Student leaders ask for broad attack on education cuts

By Lyndall Caldwell
Staff Writer

All members of the University community are being asked by the SIUC student trustee and student organization leaders to speak out against cutbacks in education funding.

Stan Irvin, student trustee, is asking that people help the Chancellor's Office to provide the Board of Trustees with information on the effects proposed SIUC tuition hikes will have on access to higher education.

As part of the "Education for Everyone Campaign," the Undergraduate Student Organization and Graduate Student Council will conduct a hearing for individual students and student organization leaders to tell how they will be affected by education cutbacks. The hearing will be videotaped. It is scheduled from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Monday in Student Center Ballroom C.

In an advertisement paid for by the USO and GSC on Page 9 of Thursday's Daily Egyptian, Irvin states that the Chancellor's Office has issued one comment on proposed tuition increases. "Its disadvantage, of course, is the additional cost to be met by the student. That disadvantage is an unhappy and difficult problem which marks any tuition increase in a time when some increase is absolutely necessary," is the statement.

Irvin said, "This isn't just a student issue. If all segments of higher education do not begin to express their views through communicating to the board and their state and federal legislators, then higher education will continue to receive a low priority in government funding.

"It is upon each person's back to take action," he said.

At a meeting March 11, the Board of Trustees will vote on whether to increase tuition by amounts ranging from 15 percent for undergraduates and graduates to 37 percent for some professional students

In the USO-GSC ad is a form which states, "I am concerned about tuition hikes, financial aid cutbacks and funding for education because . . . Irvin asks that everyone — administrators, faculty, civil service personnel, students and taxpayers — use the form to express concern over the current level of higher education, tuition and fee increases and financial aid cutbacks.

The forms should be addressed to members of the Board of Trustees; postage is free if placed in campus mail. Irvin said that the response will be evidence of whether higher education is affected.

Transcripts of the "Education for Everyone Campaign" hearing will be sent to President Reagan, Terrel Bell, secretary of education, Governor Thompson, the Illinois Board of Higher Education, the Board of Trustees, and others in positions to affect funding of higher education.

Beth McDearmon, co-director of USO governmental affairs, said, "It's gotten to the point that if individual students don't do anything, these cuts will go through." McDearmon said that any student who wishes to testify or otherwise help the campaign should contact her or Linda Schneider, also co-director, at the USO office, 536-3381.

Irvin will sponsor a hearing at Neely Hall at 8 p.m. Monday to examine the effects of tuition increases and financial aid cutbacks on access to higher education. Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, will attend and Irvin said some legislators have made tentative commitments to attend.

Final city purchase offers to be sent

By Bob Dondarant
Staff Writer

Carbondale's final offers to purchase property for the proposed downtown convention center and parking garage are ready to be mailed to owners who have not yet agreed with the city on a price.

Less than a third of the 25 offers to purchase the city sent out three weeks ago have been accepted, Donald Monty, director of community development, said.

Monty said that two or three owners have not yet decided as to whether to accept the city's offer, but that as many as seven may have decided to sell.

March 12 is the deadline for property owners to accept the city's offer. On that date, the city will initiate eminent domain proceedings on the rest of the property on the site of the convention center.

An official "notice of dislocation" will be sent to tenants and residents of the convention center and parking garage site at the same time as the final offers to purchase are sent out, Monty said.

Many property owners expressed dissatisfaction with the offers to purchase when they were first sent out three weeks ago.

The offers were mailed out after the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development released a $2.07 million Urban Development Action Grant to be used by the city in buying land and clearing the site for the project.

Relocation of the property is one aspect of a city "quick take" ordinance passed by the City Council in December, 1981.

The ordinance permits the city to condemn the property and clear the site while questions concerning the amount of compensation are resolved in court.

The city intends to deliver the convention center site cleared to developer Stan Hovey by February, 1983, in order to avoid having to pay a $340,000 penalty. The amount would be part of the losses incurred by Hovey if he is not able to complete the convention center by December 31, 1984.

Tenants will qualify for relocation assistance if they do not move out before the dislocation notice is sent to them, Monty said. Assistance could be in the form of a lump sum, or it could be done as a reimbursement of costs incurred in changing locations, Monty said. "We're still running pretty much on schedule," Monty said.

The convention center is planned for the block bounded by Walnut and Monroe streets and University and Illinois avenues.

'Strict, not cruel' state budget asked

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson on Wednesday proposed a $14.17 billion election-year budget — a spending plan that for the first time in at least a generation of Illinois politics called for a drop in the cost of state government. Thompson told a joint session of the General Assembly that to make up for lagging state tax revenues and cuts in federal aid, he proposed reduced spending rather than major tax increases.

While calling his budget a balanced one that would keep Illinois government spending within its means, the Republican governor did, however, ask lawmakers to approve two "modest" tax proposals he said would raise about $125 million a year. "Unless you are ready, willing and able . . . to increase taxes, there is no more," Thompson said.

WHILE THE OUTLINE for the fiscal year starting July 1 recommended a $103 million increase in state spending for welfare, $14 million more for children's services and an additional $14 million for prisons, virtually every other major area of state government would decline.

Describing his plan as "strict but not cruel," Thompson told visibly unenthusiastic lawmakers there could be more money for education and mental health if they enact higher liquor taxes and a new levy on insurance premiums. Thompson's fiscal 1983 budget

Thompson touted his tight control of state spending.

AFTERWARD, House Minority Leader Michael J. Madigan, D-Chicago, released a statement condemning Thompson's "insensitivity to human needs." He claimed the governor wants to take money away from education and use it to give tax relief to business.

The new budget calls for spending $8.2 billion from the general funds, most of which would come out of sales and income taxes.

Thompson said his budget would maintain "essential services."

"It is very tight. It is very tough. At the same time, I think it is very fair." Thompson told reporters at a briefing Tuesday night.

Thompson and budget director Robert Mandeville warned that the purse strings might have to be pulled even tighter if there is a delay in the recovery that analysts say will start about mid-1982. And the impact of federal budget cuts still has not been felt, they said.

would drop authorized spending about 1 percent from current levels of $14.3 billion.

Lawmakers were restrained in their reaction, applauding only sporadically at the beginning of the speech when

Thompson said his budget projected a $30 million surplus at the end of the year to bolster the sagging General Revenue Fund, the taxpayer-financed account that pays for most of state government.

Supreme Court resurrects law regulating 'head shops'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communities trying to curb illegal drug use won Supreme Court permission Wednesday to regulate the sale of drug paraphernalia at so-called "head shops."

But the unanimous decision appeared to leave unresolved whether the courts will allow an outright ban of such businesses.

The justices resurrected a Hoffman Estates ordinance that requires such shops to obtain licenses for selling items "designed or marketed for use with" illegal drugs, such as marijuana or cocaine.

A federal appeals court had ruled that the ordinance was unconstitutionally vague. The Supreme Court disagreed.

"Many American communities have recently enacted laws regulating or prohibiting the sale of drug paraphernalia... We hold only that such legislation is not facially overbroad or vague if it does not reach constitutionally protected conduct and is reasonably clear in its application." Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote for the court.

Whether Marshall's mention of laws "prohibiting" such sales is a hint as to how the court would view a total ban likely will be the subject of future legal fights.

"Today's decision is not of much importance," said Kevin Zeese, executive director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws. "It does not close down head shops, it merely regulates them."

Nevertheless, the decision stands as an important, if preliminary, victory for communities seeking total bans of head shops. If the court had ruled against the Hoffman Estates ordinance, more stringent measures would have been in legal jeopardy.

Almost half the states and dozens of local communities have gone beyond the Hoffman Estates ordinance by enacting laws that totally ban such shops and make it a crime to sell items intended for use with illegal drugs.

Hoffman Estates, a Chicago suburb, adopted its drug-paraphernalia ordinance in 1978.

It requires that the shop owners obtain a license, priced at $150, and make all sales records — including the names and addresses of customers — available for police inspection.

Bomb is undetected in two airports

BALTIMORE (AP) — An Air Force enlisted man allegedly planted a bomb in his wife's suitcase, and the device passed undetected through security at two airports as she flew from Washington to a Texas air base, the FBI said Wednesday.

"There's a lot of lucky people out there, that's all I can say," said FBI spokesman John Kuntz. "The Lord must have been looking out for us. I guess... It was a real bomb, no doubt about it."

Edward D. Hegarty, agent in charge of the Baltimore FBI bureau, said Airman 1st Class Martin Thomas Bradley, 27, of Morningside, Md., assigned to an organizational maintenance squadron at Andrews Air Force Base, was arrested Wednesday on two federal charges.

The FBI and Air Force Office of Special Investigations were called in on the case after Bradley's wife, Staff Sgt. Mary Jo Bradley, flew to Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, Texas, on Tuesday and found a bomb in her suitcase when she arrived, Hegarty said.

Mrs. Bradley was also stationed at Andrews Air Force Base but had been temporarily assigned to the Texas base, the FBI said.

Hegarty and other agents said Mrs. Bradley flew out of Washington National Airport and changed planes at Dallas-

Fort Worth International Airport for a flight to Wichita Falls. The bomb escaped detection at both airports.

"There could have been some breakdown," said Fred Ferrar, an Federal Aviation Administration security official in Washington. "The system's not perfect but it does work pretty well."

Officials refused to discuss a motive for the bomb planting or to say on which airline Mrs. Bradley flew.

"We're not making any comments on the flight, how it (the bomb) got through National Airport or anything," Kuntz said.

Senate debates Williams' expulsion

WASHINGTON (AP) — A packed Senate was urged Wednesday to cast out one of its own for the first time since the Civil War, on grounds that the Abscam crimes of Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., "sullied both his reputation and that of this institution."

Williams, a 23-year veteran of the Senate, "traded on his office" for personal gain, declared Sen. Howell Heflin of Alabama, the ranking Democrat on the Ethics Committee.

New cancer cure has first success

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors experimenting with an antibody treatment, a promising technique that uses the body's natural defenses, have reported their first success in achieving a long-lasting remission of cancer.

The researchers said the monoclonal antibody treatment was "remarkably effective" in halting a form of cancer called B-cell lymphoma in a 67-year-old man with an advanced case of the disease. The cancer attacks cells which produce antibodies.

The results are the most positive yet in this new field of research. However, the researchers cautioned that much more study is needed before the work has any practical use in treating cancer patients.

Attackers of racist not prosecuted

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — After investigating the stabbing attack on avowed racist Joseph Paul Franklin at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion, officials have decided not to prosecute, the FBI said Wednesday.

Robert Davenport, special agent for the FBI in Springfield, said the results of the investigation had been given to the U.S. attorney's office in East St. Louis.

Davenport said "prosecution was declined because Franklin could not identify his attackers and there were no witnesses who could identify the assailants."

Grad Council to discuss program priorities report

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

exchanging faculty, and utilizing equipment.

The final report of the academic program priorities task force which would set up a standing committee to rank academic programs in times of economic duress will be discussed by the Graduate Council on Thursday.

The committee would reduce or eliminate certain academic programs when the University faces monetary difficulties.

The report will be discussed when the council meets at 8 a.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

The task force recommends that the committee advise the president and the vice president for academic affairs and research concerning any changes in academic programs.

A member of the task force will be at the meeting to answer questions.

The council will also discuss a task force report recommending further cooperation between the SIU-C and SIU-E Graduate Schools and Graduate Councils in forming policies.

The report proposes that the faculty of the two campuses be more aware of one another's professional interests in each school's programs.

The report also suggests developing a common inventory for research equipment used by the Schools of Dental Medicine at SIU-E and Alton, and the Schools of Medicine at SIU-C and Springfield.

The council will also consider a proposal requesting that a policy statement be added to the Graduate Catalog requiring that graduate students taking 400-level courses open to both undergraduates and graduate students do extra work for graduate credit. Each course's instructor would be allowed to decide if he would require the extra work.

On the other hand, another proposal to be discussed by the council would require that all work for graduate and undergraduate students in 400-level courses be the same.

Budget proposal leaves governor politicking room

By Bob Springer
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Economic forces beyond Gov. James R. Thompson's control may have set the pace for overall state spending in the budget he proposed Wednesday. But the governor showed that the $14.17 billion plan still gives him room to play power politics.

Thompson wants lawmakers this election year to do what nearly always just about stops their vote-seeking hearts: Raise taxes.

The Republican governor wants General Assembly approval of higher liquor taxes and a new tax on insurance policies — at a cost to Illinois taxpayers of about $125 million a year.

Thompson could politely ask the Legislature to do the nasty deed. Such a request, of course, would be sent with great dispatch to a legislative subcommittee's graveyard.

After five years as the state's chief executive,

News Analysis

Thompson knows that any governor's suggestion of higher taxes won't go far unless pressure is applied to back up the suggestion.

Thompson described his budget as "strict, but not 'cruel.'" He figures it was just "strict" enough to produce the kindness he wants — more money for education and community mental health services.

The governor says a majority of state citizens support higher taxes on liquor, wine and beer to help increase state financial support for education.

He says the alternative to not raising taxes is "inadequate" financing of 1,013 local elementary and secondary school districts and of Illinois' college and university system.

Thompson made sure his $3.8 billion proposed education budget — sans tax hike revenues — was inadequate.

He used all but $8 million of the $111 in additional state revenues expected in the fiscal year starting July 1 to subsidize growing welfare rolls.

He boosted state support for services to abused and neglected children, including slots for day care of working mothers' children.

Thompson could have provided more for education than he did, educators and some lawmakers grumbled.

But they acknowledge the governor's best strategy to get more tax money for education is by slashing the education budget.

They also acknowledge that being a huge component of the total state budget makes education a visible target for cuts. It ensures a sizeable interest group becomes riled — upset enough, perhaps, to pressure lawmakers into enacting the higher taxes Thompson wants.

Opinion & Commentary

Bury administration in tuition protests

PUT UP or shut up. It's time for students at SIU-C to start doing exactly that. Always quick to gripe about tuition or fee increases, students are considerably slower when it comes to getting involved to do anything about it.

The Board of Trustees will be voting on hefty tuition increases March 11, amounting to 13 percent hikes for undergraduates and up to 37 percent for some graduate, medical and law students.

The appeals of student leaders at the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate Student Council for student protest against the increases has fallen, in large part, on deaf ears. Except for a turnout of about 150 students at the last board meeting, students have shown little resistance to the proposed increases.

STAN IRVIN, the student trustee, with financial backing from the USO and GSC, is making it as easy as possible for students to make their weight felt on this. He has put a form letter to Chancellor Kenneth Shaw on Page 9 of today's Daily Egyptian.

All students have to do is fill it in, stating what the combination of Reaganomics and tuition hikes means to them — less aid, higher costs and maybe no college next year.

The letter is even postage free, if it's put into one of the maroon and white campus mail boxes. Students don't even have to pay 20 cents to be heard. Just fill out the slip, sign it, and drop it in a mailbox. It will take a total of perhaps 10 minutes.

This is the very least students can do.

MOST STUDENTS may have concluded that they're powerless to do anything, that the trustee's approval of higher tuition is a foregone conclusion.

If that is the case, it is a sad commentary on the level of students' interest their own welfare. It is a damning commentary on the amount of faith students have in what they can accomplish by acting together.

It may well be that the trustees won't be swayed by any outpouring of student opinion. But you should at least make yourself heard.

Clip the letter. Fill it out. Mail it. Bury the chancellor's office in paper.

Don't let them stick it to you without a whimper.

Letters

Put woman in executive branch

I am writing this letter to inform you of a coming event that I feel is of great importance. We, the voters of Illinois, are about to exercise our franchise for the first time since 1980. We are also faced with another first, we have the opportunity to become the first northern industrial state to elect a woman to a post that is referred to as being a heartbeat away from the governor's mansion.

I have been involved in the women's movement for the last 10 years and it has caused me shame that the state I had once believed to be so liberal is the cornerstone of the biggest horse-and-buggy movement in the United States. STOP ERA. This organization has won over several key legislators in Springfield and as such has prevented the repeal of the rule that requires a three-fifths majority of both houses of the legislature to ratify an amendment to the U.S. Constitution. One of those representatives that STOP ERA has apparently convinced is Speaker of the House George Ryan, who is currently running with gubernatorial support for the lieutenant governorship Ryan has consistently opposed the move to repeal the three-fifths rule, a rule which, many ERA supporters say, is the primary reason the ERA is not ratified in Illinois.

One of his opponents, however, has consistently supported the ERA from its first introduction into the Capitol. Her record reads like a litany of women's issues: legislation on rape, displaced and abused homemakers, as well as disability insurance for homemakers. Her name is Susan Catania and she is coming to Carbondale on March 4.

It is my opinion then, that she is just the kind of lieutenant governor we need in Illinois. We have gone on too long with our executive branch representing only one half the population. It is time that Illinois took the lead in something positive. Support Susan Catania when it really counts. Ask for a Republican Ballot and support her on March 10. — William Byrnes, Carbondale

Tranquility comes from within

I was fascinated by Chuks Okpala Okaka's letter of Feb. 23. Here I wish to attempt to answer a very profound question, "Is Carbondale capable of providing a tranquil environment?"

If you believe, as I do, that harmony exists even within discord, perhaps also tranquility exists within chaos.

For myself, if there is to be tranquility, it must come from me, not from Carbondale.

The Ibo culture and the concept of "Owu adaa" are strange to me. (I was raised in a suburb of Chicago.) However, it interests me greatly and I would be interested in knowing more about it. — James Chlovyk, Junior, Archeology

Prison legal aid reduces tensions

I WOULD like to clarify some improper impressions about the Law School's Prison Legal Aid Clinic that may have been created by the Feb. 22 article in the Daily Egyptian.

The clinic has several purposes. Its primary purpose is to provide legal aid on civil matters to Illinois prisoners and parolees, not to prisoners of surrounding states as the article mistakenly stated.

Not only do these prisoners have legal needs that are the same as people on the "outside," as the article mentioned, but they have greater needs due to their lack of access to the courts. One must not forget that a person does not automatically lose all rights and privileges when imprisoned.

Another purpose of the clinic is to provide law students with an opportunity to apply the abstract legal principles learned in the classroom to real-life situations. Students also learn professional responsibility and how to deal with personal, confidential information given them by clients.

Nonetheless, PLA is shorthanded. Every month we receive hundreds of requests for assistance. But with only two staff attorneys it is physically impossible to provide the needed assistance. Consequently, many requests must be turned down or put on a waiting list, arranged by priority of need. Compounding the problem is the fact that very few private lawyers are willing to represent prisoners. This fact makes it extremely difficult to refer to other attorneys the cases the PLA cannot handle. It is hoped that, by their experience in PLA, future lawyers will be more sensitive to the pressing need for legal assistance for prisoners.

AN IMPORTANT aspect of being a lawyer is counseling clients. The availability of legal services through PLA helps to reduce the tensions and frustrations prisoners feel by showing them that they can have access to the court system; and that there are individuals on the outside who do care about their situations.

Finally, I would like to correct the mistaken impression that dissolutions of marriage are easy to obtain in Illinois and only take a few minutes to accomplish. Most dissolutions of marriage we handle take at least two months to complete. Many cases are complex and contested. The "15 minutes" referred to in the article perhaps concerns only the length of a default hearing. — James M. Edwards, Senior Law Student, Prison Legal Aid

AS THE article stated, there are currently five students working at PLA. But in the past semesters, the number has been as high as 18. We also have a paralegal and three secretaries who play an indispensable role in PLA serving its clients. Some of the students receive academic credit, others are graduate assistants receiving a tuition waiver and a monthly stipend, while still others are donating their time.

Terminating PLATO 'pulls out rug'

I am a graduate student in the College of Education, Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media. Specifically, I am working on a graduate degree in educational media with Ron Jacobs as my advisor. The emphasis of my instruction is on instructional design rather than production aspects or library sciences.

I am writing you this letter as a result of my recent awareness of the possible discontinuance of PLATO courses in the College of Education. To the best of my knowledge the course work offered with regard to the use of PLATO in education is unique to SIU-C. Why this type of instruction would even be considered for termination is incomprehensible to me. So I guess my first question would be — Why?

You may be wondering why I should be concerned with the termination of PLATO in the College of Education. First, I had the pleasure of taking CIM 481 last fall. It was at this time that I decided to utilize PLATO in my master's thesis. Therein lies my second reason for concern. My research requires the use of the hidden figures test. I want to see if there is a variance in results when subject take the hidden figures test in PLATO as opposed to when they take the test on paper. For this purpose the hidden figures test has been programmed into the PLATO system. This leads to my second question. If PLATO and the expertise of John Eddins, who is on my committee, are no longer available at SIU-C, will you please tell me how I can finish my graduate work?

My third and final question is why wasn't there prior notification or an official public notification of termination of PLATO? I am not the only student using PLATO in a master's thesis. There are doctoral dissertations dependent upon the use of PLATO as well. Surely there must have been some prior thought given to the decision to end this type of course work and the subsequent removal of PLATO terminals from Wham. Not to mention the loss of a faculty member who can be considered the pre-eminent PLATO consultant at SIU-C. Not a word of this has had any public airing.

If this program is ended in the College of Education it will be analogous to pulling the rug out from under those dependent upon the continued access to PLATO and the expertise of John Eddins. — William R. High, Graduate Student, Educational Media

DOONESBURY

"Mmm-mmm good," thinks Harry Cunningham of Benton, Ill., as he tastes the sticky syrup from the freshly boiled batch of maple sap.

That's a real sap coming out the trees

By Miriam Adolphson
Staff Writer

It's tapping time for Southern Illinois sugar maple trees.

Folks who attended Touch of Nature's recent program on making maple syrup got a taste of a beverage on tap of a different sort — real Southern Illinois maple syrup.

Jerry Cullen, coordinator for environmental education programs at Touch of Nature, says, "The best time for tapping is when the temperature at night drops just below freezing and daytime temperatures rise to the 40's or 50's."

Cullen, who has tapped trees at Touch of Nature for five years, says the process is simple.

The trees are first tapped to three inches deep with a metal or wooden spile, a tube which directs the flow of syrup into a bucket.

"You can tap a tree that's 10 inches in diameter at breast height," Cullen explained. "For every five inches, you can insert another spile."

Buckets are then placed near the tree and the sap is allowed to flow.

And what does the clear, sappy substance taste like? "Mmm. Tastes just like water."

said Paul Mezo of DeSoto.

Mezo, one of about 38 people who attended the workshop February 21, said he's always been interested in tapping trees. "When I heard about this, I couldn't wait to see it," he said.

According to Cullen, the sap can be used right from the tree for cooking, "but it is sweeter than regular table sugar," he added.

Forty gallons of sap must be boiled to produce one gallon of syrup, according to Cullen. "It takes a lot of energy to produce and that's why syrup averages $40 a gallon."

Cullen says only the very good syrups in stores have any maple syrup in them at all. Most are a combination of other sweeteners, he says.

On a good day, Cullen says he can get as much as five gallons of sap in 24 hours from one tree. "It's not uncommon for a sap hole to produce 40 gallons of sap."

You just may have a tappable tree in your own back yard, says Cullen. Other sap producers include silver maples, box elders, walnut and river birch trees. However, their sugar content may be lower than in sugar maple, he said.

Tony Drabos, environmental instructor at Touch of Nature, stirs the sap as it evaporates.

SPC planning to make Springfest campus showcase

Plans are underway to make Springfest the "campus showcase event for the spring semester," according to Calvin Barnes, executive chair for the Student Programming Council.

SPC has planned an informal meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center's Illinois Room to recruit volunteers for SPC's 10 committees, with emphasis on the Special Events Committee, which handles the annual event.

The 1982 Springfest, scheduled for the weekend of April 23-25, will occupy most of the Old Main Mall area between Stryock Auditorium and Davies Gymnasium.

Tentative events scheduled include a 10-mile run for Camp Olympia, a fashion show given by the Clothing and Textile Department, demonstrations and exhibits sponsored by various campus groups, craft sales and music and vaudeville acts.

Committee members are volunteers and will aid with publicity as well as provide ideas for various aspects of the fest, ranging from planning the layout of the event to selecting food specials and arranging for restroom facilities.

Last year's Springfest was highlighted by an appearance of the Chicago Knockers mud wrestling team.

Arms race talk to be on Saturday

Non-violent action against nuclear weapons and the arms race will be the subject of a talk at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the New Life Center at the corner of Grand and Illinois avenues.

Scheduled speakers are Mary Moore, Springfield; Bill Hogan and Sylvia Johnson, both of Chicago. All are active in non-violent opposition to nuclear weapons and nuclear power proliferation.

The event is sponsored by the Southern Illinois Friends Meeting and is open to all interested persons.

Ag awards recipients named

A faculty member, two alumni and three students were honored by the School of Agriculture at the All-Agriculture Banquet.

Bill L. Goodman, professor of animal industries and coach of SIU-C's collegiate poultry judging team, ranked number one in the nation last year, was presented the Faculty Service Award at the banquet on Feb. 26.

Robert Godke, associate professor of animal science at Louisiana State University, was named the outstanding alumnus.

Wilbur D. Smith, senior agriculture adviser for the Washington County Cooperative Extension Service, was named recipient of SIU-C's Outstanding Service to Agriculture Award.

Kenneth Maschoff, senior in animal industries, was named the outstanding senior in agriculture. Brian Bennett, junior in animal industries, received the Herb Oetjen Award, and Anita Arends, junior in forestry, won the Jerry Cobble Award.

A collection of artworks created by the Canelos Jr., are currently on display in the University Quicha people who live in rain-forests at the base Museum. Most of the pieces are ceramic, while of the Andes Mountains in Amazonian Ecuador, some are woodcarvings or musical instruments, and collected by Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Whitten

Museum showing Amazonian crafts

By Roger Traylor
Staff Writer

The University Museum is currently showing an exhibit of Amazonian artworks, which are notable for artistic merit but which bear an interesting cultural history as well.

The exhibit consists of contemporary pieces collected by Norman Whitten, a faculty member at the University of Illinois, and Dorothea, his wife.

He is an anthropologist and she is a sociologist, who since 1968 have focused their energy on the Canelos Quicha people, the creators of the pieces and the indigenous inhabitants of rainforests at the base of the Andes in Amazonian Ecuador.

The Whittens regard the Canelos Quicha with great respect and affection. Having intensely observed the culture, they said they are now attempting to repay the subjects by promoting an awareness of the traditions, aesthetics and current social problems of Canelos Quicha via the display.

The exhibit contains ceramics predominantly, along with a few woodcarvings, musical instruments and adornment items. The Canelos Quicha women have preserved a nearly 2,000-year-old tradition in ceramic making, a tradition that lies central to their lives, according to the Whittens.

The works range from utilitarian pieces to fantastic ritual items, including drinking vessels shaped like animals of the jungle habitat, both representative and mystical in their intent.

The Canelos Quicha have proven successful in integrating themselves into the mainstream lifestyle (as defined by the Ecuadorian government) while still maintaining their distinct cultural habits, the Whittens said.

However, a great threat to their lifestyle now exists in their government's intention to eliminate the rainforest upon which their lives are founded, and the Canelos Quicha's traditions, including the women's ceramic heritage, are destined for destruction, the Whittens said.

The exhibit continues through March 28. University Museum hours at 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays, 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays. Admission is free.

Easter Seals fund drive ends in April

The 1982 Easter Seal Campaign in Southern Illinois started Monday and will continue through April 11.

The 32nd annual fund drive will aid the handicapped. Funds remain in Southern Illinois and provide direct services such as equipment, physical therapy and summer camping, according to Tommye L. Robb, executive director of the Southern Illinois Easter Society.

The spring campaign utilizes Easter seals, a neighbor-to-neighbor campaign in selected communities and the Easter Seal Radiothon over WHCO in Sparta.

Also included are bowling tournaments, basket-ball shoot-outs and "Lily Days."

Southern Illinois University - Board of Trustees

CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS 62901

March 4, 1982

To Members of the Southern Illinois University Community:

On March 11, 1982, the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees will vote on whether to increase tuition from 15% for undergraduates and graduates to 37% for some professional students. The biggest concern we face when voting on increases of this magnitude is the issue of access: whether by our actions as a Board we will be denying access of educational opportunity to middle and lower income students.

I, as one Board member, would like to ask you to help the Chancellor's Office gather data on this important issue. Thus far the Chancellor's Office has been able to provide very specific figures on the effects of the federal student aid cutbacks, but unable to provide the Board with any estimate of the effects on access due to our own tuition hikes. In fact, so far comment from the Chancellor's Office on the increases in tuition have been limited to this one line, "Its disadvantage, of course, is the additional cost to be met by the student; that disadvantage is an unhappy and difficult problem which marks any tuition increase in a time when some increase is absolutely necessary."

Your help is very important for if the University community - administrators, faculty, civil service personnel, and students - through its action does nothing or takes the attitude that nothing can be done, nothing will be done. Tuition will continue to rise and financial aid cut because higher education takes it lying down.

The truth hurts, for it is no one's fault but our own. Administrators, faculty, civil service personnel, and students are to blame for we don't care enough to get involved. We are fast to grumble but slow to act. And this we must change before the clock of education is turned back to the 1920's when only the rich went to college.

So please take the time to lift a finger and act. Something can be done but only if everyone - administrators, faculty, civil service, students, and taxpayers - acts together. Please write the SIU Board, by sending in the form below, and write your legislators in Springfield and Washington.

My feelings on this issue are strong and simple. It's up to you; either put up or shut up. If you care, then participate now and help us to build the coalition of support for higher education we so desperately need. How much more honest or blunt can I be?

Sincerely,

Stan Irvin

Lori Frankel (left) and Naseem Rahka (right) Joyce's "Dubliners," in the production of both portray Eveline, a character from James "Women, By Joyce!"

Play gives fresh look at how Joyce viewed women in his life

By Mike Herzovi
Student Writer

"Literature" is a dirty word to some people — perhaps it invokes images (or memories) of long afternoons listening to works of long-dead poets and authors read in monotone by tired English teachers.

"Women, By Joyce!" is anything but boring.

The play interweaves works by James Joyce into a montage depicting how the writer's view of women developed over his lifetime.

Directed by Marion Kleinau and Laura Nelson, the production opened Wednesday night on the Calipre Stage of the Communications Building. Performances will also be at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

From the opening strains of lilting Irish folk music to Patrick Drazen's closing statement in his portrayal of an older and wiser James Joyce, the production moves crisply, using bawdy humor and ready wit to entertain and educate.

"Women, By Joyce!" gives a wonderful view of Joyce's mind as it travels through different stages of relating to women. Directors Nelson and Kleinau have focused their material well. Too often shows of this type are broad exposes of an author's work, and the audience is left confused. Here, we are often delighted by Joyce's insights.

Another cause for this delight is the characterizations. All are strong; many are outstanding.

Three actors portray Joyce at different ages. As a young Joyce infatuated and even awed by women, Frank Trimble gives a fine performance. His facial expressions speak volumes at times, and when he plays other characters, his mime is excellent.

Patrick Drazen gives a warm and witty portrayal of Joyce as an older man, wiser after a lifetime of dealings with the opposite sex.

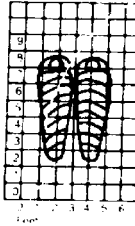

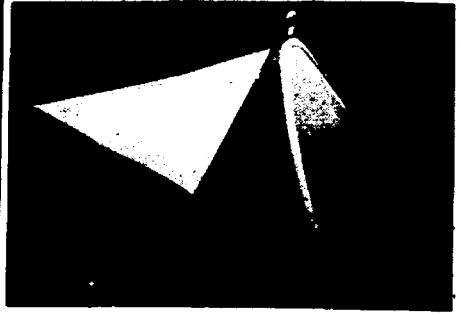

These two viewpoints are tied together well by David Angel as the middle-aged and more objective, but not yet cynical, Joyce.

Lori Frankel, Sue Mace, Karen Mitchell, Soreya Noon and Naseem Rahka all turn in fantastic performances as washerwomen who trade repartee with Drazen's Joyce. They also play supporting roles throughout the show as various other female characters in Joyce's life.

Admission is $2 at the door. Reservations can be made at the Calipre box office at 453-2291 between 1 and 4 p.m.

Program advocates 'adopting' kids

Charles Victor
Staff Writer

Working together can mean getting more done. The Youth Advocate Program run by the Youth Service Bureau of Jackson County and the Big Brother Big Sister program of Newman Center in Carbondale seemed to have found some truth in this. Both groups decided in September 1981 to combine their activities for 1982.

One of the first combined efforts will be a fund-raising spaghetti dinner at the Newman Center on April 4. Details of the dinner are still being worked out.

According to Susan Connolly, coordinator of the program, funds are needed for group activities within the program. "The advocates usually take their charges out of their own money. However, we often need money for things we do as a group, like parties or field trips."

"I am also interested in doing something for the advocates themselves to show them our appreciation for the time and effort they put in," she said. "We hope this year to give them some ribbons or certificates as acknowledgement of their services."

Advocates are almost all SIUC students who 'adopt' a child and spend time doing things together, according to Connolly. They act as role models kids can look up to and often someone they can talk to, she said.

Campus Briefs

THREE FILMS about Asia will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Illinois Room as part of the Asian Studies Association meeting.

THE AMERICAN Marketing Association will elect officers and discuss national and regional conventions at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Morris Library Auditorium.

ROBERT HUDGENS, a faculty member in plant and soil science, will discuss agricultural production problems in Latin America at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Agriculture Building Seminar Room, sponsored by Alpha Zeta.

PI SIGMA Epsilon, a marketing fraternity, will have a plant and poster sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday in Ballrooms A and C.

"GO FOR IT: The Joys of Taking Chances," is a workshop that will be offered at 1 p.m. Thursday in Woody Hall Room B12, sponsored by the Career Counseling Center.

CARROLL RILEY of the anthropology department, will speak on St. Patrick, the man and the myth, at noon Thursday in Dining Room 5 of Lentz Hall, sponsored by the University Honors Program.

AN ELECTION for treasurer of the Trap and Skeet Club will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Finch Penny Pub.

A LETTER writing campaign will be started by Bread for the World at its meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Newman Center small chapel. The letters will be sent to congress to call attention to a hunger crisis in Africa, according to a spokesman for the club.

"The kids just love it and the response is terrific," said Connolly. "What's exciting this year is the number of people from non-humanities fields. For the first time we have people from sciences like zoology and physical therapy. This makes the whole program so much broader."

One such advocate, Margie Mangan, a senior in physical education, who was in the program last year, described her experiences in the program as "real neat."

"I got invited a few times by the family and after a while it seemed that I was the one who was adopted. It was fun doing things with someone younger than you for a change."

The children are mostly pre-adolescents though occasionally even a 16-year-old enrolls. Connolly said she got them through referrals from the Youth Service Bureau, parents and teachers. "Many of the children come from single parent homes," she added.

According to Connolly, there are 30 advocates in the program. The advocates undergo a day long orientation and meet Connolly once a month to discuss their activities.

Connolly hopes to see more of the community in Carbondale get involved in the program. "Movie Theaters could give us free passes and restaurants could give us two for the price of one coupons," she said. "This way more of the community can get involved."

Various programs planned for Women's History Week

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Staff Writer

Women's History Week, March 7-13, will be observed in Carbondale through various exhibits and programs, according to Jean Ray, member of the Carbondale Committee for Women's History Week.

A potluck dinner and program honoring the "forgotten woman" will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday at the Wesley Foundation, 816 S. Illinois Ave.

Jeanne Simon, wife of Congressman Paul Simon, will speak on "Outstanding Women I Have Known." "Parlor Music of the 19th Century by American Women Composers" will be presented by Beverly Yates-Peebles and Denise Cocking.

Also on Sunday's program is a puppet show on "Women in Early Industrialization" created and performed by students Kristin Kilker and Shannon Bard. Margaret Matthias will be a story-teller. The program and potluck are open to the public.

The week's programs will continue on Monday, World Women's Day, with a reception honoring international women from 4 to 5 p.m. at the Office of International Services, 910 S. Forest Ave.

"We are inviting any groups on campus that are related to women," said Lynn Washwell of International Services. "It is also open to any men or women interested in international women."

The American Association for University Women will be having an open meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Faculty Club, 1000 S. Elizabeth. Jian Qiu Sun, a graduate student in foreign languages and literature, will speak and present a slide show on "Women in Mainland China."

The Women's Caucus will sponsor a panel on "Individual Perspectives of Women's History" from 12 to 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Thebes Room of the Student Center.

"Black Women: A Celebration" is the theme of Thursday's program, which starts at 7 p.m. at the Morris Auditorium. Chet Sisk, from WSU, will present "A Collage of Songs by Black Women," and the Jackie Thompson dancers will perform.

The program will continue with a presentation of poetry by the Poetry Factory and will conclude with a panel discussion of "Black Women Double Jeopardy Double Reward."

Women's History Week first began in California in 1977 as a movement to increase awareness of women's contributions to history, said Ray. It has been honored each year by various national, state and local government officials.

In August of 1981, a resolution was passed in Congress requesting President Reagan to proclaim March 7 to 13, 1982 as Women's History Week. The bill reads in part: "American women have played and continue to play a critical economic, cultural and social role in every sphere of our nation's life by constituting a significant portion of the labor force working in and outside of the home.

"(They) have been particularly important in the establishment of early charitable philanthropic and cultural institutions in the country... served as early leaders in the forefront of every major progressive social change movement... despite these contributions the role of American women in history has been consistently overlooked and undervalued. The President is requested to issue a proclamation calling upon people to observe (March 7-13) with appropriate ceremonies and activities..."

Volunteers sought by MOVE to work with agencies in area

By Jay Small
Student Writer

In a time when the economy is weak and paying jobs are scarce, there are still vacancies to fill in the volunteer services line. The Mobilization of Volunteer Effort is trying to fill these posts.

MOVE serves as a medium for persons interested in doing volunteer work by setting them up with a particular agency in the Carbondale area, according to MOVE Steering Committee member Lisa Ozment.

"We serve centers dealing with corrections, crisis intervention, handicapped persons, mental health, preschool and day care centers," Ozment said Sunday.

MOVE serves agencies such as Synergy, the YMCA, the Women's Center, the Newman Center, Network and many others.

"The A.L. Bowen Center used to be on the list," Ozment said, "but volunteers have to provide their own transportation, and nobody wanted to drive to Harrisburg."

Ozment said a number of agencies in need of volunteers are on the MOVE list, but not all the facilities get the support they need.

"There are lots of agencies on the list, but we can't provide volunteers for all of them," she said. "We simply don't have enough."

Many MOVE volunteers participate in order to receive extra credit for SIU-C classes, Ozment added.

At present, MOVE trains and places about 50 volunteers in the Carbondale area, Ozment said.

"Naturally, we would like to have more," she said. "We can't deliver the kind of service we'd like until we get more."

The MOVE Steering Committee meets each week to handle routine business and discuss ways to improve volunteer skills.

"What we try to do in our meetings is go over and talk about things like assertiveness, communication, organization and strategy," Ozment said.

"Then we more or less relate the information to the volunteers."

Steering committee members meet with the volunteers every two weeks for discussion of problems and help with the work.

"We have a steering committee manual and a volunteer manual to help keep things smooth," Ozment said.

MOVE volunteers perform a wide array of services for the agencies involved, according to Ozment. Workers answer phones, handle crisis intervention, work with children, or help the elderly, depending on which agency they serve.

"In different groups, they have different requirements," Ozment said. "Some volunteers work a lot harder than others just because of the nature of the job."

Ozment said volunteer work can be tough, but is often very rewarding.

"If you volunteer, you don't quit in the middle of it," she said. "You have responsibilities."

"Many of the workers are there because of classes, but decide they like it," Ozment added. "Some people on the Steering Committee originally volunteered as part of a class, but decided to come back."

In addition to the volunteer services, MOVE participants involve themselves in special projects such as an annual blood drive and United Way functions, according to Ozment.

Ozment believes the biggest problem facing the MOVE steering committee is recruitment.

"Even when I tell people about it, they always say they don't have enough time," she said. "Certain things we offer don't even take up much time."

MOVE members set up a table in the Student Center at the beginning of the semester to try to bring in new volunteers.

"We had people from several of the agencies come in to tell what they're about," Ozment said. "We may have gotten a few new volunteers out of it... I'm not really sure."

Ozment said a lack of money is hampering recruiting efforts. She does not foresee any improvement in the financial picture for MOVE.

International Week a success; draws its largest crowds ever

Another SIU-C International Festival week is over, and Beverly Walker, foreign student adviser, said it was the biggest one ever.

"We've been having the festival in some form since the early '60s, and it keeps getting bigger and better every year," she said. "At least 1,000 people showed up for the international talent show, and almost that many showed for the fashion show."

About 40 students participated in the fashion show Saturday, and a former Miss USA, Sandra Warner, was the master of ceremonies.

The talent show featured Chinese folk songs, a folk dance by a group from Thailand, a Greek dance, some Venezuelan dances, a Malaysian folk dance, some readings of African poetry, a classical Japanese dance, and an American folk song.

A Korean group also made a presentation, as did a second Malaysian group, which put on a martial arts show.

The week's festivities were coordinated by the International Student Council and Lynn Waishweil, a foreign student advisor.

Walker said the week is the highlight of the year for international students.

"It's their chance to share with the American students and community members. They really work diligently to put the week together," she said.

Jack Edily, president of the council, and other members, Ashis Das of India, and Aris Kotsioris of Greece, were instrumental in making the week a success, according to Walker. She said that besides the instrumental in making the week a success, according to Walker. She said that besides the fashion and talent shows, the exhibits displayed during the week drew about 1,000 people.

New award to honor A-P staffer

An outstanding member of SIU-C's administrative-professional staff will find out later this spring that doing something extra is worth something extra from the University.

Under a new awards program announced by the University's Administrative-Professional Staff Council, a staff member will receive a $500 cash award for outstanding performance

According to John Meister, a member of the selection committee, selection will be based on job performance which goes beyond assigned duties, efforts at promoting good University-community relations, unusual acts of service and special achievement.

SIU-C staff, faculty or students may make nominations for the award. Nomination forms are available at the Student Center information desk or from Meister at the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry. The deadline for submitting nominations is March 22.

The award will be presented April 4, at the first of what is planned to be an annual campus awards banquet.

Canadian visitor to talk at annual Leys lecture

By William Jason Yong
Student Writer

A Canadian professor, who wrote a book on the limits of political authority, will speak at the eighth annual Leys Memorial Lecture April 8 at the Morris Library Auditorium.

Michael D. Bayles, director and professor of philosophy at Westminster Institute for Ethics and Human Values, London, Ontario, was chosen as the Leys speaker because of his concern about relating ethical principles and population policy, according to John Howie, chairman of the philosophy colloquium.

Bayles will speak on "Moral Theory and Application."

The annual lecture honors Wayne A.R. Leys, professor of philosophy at SIU-C from 1964 to '73, who devoted his work to relating theoretical ethics and public policy.

He died in 1973 at the age of 67.

Bayles wrote "Principles of Legislation," which studies the limits of political authority and how this relates to ethical principles. It is specifically in the area of philosophy that Leys had the greatest concern," said Howie.

Bayles received a bachelor's degree at the University of Illinois in 1962. He earned a master's degree from the University of Missouri in 1963 and a Ph.D from Indiana University in 1967.

He directed the graduate study of philosophy at the University of Kentucky and has taught at the University of Idaho and at City University of New York.

Two more books written by Bayles are "Morality and Population Policy" and "Professional Ethics." He is editor of "Contemporary Utilitarianism," "Ethics and Population" and "Medical Treatment of the Dying: Moral Issues."

Leys played a leading role in the founding and development of Roosevelt College, which became Roosevelt University. He came to SIU-C in 1964 to help create a philosophy department. Since then, the department has become a major graduate program awarding Ph.D degrees.

Howie said the colloquium committee has organized three other lectures on philosophical topics. Professor Azizah al-Habra from Washington University in St. Louis will lecture on April 15, Stanley Deetz of the SIU-C Department of Speech Communications on April 22 and Geoffrey S. Nathan of the Linguistics Department on May 6.

Proposed law is tough on drunk drivers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drunken drivers would face on-the-spot loss of their licenses under legislation proposed Wednesday by Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., and police could impound their automobiles if they continue to drive.

Danforth announced his proposal at the hearing of his Senate Commerce subcommittee on surface transportation on the role of the federal government in ridding the highways of drunk drivers.

Under the bill, drunk drivers who face civil damage judgements for death, injury or damages would not be able to escape by declaring bankruptcy. His bill also would computerize the national list of convicted drunk drivers and encourage states to use the system to deny licenses to "state-hoppers."

Silent movies to relive nickelodeon days

Old-fashioned silent movies and live piano music will be presented at the Nickelodeon at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Student Center Ballroom B.

The program will feature six silent films: "The Boat" and "The Frozen North," starring Buster Keaton; "One A.M." and "The Cure," starring Charlie Chaplin; and "Habeas Corpus" and "Big Business," starring Laurel and Hardy. Pianist Jan Douglas, graduate student in music, will accompany the films.

Freshly popped popcorn and lemonade will be served at a price of a nickel each. Admission is $1 at the door.

The event is sponsored by the Student Programming Council Center Programming and Films committees.

Internship planned for administrators

The initiation of an SIUC Administrative Internship Pilot Program has been announced by President Albert Somit.

The program, which begins fall semester, will "provide training opportunities for employees who aspire to careers in higher education and create a strong, diversified pool of administrative talent within the University community," Somit said.

According to a memo released by Somit, interns will be assigned to administrative offices on campus either full time for one semester or half time for two semesters.

An information session is planned for March 4 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Iroquois Room of the Student Center.

SIUC employees who have worked at least five years at the University are eligible for the program. Up to six applicants, consisting of two civil service employees, two administrative-professional staff members and two faculty members, will be selected in the pilot program's first year.

A committee of constituency representatives, chaired by Mary Helen Gasser, University affirmative action officer, developed the selection criteria and a draft operating plan during the 1981 fall semester after reviewing similar programs at other universities.

Applicants must possess the appropriate academic preparation and work experience to succeed in the proposed internship, Somit said.

Applicants should submit an application form, a current vita/resume, a statement of career goals, a statement indicating what skills/experience the proposed internship will provide, a statement indicating how the internship will benefit the University and two evaluation forms from references of their choice.

Applications packets can be obtained from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research.

The committee will screen the applications and submit the names of qualified applicants to Somit for his consideration and selection. Interns will be notified of their selection by April 15.

The deadline for application is March 12. Applications and evaluation forms should be sent to C. Thomas Busch, Office of the President.

Law further protects family victims

By Red Farrow
 Staff Writer
 Battered wives should have more security because of a new Illinois law, according to Kathleen M. Quinn of the Illinois Coalition Against Domestic Violence.
 The Illinois Domestic Violence Act that went into effect Monday allows police to prevent family members from being physically abused by other family members.

 "Under old legislation, the only measure that could be taken to stop abuse was court orders," Quinn said. "There was no way to enforce the orders. The only threat was a contempt of court citation."

 A provision under the new law called an "order of protection," provides that victims may get a court order not only in civil court, but also in criminal court.
 "The order can be obtained in conjunction with criminal proceedings or in civil court in conjunction with divorce proceedings," Quinn said.
 Under the act, both civil and criminal courts can apply two remedies. They may temporarily bar the abuser from the home, and the other remedy allows them to require the abuser to pay support, medical and legal expenses and to undergo counseling.
 Quinn said violators of either of the remedies could now be arrested by police, and that violations are Class A misdemeanors.

"The bill was drafted after everyone took a look at the legislation in other states," Quinn said. "It passed both chambers of the legislature unanimously."

State suffering a cash crunch

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois cash-on-hand is at its lowest level in nearly four years, forcing the state to deposit surplus revenues in short-term accounts to assure the money is available for any financial crunch, state officials say. Both announcements came on the eve of Gov. James Thompson's 1983 state budget message. In Springfield, Comptroller Roland Burris reported the money available to the state at the end of February was $77 million, a $25 million decrease from a month ago and the lowest end-of-the-month total in nearly four years. Last year's balance at the same time was $250 million, he noted. Meanwhile, state Treasurer Jerome Cosentino said the change in the state's deposit strategy was prompted by "a decline in revenue."

"NO MATTER whose budget is adopted in Congress this year... further cuts are a certainty. The question is not 'if' the questions are 'when' and 'where' and 'how'?" Thompson told lawmakers.

Thompson, in the past a supporter of President Reagan's economic recovery plan, also called the new federal block grant programs "little more than new names for budget cuts."

Among areas that would be hit hardest by Thompson's proposed budget were education, transportation, public health, conservation and spending for environmental protection.

Displaying a chart labeled "There Will Be Pain," Mandeville listed some of the proposals he said would make people wince:

—Elimination of 1,300 state jobs, including 431 mental health workers, 112 truck weight inspectors and 75 state police employees.

—Closures of regional state office buildings in Mount Vernon and Maryville, near East St. Louis.

—No new water or sewage treatment projects, mostly because of a freeze on state construction and federal spending cuts.

—Cuts in public health grants, including money for helping provide hospital treatment of rape victims and grants to encourage expansion of family medical practice.

—Elimination of state grants to museums, a 45 percent cut in funding of grants administered by the Illinois Arts Council, and elimination of grants to public television.

—Elimination of some medical services for the poor, and no cost-of-living increase for welfare recipients.

Among Medicaid cost containment programs proposed by Thompson, most of which Mandeville said do not need legislative approval, is a limit on the number of days the state will reimburse hospitals for treatment of welfare recipients. Based on the type of ailment, the limit would account for $126 million of $254 million in proposed cost savings during fiscal 1983.

However, Mandeville also cited increases for welfare, children's services and corrections.

In addition, he said the plan offered good news on the fiscal front by reducing the size of government and by balancing the budget without new taxes.

MANDEVILLE ALSO said that despite significant tax losses, Illinois would not disconnect itself from a new federal law giving corporations a break on their income tax.

Because Illinois taxes are linked to federal taxable income, the new law reduces state collections — about $50 million in the next fiscal year, according to Mandeville.

One major area of statewide concern in recent years was not addressed directly in Thompson's budget — a comprehensive plan to overhaul mass transit and downstate roads.

Following is a look at transportation and other budget highlights:

TRANSPORTATION

Thompson proposes authorized spending of $2.3 billion, a cut of 7 percent from this year's level.

The drop is based on a further loss of federal aid and the continued decline in state collections from the motor fuel tax and vehicle registrations.

Thompson said because of the cuts, the state would not be able to maintain its past level of construction and repairs of roads and bridges. The new budget for road repairs will drop about $30 million from this year's $470 million program.

The $366.4 million public transportation program anticipates cuts in federal operating subsidies for mass transit.

CORRECTIONS

This is one area where Thompson does not want to scrimp. He proposes a budget of $262.2 million, which includes a $14 million increase in state spending. Thompson says he plans to keep violent criminals off the streets. Included in his plans are two and maybe three state prisons; two new facilities and one conversion of a mental health center — possibly the one in Dixon that's being closed this year.

The state plans to spend $33 million for construction of a new prison in Vienna in Southern Illinois. Also planned is $30 million for conversion of the mental health center. Thompson announced Tuesday he also would like to open a third medium-security facility, at a site yet to be chosen. But there is no money in the budget for the prison, and the governor did not say where it might be found.

PUBLIC AID

Thompson proposes spending a total of $3.03 billion, up $5 million from this year. Other than education, this is the largest single chunk of money in the budget. Thompson's plans include a $103 million increase in state spending, the largest such increase in the budget. The state will spend more, Thompson said, to accommodate an increased caseload produced by hard economic times.

Medicaid accounts for more than 53 percent of the public aid allocation. Thompson said the state would spend even more without the proposed $254 million in cost containment. Some optional services offered by Illinois will be scrapped, and some surgical procedures would have to be performed on an outpatient basis.

EDUCATION

As outlined by Thompson last week, state spending for education would be cut by $53 million, the first proposed education slash in his tenure. But Thompson is attempting to pressure lawmakers into passing his liquor tax hike, saying the additional $55 million a year would be earmarked for education.

Sinai squatters dragged from illegal settlement

YAMIT, Israeli-Occupied Sinai (AP) — Government troops axed down doors of shacks before dawn Wednesday and dragged off about 60 squatters resisting Israel's withdrawal from Sinai.

Some were hauled away upside-down.

The soldiers went in unarmed and carried away people from the "Stop the Withdrawal" movement. Women soldiers led women — some with infants in their arms — from Hatsar Adar, an illegal squatters' village in the Yamit bloc of settlements on the Mediterranean coast.

Although only one minor injury was reported, Hatsar Adar looked like a scarred battlefield. Smoke from burning tires drifted over a desolate scene of shacks used as makeshift fortifications. Soldiers had hacked down doors of the huts with axes and there was a sea of mud in a moat-like ditch between the settlement and the road.

The army stopped its evictions after the early-morning assault on Hatsar Adar, some 12 miles south of Yamit, and movement activists waited apprehensively in other settlements for the army's next move.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Defense Minister

Ariel Sharon declared Tuesday that the army would start immediately to remove anti-withdrawal activists who have slipped into Sinai settlements hoping to sabotage the Israel-Egypt peace treaty.

Israel has pledged to Egypt that all settlers will be out before Egypt takes over on April 25.

"I was never more frightened than last night, but now I have faith the settlement will remain," said Yeruham Levitt, 40, who came to Atsmona from Cleveland, Ohio, shortly after the settlement was set up to protect the Egyptian-Israeli peace agreement in 1979.

Conference plans latest in teaching special children

The 12th annual Good Teaching Practices Conference, planned for Thursday and Friday, will display the latest classroom materials and techniques for working with children with special needs.

Registration begins at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Ramada Inn, 2400 W. Main. The registration fee is $8.

At 8 p.m. in the Ramada Inn, Donald Deahler, director of the Institute for Research and Learning Disabilities at the University of Kansas, will speak about instructional methods that work with secondary students.

One-hour sessions on Friday will be held in the Student Center and will be running from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Presentations will be made on education of students who have special needs.

Films as well as educational materials and equipment will be on display.

The conference is sponsored by the Illinois State Board of Education, the Department of Special Education and the Student Council for Exceptional Children.

Injuries may lead to problems for 3-1 netters, LeFevre says

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

After impressive wins over Indiana and Illinois last week, the men's tennis squad will take a 3-1 record to Madison, Wis., for a three-team dual against Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Iowa.

Coach Dick LeFevre, who is still on cloud nine after the two come-from-behind triumphs, may not be there for long if his number two and three seeds can't compete. No. 2 player Lito Ampon and No. 3 seed David Desilets are both fighting nagging injuries, and according to LeFevre, if the pair can't play, it will mean forfeiting points, moving up the lineup two notches and result in very big problems.

"We would definitely have to forfeit several points, and moving everybody up will hurt too," said LeFevre. "It's a shame. But I'm hoping they are ready to get by this weekend. I'm not giving up yet."

One reason why LeFevre isn't giving up is because he knows that with or without injury, the pair are hard to beat. Playing at the No. 5 seed last weekend, Ampon, who is suffering from a pulled stomach muscle, won his match over Indiana's Greg Anderson 7-4, 3-6, 6-2. The senior from Manila was ahead after the first set against Illinois' Neil Adams on Saturday, but ran out of steam and lost to the Illini.

Ampon has a 1-3 singles record this season. No. 1 seed Brian Stanley and No. 6 seed Gabriel Koch are both 3-1.

Desilets is 2-2 as is No. 5 John Greif. No. 4 seed Dave Filer carries a 1-3 record into the weekend.

Desilets, who has an abdominal injury, practiced for an hour Tuesday, according to LeFevre, and will see action if the injury "doesn't flare up again."

"I think the whole thing depends on the ability of their play," LeFevre said. "I also think we still have a chance to win all three matches."

"I'm going to take Desilets to the match and just hope that he can play," LeFevre said. "He hasn't got in much practice time this week and that might hurt. He likes to get in at least three hours a day, and so far this week he hasn't been able to do much."

The Salukis, who have won two straight, will have to be at full strength when they face Wisconsin, who, according to LeFevre is the toughest of the three opponents SIU-C will face.

"They have to be the favorite," LeFevre said of the Badgers, who defeated SIU-C 6-3 last year. "They only lost one good player from last year's team, and they recruited two good quality players to replace him. They are in pretty good shape."

Wisconsin, who lost to Northwestern last week 6-3, hasn't had a very good start this spring, dropping three out of five. They have defeated

Marquette and Illinois State. The Badgers are led by No. 1 seed Tom Ansoar, and No. 2 seed Paul VanWalleghen, who owns a 3-2 singles record. Andy Ringlien and Dicky Browne are the No. 3 and 4 seeds respectively.

LeFevre said that Notre Dame will be tough as well. He said that the Fighting Irish is one of the best independent tennis teams in the nation, and added that the Salukis will have to work overtime in order to do well. Notre Dame, whose only loss has been to Ohio State, will bring a 2-1 record into the weekend. Iowa, according to LeFevre, will be the weakest team of the field.

The Salukis will play three matches in two days, starting with doubles competition against Notre Dame Friday morning and singles that afternoon. Iowa will be on tap for doubles in the evening, and singles Saturday morning. Wisconsin will provide the opposition in doubles and singles play Saturday afternoon.

SIU-C weightlifters to meet five state clubs

The Weightlifting Club will sponsor a six-team meet at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Recreation Center gymnasium. The Pit, Mount Vernon, Illinois, Belleville and Central weightlifting clubs will try to defeat the SIU-C lifters.

All six clubs met last semester at the Recreation Center. SIU-C won that meet with a total of 71 points. The Pit finished second with 68, followed by Mount Vernon, 29; Illinois, 25; Belleville, 20; and Central, 12.

SIU-C will be represented by Tom Messer in the 165-pound class; Mike Temboreus in the 181-pound class; Lou Phillips in the 190-pound class; and Paul Vanasek in the 220-pound class. Messer finished second at the meet last fall, while Temboreus was third in his class.

Vanasek won the 190-pound class in the fall, setting three school records in the process. He owns the school marks of 485 pounds in the squat, 535 pounds in the deadlift and 1,285 pounds total weight.

Tracksters aim at No. 2 finish

By Paul Lorenz
Associate Sports Editor

The women's track team travels to Macomb for its last scheduled indoor meet of the season at noon Saturday at the Western Illinois Invitational. Western Illinois will be the favorite at the meet, according to Coach Claudia Blackman. The Westwinds placed second to Wisconsin-Madison, 136-98, at Illinois State two weeks ago in the only meet the Salukis have competed in thus far that has been scored. SIU-C scored four points at that meet.

"At this point we're not ready to touch Western," Blackman said. "But I think we can finish second. We'll have to have some first, second- and third-place finishes to score the points, though."

SIU-C will have to beat out Bradley, Northwest Missouri State, and Central College of Pella, Iowa, for second-place honors.

Blackman called the meet the

Long distance swim slated

By Linda Stockman
Staff Writer

As many as 30 swimmers who feel like tackling a long distance swim on a Sunday morning can take part in a special event sponsored by Intramural-Recreational Sports.

It's a 5,000-meter swim — 3.1 miles or 100 laps of the 50-meter pool — which begins at 9 a.m. sharp Sunday at the Recreation Center Natatorium. Registration deadline is Friday.

Only 30 swimmers, 16 years of age or older, will be allowed to participate. Swimmers must be eligible SRC users or pay the $2 daily use fee plus 50 cents deposit.

All participants will receive a certificate of accomplishment.

Prizes will be awarded to the top finishers in the following four age groups: 21 and under, 22 to 30, 31 to 40, and 41 and over. Prizes are being donated by Bryer's Sports Mart, Dairy Queen, El Greco's, Gusto's, Old Town Liquors and Too Smart Cookies.

Warm-ups begin at 8:15 a.m. Sunday, and a mandatory pre-event meeting will start at 8:45 a.m. Lane assignments will be posted on the window of the pool office Sunday morning.

Lockers will be available, but swimmers must provide their own locks. Lap counters will be provided. Swimmers who wish to swim with fins must provide their own.

take a 44-31 lead with just five minutes gone. The dazed Lady Jays took a time out to try and regroup, but it was to no avail as the Redbird blitz continued.

The Creighton offense — not its defense — was to blame for the Illinois State whitewash, according to Lady Jays' Coach Bruce Rasmussen.

"We've played well defensively all year," said the second-year coach. "We have problems offensively. We have trouble recognizing defensive changes like the ones used by Illinois State."

Illinois State had to play without leading scorer Cathy Boswell, who broke her ankle last month.

"Anytime you lose a player like Cathy, it will hurt you," said Hutchison. "But we had to adjust and I think we adjusted pretty well without her."

Salukis' first "legitimate" shot to have a good team performance, noting the small number of teams as the reason. "As the season goes on, we'll be better prepared to compete in larger meets," the Saluki coach said. "We'll get stronger and our performances will move up from sixths, sevenths and eighths to fourths, fifths and sixths, and we'll start to score some points."

At the moment no Salukis have qualified for the AIAW Indoor Nationals slated for March 12-13 in Cedar Falls, Iowa. But Blackman was more concerned with preparation for the coming outdoor season than with qualifying people for the indoor nationals.

"The indoor qualifications are much stricter than those for the outdoor this year," Blackman said. "Also, it's more difficult to come up with good times indoors than outdoors."

"We have our indoor season set up for conditioning. We have people make the indoor nationals, great, but we're aiming for good outdoor times."

With only the meet at Western remaining, Blackman said distance runner Patty Plymire-Houseworth and sprinter Debra Davis have the best shots at qualifying for the indoor nationals.

However, Plymire-Houseworth's best event, the three-mile run, won't be run at WIU. But Blackman said the senior might have a chance to qualify in the two-mile run, in which her season-best time of 10:39.1 is about 30 seconds off the national qualifying standard.

Davis has a chance to qualify in the 440-yard dash, Blackman said. The sophomore's best time in the 440 this season, 1:00.3, is about 4 seconds off the qualifying standard.

Favorites advance to MVC semifinals

Plab, Warring lead charge as cagers dump Tulsa by 40

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

The women's basketball team advanced to semifinal play in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament by defeating Tulsa, 90-50, in quarterfinal play, at the Arena Wednesday night.

The Salukis will face Illinois State at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Arena. The Redbirds beat Creighton, 68-51, earlier Wednesday. The two teams met earlier this season at Normal and the Redbirds dumped the Salukis 73-56. The Redbirds will be without the services of their leading scorer Cathy Boswell, but Scott said her team will not take ISU lightly. She said the Redbirds are a good team and are still playing well without Boswell.

The Salukis charged on to the floor Wednesday fired up and never let up as they built a quick 12-0 lead over the Hurricane. Point guard D.D. Plab gave the Salukis' offense momentum by doing everything except operating the scoreboard.

In just 21 minutes of playing time, Plab scored 18 points, 16 of which came in the first half. More importantly, she scored from all over the court.

Staff Writer

Theresa "Tree" Dreiling lived up to her nickname Wednesday night as she and her Wichita State Shockers teammates crushed the West Texas State Lady Buffs 77-45 at the Arena to push the Shockers into the semifinal round of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament against Drake Thursday at 8 p.m.

Dreiling, the Shockers' 6-5 center whose brother Greg (7-1) plays for WSU's men's squad, broke the Shockers' all-time record for blocked shots by rejecting nine West Texas State bucket attempts. She also led WSU in scoring with 16 points, while only playing 16 minutes.

Plab bobbed and weaved for seven assists, swiped the ball three times and opened up the lanes for her teammates to join the feast.

Coach Clady Scott wanted Plab to open up her game and was happy when she did.

"We've been wanting D.D. to shoot more from the outside all season but some times she's reluctant and passes off a shot," Scott said. "She's vital to our game. When she's on, it seems like everyone else is on."

Plab credited her teammates — especially 6-3 center Connie Price — for her fine offensive showing. Plab explained that teams clog up the middle to stop Price and this leaves her open to shoot.

Forward Char Warring, who came on strong in the later part of the season, scored 21 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Warring's offensive aggressiveness gave SIU-C two and three shots at the basket each time it had the ball.

"Char's been taking the ball to the hoop real strong," Scott said. "She's not a real strong player but she is quicker than most defenders and beats them to the hoop."

The Salukis shot 57 percent from the floor for the game while the Golden Hurricane shot a horrendous 28 percent. Tulsa won the free throw battle by hitting 80 percent of its tosses while SIU-C shot an embarrassing 41 percent.

Scott had the luxury of playing her reserves for the better part of the second half. She said this is a plus since it gave her starters a chance to rest up for the Redbird contest, and gave Sue Faber a chance to rest her sore knee.

Scott said she didn't expect this lopsided win but was glad to take it and hopes the momentum will carry over.

"The kids really want to win this tournament," Scott said. "They want it bad, they know how much I want it. They're showing a lot of heart and desire. I'm praying that we can keep playing well."

"I'm real pleased with our team," she said. "We played a tough schedule this season and we're 17-11 this season. We could have played an easier schedule and had a much better record. Our kids improved a lot this season and are going to improve more next season."

ISU downs Jays; ready for Southern

Illinois State Coach Jill Hutchison, whose Redbirds play the Salukis at 6 p.m. Thursday in second-round action of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, said SIU-C is "a strong team with a lot of depth" and won't be taken lightly by ISU.

Illinois State advanced in the women's tourney by trouncing Creighton 68-51 in first-round action at the Arena Wednesday afternoon. Forwards Kay Robbins and Dawn Hallett combined for 37 points to lead ISU. Forward Joellen Gonders was high scorer for Creighton with 15.

Robbins scored 12 of her 19 points in the second half and Hallett poured in 14 of her 18 in the first 20 minutes of play.

Creighton, despite its size disadvantage — the tallest Lady Jay, Gonders, is 6-0 compared to tour Redbirds who tower over 6-0 — stayed close to Illinois State and led 8-7 with just over 14 minutes left in the first half.

Then the Lady Jays suddenly caught a bad case of the turnovers which led to 13 straight unanswered points by the Redbirds, including three consecutive "twilight zone" jumpshots by Hallett.

Creighton regained control of its offense at the 11-minute mark and played the Redbirds evenly until the half. The Bluejays were still in striking distance at halftime as Illinois State took a 34-25 lead into the locker room.

The Redbirds then decided to get off their perch and dove-bombed the hapless 6-21 Lady Jays to start the second half.

The ISU offense became the "Robbins and Hallett show" as the duo notched the team's first five hoops in the second half to

Shockers' height rejects Lady Buffs

Theresa "Tree" Dreiling lived up to her nickname Wednesday night as she and her Wichita State Shockers teammates crushed the West Texas State Lady Buffs 77-45 at the Arena to push the Shockers into the semifinal round of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament against Drake Thursday at 8 p.m.

Dreiling, the Shockers' 6-5 center whose brother Greg (7-1) plays for WSU's men's squad, broke the Shockers' all-time record for blocked shots by rejecting nine West Texas State bucket attempts. She also led WSU in scoring with 16 points, while only playing 16 minutes.

"I had the pre-game jitters and when I got out on the floor my first few shots were nothing but bricks," Dreiling said, unaware that she surpassed her last year single-season record of 81 blocked shots. The Shockers have blocked 90 shots this year.

"When I play against the smaller opponents they seem to get tougher under the basket, especially during tournament time. Records and statistics of the season don't mean a thing then," she said.

Even though the Shockers' "tremate" was batting the ball away from the Lady Buffs' basket, 5-7 and a half West Texas center Merry Johnson managed to sink 23 points, though in a futile effort.

"We couldn't shoot over them," said Lady Buff Assistant Coach Deedy Johnson in reference to Wichita State's frontline of Dreiling, 6-5 forward Mary Kennedy and 6-1 forward Pam Mattingly. "When we tried to shoot over them our players got intimidated, so we had to rely on scoring from the outside."

West Texas State's 5-9 center-forward Rhonda Kimbrough, the Valley's leading scorer with a 22.3 per game average, was held to 15 points. Mattingly scored 15 points and 5-9 forward Lisa Hodgson added 10 for the Shockers, while 5-11 forward Paula Stanley chipped in eight.

Wichita State darted out to a 13-3 lead in the first five minutes of the game and never relinquished the margin as the Shockers went into the locker room at halftime with a 45-19 lead.

The second half was no different as the Shockers took inside advantage of the smaller Lady Buffs, whose tallest player is 5-10 center-forward Glenda Williams. Coach Kathryn Bunnell, who said her Shockers played a "sloppy game" at some points, pulled Dreiling off the floor with a little over 13 minutes to play and left it up to her reserves to finish off West Texas State.

"We had the first game jitters and didn't play with as much intensity as I would have liked to see," she said. "We'll be ready for Drake, though."
