Ministerial Association Hears Speech

Keene Opens Carbondale Mayor Campaign Charging Deliberate Stymie of Manager Plan

Carbondale businessman David Keene, 51, opened his campaign for mayor Thursday night with a speech in support of the council-city manager system to the Carbondale Ministerial Association.

Keene told the group that incumbent Mayor D. Blaney Miller "has been doing everything possible to render ineffective" the council-manager system.

Keene charged that Miller has opposed the system since the question of installing it in Carbondale arose. The people of Carbondale voted for it and it should be supported, Keene said.

Keene is president of Keene United Van Lines of Carbondale, pledged to the ministers that all applications for liquor licenses and all problems concerning the licenses will be discussed before a meeting of the City Council if he is elected. The mayor is automatically liquor commissioner in Carbondale.

University School Dismissed After Prankster's Bomb Scare

Students and teachers at the University School were given the afternoon off Friday when the Carbondale Fire Department received a call that a bomb had been placed in the school.

The call was received at 12:30 p.m. and school officials evacuated the building for the remainder of the afternoon.

Members of the Carbondale Fire Department, City police and SIU security force searched the school, but found no bomb.

Roger Robinson, University School principal, said Fire Department officials stated the voice on the phone reporting the bomb sounded like that of a young girl. Robinson regarded the call as a prank.

The principal said the school had received two similar scares last year, and both times the caller gave the room in which the bomb was purportedly placed.

Robinson said classes were not dismissed for those two previous calls, but students were let out Friday because no room numbers were given and an extensive search was necessary.

Robinson said a device will be added to the school switchboard that will allow officials to trace calls of a similar nature and enable them to catch the culprits.

The school will still be credited with a full day of classes Friday, because the students were released after enough clock-hours of classes had been held. Consequently, the half day missed would not affect the minimum number of school days required, Robinson said.

The principal said the evacuation was orderly, and all of the students were out of the building within 10 minutes after the alarm.

Vietnamese Plan Indefinite Fight

Vietnam premier Phan Van Dong made two important points in his interview with New York Times correspondent Harrison Salisbury, points the Johnson administration blindly seems to overlook.

The first is that the Vietnamese intend to fight on indefinitely if this is necessary to secure their independence. Premier Dong recalled the three times his people had driven the Mongols out of their country and he asked how many times the Pentagon might want to fight. The current struggle has been carried on by the Vietnamese on a full-time basis for more than two decades and, before that, they resisted a succession of other colonizers.

The second point is that North Vietnam is fully independent and waging its war with the U.S. on its own terms, not as the puppet of Red China or Russia. Premier Dong said that there have been offers of "volunteers," presumably Red Chinese, but that his government had not yet decided to receive them. When North Vietnam does take them, he indicated it would be strictly on North Vietnam's own terms.

It is not easy to accept the word of an enemy official and doubtless there will be many eager to discount Premier Dong's views. But on these two points there is corroboration evidence, from history and from other sources.

History shows that the Vietnamese have fought through the centuries for their independence. The best available information indicates that North Vietnam has refused to admit Red Chinese "volunteers" to fight the U.S. for fear they might not leave.

If this is so, some credence must be given Premier Dong's views. And if the Vietnamese intend to fight indefinitely and if they are independent, shouldn't there be some reconsideration of present American policy? —Detroit Free Press.

After Years of Running to Supermarkets, How Could Housewives Get Boycott Nerve?

So far as we know, there haven't been in this part of the country, any efforts by housewives to boycott chain groceries in protest of high food prices.

How could they have the nerve to?

After all, what made the chain stores grow to such proportions that they can control the price of beef and other ating profits were the lowest in ten years. If you think food chain profits are big, they say, buy some stock.

But the people who have been studying food marketing say that some of the big chains — such as Safeway — have been making high profits.

The Federal Trade Commission reports a different picture. FTC says that leading food chains in 1965 earned 12.1 per cent after taxes, the same as leading food manufacturers.

Drew Pearson says he tried to contact the head of the National Association of Food Chains, to see if there is an explanation for the big difference in reported profits. But the chairman was never available, so Pearson concluded the FTC report must be correct.

And another thing that complicates the picture for McLean countians: Higher food prices — in part — reflect the higher prices for beef, pork, soybeans and corn. We may not like the higher food prices, but we like the higher farm product prices.

But we — and the city customers — might as well make up our minds that higher food

Gov. Kerner's Proposals Give Assembly Big Job

In his "state of the State" message yesterday, Gov. Kerner laid before the 75th general assembly the most sweeping set of governmental reforms within memory, plus proposals for determined state action on education and civil rights problems. That leaves the new assembly with a hefty agenda. With the Democratic governor's program before it plus the wide-ranging lineup of bills sponsored by the Senate's Republican leadership, this legislature has a chance to do the most constructive job for the state that any general assembly has done.

The governor called for a constitutional convention to redraw the 1870 state constitution. Among other changes it would make the offices of attorney general, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, and state superintendent of public instruction appointive rather than elective offices.

A constitutional convention is undoubtedly needed. This seems to be the only way Illinois will ever get its absurdly creaky and outmoded constitution (including its impossible revenue article) brought up to date.

Kerner's call for an immediate constitutional amendment providing for annual instead of biennial sessions has many arguments in its favor. There is one serious objection to it that we hope can be solved: Many capable legislators could not afford to take months off from their jobs each year. One result of having annual sessions might be to force out of the legislature all but those whose businesses or law firms were large enough to spare them.

Kerner also repeated his call for raising the compulsory school attendance age from 16 to 18 — to our mind a pointless and damaging measure that would worsen a grave discipline problem and help turn schools into detention centers.

Negro Clergy Seem to Think Powell Framed

Angry Negro ministers in New York City have been getting headlines with their protests at what they consider the persecution of Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem congressman and minister.

Mr. Powell was the object of a congressional investigation in the closing of the 89th Congress. He has long been in contempt of a New York court. He refuses to pay more than a token fraction of the judgment assessed against him for slandering a Negro woman in a broadcast interview. His management of the money of the House Education Committee, of which he is chairman, has been reckless if not criminal.

All of this is well publicized information. The House investigation opened up some of it to closer inspection. Mr. Powell, despite his generally capable management of bills before the Education Committee, is revealed to be, in the judgment of some of his fellow congressmen, unfit to sit in the Congress of the United States.

foods? They couldn't have done it if housewives hadn't rushed to buy everything they could from the chain stores. McLean shoppers have helped the Owensboro chain stores grow. After running to those stores all these years, they could hardly have the nerve to boycott them now.

However, the housewives' protests across the country may have done a little good. They have brought some national attention to the problems of food marketing — and they definitely need some attention. Of course, the food chains say they are making a measly little old profit of only 1.3 cents per dollar of sales. In 1965, they say, net oper-

Language Students to Study in Russia

By Joseph R. Kupeck

Students of the Russian language will spend more than 10 weeks in the Soviet Union and East European countries next summer.

The tour, from June 22 to Sept. 4, will include a four-week study of Russian at Moscow State University, and a two-week study in Czechoslovakia.

A diploma will be presented to each student by Moscow University for completion of the course there. The program will include seminar sessions with leading personalities in government, education, the arts, and science. SIU credit will be given upon successful completion of the total program.

Moscow University is known officially as the Mikhail V. Lomonosov State University. Lomonosov was Russia's first great scientist who founded the Academy of Sciences in the early 18th century. The University is known as the oldest and largest higher education in the Soviet Union.

Moscow State University is one of the leading scientific, educational, and research institutions in the world today. It is far more comparable with an Illinois Institute of Technology than with a University of Chicago, or Cambridge. In addition to being financed from the state educational budget, it receives money from many organizations for which it conducts experiments on contract.

Old Moscow University also was a scientific center, but its main contribution to pre-revolutionary Russia was the literary, social, political, and economic movements that it generated.

It was students of the old university's philosophy and history professors who led the uprising against czarism in December, 1825. These young aristocrats, known as the "Decembrists," were executed or sent into exile by Czar Nicholas, who put down the rebellion. He began a long period of reaction against the revolutionary ideas from the west, but the university continued to be the breeding ground of ideas outside the sciences.

Here originated the "Westernizers," who said that Russia's salvation lay in adopting the ways of the west, and the "Slavophiles," who glorified Russia's past and said that it had a holy mission in Europe. The controversy continued until the Bolshevik revolution of 1917.

Many of the writers who made the last century the golden age of Russian literature were educated at the university. They included Fonvizin, Griboyedov, Lermontov, Goncharov, Turgenyev, Ostrovskii and others.

The university's gradual switch from the humanities to the sciences is symbolized by Anton Chekhov, the short-story writer and playwright of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He studied natural science at the university.

The study of the humanities was increasingly discouraged. Thousands of students were expelled for strikes in 1902 and 1905 to 1907 demanding implementation of political and economic ideas. Many of the university's leading professors quit in protest against the czarist minister of education's repression of the teaching and expression of new ideas in the fields of the humanities.

Ironically, most of those who resigned had been creating the basis for modern Russian science in "safe" fields, and many of them went on to build the new Moscow University under the Soviet regime.

The original university opened its doors in the building that housed Czarina Elizabeth's pharmacy on Red Square, a site now occupied by the Lenin Historical Museum. It had three departments—philosophy, medicine and law—which in 1793 were moved across to Manezh Square, which adjoins Red Square on the north.

At the time of the Bolshevik revolution the white and yellow, marble and stucco building on Manezh contained four departments—physics and mathematics, medicine, law and history, and philology.

After the revolution the new university was dedicated to solving the problems of Soviet agriculture, industry, transportation, and supply of the army and population.

Later, departments of philosophy, law, economics, philology, and journalism were added along with an institute of oriental languages. These remain in the center of the city.

In 1953 the science departments were moved to the 490-acre university city on Lenin Hills which is dominated by an imposing 32-story structure done in "Russo-modern" architecture, so well-known around the world.

The only nonscientific establishments on the hills are a department that has prepared more than 1,500 foreign students to enter the university, studies of the Russian language for foreign students and a refresher institute for college teachers.

The University's 4,000 faculty members are among the best paid Soviet citizens. The beginning salary for the lowest faculty position is about $165 a month and the highest is about $600 a month. University students pay no tuition or fees for teaching facilities. As long as they pass course examinations they are paid $39 to $44 a month during the five years it takes to graduate from the University.

Only about one-tenth of the 35,000 students at the university study humanities in the old building in the center of town. More than 10,000 study in night courses or through correspondence.

The Moscow University is going to open soon a new building to accommodate 5,000 full-time students in philosophy, law, economics, and philology and history. Only the department of journalism and the institute of oriental languages will remain in the old building.

The attempt to breathe new life into humanities studies through construction will supplement the freer atmosphere in the teaching of those subjects since the death of Stalin.

For Truth in Lending

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Americans who borrow money or buy on credit should welcome the news that Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin will introduce a truth-in-lending bill this month, carrying on the fight waged in the last six Congresses by Senator Paul Douglas before his defeat in the November elections.

Mr. Proxmire's bill, like those proposed by Mr. Douglas, would require money lenders and extenders of credit to tell consumers the actual cost of their debt. With Mr. Douglas's approval, the Wisconsin Senator has made some modifications in the hope that the measure will be less distasteful to the powerful interests in the lending business that have successfully opposed it in the past. For example, the Proxmire bill requires lenders to state the "approximate annual rate" of interest instead of the "true annual rate," as in the Douglas bill.

Such changes do not thwart the purpose of the legislation, which is simply to insure that the consumer knows fully what his debt is going to cost him. At the same time, the bill goes considerably beyond the inadequate regulations being considered by the Federal Trade Commission. The proposed regulations would apply to only 10 per cent of the total consumer debt now outstanding.

Senator Douglas's solitary battle to force a measure of honesty on unscrupulous elements in the lending field was too closely identified with the American concept of fair play to be allowed to die with his departure from the Senate. Mr. Proxmire is to be commended for his willingness to continue the fight.

Wall Street Walkway Gets Official Okay

Mill Street from Oakland to University Avenues was opened permanently as a four-lane road Thursday afternoon.

Carbondale City Manager William J. Norman said concrete work on the street is sufficiently complete to open it to four lanes of traffic. Two lanes of the street were opened near the end of fall term.

Norman said plans are being made for construction of a walkway on Wall Street. He said engineers have been authorized to begin planning the walk and Central Illinois Public Service Co. has been asked to investigate means of increasing lighting on the street.

Norman said city officials presently are conferring with SIU administrators to determine exact location of the walk, the building of which has been approved by the Carbondale City Council.

Norman said he hopes construction can start in a few weeks.

Glee Club Sets Annual Concert

The 62 member SIU Glee Club will present its annual concert at 8 p.m. Jan. 21 in Shryock Auditorium.

The concert will also be presented at 8 p.m. Jan. 14 in Shryock as part of "Harmony Weekend" at SIU.

The group, under the direction of Robert W. Kingsbury, University director of choirs, will present classical selections for the first half of its program. The basis will be Randall Thompson's "Testament of Freedom," a collection from the writings of Thomas Jefferson, set to music.

A Schubert choral work will also be sung.

The second half of the concert, the Glee Club's fourth annual, will offer lighter music. One of the featured numbers will be a medley, "Sweetheart Tree," sung by Vance Faulkerson, glee club president, and Sue Webb.

Other selections of the second half will be "Alabama Bound," "Back to Donegal," and "Moon River."

Recordings of live performances of the Glee Club have been made during the past four years, and these

Senators Express Views Concerning End of War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Friday he believes "the opening has been enlarged" for possible negotiations to end the war in Vietnam.

But Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said in a separate interview there have been "no hard evidence and no firm clues" that Hanoi wants to negotiate.

Mansfield said he believes the "great degree of flexibility," President Johnson gave U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant in seeking peace negotiations may already be paying off.

But Dirksen said, "Nothing has come from that quarter that I can see to raise any new hopes."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., just back from a Southeast Asian trip, told a news conference he is more pessimistic about military prospects in Vietnam than he was a year ago.

As a result, he added, he is "more favorably inclined toward political settlement," than he was at that time. He explained that, "It looks to me like it's going to be a long, drawn-out effort—and it's very expensive."

These varying senatorial assessments came while the State Department was releasing a letter by Secretary Dean Rusk expressing U.S. willingness to meet Hanoi envoys—"either in public or in secret"—to seek a peaceful settlement.

Mansfield disclosed that after a November speech in which he urged U.N. Security Council action on Vietnam, Johnson commissioned him to talk personally with the secretary-general and U.N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg.

As an outgrowth of these conversations, Mansfield expressed the belief that "there is still the possibility of having the matter brought before the Security Council."

The Democratic leader made public a letter from Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., announcing that Rusk has agreed to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a closed session Jan. 16 and to testify publicly Jan. 23. These hearings are expected to be a sweeping and controversial review of U.S. foreign policies.

Mansfield said the question of whether there should be a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam—even without a signal from Hanoi of willingness to talk—is certain to come before the committee.

Defender Seeks Location Change For Speck Trial

CHICAGO (AP)—Gerald W. Getty, defense attorney for Richard Speck, 25, charged with the murder of eight student nurses, Friday said he will seek a change of location for Speck's trial scheduled to begin in Peoria Feb. 6.

Getty, Cook County public defender, said he would base his motion for change on unfair, pre-trial publicity in the Peoria area.

The trial was shifted to Peoria from Chicago Dec. 19 after Getty requested a change of venue for the same reason.

Getty Thursday filed a motion for a substitution of judges after Judge Herbert C. Paschen of Circuit Court who presided over pre-trial hearings in Chicago, was named by the Illinois Supreme Court to hear the Peoria trial.

Getty claimed Paschen and Peoria Circuit Judge John F. Richards were prejudiced against Speck.

Underground Bomb Test Report Given

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon reported Friday an experiment last month has demonstrated the measurable impact of an underground nuclear test can be reduced more than 100 times by setting it off inside a huge underground cavity.

The implication is that the Soviet Union or any other nuclear power could successfully hide a test shot—or cheat on a test treaty—by setting it off deep inside an underground cavity.

The demonstration, known as Project Sterling, involved the detonation of a nuclear device equivalent to 350 tons of TNT in a salt cavern 2,700 feet underground last Dec. 3 at Hattiesburg, Miss.

The Pentagon said that its highly sensitive seismograph detected signals from the blast at 68.3 miles from the detonation site and stations 130 miles away did not even record the event.

Officials said more tests and research into aspects of muffling are necessary.

Colleges Open Following First Day of Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—The eight public junior colleges in Chicago remained open Friday in the face of a strike by instructors, but attendance dropped sharply.

A spokesman for the junior college system said 85 of the 684 teachers crossed picket lines. Only 50 of the pupils, he added, went to classes. Enrollment totals 35,000.

The Chicago Teachers Union—CTU—has set a strike for Monday in the city's 500 public elementary and high schools. It would be the first walkout in history against those schools. The enrollment totals 570,000. The demands of the CTU and those of Local 1600, Cook County College Teachers Union, total $53 million from their respective schools for the coming year.

The school boards respond, in essence, that they don't have that kind of money.

The CTU, which says its members number 13,500 of the 23,000 elementary and high school teachers, said it expects 80 per cent of the teachers to stay away from work.

James F. Redmond, Chicago's public school superintendent, said that—if the strike goes on Monday—the schools will operate. He called upon parents to offer aid "in any capacity in which they feel they may be helpful."

Georgia Governorship Ruling Sends Decision to Legislature

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Georgia's Supreme Court ruled 5 to 2 Friday that the legislature has the power and right to choose the next governor, clearing the way for the probable election of Democrat Lester G. Maddox who ran second in unofficial returns.

Maddox, 51, widely known for his segregationist views, is favored over Republican Howard H. Callaway in the heavily Democratic General Assembly which convenes Monday.

The legislature will take up the governor's election Tuesday.

"The decision is in good hands and I am confident of victory," said Maddox, who carried 130 of the 159 counties in the Nov. 8 general election but trailed in popular votes.

Callaway, 39, who gave up a congressional seat to run, said glumly that he had not studied the court decision, "but I think the people of Georgia are always the loser when there is the possibility they might wind up not electing the governor."

The contest, which was Georgia's first two-party election for governor in a century, was thrown into a confusing deadlock when neither nominee got a majority because of write-ins for Ellis G. Arnall, a former governor.

Complete unofficial returns gave Callaway 451,042, Maddox 448,598 and Arnall 57,832 write-ins.

The state tribunal upheld a 143-year-old provision of the Georgia constitution which says the legislature shall elect a governor from the two top candidates if no person receives a majority.

$2 Billion More Cash Circulating

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis said Friday that the nation's money supply for the two weeks ending Dec. 28 was almost $2 billion higher than the average for the eight preceding weeks.

However, the bank cautioned, "The recent sharp rise in money supply may reflect a quarterly pattern in the seasonally adjusted data."

For the two weeks ending Dec. 28, the bank said the nation's money stock averaged $171 billion in demand deposits and currency held by the public.

"Since late 1964," the bank explained, "money has been relatively high during June, September and December and, to a lesser extent in March."

In the intervening months, the bank said, money has generally grown at slower rates or declined.

"In view of this pattern, some monthly changes may be misleading," the bank said Friday.

The reserve bank also said that at the end of last week $15.7 billion in reserves was available for private demand deposits. The annual rate of change for private demand deposits was down 1.9 per cent compared with the four weeks ending Oct. 5, 1966.

Philippine Bus Mishap Claims 83

MANILA (AP) — Inpossibly the world's worst highway tragedy, two buses loaded with Roman Catholic pilgrims collided Friday and plunged into a deep gorge where they crumpled like accordions.

Rescuers counted the bodies of 83 men, women and children and brought out 60 injured. The Philippine Constabulary said this was believed to account for all on the two buses but the search went on into the night, with U.S. Navy personnel joining the Philippine army.

Many of the injured were in such serious condition that they were not expected to survive.

The scene was a narrow mountain road 45 miles south of Manila and not far from Taal volcano which erupted in 1965. Fifty-seven buses were in a convoy traveling to Ternate, in adjoining Cavite Province, to celebrate the Feast of the Epiphany.

An official reconstruction of the accident said the ninth bus in line went out of control when its brakes failed on the downgrade. It rammed the bus ahead and both careened off into the 300-foot deep ravine bordering the road.

A U.S. Marine major who flew to the scene in a helicopter said the buses were "squashed like accordions."

This may be the worst highway accident on record. The previous record is believed to be the 74 who drowned when a crowded trolley bus plunged into the Nile near Cairo, Nov. 1, 1965. The worst in the United States occurred May 25, 1950, when 34 persons were killed in the collision of a street car and a gasoline truck in Chicago.

LBJ Portrait, A Challenge For Painters

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson may prove to be a tough challenge for portrait painters. But at least there's a sculptured likeness that he is fond of.

The sculptress who did it had to do a bronze caricature first of a "man-on-the-run" before she could persuade Johnson to sit for her.

Then it took Jimilul Mason more than seven years to complete the work—a life-size three-quarter bronze bust that the Johnsons liked so much it has been redone in marble and may wind up in the Vice Presidents' Hall of Fame in the Senate.

Miss Mason, from Alexandria, Va., started on her project in 1959 while Johnson was Senate majority leader. She found her subject too busy to pose. So, from memory, imagination and photographs, she made a little bronze caricature showing Johnson running, holding a telephone to his ear and with legislative bills dangling from his pockets.

That apparently broke the ice. In fact, Johnson liked the tiny figure so much that it now is in the White House family quarters.

U.S. Jets Down MIG Friday To Give 9-0 Record for Week

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP)—U.S. F4C Phantom jets tumbled one North Vietnamese MIG21 to destruction Friday by a secrecy-veiled maneuver 30 miles northwest of Hanoi and shot down another with a missile, Air Force spokesmen announced.

That ran the record for the week to nine MIGs against no American losses, and for the war to 36 to 10.

The U.S. Command, however, reported the loss of two planes elsewhere—a reconnaissance Phantom that crashed from "unknown causes" 100 miles west of Hanoi and a Navy A4 Skyhawk felled by North Vietnamese ground gunners Thursday. The Phantom's two crewmen were rescued. The Skyhawk pilot is missing. The list of planes acknowledged lost over the North rose to 455.

Diplomatic jockeying about war and peace prospects attended the American aerial operations and scattered ground fighting.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in a letter to a North Carolina student leader, made public in Washington, that the United States is ready to meet Hanoi officials "either in public or in secret" for talks to end the war.

Carbondale Jockey Injured by Horse

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A leading jockey at the Fair Grounds here suffered serious facial injuries today when he was kicked by a skittish horse during an early-morning workout.

James F. Young, 26, Carbondale, was taken to Southern Baptist Hospital here in an undetermined condition. He had suffered shock and loss of blood, and it was feared he might lose the sight of his right eye.

Fair Grounds authorities said Young, who had ridden here for six years and has had several winners during the current season, was kicked by a two-year-old colt, Velvet Jim, after the jockey was thrown. Velvet Jim, owned by Al Capaganano, of New Orleans, was being prepared for a racing career.

—North Vietnam's news agency broadcast an "authorized" statement repeating Premier Pham Van Dong's remark to Harrison E. Salisbury of the New York Times in an interview published Wednesday that Hanoi's four-point stand is a basis for settlement. That could be read to mean the points were not preconditions. One calls for American withdrawal from South Vietnam.

TOKYO (AP)—Mao Tse-tung has admitted he was partly to blame for elevating his current antagonists to high party positions, said wall posters appearing in Peking Friday.

If true, this is a remarkable admission from a man once considered infallible and all-powerful in Red China. It comes on the heels of reports this week that he lost two fights in the Central Committee.

The newspaper Yomiuri's Peking correspondent said the party chairman made his statement at a recent party meeting to explain the reason why he had to launch the "great proletarian cultural revolution," as the current purge is called.

The development came amid indications that the purge will be intensified.

Japanese correspondents in Peking said bloody fighting between Mao's teen-age militants, the Red Guards, and workers has increased since the new year and violence may grow in the power struggle between Mao and his foes. They saw this as inevitable because they reported most ranking party officials and workers support Mao's chief enemies, President Liu Shao-chi and Teng Hsiao-ping, Central Committee secretary-general.

Yomiuri's report said Mao admitted erring when he divided the standing committee of the Politburo into a front-line group and a second-line group. In the former were Liu and Teng.

Mao was quoted as saying he had done this "in order to retire to the second group and entrust the future of the party and the nation to the front-liners." When this took place was not explained.

Many front-liners "diverted to decentralism and formed many independent kingdoms," Mao continued. He criticized Liu and Teng as following the "reactionary bourgeois line."

"However," he added, "it was not right to shift all the blame to only front-line group members. I and other party executives were responsible for this situation."

"We are prepared to continue indefinitely until we win," stated Charles Cogen, president of the American Federation of Teachers.

Mayor Richard J. Daley announced his office is available for negotiations.

Florida Governor Finds Blonde More Important Than Business

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Handsome Claude Kirk, who took the oath as governor of Florida and immediately skipped out with a beautiful blonde, has left the capital shaken and puzzled.

"Everybody loves a lover," said one Cabinet member, "but everybody likes a guy who takes care of his business, too."

The 6-foot-2 Kirk, a rich business executive who appealed strongly to women in his campaign, has been surprising people ever since he donned a top hat and tails for his inaugural ceremony Tuesday.

First, without consulting any legislative leaders, he called them into a sudden special session next Monday to rewrite the state constitution.

That night, at the inaugural ball, he came up with a surprise partner from Brazil, Erika Mittfeld, a beauty who likes to wear green bikinis matching her eyes.

Then the pair took off for an undisclosed destination in a private jet plane which landed at Palm Beach, where Kirk has been holding forth in the mansion of millionaire Jock McLean.

The plane flew on to Boston but Kirk and Erika were variously reported to be in seclusion at Palm Beach, to have boarded another plane for Brazil, and to be sailing on a yacht in the Gulf of Mexico.

Most of the criticism in the Capitol centered on Kirk's disappearance in the face of problems rising from his surprise call of a special legislative session.

Reports that Kirk and Miss Mittfeld were heading for a Jan. 30 wedding have continued to grow without denial.

Universities to Receive Grants For Better Graduate Facilities

Twenty-nine universities, none of them in Illinois, will receive help in constructing new or expanded graduate facilities under grants announced by the U.S. Office of Education.

The 32 grants approved (three universities have two grants each) total almost $25 million and will help finance construction and remodeling projects costing more than $113 million. Grants may not exceed one-third of the cost of each facility, based on its planned use for graduate academic purposes.

The grants, provided under Title II of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963, are designed to help public and private universities establish or improve graduate schools and cooperative graduate centers. A major objective is to increase the supply of highly qualified persons needed in industry, government, teaching and research.

Among the facilities provided in these grants are those for advanced study in law, education, mathematics, chemistry, psychology, biology, human sciences, journalism, physics and engineering.

ROTC Test Dates Given

Dates for two tests have been announced by the Air Force ROTC Department.

The officer qualifying test will be given at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 16 and 17 at Lawson Hall, Room 231. This test is required for all persons who want to become Air Force officers; the examination will take about three hours.

The second test is required for prospective pilots and navigators. It will be administered at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 18 and 19, also in Lawson Hall, Room 231.

Each test requires one evening.

According to the department announcement, students who want to take the tests need not preregister. Persons taking the tests are asked to bring their Social Security numbers with them to the examination.

Further information about the test is available from Capt. Robert W. Propst, Wheeler Hall, Room 102.

Mini-Skirt Views Told

By Linda Whyte

Mini-skirts are in, but only on legs which deserve to be seen; they really should be worn only by girls through their early 20's.

The exception would be for an attractive older woman who is going to a place like a discotheque. But most of those interviewed for their reaction to mini-skirts agreed that these short skirts should be worn only to certain places.

Robert J. Galla, a graduate student in the School of Fine Arts, disagreed however. He said, "It is a woman's duty to look beautiful. She should strive for this at all times. If a woman is attractive in a mini-skirt she should be able to wear it anywhere."

Galla, 25, from Huntington, Conn., said he thinks the trend today is toward nudity. He said skirts may go shorter, especially for sports events, and will never go back below the knee.

The November issue of Playboy praised the "micro-skirt"—the Frenchman's answer to the British mini-skirt. While the mini-skirt is worn about six inches above the knee, the micro-skirt is worn 12 inches above the knee. As one male student put it, "If you're a short girl, you're ruined." Galla goes along with Playboy and thinks the micro-skirt is fine.

Donna L. Buboltz, 24, a graduate student majoring in marketing, said the mini-skirt is basically for girls and young women, and should be worn only if the girl has nice legs. "The disadvantage is that they're too short for sitting down," she said.

Miss Buboltz said mini-skirts will probably fade out in a few years, but she thinks skirts will stay above the knee for quite a while. She attributes this to the free and easy-going young society which exists today. She said this type of life demands a style of clothing to accompany it, and when society changes styles will also change.

Jim W. Nardi, 23, a senior majoring in industrial education, likes mini-skirts, but only in the summer. He said he can't stand mini-skirts in the winter worn with textured or patterned stockings.

Buz H. Zeichner, 24, Miami, Fla., thinks mini-skirts are great but also rebels against textured stockings by saying, "If the legs don't show, mini-skirts are worthless."

Rickey Ann Lagemann, 21, a business major from Quincy, Ill., said she thinks patterned stockings are fine to wear with mini-skirts, and they also solve the problem of sitting down. "I would never sit down in a mini-skirt without wearing textured stockings," she said.

Miss Lagemann does not own a mini-skirt herself but said she does like them. She said they will probably be out of style in a year, although skirts will stay above the knee.

David C. McVey, a senior majoring in economics, said girl who wears a mini-skirt should be tall, attractive, and have nice legs. He said, "I'm like any other male, I guess. I don't mind looking at girl's legs." As for the girl who sits down in a mini-skirt, McVey said that it can look bad but added, "I think I could live with it."

... This Isn't One

McVey said he wouldn't feel self-conscious with a date who wore a mini-skirt as long as she didn't feel self-conscious herself. If he had a wife he wouldn't mind if she wore one, "as long as she could wear it with style," he said.

Here's His Report

They're Not for All

By Richard Modzelewski

A controversial and interesting topic of the '60's is the advent of the miniskirt. Interviews with five SIU students reveal their reactions to this new style.

"I think they look great on American girls, but I don't like them on European girls who have skinny legs, said Bob Brunner, 19, a junior from Washington, D.C.

Brunner said he didn't think they would ever be in style in the Mid-west as they are on the East coast, because of the traditional mode of dress here.

"I thing differently of a girl in a miniskirt," said Brunner, "because she looks unique, and seems to want to be noticed."

George Lamarca, 21, a senior from Rockford, Ill., said miniskirts won't last long as a style.

"I don't think they will become a big fad," said Lamarca, "because it takes a certain type of girl to wear one, and there is not enough of them around."

Lamarca said miniskirts can be attractive on some girls, but it requires a certain type of body and discretion as to when they are appropriate.

Jan Browning, 19, a sophomore from Springfield, said she liked mini-skirts, but then it depended on who was wearing them.

"You have to have a nice figure to be able to wear one, but more than that you have to have guts," said Miss Browning. "I would never wear one, because I just don't have the nerve or the figure," she said. Miss Browning said she thinks it will take a while for the style to really get started, and then it probably won't last too long.

"If I ever wore a mini-skirt I would never sit down, because I'd feel like I hardly had anything on," Miss Browning said.

Cheri Hill, 21, a junior from Elgin, Ill., said she really can't see anything wrong with mini-skirts, but said she believes a girl should wear one only if she has a perfect figure and she wears the skirt appropriately.

"I think only one girl in a 100 could wear one, and really look good in it," said Miss Hill.

She said the mini-skirt will probably never get popular for school wear, and especially not at SIU because the school does not move as fast fashion-wise as do other schools.

Newsletter Considered

Senate to Reorganize Committees

The first winter quarter of the Campus Senate will be devoted to reorganization of committees in the wake of the recent reapportionment that altered campus representation.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in the Ballrooms of the University Center.

Among the items on the agenda for Wednesday's meeting is a proposal for a new committee structure involving the 13 senators, 20 of whom were elected in the November senatorial balloting, according to Ann Bosworth, vice-president of the Campus Senate.

Hopes for the coming quarter include the distribution of a student government newsletter. The newsletter, which would be placed in the various living centers and within easy access of commuters, would serve as a direct line of communication between the student and the student government, Miss Bosworth said.

Don Ihde to Address

Student Christians

The Student Christian Foundation, an interdenominational group, will feature Don Ihde, assistant professor of philosophy, speaking on "Recent Theology and Secular Culture" at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Foundation.

The program will be the Foundation's first Sunday evening supper club meeting for this winter quarter.

The Student Government office has announced about 20 vacancies on committees. Students interested in serving on a committee are invited by the office to contact a member of the student government staff in the Student Government Office in the University Center.

COPIES FOR COINS—The coin-operated copying machine has made its appearance on campus. One has been placed in the University Center, and another in Lentz Hall. The machine produces copies for a dime a page. Linda Moss, a sophomore from Jacksonville, Ill., who is majoring in special education, is shown operating one.

Rifle Range Opens For Students, Staff

The rifle range, on the top floor of Old Main, will be open for recreational shooting today and Sunday.

The range will be supervised by members of the Rifle Club.

Rifles and ammunition are available to any student, faculty member, staff member, or children of faculty and staff more than 15 years of age who are accompanied by their fathers.

Only rifles distributed by the Student Activities Office will be used. Ammunition must be bought at the range. The cost is 70 cents for a box of 50 rounds. Unused ammunition is returned for a refund.

Presentation of a fee statement card and a University ID is necessary to use the facilities.

A meeting of the rifle club is set for 9 p.m. Tuesday at the rifle range to elect officers.

Theta Xi Variety

Show Wants Emcee

For the first time since 1963, the Theta Xi Variety Show will have a student master of ceremonies.

Applications for the position will be available Monday at the information desk in the University Center.

The Variety Show, in its 20th year, will be held March 3 and 4 in Shryock Auditorium. The "emcee" applicants will have to audition and should have some material prepared, according to cochairmen Dave Husted and Vern Kramer.

3 Illinois Universities Receive Foreign Language Fellowships

A total of 148 fellowships for study in foreign languages and related areas has been awarded to three Illinois universities by the U.S. Office of Education.

Receiving the fellowships are the University of Chicago, 70; University of Illinois, 60; and Northwestern University, 18. Fellowships will be awarded for study this summer and for the 1967-68 academic year.

Funds for the program are provided under Title VI of the National Defense Education Act. Each fellow receives about $4,000 for one year's study. The stipend for summer training is $950.

The Office of Education said about $6 million is being made available to finance 1,845 fellowships, including 470 for summer studies. The training is being provided by 52 colleges and universities in 27 states and the District of Columbia.

The new allotment of fellowships makes a total of 8,857 awarded since the program began in 1959.

20 English Staff Attend MLA Meetings

SIU made its biggest showing ever at the annual Modern Language Association meetings in New York Dec. 27-29, with a delegation of 20 members of the Department of English in attendance.

The MLA get-together traditionally is one of the biggest academic conventions in the U.S. One reason is that it provides opportunity for recruiting new faculty members.

Department Chairman Robert Faner was host at an SIU reception lounge which served a dual purpose: introducing prospective newcomers to the faculty and welcoming SIU graduates in English who are also attending the conference.

Mark Hillegas, associate professor, was chairman of a special section meeting on science fiction and research professor Harry T. Moore headed another on continental literature. Moore also spoke on short fiction and Edmund Epstein, associate professor, was a panelist in the science fiction session.

The English faculty now numbers about 220 members, including 85 teaching assistants.

Those who attended the MLA meetings were Frank Adams, Herbert Donow, Epstein, George Goodin, Robert Griffin, Thomas Hatton, Hillegas, Moore, Charles Parish, Byron Raizis, Hans Rudnick, Barry Sanders, David Vieth, Howard Webb, Joseph Friend, Helen McMahon, F.L. Oldfield, Leon Bennett, Kenneth Hopkins and William Simeone.

SIU Resident Envoy to Give Talk Series

The International Relations Club and the Department of Government will sponsor a series of lectures by SIU's diplomat in residence, Willard L. Beaulac.

Beaulac's first lecture, "Prologue," will be given at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Morris Library Auditorium. All students, staff, and faculty are invited to attend this lecture series, each of which will be followed by a reception.

Beaulac has served in many diplomatic capacities with the U.S. government, among them, ambassadorial assignments in Paraguay, Chile, Argentina, Columbia, and Cuba. In addition, he has written "Career Ambassador."

Agriculture School Adds 2 to Faculty

Neal E. Eckert of Carbondale and Donald M. Elkins of Woodville, Ala., have been approved by the Board of Trustees for appointments to the School of Agriculture faculty.

Eckert will be an assistant professor of agricultural industries on half-time assignment for the winter term teaching agricultural marketing courses. He will teach in the absence of William Herr, who is on sabbatical leave.

Elkins will be assistant professor of plant industries beginning in March. He expects his doctorate from Auburn (Ala.) University in June.

NEW YORK'S FINEST—One of the Daily Egyptian's photographers, John Baran, was busy shooting pictures at his home in New York City during the recent vacation period. He came upon this group of police officers preparing for roll call, and was set to photograph them when along came this girl who got into the act. "She must have been at a party or something," Baran said. Here's the result.

Major Glass-Blowing Program Okayed by SIU Graduate School

Glass-blowing—a "forgotten" craft except on a massive scale in industry—is on its way back as an individual creative art, and the country's second major graduate program in glass-making will soon be opened at SIU.

Bill H. Boysen, appointed last fall to the Department of Art faculty to develop the craft here, said the revival started only six years ago at the University of Wisconsin, where he received graduate training in the technique.

Since then only five other colleges and universities have opened courses, primarily for undergraduate students, he said.

He believes, however, that the craft should be taught only to graduate students, who have already acquired the basic fundamentals of art and who have more flexible timetables to devote to the concentrated laboratory work—at least four hours at each session.

Boysen's students here will build their own $2,500 glass laboratory under his direction, starting as soon as studio quarters can be assigned.

"Design and construction of the lab are a basic part of the glass-blower's training," he said. "The furnaces must be rebuilt about once each year because of the constant use at high temperature and because of the corrosive effect of the glass on the furnace structure."

"Unlike a ceramic furnace which may be used and then shut down, a glass furnace performs most efficiently when operated continuously, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, with temperature maintained at roughly 2,000 degrees F."

The other major piece of equipment to be constructed by the students, he said, will be an annealing kiln, in which the blown glass is placed to "relieve" itself gradually of the strain between the internal and external temperature imposed upon it during the firming process.

"The blown glass will fracture if it is not annealed properly," he said. "The temperature of the annealing kiln is kept at 1,000 to 1,050 degrees F. for about 20 minutes after the glass piece is inserted, then is cooled gradually over about 10 hours to room temperature."

Boysen said glass-blowing declined because of the former belief that complicated expensive equipment was needed, but in recent years it has been demonstrated that relatively simple, if somewhat costly, furnaces and kilns can be constructed to enable the individual artist to learn the craft and use it as a creative art medium.

Boysen studied art at Everett, Wash., and completed the bachelor's degree in art education at the University of Washington before undertaking graduate work at the University of Wisconsin to study under Harvey Littleman, who inaugurated the glass revival, and Don Reitz, head of the ceramics department.

Before coming to SIU he taught two summer programs in glass at Penland School of Crafts, Penland, N.C., where he designed and constructed a glass studio.

Boysen has shown his glass in an extensive list of art exhibitions in the Midwest, the South and California as well as in Craftsman 1966 and the 1966 Invitational Traveling Glass Exhibition to Scotland and England.

He is having a one-man show of glass and ceramics at the Peabody College Museum of Art, Nashville, Tenn., this month.

5 Found Ineligible

Coaching Staffs Checking Grades

Eligibility, or rather lack of eligibility, is a nemesis among coaching ranks. Grades often do more to defeat a great team than any conglomeration of opposition talent.

Eligibility has taken its toll at SIU. Bob Roop, the regular heavyweight on Coach Jim Wilkinson's wrestling squad last season, will be ineligible to compete this season.

Wilkinson will use Rich Selouover to replace Roop at this position for the remainder of the campaign.

The swimming team was hit hard. Ray Essick, in his first year at SIU, lost his number two and number three breaststrokers.

Wayne Thomas, the number two man, is a sophomore and ranked right behind senior Gerry Pearson in the breaststroke. John Holben was the number three man and his absence will also hurt.

Essick also lost another breaststroker who was ineligible last quarter but who was anticipated to return this quarter. Bruce Jacobson, a sophomore, was the 100-yard breaststroke champion for two years in high school and he was expected to add depth in that event but now Essick isn't sure whom he will use.

But, Essick's problems aren't over. He also lost his number two diver, sophomore Mike Morrissey. The Saluki swim team was weak in diving even with Morrissey.

The basketball teams, the gymnastics team and the track squads all made it through the fall term without losing anyone at all. In fact, the track team had 12 men out of 31 make 4.0 averages during the fall term.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Jim Ryun of the University of Kansas was declared the world's outstanding athlete for 1966 Thursday in a poll conducted by Aftonbladet, a Swedish afternoon newspaper.

Big Ten Lacks Team Favorite

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten basketball campaign, lacking super stars and a clear-cut team favorite for the first time in eight seasons, hits full stride with a five-game conference program Saturday.

From 1960 until last season, the Big Ten title was locked up by Jerry Lucas—paced Ohio State or Cazzie Russell—led Michigan, or both as in their share of the 1964 crown with an 11-3 record each.

The monopoly was cracked only by Illinois, matching Ohio State's 11-3 top finish in 1963. Michigan, minus All-American Russell who led the Wolverines to the 1964 title tie and clearcut championships the last two seasons, takes a 6-4 record against invading Northwestern 4-4 in one of the four conference matinees Saturday.

Other league action includes Michigan State 5-3 at Illinois 6-2, Ohio State 6-2 at Minnesota 4-6 in a regional TV tilt, and Wisconsin 4-4 at Purdue 6-2 in afternoon play, and Indiana 6-3 at Iowa 7-2 Saturday night.

Sixth Place Ranking

Hartman Rates Sycamores High

By Tom Wood

Indiana State brings its sixth place national ranking and a team that SIU Coach Jack Hartman rates as the best, personnel-wise, that the Salukis will face all year, to Carbondale Saturday.

The Sycamores are the defending champions of the Indiana Collegiate Conference. Indiana State has virtually everyone back from a team that was 22-6 last year and split two games with the Salukis. The Sycamores dumped Southern 85-83 in regular season play and bowed to SIU in the first game of the NCAA regional 85-65.

Indiana State has returned all five starters in addition to 6-8 Rich Mason, a transfer from Northwestern. The two most notable returnees are 6-6 Jerry Newsom and 6-4 Butch Wade, both past All-America selections.

Newsom is a junior who was the Sycamore's leading scorer last year, averaging 26.6 points and 11.1 rebounds a game. Wade is a senior, who will break the all-time Indiana State scoring record this year. The record is held by his coach Duane Klueh. Wade scored 20.7 points a game last year while seeing action at both guard and forward.

Also back are 6-3 forward Mike Phillips, guard Rich Edgerton, the team playmaker, and guard Jim Crone, who scored 12.4 points a game.

Indiana State boasts a 9-1 record so far this season. The only loss came at the hands of Columbia University in the Steel Bowl Tournament in Pittsburgh. The Sycamores' most recent victory came Thursday night against DePauw, 89-66.

Last season the Sycamores scored at a pace of 97.2 points a game, but at the same time gave up 82 points.

Southern is still ranked second nationally to Kentucky Wesleyan, but has closed the gap to three points in the Associated Press poll at 138-135. Each team received seven votes for first place. Kentucky Wesleyan defeated Evansville Wednesday night by two points.

Southern's freshmen will see action again Saturday night before the varsity contest when they meet St. Louis Baptist Junior College. The frosh are now 2-1, with wins over Louisville 60-58 and Belleville Junior College, 92-73.

Bruce Butchko, 6-7 center, is the leading scorer and runner-up rebounder for Coach Jim Smelser's club with averages of 25 points and 11.3 rebounds. The team's leading rebounder is forward Juarez Rosborough, who has pulled down 15.6 points per game and scored 15 points a contest. Mike Dixon has scored 10 points a game, Rex Barker 7.6 and Bill Steppe 7.3.

The varsity game starts at 8:05 Saturday night and the frosh tilt gets under way at 5:45 p.m.

Swimmers at Oklahoma For Dual Competition

By Bill Kindt

The Saluki swim team is in Norman, Okla., today to meet a strong Oklahoma Sooners swimming team in the second dual meet for the Salukis.

The Salukis won their only other dual meet of the season besting Big Eight foe Iowa State 59-45.

Coach Ray Essick, Southern's first-year head coach, expressed concern over the meet with the Sooners. He said Oklahoma has a real fine swim team and their times thus far this season have been real good.

Essick will face more problems than just the Sooners. Eligibility has forced a shake-up in the Saluki starting lineup. Wayne Thomas, the second best breaststroker, is ineligible for competition and John Holben, the number three breaststroker is also ineligible to complicate matters.

This leaves Gerry Pearson as the only reliable breaststroker on the regular squad.

Otherwise the Salukis appear to be ready. Kimo Miles, Scott Conkel, Reinhard Westreider, Ed Mossotti, Don Shaffer and Pearson are still around and their performances in the past are an indication the Salukis will do more than just show up in Norman.

Following the dual meet with Oklahoma the Salukis will have time off to rest. SIU competed in Florida during the break. The Salukis have another dual meet coming up on Jan. 21 against the University of Cincinnati. The Salukis beat Cincinnati last season, 64-34, and this year's meet will be in the Bearcat den and it doesn't figure that these bears will be sleeping for the winter.

The Salukis met the Sooners once before this season in the Big Eight Invitational. The Salukis came in fourth.
