Southern Will Train Local Householders

Annual Workshop Will Open July 17

The SIU Householders' Association will hold its annual workshop on the campus July 17. The sessions will be in the Kaskaskia and Missouri River Rooms of the University Center.

J. Albin Yokie, SIU coordinator of housing, will give the principal address of the workshop during a morning session. He will speak and then lead a group discussion on "Understanding the College Student; The On-Campus and Off-Campus Residence Hall Environment; The Mal-adjusted Student."

About 75 persons are expected to attend the workshop, according to Mrs. Anita Kuo, supervisor of off-campus housing.

The workshop will open with a welcoming address from Owen Hunsinger, president of the Householders' Association.

A session on managing a student residence will feature Vincent Furst of the M.F.A. Insurance Co, discussing insurance problems; Normal E. Klaus, manager of General Telephone Co., discussing telephone problems; and Mason Parker, manager of Central Illinois Public Service Co., discussing utilities problems.

Reports on the state of housing at SIU will be featured in the afternoon. Mrs. Kuo will give the general report. Hunsinger will report on damage deposits, Margaret Karr will report on student housekeeping, and Harriet Ross will discuss student self-government.

Also in the afternoon there will be a panel discussion on "Organizing the Student House; Developing Educational, Social and Recreational Programs."

The discussion leaders will be James Hammons, head resident at Southern Acres; Roland W. Banschler, resident counselor at the International House; and Wayne Kuncl, head resident at Pound Hall, University of Nebraska.

Hazel Chung To Dance Asian Style Here Saturday

Hazel Chung, a dance specialist, will present a program of Asian dances on the SIU campus Saturday.

The program, sponsored by the SIU Asian Studies Committee, will be held in Furr Auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m. The performance is free and open to the public.

Miss Chung, an American-Chinese, is an expert on dances of most Far Eastern countries, but will place special emphasis on Chinese and East Indian dances.

Miss Chung this summer is conducting a summer dance seminar at U.C.L.A.

Decision Made On Sig Taus

A decision has been reached on the possible suspension of Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity from the campus, but I. Clark Davis, director of student affairs, said he will not publicly announce the decision until he has notified fraternity members by letter.

The decision was reached yesterday afternoon by a special committee studying the problem.

The Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity's status on this campus has been under study since several members of the fraternity were involved in a fracas with a group of non-students at Crab Orchard Lake last quarter.

The fight resulted in injury to some of the non-students but they decided to drop charges after the persons involved agreed to pay for medical bills and damage.

Sigma Tau Gamma was already on a probationary status before the Crab Orchard incident. The probation was a result of incidents involving its members last fall at a West City tavern.

Murdale Plans Melon Feast For Southern

Summer session students and faculty and staff members at Southern Illinois University will be guests of honor at a watermelon party planned from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday at Murdale Shopping Center.

The party is being sponsored by the Murdale Merchants Association in cooperation with The Daily Egyptian.

Free watermelon and entertainment will be offered in an area of the parking lot.

Transportation to and from the Center is being worked out and preliminary plans indicate that a shuttle bus service will operate between Murdale and Woody Hall, University Center and Thompson Point, beginning about 6 p.m.

Five From Globe-Democrat On August Workshop Staff

Five members of the staff of The St. Louis Globe-Democrat will participate in the SIU "Newspaper in the Classroom" workshop in August.

They will speak to elementary and junior and senior high school teachers for whom the Aug. 12-22 workshop is designed.

Allan Merritt, an assistant city editor, will discuss the operation of a city desk, Aug. 14. On Aug. 15, The Globe-Democrat's state capital bureau chiefs in Illinois and Missouri will discuss news cover-

It's A Joke, Son:

Tom Swifties Catch On At Southern In A Hurry

Adverbial puns known as "Tom Swifties" have become the rage of punsters across the nation and have generated the imaginations of hundreds of people into composing them.

A typical example: "I had trouble with my power saw," he said offhandedly.

The origin of "Tom Swifties" is debatable and a statement on how they got started would be about as conclusive as a description of the Loch Ness Monster or the Abominable Snowman.

One source reports they started as take-offs on Tom Swift books in which the author usually modified the dialogue with an adverb. Some popular magazines credit themselves with giving birth to the idea.

Regardless of how they started, they have arrived on the scene and the following is a collection of SIU Swifties. (Any persons who feel these items are foolish, time-wasting and senseless should not force themselves to read these entries, but should use their time more profitably by reciting their repertoire of "knock-knock" jokes.)

"Let me explain the Dewey Decimal system," said the librarian categorically.

"Police work can be a challenge," Thomas Leffler said securely.

"Trees are America's future," said the forestry major cuttingly.

"They wouldn't serve me at the Rat Hole last night," the student said soberly.

"The free University Center watermelon was certainly good," said the coed seedily.

"All these new trees give me inspiration," doggedly commented the student.

"The AFROTC unit is under my command," said Colonel Blaise generally.

"The Baptist Foundation has been sold," the director said reverently.

"Horse racing is not an approved student function," replied Miss Mullins sulkily.

"Civil Defense is the nation's greatest hope," Dr. Bridges said with alarm.

"Our campus electricians make very few mistakes," William Howe announced with shock.

"Egyptian tombs are pretty much a dead subject," remarked the archaeologist cryptically.

"The Oasis lemonade is pretty bad news," said the student sourly.

"The fee payment window has already closed," remarked the Bursar's Office employees collectively.

"I can always tell a phoney number," the University operator signalled busily.

"We sell a thousand sandwiches a day," said the Oasis waiter with relish.

"The new style bikinis are the most," barely muttered the coed.

"I have decided on your case," said Dean Zaleski outwardly.

"So what's wrong with swimming in the Campus Lake?" exclaimed the ex-student nudely.

"I just flunked an exam," moaned the student testily.

"Today we will discuss power drills," stated the Industrial Arts instructor boringly.

"Where is the best place to fish in the Campus Lake?" he baitingly asked the boat dock attendant.

"We Health Service nurses give few shots," she said needlessly.

"The Education Building will be ready on time," the J.L. Simmons Company said constructively.

McClure To Speak At Sunday Picnic

George McClure of the Philosophy Department will be the discussion leader at the Philosophical Picnic at 5 p.m. Sunday at Picnic Dome No. 1, Lake-on-the-Campus.

But McClure so far hasn't decided what his topic will be. "My topic could range from the role of mythology to the crisis of economic order," he said, indicating that he, himself, won't know until he faces the picnickers.

Portrait Of A Scholar:

He Lives In A World Of Ideas, He Knows, Deduces, And Evaluates

People are cited for their intelligence or academic excellence but very seldom is it said of a person that he or she is a scholar.

This seems paradoxical. In an age of astronauts, "hidden persuaders," automation and specialization, scholarship is greatly stressed while the "scholarly" attitude or approach is neglected.

Thus questions arise. Can a scholar be defined? What traits do scholars possess?

Elizabeth O. Stone, assistant director of libraries, spoke in an informal interview on the defining of a scholar. She stated that she could give no higher word of praise than to speak of a person as a pure intellectual. "A scholar is one who has assimilated information in depth, who draws logical conclusions from the knowledge he has, and who can evaluate its meaning in terms of broad implications", Miss Stone stated.

She went on to say that the scholar is at home in the world of ideas. He knows, he deduces, and he evaluates. When asked about intellectual curiosity, Miss Stone explained that there is no relationship between intelligence and intellectual curiosity.

"Therefore, many very intelligent people are not scholars, and many very intelligent people have no interest in becoming scholars. A scholar is an individualist who often, but not always, possesses eccentricities", she said.

Miss Stone cautioned students that a scholar must be very jealous of his time.

"If he must waste time," she said, "let him learn to waste it profitably. He must not permit himself to become bogged down by clubs, by domesticity, by membership on too many committees, by attendance at too many purely social functions, or by spending too much time in meaningless conversation," she explained.

Miss Stone as director of public services at Southern, coordinates the work of the various libraries under her general supervision. Her teaching experiences include a position in the Graduate Library School at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, where she taught for five years, and the position of head librarian at the University of Dubuque, Iowa. To this day, she still meets her former library students at conventions, runs across their articles in various journals, and reads of the many new library buildings planned by them.

Miss Stone feels that you can judge the calibre of a person by his conversation. "Some talk about people, some about things, and the scholar about ideas", she said.

In reference to who can become a scholar, Miss Stone stated that the decision to be a scholar does not guarantee a scholar.

"The true scholar, she said, "usually manifests early in life that he is intellectually curious; he usually likes books, exhibits much persistence and tenacity, and his set of values does not focus on making money."

Miss Stone, as might be imagined, displays an intellectual curiosity in her life. Professionally, she has served as president and vice-president of the Illinois Library Association and has spent four years on the American Library Association Council. She also served on the Board of Directors of the Association of College and Research Libraries.

She appeared in two editions of "Who's Who Among American Women" and was recently notified that her name will appear in the third edition. She is a member of Beta Phi Mu and has served as national treasurer for this library science fraternity. She also belongs to Delta Kappa Gamma, select national society for teachers.

Miss Stone noted that many young people, well on their way to becoming highly respected scholars, are diverted by taking on family responsibilities at too early an age, by being drawn into a better-paying positions which leave little or no time for meditation, reflection, reading, or writing. Thus a scholar is lost.

Miss Stone admonishes students not to stand still.

"If one ceases to become better, one ceases to be good,"

"If one does not continue this singleness of purpose," she advised, "if one does not find time for reflection, for meditation, for reading, for deducing, for evaluating, one may lose that precious possession—the satisfaction of scholarship, the joy of knowing, the intellectual excitement of learning."

For June:

'Thirsty' SIU Chalks Up $3,064.51 Water Bill

A college, like an American family, must pay for the water it uses, but when it comes to actually handing over the check for water consumed there's not much comparison in the two institutions.

Take SIU's June water bill. A whopping $3,064.51!

This figure varies with the dryness of the season, but it remains pretty constant. The extra water required to maintain thirsty lawns in the summer is offset by the larger number of students who return in the fall. Thus the staggering water bills are about the same month in and month out.

William A. Howe, director of the SIU Physical Plant, said "the last of May to the last of September are the periods when the greatest amount of water is consumed because these are our dry months."

And while the water bill alone is enough to give the director a perpetual headache, there's more to his job and

10 Foreign Students Get Ag Training

Ten outstanding agriculture students from countries all over the world are attending intensified eight week courses in agriculture and English at SIU this summer.

The purpose of their visit is to study generalized agriculture and English courses. Before arriving at SIU they have had highly specialized training in contrast to American students' general training.

The students spend their mornings studying English and their afternoons studying agriculture. In addition, the foreign students hear lectures from every faculty member of the School of Agriculture so that no technical terms will be missed.

All of the students live in dormitories with American room mates. On Saturdays they will attend field trips to points of agricultural interest.

Attending the orientation courses for foreign students are, Marina Clara Stiefel, Argentina; Yukitaka Kinoshita, Japan; Javier Gil Flores, Mexico; M.A. Hidalgo, Mexico; Wilfred Chirwa, Nyasaland; Chaune Maples Kayuza, Nyasaland; Sozer Ozekok, Turkey.

department than that. The gallons and gallons of water sprinkled on the lawns on campus are supplied by the City of Carbondale. The maintenance of those sprinklers is the job of 21 Civil Service workers, who, in addition, are responsible for keeping the grounds generally in order.

These men are specialists. Another group, its size varying with the work to be done, plants shrubs and cares for other vegetation.

Other services provided by the Physical Plant are maintenance of buildings and grounds, boiler plant operation, utility systems, maintenance of a fleet of automobiles and bus service for the campus.

Director Howe is convincing when he says:

"The physical plant is the heartbeat of the campus, but most people do not appreciate it until its services are delayed or cut off."

International Students 'Recruit' For SIU By Mail

The international student at SIU may turn out to be the University's most active unofficial press agents.

Letters written by international students here to others throughout the United States and the world are frequently responsible for applications for enrollment.

Mohammad Khanfor, a 26-year-old student from Jordan, is typical of the international student who was "recruited" by letter.

Khanfor decided to transfer from Washington University in St. Louis for the summer after learning about SIU from other Arabic students.

"I first know this school through correspondence with other Arabic students here. When I come down to see for myself, I find I really like it." Khanfor said, "I like the environments, the atmosphere, and best of all, I can have so many Arabic friends."

Receiving his B. S. degree in mathematics from Missouri State College in 1962, Khanfor spent one year in the Graduate School of Washington University.

It is the first time that Khanfor attends summer session. He made the decision because "the Mathematics Department offers a very good summer school program and the professors are very friendly and helpful."

He likes Morris Library, where he can find most of the books he wants. "Textbook Service is a wonderful idea. It helps many students who can't afford to buy expensive books."

O'Neill Play Explodes With Meaning

'Great God Brown' Explores Life

Southern Players' production of Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown" has been holding its audiences spellbound, and then, like a subconscious firecracker, has exploded with deep personal meaning within each individual.

"Perhaps one of the most interesting aspects of the play is this audience reaction," says Dr. Sherwin Abrams, director of the production.

"The reaction has been essentially the same with audiences ever since the play first opened in 1926," he added. "It seems to touch off a personal meaning for everyone who sees it."

O'Neill said about the play: "...I somehow feel there's enough in it to get over to unsophisticated audiences. In one sense 'Great God Brown' is a mystery play, only instead of dealing with crooks and police, it's about the mysteries of personality and life. I shouldn't be surprised if it interested people who won't bother too much over every shade of meaning, but follow it as they follow any story. They needn't understand with their minds, they can just watch and feel."

"The play is set in a nightmare setting, where a few people you know well, keep coming back in different forms", says Abrams.

"What O'Neill has done, 'is to take contemporary man and dramatize him by taking two opposite positions, one of the idealist and one of the materialist, and placing them in a struggle for dominance."

The idealist is embodied in the character of Dion, who is opposed by William Brown, the materialist. While the two are played by separate actors, they are in essence, manifestations of the same individual.

Adding to the nightmare atmosphere are the masks worn by all characters.

"The masks are used to indicate the ideal that all of us mask our true natures from other people, no matter how close to them we might be, in an effort to protect ourselves," Abrams explains.

Dion has one face for the world, and another face which he allows only the audience to see. Upon his death, Brown assumes his mask and finally becomes, in fact, Dion Brown—a combination of the two characters.

In this symbolic form, O'Neill dramatizes the fundamental dilemma of civilized man.

"There is a good deal of O'Neill in the play," comments Abrams. "In the character of Dion is reflected O'Neill's own need for material security."

The play runs through Sunday, July 7.

News In Perspective

From Associated Press Dispatches

Compiled By Leonard J. Hooper

MOSCOW—The Soviet Communist party gave the Chinese Communist party a verbal slap in the face Thursday on the eve of scheduled peace talks between the two feuding powers.

The Soviet Communist party and the government accused Red China of meddling in Russia's affairs and bluntly told their Red Chinese comrades to "mind your own business."

The Red Chinese have been hypercritical of what they consider a "soft approach" to the West by Premier Khrushchev and his Soviet Communist party. Several times they have flatly demanded that Khrushchev resign.

Khrushchev and his party, on the other hand, have been almost as openly critical of the Red Chinese demands for a "get tough policy with the West."

The peace talks were arranged in an effort to work out ideological differences between the two giants of the Communist world.

MOSCOW—Soviet Premier Khrushchev wished President Kennedy and the American people "peace and prosperity" in a Fourth of July message as Americans abroad celebrated Independence Day.

Khrushchev did not get back to Moscow from East Germany in time for the U.S. Embassy's Fourth of July party, one of the many embassy parties held around the globe. But First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan showed up and drank a holiday toast.

Khrushchev, possibly thinking of Communist Chinese opposition to his peaceful co-existence policy, cabled Kennedy:

Conrad, Denver Post

...TOO BAD YOU MISSED HIM...!

"In our age, the age of harnessing nuclear energy and penetrating the depths of the universe, the maintenance of peace has indeed become a vital need for all mankind."

BERLIN—While President Kennedy was leaving Europe for home Tuesday, Premier Khrushchev injected a new element into the long talks over nuclear testing.

Evading the on-site inspections issue, he offered to accept a Western proposal for a ban on nuclear tests above ground and under water -- provided the West agrees to sign a nonaggression treaty between the Soviet bloc and the NATO powers. No ban would be imposed on underground testing. Such a partial ban has long been suggested by the West in the Geneva talks, but previously firmly rejected by the Soviets.

But Premier Khrushchev also said he considered Kennedy's performance in Berlin and West Germany last week as "a dangerous development." He said he drew his conclusion from the President's speeches in Berlin and a few weeks ago at American University. "If you compare the two speeches, you would think two different presidents had spoken," he told a Red rally in Berlin.

VATICAN CITY—Pope Paul VI received President Kennedy Tuesday in a historic audience and extended his blessing to all Americans. He said he would pray for the President's efforts to end racial discrimination.

"You know what we discussed; above all the peace of the world," Pope Paul said in a talk with newsmen.

Vatican sources said Kennedy at one point remarked to the Pope: "I hope to see you in the United States."

Pope Paul only raised his hands in reply, they said, gesturing as if to say, "It depends on Providence."

Pope Paul read a speech in English—touching upon peace, space exploration and the racial situation in the United States—to Kennedy and members of his party.

NAPLES, Italy—President Kennedy concluded his 10-day European tour with a plea for allied unity and an end to "self-sufficient" nationalism. The President took off from Naples in the presidential jet for Washington, winding up his trip after a busy Tuesday that included an audience with Pope Paul VI, a meeting with Italy's President Antonio Segni and an inspection of the big NATO base here, where he made a major speech. The President flew to Naples from Rome by helicopter.

President Segni said the talks in Rome emphasized efforts to ease east-west tensions and brought agreement that Italy would consider proposals for a multi-nation nuclear force within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A joint communique said their meetings provided "the occasion for a useful and thorough exchange of views on the situation of east-west relations."

Before setting down, the President's helicopter took a 10-minute panoramic tour of the Naples bay area, with Mount Vesuvius overlooking the scene.

A crowd of nearly 10,000 persons cheered and a 30-piece navy band blared as the President arrived at NATO headquarters here. The crowd was made up largely of United States, British, French, Greek, Turkish, and Italian servicemen assigned to NATO.

In his NATO speech the President said in time the unity of the west could lead to the unity of the east and west "until the human family is truly a 'single sheepfold' under God."

Kennedy denied the de Gaulle view that America desired to dominate Europe.

BRUSSELS, Belgium—Premier Theo Lefevre asked King Baudouin to accept the resignation of his coalition government.

The trouble developed from the growing bitterness between French-speaking Walloons and Flemish-speaking Flemings over official use of the rival languages.

Lefevre's cabinet was a coalition of Social Christians (Roman Catholic) and Socialists.

LONDON—Prime Minister Macmillan and the opposition leader, Harold Wilson, clashed in the Commons Tuesday in a fresh storm over Britain's sex and security scandals.

Wilson charged Macmillan with being petulant and trying to laugh off the failure of Britain's security services. Macmillan snapped back that he found Wilson offensive and added: "You really must learn to distinguish between invective and insolence."

BONN—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, speaking between meetings with President Kennedy and President Charles de Gaulle of France, said European unity "must develop in close partnership" with the United States.

At the same time, he defended the new friendship treaty between France and Germany, saying reconciliation of the traditional enemies "is the prerequisite for any form of European cooperation."

VATICAN CITY—Pope Paul VI received President Eamon De Valera of Ireland in private audience Tuesday. They were together in the papal library 25 minutes.

De Valera was ushered in to see the pontiff shortly after President Kennedy had left.

The pope also received the duke of Norfolk during the morning. The duke came to the pope's coronation as the representative of Queen Elizabeth II.

VIENNA—United Nations Secretary General U Thant has arrived in Sofia for a three-day visit to Bulgaria.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gov. Kerner has vetoed a Republican-drafted bill to redistrict the Illinois House a move that could lead to election of representatives in 1964 state wide balloting.

The Democratic governor in vetoing the bill Monday said it contained too many inequities in population of the proposed districts.

Kerner's action meant he will name a special commission of five Republicans and five Democrats to draw a new map of the 59 House districts. Three lawmakers are elected from each.

The veto brought immediate protests from several influential Republicans, including Speaker John W. Lewis, R-Marshall, and Victor L. Smith, GOP state chairman.

Smith said he would discuss Kerner's action with the party's state committee and suggest the possibility of bringing a court suit.

ST. LOUIS—A $40-a-week raise demanded by members of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra may be delayed, or even cancel, the orchestra's 1963-64 season, the chairman of the orchestra committee said. Henry Loew, committee chairman and a member of Local 2, American Federation of Musicians, which represents the members, said the musicians have rejected the society's final offer.

"The orchestra members remain firm in their demand for a 'living wage' of $4,480 a year for a 28-

Piccone Has 'Modernized' SIU Football Offense

Interior Line May Be Team's Chief Asset

SIU modernized its offense somewhat last spring for next fall's football season and the chief asset may be its interior line where 11 of its 25 returning lettermen will be located.

Carmen Piccone has an abundance of guards this year and has shifted two to the center position and two others to tackle.

Gene Miller and Benny Hill were shifted to center in spring drills and will be counted on to back up veteran Dave Mullane at the position.

Larry Kristoff and Jack Langi were moved to the tackle position in an attempt to bolster that spot which was hard hit by graduation. Starting tackles last fall Sam Silas and Jim Thompson were graduated this year.

Jim Minton and Larry Wagner, who along with Harry Bobbitt will captain the Salukis, will continue to operate at the guard slots, although both will probably see most of their action as defensive linebackers.

Mitchell Krawczyk is a solid offensive fixture at one guard position after a fine 1962 season and Irv Johnston and Earl O'Malley are rated as top-notch performers there also.

First-string tackles could be Vic Pantaleo and Kristoff, a pair of rough and ready performers who saw no action last fall because of injuries. Pantaleo was sidelined with a broken wrist and Kristoff with a bum knee.

Quarterback--Jim Hart, Dave Harris, Doug Mougney and Norm Meyers.

Fullback--Irv Rhodes, Percy Manning, Jerry Frericks and Ken Love.

Robert Teske of Beecher, a 9-year-old sophomore at SIU, is one of 161 golfers under 21 who will tee off Monday at Crystal Lake Country Club in the 28th annual Chicago district Golf Association's junior championship.

The entire field will play the first two rounds on Monday and Tuesday at Crystal Lake Country Club, Crystal Lake, Ill., with a cut to the low 60 scorers and ties for the third and final round on Wednesday.

Teske will be paired with Terry Schad, Peoria, and Cam Clark, McHenry, in the first two rounds.

Along with Schad and McHenry, Teske is ranked among the leading contenders in the meet. In addition to golf, Teske has been outstanding in basketball, basketball and track.

Schools, Plus And Minus:

Does Mayer Know Facts?

Martin Mayer, Where, when and Why: Social Studies in American Schools, (Harper)

Teaching Career Fact Book (National Education Association of America).

Reviewed by Howard Derricks in St. Louis Globe-Democrat

Here are two new books that approach some of the same urgent problems from points of view which are poles apart. Both volumes have value, but each would benefit if it shared some of the qualities of the other. The chief difference is that between fact and opinion, between news and views, between solid, fundamental statistics and mere airy castles of thought.

Mayer is the ingenious architect of insubstantial castles. His book is a strange one to be financed, as it was, by the American Council of Learned Societies. He is flashy in style but feeble in content. We learn that a certain young man teaching social studies wore "rather good tweeds," but we do not learn the basis for many of Mayer's iconoclastic recommendations.

He would bar current events from social studies classes on the ground that one cannot understand the present without knowing historical facts. And yet current events can provide powerful motivation for the study of history.

Problem-solving as a teaching technique is also out in Mayer's book because the Problems of Democracy classes he visited were "dreadful." It is foolish to try to teach critical thinking, opines non-teacher Mayer, because he announces it cannot be taught.

The unpleasant after-taste in the reader's mouth after devouring this book is mostly Mayer's dislike for what he was paid to write about. His chief contribution may be increased public understanding of why social studies are poorly taught: "Measured by intelligence tests, the social studies staff is, next to the coaches, the weakest group of teachers in the secondary schools."

Editor's Note: As a courtesy to Daily Egyptian readers who may have been confused by the failure of the production department to include the names of the authors, the titles of the books and the names of the publishers with the above material when it appeared in our July 3 edition we are reprinting the review in its entirety.

"Total inadequacy of teacher preparation" chiefly blocks reform in the teaching of social studies, Mayer believes. The NEA report, concerning itself with quantity rather than quality, paints quite another picture. Social studies are only too well provided for, it indicates, since there are thousands more qualified social studies teachers than there are openings for them.

The NEA report contains the latest available facts and figures, but these are crowded into tables with so many missing elements that they are hard to interpret. Table 4, showing where teachers of each subject are most needed, is based on the 1961 returns from 32 of the 50 states.

If I read this table aright, America's long-continued, much-talked-about shortage of high school teachers is largely concentrated in English. Public high schools reported hiring 7767 new English teachers in 1961. In that year, however, colleges and universities produced only 5728 qualified teachers of English. The seeming discrepancy stems from the fact that thousands of persons not qualified to teach English are nevertheless doing so.

The shortage of 2039 teachers in English tops the combined scarcities in four other fields--909 in general science, 591 in foreign languages, 489 in library service and 31 in physics. Only mathematics, with a dearth of 1349 teachers, is more than half as badly off as English. Here are facts worthy of study by intending teachers and their counselors.

But, as some administrators seem to believe, anyone can teach his mother tongue. There is a surplus of 2794 teachers in social studies. These jobless weaker members of the weakest group can be pressed into service as English teachers! The beauty of this plan is that then more and more experts will be able to produce articles and books on why Johnny can't read and why college freshmen can't spell.

Chinese-Russian Communists Have Showdown In Secret

MOSCOW

The long-awaited "showdown" meeting of Chinese and Russian Communists opened Friday with a secret session.

Western observers expect a draw in the issue drawn between Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence line, and the Chinese argument for a harder approach. The Chinese are expected to demand that a conference of all the Communist parties of the world be called to pick the winner in a free vote.

Angry charges and counter-charges hurled up to the eve of the meeting gave way to smiles and flowers in greeting the Chinese on their arrival. But there were no Soviet newsmen or photographers present at the airport, more evidence of Soviet down-playing of the meeting.

The Chinese sent a high-powered delegation headed by theoretician Teng Hsiao-ping; Mikhail Suslov was the chief Soviet negotiator at the airport.

LONDON

Scotland Yard has started a new inquiry into some aspects of the Christine Keeler affair and the trial of her former Jamaican lover, Aloysius Gordon, now in jail.

Inquiries were resumed urgently after Atty. Gen. Sir John Hobson was given fresh information purporting to throw light on the Old Bailey trial of Gordon.

The Jamaican jazz singer was sentenced to three years in prison for attacking the 21-year-old party girl outside her West London apartment. Gordon is appealing the sentence.

The information went to Hobson by way of opposition Labor legislator George Wigg, who is the man who brought Christine's affair with ex-War Minister John Profumo into the open.

Wigg told a newsman he could give no details about the nature of the information he had forwarded to Hobson.

SPRINGFIELD

Rep. Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro, has filed suit contesting Gov. Otto Kerner's veto of the House redistricting bill.

He said the veto prejudiced his rights as a state representative; Williams contended the legislature had met the constitutional requirement of reapportioning by July 1. He asked that the veto be declared void and the governor restrained from appointing a commission to remap the districts.

WASHINGTON

The Coast Guard said Friday it was still searching for the Sno'boy, a ship it said is missing with 55 persons aboard including two Americans.

A Navy report describing the refrigerator-ship as found was erroneous and resulted in confusion with another vessel's identity. The Navy had described the vessel as overdue in the Caribbean.

President Kennedy is spending a holiday weekend with his family that has included his driving a convertible, sailing, and handling urgent matters.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.

The freighter SS Maximus, with three pickets at dockside, has departed Port Everglades where it unloaded some 1,200 Cuban refugees amid labor strife.

The pickets were registering a protest in a jurisdictional dispute that involves hiring by the Maximus' owners of engine officials from an affiliate of the National Maritime Union rather than from those connected with the National Engineers Beneficial Association.

The dispute delayed the vessel's departure to Cuba last week.

Coolbaugh said the Edwardsville department, assisted by an Illinois fire marshal, has begun investigation of the blaze that forced evacuation of a five-block area next to the burning oil company plant Wednesday.

The fire chief said an exact damage estimate of the fire is also expected today.

Volunteer fireman Chester Michel was injured in the blaze when his clothing caught fire from the flaming warehouse where the fire was centered. Besides the warehouse, two boxcars, and two automobiles were destroyed.
