F-Senate hears report

Hopes rise for SIU '76 budget

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU budget prospects for fiscal year 1976 look very good, budget committee chairman George Mace told the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

The University has a "50-50 chance" of no budget cuts at all for next year, Mace said. "It appears that the maximum cut would be three per cent" of the present budget, he said.

The budget committee, organized by the senate to advise it on the long-range budget outlook, worked with a member of the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the SIU office of vice president for academic affairs in arriving at its conclusions.

A three per cent cut in the present budget is "most unlikely" and a cut larger than three per cent is "very unlikely," Mace said.

If a three per cent cut occurred, $1,400,000 would be lopped off the present budget in fiscal year 1976. Academic affairs in general would absorb half of this cut and six schools or colleges would suffer the rest of the cut, Mace said.

The School of Agriculture would lose $68,000 in the event of a three per cent University cutback. Communications and Fine Arts would be cut $234,468, Engineering and Technology, $114,183, Liberal Arts, $71,420, Sciences, $64,814 and School of Technical Careers would be cut $41,662, Mace said.

The projected cuts were based on figures predicted for fall semester, 1974. Other colleges and schools not listed are not expected to take cuts, Mace said.

The senate heard a report from Loren Jung, director of Institutional Research on the new methods used by the IBHE in determining full time equivalent (FTE) faculty members.

A committee was organized to study the Resource Allocation Management Program (RAMP) developed by the IBHE, Jung said. Part of the problem in reporting FTEs to the IBHE, which determines the University budget, is in how "indirect instruction" is counted towards the FTE total.

"The committee found that the faculty members didn't know what was meant by indirect instruction," he said. In many cases, work done by the instructor could be included under organizational research instead of academic instruction, he said.

A new method of filling out statistical reports for faculty members has been developed, Jung said. The chairman of each department will determine the FTE's for that department. He must then meet with individual faculty members to agree with and sign a statement of those figures.

This procedure will provide an "information flow" from the departments to the University "strategists and political deciders", Jung said. The use of political strategy is also helpful in presenting budget proposals to the IBHE, he said.

Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost, expressed to the senate his hopes for a new cooperation between campus groups and the administration.

The Senate recently submitted a report to the Board of Trustees and SIU Interim President Hiram Lesar requesting Leasure not be reappointed to his office. His reappointment was approved, however.

"There is a fear that the administration is against the faculty," Leasure said. "But some administrators are faculty members. We must work toward common goals and cooperate to reach the best decisions for the University."

"The University must always consult the faculty on academic affairs," Leasure said. Academic areas sometimes compete with each other, and the administration should work with the groups to "narrow the disciplinary paths," he said.

Unless the administration and the groups work together, the University's problems may only be beginning, Leasure said. He said he would meet regularly with Senate Chairman E. Earle Stibitz and will attend senate meetings when invited.

Sue Pace, member of the President Search Committee, told the senate the list of candidates has been narrowed from 170 applicants to 28 "excellent" people.

Of those 28, the committee is ready to bring 10 to the SIU campus beginning next week, she said. Some problems may occur in having the candidates visit the campus, since they still hold positions with other institutions and don't want their candidacy publicized, she said.

Pace said four candidates are presidents of other universities. Several others are employed on the SIU campus, she said.

The committee is trying to meet the Aug. 15 deadline for the submission of nominees to the Board of Trustees, Pace said. The committee has been instructed to submit a slate of four to six prospective candidates from which the board will select the new president.

The senate adopted a resolution written by the senate's executive committee in response to Lesar's proposed Faculty Programmatic and Personnel Review Committee and Budget Advisory Committee.

Lesar requested seven senate nominees to the faculty and program committee and three to the budget committee. The resolution asks that the two committees be combined and that it include three members from the Faculty Senate, two from the Graduate Council and one from each of the other six campus constituencies.

The resolution was adopted with the provision that it be personally delivered to Lesar by the chairman and vice chairman. They would assure Lesar that if the resolution is unacceptable, the senate will nominate members to the original two committees, the provision said.

Half-dollar to buy spin of state's fortune wheel

By Charlotte Jones
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Fifty-cent Illinois lottery tickets will mean from $20 to $1 million for 30,000 winners each week.

Legal gambling in Illinois will begin when the tickets go on sale July 30, state lottery officials said Tuesday at a public meeting at the Carbondale Holiday Inn.

A single 50-cent ticket will buy entrance to all three of the lottery games. By matching numbers with the computer, an estimated 30,000 ticket holders will win $20 each week at "lotto". About 36 persons will collect from $1,000 to $300,000 in the "bonanza" game. And for every 30 million tickets sold, one lucky gambler will cash in on $1 million.

The $1 million drawing will be held every five or six weeks, Ralph Batch, Superintendent of the Illinois State lottery, said.

The estimated number of winners is based on the prediction by the lottery control board that six million tickets will be sold each week.

Names of winners will be posted where tickets are sold and will be printed each week in Illinois daily newspapers.

The first two sets of lucky numbers will be selected randomly by a computer Aug. 8 and 15 during the Springfield State Fair. The third weekly drawing will be in Chicago Aug. 22.

After that, the Thursday drawings will rotate throughout the state—wherever the luck-filled lottery van is invited, Batch said.

About 10,000 licensed agents will be selling the 50-cent tickets to gamblers 18 and older. Out-of-state residents are welcome to try their luck.

Batch said Carbondale probably would have about 10 licensed agents—mostly supermarkets and department stores, although smaller businesses and non-profit organizations may apply.

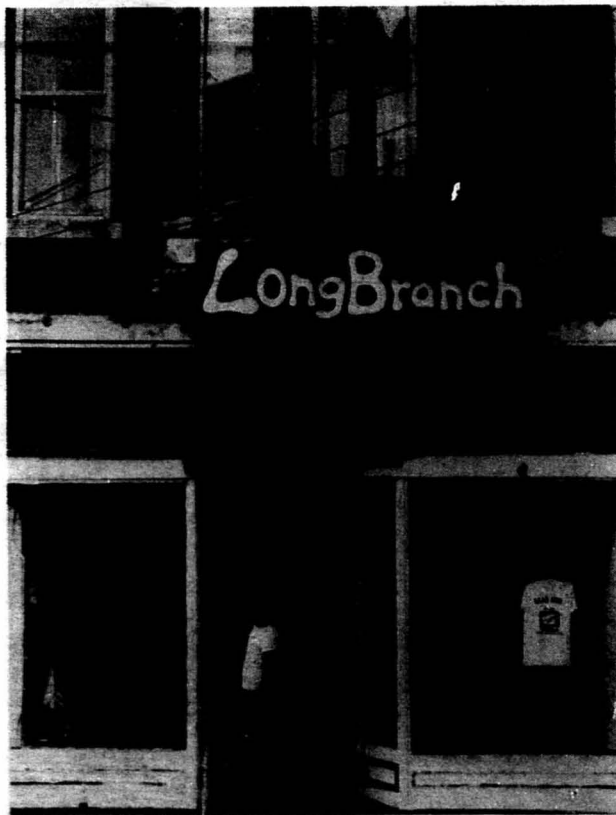

July 15 is the cutoff date for filing applications if an agent hopes to sell tickets on July 30.

Lottery agents license fees are $10 annually. Applications are available at the Illinois Department of Revenue office in Marion or from state legislators.

Illinois is expected to gross $30 million a year from the lottery—about 45 per cent will be paid in prize money, 45 per cent will go back into state revenue fund and 10 per cent will go for operating costs, Batch said.

Illinois, the 12th state to jump on the lottery bandwagon, will send more lottery money than any other state back into its revenue fund, Carlton Zucker, chairman of the Illinois Lottery Control Board, said.

Batch said other main functions of the lottery in addition to helping defray tax costs would be to reduce illegal gambling and provide "entertainment and thrills" for participants.

Mitchell starts 'hush-money' talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell went before the House impeachment inquiry late Tuesday to testify on whether President Nixon approved an alleged $75,000 hush-money payment for E. Howard Hunt.

Nixon's lawyer, James D. St. Clair, had told the House Judiciary Committee that Mitchell would testify that he, himself, cleared the March 21, 1973, payment without knowing that Nixon even knew about it.

Before Mitchell testified, William O. Bittman, attorney for Hunt, convicted Watergate conspirator, told the committee that he passed the alleged payment on to Hunt without knowing what it was.

Committee members said Bittman told them the money was delivered by a man code-named "Baker" in one of what he called hundreds of sealed envelopes regarding Watergate defendants that passed through his hands.

Former White House counsel John W. Dean III is scheduled to testify after Mitchell, possibly Wednesday. Charles W. Colson, also a former White House aide, has been added to the witness list for Friday.

According to transcripts, the President made several statements at the March 21 meeting, including: "Well, for Christ's sake get it," that some Judiciary committee members have interpreted as a go-ahead to pay the hush money.

But Judiciary members said Bittman testified he passed the envelope with the $75,000 on to Hunt unopened and that the would have refused to do so if he thought it was hush money.

"He did say that had anyone told him there was a quid pro quo he would have left the place immediately," Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., (R-N.Y.) told newsmen.

Fish said Bittman testified that a man code-named "Baker" who had delivered envelopes before called to say another would be delivered that night.

Frederick C. LaRue, a former Nixon campaign strategist, reportedly told the Judiciary Committee, as he had the Senate Watergate committee, that he was "Baker" and had made four payments through Bittman.

LaRue said he paid $25,000 to Hunt through Bittman in September, 1972, $50,000 in December, $60,000 in January 1973, and finally the $75,000 in March.

Meanwhile, Sen. John G. Tower (R-Tex.) said that the staff of the Senate Republican Policy Committee has been studying legal precedents for months in preparation for a possible impeachment trial of Nixon in the Senate.

"It is not in expectation of one," Tower told reporters. He said the policy committee has retained Stephen Goldstein, a University of Pennsylvania law professor, as a consultant in examining legal precedents of past impeachment trials. He stressed that Goldstein's work would be confined to legal and historical procedural matters.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, Senate Democratic leader, has refused to say whether the Senate Democrats are making plans for a possible trial if the House votes to impeach Nixon.

In other Watergate developments, a federal judge dismissed one of three jury charges against Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California. The dismissed count had alleged that Reinecke lied when he told a Senate committee he first discussed the possibility of bringing the 1972 GOP convention to San Diego in April 1971.

Mitchell and Kenneth W. Parkinson, Watergate cover-up defendants, asked the Supreme Court to disqualify U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica from presiding.

William M. Treadwell, a Washington lawyer who defended plumbers chief Egil Krogh briefly last year, was a surprise defense witness at the Ellsberg break-trial. Treadwell said Krogh and David Young once told him that John D. Ehrlichman did not authorize or know about the Ellsberg break-in.

Meanwhile, the House Judiciary Committee released a transcript of a White House conversation quoting President Nixon as saying of the Senate Watergate investigation: "I want you all to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else, if it'll save the plan."

In the newly included conversation, March 22, 1973, Nixon was discussing the forthcoming Ervin committee hearings with counsel John W. Dean III and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

They were talking about a "scenario" in which Nixon would offer the committee a report by Dean

Watergate and would urge Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. to conduct his investigation in closed session.

Nixon said Ervin could be told, "This is everything we know, Mr. Senator...This is everything we know; I know nothing more...if you need any further information, my, our counsel, will furnish it."

The President said he did not want his staff hurt in the Watergate matter, the way Sherman Adams, former top aide to President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was treated in an Eisenhower administration scandal.

"I think he made a, made a mistake, but he shouldn't have been sacked," the President said of Adams' firing. "I don't give a shit what happens. I want you all to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else, if it'll save it—save the plan."

Mathew Rich faces trial for bike theft

Student Trustee Mathew Rich has been charged with theft by possession and is scheduled for a jury trial on Aug. 8 in Jackson County Court.

Rodney Clutts, assistant state's attorney, said Monday that SIU student Michael E. Cullivan filed a complaint against Rich on May 16 in connection with the theft of his bicycle. Cullivan said that he filed the complaint when he learned of the whereabouts of his bike.

Cullivan reported his bike missing on Oct. 1, 1973, to SIU Security Police.

Rich was released on a $1,000 personal recognizance bond and pleaded not guilty to the charges when he appeared in Jackson County Court on June 3.

If found guilty, Rich could receive a maximum fine of $1,000 and up to one year in an institution other than a penitentiary.

Carbondale consumer council planned

A representative of the Governor's Consumer Advocate Office met with 30 members of the Carbondale community Tuesday night to discuss the formation of regional consumer advocate council in Southern Illinois.

Joel Platt, legal counsel for the office, said the councils could act as lobbies for the consumers of Illinois. "The Illinois legislature doesn't always respond to consumer oriented legislation," Platt said, in a meeting at the Carbondale Savings and Loan.

He said the councils would provide a place for consumers to take their problems, and give Gov. Daniel Walker an idea of the consumer problems in various areas of the state.

Consumer councils are being established in eight other areas.

Consumers in these areas have expressed interest in investigating such fields as automotive and television repair, food and drug pricing, door-to-door and mail order sales, and landlord-tenant relations, he said.

The Consumer Advocate Office, established in September, 1973, has already surveyed food pricing and auto repair work in the Chicago area, Platt said, and found that the consumer is being taken advantage of often.

Platt said the councils will be working in conjunction with other consumer oriented groups, such as the Illinois Public Interest Research Group.

Editorial

For a responsible press

The American press is looking pretty good these days. But appearances are deceiving, and one should not be bamboozled by the press' victory in the June 24 Supreme Court decision to strike down Florida's "right to reply" statute.

In a unanimous nine-to-zero ruling, the high Court reemphasized its position that government control over what goes into a newspaper runs contrary to First Amendment guarantees of freedom of the press. In so ruling, the Court also reiterated the sad fact that the average citizen has virtually no access or recourse to the editorial make-up of the print media.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger delivered the opinion of the Court, and while he conclusively states that to uphold the Florida law, requiring a newspaper to provide equal space to a political candidate the paper has attacked on its editorial page, would be unconstitutional by right of the First Amendment; his opinion is not without valid criticism of the press. He states that the choice of material for a newspaper must be left to the professional judgment of its editors, but adds that a responsible press has, like any other virtue, a desirable goal that "cannot be legislated."

The tone of Chief Justice Burger's opinion points up the most disheartening fact of this complex dilemma. It reads a little like Kurt Vonnegut, Jr.'s "Slaughterhouse Five," with its bittersweet sense of "mustard and roses." While it is probably best that the Supreme Court sided with the press in disallowing any outside agency, specifically legislative, to force newspaper to print what they determine should not be printed, a responsible press has by no means been achieved.

Newspapers, by virtue of sheer size and complexity, have become somewhat unresponsive to readership. Editorial decisions are made on the basis of professional standards and training — elements that other people in other walks of life do not share. Most newspapermen would be unwilling to admit it, but too often, simply because they've been in the business so long, many have lost sight of the goals and desires of other segments of our society.

The press cannot sit back on its laurels now and sink deeper into the quagmire of unresponsiveness because it appears the Supreme Court said "Okay." As experience has too painfully illustrated, the only recourse to a frustrated minority opinion is violence via the news pages.

Advocates of a free press claim that editorial control of the media must come from within the profession's own ranks. That advice must be heeded now not because of the threat of government control so much as because it just makes damn good sense.

Letter to the Editor

Educate for safety

To the Daily Egyptian:

In reply to Lynn Fellow's letter I must point out a corollary to Murphy's Laws: "Nothing can be made foolproof, because fools are so ingenious." If people want to break safety rules (sometimes known as common sense) they will do so even if there is a Federal law against it.

For example: Not all cars had safety belts, so it became a law to have them in your car. This was good, except it didn't get everyone to wear them. Then cars were fitted with interlocks to "make" you wear the safety belts. True to nature, the belts were buckled and sat upon, or the interlocks bypassed. This is against Federal law, but all too common.

Even worse are the people who refuse to wear the safety glasses provided in shops and labs. True, they are uncomfortable, but so is losing an eye. Murphy's first law is right in stating: "If anything can go wrong it will, and usually at the worst possible moment."

I agree with you on the way for control: EDUCATION! (before they learn the hard way). The only thing we will teach the children by outlawing fireworks is proper blackmarketmanship (excuse me: blackmarketpersonship) and how to bypass the laws and authorities of this land. The real losers are the bright students in the lower grades who know only enough to make themselves dangerous.

No faith in the system

After hearing of a recent murder in Carbondale, I realized I had earlier found some evidence involving the case. A few days prior to hearing of the case, I was jogging and came upon, what appeared to be, some personal belongings. When I later realized these belongings were related to the murder case I decided I would give the system the benefit of the doubt and get involved. After all, this is the only system we have. I telephoned the police.

An officer and I visited where I had seen the evidence. I remembered noticing a book that the police appeared to have no knowledge of. I was asked if I could browse through the bookstores in an attempt to recall the title. After a couple of hours of searching I still was not able to find the book.

I was told, later that day by an off-duty policeman, the book had indeed been turned in a day earlier. Not at the same time as the original evidence but never the less turned in. I thought it rather odd that half the detective squad wasn't aware of the book's presence. Well, I thought, we're all human and all capable of making mistakes.

I assumed my involvement had ended, or so I thought. The incident slowly left my mind and I went back to my usual routine. The following week I learned an employee at a business where I work had spoken to the police. It appears this individual knew more about my involvement than I did. Perhaps some of the stories were hailed from me, some collected from newspapers and radio and most from constant discussion with who knows how many partners.

Following this, I was again questioned by the police. A few stories, I assume gathered from the young employee and none of which I was aware of, were related to me. I was then asked to submit to a polygraph (lie detector test) and I consented.

That afternoon my parents, who reside 320 miles from Carbondale, called me. It appears the Carbondale police had contacted the county police where my parents reside, and they in turn contacted my parents. My mother was crying, my father advised me to get a lawyer. I didn't know what insight my parents could lend to a murder 320 miles away that they were not even aware of.

The results of the polygraph the next day were inconclusive. By now, I felt I was getting the "guilty until proven innocent" treatment.

The detectives questioned my employer. That evening my wife was "visited" at her place of employment. She was busy. They left and later returned, again wanting to talk to her. Again she was obviously busy. The detectives finally asked her to come down to the station the following day. By this time my wife was crying and scared.

Now I knew there was no other alternative. I called a lawyer. I felt harassed, scared. I was to the point where I was starting to believe the television shows where the innocent man gets convicted could become real.

I guess I am now able to understand how these events occurred. The system has repeatedly upset me, and I no longer have faith in its ideals of my protection. I came to feel I was not innocent until proven guilty, but vice-versa. I feel angry when I think of the extra long distance telephone calls and the payment of a lawyers' fee just so I could feel secure and know my parents and wife weren't worried.

Initially I wanted the murderer apprehended because our system says the guilty should be punished. Later I wanted the murderer apprehended because of what the system was doing to me.

I am young and inexperienced, my elders tell me. History has brought about many cliches. Most of them are true. The one that comes to mind is, "This is the only system you've got son, so you have to work with it." I think that's damn sad.

Human conditions

To Lynn Fellows and readers of the D.E. in regard to "Doggone It."

It is true, we do make our "contributions." But don't forget your contributions too. Many times while running through campus or down Illinois Avenue trying to elude the dog-catcher (who is subject to another letter) we cut our paws because of your broken beer and wine bottles. While swimming in Campus Lake or the pool by Morris Library, we run into countless beer and pop cans. Also to be mentioned are the paper and cardboard wrappings from McDonald's and other proprietors that litter all of SIU and Carbondale.

Next time you make note of our contributions, don't be modest, remember yours too. At least ours are 100 per cent biodegradable.

Campus Briefs

A detailed biography of Felix James, assistant professor of history at SIU will be published in the first issue of "Who's Who in the Black World"—a new biographical dictionary of noteworthy black people scheduled to appear throughout the world in 1975.

The publication is described as "a vital reference on people of African origin, and will be one of the most cumulative biographical works in existence." The publication is jointly sponsored by Florida A&M University Foundation, Inc., and New World Enterprises, Inc.

James, born in Hurtsboro, Ala., in 1937, has resided in Columbus, Ga., much of his life. A graduate of Fort Valley State College in Georgia, James obtained his master's degree from Howard University in Washington, D.C., and his doctorate from Ohio State University.

Before joining the faculty at SIU, James taught in South Carolina public schools and the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. His fields of interest include black American history, Civil War and reconstruction, history of the South and United States history and modern Middle East.

Frank G. Ethridge, SIU associate professor of geology, will be completing field research during the summer and fall under a two-year grant of about $12,000 from the American Chemical Society Petroleum Research Fund for basic studies of the texture, composition and changes of certain mineral and rock particles by stream movement.

The research project title is "Stream Transport of Granite Rock Detritus as a Function of Climate and Relief." He is trying to find out what happens to the mineral and certain other rock particles in being carried along by rivers. The grant is being used for expenses of travel, graduate students and preparing materials for laboratory study.

Ethridge says he will spend the first week of August in field research on the Broad River in eastern North Carolina. Last summer Ethridge and a graduate student spent about a month on stream research in the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada Mountains of California.

Additional field studies will be done this fall in the St. Francis Mountains area of Missouri by graduate student Henry E. "Hank" Reif of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who has been granted a fellowship under Society's Petroleum Research Fund.

Joel Preston and Jim Rohr, former general managers of campus radio station WIDB, have recently had an article published in The Journal of College Radio, a nationally distributed magazine for and about the advancement of Radio Broadcasting at the college and university level.

The article, entitled "Almost 4 Years Old...WIDB Maintains Professional Approach," describes the conception, history, present and future of the student owned and operated radio station.

Preston and Rohr are both seniors in the Department of Radio and Television.

E.L. Epstein of the department of English, has just had a chapter published in a book on James Joyce's Ulysses. It is chapter three in "James Joyce's Ulysses: Critical Essays," editors Clive Hart and David Hayman, University of California Press, 1974. The book contains chapters on Joyce's "Ulysses" from more than a dozen international authorities on the works of Joyce.

In his section, Epstein outlines Joyce's theory of time and human psychology, and continues the analysis of the works of Joyce begun in his SIU Press book, "The Ordeal of Stephen Dedalus."

A research article entitled "Teacher Training in Scandinavia," by Berniece Seiferth, associate professor in the Department of Professional Education Experiences, was selected for the May issue of "Research in Education."

The author spent a month in Scandinavia during her sabbatical leave and the article is a detailed description of the courses of study, certification and supervision of student teaching in Denmark, Norway and Sweden. The author also visited teacher training institutions in each of the three countries and conferred with ministers of education there.

First of a series of concert engagements to be presented by faculty member Dan Pressley, tenor, will be Thursday at the University of Notre Dame, before the National Conference of Catholic Musicians.

Pressley, voice faculty member and conductor of the University Chorale, will sing during the fall and winter at concerts in Michigan, Tennessee, Virginia, Missouri, North Carolina and Illinois.

On the day following his Notre Dame performance, he will conduct a master class for the attending conference musicians.

Accompanied by his wife, Nancy Pressley, he will sing works by composers Haydn, Beethoven, Ravel, Massenet, Strauss, Respighi, Cilea and Ives.

Pressley, Gastonia, N.C. native, holds bachelor's and master's degrees in music from the University of Michigan.

Response team to hold meeting on zoning, police

Carbondale's neighborhood response team, organized two weeks ago to hear complaints of zoning violations, police matters and other community problems has scheduled its first meeting for Thursday.

The four-member team of city officials will meet with 15 to 20 residents from the northwest section Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room on the third floor of city hall.

John Yow, director of code enforcement, said the city had received several calls and he expected to schedule more meetings soon.

The response team's main function will be to direct complaints to the proper city officials, Yow said. The city hopes to eliminate the problem of persons not knowing who to call in regard to reporting problems, he said.

Committee takes 38 applications for chief position

Thirty-eight applications for Carbondale police chief have been submitted to the screening committee, City Manager Carol Fry said Tuesday.

Fry said the July 15 deadline for receiving applications may be extended because of the influx of applications received within the last week.

He said a police chief probably would not be selected by the tentative Aug. 1 deadline but would be selected by Sept. 1.

Acting police chief Capt. Ed Hogan turned in his resignation last week to take a position as police chief in Centralia. Hogan will remain until Sept. 1.

Hogan is replacing former chief Joe Dakin who resigned June 4.

The screening committee will recommend three top candidates for police chief to Fry who will appoint the new chief.

BILLIARDS

Insurance rates may increase

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An official of the SIU Personnel Office told the Administrative and Professional Staff Council (APSC) Tuesday to expect rate increases from Blue Cross-Blue Shield and Continental Insurance Companies.

Joseph Yusko, in charge of benefits at the Personnel Office, told the council that "with certainty we can say we'll have some rate increases effective July 1."

Yusko said Blue Cross-Blue Shield will be raising rates to $7 per month. Continental is expected to raise their rates $4.40 per month, he added.

Yusko said he wanted to refrain from making the announcement until he found out whether the state would pick up the additional tab. "We're afraid to announce the increase in rates until they know who will pay them."

He added that the state will probably pick up the additional charges for those on the payroll, but wasn't sure whether the state would pay for dependents of those on the payroll.

A bill that would have the state pay the dependents' increase is presently awaiting the governor's signature or veto, Yusko said.

Another report was delivered by APSC President Julia Muller. Muller relayed to committee members that they have until Aug. 15 to submit four to six SIU presidential hopefuls to the Board of Trustees.

She added that the search committee has already begun to contact possible candidates.

Before adjourning APSC members established three internal committees. They are the committee on committees, formulated to suggest names of persons for possible committee assignment, the committee to revise the council's by-laws, and the communications committee, established to maintain communications between council members and their constituencies.

Black workshop series on aging to begin Saturday

A series of workshops on "The Black Aging and Aged" will be conducted by the College of Human Resources at SIU starting Saturday.

Five Saturday sessions, 9 a.m. to 12 noon, will be held at the Eurma C. Hayes Multi-Purpose Center.

This is the second series of workshops on this subject supported by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to the College for its new program, "Training Community Persons to Provide Quality Services to the Aged."

Topics and leaders for the new series include:

July 13—"An Overview of Aging," Deward K. Grissom, professor of health education;

Aug. 3—"Attitudes of the Black Aged," Harold R. Bardo, assistant professor of educational psychology.

Student to give guitar recital Thursday night

Steve Schenkel of St. Louis will be the first student at SIU to present a recital in guitar as a requirement for the Master of Fine Arts degree.

Schenkel will be assisted by two other guitarists, two vocal soloists, a double bass and a harpsichordist in playing a varied program of new and old ensemble music for guitar at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Home Economics Auditorium.

Guitar was added to the School of Music curriculum as a field of major study last fall with the appointment of John Scammon to the faculty. Scammon, a concert performer, holds the bachelor's and master's degrees in guitar from California State University at Northridge and has studied in both Spain and Italy.

Schenkel's recital is open to the public without charge.

Workshop set for journalism beginning Monday

A teachers workshop, "The Newspaper in the Classroom," will be held Monday through July 24 at SIU under School of Journalism; and St. Louis Globe-Democrat sponsorship.

All high school, junior high or elementary level teachers are eligible to attend, according to W. Manion Rice, associate professor of journalism and workshop director. College seniors also are invited to enroll.

Applications for reservations may be sent to W. Manion Rice, School of Journalism. A $15 deposit should be included.

Liquor committee to discuss licenses

The Carbondale liquor advisory board will hold a public hearing Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the University City cafeteria.

Whether to recommend issuing more liquor licenses on South Illinois Avenue is the biggest concern of the board right now. Jean Sternberg, chairman said.

Sternberg said she has received several applications for licenses along South Illinois Avenue and expects to receive more.

The board has gotten some feedback both from merchants and individual citizens who oppose more liquor establishments opening on South Illinois Avenue, Sternberg said.

The advisory board also will discuss recommending more packaged liquor licenses be issued. The four packaged liquor licenses allowed by the city liquor ordinance are being used by West Roads, East Gate, Leo's Liquor and ABC Liquor.

The board also will talk about possible creation of a new "beer only" license. The beer only license would eliminate the requirement that an establishment sell beer only with food.

Carbondale has 49 licenses including 16 Class A licenses allowing the sale of all liquor by drink to persons more than 21 years old.

The board probably will make recommendations to the city council by September, Sternberg said.

Vets Center expires with federal grant

When the federal grant that financed the Veterans Affairs Center at SIU expired on June 30, the center expired with it.

Jack O'Dell, former coordinator of the center, said Tuesday he is still looking for federal funds to maintain some of the programs the center offered the past year, but the prospects look bleak.

"I'm working on a grant proposal right now, but I don't really know if I can get a sponsor," O'Dell said.

Starting Aug. 1, there will be two federally salaried Veterans Administration representatives on campus in addition to the certification officer.

In a matter related to veterans services, Ron Hubbs of the certification office on campus said he was informed by the Veterans Administration that the emergency bill extending benefits for veterans utilizing the Korean War-era GI bill has not been signed by President Nixon.

Hubbs said the Veterans Administration cannot distribute benefit checks for July until the President signs the emergency legislation passed by the Congress. Hubbs added that the Veterans Administration said they do not know when the President will sign the bill.

City Council approves alternative school plan

The Carbondale City Council has agreed to allow an alternative school to lease space in University City Municipal Complex. Final action was delayed until next week's formal meeting.

The proposal, approved Monday night, calls for Carbondale New School, Inc., which will cover grades kindergarten through eight, to rent 3,000 square feet within the complex. The school idea was devised as a result of the deletion of the Comprehensive School Mathematics Program (CSMP) from the Carbondale elementary schools' curriculum.

The council also discussed budgeting of an additional $229,000 of Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds for the model cities program. The funds were allocated to carry the program through fiscal year 1975.

In other business the council—received a low bid of $1,000 for the Cedar Lake audit required by HUD.

—heard a proposal from the Division of Urban Renewal that Birch Street be made a thru street from Washington to Barnes (north side of town) to serve the Eurma C Hayes Center.

Councilman Hans Fischer also suggested that the city meet with surrounding water districts (that buy city water) to work out any difficulties that may occur. Fischer was referring to problems the South Highway Water District has with low water pressure.

City Manager Carroll Fry said any problems these districts had were of their own doing.

Fischer's suggestion died with no further action.

Southern Players change 'Magic Theatre Two' date

Time and dates for the Southern Players children's play, "Magic Theatre Two," have been changed to noon on Tuesday July 16, 18, 23, 25 and 30, and Aug. 1, 6 and 8, in the Laboratory Theatre of the Communications Building.

"Magic Theatre Two" was written by Sandra Deacon Mathews, and involves a group of performers who sing, dance and involve the audience in a series of short playlets on subjects of interest to children.

The actors in "Magic Theatre Two" perform as no specific characters, but shift from role to role. The play is being directed by Eelin Stewart-Harrison and Ramon DelGado of the department of theatre. Cast members include Margaret Richardson, Zo Nutt, Dawn Webber, Terry Allen, Wayne Worley, Kim Brewster and Karen Rhine.

Tickets for "Magic Theatre Two" are 50 cents for individual admission and may be purchased at the University Theatre box office. Group rates may be arranged by calling the Theatre Business Office at 453-5749.

Hunter said death can occur within a half hour if dogs are left in the heat without shade, breeze or access to water.

"If it has to be outside, it should be in the shade," Hunter said. She added "It should have clean water. Both of these are mandatory."

Hunter said during hot weather it is best to leave dogs at home, rather than make them walk on a hot pavement or beach. She said dogs should not be left in cars, because the heat in cars can become intense.

Symptoms of heat stroke in dogs, she said, are weakness, general fatigue, extreme panting and very high body temperature. She said treatment for heat stroke could be dipping the dog in cold water or cooling the animal with a fan. The dog should be taken to the vet within a half hour, she said.

Hunter said she often sees puppies down town. She said people don't realize how hot the pavement is on the pups' feet.

She said the society has received complaints of dogs being tied outside in the sun.

On another topic, Hunter reported the expansion and remodeling of the humane shelter is 85 per cent complete. She said the project will not make room for many more dogs. Providing facilities for isolation of sick animals was the most important aspect of the project, she said.

High fidelity course offered

Ken Johnson, assistant professor of physics said Tuesday a new course in the physics of communication will be offered this fall.

The course, GSA 101, "Insights into Modern Communications: From hi fi Sound to Laser Beams," will explain why sound comes from a magnetic tape, and why speakers and records work the way they do, Johnson said.

The three-hour course will meet for two lectures and a lab each week, he said.

Johnson said math will not be used and students will have the opportunity to use the best high fidelity equipment available.

He said the last third of the course will be concerned with how television works and with satellite and laser communication.

Johnson said he will teach sections of the course at 11 a.m. and at noon. He said his knowledge it is the only course of its kind being taught in the United States.

CSEC to meet

The Civil Service Employees Council (CSEC) will meet at 1 p.m. Wednesday in General Classrooms 121.

This month's meeting will include reports from the traffic and parking committee, the faculty-staff benefits committee, the presidential selection committee and the rules committee.

'Super Mex' arrives with new confidence for golf's British Open

By Will Grimsley
AP Special Correspondent

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England—Lee Trevino breezed into this old seaside links community full of charm and chatter and bristling with a confidence that bodes trouble for rivals in this week's British Open Golf Championship. "Haven't slept for 30 hours—almost two days without a wink," he said. "This is the way I beat the jet lag. Tomorrow I'll be right on the British time schedule."

The garrulous Trevino never stopped talking as he entered the wind-battered brick clubhouse with an armful of sweaters and caps, registered and received assignment to locker No. 115. It was the Trevino of old—the fresh, ebullient golf hustler out of El Paso, Tex., who joined the tour in 1967 and in the next five years won two U.S. and two British Open championships.

Shortly afterwards, his happy disposition faded. He didn't talk or laugh so much. He became largely a loner on the tour. In some tournaments, he parked a trailer near the golf course and never dressed in the locker room.

His admirers began to worry. Then in recent weeks the dark-haired Latin with the runaway tongue and fantastic shot repertoire has emerged from his cocoon.

"I don't like to lay off before a tough tournament," he said. "I like to play the week before, get to the tournament late and have no more than two practice rounds. I play better."

This is the policy Trevino followed when he won the British Open at Royal Birkdale in 1971 and when he repeated by beating Jack Nicklaus at Muirfield, Scotland, in 1972.

Lee was disappointed when he flew into Blackpool by charter from London after an overnight commercial flight from Milwaukee, where he finished fifth in last weekend's Milwaukee Open. The weather was sunny and mild with virtually no wind.

"When I come here I expect it to be cold and windy and raining like hell," he said. "That's the way I like it. Others may not like it, but for me, the more wind and rain the better."

Trevino said he had hammered the blades of his clubs to give him a low trajectory.

"No one hits the ball lower into the wind than I do, unless it's Gary Player," he said. "Gary will be hard to beat on this course."

Jack Nicklaus, seeking his third British crown, is a 5-1 favorite in the 72-hole tournament, starting Wednesday, with Player, the reigning Masters champion, second choice at 7-1.

Reds need to catch fire if Dodgers are to be passed

CINCINNATI (AP)—A momentary backslide or another off-year?

That's the question puzzling baseball as the Cincinnati Reds flirt with disaster.

While Manager Sparky Anderson steadfastly has refused to concede an inch to the runaway Los Angeles Dodgers, he is admitting one thing.

"The only way we have a chance is if we can get sizzling," said Anderson, pondering the problems of a plunge that could prove fatal.

Although mired 10 games behind the Dodgers in National League standings through Sunday, Anderson waves off talk that the Reds are staggering toward a repeat of 1971 when they finished fourth a year after a World Series appearance.

He's convinced there's still time to overtake the Dodgers.

"At the start of the season I didn't think anyone could win 95 games in the Western Division because of the balance," Anderson said. "Now we have to shoot for 100 wins, and if the Dodgers win more than that...they've earned it."

What's the cure for the sluggish defending division champs?

"If I knew that I'd be a millionaire. I wouldn't have to work," Anderson said. "We haven't played well, but still I feel this is the best club I've ever had."

"Feeling that way, I expect to be first."

The problem is not in the attitude of the club—one of the best-salaried in baseball—maintains Anderson.

"I have never questioned the attitude of this team," he said. "I know what they've done for me, and I do not feel any of them have become complacent. They are trying as hard as they can."

Statistics show one-run games have been the ruin of the Reds. Anderson agrees.

Women organize summer softball team, league

A group of young women from the Northeast side of Carbondale have formed a neighborhood softball team called the "Women's Liberators". The team is captained by Lucinda Vinson and Frances Laster.

With a 4-1 record, the team is accepting open invitations for further tournament play. Young women interested in forming a team or playing a team should contact coaches Alfred Evans or Donald Roland, both students in the SIU School of Medicine, at either 457-2610 or 549-6485 after 5 p.m.

League formation is hoped to be completed by Monday, July 15.

Meriweather gets eight as U.S. dumps Canada

The United States World Games basketball team set down Canada, 115-95 Monday to advance undefeated into a match with Cuba at the World Games in San Juan, Puerto Rico. SIU's Joe C. Meriweather scored eight points, the first game he has failed to score in double figures.

John Lucas, a guard from Maryland, led the Americans with 22 points and was helped by forward Tom Boswell of South Carolina who had 20.

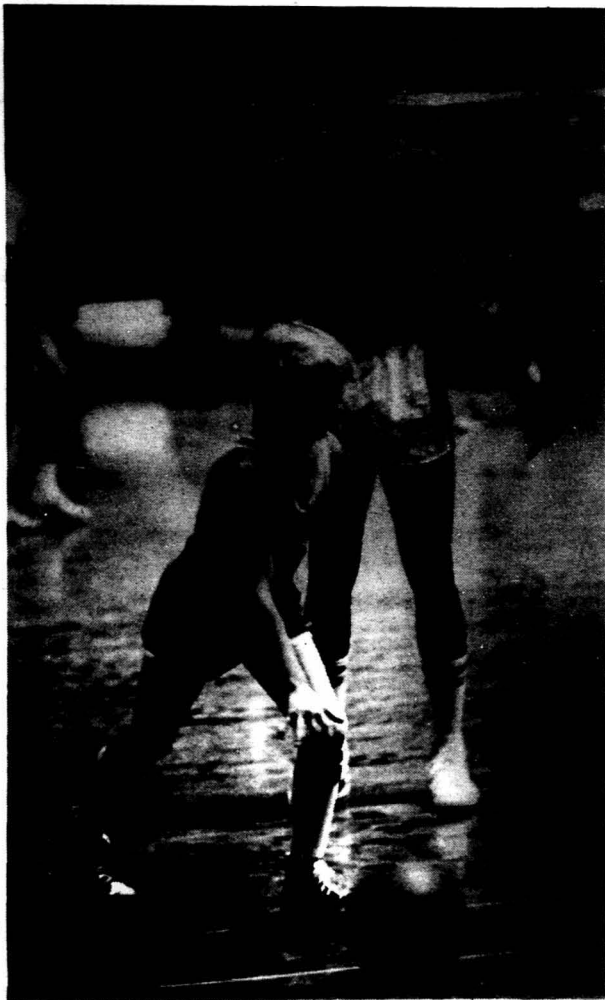

The U.S. beat the Canadian press with the speed of Indiana's Quinn Buckner, Gus Gerard and Lucas.

Racquetball Club sets schedule

The Campus Racquetball Club has announced its summer tournament schedule for SIU racquetball players. A Class C tournament will be held for beginning players July 13-14 on the handball courts east of the SIU Arena.

The entry fee for Class C players is $3 for males and $2 for females. Plaques will be awarded to the tournament's top two players and a one year membership in the International Racquetball Association is also being given for the third place contestant.

Registration for the tournament will take place from 1-5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday in the Office of Recreation and Intramurals, Room 128 of the SIU Arena. Each participant will play a minimum of two tournament matches and may play as many as nine matches.

Watchful wait

Six Cincy home runs turn back Cubs, 8-5

CHICAGO (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds smashed six home runs, including a three-run shot by George Foster, for an 8-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

Foster's homer in the sixth followed five solo shots by Cincinnati in the first three innings.

Joe Morgan started the Reds' home-run barrage in the first, Tony Perez and Cesar Geronimo connected in the second, and Don Driessen and Johnny Bench homered in the third, chasing starter Steve Stone, 3-3.

Foster's blast, his third homer of the baseball season, came after singles by Bench and Geronimo.

Jack Billingham benefitted from the Reds' slugging and won his ninth game against six losses. It was his third victory this season over the Cubs, who blasted two homers.

Rick Monday hit his 10th homer in the fourth inning and Jose Cardenal smacked a two-run homer, his seventh, in the sixth when Billingham was knocked out and relieved by Pedro Borbon.

Cincinnati's six homers were two short of the major league record by one team but matched the National League season high set by the Pittsburgh Pirates against the Cubs April 17.

The homers were the 11th of the season for Morgan, the 15th for Perez, the fourth for Geronimo and the 16th for Bench.

After Cardenal hit his homer, Billingham retired Billy Williams but left after yielding a single to Bill Madlock. Borbon came in and gave up singles to Andre Thornton and George Mitterwald before retiring the side.

Borbon escaped trouble in the seventh when the Reds pulled off their third double play of the game after Don Kessinger had singled and Monday had walked.
