Purchasing probe given to grand jury

By Steve Meech
Staff Writer

A federal investigation of a alleged purchasing irregularities at SIU-C has been turned over to a grand jury.

The investigation started internally earlier this year, was turned over to federal authorities because it required "further investigation," John Baker, Postal Service. Al Somit's special assistant for budgeting and planning, said Monday.

Baker, unavailable for Tuesday's press conference, said Monday that the investigation examined a "problem in following purchasing procedures set by state and university laws." The alleged irregularities occurred in 1979.

Robert Simpkins, an attorney for the federal district attorney's office in East St. Louis, said Tuesday that only cases with "merit" are turned over to a grand jury. "When someone comes in with an allegation, we must determine if federal law may have been violated and if it merits further investigation by a grand jury," Simpkins said.

Although only state laws are alleged to have been violated, that does not rule out the participation of federal investigators, Simpkins said. "Something can be both state and federal in scope," he said.

Cliff J. Proud, a spokesman for the district attorney's office, confirmed Tuesday that the investigation had been sent to a grand jury, but declined to comment on its progress.

"All matters under investigation are grand jury matters and because it's secret, I would violate the law if I said anything," Proud said.

State auditors auditors now at SIU-C investigating the alleged purchasing irregularities, according to Lee Malany, assistant auditor general.

Malany said the state auditors were originally at SIU-C investigating the alleged irregularities, but had also investigate the alleged irregularities. He did not know how many auditors were involved in the audit process.

"We'll try to discover what went wrong and what scope the audit should take," Malany said. "It's hard to say which, if any, violations went on until we have more knowledge as to what happened." Malany said he found out about the alleged irregularities "a couple of weeks ago." Malany said that, to his knowledge, SIU-C has not violated any specific federal purchasing laws.

"It's hard to find any specific laws concerning electronic data processing equipment and procurement," Malany said.

The only "specific" laws, Malany said, are those allowing multi-year contracts, leasing of equipment and bypassing of the Arthur Andersen Co. According to Baker, the U.S. Postal Service also is involved in the investigation of the alleged irregularities.

Darice Coplin, assistant inspector for fraud charges for the St. Louis division of the U.S. Postal Service, refused to say Tuesday whether the postal service was investigating the alleged irregularities. He said he did not want to jeopardize any ongoing investigation.

He did say that postal service inspectors would be investigating the alleged irregularities only if mail fraud is involved.

Jack Simmons, SIU-C's internal auditor director, said Tuesday that he could not comment on anything regarding the alleged irregularities investigation.

"I don't feel free to give any information," Arden said. "Mr. Baker is handling it." Malany said the alleged irregularities were discovered last fall by Arthur Andersen's special audit of U.S. Defense projects.

U.S. troops may aid in PLO evacuation

By The Associated Press

President Reagan said Tuesday he has agreed "in principle" to dispatch up to 1,000 U.S. combat troops to west Beirut for perhaps 30 days to evacuate Palestinian Liberation Organization guerrillas.

Reagan opened his remarks to a group of local officials in Los Angeles with what he called "a brief update" on the decision, which had been revealed earlier by deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

"The situation is too sensitive for detailed discussion, but I can report to you that this weekend, in discussions with Mr. (special Mideast envoy Philip) Habib, the government of Lebanon told us that a multinational force might be essential for temporary peacekeeping in Beirut and informally proposed that the United States consider making a contribution to that force," he said.

"The Lebanese government has not made a formal proposal, but I have agreed in principle to contribute a small contingent of U.S. personnel, subject to certain conditions." He gave no further details and said, "Obviously, there's much work still to be done. I can't overemphasize the delicacy of these negotiations."

Speakes raised the possibility Tuesday that the PLO forces, surrounded by Israeli troops, could be transported out aboard U.S. ships.

Speakes said the Lebanese government had requested the U.S. participation and that Habib, who has been negotiating a settlement in the Israeli occupation of Lebanon, had urged Reagan to approve the plan.

Because the U.S. forces, which Speakes estimated could number between 800 and 1,000, would be armed for combat, he said, "We would want to ensure that they could comply with the War Powers Act and that the U.S. forces would be deployed "until we had reached a peace agreement on their safety."

The U.S. offer to help defuse the situation by providing a cease-fire in the past month was broken apart by gunfire from Israeli tanks and artillery pounded Palestinian guerrillas firing mortars and rockets from blockaded west Beirut Tuesday.

"Hundreds of thousands of besieged inhabitants face the danger of certain death from hunger, from thirst and from disease," Lebanon's Red Cross said.

But Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman Hadi Asfour said any evacuation plan involving the United States was "ridiculous, because the PLO is put in a weak position to accept such offers, and because you don't expect the aggressor to come to the rescue of the victim."
Reagan calls flat-rate income tax ‘tempting,’ worth looking at

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan said Tuesday a flat-rate income tax would be “tempting” even though Congress last January is his willingness to keep the $11-billion food
tax would dry up deductible contributions.

But “I don’t think people would quit giving…simply because we changed thesystem of taxation,” he said, adding that a simplified tax system “is somethingworth looking into.”

Reagan, addressing legislators and local leaders from 13 Western states, also unveiled a revised — and slimmed-down version of his “new federalism” plan, calling this time for the states to take over $23 billion worth of programs from Washington.

The major difference in the modified package from the $50-billion plan Reagan outlined last January is his willingness to keep the $11-billion food stabilization program.

Details of the slimmed-down version, obtained from White House sources, were outlined by The Associated Press.

Reagan’s first public comment on the half-baked version, transmitted in a lengthy negotiation with state leaders, was overshadowed by his remarks on income taxes, however.

“The flat rate does look tempting,” Reagan told the 125 officials. He said he believes taxpayers are “pretty fed up” with the complexities of the current tax system, which, he said, sometimes can’t be explained even by Internal Revenue Service agents.

But “I know that many charities and educational institutions are concerned that this may dry up giving,” the president said.

“The more I think of it, we can’t possibly give people on earth,” Reagan added. “I don’t think people would quit giving what they give simply because we changed the system of taxation. After all, people were contributing to charity long before there was a system of taxation.”

It was Reagan’s strongest tilt to date in favor of an income tax which would give a percentage figure for Americans in all income brackets and eliminate the system of itemizing deductions.

As for the modified “new federalism” plan, Reagan declared that “it’s going to take you people at the grassroots to get this through the Congress.”

Teachers protest tuition tax credits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of public school teachers marched Tuesday to vent their frustration with President Reagan’s policies while union leaders vowed to “bury” Reagan’s promised tax breaks.

While the 7,000 National Education Association delegates and their families paraded for a mile through downtown Los Angeles with homemade anti-Reagan placards, the president was elsewhere in the city for a meeting with elected officials.

The teachers marched along downtown sidewalks, chanting “America’s strength: Public Education,” and carrying signs that read “RIF (Reduction in Force) Reagan” or “Education is Our Best Defense.”

NEA President William H. McGurk, leading the march in a red NEA baseball cap and three-piece suit, said the demonstration was intended “to show the American public our concern for public education and the current threats to public schools.”

The White House in April spurned an invitation for Reagan to address the 1.6 million-member association, the nation’s second largest union, saying “it is certain the president will be unable to add this engagement to his com-

The NEA closed ranks with its archrival, the American Federation of Teachers, on Tuesday in a united front against tuition tax breaks.

Reagan sent Congress a bill in June to give tax credits of up to $500 per child for parents of private school children.

Cody probe closed without charges

CHICAGO (AP) — A lengthy federal probe of the alleged misuse of up to $1 million in church funds by the late Cardinal John P. Cody has ended without any indictments, U.S. Attorney Dan K. Webb said Tuesday.

Weeb's announcement came more than a month after the death of Cody, head of the nation's largest and wealthiest Roman Catholic archdiocese for nearly 17 years. The archdiocese has 2.4 million members.

The archbishop, who died April 26 of a heart attack at the age of 74, was investigated because of allegations he diverted tax-exempt church money to his lifelong friend and stepcousin, Helen Dolan Wilson. Both Mrs. Wilson and Cody had denied any wrongdoing.

The Very Rev. John Richard Keating, acting administrator of the archdiocese, responded to Webb's announcement by saying: "Confident always in this outcome, we are pleased to hear the news which adds more depth to our fond memories of the cardinal."

Mrs. Wilson, a St. Louis resident, could not be reached immediately for comment. Her Chicago attorney, Leonard Ring, was out of town and declined comment at a news conference Tuesday.

Don Renben, the archdiocese lawyer, said, "I don't think any comment from me is appropriate." But he added: "It kind of closes the book, doesn't it?"

Webb said, "Since the death of Cardinal John P. Cody, I have extensively reviewed and evaluated the remaining allegations as they relate to other persons and have discussed the evidence as to these allegations with the grand jury."

"My office has applied our normal investigative guidelines, and the decision has been made not to seek any indictments from the grand jury, and the investigation is closed."

Tuck Industries purchases plant it rented for 20 years

After leasing their North Illinois Avenue plant from the Carbondale Industrial Commission for the past 20 years, Tuck Industries of Carbondale has purchased the plant.

Tuck paid $200,000 to the Carbondale Industrial Commission for purchase of the plant. The commission, a not-for-profit organization consisting of city officials, the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, StU-C representatives and community groups, was given title to the site in 1961 by the city.

According to Franklyn H. Moreno, director of Economic Development for the commission, the city was given the plant by Kroger Co., who had used the site for a warehouse.

Since coming to Carbondale in 1961, Tuck Industries has become the city's largest industrial employer, with 560 workers and an annual payroll of $4.5 million. Moreno said Tuck also plans to install a new $1.5 million coating machine designed to produce more tape in less time. The new machine is estimated to produce an additional 50 to 100 jobs at the time.

Tuck was recently awarded a $2.5 million contract to make pressure-sensitive tape for the federal government. Plant officials said that contract would probably prevent seasonal layoffs in the future.

The Carbondale Industrial Commission was formed in 1961 to bring industry and additional jobs to the city.

Student drowns in swimming pool

An SIU-C student was found drowned at 17:15 p.m. Monday in the Danz Apartments pool, 250 S. Lewis Lane, according to Carbondale Police.

John Sey, 30-year-old senior physical education major, was pronounced dead at 18:16 p.m. According to the police report, no signs of foul play or drugs were found. An autopsy will not be performed. No lifeguard was on duty at the time of the drowning.

No lifeguard was on duty at the time of the drowning. Dennis McBee, manager of Danz Apartments, said that the pool does not have a lifeguard because it is a private pool and the state does not require a lifeguard.

Reagan opens mouth, inserts his foot again

RONALD REAGAN has put his foot in his mouth at many press conferences since he became president. Misquoting facts and misinterpreting information have been regular features of his press conferences, and he has been grilled for it, both on the editorial pages and in cartoons—Garry Trudeau has assailed him recently with "The President's Feet."

But at his June 30 press conference, Reagan put both feet in his mouth. When questioned about the resignation of former Secretary of State Alexander H. Haig Jr., he said: "If I thought that there was something involved in this that the American people needed to know well before I became president then I would be frank with the American people and tell them."

GRANTED, THE PUBLIC is not entitled to know every fact about the inner workings of government, as when disclosure would endanger national security. However, when a top-level official like the secretary of state resigns, the cause of the resignation is generally of direct public interest. Hence, questions are raised about what direction the policy is taking. It makes people wonder about the ability of the president and his administration. Does a top-level official support a major policy change? Is he ready to make it public, or is he ready to deny it? Certainly the public should be informed about the resignation of a top-level official of state. It is not an issue of national security.

REAGAN HAS BEEN called a figure-head president, a man who allows his cabinet to make decisions for him while he does not engage in the policy debates. "Where are your advisor's feet?" is a frequent question. Reagan does not have to make public the working of his cabinet, but the American people and tell his cabinet to make decisions for him while he does not engage in the policy debates. Even famous columnists have those "Murphy's Law" days

SCARBOROUGH, Va.—Little after 6 o'clock on a recent Monday morning, a popular newspaper columnist awoke and inserted frame of mirror at his modern home in the Blue Ridge Mountains. After the usual natal ablutions, which were completed without significant mishap, he bent to tie his shoes. A shoelace broke.

So the day began. James, that for the fellow's name, at first attempted to be the broken end to the surviving end, but at that hour of the day he could not remember a square knot for a gravy knot, and there was not enough long in any event. So he looked the surviving end, trying to make a point on it, and even so, the20130020020884

The Chesterton editor was a little blue book, blue-gray, something like that, with the title in gold. It might not have been shelved alphabetically; it might have been slipped into the section on religion. But no.

Our subject's loving spouse awakened by the coloquy with the rabbits, "You're going on the scene. You burned the bacon," she observed. "Who moved my favorite dish?" he demanded. The coffee was on the floor. So the day continued.

The famous columnist went to his office, his beloved secretary, who is sometimes adoring but more often not, was black, and he assumed her. "What stinks?" she delicately inquired. The family dog was on the plate. "It is a small blue book," he replied, indicating the larger problem. The day's letters began with a fan letter from Texas. "I see you're on your lasy stuff," this amiable gentleman wrote, and then it became abusive.

During the course of the morning, our subject made 38 telephone calls. On 17 occasions, the number was busy; on five he was put on hold; on three times the operator was in a meeting, twice a recorded message informed him that only an ignorant person would permit himself to be completed as dialed. The Chesterton could not be found in a section of miscellaneous essays. Thinking that physical exercise might improve his disposition, James took to a nearby country store and his secretary. She beat him 6-4, 6-1, with all fives.

In the late afternoon a violent thunderstormward a social call. The electric power went out, the water pump was of the water pump, thus killing a therapeutic beam of water. Through the open bedroom window, the torrential rain poured upon the bedstead, damaging five books and two magazines. The Chesterton, a small volume, bound in blue, was not put among them. The rain did not improve the family dog.

James drank his dinner, our subject, and before he was asleep, his head aching, to perceive that the rabbits were back. This time the numbered 14, and they all wore green berets.
The USO Minority Affairs Commission, perhaps unbeknownst to many students, deals with more than just the rights of blacks on campus. It also speaks for and about handicapped students and the foreign student community at SIUC.

The commission, part of the executive cabinet of the Undergraduate Student Organization, promotes the concerns of black, handicapped and international students at SIUC, said Karriem Shari'ati, a public affairs and marketing major and 1981-82 commissioner.

The idea for starting the commission, he said, began during the 1980-81 administration of USO president Paul Matalonis. The Black Affairs Council came up with the proposal for forming the commission and Matalonis expanded it to include international and handicapped students who didn't have a voice in student affairs, Shari'ati said.

During that year, the commission organized April's Black Media Rally and sponsored a resolution in support of the student-published Black Observer, he said. The resolution, he said, was sent to SIU-C President Albert Somit, all the University's academic vice presidents and the Daily Egyptian. The commission also was active in negotiations dealing with the status of WIDB's Soul Entertainer show. The commission also has been compiling a list of physical barriers to handicapped students on the SIU-C campus, Shari'ati said. These barriers include two bridges in Thompson Woods which don't have rails on them, two Thompson Point dormitories inaccessible to wheelchair students, the lack of automatic doors at the Student Center and the Recreation Building and the Rec Building's elevator panel, which is too high for a person in a wheelchair to use.

The commission also suggested that Braille be put on Morris Library elevators and that sound devices for determining locations be installed on campus, said Dan Thompson, a learning disabilities and English major, and assistant commissioner in 1981-82. Shari'ati said that a directory for the accessibility of housing for handicapped students was a commission project in fall 1981, in conjunction with the USO's housing and housing committee. Thompson said it is hoped that the directory will be available near the end of the upcoming fall semester.

Gypsy’ strippers delightful, imaginative

Vaudville burlesque show successful

Gypsy Rose Lee.

Born Rose Louise Hol-Jck in Seattle in 1914, Gypsy had what Judy Garland had and what Brooke Shields has - lots of pizzazz, plenty of star quality, pretty fair looks. And a mother who loved show biz and all that goes with it more than anything.

Madame Rose, that quintessential stage mother, is the main impetus of the McLeod family. "A showbiz queen that quipped, "there are few other women of those days who could measure up to our Rose."

"Gypsy," running Wednesday through Sunday evenings this week.

Chris Banholzer was splendid as the dancing, domineering mama who knows what she wants for her girls. Her Rose is consistent in dictating herself about her daughters' wishes. Banholzer can belt out songs that are classics by now. The renditions of "Everything's Coming Up Roses" and "Rose's Turn" were stirring and very pizazz, says the writer.

Rose is intent that her lovely girls become stars in vaudville. Baby June is the tap-dancing apple of her mother's eye. Her one with talent, whose name is going to be in lights someday. (Years later she became actress June Havoc.) Baby Louise, the elder daughter "with no talent" except sewing her sister's costumes, is the daughter Rose sets out in a bumazine house in hopes of creating a star. Both young victims were very well played by young Halligan Lyons and Amy Hunter, respectively.

White Rose is the main impetus of the show, the focus is on Louise, who is always shoved into the background in order to push June into the limelight. Lisa Ann Davis was a lovely Louise, reluctant to be a star when June elopes with a dancer, and yet wanting to please her mother and make the family's mark in the business.

Davis was an even lovelier Gypsy, the woman who does it on her own, making her burlesque act the class act it was, and knowing that talent isn't everything, that guts and humor go along with it.

Other stand-outs were Daryl Vaughan as Rose's love interest and manager, Herbie, who loves children, has ideas and wants a wife, which Rose will never be. Sherrie Stricklin's Agnes was a comic gem, playing a backup "Hollywood Blonde" who wants her stage name to be Agnes. And the dance solo by Jeff Curley was great as he practices to become a nightclub dancer.

The big scene-stealers were the strippers. Mary Jane Stephens, Linda Kostaik and Mary Lion Snyder were glorious as the teasers in "You Gotta Get a Gimmick." Their costumes are somewhat risque, but delightful and very imaginative.

The costumes for the strip numbers by Gypsy were also outstanding and were designed by Judith E. Marcus. The set design and lighting designs by Lang Reynolds worked - all and evoked old-time showbiz glitz. The orchestra, under the direction of Michael Hanes, was up to its usual level of excellence, though during Banholzer's solos it seemed her voice had problems carrying over it.

All in all, George Pinney's direction made the production the success it was. When Gypsy Rose Lee sings "Let Me Entertain You" in "Gypsy," she will.

The Pleasant Hill Road - Wall Street intersection will be closed to traffic for about four weeks beginning Monday morning, July 12, according to city officials. The closure is due to construction of the Pleasant Hill Road overpass project. The project is one part of an $82 million railroad realignment plan that includes the already-completed Amtrak station and depression of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks through downtown.

Gosnell said Wall Street, Grand Avenue and U.S. Route 51 can be used as alternate routes for west bound traffic, and Wall Street, Park Street and Warren Road can serve as substitutes for east bound travelers.
Blood drive helps type ‘O’ need

The amount of type ‘O’ blood received from the SIU-C blood drive, which was held last week, has not been determined but the acute need for type ‘O’ has been alleviated, said Harold

A clarification

Donald Elmore, president of the Murphysboro Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday that the blood drive was chartered by the state as a non-profit corporation with Mrs. Taticek as president.

Lend a Helping Hand was registered in January as a non-profit corporation chartered by the state. Mrs. Taticek, as saying that Lend a Helping Hand was not a non-profit corporation, said the chamber does not charter organizations and that Lend a Helping Hand is not a chamber member.

Valley sends nine-to NBA squads

By Jackie Rodgers
Staff Writer

The Missouri Valley Conference had nine players drafted in the June 29 NBA Draft, including three first round picks. Only the Southwest Conference had more first round choices.

Bobby Henderson, second baseman for the San Diego Padres, was selected in the first round, 12th overall. Henderson hit .310 with 13 home runs and 85 runs batted in during his senior year at Wichita State in 1982.

The second round of the draft saw Mike Frost, center from Indiana University, being selected 33rd overall by the San Antonio Spurs. Frost, who was his school's most valuable player as a junior, averaged 19.5 points and 10.3 rebounds per game during his senior season.

The third round saw Jamie Bass of Bradley University selected 59th overall by the Denver Nuggets. Bass, a forward, averaged 17.2 points and 8.5 rebounds per game during his senior season.

In the fourth round, the San Antonio Spurs selected Greg Stewart of Oklahoma State University with the 117th overall pick. Stewart, a guard, averaged 18.0 points and 6.0 assists per game during his senior season.
