International Ag head reassigned

By Darci Allen
Staff Writer

The director of the Office of International Agriculture has been reassigned to teaching duties so the former dean of the School of Agriculture could be named to the post.

Howard Olson has returned to the Animal Science, Food and Nutrition Department after holding the director's post since 1979. Gilbert Kroening, who was dean from 1974 to September 1986, took over the director's post Jan. 2. He was appointed by School of Agriculture Dean James Tweedy.

"Howard and I talked about it and it seemed like the best thing to do," Tweedy said. He declined further comment on why the change was made and said only, "I think that is between Howard and myself."

Olson declined to comment on the changes and only said, "Any questions about the reassignments should be directed to Dean Tweedy."

Kroening said Olson was reassigned because "the department was in need of his expertise, especially in dairy."

"Olson has continued to work well with me," Kroening said, "helping me from day to day."

Kroening asked in 1985 to be reassigned by summer 1986, but he wasn't until Tweedy took over in September.

English fluency test for teachers being considered

By Darci Allen
Staff Writer

A plan for testing faculty members' English fluency has been drafted by the office of the vice president for academic affairs.

The plan, which is being prepared to comply with a state law that requires all public university teachers to speak English clearly, will be presented to the Faculty Senate before it goes to the Board of Trustees.

Ernest Lewis, associate vice president for academic affairs and research-budget, said he didn't know when the plan would be taken to the faculty, but that it is similar to the testing procedure now used for foreign graduate assistants.

Before foreign TAs are hired, they must meet with a three-member panel that consists of representatives from the department hiring an instructor, a neutral department and the Linguistics Department. Lewis said whoever conducts the interview decides what questions will be asked and determines what constitutes fluent English.

John Guyon, acting president and vice president for academic affairs and research, said that although he "doesn't necessarily agree" with the law, the University "will comply with the law that was written."

Guyon said there has been "a little bit of a problem" with students not being able to understand some instructors,

Thompson stays mum on need for tax boost

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

The word from the Illinois Statehouse on possible tax increases is that there is no word.

"No decision has been made by the governor," said Susan Mogerman, assistant press secretary to Gov. James Thompson. "He will say during his budget address" March 3.

What he's expected to say is whether the state's general revenue fund, the fund Illinois uses to pay its daily bills, needs to be bolstered with more taxes from the state's citizens.

Barry McAnarney, Illinois Statehouse deputy treasurer for cash management operations, said "we show some problems in cash flow" regarding the fund.

"Some projections were higher than what came back to us as revenue," he explained.

State Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, said he doesn't want a tax increase "unless it's absolutely necessary," but he won't

Shultz's credibility showing some wear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, who has tried to stay clear of the Iran arms-Contra funds scandal, is being drawn closer to the center of the controversy.

As the administration tried to defend its intentions in selling arms to Iran, Shultz was scheduled for five appearances before congressional committees.

Two trends were evident after several encounters between Shultz and reporters and one closed-door session with the House Foreign Affairs committee:

--Shultz's recollections conflict with those of several other key witnesses.

--Shultz's credibility is beginning to show some wear, as it develops that past denials of any knowledge by Shultz and his spokesmen were carefully phrased and concealed as much as they revealed.

Bribery convict inflicts own death sentence

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — State Treasurer R. Budd Dwyer, convicted in a bribery scandal and facing a life sentence in prison, shot himself to death at a news conference Thursday before TV cameras and dozens of horrified spectators.

"Budd, don't do this!" shouted a TV producer as Dwyer pulled a .357 magnum revolver from a manila envelope, placed it in his mouth pointing up toward his brain and pulled the trigger. The 260-pound Dwyer collapsed in a pool of blood on his blue-carpeted office floor. The gun still in his hand, a coroner said he died instantly and Dwyer was declared dead at about 11 a.m., his body placed in a black bag and carried from his office.

Reporters and aides believed Dwyer, who was to have been sentenced Friday, called the news conference to announce his resignation.

But Dwyer apparently orchestrated his own death well ahead of time, leaving instructions for his own funeral and an organ donor card with aides. He wrote in a statement released after his death that his public suicide would be the "story of the decade."

He also gave his lawyer, Paul Killion, a letter for newly installed Gov. Robert P. Casey asking that Casey nominate his wife, Joanne, as his successor.

Dwyer, 47, married with two children, left a note at home for his family saying he had "given up hope" after his conviction in a contract

Satellite link sought to expand teaching range

By Catherine Simpson

SIU-C teachers may be joining the space race.

Acting president John Guyon has appointed a committee to research the purchase of equipment that would allow the University to broadcast classes via satellite.

Members of the committee include College of Communications and Fine Arts Dean Keith Sanders; Director of Broadcasting Services, Lee O'Brien; and Charles Klasek, associate vice-president for academic affairs.

Among other uses, SIU-C could use the system in its military education program in which professors teach classes at more than 40 military bases across the country, said Sanders, who announced the committee appointments Thursday at a panel discussion on satellite technology.

Members of the panel included Sanders; O'Brien; Doug Bedient, director of learning resources; Carl Cottingham, director of continuing education and learning resources at John A. Logan Community College; and Joe Foote, chairman of the Department of Radio-Television.

The panel responded to subjects discussed during a one-and-a-half-hour teleconference from Governors State University on the effects of technology on education and problems in attaining funding for a satellite system. They discussed possible advantages of having a satellite system to do a range of tasks including teaching large numbers of students by satellite.

One of the many advantages of the system is that it "can erase distance," said Cottingham, and "enrich curricula."

SIU-C attempted to acquire such a system in 1974, but the idea fell through, said Bedient.

One of the first steps in attaining a satellite system is to have a technology show at SIU-C to examine the technology available, said Sanders. A genuine need for the system, which is currently not being met, must be found, he said.

College of Liberal Arts Dean John Jackson said his department is searching for internal funding because it cannot find private funding for a software system to teach foreign languages.

and institutions received the teleconference and were allowed to ask questions by telephone.

comment one way or the other on the matter "until I am confronted with it."

"I want to see what the governor has to offer me, first," he said.

State Sen. Glenn Poshard, D-Cartersville, is assuming the same stance.

"I will have to consider very carefully what the governor suggests" before taking action, he said.

He added, however, that he can't see how Thompson "can get around a tax increase given our needs, like sewer or water systems, or roads."

Speculation regarding a tax increase came Wednesday at a news conference Thompson held in Washington, D.C. after meeting with Illinois congressional delegates to urge support of a highway bill.

Regarding his obligation by law to present a balanced budget to the state legislature, Thompson said accomplishing the task "might involve a tax increase; it might not."

"I haven't got the slightest idea what we'll finally do," he said.

But Thompson met with Wall Street bond analysts representatives Tuesday in New York to seek consultation on a plan to get a $100 million short-term loan using state bonds as collateral.

Jim Bray, another assistant press secretary to Thompson, said the governor made the trip to New York to inform the bond holders of the loan plan and ensure them that the state's general revenue fund would pay off the loan within a year.

Robert Mandeville, Illinois Bureau of the Budget director, said the loan, if taken out, would go into the general revenue fund. He added that it would be wiser to take this private-sector based loan than to take money reserved for state programs, but the loan "isn't necessary, yet."

"We should go out and borrow money so that we're not late on our bills, but it's not yet necessary to extend our billing cycle," he said.

But Thomas Dodegge, Illinois' deputy comptroller, said "interfund borrowing," or borrowing money already allotted to state services, is a better option "because private sector bond borrowing must be discussed with the legislature, and there's no time for that."

Antifreeze, soap found in 2nd diet soda

JOHNSTON CITY (UPI) — Laboratory tests show a second 2-liter bottle of Diet 7-Up soda bought by a Christopher woman at the West City-Benton Wal-Mart store also contained a quantity of antifreeze and detergent, a health official says.

Larry Castrale, director of the Franklin-Williamson County Health Department, said Wednesday lab tests made in Springfield showed the second sample bottle contained 3.24 percent of ethylene glycol.

Student debt a dangerous omen

A RECENT CONGRESSIONAL REPORT on federal loans to college students raises the specter of a generation so mired in debt that it is questionable whether the loans will ever be fully repaid. But beyond mere repayment of the loans, the report also raises serious questions about the effects of student debt on college enrollment and career choice.

The report found that while total aid to college students has remained fairly constant, there was a massive drop in state and federal grants, such as Social Security and GI Bill benefits, that sparked a concomitant rise in loans. According to the report, loans to college students have tripled over the last decade, rising to $9.8 billion in the 1985-86 academic year. As a result, loans now constitute almost half the aid received by students. It was less than one-fifth in 1975-76.

The average debt for a student borrower at a public institution upon graduation, the report notes, was $6,658 in 1985-86. The figure for private school students was predictably higher, coming to $8,950. A generation of consumers beginning their careers in such deep debt will undoubtedly be a break on the economy, as the purchasing power of recent graduates declines in proportion to the size of their debts.

Another concern, voiced by members of the Joint Economic Committee that issued the report, is the prospect of debt-ridden graduates defaulting on their loans. Since federal loan programs constitute the bulk of aid to college students, such a scenario would send the already huge budget deficit soaring.

THE REPORT ALSO SPECULATES that the decline in college enrollment among blacks may be the result of a greater reluctance among black students to take on a large loan burden, especially now that grants are more scarce. If so, the Reagan administration should re-examine its policy of cutting grants, which primarily benefit underprivileged members of the American public.

The entire loan program deserves careful re-examination, and, perhaps, a complete overhaul. Repayment schedules would be a good place to start. Under the current system, the schedule is inflexible. It is the same for all GSL recipients.

Under a program proposed recently by Education Secretary William J. Bennett called income-contingent loans, or ICLs, repayment would be contingent upon the borrower's income after leaving school. Repayments would be limited to no more than 15 percent of the borrower's adjusted gross income. The repayment period could span 30 years or until the amount borrowed was paid off.

ASIDE FROM OFFSETTING some students' debt burdens, such a program may also negate the chances that some undergraduate students, because of the monetary demands of a huge college debt, will be discouraged from attending graduate schools or choosing fields of study that traditionally promise lower pay to graduates.

Janet Hanson, the author of the Congressional report, told the Washington Post that even with the report, there still is little known about the current and future impacts of student aid and loans. Congress should examine the issue carefully so that more concrete data can be compiled and wiser decisions made about the future of an invaluable American asset — the college-educated public.

Language law questions academic dignity

This is the month of January and the beginning of the Spring semester, a good time to talk about New Year's resolutions. Mine is to speak English like a native because that is the new law for teachers in educational institutions in Illinois. I am certain of failure. Like many others (including some Americans I respect), I'm going to be a walking illegality on campus.

That is a serious thought for me. It means I could be prosecuted for using a foreign language I've come to love and to use somewhat competently but not intone like an American or an Englishman. I agree that students should be able to understand their teachers. But there must be more effective and honorable ways of ensuring this than through legislation.

English has acted as my ticket into a global feast of knowledge, and nothing is going to obliterate the joy I'm beginning to experience in this feast.

But a legislation like the one in question interrupts this joy by reminding one of the darker side of American culture — the tendency to apotheosize the legal system, to regard it as the final arbiter of all human affairs.

The fact that the new law concerns universities is a sad commentary on the state of "temples of learning" in Illinois, for it proves either a failure to establish and implement good policies for preserving standards in teaching or a lack of the necessary moral convictions to resist an unwholesome intrusion. — Paulus Pimomo, graduate assistant, English.

Apartheid still a living evil in South Africa

As a white South African, I was distressed to read a recent interview in a local newspaper with a South African couple who suggested that Americans have a distorted view of what is happening in South Africa and that, in fact, apartheid is dead. White South Africans (and many Americans) would like to believe this to be the case, but the truth is that apartheid is alive and well. Blacks are still forced to live in segregated areas, attend segregated schools, and have no real power within the political structure of the country.

To suggest that "no responsible South African, black or white, wants a sudden black takeover of the government," or that Nelson Mandela and the African National Congress are "little more than sham-shows" is mistaken. If so, why does a new censorship law make it illegal to print anything supporting or explaining the aims of the ANC? Polls taken by white newspapers show that the ANC, which advocates a non-racial political system, is supported by the majority of black South Africans. The report was correct in saying the real black leadership "stays away from the media." The reason they do is that they are either hiding or in police detention.

The white government pretends that inter-tribal rivalry is the main reason for violence in black townships. But statistics show that the majority of blacks killed since the unrest began in September 1984 have been shot by the police. Black-on-black violence is mostly aimed at black policemen and others seen as collaborators with the apartheid system.

Black education is, as the interview suggests, vital for the future of South Africa. White concern would be more plausible, however, if blacks were not required to attend segregated schools which are grossly inferior to white schools. For every dollar spent on a black child's education, the government spends ten dollars on the education of a white child. Moreover, the government response to protests against unequal education has been to detain (and allegedly torture) hundreds, even thousands, of black school children.

The State of Emergency, with its suspension of civil liberties, its ban on political protest, and its rigid press censorship, (it is now illegal to report on even legal protests like the End Conscription Campaign or the boycott of white-owned businesses) suggests that the South African government is not sincere in its professed desire to reform. Their actions proclaim quite clearly their true desires: continued white supremacy. Rohan Quince, lecturer, English

Minimal change expected in county property taxes

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

Jackson County property owners will see little change from last year in their property tax assessments, according to a recent Illinois Department of Revenue news release.

That's because the so-called "equalizer" the state multiplies against county property tax assessment has changed only slightly.

This number, the property assessment equalization factor, or assessment "multiplier," dropped from 1.0335 in 1985 to 1.0297 in 1986, said Barbara Moore, IDOR manager of equalizations and exemptions.

What results from this multiplication helps assess property taxes evenly, county to county.

As far as actually affecting property owner's tax bills, "taxing districts will show a bigger change, if anything," she said, because tax bills are determined by local taxing bodies when they request money each year to provide services to local citizens.

"We're required to publish the number because if someone feels it's incorrect they can come in and show us," Moore continued.

She said the multiplier's change shows how the county's assessment balance has changed.

"There was a slight increase in the amount of assessed property as reported by township officials," she said. "There also was some slight change in the market value of the county's property."

She said both increases together amounted to less than one percent overall.

Moore explained that the multiplier is used, as required by state law, to achieve uniform property assessments among counties.

"The equalization is particularly important because some of the state's 6,600 local taxing districts," such as school districts and fire protection districts, "overlap into two or more counties," she continued.

"It's just an adjustment so that every county can be assessed at the same level."

She said the multiplier comes from comparing each county's individual property sales prices for a three-year period, in this case 1983 through 1985, to the assessed value previously placed on those properties by the county assessor.

If this three-year average assessment level works out to equal one-third of the property's market value, the multiplier will be one. If the average level is greater than one-third, the multiplier will be less than one. And if the average level is less than one-third, the multiplier will be greater than one.

Moore said the new multiplier is for 1986 property taxes, payable in 1987.

but it is "a small problem." Lewis said the only added cost of the testing is the additional staff time involved.

However, while American students may applaud the action, some foreign students aren't singing the same praises.

Paius Pimono, an Indian graduate assistant in English, says the law is a form of "over legislation."

Pimono said he thinks those who are responsible for hiring new instructors should make sure the instructor can speak understandable English before he is given the job.

"When a student is in a situation that he cannot understand his instructor," he said, "who is he to blame?" Not himself or the instructor, Pimono said.

SIU employs 110 foreign-born, non-citizen faculty members and administrators and 405 non-citizen graduate assistants. Lewis said the exact number of foreign-born faculty and graduate assistants who teach was not available.

The Illinois General Assembly overrode Gov. James Thompson's veto of the fluency law last month. The law requires the governing boards of public universities to establish testing methods by the start of the 1987-1988 school year.

scandal that involved promises of $300,000 in kickbacks. He faced up to 55 years in jail.

In the last page of a news release, which was not handed out to the media at the news conference and never was read by Dwyer, he wrote: "Last May, I told you that after the trial I would give you the story of the decade. To those of you who are shallow, the events of this morning will be that story."

The statement also bemoaned the lack of a "true justice system" and urged the media to "tell my story on every radio and television station and in every newspaper and magazine in the United States."

Dwyer, wearing a blue sport coat and red striped tie, revealed the fully loaded revolver toward the end of a rambling half-hour news conference at which he urged photographers and camera crews to keep their lenses trained on him.

Dwyer repeatedly denied his guilt at the news conference, then pulled the gun with his right hand and waved away reporters and aides with his left. He said, "Please leave the room if this will ..." and then his voice was drowned out by shouts of "No! No! No!" as he shot himself.

TV suicide tests ethics of stations

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Pennsylvania State Treasurer R. Budd Dwyer put a gun in his mouth and pulled the trigger before television cameras Thursday, repercussions were felt in newsrooms across the country.

From networks to local stations, the question was the same — whether to air the gruesome footage.

Almost immediately, the NBC affiliate in Pittsburgh, WPXI, puts its film on the air and showed the suicide in full. Two other Pittsburgh stations, KDKA (CBS) and WTAE (ABC) balked at showing the actual shooting.

"The news director, executive producer and producer of the program made the difficult decision to go with the facts ... the editorial decision was made only after considerable thought," WPXI news assistant Andrea King said.

She said the program included a disclaimer that began airing three minutes beforehand warning viewers to leave the room or turn off the TV if they did not want to see the suicide.

After airing the clip in full once, WPXI's News Operation Manager by Williams, said he would not show the actual shooting again.

"I made the decision that on a breaking story, this was responsible journalism," he said about airing the clip.

KDKA said it received more than 100 calls from viewers commending the station for deciding against airing the footage.

NBC, ABC, CBS and CNN all said they would not air the suicide footage in full on their evening newscasts.

Movie Guide

An American Tale — (Fox Eastgate, G) Steven Spielberg produced this animated Don Bluth film that tells the story of a little lost mouse named Fievel and his journey to America.

Back to the Future — (Student Center Video Lounge, Friday and Saturday, 7 and 9:15 p.m.) Yet another Spielberg production. Michael J. Fox is an '80s teen who travels back through time in a souped-up DeLorean created by his mad scientist pal Christopher Lloyd. Crispin Glover and Lea Thompson give underrated performances — as Fox's parents, they must portray both the idealism of '50s teenagers and the cynicism of '80s adults, and they do so beautifully, with a little help from the makeup and wardrobe departments.

The Bedroom Window — (Varsity, R) A romantic thriller starring Steve Guttenberg ("Police Academies I-4"), Elizabeth McGovern ("Racing With the Moon"), and Isabelle Huppert.

Blue Velvet — (Fox Eastgate, R) Director David Lynch's nightmarish vision of sexual awakening in a small town will upset some viewers but fascinate most. A mystery unfolds as the film's young hero, played by Kyle MacLachlan ("Dune"), finds a severed ear in a field. Co-starring Isabella Rossellini and Laura Dern as the objects of MacLachlan's desires and Dennis Hopper in an exciting, if perverse, performance as an asthmatic madman.

The Color of Money — (Fox Eastgate, R) Paul Newman reprises his role from "The Hustler," this time trying to teach Tom Cruise a few tricks. Directed by Martin Scorsese ("Taxi Driver," "After Hours").

Crimes of the Heart — (Saluki, PG) Diane Keaton, Jessica Lange and Sissy Spacek star as three sisters coming to terms with their mother's suicide and their own insecurities. The story is overshadowed by the celebrity of the leads, but the film has some entertaining moments. Directed by Bruce Beresford.

Critical Condition — (University 4, R) Richard Pryor plays a criminal who attempts to avoid prison by feigning insanity. No, it's not "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest II" — the plot thickens as Pryor is mistaken as a doctor instead of a patient.

Crocodile Dundee — (Fox Eastgate, PG-13) Paul Hogan stars as an Australian adventurer who is brought to New York City by a female reporter. One of the biggest hits (and knives) of the Christmas season.

Ferris Bueller's Day Off — (Student Center Auditorium, Friday and Saturday, 7, 9 and 11 p.m.) John Hughes brings the mundane problems of Chicago teenagers to the American public once again as Matthew Broderick and friends attempt to skip school through lies and ingenuity. Broderick, who has a knack for getting whatever he wants, spends much of the film making the adults look like fools. Chicago's landmarks, however, have never looked better.

The Golden Child — (Varsity, PG-13) Eddie Murphy stars as a tracer of lost children in Los Angeles who must find the Tibetan "golden child" to save the world. Murphy pulls off a few good gags, but he doesn't achieve the comedic perfection of his debut performance in "48 Hrs."

Little Shop of Horrors — (Saluki, PG) Rick Moranis and Ellen Greene are star-crossed lovers who work in a flower shop that's home to a blood-thirsty plant, the Audrey II. Based on an off-Broadway play, which was, in turn, based on Roger Corman's 1960: cult film of the same name, this musical boasts a big name cast and several big production numbers, but never quite delivers. Steve Martin, as a sadistic dentist, and Bill Murray, as his masochistic patient nearly steal the show, although director Frank Oz's Audrey II is the real star of this film.

The Mission — (University 4, PG) Jeremy Irons and Robert DeNiro star as two missionaries working together to free a tribe of 18th century South American Indians from injustice and prejudice.

Directed by Roland Joffe ("The Killing Fields").

The Morning After — (University 4, R) Jane Fonda stars as an alcoholic actress who wakes up one morning with a dead man in her bed. Jane can't remember who he is or if she killed him, but leading man Jeff Bridges handily appears to help her solve the case.

Three Amigos! — (Liberty, Murphysboro, PG) Chevy Chase, Steve Martin and Martin Short star as three out-of-work actors who travel to Mexico to help out the locals.

Plan now or lose federal funds, farmers told

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

Local farmers must start piecing together their soil conservation plans now or risk losing out on farm assistance after 1995, as a result of the 1985 Farm Bill.

That was the word handed down by Illinois Director of Agriculture Larry Werries during a press conference Thursday at SIU-C.

He emphasized the need for farmers to have a conservation plan assembled by 1990, "or risk losing any kind of federal funding" after the plan is implemented five years later.

Although the deadline is 1990, Werries said farmers should get their plans together now to avoid facing a glut of farmers applying just before the 1990 deadline.

John Olson, executive director of the Illinois Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, who joined Werries in the announcement, said the "bottom line" is that "Congress is not saying you have to comply with all of the conservation provisions" of the 1985 Farm Bill, "but if you want aid you have to be eligible under the bill."

He said farmers must get their plans approved by their local soil and water conservation office.

The farm bill, titled the Food Security Act of 1985, ties the eligibility for certain United States Department of Agriculture programs to this conservation compliance measure, according to an Illinois Agriculture Department news release.

The bill also incorporates "Sodbuster" and "Swampbuster" provisions. Sodbuster discourages farmers from using highly erodible land for farming after Dec. 23, 1985, while Swampbuster discourages farmers from converting wetlands into productive farmland after the same date.

The USDA is offering "diversion money" to entice early conservation-plan approval, Werries said.

Werries said the conservation plan will take highly erodible soil out of production and, as an added bonus, boost wildlife acreage throughout the state. He said thousands of acres of new wildlife lands already have appeared in Illinois because of farmland taken out of production.

Olson said non-compliance with the conservation measures could mean higher food prices for consumers.

McLeod to hold auditions

McLeod Theater will hold open auditions this month for two productions, "Pygmalion" and "An Evening of One Act Plays."

Auditions for "Pygmalion" will be held in McLeod Theater on Jan. 28 at 7 p.m.; Jan. 29 at 7:30 p.m.; and Jan. 31 at 7:30 p.m.

"Pygmalion" is George Bernard Shaw's comedy of class differences. The play, which was the basis of the musical "My Fair Lady," tells the story of Professor Henry Higgins' attempt to civilize Cockney flower girl Eliza Doolittle.

Auditions for "Genesis," a new look at the story of Cain and Abel by Tommy Westerfield, and "Whatever Happened to Hearts and Flowers," a comedic view of family and courtship by Buddy White, will be held in the theater on Jan. 25 and 26 at 7 p.m.

Taxpayers to aid state decision on school funds

Illinois taxpayers will be helping state officials make more informed decisions about schools this year by listing their local school district on tax forms.

A special red box on the IL-1040 tax form will request that taxpayers enter a special four-digit number that identifies the name of their local school district. The purpose of the data is to aid officials in analyzing State support for the schools.

A complete list of school numbers is provided with the forms. Individuals who have questions concerning the correct code for their school district can call toll-free 1-800-843-6174.

Information provided will not affect a person's tax liability or refund. For further information concerning this, call (217) 782-4648.

Citizen patrol to join civil rights marchers

CUMMING, Ga. (UPI) — A mostly black contingent of Guardian Angels, who will be part of Saturday's massive civil rights march, arrived into Forsyth County Thursday amid a snowstorm, and residents preoccupied with the weather took little notice.

The 12-man group of Guardian Angels, a citizen's security patrol, marched 40 miles over back roads from Atlanta to Cumming, where Ku Klux Klansmen and sympathizers halted "brotherhood" marchers with rocks and bottles last Saturday.

Led by Curtis Sliwa, of New York City, the white leader of the Angels, the group of 11 blacks and one white drew little attention in the north Georgia town, covered in up to 8 inches of snow.

The Angels, accompanied by state troopers and agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, rested in the Forsyth County High School.

The group, half from New York City and half from Atlanta, camped next to a trailer park during its march Wednesday night in freezing temperatures.

Most of northern Georgia was covered with snow and ice from the winter storm and forecasts were for freezing weather into the weekend. Organizers of the Saturday march said, however, weather would not deter efforts to stage another march in the all-white county.

"We're going to march in Forsyth County if it is as cold as ice or hot as hell," said march organizer Hosea Williams, of Atlanta.

About 300 Klan members and supporters overran some 100 law officers at a smaller demonstration in Forsyth County last Saturday, and broke up the march in the memory of Martin Luther King Jr. by hurling bottles and bricks at the walkers.

Up to 2,000 people are expected to march one-and-a-half miles from outside Cumming to the Forsyth County courthouse Saturday, including Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., the Rev. Jesse Jackson and King's widow, Coretta Scott King.

Leading black writer to lecture

Paule Marshall, considered a leading black female writer, will speak Thursday, Feb. 5, at 8 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Marshall, 57, will be the third speaker in the University Honors Program Lecture series. She also is appearing as part of Black History Month at SIU-C.

Marshall, a visiting professor in creative writing at Virginia Commonwealth University, will talk about her fiction writing.

She received the Before Columbus American Book Award in 1984 for her novel "Praisesong for the Widow." For another work, "The Chosen Place, The Timeless People," the Christian Science Monitor called her one of the best novelists in the United States, a writer who is "almost too talented."

She has won a Guggenheim fellowship, the Rosenthal Award of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, a Ford Foundation Grant and two National Endowment for the Arts grants. She also received a Creative Arts Public Service Fellowship from New York State in 1974 and the "Tribute to Black Womanhood Award" from Smith College in 1983.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., native was the first in her family of Barbadians to be born in America.

Reps to talk to laid-off oil workers

Representatives from the Dislocated Worker Program will be at Rend Lake College Jan. 23-28 to meet with laid-off oil field workers.

Workers who can provide documentation that they employed in the industry for 36 months or those who were released because of an oil-related business closure are eligible for the program.

Appointments can be made with program representatives, who will be at Rep. Larry Hicks' office in Mount Vernon, by calling toll-free 1-800-202-6022.

For information, call the college, at 1-437-5321, ext. 286.

Trial set for Amy Carter's anti-CIA protest

(NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (UPI) — Amy Carter, daughter of former President Jimmy Carter, will go on trial in April on a disorderly conduct charge stemming from an anti-CIA demonstration at the University of Massachusetts.

District Judge Edward Shea set the April 6 trial date for the 19-year-old sophomore at Brown University.

Carter, aging political activist Abbie Hoffman and 58 others were arrested Nov. 24 at the UMass-Amherst campus during the demonstration. Hoffman was unable to appear in court Thursday and his case was continued until Feb. 4.

If convicted for disorderly conduct, Carter could face six months in jail. Carter said she understood the legal risks involved before the protest and is not frightened at the prospect of jail.

"I don't think of it as pleasant, but it is not my highest concern at this point," she said. "If it is something I have to do, I will do it. Those kinds of things were taken under consideration before I did this."

Police allege she and others sat in front of vehicles transporting about 50 protesters who had been taken into custody for refusing to leave a campus administration building.

Hoffman, 50, Carter and other protesters vow to use their court cases as a forum for putting the CIA on trial for its international conduct.

Carter's attorney, New York lawyer Leonard Weinglass, has said he hopes to have his client and other protesters tried together.

Jews hail cancellation of war play

LONDON (UPI) — British Jews Thursday welcomed the last-minute decision by a theater to drop the staging of a controversial play that claims Zionists in Hungary collaborated with the Nazis during World War II in order to help the creation of Israel.

"This decision is a victory for justice and common sense and will be applauded by level-headed people everywhere," said Lionel Kopelowitz, president of the Board of Deputies of British Jews, which represents most of the nation's 330,000 Jews.

The play, entitled "Perdition" and written by Marxist playwright Jim Allen, was originally scheduled to open for a press preview Thursday and for general viewing next week at the Royal Court Theater.

But after a four-hour meeting of the theater's board of governors, called to discuss criticism and planned Jewish protests, the Royal Court's artistic director announced Wednesday the play would not be staged.

"Established Service You Can Depend On"

Iran victory might threaten oil market, official warns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned Thursday that the United States is headed for another energy crisis and its rapidly growing dependence on foreign oil will worsen if Iran wins its war with Iraq.

Schlesinger, also a former defense secretary and head of the Central Intelligence Agency, told senators that an Iranian victory would allow a "revolutionary power" to dominate the oil market.

"We want Iraq to survive," he said. "We do not want Iran to win."

By the early 1990s, he said, the world oil market will be dominated by an "inner cartel" smaller than OPEC and consisting of the leading Persian Gulf producers.

"Were Iran to crush Iraq in the on-going conflict, that inner cartel itself might be primarily dominated by Iran," he told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

Schlesinger, now with the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies, said Iran's power and prestige is on the rise.

"We have recently had revealed the willingness of the United States itself, contrary to our professions, to propitiate the Iranian

Iranian troops delayed, towns bombed by Iraqis

By United Press International

Iraqi warplanes bombed several towns and other targets deep within Iran Thursday, but fighting on the ground appeared to slacken in Iran's 12-day-old offensive in southern Iraq near Basra.

Baghdad's state-owned news agency INA said Iraqi jets bombed a bridge near Khorramabad in western Iran, and pounded the towns of Khorramabad, Pol Dokhtar, Malayer, Islamabad Gharb and Borujerd.

In Tehran, Iran's chief war propagandist, Dr. Kamal Kharazi, said the "Karbala 5" offensive, launched at Shalamchek on Jan. 9, was "aimed at paving the ground for other Iranian assaults."

IRNA, Iran's state-owned news agency, quoted Kharazi as saying at a news conference the offensive was "aimed at destroying the Iraqi war machine and not capturing the southern Iraqi city of Basra."

In Washington, U.S. intelligence reports on the fighting said Thursday the Iranians have advanced slightly along the northern bank of the Shatt al-Arab River, but they have not crossed the waterway and are not in a position to threaten the city of Basra.

regime," he said in reference to U.S. arms sales to Iran.

Other countries, he said, were likely to follow the U.S. lead and that Saudi Arabia recently "acted to reach an accommodation with Iran — despite the implication for its sister Arab state, Iraq, which is engaged in mortal struggle with Iran."

Growing dependence on foreign oil, he said, also meant "lessened leeway in foreign policy" and cited President Reagan's decision to punish Libya for terrorist attacks by air strikes.

"How easy would it be for some future president to strike an Arab oil producer — under conditions in which the international oil market is tight and the United States were dependent on imported oil for more than 50 percent of its supply?" he asked.

Soviets reduce oil exports at Saudi's request

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced Thursday it is cutting oil exports "somewhat" at a request of Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Hisham al Nazer, who is on a mission to promote cooperation between OPEC and non-member producers.

However, government spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said he did not know the amount of the latest reduction. He said it was in addition to the 10 percent drop in oil exports the Soviet Union put into effect last fall.

Nazer got the agreement from Moscow before going on to Norway — the last stop of his three-nation tour that took him first to Egypt.

"We as oil exporters are interested in having oil prices stabilized," Gerasimov told reporters. "We have somewhat reduced our oil exports."

Anti-abortion demonstration nets 23 arrests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police arrested 23 anti-abortionists Thursday at the Supreme Court as demonstrators ended their march through a heavy snowstorm to mark the anniversary of the court's 1973 ruling that legalized abortion.

Supreme Court police arrested the 23 demonstrators, including two juveniles, after they broke through police lines to pray. Police said they seized a number of what appeared to be dead fetuses brought by the protesters.

SEVERAL THOUSAND demonstrators calling for an end to abortion marched from the Ellipse area behind the White House to the Supreme Court in the annual March for Life to mark the anniversary of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling.

A storm that dumped about 10 inches of snow on the nation's capital diminished the size of the crowd, which organizers had hoped would be about 40,000.

U.S. Park police estimated there were 6,300 marchers and Washington police put the figure at about 5,000. Reporters observing the march said it appeared the number was lower than that given by authorities.

POLICE DRESSED in riot gear blocked the steps of the court building as the protesters marched past in ankle-deep snow, singing "God Bless America" and carrying anti-abortion placards and banners.

Most of the demonstrators, however, headed for the halls of Congress to lobby their congressional delegations to work for anti-abortion legislation.

At a rally preceding the march, President Reagan spoke to the snow-coated protesters from the White House via an audio hookup and cast the issue in civil rights terms. He told abortion opponents, "We shall overcome bitterness to reach a greater respect for human life."

"IT'S EVIDENT to me that you're not going to let a little weather stand in the way of a noble cause," said Reagan, who could see the huddled demonstrators gathered behind the White House.

"Our national commitment to the dignity of all human life must begin with respect for our most basic civil right—the right to life," he said. "Together, we can overturn Roe vs. Wade and end this national tragedy."

The anniversary was marked around the country with rallies, news conferences and other events.

IN FRIENDSWOOD, TEXAS, four demonstrators were arrested for trespassing at the local high school as they attempted to pass out anti-abortion leaflets. In Kansas, right-to-life supporters presented Gov. Mike Hayden and state legislators with red roses, symbolic of the anti-abortion movement, along with proposals aimed at ending abortion in the state.

Abortion opponents sent the same message to legislators in Oklahoma.

Increased safety measures urged for passenger trains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Train passengers are vulnerable in accidents because many rail coaches lack adequate interior safety features, a federal expert told a congressional panel investigating the recent Amtrak-Conrail crash that killed 16 people.

Jim Burnett, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, said the federal agency has compiled extensive documentation showing most passenger injuries occur because of seat and seat restraint failures, lack of padding covering metallic parts and inadequate baggage restraints. Burnett told a special House panel looking into the Jan. 4 collision of an Amtrak train and three linked Conrail freight locomotives north of Baltimore that Amtrak has failed to fully implement some safety changes, especially related to improved luggage retention.

"Reports of seat failures and loose microwave ovens in the cars involved in the Chase, Maryland accident again suggest that further action is needed in securing seats, equipment in the food service cars and overhead luggage," Burnett testified. Burnett also expressed reservations about Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole's move to seek authority from Congress to carry out random drug testing of railroad workers.

"The safety board is not prepared to say that random testing is necessary," he said.

Dole also announced Thursday she will order random drug testing for airline pilots and air traffic controllers under existing statutes. Pilots said they intend to fight the directive in court.

FCC ordered to review fairness doctrine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission, under federal court order, launched a new effort Thursday to determine whether a rule that requires broadcasters to air both sides of important issues is constitutional.

At the same time, Alfred Sikes, assistant secretary of commerce, told a meeting of network programming officials in New Orleans that the Reagan administration strongly backs an end to the 38-year-old rule.

The latest twist in the long-running battle over the so-called fairness doctrine — opposed by broadcasters and supported by public interest groups — comes after the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington last week remanded an FCC decision that WTVH-TV of Syracuse, N.Y., violated the rule.

The three-judge panel, citing another court decision from September 1986, said the agency may no longer assume that the FCC policy, adopted in 1949.

The FCC, under intense political pressure, has been trying to avoid making a decision about the doctrine, which requires broadcasters to cover controversial issues of public importance and provide reasonable opportunity for presenting contrasting views.

Under Thursday's order, adopted unanimously, the FCC will seek public comment before Feb. 25 on the doctrine.

Blinding snowstorm rips through capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Blinding, blustery snow whipped through the nation's capital Thursday, shutting down the U.S. government, airports, buses and schools.

Police reported treacherous roadways and scores of traffic accidents throughout the metropolitan area, which is normally plunged into chaos by any accumulation of snow.

Only a few crowded buses, creeping along at 10 or 20 mph, were running on main roads because "we've got buses that are stalled all over," said Marilyn Dicus, a transit authority spokeswoman.

The transit authority's

Metrorail system experienced delays throughout the day as many commuters who braced for the predicted storm packed into trains instead of using their cars.

At least 8 inches of snow closed National Airport, spokesman Dave Hess said.

Ol' Man Winter catches Eastern states by storm

By United Press International

A swirling snowstorm staggered the Eastern Seaboard Thursday, snarling air and highway traffic, closing scores of schools and knocking out electricity to as many as 100,000 customers in Southern cities unaccustomed to winter extremes.

By midday, the rapidly advancing storm dumped four inches of snow on New York City and shut down LaGuardia and John F. Kennedy International airports. Up to four inches of snow had fallen across New England and the storm threatened to dump an additional foot or more on the region.

AT LEAST FIVE people have died in the South in highway accidents blamed on the storm since Wednesday night, two in North Carolina and three in Alabama, authorities said.

Snow fell in Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, the Carolinas, the Virginias, Washington, D.C., and Maryland before spreading farther into the Northeast. Fifteen inches of snow fell at Hickory, N.C. — three inches in one hour — and Cornelia, Ga., received up to nine inches.

IN ATLANTA, U.S. Postal Service employee Jack Awtry was delivering mail to an office building Thursday morning when he was asked if the adage about delivering the mail in "rain, sleet, snow" was true. His reply: "The guy who said that was no mailman."

Snow paralyzed the nation's capital and forced a partial government shutdown, but thousands of determined anti-abortion protesters pressed on with their annual "March for Life" on the Supreme Court.

Federal employees were told to report on time, but as the snow piled up, government offices closed and workers in non-essential services were sent home, said Sharon Wells of the Office of Personnel Management.

NATIONAL AIRPORT in Washington closed briefly as crews worked to clear runways of snow, and Hartsfield International Airport in Atlanta was closed.

"When it snows in Atlanta, it's a holiday," said Susan Belcher, who went to Hartsfield Airport to pick up a friend Thursday morning.

Snowfall from the storm totaled 14 inches in Surry and Yadkin counties of North Carolina. Athens, Ga., picked up eight inches of snow, while 13 inches fell at Greenbank, W.Va.

Wind gusts up to 63 mph were reported in Cataret County, N.C.

AS MANY AS 100,000 customers were without electricity in Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. The Red Cross set up a shelter in Spartanburg, S.C., for those without heat. Heavy snow combined with ice was blamed for downing power lines.

Repair crews in the Atlanta area scrambled to restore power Thursday afternoon.

Jury clears grocery chain of recklessness charge

20,000 plaintiffs sued Jewel in salmonella case

CHICAGO (UPI) — A jury cleared Jewel Food Stores Thursday of charges that it acted recklessly during a spring 1985 salmonella outbreak that left thousands of people ill and decided against assessing punitive damages.

The jury deliberated six hours Thursday night before deciding the nation's largest single class action liability case for punitive damages.

The trial against the grocery chain and its parent company, American Stores Co., lasted nine months and involved one of the largest food poisoning outbreaks in the nation's history.

The plaintiffs had sought $30 million to $100 million from Jewel.

At issue were the chain's actions between March 29 and April 9, 1985, when the Hillfarm Dairy in suburban Melrose Park remained opened as Jewel and health officials sought the source of the food poisoning. The dairy will never reopen, Jewel officials said.

Jewel Foods President James Henson expressed satisfaction with the verdict, saying he believed his firm had done all it could to protect the public.

"We are extremely gratified by the finds of the jury," Henson said. "We've always believed and presented evidence to support our position that we acted responsibly based on the information available at the time of this unfortunate incident. We're pleased the jury agreed with us and found no basis for punitive damages."

William Harte, the attorney representing the 20,000 plaintiffs, was not available. State Public Health Department records show 16,932 confirmed cases of salmonella poisoning from drinking contaminated milk from the dairy, one of the nation's largest outbreaks of food poisoning.

Before the trial, Jewel had agreed to pay compensatory damages such as medical costs, lost wages and time, and pain and suffering to those who were affected by the outbreak.

The plaintiffs accused Jewel of betraying its customers' trust, willfully failing to warn people about salmonella contamination of its milk and recklessly endangering public health to save money.

The plaintiffs alleged Jewel did not want to lose sales by closing the dairy during the lucrative Easter season.

GNP inches forward; trade deficit declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's gross national product grew 2.5 percent last year, its worst performance since 1982, but economists took heart in signs that America may be starting to cut into its trade deficit.

The Commerce Department said real GNP — the output of goods and services, adjusted for inflation — increased $16 billion during the final three months of 1986, a 1.7 percent gain over the previous quarter. Real GNP totaled $4.21 trillion for the year. 2.5 percent over the 1985 total but below the 2.7 percent that the Reagan administration was counting on while figuring its revenues for the next fiscal year's budget. That change could mean the budget deficit will be bigger than expected.

The department's preliminary estimate of 1.7 percent growth in the final three months of 1986 pales in comparison to a 2.8 percent increase during the third quarter. Economists said the third-quarter rate of growth was higher because it includes all the car sales made in September, when auto makers offered special financing deals. "We had a horrible, horrible October number and I think we did a good job pulling out," said Doug Handler of Wharton Econometrics in Philadelphia. "If the quarter was based on November, December and January, I think you'd have seen a 3.5 percent increase."

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes also cited "some special circumstances," including the auto sales decline, for contributing to the 1.7 percent growth. But Speakes asserted: "By virtually any measurement, 1986 was a good economic year."

It also was the worst economic performance since the recession of 1982, when real GNP plunged 2.4 percent.

Allen Sinai, an economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers in New York, said the real GNP growth was no surprise but the trade figures were. The inflation-adjusted value of exports grew by $14.1 billion in the fourth quarter over the previous three-month period, while imports were up by $6.3 billion.

U.S. blamed for boost in Japan arms

TOKYO (UPI) — Defense Minister Yuiko Kurihara Thursday blamed friction with the United States over Japan's military spending on poorly informed congressmen and American resentment of postwar Japanese prosperity.

In a rare public snap at Americans, Kurihara said U.S. officials appear to have little understanding of Japan's domestic problems and are "a bit frustrated" by its economic power.

"Japan, which was defeated in the war, is enjoying living standards better than the United States, and maybe they don't really feel this is to their pleasure," said Kurihara, director of the Japan Defense Agency and a member of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's Cabinet.

Kurihara, in a speech at the Japan National Press Club, discussed the government's controversial decision last month to eliminate a 10-year-old ceiling on defense spending.

One-piece shuttle booster designs proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Two aerospace companies said Thursday they have proposed building one-piece shuttle booster rockets that would eliminate the kind of joint that failed and triggered the Challenger explosion a year ago.

Three other rocket companies, including the manufacturer of the current boosters, said they have recommended proceeding with improved designs that would continue to utilize solid propellant segments requiring joints.

DISCLOSURE OF the proposals to NASA for a possible second generation shuttle booster came at a Senate Commerce subcommittee hearing that Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said opens a new phase in Congress' oversight of the space agency's effort to return to spaceflight.

In other testimony that occurred before the hearing was halted because of a snowstorm:

—REAR ADM. Richard Truly, head of NASA's spaceflight program, revealed that NASA canceled plans to select more astronauts last year following the Challenger accident but said the agency will recruit a small group of new astronauts this year.

—Administrator James Fletcher said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has no plans to fly anybody but professional astronauts in shuttles for at least the first five post-Challenger flights, "probably the first 20 and maybe forever." School teacher Christa McAuliffe was one of the seven people killed aboard Challenger.

THE SECOND-generation booster, a project for which NASA has not yet made a commitment, would not be used for space shuttle flights planned for the next few years. Fletcher and other officials told the committee they are confident design changes now under development will eliminate the booster joint problem that caused the Challenger accident on Jan. 28, 1986.

But J.R. Thompson, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., which is in charge of the boosters, said the boosters with redesigned joints must pass four full-scale ground test firings starting in July to clear the way for the next shuttle flight in February 1988.

IF THE TESTS reveal any problems, Thompson promised NASA would stop the program and fix them.

The two companies that proposed building shuttle boosters out of one solid mass of propellant were the Aerojet Strategic Propulsion Co. of Sacramento, Calif., and United Technologies Corp. of San Jose, Calif.

George Brown, Aerojet vice president, said his company would use standard booster casings but link them together, line their interior with continuous insulation and then fill the entire 115-foot casing with one chunk of propellant.

Man pedals aircraft, sets record

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — A triathlete Thursday set a world record for the longest human-powered flight, pedaling the experimental airplane Eagle 37 miles over a desert course in a little more than two hours.

Glenn Tremml, a medical student from Milford, Conn., said the effort above the same dry-lake bed where space shuttles have landed and the Voyager ended its record-breaking global flight last month "was definitely the most challenging thing I have done in my life."

"It was about the same as the hardest triathlon I have ever been in," he said, comparing the feat to the endurance test in which participants swim 1 mile, bicycle 25 miles and run 6.25 miles.

The University of Connecticut medical student flew the Eagle 37.2 miles in 2 hours, 13 minutes, breaking the 22.5-mile mark set by Bryan Allen, who pedaled across the English Channel in the Gossamer Albatross in 1979 in two hours 49 minutes.

The Eagle, designed by a team from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in Cambridge, Mass., is a 92-pound plane made of strong but super-light materials. It is powered by a propeller driven by a pilot pumping bicycle pedals inside a tiny plastic cabin suspended from 110-foot wings.

The MIT crew will use information gained from the Eagle to construct an even lighter plane they hope to fly 69 miles, from the island of Crete to the mainland of Greece.

Women's track team at Purdue

By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer

Women's track coach Don DeNoon takes his defending Gateway champion squad on the road to Purdue this weekend for the first indoor meet of the new year.

As DeNoon breaks down the individual performers for the Salukis, it appears the team stands to do well in a strong six-team field that features Big Ten powerhouse Purdue and perennially strong Louisville.

DeNoon expects cross country star Vivian Sinou to be the "class of the field" in her event, the 3,000 meter run, even though Sinou has had some recent health problems.

"She has had what we think are quad (upper leg) problems, even though we will have her checked for a possible stress fracture," said DeNoon, but added that there is only a small possibility that Sinou has suffered a stress fracture.

Sinou's cross country running mates Lisa Judiscak (1,000 m and 1,500 m) and Amber Wiencek (1,500 m) should also have strong showings at the meet, said DeNoon.

"Look for Judiscak to set a school record in the 1,000," DeNoon said. Judiscak's personal best is 3:00.5.

DeNoon has high hopes for his three long jumpers (Christiana Philippou, Brenda Beatty and Carmen Robbins), and says they should be a major scoring threat all season.

"Those three jumpers are a real strong point," DeNoon said. "All three should finish in the top six in their events at the meet."

The three should be just as tough in the triple jump, DeNoon said, and should provide the team's major scoring threats for the two events.

Philippou, Robbins and Beatty can long jump consistently about 18½ feet, and triple jump about 38 feet.

"This makes up for the loss of our weight (shot put) people from last year," DeNoon said, referring to the loss of All-American Rhonda McCausland for the indoor season, along with Connie Price and Audra Corson. McCausland does have outdoor eligibility left.

"Last year, the shot put was our big scoring event," said DeNoon. "You could count on all three entries to score in a meet."

Two-time All-American Carlon Blackmon is a strong favorite to take first in the 500 m run. Blackmon has finished third at the NCAA indoor meet two years running and has a personal best of 1:13.82.

DeNoon expects middle distance sprinter Angie Nunn to take the 300 m run as well as placing high in the 400 m run, despite the fact she is competing in both events with a slight knee injury.

"Since she is competing in the 400 early in the day, her knee could tighten by the 300 competition," DeNoon said. Nunn has a personal best of 40.4 in the 300 and 55.1 in the 400.

The coach also looks for a strong performance from Kathi Raske in the 55 m hurdles. She holds the school record for the 100 m hurdles (13.98 seconds) and has a personal best of 8.12 in the 55 hurdles.

Rounding out the field of competition is Loyola (Ill.), Central Michigan, Indiana Central, Vincennes (Ind.) and the Terre Haute (Ind.) Track Club.

Men tracksters at Ohio St.

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

A disappointed Saluki track coach Bill Cornell will take his team to Columbus, Ohio Saturday to compete in a quadrangular meet with Ohio State, Indiana and Penn State.

Cornell is disappointed because some of his athletes are not in better shape.

"We had some good performances last week at the Purdue Invitational," Cornell said, "but on the whole we had a lot of athletes who just weren't prepared to run."

Three Salukis who were prepared will chase NCAA indoor championship qualifying berths this weekend.

Andrew Pettigrew, a junior from Maidenhead, England, who finished first at Purdue in the 3,000-meter run, will look to break Cornell's school record as well as qualify for the NCAA meet in the 1,500 meters.

Middle Tennessee State transfer James Duhart, a junior from Daytona Beach,

Carbondale native Glenn Martin, a junior and three-year starter for Drake, continued his trend of saving his best for the Salukis, and chipped in a season-high 18 points.

Every time the Salukis pulled to within nine, Martin unleashed bombs. The junior guard hit three of four three pointers in a four-minute span, each time thrusting the second-half Drake lead back into double-digits.

The Miller-Martin-Morgan combination hit 18 of 33 three-point shots and beat SIU-C at its own game. Doug Novsek, the Saluki version of the Mad Bomber, was held to 14 points on four-of-five three point shooting.

The Salukis jumped to an early first-half lead and were up by as many as six points, but the Bulldogs reeled off eight unanswered points to take a 16-15 lead.

Fla., will try to set the indoor mark at 500 meters. Duhart qualified in that event as a freshman at Middle Tennessee.

The Salukis top middle distance runner, Bret Garrett, a junior from Sparta, is after the NCAA qualifying time at 1,000 meters. Garrett qualified for the NCAA meet last year at 800 meters, outdoors.

"Last week we took a skeleton crew to Purdue, but we are taking the whole team up to Ohio," Cornell said. "This will be an excellent meet because Indiana, Ohio State and Penn State always have outstanding athletes and all three are always very tough."

"There will be some super athletes at this meet and that's why we think some of our guys can make NCAA qualifying times," Cornell said. "It's good to have really good competition and our guys will get that this week."

The Buckeyes have a world-caliber performer in 400-meter-man Butch Reynolds plus an outstanding 4 x 400-meter relay team.

Gymnasts set for Buckeye battle

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

SIU's gymnastics team will attempt to defeat the Buckeyes of Ohio State for the third time in as many meetings when it opens its home season at 7:30 tonight at the arena.

Saluki coach Bill Meade said meets with the Buckeyes are usually "interesting" and "pretty close." The Salukis defeated OSU by less than a point last year.

Meade said he thinks the Buckeyes are a much improved team over last year's team that placed sixth in the NCAA championships. The Buckeyes are led by sophomore Gil Pinto and freshman Mike Racanelli.

Pinto scored a 9.6 to win the horizontal bar competition at the Jan. 9-10 Windy City Invitational. Racanelli took the top spot in the floor exercises with a score of 9.65. The Buckeyes grabbed second place to the Salukis' fifth in the invitational.

Another tough competitor that Meade's team will have to contend with is Fernando Moreira, a transfer student from Indiana State that performs well in a number of events, particularly pommel horse.

Meade said good matchups should occur in several events because the Salukis have had two weeks to train for this rematch.

"I think maybe Tom Glielmi's ready to have a good match with Racanelli on the floor," said Meade.

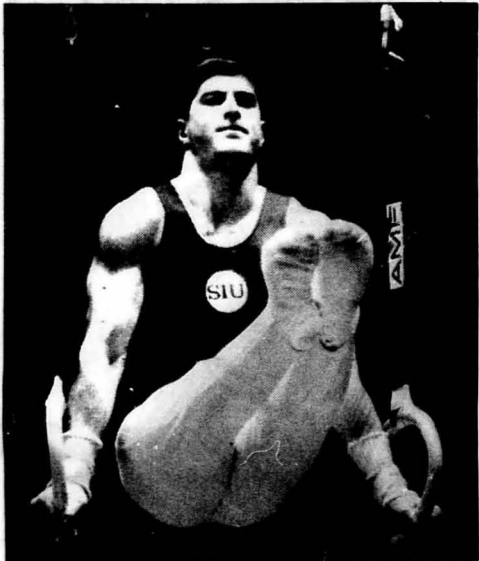

Pinto and Saluki senior Preston Knauf should give each other a good run in the vault competition, said Meade, since they tied for second place at the Windy City Invitational.

Meade mentioned that a good battle should also take place between Pinto and Saluki Ray Quintavell on the horizontal bar. Pinto scored a narrow decision over Quintavell in the previous meet.

The Salukis will be without the services of three athletes who recently had arthroscopic surgery on their shoulders. The surgery involved removing scar tissue from the shoulder joints.

"It's kind of like what you do to cobwebs with a vacuum," said assistant coach Brian Babcock.

Senior gymnast Preston Knauf concentrates as he competes on the rings last season. Knauf and his teammates open the home season at the Arena at 7:30 tonight.

When Creighton coach Tony Barone took the reigns of the Bluejay basketball program before the 1985-86 season, he knew he had some pretty long hours to punch in.

He was inheriting a program in turmoil after the firing of head coach and former NBA great Willis Reed. A team that was losing star 7-center Benoit Benjamin, its 20-12 1984-85 team. A team racked by controversy to the point that some players opted to leave with Reed.

However, at the season's end, a 12-16 record against the nation's 15th toughest schedule, with wins over post-season teams DePaul (NCAA final 16), Tulsa (NCAA) and Drake (NIT), the team was considered something of a miracle around Omaha.

"The support was great," Barone said. "It was a real boost knowing people were behind the program."

Without any freshman recruits to give Barone a ground floor for the rebuilding process, the excitabile, aggressive coach set his rebuilding sights on 1986-87, his sophomore effort.

This season, two of Barone's starters — guard Matt Roggenburk and center Mike Pomeroy — are freshmen. Three players who see considerable action off the bench — Todd Eisner, Bill Nygard and Brian Darcy — are also freshmen. Two other freshmen aren't seeing much playing time this season, but are making satisfactory progress, according to Barone.

"The real starting point was this season," Barone said from Peoria Thursday afternoon. "You can't rebuild without any freshmen, and we sure didn't have many last year."

"I'm so very pleased with the progress we've made," Barone continued. "It's a different feeling than last year and I can only see good things in the future."

Barone said the Creighton and SIU-C programs were somewhat similar, in that both schools were trying to rebuild programs that were once prestigious and proud.

"You've got to take your lumps when you're in the process of rebuilding," Barone said. "All the lumps will pay off someday."

When asked if he'd continue to schedule the likes of DePaul, Notre Dame, Oklahoma and other national powerhouses during that rebuilding era, Barone emphatically gave an affirmative response.

"There's so much more recognition and exposure associated with playing a DePaul, that you just can't pass it up," Barone said.

Barone landed the head job at Creighton after serving seven years under ex-Bradley coach Dick Versace, now an assistant with the Detroit Pistons.

During those seven years, Barone got the experience of three post-season appearances by the Braves, including an NIT title in 1982. That year, Barone was named by the Houston Chronicle as one of the top five assistant basketball coaches in the nation.

Training room dedicated to Spackman

The late Robert "Doc" Spackman, who served for more than 22 years as SIU's athletic trainer, will be honored at halftime of the SIU vs. Creighton men's basketball game. SIU's athletic training room in Lingle Hall will be dedicated in his memory.

Spackman, who was called "Doc" by many of his friends, administered to the physical ailments of all who sought his services. Spackman died in January of 1984.

Saluki athletic director Jim Livengood, Spackman's widow, Jane, and other members of the Spackman family will be present at the ceremony.

A bronze plaque, which will permanently designate his former "office" as "The Bob 'Doc' Spackman Training Room" states:

"An indelible fixture in SIU's athletic history, Bob 'Doc' Spackman served 22 years as the Salukis' head trainer. A dedicated teacher, author and innovator, Spackman healed with his words and mind as well as with his hands. And, although SIU's student-athletes were his primary concern during his long tenure, he helped many in the prep and professional ranks as well as friends and strangers with no formal athletic ties whatsoever. 'Doc' Spackman...a true friend of all."

The basketball game starts at 7:35 p.m. at the Arena with the ceremony taking place during intermission.

Berghuis, Jenkins lead GCAC stats

SIU individuals lead in two Gateway Conference statistical categories, while Saluki team play tops six of 10 groups.

Marialice Jenkins continues to fire 50 percent of her three-point shots for the early No. 1 spot, and that's good enough for SIU to take the team lead in that category.

Mary Berghuis and Bridgett Bonds top field goal percentages with 61 and 57 percent, respectively. Bonds holds eighth in scoring with a 14.9 average and fourth in rebounding with 8.6 per game. Dana Fitzpatrick sits sixth in assists with 3.2 per game.
