Opening of highway to ease traffic

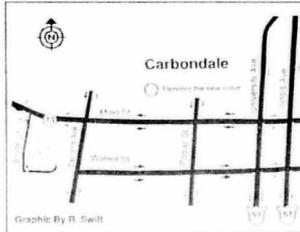

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale's East-West Couple will open to traffic Tuesday morning, more than 20 years after it was first proposed.

The couple will open and traffic patterns will change between midnight July 8 and 6 a.m. July 9, said Bob Zieba, construction engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation District 9.

Main Street will become one-way going west to Bleyer Drive, and the diagonal part of the couple and Walnut Street will become one-way going east. The diagonal is three lanes wide, but only two lanes will open Tuesday.

Main Street currently has two lanes going west and one going east. Walnut Street also has two-way traffic.

Motorists traveling toward Carbondale from Murphysboro will be able to take the couple diagonal near Hardee's, connect with Walnut Street and continue east through the Walnut Street Historic District.

The Walnut Street Historic District extends from the south side of Main Street to the south property lines of the lots on the south side of Walnut Street and from the alley between Forest Avenue and Springer Street to Poplar Street.

"The first couple of days will be different," Zieba said. "But once you get it open, everybody will follow everybody else."

City Manager Steve Hoffner said construction of the $2 million East-West Couple was funded by the state.

Al Thomas, resident engineer for the East-West Couple project, said construction began in July 1990 and progressed ahead of schedule. The couple was to be completed by Dec. 1, 1991.

The route is designed to save time and

A part of Carbondale's old history will be connected to the city's new history via the East-West Couple.

The East-West Couple, which is scheduled to open to traffic early Tuesday morning, will connect Main Street with Walnut Street and the Walnut Street Historic District.

Americans pay tribute to gulf vets on Fourth

United Press International

Americans celebrated the Fourth of July with military flair Thursday, paying special tribute to Operation Desert Storm veterans as they remembered the Declaration of Independence with traditional parades and pyrotechnics.

New Yorkers were asked to kick off the city's fireworks with the "world's largest cheer" for the Persian Gulf warriors, while President Bush visited the quieter community of Marshfield, Mo., for a small-town celebration.

The holiday was marred by a malfunction Wednesday night that sent fireworks falling into a crowd of several thousand in Chicago Heights, injuring 14 people, none seriously. A 12-year-old boy was seriously injured in after falling 40 feet from a Chicago bridge while watching fireworks.

the lighting ceremony for Florida's Freedom Flame was arrested in Tallahassee Thursday when he refused to hand over his film. The demonstrator, a member of a veterans group, was released after agreeing to sell the film to authorities.

Several military units that served in the Gulf War snapped salutes to the commander in chief as they paraded under bright blue skies in the town of 5,000 people, located about 20 miles northeast of Springfield.

The president, whose Independence Day plans also called for a stop at festivities in Grand Rapids, Mich., and nighttime fireworks in the nation's capital, paid tribute remarks to Gulf War veterans and spoke of the value of small-town America.

Yugoslavian military demands Slovenia to release border

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Slovenia refused Thursday to relinquish control of international border checkpoints, prompting the federal military to threaten "very serious consequences," while bloody ethnic clashes erupted in the fellow breakaway republic of Croatia.

Meanwhile, federal Prime Minister Ante Markovic acknowledged for the first time that the Yugoslav People's Army was acting without civilian control when it moved in on Slovenia's international border

Nine states struggle to balance books as deadlines get stale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans gamely celebrated Independence Day Thursday as their states and cities sank deeper into fiscal quagmires.

In the worst cases, state and local governments face economic calamities that call up images of Third World basket cases.

In Connecticut and Maine, state workers protested massive layoffs, while on the other side of the country Californians faced their biggest tax increase ever.

Those states and seven others —

Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin — began their new fiscal years without budgets, having failed to enact them by midnight Sunday deadlines.

Cities, too, are battling desperately to stave off financial disaster.

The Big Apple, fiscally speaking, is rotten to the core. Labor leaders representing New York City workers must make concessions just to buy back some of the thousands of layoffs that began Friday.

Detroit has laid off 300 police, leaving that violent city with more killings and fewer cops than it had a decade ago.

Here in the nation's capital, the District of Columbia City Council voted Tuesday to fire up to 2,000 workers.

Small towns also are in desperate financial straits, some of them finding it difficult to fund

Top track athletes to meet at SIUC

By John Sommerhof
Staff Writer

The fireworks may have ended Thursday night, but the Mid-America Classic track and field meet Saturday will explode with talented athletes.

The field of 110 athletes includes future and past olympians, post collegiate NCAA All-Americans and collegiate athletes.

Kathleen Raske, the associate meet director, will compete in the 100-meter hurdles.

She said the field is full of national caliber athletes.

Ed Williams, a member of the SIUC track team, is familiar to world class competition.

Williams ran 110-meter hurdles in the New York Mobile Games, where the field included track stars George Foster, Renaldo Neamiah and Tony Cambell.

"There is a good field put together and there should be some great competition," Williams said. "I'll be ready come Saturday."

Williams said about three men in his field run in 13.7 seconds, and two more are solid 14-second runners.

Williams runs a 13.8.

But the hurdles will not be the only event with top athletes jumping to success.

Jeff Hartwig, a pole vaulter from Arkansas, will compete against his training partner and former roommate Kelly Riley.

"Riley is having a real good year," Hartwig said. "He jumped 18-61/2 and he's in for a lot of traveling this year."

Riley is a member of the World Track Team and has qualified for World Championships in Tokyo and the World University Games in Sheffield, England.

Hartwig said vaulter Jeff Buckingham, a 1988 American record holder who has come out of retirement for the Olympic trials, will be at the Mid-America Classic.

Raske said she is excited about the meet. "This is the best meet that Southern Illinois has ever seen," she said.

The meet will be at McAndrew Stadium on the SIUC campus. Opening ceremonies begin at 3:30 p.m. Saturday with closing ceremonies at 7:45 p.m.

Boating mishaps

Statewide accidents increase in 1990

By Jackie Spinner
Sports Editor

Boating accidents in Jackson County have increased slightly over the past five years, a trend that follows a statewide increase of boating accidents in 1990.

The Illinois Department of Conservation reports statewide boating accidents have increased by 50 percent from 1989 to 1990, and boating-related fatalities almost doubled in 1990.

The department recorded 146 boating accidents with 26 deaths, 107 injuries and about $405,000 worth of property damage last year.

In 1989 the department recorded 97 accidents with 14 fatalities, 70 injuries and property damage of more than $785,000.

Jackson County reported five boating accidents in 1990. All the accidents took place on Lake Kinkaid.

Jack Cohlmeier, Southern Illinois commander of Conservation Law Enforcement, said most boating accidents and almost all accident-related deaths can be avoided.

"The figures don't show it, but about 70 percent of all boating-related deaths each year are alcohol-related," he said.

Because boating is a recreational activity, many boaters consume alcohol while operating their boats, Cohlmeier said.

"It compounds on water with the wind, sun and glare of the water," he said. "It's hypnotic."

Although Illinois law does not prohibit alcohol on boats, it penalizes people for operating boats with a blood-alcohol content of .10 or greater.

Southern Illinois spots accessible to campers

The Adventure Resource Center and Base Camp at the Recreation Center make it easier and less expensive to visit one of the many campgrounds in Southern Illinois.

Base Camp allows students to rent camping equipment from tents and sleeping bags to stoves and canteens at prices designed to fit a student's budget.

The Adventure Resource Center provides the maps and brochures needed to find an enjoyable and scenic campground.

Donna Murray, a graduate assistant in recreation and forestry and director of the Adventure Resource Center, said the ARC not only provides maps and information for campgrounds in Southern Illinois, but also has maps of state and national parks in every state.

"We really encourage people to do a lot of research while planning a camping trip," she said.

Local campgrounds in the Carbondale area offer campers a weekend get-a-way in the woods without a four-hour drive to reach a secluded destination.

One campground is Little Grassy, a family campground run by Helen Johnson.

Johnson said three types of tent camping are available at Little Grassy: primitive, water and electric, and sewer-serviced campsites.

She said the sewer-serviced sites are usually filled up for weeks in

Top Wimbledon seeds advance: Sabatini to challenge Graf in finals, Edberg to take on Stich in semis

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Top seed Steffi Graf moved into her fourth women's Wimbledon final in five years, and Stefan Edberg cruised into the men's semifinals without dropping a set Thursday at the $6.5 million championships.

Graf, of Germany, lacked her usual aggression but still had enough firepower to outgun American Mary Joe Fernandez 6-2, 6-4 in 80 minutes. Fernandez, of Miami, Fla., was seeded fifth.

Graf, won Wimbledon in 1988 and 1989, will face either No. 2 Gabriela Sabatini or No. 9

Jennifer Capriati, who played in the second semifinal Thursday. Capriati Wednesday eliminated defending champion Martina Navratilova.

Edberg, the top seed and defending men's champion, overpowered Frenchman Thierry Champion and No. 6 seed Michael Stich scored a revenge victory over American Jim Courier to set up a Friday semifinal meeting.

No. 1 seed Edberg took exactly 100 minutes to destroy Champion 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 and maintain his record as the only player in the men's event not to have dropped a set.

Stich, of Germany, avenged last month's French Open semifinal loss to Courier by defeating the No. 4 seed 6-3, 7-6 (7-2), 6-2.

In the other men's quarterfinals Thursday, three-time winner Boris Becker of Germany played No. 7 seed Guy Forget of France and No. 5 Andre Agassi battled fellow American David Wheaton.

Graf took the first two games against Fernandez, but the 19-year-old American won a marathon third game of nine deuces before pulling even at 2-2.

Graf settled down and began to hit the ball remorselessly from the baseline.

Fernandez tried to go to the net occasionally but was generally pinned at the back of the court.

Graf trailed 15-30 on her service in the fifth game, but the 22-year-old pulled out the game and broke Fernandez' next two service games to win the set in 43 minutes.

The second set proved a grueling affair with both players reluctant to charge the net.

It was hardly exciting tennis but Graf, after losing her serve to go 2-1 down, was the better player.

She broke back for a 2-2 tie and broke again in the 10th game to complete her victory.

Edberg maintained the momentum which had swept the Swede past his four previous opponents. He was simply too good for unseeded Champion.

Guerrilla attack on refugees threatens Cambodian truce

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Guerrillas attacked refugees in central Cambodia an hour before a visit by U.N. and international aid officials in another violation of the shaky Cambodian cease-fire, an aid worker said Thursday. Cambodian government officials reported a second cease-fire violation and Thai sources quoted a Khmer Rouge guerrilla leader as saying the truce could not become effective without international supervision. The two U.N. personnel, on a five-day visit from Bangkok, were preparing to distribute rice to refugees with the help of two Western aid workers, said one of the aid workers who requested anonymity. The rebels attacked the refugees living in makeshift shelters along Route 12 in Kompong Thom province, 17 miles from the provincial capital. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Israeli mayor stabbed; violence continues

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Two masked assailants stabbed the deputy mayor of the West Bank city of Ramallah Thursday despite a fresh appeal by a PLO leader that residents of the occupied territories curb a wave of "unauthorized" Arab-on-Arab violence. Nikola Akil, appointed to the Ramallah deputy mayorship in 1989 by Israeli authorities, was reported in satisfactory condition at a local hospital after being knifed while walking outside of his home, an army spokesman said. Ramallah residents said Akil was attacked probably because he "was appointed by the Israelis and continued to serve in the municipality." Leaders of the 3 1/2-year old Palestinian intifada have repeatedly called on Arab officials to resign to protest Israeli military occupation. Israeli troops captured the West Bank and Gaza Strip, home to 1.7 million Palestinians, in 1967.

Major drug traffic route shifts to West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Elliott Ness and his Prohibition-era Untouchables would be proud of the scorecard. In just the last three weeks, federal agents have seized 1,080 pounds of heroin and 5,798 pounds of cocaine with a combined street value of nearly $3.3 billion in a series of raids along the West Coast. The seizures and arrests underscores what authorities have feared for some time — the West Coast is becoming the destination of choice for drug shipments by the international crime cartels. "We said several months ago that we felt we would see more drug trafficking involving the West Coast and we haven't been disappointed," said Bob Bender, the agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Agency's bureau in San Francisco.

AIDS cases may level off in five years—study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of new AIDS cases diagnosed in the United States each year may reach a plateau within the next five years, a study concluded Thursday. Although the total number of Americans who have been stricken by the deadly disease since the epidemic began will continue to mount, the number of new cases diagnosed each year apparently will level out, the study found. The projected plateau will apparently be caused by a drop in the rate at which Americans are becoming infected with the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, HIV, in the middle of the 1980s, the study said. In addition, the development and use of treatments also contributed to the apparent plateau, the study said.

Poll: Most people still think U.S. in recession

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — More than eight out of every 10 Americans think the recession is "alive and well," despite the widening view among economists that a recovery is emerging, according to survey published Thursday. One out of every three described the slump as serious. The Los Angeles Times Poll found that a deep vein of doubt about the economy runs through various segments of the public, and the recent flurry of positive economic news appears not to have eased it. The number of people who describe the U.S. economy as shaky actually has risen since April. "I don't know who will turn out to be right — the professional forecasters or the humble consumer," said Fabian Linden, executive director of the Conference Board's Consumer Research Center.

Fine wines start with Southern Illinois grapevines

By Jennifer Kulier
Staff Writer

News of the successful Alto Vineyards winery is traveling through the grapevine in Southern Illinois.

The local response to the winery has been amazing ever since opening day in 1988 when all 4,000 bottles produced were sold in the first two days, said co-owner Guy Renzaglia.

"We're very happy with the response from the community," said Renzaglia, who helps operate the winery and vineyards with members of his family and winemaker Alan Dillard.

Business has been so good for the winery located on Route 127 in Alto Pass that it will grow to twice its original size when a new expansion is completed in October.

After completion of the expansion, the winery will offer a separate wine tasting area and a larger sales and display area to accommodate the new wines that will be sold, Renzaglia said.

This weekend is the last weekend the vineyard will be open until the grand opening of the expanded winery in October, said Renzaglia.

Alto Vineyards wines have already won 11 awards this year at international wine competitions, Renzaglia said.

At a competition in San Francisco last month, all six wines that were entered received an award.

Alto Vineyards received a gold medal at another international competition in New York last month for its Chambourcin wine. Chambourcin is a full-bodied, robust burgundy with good aging potential, Renzaglia said.

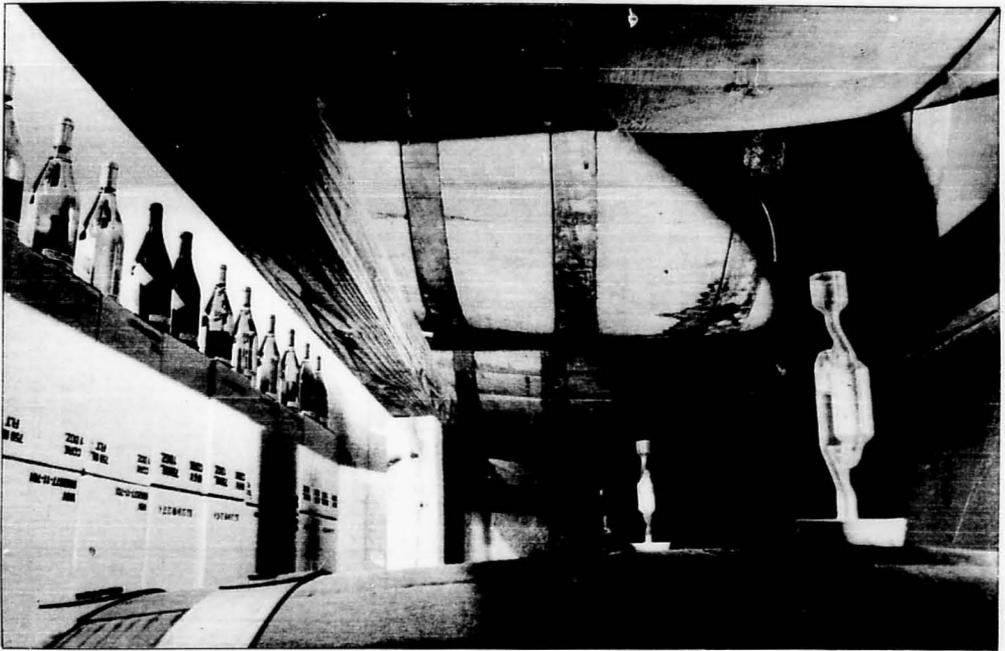

"That's pretty good for a bunch of guys who didn't know anything about making wine when they began," he said.

Alto Vineyards is the only winery in the state that uses only grapes grown in its own vineyard for its wine, Renzaglia said.

"Only Southern Illinois grapes for Southern Illinois wine," said Renzaglia.

Other wineries import grapes from outside areas or use grape juice to make their wine, he said.

The gently rolling hills of Southern Illinois are conducive to growing fine quality grapes, Renzaglia said.

Several states that border Illinois, such as Missouri, Indiana and Kentucky, have successful wine-making industries, he said.

Southern Illinois may have an advantage over these states in producing quality grapes for wine because of its better climate and soil, said Renzaglia.

The latitude and growing conditions here are similar to those in the French wine country, said Renzaglia.

For years, Illinois has been lagging behind its neighboring states in wine production because of the state's restrictive laws, said Renzaglia. Commercial wineries were not legalized in Illinois until 1981.

Even now, Renzaglia said he cannot sell wine directly to restaurants or nightclubs because of the laws.

"We would like to sell direct without going through a distributor, but the laws are such that we can't afford it," said Renzaglia's son and co-owner Paul.

The Renzaglias say that they would like to see the state government recognize wine production as an industry and encourage its growth more.

Understanding lost in dictionary uproar

WORDS ARE FLYING concerning Random House's new politically correct dictionary, but all this talk doesn't seem to be achieving understanding.

Instead there has been a lot of finger pointing and name calling, both of which, sadly enough, occur far too often when people disagree. Possibly, much of the dissension could be avoided if the battling sides called a cease fire long enough to take a good look at the book that started the conflict.

At first glance, it looks like the average dictionary. Leaf through the pages and the first impression doesn't change.

This dictionary is the newest on the market and therefore reflects more recent changes in the use of the English language than previous dictionaries. However, this difference is expected because the only need for a new dictionary is to keep up with changes.

PURISTS MAY ARGUE changes should not be made to the English language, but changes are made daily when each mouth opens to speak. Language is not static, but rather reflects the changes in how people think and relate with one another.

Just as using the King's English today would raise eyebrows so would language that demeans minorities, women, handicapped and various other groups of difference.

This most recent trend in language usage was spurred on by the political correctness movement, which suggests there is a proper stance to take when relating with others. Political correctness addresses the difficulty of relating with people who are different.

The idea of political correctness has been brewing in this country for decades as a greater sensitivity toward differences among people has developed. In the past six months the issue of political correctness has reached a feverish boil.

Dictionary writers and publishers would be negligent if they overlooked this trend.

SOME PEOPLE WILL still disagree with the practices suggested by the Random House dictionary.

That is OK.

A dictionary is only a reference work to aid people in properly using language. The Random House dictionary is not taking a totalitarian stance on how to use the English language. Rather, it offers alternatives to avoid language that could be viewed as offensive. For those who do not care to use suggested alternatives there is always the standard way.

The sad irony of Random House's new dictionary and, in general, the political correctness issue is that instead of achieving better understanding among people, factions seem to be growing. This causes the schism among different people to grow wider and the little understanding that exists to lessen.

In the end neither the Random House dictionary nor the political correctness movement alone can create this understanding. Understanding starts in each individual's mind.

The ups and downs of seatbelts

Here is a story that shows why seat belts can be wonderful lifesavers. But it also shows that they have a negative side.

Jim Black, 51, a mechanic, believes in wearing his seat belt. The other day, he was in his van on his way home from visiting a friend.

He cruised into a West Side intersection. He had the green light. Then the world seemed to turn upside down. Actually, he and his van turned upside down.

He reached the intersection at the precise moment that a couple of car thieves, being chased by the cops, reached the same point.

The car thieves were doing about 50 or 60 mph. And they decided to ignore the red light.

So they broadsided Jim Black's van with a mighty whump. Black's full-size van rolled completely over and came to rest upside down.

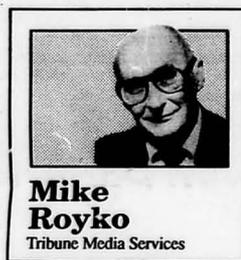

Had Black not been wearing his seat belt, there is no doubt he would have been bouncing like a ping-pong ball and would have been either dead or seriously injured. Instead, he found himself alive, but thoroughly confused because he was upside down.

"Man, I was dazed," he says. "One minute I'm driving along real easy, then, bam, everything goes crazy. My van's bouncing and turning and everything's spinning around and I'm thinking: 'What is going on here?'"

But he was alive. Not only alive, but suffering from nothing more than sprained back and neck muscles and some bruises.

That's the part of Black's story that tells us why we should wear our safety belts.

For that matter, the thieves must have been wearing their belts, too, since they jumped out of the car and

Mike Royko
Tribune Media Services

ran away. (So, car thieves, take note: Buckle up and you will live to steal another day.)

Anyway, there was Black, dangling like a bat inside his van. And his mind began to clear.

"I realized I got hit. And that I'm upside down. I know I'm alive and nothing's broke."

"But then I start thinking: 'What if this thing starts burning?' You know, like in the movies. When cars get hit in the movies, or go over a cliff, they always burst into flames and the guys inside get roasted."

"So I figure I better get out of there fast before I get turned into a barbecue. The trouble was, I couldn't get the belt unlocked. My arm was kind of numb and one of my legs was twisted. Being upside down, my weight was on the belt and I was in an awkward position."

"But I look around, and I see all these faces. They looked kind of funny because they were upside down. Of course, I was the one who was upside down, so they looked upside down, but you know what I mean."

A crowd had gathered. People were peering in the van at the upside down Black.

"When I saw all these faces, I yelled to them: 'Hey, how about somebody helping me get this seat belt unhitched, so I can get out?'"

The door was jammed 'cause of the collision. But fortunately he had been riding with the window open, so all someone had to do was reach in, and unlock the seat belt.

"That's what I told them to do. I said, 'Hey, somebody see if you can get this thing unhitched.'"

Cynics sometimes believe people don't care, that they won't help each other.

Well, the cynics might know something. Yes, someone reached through the open window. But not to unsnap his seat belt.

"This arm comes in and all of a sudden I can feel what he's doing. He's trying to get my wallet out of my hip pocket. Can you imagine, the idea of somebody taking my wallet when I'm needing help? But that's what he's doing. Because I'm upside down, I can't even see the guy who's doing it. I tell him: 'Say there, you got me in a very disadvantageous position. You are mugging a fellow who is down and out.' That's what I tell him. But I guess he don't care, because he yanks my wallet out of my pants and leaves me hanging there."

Luckily, the police came wheeling up at that moment. The pocket-picker panicked and tossed the wallet before he could take the $75 that was in it. The police retrieved and returned it.

Later, he made a few observations about his experience.

"I wonder if I'm the first guy to get his pocket picked upside down. But I guess it could have been worse. If the police didn't show up when they did, maybe somebody would have grabbed my watch."

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

reduce traffic congestion and accidents in and around the intersection of Main and Oakland streets.

According to a Carbondale Transportation Study completed in 1988, it takes more than three minutes to go east from Brook Lane to University Avenue. Travel time when the couple is in use is estimated to be just more than two minutes. With a high population growth estimate for 2007, travel time without the couple was projected to be almost four minutes. With the couple, it is estimated to take about 2.45 minutes.

"It doesn't look like much time, but percentage wise, it's quite a bit," said Larry Meyer, IDOT district engineer of planning.

Accident rates along Main Street from Old West Main Street to University Avenue and the section of University Avenue from Main Street to Walnut were studied between 1982 and 1987 to project changes.

During this six-year period, 656 accidents were reported on Main Street. It is estimated that there could be a reduction of 33 accidents a year with a completed East-West Couple.

Zieba said the repaving of Walnut Street should begin next week and the landscaping is scheduled to be completed by April 1992.

"Today, the town, the whole nation gathers to honor yet another group of heroes — the brave servicemen and women of Operation Desert Storm," said Bush.

"While standing strong for American values they liberated a nation abroad and transformed a nation at home," he said.

"These young men and women went to the desert and brought honor to our nation just as all veterans had done before them."

Marching troops and displays of military hardware marked parades in cities nationwide including Atlanta and Fort Worth, Texas — where some 100,000 people turned out to catch a glimpse of a Patriot missile launcher and tanks of the 2nd Armored Division from Fort Hood, Texas.

"It was communities, neighborhoods, dogs and babies, and it was wonderful," said Fort Worth Mayor Kay Granger.

More than 2,500 troops were selected to lead a welcome-home parade for Gulf War veterans in Philadelphia, where the four-day Freedom Festival started Thursday morning with a ceremony at hallowed Independence Hall.

The subject of military spending was raised in Norfolk, Va., where Defense Secretary Dick Cheney commissioned the destroyer USS Arleigh Burke and pleaded for continued readiness.

"The end of the Cold War will permit us to reduce the size of our defenses, but not the quality," he said.

crossings last week, but he stated the government had re-established its authority over the military.

In the Slovenian capital of Ljubljana, the republic's government rejected an order by the eight-member federal presidency to give up the border posts by noon Friday. The province reoccupied the posts after the truce went into effect Wednesday, ending a week of fighting that left scores of casualties. The move was in apparent violation of a European Community-brokered peace accord, brokered last weekend by the foreign ministers of Italy, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, which required Slovenian President Milan Kucan and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman to suspend their independence declarations.

Slovenian Foreign Minister

Dimitri Ruppel said Slovenia also could not accept a second presidency order that the situation in the republic revert by midnight Sunday to where it was before June 25, the day Slovenia and Croatia declared independence.

Slovenian Information Minister Jelko Kacin said Slovenia could not implement other presidency directives, including a withdrawal to "peacetime locations."

Independence Day celebrations. In Plymouth, Mass., the traditional July Fourth concert is partially bankrolled by a locally based Japanese-owned business.

The fiscal calamities that afflict state and local governments across America result from their inability to pay for services no longer federally funded but still demanded by their citizens.

These beleaguered legislative bodies can expect no help from the federal government, which has produced 30 consecutive years of budget deficits. But taxpayers out there in the real world beyond the Washington Beltway demand that their state and local government budgets be balanced.

That has proved especially difficult in California, where freshman Republican Gov. Pete Wilson and the Democratic-controlled Legislature are wrestling with an unprecedented $14.3 billion projected deficit that equals 25 percent of the state budget.

California lawmakers passed a $56.4 billion spending plan last month, along with tax increases and cuts in services.

But they failed to act on several hotly contested bills that would have raised taxes and fees by up to $3 billion to eliminate the last vestiges of the deficit.

Budget-balancing also has proved difficult in Connecticut, where the fiscal crisis has prompted widespread cuts in state services.

While Gov. Lowell Weicker insisted on a new income tax, state workers jammed the halls of the Capitol in Hartford to demand that the Legislature pass a budget.

The Walnut Street Historic District extends from the south side of Main Street to the south property lines of the lots on the south side of Walnut Street and from the alley between Forest Avenue and Springer Street to Poplar Street.

In trying to keep with the old-fashioned atmosphere of the district, traffic and pedestrian lights associated with the couple will have a turn-of-the-century appearance. The light poles will be grooved and black, unlike the more modern-looking light poles in other parts of the city.

The 32 light poles will be installed along Springer and Maple streets. But Bob Zieba, construction engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation District 9, said it will be a few months before they are in place because it takes at least six weeks for them to be delivered.

According to a 1989 state improvement report, the Walnut Street Historic District was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1975. Most of the buildings in the historic district were built at the turn of the century.

Youngsters color in poster contest

By Annette Holder
Entertainment Editor

To see Walt Disney films you have to be young at heart, but to participate in the Student Programming Council's coloring contest you only have to be young.

Colored posters, designed by SIUC graphics students, will be judged on creativity and neatness.

The judges are five students from various majors who work for SPC.

The coloring contest is open to children under the age of 16. Four age categories will have first, second and third place prizes.

Prizes, including art supply kits, movie posters and coloring books, will be provided by the Student Center Bookstore and SPC.

SPC chairperson Mark Decker, electronics management and math senior from Salem, said the prizes awarded will depend on the age group, although the art supply kits will be awarded to the first place winners.

The art supply kits include oil pastels and sketching pads.

The Walt Disney posters are designs of the movies playing at the Walt Disney Summer Film Series, sponsored by SPC and the Student Center.

The contest was originally designed for SIUC students' children only.

SPC Summer Cinema chairperson Dawne Kahre, marketing senior from Indiana, said this target market was not large enough so she expanded the contest to include children in the area.

The films playing include "The Rescuers Down Under," July 28 and 29, "The Jungle Book," July 19 and 20, and "Peter Pan," July 26 and 27.

Friday showings are at 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. and Saturday showings are at 2 and 4 p.m. The general admission is $1.

Posters are available at the SPC office on the third floor of the Student Center.

The finished posters need to be turned in to SPC during the week of July 7 to 13. Winners will be announced July 23 to 30.

Summer science class teaches teachers, too

By Christine Leninger
Staff Writer

Teachers and students at Lewis School will get their hands-on science this summer.

Teachers in District 95 are trying a new approach to teaching math and science.

This is the third year of the program started by Susan Pearlman, assistant professor of curriculum and instruction, and Kathy Perick-Spector, associate professor of mathematics, through a grant from the National Science Foundation and the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

"Traditionally, students would read about science or how to do math, and then the teacher would discuss it with them," said Pearlman.

Interactive Science for the Elementary Grades is a program for the teachers, but the students also benefit from it.

"This in-service training program shows teachers how to avoid obstacles in teaching science and math by having the students discover the lesson.

Students taking the class may read about a certain concept, but then might do an experiment to prove what was said in the book," said Perick-Spector.

The first three weeks consist of teacher training without students. The following two weeks are a practicum experience with students studying a variety of subjects.

This year there are 33 teachers taking the practicum and 32 teachers taking the class without the practicum.

Pearlman said, "The course has been shortened since its inception. It used to be two three-week sessions; now it is two sessions—one of three weeks and another of two weeks."

Half of the students are minorities, and the other half are students whose parents help out as teachers' aides during the school year.

The practicum will be July 8-19 at Lewis School, 801 S. Lewis in Carbondale.

Shevardnadze hands in party card

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Thursday he has quit the Communist Party in another dramatic defection by one of the country's most powerful political figures.

Shevardnadze disclosed his decision to turn in his red party card by releasing a copy of an angry letter he sent Wednesday to the party's Central Control Commission, which began an investigation of him last month after he advocated a two-party system during a speaking tour of the United States.

The silver-haired former minister derided conservatives who accused him of violating internal discipline in his support for a political alternative to the Communist Party. The Party has ruled the Soviet Union for more than seven decades.

"Quite in the spirit of the Inquisition, they decided to launch an investigation pursuing questionable goals and based on an unintelligible procedure," he wrote. "Under no circumstances will I agree to be brought as a defendant before this kangaroo court."

Shevardnadze, 63, gave up his seat on the policy-making Central Committee as well as his general membership in the ruling party that claimed some 19 million members before a mass exodus that began last year and has reduced its size.

Firework business rockets, booms despite recession

By Omonpee O. Whitfield

A Missouri firework retailer said even though the economy may be going up in smoke, firework sales went over with a bang.

Wallace Reedes, owner of Boomland Fireworks in Charleston, Mo., said despite the recession fireworks sales were at an all-time high this year.

Reedes, who has sold fireworks since 1959, said sales increased this year 15 to 20 percent.

Reedes said the increase in firework sales can be attributed to the national support for U.S. soldiers who participated in Operation Desert Storm.

"Sales probably increased because of the statement that President Bush made on national TV," Reedes said.

"President Bush got on TV and said, 'Let's go all the way out and support our troops.' I think this encouraged people to buy fireworks."

Reedes said Boomland's proximity, less than 15 miles away from Cairo, attracts people from both Missouri and Illinois.

Because fireworks sales are illegal in Illinois, Illinoisans often purchase fireworks from Boomland, he said.

"More than 50 percent of my customers come from Illinois," Reedes said. "They come from as far as Chicago, Peoria and Carbondale."

Both Reedes and Linda Sutton, manager of Little Boomland in Birdspoint, Mo., said most fireworks were purchased by families.

Reedes said the average family spent $30 on fireworks.

Regulations for tanning before Edgar

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

People who participate in the ritual of "fake-baking" may be faced with a new warning regulated under legislation that is awaiting action by the governor.

Rep. Alfred G. Ronan, D-Chicago, sponsor of the legislation, said these warnings will be posted at tanning parlors and given to users to try to convince people that tanning is dangerous.

Ronan said he has a real concern about the health-care aspects of tanning booths and to him they resemble microwave ovens that hurt, rather than help people.

Bonita Troutt, who with her husband owns European Tanspas in Carbondale, Cartersville and Marion, said the legislation will not affect the parlor significantly.

"We are currently regulated by the FDA," Troutt said. "We already have warnings, so I view this as basically the same thing. I don't know why this new legislation would affect people any more or cause them to change their mind about using a tanning booth."

Troutt said since they went into the business they have been regulated, and she doesn't see harm in using tanning parlors.

"My husband and I use the tanning facilities," Troutt said, "and there are a million people out in the sun every day. They certainly don't all get skin cancer."

Skin specialists disagree with Troutt. They claim tanning can result in skin cancer that is disfiguring and even life-threatening.

Ronan said he was concerned about the increase in skin cancer cases, which he attributed to the belief held years ago that it was healthy to get as much sun as possible.

Jennifer Clift, a senior in international business from Peoria, said regulations should not be necessary to deter people from using tanning facilities.

"I personally do not believe in using them because I think they are unhealthy," Clift said. "But we are responsible adults and putting up warnings will not stop diehard users. We cannot protect people from themselves."

Troutt agreed additional warning would not stop users.

"Every pack of cigarettes has a warning on it, and that doesn't stop people from smoking," Troutt said.

The measure only received seven "no" votes from the 177 members of the General Assembly, but Ronan said he does not know what the governor will do.

The legislation was supported by the Illinois Public Health Department and by the Illinois State Medical Society.

A warning would state: DANGER—Ultraviolet radiation. Follow instructions. As with natural sunlight, overexposure can cause premature aging of the skin and skin cancer.

Another police beating videotaped; Fort Worth television station airs event

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — A police officer caught on videotape beating a handcuffed suspect with his baton at least 28 times will be relieved of patrol duties pending an internal investigation.

Police Chief Thomas Windham, after the viewing of the videotape aired on KXAS-TV Wednesday night, said it appeared officer E.J. Parnell violated department policy against use of excessive force.

"It's premature to make any definite or absolute judgments," Windham said. "The officer may have used excessive force."

Arnold plays good guy in Terminator sequel

By Allan Towell
Staff Writer

Movie Review

Arnold Schwarzenegger is back in the most explosive, most expensive Hollywood production of all time.

"Terminator 2: Judgment Day" starring Arnold Schwarzenegger offers enough explosions, chases, fights, big guns and spectacular high-budget special effects to send any fan of action films to movie heaven.

The story is basically the same as the first "Terminator." An evil terminator machine is sent from the future to try to kill the leader of a future revolutionary movement. In the original, Schwarzenegger was the bad-guy terminator.

In "Terminator 2," Arnold has been sent back to protect the future revolutionary from a meaner, stronger, advanced-model terminator.

Arnold the Terminator, the revolutionary kid and the kid's mother also try to prevent a future nuclear war by destroying the remains of the old evil Arnolds, which are creating defense computers that eventually will take control of themselves and cause nuclear war. Confusing enough?

"T2" is supposedly the most expensive movie ever made, sporting a price tag somewhere in the region of $100 million. The price of mass destruction just keeps going up and up.

If you like to see things destroyed, especially by explosions, you'll find this movie is especially good. Motorcycles, cars, pickup trucks, semis, a helicopter, a building and lots of other things are smashed up and blown to bits throughout the entire movie.

In one scene, the evil terminator, played by Robert Patrick, chases the kid through a city in a semi. First, the semi smashes about 50 parked cars in its way. Then the semi smashes head-on into a beam and gets all twisted up, the gasoline in the trailer leaks and the whole thing explodes. Then the evil terminator walks out of the wreckage and keeps chasing the kid.

This scene is repeated about 100 times during the movie, only using different vehicles and progressively more spectacular explosions.

In addition to all the awesome destruction, the movie is pretty comedic at times, too. Arnold's laconic wit has never been funnier. For example, in one scene Arnold shoots a security guard while he and the kid are trying to rescue the kid's mother from a mental ward. The kid asks Arnold why he had to kill him.

"I'm a terminator," Arnold answers matter-of-factly.

After this episode, the kid makes Arnold promise to stop killing people, so from then on he shoots everyone in the knee.

This tongue-in-cheek approach keeps all the violence from overwhelming the audience and is a reminder that this is just a fantasy movie. "Terminator 2" is the action-adventure film genre taken to its absolute extreme.

"Terminator 2: Judgment Day" is rated R and is playing at AMC.

At top, the Terminator (Arnold Schwarzenegger), Sarah Connor (Linda Hamilton) and her son John (Edward Furlong) are linked in a struggle to survive a deadly, implacable force in "Terminator 2: Judgment Day."

Below, Schwarzenegger plays a cyborg who must protect John from a killer cyborg in this sequel from Tri-Star.

The 24-year-old suspect, Ernest Anderson, was in fair condition Thursday.

The incident, reminiscent of the March 3 beating of motorist Rodney King by a group of Los Angeles police officers, was videotaped by a woman visiting nearby. She later turned the tape over to KXAS-TV where it was aired.

Under some circumstances, striking a suspect with a baton is allowable, but questions have been raised about the amount of force used and the two-handed, overhead method the officer used to swing his baton, Windham said.

Independence Day celebrated by U.S. military in Middle East

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — Some 48,500 men and women of the U.S. military serving in the Persian Gulf region celebrated the Fourth of July Thursday with barbecues, country and western music, sports — and camel-calling competitions.

And the festivities weren't confined to daylight hours. "On a day like today, those who work all day will have a chance to enjoy activities in the evening," U.S. military spokesman Capt. Rick Sanford said.

Sanford said barbecues, live bands, sports competitions including three-mile runs were held for Army and Air Force personnel in Saudi Arabia, Bahrain and Kuwait. The activities also included camel-calling contests, a Middle Eastern version of contests held in southern U.S. cities imitating animal calls.

Navy crews, meanwhile, were treated to floor shows and country western music on aircraft carrier flight decks, the spokesman said.

Most of the 8,000 sailors embarked aboard the carrier USS Nimitz gathered on the ship's 1,092-foot flight deck for a revue featuring the Florida Girls.

The six former Miss Florida 1988 beauty contestants who have taken their show on the road were taken from Dubai offshore to the Nimitz, which is too large to be brought into UAE ports, along with the country and western band New York Rock-n-Rodeo.

Earlier, the ship's own rock band, Extreme Heat, performed in the sweltering afternoon heat where temperatures have soared to 106.

Lt. Donald Thomas, the Nimitz's public affairs officer, said crewmembers erected a stage on the flight deck which the performers share with Nimitz's FA-18 Hornet and F14 Tomcat fighter jets.

The 48,500 U.S. servicemen and -women still in the gulf region include about 21,000 Army personnel, 6,500 Air Force members, 16,000 sailors and 4,500 Marines. About 3,700 of the U.S. army's 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment are in Kuwait.

Sanford said the festivities were planned to permit a rotation among the troops so that stations continued to be manned throughout the day at Dhahran air base King Khalid Military City, both in Saudi Arabia, and sites in Kuwait and Khobar.

Regional United Service Organization offices in Bahrain, Dhahran and Dubai assisted U.S. Navy in planning Independence Day parties, said Kathy Dependout, the USO director in Dubai.

New Yorker eats 21 hot dogs to set new record in contest

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 270-pound former college football player Thursday gobbled down 21 hot dogs in 12 minutes to set a record in the annual Nathan's Famous hot dog eating contest at Coney Island.

Urged on by cheers from about 40 of his buddies from Queens, Frank Dellarossa, 23, easily outstripped the rest of the marathon munchers as he practically inhaled the dogs and buns without benefit of mustard or relish.

"My mother didn't want me to do it," said a happy Dellarossa after he chewed up the old record of 17 and a half hot dogs set by Paul Washburn in 1959.

"She said I would make a glutton out of myself. She was worried I'd get sick and have a heart attack," he added.

The 6-foot-2 Dellarossa, an assistant engineer for the World Financial Center in Manhattan, said he decided to enter the 32nd annual contest on a whim.

The much ballyhooed event also marked the 75th birthday of Nathan's Famous on the Coney Island boardwalk, where local folklore insists the hot dog was invented. Thousands of Fourth of July celebrants turned out for the occasion.

And what was the champ's secret of winning?

"It's like playing football — it takes desire," he explained as his friends screamed over and over, "Twenty-two in '91!"

Dellarossa won a trophy, Yankee tickets, T-shirts — and a year's supply of hot dogs.

Cheney: Americans must watch for aggression

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney dedicated the Navy's newest warship and told sailors gathered for the Fourth of July ceremony the nation should never "take world stability and U.S. security for granted."

The military chief used the commissioning of the destroyer USS Arleigh Burke to draw lessons from the Persian Gulf War and to praise the efforts of Desert Storm veterans, many of whom were in the crowd along Norfolk's waterfront.

As he hailed their fighting skills, Cheney acknowledged the realities of another struggle — the battle over dwindling Pentagon funds. A smaller military can be just as effective as the one now in place, he asserted.

"The end of the Cold War will permit us to reduce the size of our defenses, but not the quality," Cheney told Navy brass and thousands of military personnel who sat through a brief shower during the event.

"As Saddam Hussein reminded us, regional conflict, aggression, the spread of high-tech weapons, still threaten American interests," he said. "We must never take world stability and U.S. security for granted."

Cheney praised 89-year-old retired Adm. Arleigh Burke for providing a forward-looking vision for the Navy during and after World War II.

Burke's presence at Thursday's event marked the first time a Navy officer has attended the commissioning of a ship in his name.

Cheney also expounded on the need for a "robust naval power." U.S. warships were the first force to respond to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last August, and the Navy fired nearly 300 Tomahawk missiles during the war, he noted.

At one time there were more than 100 U.S. ships in the Persian Gulf region, including six aircraft carriers.

However, the ability of the Navy to respond to Third World hot spots may be diminished by the reduction of its forces. After budget cuts, Cheney said, the Navy will have 450 ships, about 100 fewer than it has now. While he believes it will be an adequate force, the number is a far cry from the 600-ship Navy sought under the Reagan administration.

The Navy fleet can "do the job anywhere, anytime America needs it," and in the future will provide "the technological edge it takes to maintain control of the seas," Cheney said.

"In the coming years, there will be new crises and different battlegrounds, but Americans will still look to our naval forces to sail in harm's way and fight if our freedom is in danger," Cheney said.

The $864 million Arleigh Burke is the first ship of its kind, equipped with an Aegis defense system and capable of sailing up to 31 knots. The ship, which carries a crew of 340, was built at Bath Iron Works in Maine. Its skipper is Cmdr. John Morgan Jr.

Bush visits small town in Missouri for Fourth

MARSHFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Walking behind children on bicycles, President Bush joined a small town for a July Fourth parade in America's heartland where he saluted Gulf War troops and made a plug for his Supreme Court nominee.

"Clarence Thomas is a man of character and impeccable credentials, a model for all Americans," said Bush in predicting that the conservative black appeals court jurist in Washington, D.C., will win Senate confirmation.

Thomas's views on constitutional issues, particularly on affirmative action and abortion, are expected to undergo close scrutiny during confirmation hearings, which could begin in September.

An ABC News poll earlier this week showed that 54 percent of Americans considered Thomas a good choice.

Bush was joined at the Marshfield parade — billed as a welcome home for Desert Storm troops — by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., who is to serve as the administration's point man in the campaign to win the nominee's confirmation.

Thomas, 43, nominated this week to fill the vacancy of retired justice Thurgood Marshall, was a legislative assistant to Danforth from 1979-1981 before heading the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission for seven years during the Reagan administration.

He has been a federal judge for 16 months.

Bush said Thomas will be "a great justice on the Supreme Court of the United States," drawing polite applause from the several thousand people gathered before a flag-draped platform in front of the Shield's Rexal Pharmacy. But the crowd roared when Bush heralded allied successes in the Gulf War.

"These young men and women went to the desert and brought honor to our nation ... what a job they did," Bush said after he strolled down South Clay Street and then up East Madison Street with his wife, Barbara. The two waved to thousands of cheering spectators before stepping onto a reviewing stand.

Several military units that served in the gulf snapped salutes to the commander in chief as they paraded under bright blue skies in the town of 5,000 people located about 20 miles northeast of Springfield.

The president, whose Independence Day also was to include a stop at festivities in Grand Rapids, Mich., and fireworks in Washington, paid tribute to veterans and spoke of the value of small town America.

"Today, the town, the whole nation gathers to honor yet another group of heroes — the brave servicemen and women of Operation Desert Storm. While standing strong for American values they liberated a nation abroad and transformed a nation at home," the president said. "These young men and women went to the desert and brought honor to our nation just as all veterans had done before them."

Bush said the allied military victory over Iraq and the liberation of Kuwait has "at last brought the recognition and honor to our sons and daughters who served in Vietnam. We finally have the chance to tell them 'thank you, we are proud of you. Welcome home.'"

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 29¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.

City offers alternative to All-Star game

TORONTO (UPI) — For those unable to get tickets to the All-Star Game, there's always the world's biggest baseball.

Measuring 12 feet in diameter and weighing 1,500 pounds, the ball serves as the lobby centerpiece of the All-Star FanFest, a baseball theme park built to bring the All-Star Game to fans unable to attend.

The FanFest was conceived two years ago by Major League Baseball Properties, the marketing arm of the major leagues, and designed with Madison Square Gardens Event Productions.

Baseball theme park appeals to ticketless

The theme park occupies most of the Metro Toronto Convention Center, adjacent to SkyDome, from July 5-9, shutting down just before the game starts.

"It's designed as an opportunity to let all fans join in the celebration of the All-Star Game," said Drew Scheinmann, project director for MSG.

The FanFest features a selection of material from the Baseball Hall of Fame, along with exhibits, filmed highlights, hands-on pitching and batting machines, souvenir stands, photo booths, collectible trader booths and food vendors.

In the Diamond Theatre, fans will listen to past players, coaches, league officials and writers conduct seminars and clinics.

Paid performers dressed as hawkers, reporters and even scalpers will circulate among the fans. Tickets to the exhibit specify entry times.

Once inside, however, fans can stay as long as they like.

The attraction attempts to recreate as many aspects of baseball as possible. Visitors enter a replica dugout, with a crusty manager/actor giving a pep talk. Fans can watch highlights of past All-Star Games through a knothole fence.

"You're not going to the convention center, you're going to FanFest Stadium," said Tom Eastman, executive producer. "The idea is that FanFest Stadium is this magical place you go to for a magical baseball experience."

Minnesota squeaks by Toronto 1-0

TORONTO (UPI) — David West waited more than 10 months to win a game, and Thursday beat a pitcher who only hopes he does not go that long without a victory.

West allowed just two hits over seven innings in his season debut, leading the Twins to a 1-0 victory that ended the Blue Jays' winning streak at five games. He outdueled Jimmy Key, who failed in his fourth straight bid for his 11th triumph.

West had been sidelined since Sept. 4, 1990 with a series of leg, arm and stomach injuries.

He struck out five and walked one for his first victory since August 25 at Texas. West was activated on Tuesday when the Twins placed 12-game winner Scott Erickson on the disabled list.

West, a 26-year-old left-hander, suffered a pulled hamstring in his last start of 1990.

Tennis court keeps Stich in the green

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — It's just as well Michael Stich decided to take up tennis and not golf, his other love.

Stich looks set to become a rich man playing tennis. Playing golf for a living would be a most dangerous game.

"I can't hit a golf ball out of my own shadow," he says.

Thursday morning, before facing Jim Courier in the quarterfinals at Wimbledon, Stich played a round of golf with a friend.

His friend hit a hole in one, and Stich told him, "I couldn't do that in a million years."

His friend replied, "And I couldn't win Wimbledon in a million years, but you can."

Stich may not win this year, he may not win next year.

But if his game improves at the rate it has the last four years, there's no doubt he can reach the heights scaled by his German compatriot Boris Becker, champion in 1985, 1986 and 1989.

Stich, the No. 6 seed, employs Becker's booming serve and so far has hit 77 aces in this tournament, including 16 in his 6-3, 7-6, 6-2 victory over Courier, the No. 4 seed, on a sun-drenched center court.

He now plays defending champion Stefan Edberg.

Cubs win 9-8 in extra-inning thriller

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mark Grace led off the 11th inning with a home run, his second of the game, to lift the Chicago Cubs Thursday to a 9-8 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Grace hit 0-2 pitch from Bill Landrum, 1-1, who came on at the start of the 10th.

Grace's sixth homer of the season made a winner of Chuck McElroy, 5-0, who pitched 1 1-3 innings of relief.

The Pirates sent the game into extra innings with a run in the ninth, tying it 8-8 when Bobby Bonilla and Barry Bonds opened the inning with consecutive doubles off Paul Assenmacher.

The Cubs had led 8-2 in the seventh after two-run homers by Grace, Andre Dawson and George Bell.

Grace's two-run homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the fifth. Jerome Walton singled leading off, and Grace belted a 1-0 pitch from Randy Tomlin into the right-field seats.

Chicago scored two more in the sixth after Tomlin made a wild throw to third on Greg Maddux's sacrifice bunt.

Hector Villanueva led off with a single and was lifted for pinch runner Rick Wilkins. Wilkins went to second on Jose Vizcaino's single and both men scored when Tomlin fielded pitcher Maddux's bunt and threw wild to third baseman Bonilla trying to force Wilkins.

Tomlin's error gave Chicago a 6-2 lead, and Bell's two-run shot off reliever Neal Heaton in the eighth made it 8-2.

The Pirates battled back, rallying for five runs in the eighth with the help of Orlando Merced's grand slam to make it 8-7.

Capriati had success despite loss to Sabatini

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) One day after scoring the biggest victory of her short career, Jennifer Capriati was eliminated by Gabriela Sabatini in the Wimbledon semifinals.

Capriati at least goes home knowing she was, at 15, the youngest Wimbledon semifinalist ever and she may have the brightest future in the sport.

She also has a quarterfinal victory over Martina Navratilova to ensure the 1991 Wimbledon Championships will always be special to her.

Capriati admitted she found it hard to sleep after beating 1991 champion Navratilova Wednesday night.

She said she watched a movie to try and help her nod off.

"But I don't remember what it was called," she joked.

Capriati was not as sharp Thursday against Sabatini as she was against Navratilova.

Sabatini dictated the pace and pulled Capriati from side to side in a 6-4, 6-4 victory.

"She was moving me from left to right and I was just a little bit off today and missed the shots I made yesterday against Navratilova," Capriati said. "But I have got a lot of good memories from this Wimbledon, knowing I beat a great champion and reached the semifinal.

"I'm going to come back next year and try to do even better."

There are few people who doubt she will.

She delighted the capacity crowd of 13,000 with a fighting display against the Argentinian, saving four match points before losing.

Both players were given a standing ovation at the end but there was a special feeling as Capriati left her second Wimbledon tournament.

Most experts are convinced she will one day win the championship.

alcohol can be required to submit to the same chemical tests as would drivers of motor vehicles.

Refusal to submit to a test could result in the suspension of watercraft operating privileges for one year. Conviction under the law could result in a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine, one year in jail or both.

Williamson County reported two boating accidents in 1990. Both accidents occurred on Crab Orchard Lake.

Cook and Lake counties, which include Lake Michigan and the Chain of Lakes, reported the highest number of accidents in Illinois for 1989 and 1990.

The department recorded 19 accidents on the Mississippi River in 1990 and 15 accidents on the Illinois River.

Although Illinois does not require boat operators or passengers to wear life jackets, Cohlmeier said the department strongly encourages people, especially children under 12, to wear them.

"Even though you may be a good swimmer, you can get thrown out of the boat," he said. "A high percentage of people drown in boating-related accidents. The impact doesn't kill them."

But Cohlmeier said it's hard to get people to wear life jackets in 90-degree weather.

The Illinois Department of Conservation is responsible for patrolling bodies of water in Illinois.

Cohlmeier said conservation officers look for reckless, careless operation of boats and stop boats for safety checks.

advance, but the electric and primitive sites usually are available.

Johnson said Little Grassy provides a good campground for campers and has a lifeguard on duty at the beach.

"It's not rowdy here," she said. "We think it's a pretty nice place."

Another local campground is Devil's Kitchen, a hot fishing spot, and the only lake in Southern Illinois with Rainbow Trout, according to Dian Powell, a worker at the campground.

Powell said the campground sees a lot of fishers and provides a quiet and scenic area for campers.

People planning a camping trip should call the Adventure Resource Center at 453-1275 or Base Camp at 536-5531.
