Thompson drops Davies renovation

By Paula Donner

Staff Writer

The one-year-long attempt to secure funds for the renovation of the Athletics and Recreation Center has ended in another snafu Wednesday when money for the project was not included in Gov. James Thompson's recommended capital improvement budget for fiscal year 1981.

The $2.3 million request for the gym renovation was approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, and $1.9 million was recommended by Thompson for IBHE's capital improvement projects. The total gym project was $2.5 million for site improvements at the SIUE multipurpose building.

The General Assembly will study the governor's recommendation, but legislators do have the power to alter them. Last year, when the Davies project ranked 53 on the priority list, a special bill recommend to the legislature, but it didn't pass.

However, local administrators had hoped that the addition of the gym this year would finally merit the funding.

Director Charlotte West, whose office is located in the gym, described the proposal as "very disappointing."

"It was pretty much a belief that it would pass this year and it's hard to believe that it didn't, especially in the condition of the building," she said.

The 53-year-old structure has never been renovated, yet still continues to house the 11 athletic teams and 41 physical education classes.

West said the gym floor has been compromised by splashed water leaks through the walls and ceiling. The building suffers from poor wiring, heating and ventilation systems.

"The electrical system is so bad that we could not run the photocopier at the same time," she said.

Chairman Kenneth Shaw, who was "pleased about the multi-purpose facility," was "disappointed about Davies."

I expect to submit legislation (for the gym) and we're encouraged that we can have some good discussions about it, he said.

The legislature will not present the budget package to Thompson until July.

Union leader outlines goals for teachers

By Chuck Hempstead

Staff Writer

Margaret Schmid, president of the American Federation of Teachers Local 3501, said Thursday that salary increases, grievance procedures, workload guidelines and termination procedures are the major accomplishments of the year.

Addressing the spring meeting of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, Schmid emphasized the need for lobbying efforts at both the state level and in the individual legislative districts of universities to provide legislators with information of concern in university faculty.

"The Illinois Board of Higher Education treats all university faculty in a manner that is not in their collective bargaining interests or not," Schmid said.

"All the systems in Illinois need to unite to lobby for what we need," she added.

Schmid said the AFT was opposed to the recent organization of faculty senate presidents to lobby for salary increases. She said it could reduce the effectiveness of the librarians and managers. Hunt's argument against faculty senate lobbying is that it puts the administration where the administration wants them, that is, aligned with the administration.

Schmid said the SIUC Faculty Senate is a creation of the University and is not able to contribute to political campaigns as does the union. She said legislators could take this into consideration when deciding who to listen to.

The recent Supreme Court decision banning collective bargaining at Yeshiva University, a private school in New York, has heartened the administration that they can successfully oppose faculty bargaining, Donow said.

Dennis responded that the Faculty Senate proposes to lobby mainly at the local legislative district level and that the AVI should cooperate and appreciate the efforts that focus on the attainment of common interests. He said that it shouldn't matter who has that information to legislators.

Schmid, whose union local represents the faculty of Chicago State, Eastern Illinois, Governor's State, Northeastern Illinois and Western Illinois Universities, said that recruiting union members is imperative, but noted that it is often difficult because university teachers don't view themselves as public employees, but rather as employees of their individual institutions.

Schmid said that people usually join unions when they have problems, they will join if they think the union can help them," she said.

Gwen Hunt, owner of PK's on South Illinois Avenue, passions from her renovation business is housed in one of 23 buildings targeted for demolition if funding for a proposed hotel and convention center is secured by April 15.

City businesses contemplate relocation

By Mary Harmon

Staff Writer

Facing city hall and winning may spark a glimmer of hope in others who have to give it a go, but for the people who are up to now, there doesn't appear to be much point in trying.

Twenty-three buildings in the downtown Carbondale area have been targeted for relocation to make room for a proposed $1.9 million hotel and convention center, construction of which is scheduled to begin in January 1981.

If adequate funding is secured by April 15, the deadline set by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the convention center will be built on the block bounded by Walnut and Monroe Streets and University and Illinois Avenues.

For the businesses housed in the buildings in the way, a fight with city hall will include eminent domain proceedings, and in some cases, the possible loss of a liquor license.

"I don't want to move," said Gwen Hunt, who owns Pizza King, a bar on South Illinois Avenue.

"It's disheartening to see downtown Carbondale go. This is like my home. However, I'll go along. What else can I do?" Hunt asked.

"My building will be taken away, I'd get less for the property, and I probably lose my liquor license, too," she added.

Hunt has operated Pizza King, more commonly known as PK's, for the past 15 years. She has a 16-year-old son, husband and eight of them on her own. She finished paying off the mortgage on the building last year.

The problem, though, for most of the businesses is not why the move?" but "where to move?"

"PK's customers are a steady, regular crowd, Hunt said. She proudly claims they will follow the business wherever it goes, if not help move it there.

"But I need a place spacious enough for pinball machines and pool shooting. There's just no place like that already around," she said.

However, a loyal following and a business philosophy willing to help does not extend to all the downtown establishments. Nor do some business philosophies lend themselves so easily to change.

"We're anti-auto and anti-mall as it is," said Alan Bourg, manager of the Phoenix Cyle shop. "We've expanded the past two years," he said.

"We just remodeled and we're still building cabinets. It just doesn't seem appropriate when there are other blocks in town that are dead commercially. The city seems to be driving out the only businesses in the downtown area that are doing well," Bourg maintained.

"Cycling is the future. It is individual initiative and personal power and that's what the downtown neighborhood needs. It should be revived, not destroyed for parking lots."
SIU student injured in cycle accident

An SIU student was listed in satisfactory condition last Wednesday in St. Louis hospital after he apparently plowed off Douglas Drive in Evergreen Terrace on his motorcyle.

William J. Mazurek, a senior in finance, was found unconscious about 200 yards north of Douglas Drive in a semi-conscious condition at about 7:30 a.m. Thursday. He apparently failed to follow the curved roadway near the corner of Pleasant Hill Road and Douglas Drive.

University Police and hospital spokesmen will not divulge the identity of the victim or say whether the accident was an accident or self-inflicted.

Mazurek, a resident of the Roxanne Mobile Home Park south of Carbondale, suffered a brain concussion and was transported to the St. Bonifacius Hospital in St. Louis from Carbondale Memorial Hospital for further testing Tuesday afternoon.

Mazurek was found about 200 yards north of Douglas Drive with David Young, who told police he heard a loud explosion coming from the direction of a concrete drainage ditch filled with water at the bottom of the hill. Young told police he stopped another motorist and requested the motorist to contact the authorities. Mazurek was later reported from the scene.

"He's doing very well. He has no recollection of the accident," he knows his name, only a long term memory information and that he is in a hospital but he can't tell beyond that happened to him. At times he gets sleepy and at other times he gets confused," a hospital spokesperson said.

The defense for Joyce Berger, accused of murdering her husband, rested Wednesday in the sixth day of the murder trial in the Carbondale Circuit Court.

The last woman called by the defense, a psychologist, testified Wednesday that in her opinion the circumstances of the murder Mrs. Berger gave her reason to believe that her actions were necessary to prevent harm to her and her family.

Mrs. Berger is charged with murder in connection with the August shooting of her ex-husband, former Murphysboro Police Chief Tobias K. Berger, in the home of Larry Dunn north of Murphysboro.

Edith Spees, who has a doctorate in psychology and runs her own therapy practice, testified that Mrs. Berger "took care of her children and other relatives of Mrs. Berger. Since January, also called by the defense, the witness on the Wednesday were three of Mrs. Berger family. Todd, 11, Scott, 12, and Greg, 15. Todd testified that he once saw his father threaten Mrs. Berger with a knife, an incident Mrs. Berger previously testified to.

"I saw my dad had my head up against the refrigerator and he was big and I was up against her neck."

Scott testified.

Todd testified to another incident in which Todd said Berger had come to Mrs. Berger's home to get the knife some time after the Bergers divorced in June. He said Mrs. Berger gave her exhusband the knife and Berger then went to a bedroom, jumped on the bed and put the knife on the ceiling then left. "This knife has killed before and it will kill again."

Strong winds swiftly carried a fire through a Carbondale Mobile Home Park trailer early Wednesday morning. The fire destroyed the trailer. A resident of the trailer who was sleeping when the fire broke out escaped through a back door only minutes before the trailer collapsed at a 3:30 a.m. according to Carbondale Fire Department spokesman.

"He was very lucky to get out of the trailer in time. When he woke up and headed out of the house, he said he was coming down the hall after the smoke."

A 3-foot slip mark on the road indicated where Mazurek, 21, apparently applied the motorcycle's brakes before he and the motorcycle fell down a large hill.

NOW in favor of including women if registration and draft reinstated

By Jeffrey S szy
Staff Writer

If registration and the draft are reinstated, representatives of the National Organization for Women have said that women must be included. But they say a draft would be unnecessary.

"sex discrimination against women in the military was abolished."

President Ford signed a law in June that declared: "sex discrimination against women in the armed forces is hereby abolished."

The report states that the military spends billions of dollars a year recruiting less qualified women because better qualified women will not enlist.

"... the discrimination according to NOW would make a definite improvement in our country's defense capabilities."

The report states that women comprise 83 percent of the nation's labor force, but only 14 percent of the armed services. But the report states that a draft would be necessary.

Budget met with favor by lawmakers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Illinois lawmakers generally received a favorable Wednesday to Gov. James R. Thompson's fiscal proposals, which include a $11.4 billion budget plan, although a few said it was misleading and also proposed enough tax relief.

Sen. Howard W. Carrol, D-Chicago, the Senate Appropriations committee chairman, said the $11.4 billion budget plan, although a few said it was misleading and also proposed enough tax relief.

Carroll and Democratic counterparts ruled that Thompson's budget for this year, which is considered "balanced" because it would spend more money than it takes in revenue, is "inadequate".

The big proposed expenditure, they say, is $13.4 billion in income tax rebates that would reduce the state's budget deficit from about $7 million last June 30 to $34 million next June 30.

Saluki mascots are fed, not drugged

"What's a saluki?" is one of the most common questions a newcomer to SIC is likely to ask. And quite often, an article in the student paper that answers it.

However, these articles don't seem to answer all of the questions people have concerning the salukis.

After finding out that a saluki is a dog, the next question arises: Are the dogs drugged? "No, the dogs are fed twice a day, according to President R. H. Klimstra's orders on saluki care. Salukis are naturally sleek and slender, a characteristic which is maintained through their hunting and running habits up to a mph.

This question came as a shock to me when someone asked "Are the dogs drugged before they come on campus?" No, dogs are not fed twice a day with the sole exception of a new-fed puppy.

The dogs are cared for by three graduate students in zoology. These men see to their feeding, medical needs, exercise and kennel sanitation. They are housed at 1 University Farm.

A national service fraternity on campus is responsible for walking the salukis at many athletic events at the student recreation and athletic campus. Two members of the fraternity at work at the kennels to train and groom the dogs. Some members have a certain saluki (bands) not is well trained. This is due to the fact that these dogs are trained by people who are not used to being as aggressive when he is at a game. Some candle holders also read something as "Go dogs, go!"

I hope no more rumors spread around campus concerning these lovable salukis. They are animals and animals are well respected - just like your own pet - by people that really care for them. I love 'em all: Annie Quisino, Chairperson, Dogs and Bells committee, Alpha Phi Omega

Age not sole contributor to alcohol-related crashes

By Mary Harmon

Staff Writer

Students, returning to school for the Jan. 21 start of the spring semester, face a definite change in their social schedules. As the winter holidays end, most students were no longer able to legally drink in the local bars.

On Jan. 21, my sister also underwent a change in schedule, for reasons involving people who drink.

On that Monday evening, her third day in Olympia Wash., on a cross-country trip she had hoped would eventually lead to Florida, she and a friend were headed for dinner in a nearby town. They never made it.

As the Volkswagen in which she was a passenger rounded a curve, they were hit head-on by another car. The middle-aged person in the other car were drunk.

My sister can vaguely remember the car's being hit and its skidding out of control. She was awake, but her vision was not still running. She can remember being thrown about the car, sliding along the cement and wondering, as she looked at the overturned car and smelt the gasoline, whether she would explode. Thereafter, she remembers very little.

When Sen. Gene John, D-Minn., presented to the Senate the bill that raised the drinking age in Illinois, he said the lowered drinking age was responsible for the deaths of children into wrecks, the mauling of young people's minds and bodies. In a dramatic testimony before the bill's committee, John referred to a paralegal brother, injured in an auto accident involving alcohol.

Series to present play about Carver

By Erick Hewestimine
Staff Writer
A three-act play about the life of George Washington Carver will be presented by the City of Carbondale's Cultural Fine Arts-Exhibit-Lecture Series Program at 8 p.m. Friday in Shady Hall.

Bernice Mitchell, coordinator of the program, said the play, "A Boy Traded for a Horse," was written, directed and acted by community members.

Mitchell, who is also a film critic and editor of the Illinois Arts Exhibit-Lecture Series Program, said anyone over the age of four will be able to understand and enjoy it. "Carver lived in a time of racial strife," Mitchell said. "He managed to achieve beyond what a lot of blacks were able to because of his frame of mind and the way he looked out on his land." Though it is not primarily a play, Mitchell said, the program will focus on contemporary social issues. "One Way or Another," a one-act film examining the adjustments of men and women to a largely political world, will also be shown.

In addition, "We Will Not Be Beaten," a film about the problems of battered women, will also be shown. Lesage, a film critic and editor of Jump Cut magazine, will be the guest commentator. Lesage is also a professor of comparative literature at the University of Wisconsin.

"Reel Women," a three-act program of films includes "Wednesday in Newark," "Reel Women." "Women to Women," a documentary featuring a cross section of women from high school to hoodlum and "Kypseli," a film which examines the stereotypical roles in the Greek society, will be shown. Refreshments and discussion will follow the films on all three evenings.

"Our production is not about the man, but what he stood for," Mitchell said. "Whether black, white or gray, some people live below their circumstances." Carver learned to live above his.

The play is of particular significance to this region. Mitchell said, because Carver was from Missouri. "There are many people in Carbondale who knew him, and knew his family," she said.

"Wednesday in Newark," presented by photographer Donnalyn Bailey is a recent SIU graduate with a bachelor of arts in theater. Mitchell said other funding came from the Illinois Arts Council of Chicago and the city of Carbondale.

Carver, who was a slave at 16, became a prominent black agriculturist in the early 1900s. He is best known for his discovery of over 80 different ways to use peanuts. Turning down fortune and fame, he chose instead to help poor black farmers understand the chemistry of their land.

"Reel Women," to be shown in three-part film program

Patricia Paul, professor of sociology, will provide comment for the film program Wednesday. The program will examine women's roles in society as seen in sociological and anthropological contexts.

"Women to Women," a documentary featuring a cross section of women from high school to hoodlum and "Kypseli," a film which examines the stereotypical roles in the Greek society, will be shown. Refreshments and discussion will follow the films on all three evenings.

Classics at SIU to perform comedy

Classics at SIU-C will present "Thesmophoriazusa," a Greek comedy, Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Home Economics Lounge at Shady Hall.

The play, first performed in Athens, Greece in 411 B.C. centers around a women's festival called "Thesmophoria," that is held in honor of the goddesses Demeter and Persephone.

The women decide to kill Euripides, a tragic playwright who degrades women in his plays, at their festival. Euripides hopes about the play and sends his father-in-law, who is a slave, to try to stop the action. The women spot the impostor and continue with their plan.

The play, which includes some obscenity and negative stereotypes, could be offensive to some people and characterized as "X-rated," according to Jack Williams, director of the play.

 Theta Xi Variety Show will present ‘Colored Girls’

One of the most controversial Broadway plays of 1979, ‘Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide When the Rainbow is End,’ will be performed by the Black’s Open Laboratory Theatre at 8 p.m. Saturday at Shryock Auditorium.

The play deals with the way black women are treated by a white-dominated society and black men. It deals with mature topics such as rape and contains some strong language.

“They have either loved it or hated the hell out of it.” said Cecil Allen Abbott, artistic director of DOLT.

‘Colored Girls’ has received a lot of attention,” Abbott said. It is adapted from a collection of poems of the same title by the noted black poet Ntozake Shange. Admission is $1.50 in advance and $2 at the door.

Operetta tickets are still available

Tickets are still available for the University Theater’s operetta ‘My Merry Widows,’ which will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The production depicts love, intrigue and passion in a mythical European kingdom.

Ticket prices are $3.50 for students and $5 for the general public.

The 33rd Annual Theta Xi Variety Show, sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

The show is designed to provide an outlet for student talent at SIU-C. Produced by graduate and undergraduate students, the show will feature dancing, short skits and singing.

In addition, each act will be judged and trophies awarded for the first, second and third place winners in three categories — small, intermediate and large groups.

All proceeds from the show will be donated to SIU-C to provide three additional student scholarships. The Service to Southern Scholarship will be presented to the most outstanding undergraduate student for participation and service contribution to SIU-C. The Kaplan Memorial Scholarship will be awarded to the most outstanding undergraduate in biological science and the Kenny Garrison Society Scholarship will be given in honor of an SIU-C student for academic achievement.

Deadline for the scholarship applications, which can be obtained in the office of Student Development, is 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The scholarships will be awarded by Bruce Swnburne, vice president of Student Affairs, and Norman J. Doenches, dean of the College of Science.

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

Charlie Warner's detractors, and there are many, probably would call it just another crazy week that has done another return home.

"Southern Illinois is where my roots are," said the 68-year-old visiting lecturer of radio-TV and graduate student in journalism. "My mother has substantial farmland down here. When the opportunity became available to be a visiting lecturer and pursue my education I took it."

Warner lived in Avon and attended SIU-C in 1954.

"I've always loved Southern Illinois. It's a beautiful part of the country and a welcome change from the city," he said. However, big cities were where Warner worked before he checked his lucrative job as general manager at WMAQ in New York, the flagship station of the NBC radio network, to the SIU Center. Warner was general manager at WMAQ in Chicago.

Warner acquired a reputation for the unconventional while working at WMAQ. He changed the station's "middle-of-the-road" music format to country music. In the process, Warner developed a controversial advertising and promotional gimmick: the station gave away mass quantities of cash prizes.

"WMAQ's Gonna Make Me Rich," the station's advertising slogan, soon became famous around the Chicago area.

The gimmick proved to be successful. WMAQ moved from 14th in the Chicago ratings game to third in less than a year in 1957. Warner moved to WNBC.

"Research indicated that friends need book donations."

The Friends of Morris Library are holding another book collection day on between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Saturday. Volunteers will be at the book collection site located southeast of the Communications Building in Green Barracks 803E, during this time.

Charles Warner country music was the way for us to go," Warner explained. "We had facilities that were the best in town and we thought our competitor wasn't doing well with country music."

Warner credits WMAQ's success to effective research. "It's the wave of the future in radio," he said. "Finding out what people want and giving it to them."

Warner worked at WNBC for two years and also improved the ratings there. After increasing its 1959 ratings by 46 percent over 1958's figures, he left New York for Carbondale and SIU-C.

Warner teaches four classes: two sections of radio-TV advertising, one section of public affairs and one section of product techniques and media criticism.

"I think this is one of the most exciting and challenging things I've ever done," Warner said. "It's mentally stimulating. If you can run a radio station it's kind of easy. Once you've had the high of being very, very successful, it's hard to duplicate that excitement again.

"Some of the students are as good as any I've ever worked with," he said. "Some have excellent prospects of working in the broadcasting business. The quality of the serious students work is just terrific."

Group plans ways of informing residents, students of census

By Mary Ann McNally
Staff Writer

If the Census Complete Count Committee has its way, Carbondale residents and students should be well informed of the 1980 census by April 1, Census Day.

Members of the 21-person citizens group will be spending the next few weeks planning ways to promote the census in an effort to "understand its purpose and mail in the completed forms."

The committee's first "predictive" meeting recently, members decided to mail brochures with the Carbondale Complete Count Committee explaining "why the 1980 census is so important to all of us in Carbondale."

All U.S. citizens are to receive census forms in the mail on April 1, according to the Census Bureau. People are to report their addresses as of that date, whether they are living at school or at other non-permanent places. Joseph Heavens, community services specialist for the Census Bureau, told the members anyone who receives mail, including students who live in the dorms, will receive a census form "no exceptions."

The Census Complete Count Committee was established in Carbondale in January to make sure that all citizens in the city are counted in the census. Census data is used for the reapportionment of Congress, redistricting of state legislatures and determining state and federal aid programs.

Andrew Hall Staker, SIUC student representative to the committee, is planning on sending letters to members of the religious community in Carbondale asking them to remind parishioners to mail in the census forms.

Heavens told the committee that the main thing to do in promoting the census is to get the "image of it changed so that the confidentiality of the census is stressed."

Heavens explained that the Census Bureau did a "bad reputation" in 1970 after some of the information obtained on census forms was released. After the completed forms are received this year, Heavens said, they will be stripped of the addresses and put onto microfilm. The actual forms will be shredded and then put into an acid to further destroy them.

The microfilmed information will be released after 72 years for historical purposes, said Leon Ablon, director of community development for the city.

Carbondale complete count committee members are also planning on distributing posters stating "We're counting on you. Answer the census."

Off-campus dorms get tentative OK

By Robin Soponar
Staff Writer

Congressional approval for Wilton Hall. Raptur Student Center, Freeman and Stevenson Arms as accepted leverage centers for initial has been recommended to Director of Housing Sam Hinella by the off-campus dormitory committee.

The conditional approval is pending the resolution of a number of deficiencies stated by the committee.

Housing Services Administrator Pat McNeil would not disclose the specifics of deficiencies which need correction prior to the dormitories' receiving approval.

Wilton Hall was denied approval as freshmen-assigned living center for 1976-77 because of maintenance deficiencies, student-management antagonism and questionable room searches. It received approval in Spring '75 for the fall year 1976-'77.

Off-campus dormitories must apply annually for approved housing. As preliminary measures, the committee held physical inspections and open hearings at the off-campus dorms.

Moonie follower wins parents for 10-day abduction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A 22-year-old man has saved his 18-month-old son and a policeman for 10 million, according to the boy's father who was abducted to force him to renounce the Holy Sun Myung Moon's Infiltration Church.

The 12 District Court suit filed Tuesday alleges that beginning Jan. 4, Will Cooper was held against his will for about 10 days while force and threats were used to try to convince him to give up his allegiance to the church. The suit states that the actions violated Cooper's rights to freedom of religion, assembly and expression. The suit also states that a court order was not served to the child's father.

Defendants include Dr. and Mrs. George Cooper of the Buddhist David Moons and Gerard Terrazza, Virginia F. Mahon, and Chief Carlton of San Francisco, and Stanley Powell of San Public. Jim Knowland of San Diego and another unnamed person.

Cooper said after having been in jail with his parents in Oakland Jan. 4, four policemen hired by them spirited him to a South San Francisco body shop and held him for five days, showing him to "constant harassment and intimidation."

Based on these measures a recommendation is made to Hinella. Pat McNeil said. Hinella will give notification of his decision and establish a date that the deficiencies must be repaired by. A reinspection is held and approval or denial will then be given.

Hinella said that in the best interest of those involved, he'd like to give notification "as soon as possible."

Open hearings were held the week of Feb. 3 for the off-campus dormitories. The committee consisting of a housing services administrator and two city code enforcement officials met with Wilton Hall residents in the cafeteria of Wilton Hall.

Residents' complaints ranged from parking security to lack of heat in hallways and hallways.

"It's hard to respect a place that doesn't have respect for you," a resident said.

Manager Fern Gregg said, "I realize that the condition of the building is not where I want it to be. I've come a long way this fall. Give me some more time." and I thing I can bring it around..."

McNeil said that these open hearings, started in Fall 1975, are "We felt the physical of the buildings didn't uncover residents' concerns."

A student resident assistant expressed concern about the length of time it takes to fill fire extinguishers, which are often emptied. The problem is that the management is slo in filling fire extinguishers," he said. If there is a fire any excuse won't help us at all.

McNeil said there is one man in Murphy. who serves all the fire extinguishers in the area, causing the delay.

Forty residents out of 50 who live at Wilton Hall came to the hearing, which was assisted by posted flyers and announced over a public address system.

A student resident assistant said that residents had met with Gregg last semester and nobody listened to them, so residents became apathetic after that.

Gregg said, "I think we took care of things as best as we could. Everything that could be taken care of was."

An appointment will be required from MARCH 25 to APRIL 25 for advanced registration for Summer Fall 1980.
'Old Tarzan' will replace 'Old Parks'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Actor Ron Ely, a former television Tarzan, will succeed Bert Parks as emcee of the Miss America Pageant.

Sources in Hollywood and New York said Ely, who now hosts a syndicated television game show in Los Angeles, will be named as the host at a pageant news conference Wednesday.

Pageant chairman Albert A. Marks Jr. who fired Parks after 25 years of hosting the evening event "She is to" to fulfill Miss America's request to discuss the identity of the new emcee.

Ely, 6 feet 6 inches tall, was the 16th Tarzan and the first actor to play the role on television from 1966 to 1968. Ely was 25 when he was cast on the Tarzan program, but the famous role was the record voice of the real aromic moose of Tarzan, John Watts.

Ely played Mike Madison in the CBS-TV series "Apesquake," a "Clifford Run," in 1961. His first television appearance was on "Beverly Hills, 90210" in the 1960's. He has also appeared in a number of movies.

Born in Herford, Tex., and a former oilfield roughneck, Ely now lives in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Earlier, a television executive who had demanded anonymity, had commented about Parks' successor. "He is well known to everyone, but he is not in the Bert Parks image or the Bob Barker type. He's someone you wouldn't expect to do this kind of thing."

Rape victim treatment program to be held

A rape victim treatment program will be held Thursday, March 9, at 3 p.m. at Carbondale Memorial Hospital.

The program is part of a statewide initiative of the Illinois Violence Evidence Collected Kit for Sexual Assault Examination which will be implemented at CMH through a day-long seminar attended by personnel of local hospitals, county sheriffs, state's attorneys, social service and victims service agencies.

The kit contains written instructions on the medical personnel, a form for recording examination findings and a form for obtaining the victim's consent for release of evidence to the authorities. Another form provides the victim with information about her treatment and the necessity for follow-up testing for possible venereal disease and pregnancy as a result of the attack. The package complies with Illinois' Rape Victim Emergency Treatment Act.

The kit is designed to provide medical personnel in hospital emergency rooms with proper instructions and material necessary to collect specimens from victims of sexual assault. Evidence is submitted to the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement's (IDLE) laboratories for analysis in order to provide state's attorney with admissible evidence, a key to prosecution of the attackers.

Martha Goodstadt, executive director of the Citizens Committee for Victim Assistance, said, "Hospital use of the Vitelle kit in every area in Illinois will contribute toward improving the quality of treatment for victims of sexual assault with strengthening and standardizing evidence procedures in rape cases. The kits should help hospitals to more quickly and correctly diagnose the problem."

In addition to orientation to the Vitelle Kit, Circuit Judge Robert Howerton and Carbondale Police Lt. Tom Buch will speak on legal aspects.
Banker: Large alcohol stills face marketing and financing problems

WASHINGTON - Financing a large still and finding a way to market the product are the major problems facing those who want to construct fuel alcohol distilleries on a large scale, Central Illinois banker told an energy seminar Wednesday.

The greatest problem, he said, is to market and utilize the product, said James Williamson, president of the Bank of Arthur. "Financing is another major problem."

Williamson was a member of a committee that is looking into the possibility of building a still to produce alcohol that could be used as a substitute for alcohol that could be used as a substitute for coal or to generate electricity. Palt and Coles counties have told the University of Illinois that a still engineering firm would have the feasibility study ready in about two months.

Williamson said bankers, businessmen and farmers in the area were interested in building a still that would produce about 20 million gallons of fuel alcohol a year.

Polling shows Bush was in middle of field

NEW YORK - AP In Massachusetts, George Bush was the man in the middle.

An Associated Press-NORC News poll of 1,000 showed that Ronald Reagan had 30 percent of the vote among Republican voters with conservative views, while doing as well as him among older GOP voters.

And John Anderson took away the ballads of those with more liberal views on the issues, along with the better educated and the younger voters.

But Bush's support from those two varieties of groups gave him a tiny margin of victory over Anderson in Tuesday's balloting, with Reagan only a few votes ahead.

With more than 2,000,000 votes outside polling places never reported, the results are far from final. But the AP analysis suggests Bush is leading the field.

The way to analyze the results is to look at the 1,000 votes outside polling places on the basis of the AP-NORC News poll.

Bush supporters split 42-37 against the ERA. Next came the Bush supporters, who favored the ERA by 50-45. And then were the Anderson backers, who favored the amendment by an overwhelming 72-17.

The results were underscored in each case.

Anderson and Bush support the ERA. Reagan opposes it. Or take nuclear power. Those who voted in the Massachusetts GOP primary split 47-42 in favor of impounding a moratorium on building more nuclear power plants until safety questions are resolved, even in the face of possible energy shortages.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NORC News poll can vary from the opinions of all Massachusetts voters because of chance variations in the sample.

However, most experts agree that selling the product is the distillation process - a high protein livestock feed is essential to economic success.

Williamson said the material, which is in liquid form when it comes from the still, probably could be exported, but might compete with livestock soybeans as another major protein source for livestock.

He said the other problem was that members of his committee hoped to control the alcohol production plant themselves, but a plant that can cost $50 million to $60 million was a huge undertaking from a major corporation might be necessary.

Williamson said he believed that alcohol fuel was the immediate solution to the energy crisis, but thought President Carter was wrong when he said an an an aluminum or a stainless steel container was needed.

Winnipeg said there was not enough capital equipment to reach that level that quickly.

Another speaker, Ed Klint of the All Process Corp. of Champion, told the group that the firm had built the first still in the nation designed primarily to produce fuel alcohol.

Klint said the Van Buren Ark facility could begin making alcohol in the next few days.

He said it would convert corn to fuel alcohol at the rate of about 2.5 million gallons a year.

Klint advised people to study the economics carefully before getting into the alcohol production business, and to watch out for the opportunists who are selling worthless equipment.

"Alcohol is basically a very expensive business, and we don't like to see people get scammed," said Klint.

The Grand Touring Auto Club will hold a meeting Thursday, March 6, at the Bleu Flambe at 7:30 pm. We will also hold the Auto cross this Sunday, March 9, at 12:00 Noon at the SIU Arena.

All are welcome!

Contract agreement reached for Hayes Center services

By Mary Ann McNally
Staff Writer

The Attucks Community Council and the City Council reached an agreement that will save the community's joint administrative and support services contract for the Community Center. The board will receive $46,485 to carry out the joint services in the community center.

After two months of proposals, the City Council proposed a $46,485 amount to continue the community center. The proposal, accepted at a meeting of the council, included an increase of $2.68 for the board to increase the full-time director and other administrative services.

The City Council received the increase from $2,685 and approved the $46,485. After the meeting, the Mayor Hans Fischer and council member Charles Watkins voted to accept the motion.

City Manager Carroll proposed that the city not renew the joint agreement with the center because the city administration has consistently found this to be an unsatisfactory arrangement.

Fry offered the city to carry out the joint services, with the Atucks Board concentrating its efforts on carrying out the social services offered at the Center.

The board requested a $45,000 contract for a full-time director and other administrative services.

The City Council increased the proposal to $46,485 and approved the amount.

Prosecution witness: Gacy sane, aware of criminality of conduct

CHICAGO - The director of the Cook County Psychiatric Institute testified Wednesday that in his judgment, John Wayne Gacy is legally sane and at no time was out of touch with reality when he killed 33 persons.

Dr. Robert Reifman, who estimated he has examined 5,000 persons for criminal court appearances and has testified in some 500 cases, said he has concluded that Gacy had the capacity to appreciate the criminality of his conduct.

Gacy, who is charged with killing more people than anyone else in U.S. history, had the capacity to conform his conduct to the requirements of law.

Winding down its rebuttal phase of the trial, the prosecution, which is seeking the death penalty, is trying to prove Gacy's sanity was planned and premeditated. The defense is trying to convince the jury Gacy is innocent by reason of insanity.

The case may go to the jury as early as next week.

On the 24th day of testimony, Reifman said Wednesday that after studying and interviewing Gacy for 16 hours early last year, and after reviewing all available material in the case, his diagnosis was that Gacy has a personality disorder, specifically the narcissistic type.

Gacy was a very efficient and successful person in business and was a pillar of his community, said Reifman. "He is self-organized, very pleasurable, reasonably successful as a clown and in politics and had many friends," the witness said.

In explaining why it thought Gacy was fully aware of his actions in killing 33 young men and boys, Reifman said a person who demonstrates to another how to put on handcuffs and then gets someone to do it, "has to get their confidence and talk to them calmly."

"He literally cornered them into putting the handcuffs on," he said.

As for a so-called "rap-trick," which authorities believe was used in strangling most of the victims, Reifman said Gacy had to tie the knot and twist - a very intricate procedure that took thought and he was cognizant of what he was doing."

There was no doubt in my mind when he came in for in-terviews, he was trying to fake a multiple personality," Reifman said. "There is no evidence to support multiple personality.

The psychiatrist said Gacy tried to pass himself off as four persons. John Gacy the clown, John Gacy the politician, John Gacy the contractor, and Jack Hanley, whom Gacy said committed the crimes.

Reifman also said the murders were not an irresistible impulse.

"Gacy never struggled against doing them," he said. "He followed a pattern even to the extent that he had them two young employees of his remodeling firm dig trenches to bury bodies."

Gacy, 37, a former remodeling contractor, has confessed to the killings. The remains of 26 bodies were found buried in a crawl space beneath his home.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Sam Amirault, Reifman said he thinks Gacy wants to be famous "and he is now," the doctor said.

ABC: Astaire to walk down wedding aisle

NEW YORK - Actor Fred Astaire says his dancing days are over, but he is preparing to walk down the aisle with jockey Robin Smith, according to ABC.

The 80-year-old entertainer said in an interview with ABC's Barbara Walters at his Los Angeles home that remarriage had ended his marriage to his first wife, Phyllis, died of lung cancer at age 70 in 1974. However, that changed when his interest in horse racing brought him in touch with the 59-year-old Miss Smith about eight years ago and they eventually became "very, very good friends."

Asked about the age difference between himself and Miss Smith, Astaire said: "I never occurred to me. I don't even think about it that way...It has nothing whatsoever to do with it."

Workshops and movies featured at open house

Thursday is the START-UPS Basecamp Open House in Room 46 of the Student Recreation Center from 12 to 5 p.m.

Slideshow and movies, including one on how bach dogs came to be, will be shown, and mini-workshops will be conducted throughout the afternoon. The object of the workshops is to prevent activities available to everyone, such as outdoor cooking, exploring resources, getting in shape for backpacking, outdoor camping, canoeing, first aid and survival techniques.

Anyone passing through the Recreation Center on Thursday this week will have a chance to get free rentals on Basecamp equipment, free leisure counseling sessions, and money off Basecamp trips. Tickets will be given to each person entering, and they may be claimed at room 46 for a drawing for the prizes.

A new program has been started at SIU outdoor recreation for special populations. Emphasis on the education of canoeing, camping and rilliering will be featured.

People involved in the canoeing program have been meeting every Tuesday morning at Pulliam Pool learning the safety and the basics of canoeing. These plans for the program include canoeing in Carbondale and overnight trips on Little Grassy Lake and Big Muddy River.

For those interested in camping, a spring break trip to Touch of Nature will take place March 15 through 24. During the week, people can take part in canoeing, camping, outdoor cooking and rilliering. An extra fee is charged for canoes.

All new programs are open to members of the special populations constituencies. All questions on joining the activities should be directed to Rick Green who is in charge of the canoeing program.

Wanted: a few good leaders.

Being a Marine officer requires many things. Total responsibility. Ability to give 100% to every challenge-every time. Above all, leadership. The single most critical skill sought after by an employer—military or civilian. If you have the potential, desire, toughness and determination, we can make you a leader. Not just while you're a Marine officer but for the rest of your life. Spikers to host spring tournament

By Mark Public
Staff Writer

For the past three years, the Stylers' volleyball team has been competing under an assumed name during the off season. Southern Stylers. The Stylers have been competing in United States Volleyball Association (USVRA) competition. USVRA matches are set up to keep collegiate and former players in shape for the regular season.

added. "Everyone knew Arizona State and UCLA were top, but some other western schools did very well." Arizona State captured the team championship over UCLA, 56-55. The Bruins had a 55-50 lead going into the singles and doubles finals, but lost both matches to ASU opponents.

"The whole tournament was impressive," Blair said. "The balanced scoring and top-notch play really were exciting."

Shawnee, Cathy Skera, who battled injuries all the year, had the most success. Skera defeated Tracy Peterson of UCLA, 2, 17, 5, and Indiana's Laura Line, 6, 7, 7, before losing to Western Illinois Jackie Curtiss, 11-6, 11-3.

"Cathy played very well," Blair said. "Next year she should be able to beat Curtiss and have the opportunity this season." Penny Porter was the only other Saluki to win a first-round singles match. She defeated Rochester's Kathy Huronet, 11-0, 11-2, before meeting the eventual singles champ, and No. 1 seed Heather Ross of ASU. Ross defeated Porter, 11-9, 11-7.

In doubles, the team of Dina Beal and Sandy Lennon won their first match, 15-7, 18-15, over Sherry Shure and Despina Zos of Temple, but then lost to Leslie Grubich and Jean Henzy of W.U., 15-4, 17-15.

"It was a misleading ending for the season," Blair said. "The runs from third to fifth are all in pretty much the same category. It just came down to the draw."

"We're getting more and more comforts from our players and they're working harder every day," he added.

Because the team is not sponsored by the university, the Stylers only have been able to compete in four or five USVRA tournaments a year due to limited funds.

Debbie Hunter, coach of both the Siukis and the Stylers, decided her club could not afford to travel to USVRA tournaments. She would host their own.

Thus was born the Spring Spartacade. The Spartacade will be held Saturday at Davies Gym, with eight clubs from six colleges competing. Hunter explained the tournament would offer tough competition.

"The University of Illinois, Missouri and Southwest Missouri will compete in the Spartacade under club names as within Limits and St. Louis Select," Hunter said. "Since the AIAW and the NCAA don't sanction USVRA, the schools use their regular players, but with a different team name."

Jefferson Community College, Kellogg College, and a squad of former players from St. Louis round out the tournament field.

"The level of play is the same as on a collegiate level," she said. "It also gives players who didn't see enough action in the regular season a chance to show their talents. USVRA also gives coaches a chance to see new players and freshen the player on the Stylers that Hunter will be watching closely this year."

"Mary is the first player from around this immediate area we've recruited heavily," Hunter said. "She is a strong player who we can almost count in immediately."

"If they've generated a lot of excitement in the Carbondale area for volleyball which we hope will carry over at SIU," Hunter added.

More students "pumping iron" for exercise and body building

Sam Pearlestein, senior in administration of justice, tries to do the bend press during work out in the Recreation Center's weight room. Weight training, or "pumping iron," has become an enjoyable form of exercise for many SIU students.

"I can see my individual achievement," Mondo explained. "I've really gained by it, particularly in tight to when I lift weights."

"Everyone wants to be a little bit better than what they are," Mondo said, referring to personal appearances. "I'm not different. I want to look better, too. I also feel better subconsciously when questioning my weight.

Dick Naon is a sophomore in physics. He began lifting weights four years ago after purchasing a weight set. However, Naon hasn't lifted weights consistently since then.

"I usually lift for about three months, then blow off three months, then start up again," Naon said.

Naon has been lifting regularly now for about two weeks. "I have troups through classes this semester," Naon explained. "And I don't have much time to lift."

Naon only finds time to lift twice a week. Most recently, he was lifting weights because of an observation of himself. "I noticed I was lifting weights, and I didn't want to get good, so I told myself 'I'll make myself feel better'—it makes me feel better," Naon explained.

"One guy knew I had a weight set," Evans began. "Then I signed up for his house and lift with him."

Evans says he lifts weights three or four times a week. He usually lifts for a couple of hours each time.

"I simply like doing it," Evans said. "And I feel better after doing it."

Greg White, a junior in social work, said the basketball courts were closed down for refurbishing.

"When I can have a good work out, I enjoy it. I enjoy it," White said.

When asked about their intentions for the upcoming season, the basketball teams aren't sure of their intentions. The basketball teams are hoping for a successful season next year, but they aren't sure if they will have enough players to make it happen. The basketball teams are hoping to attract more players to their programs and are working hard to make that happen. The basketball teams are also hoping to continue their success from last season and are working hard to make that happen.
