorship.

Since the outbreak of war, U.S.

wrestling, speed skating and soccer teams have changed their schedules. The American ski team in Europe temporarily left the World Cup circuit.

Likewise, the International Olympic Committee has cut back its meetings and travel since fighting began.

Tennis star John McEnroe, citing fears of terrorism, dropped out of this week's tournament in Milan, Italy, the first such event in Europe since the war. Three Americans are in the 32-man field, one of them Aaron Krickstein.

"It's my job," he said. "I won't stop flying or anything like that. The war is important, but there's not anything I can do about it. If McEnroe doesn't feel safe here, then there's nothing forcing him to come. It's his choice."

Browns name new coach

BEREA, Ohio (UPI) — Bill Belichick, who directed a New York defense that held two of the NFL's most explosive offenses in check as the Giants won their second Super Bowl in five years, Tuesday was named as the 10th coach in the history of the Cleveland Browns.

Belichick, 38, won the job over Los Angeles Raiders quarterback coach Mike White, Kansas City defensive coordinator Bill Cowher, and fired Los Angeles Rams defensive coordinator Fritz Shurmur.

As defensive coordinator for the Giants since 1983, Belichick has consistently had New York among the league leaders in defense.

In this year's playoffs, the Giants held San Francisco to 13 points in the NFC Championship game and limited Buffalo to 19 points in the Super Bowl.

Belichick replaces Jim Shofner, who was hired on an interim basis Nov. 5 after Bud Carson was fired. Owner Art Modell, who went against his own opinion in hiring Carson on the recommendation of executive vice president for football operations Ernie Accorsi, made the decision to hire Belichick on his own.

Modell had wanted to hire Shurmur to replace Marty Schottenheimer in 1989.

In coming to the Browns, Belichick takes over a club in dire need of a defensive realignment. The Browns had made the playoffs five straight years and played in three of the last four AFC Championship games prior to 1990, but the club slumped badly last year and struggled home with a 3-13 record.

Kings' kings to buy franchise

TORONTO (UPI) — In a move some suspect is part of a plan to land an NFL franchise for Canada, Los Angeles Kings superstar Wayne Gretzky and owner Bruce McNall say they'll buy the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

However, the pair insist they have no designs on an NFL franchise and intend to apply McNall's "Midas touch" and Gretzky's local marketing impact to boost the sagging fortunes of both the Argos and the CFL.

"Bo (Jackson) plays two sports. I'll play one sport and be an owner in one," said Gretzky, who already owns a junior hockey team in Quebec.

McNall said an agreement in principle was worked out Monday to buy the team for over $5 million, from owner Harry Ornest.

"We're pretty much satisfied on all the major issues. I'm optimistic we should be able to close the deal within two weeks," said McNall.

As for NFL ambitions, McNall said he has "no interest in owning an NFL team. They don't allow cross-ownership and I'm not going to sell the Kings."

Gretzky will hold a 20 percent interest in the team, and McNall said actor John Candy is also expected to eventually own a similar amount.

The sale, when completed, will also need the approval of CFL owners.

There has been speculation that what sparked interest in the Argos by Gretzky and McNall, and Ornest before them, is a clause in the lease between the team and the SkyDome.

The contract reportedly gives the team's owners football rights at the retractable roof facility for 18 additional months in the event of the demise of the CFL. There is disagreement among the principal parties as to whether those rights are held by Carling O'Keefe brewery, the team's previous owners, or Ornest, who would transfer them to Gretzky and McNall.

As did Ornest before them, McNall and Gretzky have denied having NFL ambitions and insist their intent is to operate the Toronto Argonauts as a successful sports franchise both on and off the field.
