$15 athletic fee increase approved

Hike to begin in 1996:
Athletic fee increase allows students to enter home games for free.

By Donita Polly
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students will be paying higher athletic fees this fall despite voting two to one against the increase in a referendum last spring.

The SIUC Board of Trustees approved an $8 per semester increase for fiscal year 1996 at its May 11 meeting.

Students taking 12 or more hours this fall will pay $46 instead of $38 in athletic fees. The increase will total $15 over two years starting with the $8 increase in fiscal year 1996 and a $7 increase in fiscal year 1997.

Part-time students' athletic fee increases will depend on the number of credit hours they are taking.

Students will pay more in fees but will receive free admission to home games.

Duane Sherman, president of the SIUC Undergraduate Student Government, said he is disappointed with the increase, especially after the referendum.

"We spoke up and said what we had to say. We were hurt, but we don't always get what we want," he said.

The increase is SIUC's response to a recommendation by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to stop state funding for University sports programs.

IBHE is expected to vote on a resolution to rescind the recommendation in July, but SIUC President John Guyon said SIUC will retain the fee increase regardless of the board's decision.

"The school had to take a position and it did. We have to stand by that decision," Guyon said.

SIUC associate athletic director Charlotte West has said in the past if the IBHE resolution were passed, she would ask Guyon to reduce the student athletic fee increase.

West could not be reached for comment on Guyon's statement.

SIUC assistant athletic director Nancy Bandy said even with the fee increase, the athletics budget will not increase significantly. She also said the increase does not compensate for all the losses.

"People have the wrong impression that this is going to be a significant increase. It's not an increase, only a way to remain status quo," Bandy said.

The money generated from the fee increase will be added to the athletics fund to compensate for the transfer of state funds.

State funds removed from athletics will be used in the area of technology support, Guyon said.

Gus says A winning football season may also increase attendance at games.

BOT passes new degree programs

By Aaron Butler
DE Associate Editor

Two new degree programs at SIUC may be available as early as 1996, and a new computer center will arrive by the end of this year.

The SIUC Board of Trustees approved the programs and the center at its regular meeting Thursday in St. Louis, and found time to take a second look at a proposed four-year tuition and fee plan.

The master of arts degree in interactive media and a bachelor of science degree in primary care medicine new await funding requested from the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The $1 million computer center, to be funded with revenues from telephone and data service, will be open by the end of the year.

Shry-rock: The Soulard Blues Band brought its rhythm and blues to the steps of Shryock Auditorium to kick off the Sunset Concerts Thursday evening in front of a crowd of nearly 300 people. The concerts are scheduled each Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. until July 27. Next Thursday's band will be Reggae at Will, which will play at Turley Park.

Overcrowding causes fight at Pinch

Lack of bouncers, power outage cause of problems patrons say

By Carey Jane Atherton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Due to havoc and mayhem at Pinch Penny Pub's reggae night, Wednesday, the 21 and under crowd who were in attendance will have to find another form of Wednesday night entertainment.

Ann Karayiannis, part owner of Pinch Penny Pub, 700 E. Grand Ave., said the bar had a much larger crowd than expected, which created crowd control problems. However Karayiannis said only five percent of Wednesday's crowd were under the age of 21.

"We really had no definite idea of what are capacity was and they (doormen) let too many people in," Karayiannis said.

According to Karayiannis part of the problem was because the city had not been out to assess the capacity.

Jimmy Karayiannis, assistant manager of Pinch Penny Pub, said the police had to disperse a crowd that had gathered outside of the bar, because they did not want to pay the $3 cover charge.

Erie Brenco, a senior in philosophy from Crystal Lake, said he thought there was a definite shortage of bouncers. He said he saw two fights first hand and the bouncer's reaction time left enough room for people to get seriously hurt.

"The reggae band said it was a peace and love atmosphere, but all the violence didn't even promote a friendly atmosphere," Brenco said.

Scott Fogg, of Carbondale, said he found it interesting that not a single bouncer showed up during a fight he saw which lasted four or five minutes.

Pinch Penny Pub also experienced power failure for a few minutes during the night which added

Purdue professor discusses dangers of CFC's

By Alan Schnepf
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The solution to halting the depletion of the ozone layer is not as simple as removing the infamous chlorofluorocarbons that caused the problem, a Purdue professor said during a lecture at Lawson Hall Thursday.

Joseph S. Francisco, a professor of chemistry and earth and atmospheric sciences at Purdue University, told an audience of about 60 people that the implications of CFC replacement compounds must be explored before they are considered safe.

CFCs, a group of compounds that were widely used for refrigeration and many other things since their discovery in the 40s, are being phased out because of their ozone-destroying properties, he said.

Francisco said one CFC molecule could destroy a million ozone molecules.

Ozone, a molecule made up of three oxygen atoms, makes up a layer in the stratosphere that filters out ultra-violet light which can cause bond rupturing in DNA, Francisco said. The rupturing can lead to skin cancer, he said.

He said the hole noticed in this protective layer several years ago is a serious environmental concern. "We've introduced 500 kilotons of the stuff in the atmosphere," he said.

There is a lot of research being done to find replacements for CFCs that do not destroy ozone, Francisco said.

These substances are tested to determine their "ozone depletion

HEAVY FIGHTING ERUPTS AROUND SARAJEVO — SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Heavy fighting erupted around this besieged capital Thursday as Bosnian government forces launched fierce artillery attacks on Bosnian Serb positions and vowed to free the city of a 38-month rebel Serb stranglehold. Attacking on three fronts, government troops shelled Bosnian Serb-held territory north and west of Sarajevo while the better-armed nationalist Serbs hit back and threatened to retaliate further. "Our army has been ordered to undertake measures aimed at preventing any further strangulation of the city," Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic said late Thursday in confirming the offensive was under way. "The world was doing nothing to prevent an obvious catastrophe."

IRAQI INTERNAL CLASH REPORTS UNCONFIRMED — WASHINGTON — U.S. officials Thursday said they had evidence confirming reports by Iraqi dissidents of fighting between units of Iraq's Republican Guard military force near Baghdad on Wednesday, and said that it grew out of clan unrest provoked by the execution of a senior Iraqi officer in May. Washington's announcement of what one official called "credible reports" of the clash contrasted with personal accounts given by several Baghdad residents Thursday, including a correspondent for the Reuters news agency and employees of the United Nations. They said they were unable to find any evidence of the reported clash.

GRAMM GOT CAMPAIGN AIDE EARLY DISCHARGE — WASHINGTON — Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, acknowledged Thursday that he had asked high Pentagon officials in 1983 to arrange an early discharge from Air Force active duty for a former student he wanted to work in his senatorial campaign. The Republican presidential hopeful confirmed he had authorized the letters to Air Force Secretary Veme Orr and Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman John W. Vessey on behalf of John Weaver, who became deputy manager of Gramm's 1984 Senate campaign and is now working as field director of the presidential bid. The communications were discovered by the Houston Chronicle in papers Gramm had placed in the archives of Texas A&M University and were reported in Thursday's edition of the Chronicle. Weaver said the main reason for his request was the serious illness of his father. Gramm's letters to the two Pentagon officials did not mention the elder Weaver's tuberculosis, but instead asked as "a personal favor" that Weaver's request for a transfer to the Reserves be approved, because "the expertise and dedication that John Weaver would bring to my efforts in this campaign would be invaluable."

CUTS RUN COUNTER TO OWN HEALTH STUDIES — WASHINGTON — Lawmakers are proposing major cuts in small preventive care programs despite Public Health Service studies showing that they often are more effective dollar for dollar in promoting health than many forms of medical care. The House budget resolution mentions the possibility of cutting in half the $842 million combined appropriation for the preventive health grant program and the maternal and child health grant program, which subsidizes preventive health services; phasing out some of the funds for injury research control, and eliminating a sports and physical fitness promotion program.

Clarifications/Corrections

■ SIUC baseball catcher Tim Kratochvil was referred to as Ken Kratochvil in the first paragraph of an article in Thursday's Daily Egyptian, although he was named correctly in subsequent references.

■ The caption under Wednesday's front page photo stated that the free lunches being distributed by the Aukucks Community Service Board are only for underprivileged children. In fact, the lunches are free for any child who wishes to participate.

■ The calendar in the Thursday edition of the Daily Egyptian was entirely incorrect.

Beach Bumz going dry

Owner voluntarily gives up liquor license

By Christl C. Harber
Daily Egyptian Reporter

In the midst of the bar-entry age increase and liquor-license alteration, a local bar owner decided to quit serving alcohol, and change the image of his bar.

Roland Davis, owner of Beach Bumz, 611 S. Illinois Ave., is giving up his liquor license to become an alternative to the changing scene on the Strip.

"I believe with every adversity carries the seed of an equivalent benefit," Davis said. "I don't see turning the bar into a juice bar a negative. I see it as just another symbol or the dawn of a new era."

On June 30, the liquor license for Beach Bumz will expire, and the new non-alcoholic format will begin July 7.

The decision to change the bar was based on two reasons: The new bar-entry age, increased to 20 years old May 2 by the Carbondale City Council, and the idea of providing alternative entertainment.

Instead of losing business, Davis said he believes it will work out for the best because he will be able to attract the younger crowd.

Todd Jenkins, a senior in administration of justice from Downers Grove, said the shift will allow more people to support the bar and its owner.

"It is going to open Beach Bumz's market to more than just the older crowd, therefore causing his business to grow in the area of the younger crowd and being able to stay open later," Jenkins said.

Patrick Robinson, a senior in business from Maywood, said he likes the idea of a non-alcoholic social setting.

"It gives students another place to go that does not serve alcohol and they can still have fun," Robinson said.

Katy Gallagher, a junior in visual communications from Crystal Lake, said she is glad to see something positive being done with the establishment.

"It is a big step, but we have a solid plan."

Roland Davis
owner, Beach Bumz

"Students still have a place to go and be in the social atmosphere and interact with other students without the concerns of the alcohol consumption level for students who actively participate (in drinking)," she said.

Leroy Peters, a senior in radio-television from Chicago, said he thinks the prime reason why people come is to relax and drink.

"It's a good idea, but they should have half-liquor and half-juice, and the people who want to drink should be catered," Peters said.

Other planned changes include the addition of more live entertainment. The club will offer teen nights for ages 14-18 on the weekends from 7-11, Davis said. After midnight, the focus will be geared toward the young adult crowd to give them an after-hours club when other bars on the Strip close.

In addition to serving alcohol-free drinks, pizza, nachos and other light snacks will be available.

The majority of the music will be high energy and top 40. Alternative, house, disco, club and dance will also be played.

"It is a big step, but we have a solid plan," Davis said.

Nikki Cuellar, a senior in paralegal studies from Chicago, said she agrees with Davis' changes.

"I think it is a positive thing for young people," Cuellar said. "It gives them a place to go so we do not have to worry about them getting in trouble for underage drinking."

Morris connecting to Internet

By Rebecca Hutchings
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students will have access to more current research articles in a shorter amount of time Monday when Morris Library's computer program Infotrac is connected to the Internet.

Infotrac is a computer network that carries an index of the periodicals in the library. Students using Infotrac are able to find sources for their research papers and articles.

Instead of just getting information that was published last month as in the past, students will have access to a list of sources that will be updated weekly.

Students will be able to access their information within one or two seconds instead of waiting 20 to 30 seconds for slow computers.

Don Wood, systems librarian, said the changes will make the system more accessible to more users.

"Through CD-ROM, everyone is busy hitting the same service through computers at the same time," Wood said. "This slows everything down and makes for slower access. The Internet version means you make a direct connection to the computer itself. The bigger machine can handle more traffic on it."

Brad Hutson, a student employee at Morris Library, said he is glad to see the

Tuition hike plan eliminates surprise

THE INITIAL RESPONSE TO A TUITION increase is always negative. It means students will pay more and no one wants to do that. Last year, USG President Edwin Sawyer came under fire for supporting an inflationary increase in tuition. But he responded by saying he studied the increase proposal and found no reason to oppose it. It was a necessary evil, he said.

Now the SIU Board of Trustees is once again considering a necessary evil. Four of them to be exact. The Illinois Board of Higher Education has suggested that state universities plan their tuition increases four years in advance so students and their parents can plan for education costs. The BOT discussed Thursday an increase in tuition which follows these guidelines.

According to the tuition hike proposal, tuition would increase $5 per credit hour each year for four years starting in 1997. That translates into $150 more per year for an undergrad. The increases for the School of Medicine and the School of Dental Medicine are more adverse, but not nearly as sharp as last year's tuition hike.

AS MUCH AS NO ONE WANTS TO HEAR ABOUT paying more money, the plan has merit. First, the plan lets students know up front what they will be paying for tuition over four years. And the amount of the increase is not a shocking one. The increases are designed to match the inflation rates. Also, the plan allows for fluctuations in the economy which may affect the tuition hikes. In other words, the increases are not etched in stone.

THE BOT WILL HAVE TO APPROVE EACH YEAR'S increase individually. If inflation drops, that will be taken into account. At the same time, if it rises, the BOT has a way to ensure the school does not fall short of money. This is good for the students because in either case, they know what the increases are going to be, and can voice an opinion about the increases if the economic situation deems it necessary.

And the increases in tuition will not put SIU prices out of reach of students. SIU has been and will continue to be one of the cheapest universities in the state. Even with the increase, by the year 2000, SIU will still be $500 to $1,000 cheaper than the University of Illinois and $100 to slightly more than $250 cheaper than Northern Illinois University and Illinois State University, according to the increase notice sent to the BOT by the vice chancellor's office earlier this week.

THE VICE CHANCELLOR'S OFFICE SHOULD BE commended for developing a plan that meets both IBHE recommendations as well as serves the students of SIU. The plan is receiving positive feedback from student representatives and looks like it is headed for approval. Yes, it does mean students will pay more for their education at SIU if it is approved. But it is necessary, just like getting a raise is important to a family when inflation rises. The family wouldn't survive otherwise. As long as student input is not ignored, this increase, due to the University's foresight, will benefit all incoming students.

Six Ways to Desecrate the Flag

Letters to the Editor

Propaganda, false Qur'ans misrepresent Islamic beliefs

I would like to respond to Annie Hoffman's letter from May 10th. I looked for the passage in the Qur'an that she quoted that appears sexist and I couldn't find it. I did find a quote at S. 4 A. 19 that said, "live with them (women) on a footing of kindness and equity." Also S. 4 A. 32, "to women (is allotted) what they earn" and S. 4 A. 19, "ye are forbidden to inherit women against their will." At S. 4 A. 124 it says, "be they male or female and have faith they will enter heaven."

I note this last because there is a false rumor that says, in Islam, women are not allowed in heaven. In the Qur'an it also provides for specific punishments for women (and men). If one looks deeper one usually finds that these punishments are voided if the sinners will simply apologize.

The enemies of Islam have published at least six false Qur'ans to misrepresent Islam and perhaps this is why I could not find the quote. Propaganda and lies about the original Islam and the Black Muslims are the norm. Christians have lied, stolen, oppressed and made war on Islam. Christian greed, lies, and violence surrounding Islam are well documented.

The truth is, Islam is a very open religion which accepts Christianity and Judaism as equal. It is hard to judge a foreign culture Ms. Hoffman. If there is sexism in Islam, it is worse than our sexism? The greed goblins seeking to steal Arab oil and Christians with evil intent have distorted the truth for political reasons.

As an American (non-Muslim), I am ashamed of our uneducated, provencial attitudes and our cruelty toward Islam. Muslims are kind and gentle people deserving of respect. As an individual I try to make it up to them by educating myself and by being courteous and respectful to all foreigners. Shouldn't we all do this?

I sympathize with you, Ms. Hoffman. I also am a feminist. I once read a false Qur'an and made mistakes because of this. We have been victims of a hateful propaganda campaign that seeks to dehumanize Arabs so we can murder them in war and steal their oil. The propagandists seek war and murder for profit — don't fall for it. After all, they will give us the oil without all the hate and violence.

Federal support for education takes back seat to U.S. defense spending

The DE June 13 article cites students wary of $18 billion loan cuts to student aid. The DE June 14 editorial "SIU students worried about train service cuts."

Why is the government insistent on making the pursuit of education more difficult for young people? A recent study of some 41 countries found that the countries that performed the best economically from 1960 to 1985 had the strongest educational systems.

Our current paltry federal support for education is disgraceful at .02% of the budget, or $27 billion. Transportation did a little better this year with $38 billion. The Republican Congress has made cuts in both of these vital social programs.

Student Veronica Ayesch from Georgia stated in your June 13

article on student loan cuts that she couldn't understand why Congress refuses to cut the military. The U.S.A. forgot to come home from the war after WWII, and the budget for 1995 is 18%, or $272 billion. If you count the interest on the debt for past military procurements and pensions for all the admirals and generals we have accrued, we are talking abt it 27% of the budget or $422 billion yearly.

Some young college grads have to go into the military because there are no other jobs available. This is a disgrace and the building of a "death economy." Congressman (Newt) Gingrich is tickled that the military will purchase 442 F-22s manufactured in Marietta, Ga. Gingrich's own backyard: $72 billion in tax dollars, or $23 million a day, on this wasteful project. Research has shown that $1 billion spent on missiles creates 9,000 jobs, whereas $1 billion spent on education creates 63,000 jobs.

Thomas Mann, a Nobel Peace Prize winner, said, "War is a coward's escape from solving problems of peace." The U.S. is such a coward as we pursue weapons research of $38 billion yearly, while the Center for Disease Control receives $36 million yearly.

I hope that college students who are now beginning to feel the pinch of government mismanagement will become more vocal about "common good" priorities for this country.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board.

Letters to the editor must be submitted in person to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 300 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

The center, to be located in Quigley Hall, will serve over 500 students from the College of Fine Arts and the College of Architecture.

The four-year tuition plan, to be updated yearly if approved, was discussed by the BOT financing committee and will be voted on by the BOT at their next meeting.

SIUC vice chancellor Donald W. Wilson said the plan will help students and their families make more informed financial decisions.

"We want to have a rolling plan, so that people will always have an idea of what the costs will be over a four year period," he said.

If the plan is approved, tuition will increase at levels above projected inflation rates for graduate and undergraduate students at SIUC and SIUE, as well as the SIU schools of Law and Medicine.

SIUC Chancellor James Brown said despite the increases, SIUC still will have the lowest tuition of any comparable university in the state.

"We are trying to be as reasonable as possible for both students and constituents," he said.

to the chaos.

"The band blew the main fuse," Karayiannis said.

Karayianis said three fights and two minor scuffles took place, however, she said the numerous problems that took place on Wednesday were a one time thing.

Carbondale community resource officer Don Priddy said four arrests were made at Pinch Penny Pub.

Priddy said Woodrow William Sarver, 23, of Urbana and Panagiotif Ventikof, 36, of Carbondale were arrested at 12:01 a.m. for fighting while watching the bikini contest.

Priddy said the other two arrests were made at 1:54 a.m. as the bar closed. He said Rebecca Vancil, 19 from DeSoto and Jamie Johnson, 20 from Hurst, were also arrested for fighting.

Priddy said all four arrested were charged with fights by agreement and given notice to appear in court. Karayiannis said the individuals involved were told they were not welcome at Pinch Penny again.

"We have a long list of people who have been banned over the last 22 years," Karayiannis said.

potential," he said.

The introduction of man-made compounds can begin a complex chain of chemical reactions that can be over 200 steps long, Francisco said. He said all of these steps must be examined to be sure that an ozone-depleting chemical is not formed in the later stages of the chemical processes.

He explained that even though chlorine is usually considered the culprit in CFC ozone depletion, fluorine can also be responsible for the destruction of ozone.

Francisco said this occurs farther into the process than chlorine destroying ozone.

"We should try and make sure we understand the whole chemistry, not just one step," Francisco said.

Francisco received his Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has received several fellowships and awards.

The lecture was sponsored by Sigma Xi, a scientific research society, and the new SIUC environmental studies program.

Thatcher's new book Major attack on successor's policy

The Washington Post

LONDON—Like a vengeful ghost in some Shakespearean drama, Margaret Thatcher has returned.

She stalks not a castle, but the airwaves, the newspapers, the bookstores and the lecture halls of London. She haunts those who tormented her, and some who did not, bawling the fate of her legacy. How it has been squandered, she says, "everything I believed in." How they have strayed. And oh, she rattles, they are paying the terrible price: disastrous ratings in the opinion polls.

Such is the message being delivered by Baroness Margaret Thatcher this week. She is plugging her new book, "Margaret Thatcher: The Path to Power." But the person getting plugged—full of holes—is John Major, the current prime minister, who took her place in 1990, after she was deposed in a party putsch. Her party colleagues decided they could not win the next election with her and ousted her.

She got a title. Major got the prize. And for the past week, she has been getting even.

While declaring repeatedly that she wants to do nothing to make Major's life miserable, she has done nothing but that, attacking virtually all of her successor's policies—domestic and foreign. Those who took her place, she has said, have wrecked the relationship with the United States, overtaxed the British people, overspent their money, and allowed the "bureaucrats" who run the European Union to also run this country.

In summary, as she told Sky News television Tuesday, she believes she left Major "quite a good inheritance. A Britain that was rather proud of itself again, that reassured all the things that made our country great," a party of "true conservatism." Now, she says, it is gone.

Major's Tory colleagues have not exactly leaped to his defense. Edwina Currie, a member of Parliament who was a minister in Thatcher's government, suggested that the baroness was "a bit barny." Michael Portillo, a Major cabinet member closely identified with Thatcher, said, when asked to defend his boss: "The prime minister can take care of himself."

The book written by Thatcher, who will be in the United States June 25 through July 1 to promote it, is itself relatively mild. "At first," she writes of her ouster from 10 Downing Street, "my involuntary 'retreat' was dominated by dark thoughts." But now, she writes, she can see things more clearly and they do not look good.

"Western defenses are being run down and the resolve to use them is dwindling. There is deep confusion about the future of Europe and Britain's place in it. The 'special relationship' with the United States has been allowed to cool to near freezing point. ... Not that everything is bad. The world is a freer, if not necessarily safer, place than during the Cold War. But that most important element of political success is missing—a sense of purpose.

"Of course, I would say that, wouldn't I? Perhaps. But others who often criticized me in government are saying it too."

More damaging—coming from a leader who still has a considerable following within Major's cabinet and party—have been the countless interviews.

system upgraded.

"Students always come and ask me why their information isn't coming up and there was nothing I could do except tell them to wait," Hutson said. "I'm glad for the change. It will save time on my part as a worker, and it will save the students time as well."

The past delay was caused by relying on a monthly CD-ROM produced by the Information Access Company for the information.

Beginning Monday, the library's computers will access the information straight from the company's main computer.

Jay Starratt, director of technical and automation services, said the program will be available only in Morris Library initially, but eventually will be available through computers all over campus.

This will allow students and faculty to use the Infotrac without having to go to the library.

Students who use Infotrac on Monday will notice the old program is still there, along with the new program. Students will be able to choose either.

GSA sets up security information line

The Washington Post

The General Services Administration has set up a toll-free number to obtain information on security matters at federal buildings controlled by GSA.

The number, 1-800-215-8419, will be answered between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Eastern time Monday through Friday by a security specialist who will respond to questions and provide information about general and personal safety and security concerns in federal buildings, the GSA said.

Messages will be taken by employees between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m. weekdays and on weekends and holidays, with return calls made the next business day.

The number should not be used for reporting emergencies, officials said. Emergencies should be reported to the nearest Federal Protective Service control center or 911 local emergency numbers.

GSA has stepped up security at federal buildings since the April bomb attack on the Oklahoma City federal building, which killed 168 people.

Investigation of bird up in the air

The investigation concerning the dead hawk found on a platter outside Pulliam on Wednesday is in limbo.

University Police Detective Jennings said he turned the hawk over to the Department of Conservation Thursday.

Sources from the Department of Conservation said the investigation is on hold because they are waiting for the University Police report on the incident to be filed.

Indian ruins for purchase in Colorado

Los Angeles Times

CORTEZ, Colo.—Forget the snow-shrouded mountain peaks surrounding this high-desert burg in southwestern Colorado. Developer Archie Hanson guarantees space-ready American Indian ruins on each of the 35-acre lots he offers.

And the novel parcels, which go for up to $195,000, are selling briskly to people intrigued by living next to the stone walls, underground rooms and buried pottery left by a culture that mysteriously abandoned the region around the year 1300.

The hitch: While buyers are encouraged to excavate, they must hire professional archeologists to do the work. What's more, unearthed artifacts must be returned to a planned private museum upon the owner's death.

But the way Hanson figures it, being able to display those artifacts at home is ample "reward."

"You can display them, and fondle them and enjoy them," Hanson said.

Here, Hanson, 69, is designing his own stone home to overlook an excavation site that yielded the remains of at least two American Indians who may have been burned to death. Hanson's home will be custom-built to include windows, spotlights and even a catwalk for close-up views. There will also be a remote-control board that will provide, with the flip of a switch, a recorded lecture about what it all means.

He has already dubbed the dig the "Hanson site" and encourages potential buyers to also name their excavations after themselves.

The whole thing is giving archeologists and American Indian leaders the jitters.

Never mind that Hanson promises that he and his customers will "become world renowned for our contributions to the knowledge about the people who lived here."

For Ricardo Elia, director of the graduate program in archeological heritage management and ethics at Boston University, the business venture "smacks of the kind of private collecting that is causing the destruction of the world's archeological sites by looters."

The way Elia figures, "whenever possible, sites should be left undisturbed for the future, when techniques and research questions will be better."

"Run-out-there-and-dig-it-up is the old style of archeology," he said, a style that harks back to a time when "archeologists were little more than treasure hunters."

Elia, along with many museum curators, doubts whether private individuals have the expertise, facilities and funds to adequately protect delicate artifacts in their homes, let alone the means and dedication needed to maintain a quality museum.

Some archeologists, however, disagree and laud Hanson for insisting that scientists conduct the excavations at his development. His approach, they say, is an improvement over the pillaging by pothunters—who sometimes scatter ruins with lawnmowers and bulldozers, easing up only to grab potentially valuable jewelry and intact pots often found in graves.

The desecration of graves—even by archeologists—is deeply offensive to some tribes. The Pueblo people of Arizona and New Mexico, whose ancestors are buried here, believe that disturbing those remains unsettles the spirits of the dead.

Police Blotter

Carbondale Police

• John C. Studather, 25, of 2451 S. Illinois Ave., said his 1994 orange, blue and white Honda XR600 dirt bike style motorcycle was stolen from outside his residence between 2:20 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. June 14.

Police said the motorcycle was chained to another motorcycle before it was stolen, and the rear wheel of the stolen motorcycle was left with the chain still through it. The loss is estimated at $5000.

• Charles W. Pugh, 35, of Carbondale was arrested 6:30 p.m. June 14 on a Jackson County warrant for aggravated battery and domestic battery.

The arrest occurred when Pugh was stopped by police for a traffic violation at N. Illinois Ave. and West Oak St. Pugh was released after posting bond.

University Police

• A 46 year old man was removed from the SIUC cheerleaders practice June 14.

Police said he left without incident.

• A university paycheck was reported stolen between 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. on May 26.

The Williamson County Sheriff's Department is investigating the incident.

• University Police said Barry W. Bain, 48, of Carbondale was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and was also cited for not having valid registration and proof of insurance on June 15. Bain posted bond and was released.

Cybersmut targeted by Senate bill

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—Amid mounting public concern over smut in cyberspace, the Senate on Wednesday approved a measure that would curb transmission of indecent material over the Internet and restrict children's access to on-line computer services.

As part of broad legislation that would overhaul the nation's telecommunications laws, the Senate approved by an 84-16 vote an amendment that would impose jail terms of up to two years and fines of up to $100,000 for anyone who knowingly makes available over an electronic network "any obscene communication in any form including any comment... or image."

The Senate also approved a last-minute provision that will require on-line computer services to restrict children's access to so-called indecent materials such as chat lines or photos by requiring users to verify their age with a personal identification number.

The Senate also moved Wednesday to toughen anti-smut sanctions on other media. It increased, from $10,000 to $100,000, the maximum fine that the Federal Communications Commission could levy against broadcasters and cable TV operators for transmitting indecent material.

A final vote on the Senate's sweeping telecommunications bill is expected Thursday. The House is expected to pass a companion measure soon, but its version currently contains nothing about obscenity.

Dems criticizing Clinton over budget

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—GOP congressional leaders said Wednesday they may be willing to incorporate some of President Clinton's proposals for balancing the budget into their plans, while the White House tried to soothe Democrats who feel Clinton blundered by putting forth his own detailed alternative.

The day after Clinton went on national television to unveil his proposal for balancing the budget in 10 years, House and Senate GOP leaders met with White House Chief of Staff Leon E. Panetta and Budget Director Alice Rivlin in the Capitol to review the president's plan in detail.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., told reporters "there is real substance" to the president's proposal and that "at a minimum we can find some important things we could adopt and implement." Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., praised Clinton for having chosen "the necessary and responsible thing to do."

But House Democrats who believed they had begun to gain political mileage by attacking Republicans for proposing to balance the budget and cut taxes at the expense of Medicare and Medicaid recipients complained the president had left them in the lurch.

Liberals 'went ballistic'

Liberal Democrats, including Reps. Fortney "Pete" Stark (Calif.), George Miller (Calif.), Charles B. Rangel (N.Y.) and Rosa L. DeLauro (Conn.), "went ballistic" Wednesday when Rivlin met with the House Democratic caucus to defend the president's plan, according to some who attended the meeting.

Some Democrats said that by offering a plan of his own which would cut taxes and substantially slow the growth of Medicare and Medicaid, the president had neutralized the Democrats' strategy and assured that Congress would approve major cuts in those programs.

"We had been making some headway in beating up on the Republicans over Medicare," Stark said. "What Clinton has done to Medicare is just about as bad as what the Republicans did."

"And now, obviously, the Republicans don't need us because there's no longer a veto threat," he said.

House Budget Committee Chairman John R. Kasich, R-Ohio, said, "The president's proposal is basically a stamp of approval on what we've been talking about for a long time."

DeNoon

"I'll do is the real question," he said. "At the national level I may be competitive enough to win."

DeNoon would like to race in 20 km races at both the U.S. Masters and the World Masters July 12, but the spacing of the two races will make it difficult.

"If I were to do both 20 km events, then I would have less time to recover," he said.

While DeNoon has been active his whole life, he took a nearly 20-year absence from the sport of race-walking until he began competitive walking again in November 1991.

DeNoon said the race against the clock is one thing he enjoys about race-walking.

"I love the competition—not so much against other people but how far I can push myself," DeNoon said.

DeNoon also likes walking competitively because it keeps him physically fit, which is a benefit to his body and for his team.

"This gives them a statement of if I can do it, then they can do it too," he said.

Besides the hamstring injury, DeNoon is recovering from surgery on his right knee. Torn cartilage in the knee that was not discovered right away hindered the recovery of the hamstring and was removed.

positive this summer," Cravens said. "Everyone is trying to do what they have to individually to turn this program around for the fall and it's showed by the dedication the guys are putting in by being around."

Cravens said there is an increase in the number of players this summer over last year, adding cohesiveness to the group.

Linwood Ferguson, the Salukis' defensive coordinator, said the commitment players are demonstrating is one the coaches have had all along.

"Everyone has to have a commitment if we are going to put in a winning effort this year," Ferguson said.

The Saluki squad struggled last season, posting only one win and 10 losses.

definitely were a problem last season.

"We've worked on overall strength in recruiting as well as the weight room," Ferguson said. "We want to be a more physical team this fall and be able to dominate the line of scrimmage on both sides of the football."

Ferguson said the players are carrying out the mental attitude that the coaches have established.

Brian Tranchitella, a senior linebacker from Peoria, said Saluki head coach Shawn Watson brought a positive attitude to SIUC football — something that was not always there in the past.

"Instead of thinking 'we can win this game' like in the past, we're thinking 'we will win this game' now," Tranchitella said. "With all this positive attitude going around, it's contagious — we look forward to working out and running."

Tranchitella said, this summer's turnout is the largest he has seen in the three summers he has been working out for the team, Tranchitella said.

"Coach Watson's talks about dedication have kept guys down here who normally wouldn't be here for the summer to focus more sharply on football," Tranchitella said.

The dedication to the team is paying off in the way players view each other, he said.

"You establish friends rather than just teammates, and it becomes fun out there," Tranchitella said. "If you go out to do your job on the field and have some fun with it — that's going to lead to success."

Illinois bill to insure gender equity

By Cynthia Sheets
DE Sports Editor

"The purpose of the law (Bill 269) is to stop schools from cutting the men's programs."

Nancy Bandy assistant Athletic Director

The SIUC athletic program may receive more than half a million dollars from the state to help advance a gender equity issue, a current topic in intercollegiate athletic programs throughout Illinois.

Gov. Jim Edgar is expected to pass Senate Bill 269, a bill that would allow 11 public universities in Illinois to use 1 percent of their tuition earnings for waivers to be used in place of athletic scholarships. The scholarships, in turn, could be used for any number of resources, including bankrolling more coaches, buying equipment or expanding the program with more female athletes.

The bill stems from the Title IX Education Amendment of 1972, which bans sex discrimination at federally-funded universities.

SIUC's full amount, which the pending legislation would provide, is an estimated $508,400 in tuition waivers, a statistic compiled by the Illinois Board Higher Education.

In addition to the Saluki program, 10 other schools could be aided by the pending legislation, including universities such as Eastern Illinois, Illinois State and Northern Illinois University.

Nancy Bandy, assistant athletic director at SIUC, said the proposed bill would be a good thing for University.

"Any money we didn't have to generate would definitely be helpful," Bandy said. "The purpose of the law is to stop schools from cutting the men's programs."

Some universities had been cutting men's sports in an attempt to equalize the ratios between male and female athletic programs. SIUC's current ratio is 65 percent to 35 percent, but SIUC President John Guyon said the University is close to meeting its goals of gender equity.

"I am always pleased to have additional support for scholarships," Guyon said. "We always appreciate support from legislature in this matter."

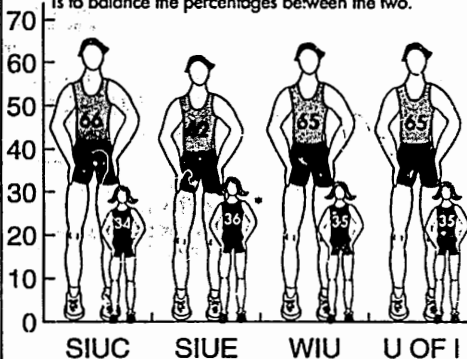

One coach who could benefit indirectly from the bill is SIUC softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer. Brechtelsbauer was not aware of the impending bill but said there are improvements that need to be made in the softball program.

"One of the more obvious discrepancy of resources is the facility itself," Brechtelsbauer said. "We are making progress, but we are in need of a clubhouse, locker rooms and especially bathrooms. We're very much in need of those."

Senate Bill 269 passed in the Senate 54-2 and in the House of Representatives 117-0. As of Thursday, Gov. Edgar had not signed the bill, but he has until July 20 to do so.

Student Athlete Scholarship Percentages

The percentage of male athletes on scholarships nearly double those of female athletes on scholarships at their universities. The purpose of Senate Bill 269 is to balance the percentages between the two.

* Has made cutbacks that will affect the percentages for the fall season.

Get it together.

That is precisely what members of the Saluki football team are doing to prepare for the gridiron almost two months before the first scheduled practice.

A five-day-a-week workout program made up of weight lifting and running sessions are helping the Salukis come together.

Jim Cravens, a senior free safety from DuQuoin, said nearly 50 players have made an exceptional effort to stay at SIUC over the summer and work out.

Don DeNoon: Back on track

By Eric Helbig
Daily Egyptian Reporter

After being on top of the world of race-walking, SIUC women's track coach Don DeNoon is attempting to regain his winning form after a serious leg injury.

With a 3-4 minute lead on the field, DeNoon pulled his hamstring at the hip and behind the knee at the U.S. Masters competition in Eugene, Ore. last summer, costing him a possible championship.

"I probably could have won easily but the time factor was there," DeNoon said. "I had the opportunity to make a lifetime best."

DeNoon's time in 5 km races has slowed from last year's pace, but he remains optimistic that he will be able to race in the U.S. Masters competition July 6 in East Lansing, Mich.

Mantle's greatness overshadowed by alcohol

By Stan Isaacs
Special to Newsday

Mickey Mantle, who revealed so little of himself to outsiders in his prime as a ballplayer, revealed more than he realized when he was out of baseball and full of regrets for what might have been.

He had been, he knew, a great ballplayer. He also knew that, for all his painful injuries, he could have been a greater ballplayer if he had worked harder at it, if he had not sloshed his talents in alcohol.

Mantle frequently has told of two recurring dreams he has had. In one dream, he shows up at Yankee Stadium and can't get into the ballpark.

All the doors are locked. In the other dream, he hits a long drive into the bleachers. He rounds third base and starts for home plate. He runs and he runs but he can't reach home plate.

I was still somewhat of a rookie baseball reporter when Mantle joined the Yankees as a tallyhoed rookie in 1951.

Willie Mays, also greeted with considerable fanfare, came up to the New York Giants early the same season.

Because of the hoopla attending both and their great potential and the rivalry that existed among fans of the New York teams at the time, an unusual bet was made that came to my attention.

The bet: Each person put up $500. An independent party was chosen to rule which player achieved the better career, to be judged after each stopped playing.

In the end, the fan backing Mays was declared the winner because in the long scheme of things Mays, ever the dedicated player in all phases of the game, had the longer and more productive career.

The Yankees Mantle joined in 1951 were the most successful organization baseball had known—with arrogance to match. So much so that when a small-town, Oklahoma-born Mantle came to the Yankees' spring training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., and was besieged by reporters, the Yankees' public relations man told the 19-year-old:

"You don't have to talk to these (explosives)."

Mantle was among the most difficult of athletes for reporters.

He was a self-deprecating, Rabelaisian wit, an ultimate selfless team player, the most popular of the Yankees among his peers, but he turned a tight-lipped, suspicious glare to reporters.

Once, after he hit two home runs and the second one in the 10th inning won the game for the Yankees, he decided he wouldn't talk to reporters and made himself scarce in the off-limits-to-reporters trainer's room in the clubhouse. I knew I had to have some comments from him in my story and waited him out.

When he finally came back to his locker, he joked with hanger-on friends, tried to ignore me, then ridiculed my questions.

He was a small-town hick from the Southwest.

When the Yankee team bus idled outside Fenway Park after a game, the street rats of Boston congregated around the bus and yelled insults at the Yankees.

Whitey Ford yelled back in good-natured, wiseguy fashion, enjoying the banter. Mantle retreated to the back of the bus.

When the Yankee bus was nearer Mantle's home territory at the Kansas City stadium—where the fans approached players respect-ly—Mantle reached out to chat and sign autographs.

The way his illness has been treated in the media the past week raises him to a stature of immortality over and above that of a mere ballplayer.

It wakes up the echoes of Babe Ruth, whose 100th birthday was celebrated at a widely acclaimed conference on the Bambino at Hofstra University in April.

When Mantle retired, he often expressed regrets about not having been more accessible as a player. He still drank, yes, but even when he wasn't drinking, he now was affable, funny, the guy his teammates and opposing players loved.

Those of us to whom he had been such a professional challenge came to enjoy him, to laugh with him—and to wince at some of the gross jokes he enjoyed so much.
