Educational boost: Increased funds for SIUC in 1993

By William Ragan
Political Writer

SIUC will receive $7.6 million in increased funds under the fiscal 1993 state budget, which passed the Illinois General Assembly last Thursday.

The University will receive funds totalling $170.9 million in 1993, $28.6 of which will go to the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield.

Walt Rhewaldt, assistant to the Vice Chancellor, said the increases will help support some programs on campus, but may not be able to bring programs already cut back from the dead.

Under the budget, SIUC will receive $66.9 million, an increase of $1.5 million from the fiscal year 1992.

Higher education in Illinois will receive $1.6 billion in 1993, a decrease of only $1,000, which is a drop in the bucket compared to cuts in other state agencies, said Ellen Feldhausen, spokeswoman for BUDGET, page 5

Small Business Incubator to dismiss manager Oct. 1

By Chris Davies
General Assignment Writer

The manager of SIUC's Small Business Incubator will be dismissed Oct. 1, and his duties will be assigned to the staff to reduce costs.

Rhonda Vinson, executive director of SIUC's Office of Economic and Regional Development, said incubator manager David Hampson will be dismissed because of budget cuts and lack of state grants.

"Because of recent critical cuts made by the State Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, we have been forced to dismiss several employees since this April," she said.

Vinson said the position cuts put a strain on the rest of the staff but are necessary.

"We have to streamline our operation in order to focus on our training and new business developments," she said.

Vinson said the responsibilities of Hampson's job, working with tenants and promoting new ones, will be split among her and other administrators.

"We will increase our efforts to go out in the area and find new tenants. We now have nine businesses in the incubator, operating out of our offices and several are ready to move out," she said.

Pink slips

Agencies prepare final list to lay off up to 1,400 state employees

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - The pink slips could go out as early as next week for up to 1,400 state employees slated to lose their jobs as a result of the compromise budget approved by lawmakers.

Agencies directors bended with Gov. Jim Edgar's aide Tuesday trying to analyze which jobs, programs and personnel line items are affected by the $28 billion spending blueprint.

Edgar spokesman Mike Lawrence said cabinet members hope to have a final layoff list prepared by the end of the week so that layoff notices can be mailed to some employees by early next week.

"The department directors right now are rather intensely preparing their plans," Lawrence said. "If you have to do layoffs, the sooner you wait, the more you have to do."

The budget blueprint for the fiscal year that began July 1 eliminates about 2,600 positions. But the actual number of workers who lose their jobs could be half that.

Agencies are considering leaving vacancies unfilled, reclassifying some positions and offering other employees furloughs to keep low the number of actual jobs lost.

But that's little comfort for many residents of Springfield, a "factory town" where state government is the primary employer.

"There have been times when I thought, 'What the hell. Why should I be here?"' said Dee McClelland, a data entry worker on contract to the Department of Public Aid.

Rep. Karen Hasara, R-Springfield, complained in House debate last week that at least 800 Springfield residents will lose their jobs under the compromise hammered out between Edgar and House Speaker Michael Madigan, D-Chicago.

"If you had a factory in your district that employed about 800 people and it was going to close down, you'd feel about as upset as the people in this area feel," Hasara said.

Madiga began the budget process with election-year pronouncements that his top budget priority was rid the state of "white bureaucrats," whom he implied were doing nothing appointed for political purposes.

"I've earned my promotions," said Pat Doyle, an accountant with the Public Aid department.

"I've been here a long time."

Cubs sue to stop league realignment

CHICAGO (UPI) - The Cubs sued major league baseball Tuesday, saying Commissioner Fay Vincent overstepped his powers in ordering the team to play in the National League West.

The Cubs filed suit in U.S. District Court, seeking a court order barring Vincent from realigning the league without approval from the club. The action by the Cubs comes despite a baseball rule prohibiting lawsuits against the commissioner.

Vincent Monday ordered four teams to switch divisions beginning in 1993 to make the league more geographically correct. The Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals would move from the NL East to the NL West and the Cincinnati Reds and Atlanta Braves would move from the NL West to the NL East.

The league also will add two teams in 1993 - the Miami Marlins and Colorado Rockies - one in each division.

The lawsuit also could delay the NL schedule for months and perhaps buy the Cubs enough time so that they could spend one more season in the East. Vincent has said he is not worried by the prospects of a lawsuit.

"If I didn't think what I did was legally sound and legitimate, I wouldn't have done it," he said.

The Cubs' complaint said the new alignment would cause "irreparable injury" and disrupt traditional rivalries, especially between the Cubs and the New York Mets.

"Additionally, Chicago-area fans would face the prospect of an increased number of late night game broadcasts, on both radio and television," the Cubs said.

The suits were filed Tuesday by the Cubs, Houston Astros and Mets.

The suit was filed by Cubs attorney John Keker.

National League suspends four from June brawl

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League president Ed Barrow Tuesday suspended Houston coach Ed Ott and pitcher Pete Harnisch and Cincinnati pitcher Rob Dibble and outfielder Glen Brags for their actions in a game June 24 at Cincinnati.

Ott was suspended for seven days and fined an undisclosed amount for his participation in the brawl, and for prolonging the fight, as well as for acting as an agitator and not a peacemaker, White said in a statement.

Harnisch was suspended three games for flagrantly throwing behind the Reds' Reggie Sanders, who set off the bench-clearing four-game brawl.

Brags and Dibble were both suspended four games and fined undisclosed amounts for coming off the bench.

Harnisch was suspended three games, with him charged with the pitcher, and Dibble was charged with inciting a brawl.

A Cincinnati Reds spokesman said both players were appealing the suspensions, and were available for Tuesday's game in Chicago. However, Ott and Harnisch began serving their suspensions Tuesday.

The fracas occurred Tuesday in the ninth inning at Cincinnati on the last day of a three-game series. The Reds' Hal Morris hit a three-run homer off Harnisch, who threw a pitch behind the next batter, Sanders. Brags and Dibble came out of the dugout and a bench-clearing brawl ensued. Umpire Doug Harvey charged both with instigating the fight.

Dibble served two suspensions each in 1989 and 1991.

RONN, Germany (UPI) — He is the best sixth man in the NBA, and clearly the No. 1 man in German basketball.

But the outside shooting of Detlef Schrempf could carry Germany only so far in the recent European Olympic qualifying tournament. In the end, Germany's ticket to the Barcelona Games came down to one last miss by Schrempf.

With 1.8 seconds left, Slovenia missed a three-pointer 3-point attempt, giving the Commonwealth of Independent States an 84-82 victory in Sarzagoza, Spain. That lifted Germany to fourth place in the tournament — ahead of Slovenia — and a spot in the 12-team Olympic field.

"This is the happiest day in my career," German Coach Svetislav Pesic said. "I don't know what to say.

Germany went 8-3 during qualifying play, and would have gone nowhere in a hurry without Schrempf, the first and only German to play in the NBA.

G-7 summit leaders pledge partnership
Leaders of the seven richest nations offered Tuesday a new political, economic and security partnership to their former Cold War adversaries and urged them to end ethnically-bloody raging in former communist countries. The leaders called for tight measures to curb the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and backed plans to strengthen the United Nations.

Russian communist party goes on trial
The Communist Party went on trial Tuesday in Russia’s highest court and only one of the summoned witnesses failed to appear—former Soviet President and party leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Communist representatives demanded President Boris Yeltsin also be summoned to defend his decree banning the party and seizing its extensive property holdings. But the case, opened with neither Gorbachev or Yeltsin.

Rebel Guerrillas Attack Andean City—About 1,000 Peruvian soldiers poured about 300 communist guerrillas into mountain jungle Tuesday after the rebels briefly occupied a northern Andean city, killing three people and taking 31 policemen hostage. Military troops spread out following the last mountainous border of Cajamarca and Amazon provinces looking for the alleged members of Peru’s second-largest guerrilla organization.

Bill Clinton.

House votes to protect scrub tree
The House voted Tuesday for measures to protect the Pacific yew, a long-ignored scrub tree that is the source for a promising new drug. The yew was said to have had important medical value and was burned as scrub, but attention was focused on the tree last year after its bark was found to be the source of the chemical compound that shows great promise in treating ovarian cancer, breast and lung cancer.

Daley: rail links between airports—Mayor Richard J. Daley Tuesday turned his sights from a new airport to the Southeast Side to a high-speed rail link between the city’s two existing airports in a bid to boost capacity and efficiency and open a way to land new non-stop international flights on a third facility. Daley last week declared his proposed Lake Calumet airport dead after the state Senate failed to approve enabling legislation, effectively killing the proposal for the session.

Director positions of CDC, University Placement merge

By Rebecca Campbell
General Assignment Writer

The director positions of SIUC’s Career Development Center and University Placement were merged July 1 under the unofficial title of Director of University Career Services. James Scales, previous director of Career Development, filled the position.

Harvey Welch, SIUC vice president for Student Affairs, said Scales will be instrumental in helping the three units provide more efficient services to students.

Teresa Buck, dean of Student Services, was filling the position of University Placement Director on an interim basis. No one will be hired to fill the position, Welch said.

Budget cuts were one reason for the combining of jobs, Welch said. “We need to reduce costs anyway we can,” he said.

Welch stressed that he and others are trying to face budget cuts realistically without cutting quality of service to the students.

Part of the money saved through the elimination of the director of University Placement position will be used for salary increases for the people who will take on extra duties, he said. The remaining funds will be returned to the budget.

Scales said people in Career Development and University Placement have the same training background, so no one will have to be retrained, he said.

Originally the units were together, Welch said. But, as the University grew the departments were separated.

Welch said the units will function more efficiently under a single director.

Welch and Scales agreed that the main purpose of the merger is to help students make the transition from college to work. Scales said freshmen will be given information at the beginning of college explaining the services available from career planning stage to job search skills that will be important in their senior year.

Freshmen and sophomores get career counseling and move to pre-employment skills as juniors, such as resume writing and interviewing skills.

Seniors begin job searches through the programs.

Attucks provides recreation, volunteerwork for children

By Lynelle Marquardt
General Assignment Writer

Paul Williams may have the ideal job: He is spending his summer swimming and playing basketball with children.

Williams, from St. Louis, is a trainee at the Attucks Community Services Board Summer Enrichment Program. This program provides free lunches and recreational activities for children from low-income families throughout the summer. This is the third year for the program.

Williams, participating in the Management Training Counseling Corporation, said he works about 35 to 40 hours each week.

Williams said he became involved in the program through a friend.

He said the staff is doing good things for the kids.

Recreation programs for the children are a big part of the program, he said. “We have free lunches, then we take them down to the park and do a lot of recreation, like basketball,” he said.

The organization feeds approximately 180 to 200 kids each day in the free lunch program.

About 35 to 40 of these kids are involved in the group activities. These children are mostly from Carbondale, Williams said.

The children must be at least 5 years old, and that is the only requirement for participation in the program.

He also said the staff takes the children swimming and holds arts and crafts programs daily. Bowling is the activity for Friday night.

Other activities are offered as well.

For example, the group recently took a trip to the St. Louis Zoo and Six Flags. The board was able to help the children pay for the tickets this year. In previous years, the children had to pay for their own tickets.

The staff also provides transportation for the children.

During the school year the staff tutors the children and makes sure they have their homework done.

The board is a non-profit organization, so fundraising activities are a necessity.

Delores Albrillon, director of the program, said Attucks does not receive any federal or state money.

“We have dances and carnivals, and we get money from different merchants and people in the community,” she said.

Eight members of the staff are volunteers from SIUC.

The other 14 employees are from the former Illinois Plumbers Union, which is now called the Management Training Counseling Corporation.

The Management Training Counseling Corporation hires economically disadvantaged people between the ages of 16 to 21 and trains them in non-profit organization throughout the area.
Macedonia needs recognition by U.S.

From the Saint Louis Post-Dispatch

What's in a name? International recognition and a seat at the community of nations—if the country is Macedonia. Or is the Republic of Skoje?

Poor Macedonia. This former Yugoslavian republic of 2.2 million peaceably declared its independence, respects its current borders and the ethnic minorities within and aspires to become a run-of-the-mill democracy. One would think that the United States and members of the European Community would be happy to bestow international recognition on this small country—but one would be wrong.

Macedonia has a problem: its name. Greece insists that the name belongs to it, and it refuses to recognize what it calls the Republic of Skoje until it changes its name. Because Greece is a member of the EC, it has been able to hold up European recognition, and because the EC has not recognized Macedonia, the United States, which has a large Greek community, has been reluctant to go first.

To Americans, who are used to appropriating names—New England, New York, etc.—this dispute seems trivial. But at least four people have been killed in Greece for advocating a live-and-let-live policy regarding the name Macedonia.

The diplomatic isolation of Macedonia leaves it open to Serbian repression. Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic has been talking about "the Macedonian problem."

Turkey, Bulgaria and Albania have recognized Macedonia. These countries fear another expansion of the Balkan war and do not want to recognize Milosevic out. In the name of peace, the United States should follow suit.

would be virtually unregulated.

The National Wildlife Federation has attacked the low priority wetlands classification, saying it ignores important wetlands and protects wetlands from the scope of federal protection.

The Haynes Bill would dramatically weaken wetlands protection, whereas we must strengthen wetlands protection as the nation continues to lose nearly 30,000 acres per year,” Doug Hinkley, a wildlife legislative lobbyist for the National Wildlife Federation, said.

Indy noted that changes proposed by the President Bush, 50 percent of existing wetlands would be unprotected. The Haynes Bill attempts to make these changes effective in the definition of wetlands.

Posthorn disagreed and maintained that his differences with the group stem from their disagreement over the definition of a wetland. He said the low priority, wetlands referred to by the National Wildlife Federation, are not really wetlands. “It’s easy for someone to say that you’re taking away 50 to 60 percent of the country’s wetlands by some definition we don’t agree with,” he said.

Under the current law, a wetland is defined as an area where water remains 18 inches below the surface for seven consecutive days. The new law alters this definition by saying that water must remain at the surface for 21 days.

The National Wildlife Federation argues the definition in the proposed bill has no scientific basis and ignores important wetlands which could not be flooded for that period of time, but have root zones that extending to 18 inches below the surface.

“The definitions they propose are arbitrary and have no basis in scientific fact,” Indy said.

“There is plenty of flexibility in the existing law for programs to go forward. Currently, less than 4 percent of use permits are denied. Therefore, the assumption that everybody would be starting over from the ground floor is a fallacy. Everyone could continue their activities,” Indy said.

Posthorn argues that the classifications in the Haynes Bill are no more arbitrary than those in the current law.

“Nobody has the exact data anywhere,” he said. “There is no data to say that seven days is a magic figure. To say that 21 is. We’ve been in the fields before, and I can tell you what the rivers, and I’m convinced that the current seven-day definition is workable.”

Posthorn said that the provisions of the Haynes Bill are subject to change, he said. “No bill goes through unscathed, and we will modify this one as it goes through the process,” he said.

“New (Madigan) says shouldn’t have a job.”

Although exact numbers are still unclear, the biggest layoff storm would be the state Mental Health department, which could lose as many as 1,000 jobs.

However, agency spokeswoman Pat Alvarez said orderly turnover among mental health employees is so high that it’s unlikely many of them will be forced out against their will.

Other agencies high on the hit list include the Department of Public Aid, targeted to lose 568 positions; the Department of Children and Family Services, 285; and the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, 250.

The CCAA layoffs are more significant than they appear because they would reduce the agency’s staff by one-third.

Democrats cut the economic development agency’s budget by 71 percent.

the Bureau of the Budget.

“Given the huge cuts in other departments, the proposed cut is virtually unnoticeable,” Feldhauser said. “Education was pretty much held harmless.”

Ligusters rushed last week to pass a budget, adjoining two days behind schedule. Gary Marx, press secretary for Gov. Jim Edgar, said in the frenzy to effectively balance the state budget, they were careful not to cut from education, which state legislators treat as a “sacred cow” that should not be drastically cut.

“Education was a sacred cow in budget talks. The cut in massive double digit cuts everywhere else,” Marx said.

However, the increase comes at a time when local secondary and elementary schools are being forced to make drastic cuts in programs because of more than 360 million dollars slashed from the education budget in fiscal year 1992.

Gov. Edgar, the superintendent of schools in Carterville, has said he cut the budget and athletic teams to retain enough money to keep the schools operating, and he said the increase for 1992 will provide some relief, but schools have not seen the end of budget struggles.

This still gets us up half way from what we need,” said State Sen. Ryan Dawson. “The state legislature did as good a job as they could do on education with the money available.

“All of us understand that there isn’t much money available,” he said.

Former top HUD official indicted on 11 new counts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former top official at the Department of Housing and Urban Development was indicted Tuesday on 11 new felony counts for allegedly steering millions of dollars meant for low-income housing to developers in exchange for payoffs.

A federal grand jury in Washington returned the 13-count superseding indictment against former HUD Deputy Secretary Deborah Gore Dean, a former executive assistant to HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce.

Dean was initially indicted in April on two felony counts for allegedly receiving $4,000 from a consultant and lying to Congress about the payoff.

Tuesday’s indictment added 11 new charges: three counts of conspiracy to defraud and commit offenses against the United States; four counts of perjury; and four counts of concealing and covering-up facts about HUD’s Moderate Rehabilitation Program, which was meant to help rehabilitate rental housing for poor families.

If convicted of all 13 counts, Dean could face a maximum sentence of 62 years in prison and fines of more than $5 million.

Under the April indictment, she faced a maximum jail term of seven years and a $500,000 fine.

A statement from the office of Independent Counsel Arlin Adams charges Dean. “Facilitated the award of HUD Moderate Rehabilitation funds, and other HUD programs and contracts, to behalf housing developers that were clients of certain private consultants she favored, as a result of which the favored consultants received hundreds of thousands of dollars in consulting fees, the developers received millions of dollars in HUD awards and (Dean) received beneficial things of value for her family and herself.

Dean, from Maryland, served as executive assistant at HUD from 1984 to July 1987, when she was nominated by President Reagan to become Assistant Secretary of HUD for Community Planning and Development.

The McLeod Theater kicks off its Summer Playhouse season July 10 with the Southern Illinois premiere of "Rumors," Neil Simon's comedy of errors.

Christian Moe, Chairman of the Theater Department, said an attempt was made to provide popular material for this summer's entertainment.

"We chose "Rumors" because it goes back to Neil Simon's farces," Moe said. The play concerns the deputy mayor of New York City who is found drugged and bled in his bedroom the night of his 10th wedding anniversary. As the party guests arrive, special appeared absconds as they attempt to protect their friend's political career from scandal and discover that honesty is the best policy.

McLeod's second offering this summer is the traditional musical, "Fiddler on the Roof." The play explores the life of a poor milkman named Tevye and his five unmarried daughters, in the Russian village of Anatevka. "Fiddler" is famous for such hits as "Tradition," "If I were a Rich Man" and "Sunrise, Sunrise." Since opening on Broadway at the Imperial Theater, "Fiddler" has been translated to over seven languages and has played all over the world.

"Fiddler" is a time honored family musical," Moe said. "We showed it once before and it was popular then, so we thought it would be popular again. There are a lot of good roles for actors and singers." "Rumors" will be in the McLeod Theater July 10 through 12 and 17 through 19. "Fiddler on the Roof" will run from July 24 through 26, 30, 31 and August 1 and 2.

Because of budget cutbacks, the summer season was reduced from three productions to two.

The Playwright's Workshop features four productions written by SIUC graduate theater students. A one-act play in the only to rate the plays that are submitted. It selects the best for production, which is funded by the Theater department.

Ten Acres of Land in Southern Illinois" by Mick Sokol follows a small piece of farmland over 200 years as it passes from one generation to another. It explores important moments in the farmers' lives as they choose between compromising the land, the environment and the themselves. The play will run July 27 and August 3. "X,YZ" by 1. Alden McMaster is a comedy concerning a middle aged woman who gives on her nine-year-old daughter for adoption to a meteorologist and his high society wife.

"I tend to write stories about feminine issues," McMaster said. "This play deals with some of the issues coming out of a woman's life," she said. "It will play July 28 and August 4. "Thistle Blossom" by Rosemary Beth Whilow is a drama which examines the relationship between a young university student and a rigid instructor when the student turns in a personal essay assignment - about her own suicide. The production will run July 29 and August 5.

"Emily and Otto" by Stace Gaddy is the story of a girl named Emily and her automated partner Otto in the not-too-distant future. Moe said the play is a metaphor for those who are imprisoned by life.

"Every time Emily wants to experience something new, she is electrically shocked by the robot," Moe said. "Until she is met by a young man named Charles who she wonders into the outside world.

It will run July 29 and August 5. McMaster said the Workshop was a unique opportunity that most universities so not offer.

"Not a lot of universities have interest in student plays," she said. "This department really pushes the process as well as the product."

Playwrights are able to see what works and what doesn't, Moe said.

COBA recruiter wins award; named Educator of the Year

By Rebecca Campbell
General Assignment Writer

Michael Haywood, director of Minority Programs and College of Business Administration Undergraduate Recruitment, was honored as an Educator of the Year Award.

Inroads, a national organization dedicated to help minority students enter the business world, presented Haywood the second annual award on June 25 in Chicago.

Affiliated with a program like Inroads reflects very positively on COBA, Haywood said.

"COBA can produce students who can take on leadership roles in their community and the corporate world," Haywood said.

Chicago Inroads staff specialist Stanley Meriwether, who nominated Haywood for the award, said he has been instrumental at SIUC in achieving a strong affiliation with Inroads. Four SIUC students have been placed in the internship program this year and two high school graduates will be attending SIUC in the fall on Inroads scholarships.

Each staff person at Inroads nominated an affiliate for the Educator of the Year Award and decided among themselves who the winner would be, Meriwether said.

Haywood, who recruits students for COBA, said he became involved with Inroads in 1990 and has been successful in helping several COBA students and some engineering students get accepted into the program.

Leaders offer to assist rising democracies

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) - Leaders of the seven richest nations offered a new political, economic and security partnership to their former adversaries Tuesday and urged them to end their conflict in the former communist countries.

In a political declaration adopted on the only way to end the World Economic Summit, the leaders pledged to support nations striving for independence and freedom, "the way that has been opened for a partnership of shared responsibilities, not only in Europe, which at long last is reunited, but also in the Asian and African region and elsewhere in the world."

This partnership will take many forms. The leaders acknowledged that these adversities of East and West will cooperate extensively in economic, political and security issues, they said in the declaration pronounced by German Foreign Minster Klaus Kinkel.

The declaration entitled "Shaping the New Partnership," said the countries of eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union not only faced challenges to their stability but also economic challenges.

"We support the as they move toward the development of democratic societies and political and economic freedom," the declaration said.

"The East-West confrontation and undertakes the urgent need to curb the proliferation of nuclear weapons," the document said.

Anti-government activists could disrupt rugby tours

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A South African sports administrator says anti-government activists could soon disrupt rugby tours in August by New Zealand, Argentina and the USA.

The warning was issued Monday by Junior Ramovha, a senior official of the South African Rugby Board and Sports Congress, aligned to the African National Congress.

"One cannot guarantee because you never know what may happen," Ramovha said.

"We will be going out to demonstrate peacefully, but the South African situation being what it is, anything can happen."
