WSIU-TV to fight cuts with festival

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

With production costs rising and funding being cut on all sides, WSIU-TV is hoping to keep up its present programming schedule with the help of its "Friends of WSIU".

The Friends of WSIU hope to raise $100,000 over the next few months, more than last year's total of $68,000. That's a considerable increase, said Allan Proctor, station manager.

"We're facing definite cuts in programming if costs keep going up and money keeps going down," Pizzato said. "The festival is the only area where we can increase funds."

The station survives because of private donations and federal and state funding — funding that has been drastically cut in the past two years.

WSIU-TV's share of the federal government's Community Service Grant, an award to public television stations, has been cut from $72,000 in 1982 to $31,000 this year. Pizzato projects another cut next year, leaving the total at $27,000.

The grant is based on the amount of external money raised by the individual station. So an increase in viewer donations or an increase in state funding would result in a larger grant from the federal government. But at the state level, things are even tighter.

For three years prior to a year ago, WSIU-TV received a straight $10,000 per year from the state under a bill sponsored by Rep. Michael Madigan, speaker of the House. Last year, however, the funding was eliminated by the state — that is, Pizzato said "just wiped out our last year," because not only did it eliminate the state funding, it also eliminated any matching federal grants.

Pizzato said he is very optimistic about the festival, "but not because of the economy," he said. "If we can raise the $100,000, it will help us with the programming, but that by no means keeps us up with inflation."

Programming costs for WSIU-TV have skyrocketed 25 percent over the past year along with the other costs of running a station — promotions, office supplies, etc. "The only thing that hasn't been hit is salaries," said Pizzato.

To combat rising costs, the station has given notice to four of the station's administrative and professional staff members that June 26 will be their last day. The station has also lost seven positions in the past two years.

"The festival is the only way we can raise more funds to save the programming," Pizzato said. "I think a lot of people who watch WSIU and only a small percentage give. I can't tell you exactly how many people are watching because we can't afford the Nielsen Ratings, but if people do watch give $5 or $10, it would make a difference."

"We're talking about keeping the programming, but it's a rather cruel situation."

Legislators voice opinions on state budget

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Gov. James R. Thompson's budget, outlined Wednesday afternoon in a General Assembly session, was designed to convince the people and state legislators his proposed tax increases are desperately needed.

Three local legislators agreed that part of what Rep. Ralph Dunn called the "rather unusual" budget was the legislators' impact on the proposed tax increases. However, the legislators disagree on the impact it will have on the success of getting the tax package passed.

Thompson said one of his objectives was to try to force the General Assembly to buy into its program, said Rep. James Ren, D-131th District, "but I think members of the General Assembly are set in their ways."

Sen. Ken Busbee, D-58th District, said he agrees with the governor. "If he doesn't get there, there will be a absolute disaster," he said. "The funds are not there and are not going to be there."

The legislators agree it is too early to tell exactly what the trade-off between budget cuts and increased taxes will look like.

The three legislators they were most concerned over were welfare and mental health.

"People will literally be dying in the streets if medical assistance to the working poor is cut," Busbee said. Consequently, patients would not receive the care they need.

Dunn said he would like to see more county service programs such as in the Departments of Transportation and Conservation and increase in the welfare and mental health budgets.

High school students would receive over $100 million less than in fiscal year 1983 under the proposed budget. This could mean a 60 percent increase in tuition in state-run colleges, an increase in state layoffs, 30,000 student aid recipients cut, or a reduction in student aid, Busbee said.

Thompson has proposed increased state income tax from personal income tax, 40 percent in corporate tax, over $50 million in cigarette tax, a 55 million liquor tax and higher vehicle license fees, which would cut the state from proposed cuts.

Dunn, however, said the governor is asking for too much money. He said he is against making any severe tax increases.

Brightway Path still dim, latest surveys discover

By James Derk
Staff Writer

There is only one thing missing on some parts of the Brightway Path: Light.

A survey of the Brightway Path by the Undergraduate Student Organization Sunday indicated that apparently no action has been taken to repair any of at least 67 malfunctioning lights found last year. The USO sponsored a similar DE survey.

"I think something this important should be very important to the administration," said USO President Jerry Cook. "I think initiatives should have been taken more quickly.

The USO Student Welfare Commission conducted a survey of the path in September that indicated 400 malfunctioning lights found last year. The USO sent a memorandum to Clarence Dougherty, vice-president for campus services, indicating which lights were not functioning. Dougherty indicated to the USO that the lights would be repaired.

Cook sent Dougherty another memorandum last month indicating that so far, nothing has been taken. The USO has not heard a word from Dougherty.

Harrel Leer, superintendent of maintenance, said Physical Plant personnel rely on surveys done by the USO to determine which lights are burned out.

"What normally happens is that the student government does a survey semi-annually," Leer said. "Usually receive a complete list of which lights are burned out."

Leer said Physical Plant personnel do not conduct surveys to determine which lights are malfunctioning.

"We're anxious to be student advocates," Cook said. "But the administration should rely on student government to conduct a survey as the citizens' safety is this issue."

Student Welfare Commission member Chris Center said the USO plans to send Dougherty a complete report on the Brightway Path next week.

Busbee bill would put controls on governor

Assembly OK needed to borrow funds

By Phillip Fierst
Staff Writer

If Gov. James Thompson wants to borrow money from a private source, he will have to get permission from the General Assembly first.

"We've had trouble getting any future deficit, he may soon be required to ask permission from the General Assembly."

State Sen. Kenneth Rubgee, D-Murchison, has introduced a bill which would require the governor to seek permission from the General Assembly before borrowing money from a private source.

Rubgee said the legislation has arisen lately over the governor's borrowing limit, which forces Thompson to have these signatures before getting a short-term basis from a private source.

"The governor can borrow from a private source without permission of the General Assembly," Rubgee said. But, he added, that is not true.

Rubgee said he has already borrowed about $3 million from state funds. Rubgee said the General Assembly placed a $45 million borrowing limit on any of the fiscal year that will expire at the end of this fiscal year.

Without changing the governor's borrowing limit, Thompson has two options to meet the state deficit. Rubgee said.

"He can borrow from private lenders, or do what he's been talking about as of late — money from the state pension funds," he said.

Grad Council restricts awards

Doctoral candidacy needed

By Phillip Florio
Staff Writer

The Graduate Council Thursday passed a resolution requiring recipients of Dissertation Research Awards to be admitted to candidacy for a doctoral program before receiving any award payments.

The resolution, which passed by a vote of 13 to 10 with 2 abstentions, says students may compete for the award before being admitted to candidacy.

The resolution, drafted by the Educational Policies Committee, is expected to meet opposition because of problems between the time preliminary exams are given and the time students are admitted to candidacy. The resolution was tabled at the last meeting.

Lara Larson, EPC chairman, said the resolution is intended to expedite the process from the time a student is admitted to candidacy and the time he finishes his dissertation.

"It is to facilitate the completion of the student's work on his research dissertation project, not to support the students that are taking thenselves work," he said. "One of the major objectives of the award is to ensure that a student complete their degrees in a timely fashion."

creates permanent corporate tax, on the other hand, is convinced the state's situation will not get better and believes the taxes should be permanent.

Bushree was the only one of the three who favored the income tax increase as it stands now. "It is the most important part of the bill. It would generate $1.5 billion," he said.

He said he was not satisfied with the corporate tax increase or the state income tax increase because it lacks specification.

Bushree said he was still not sure if he would support the income tax increase. He said he wants to hear more opinions from the people in his district. "I don't powr of any Republicans in the House who would approve it as is," he said.

Dunn said he supports the gasoline tax. He said he thinks people would be more receptive to it because of the recent fall in gasoline prices.

Rea said there is "quite a bit of support" for a temporary tax increase package in the General Assembly. He supports the idea of a $1.3 billion increase for one year and then re-assessing the state's situation.

The General Assembly has four months to deliberate these issues before a decision has to be reached.
Government surplus cheese to go to low-income residents

By Karen Terry
Staff Writer

Government surplus cheese will be distributed to eligible Carbondale residents from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday at the Emu C. Hayes Center parking lot, 211 E. Willow St. To receive the cheese, persons must sign an affidavit stating that they are Jackson County residents, that their incomes do not exceed poverty guidelines for low-income assistance and that they are eligible to receive U.S. Department of Agriculture surplus foods, according to Robert A. Stalls, area USDA staff.

To provide a five-pound box of cheese, a family of two may have a maximum annual income of $10,880; a family of three, $13,580; a family of four, $16,275; a family of five, $19,970. The maximum for a single person is $8,190.

Cheese will be distributed directly to Carbondale residents who are disabled or shut-ins, Stalls said.

General assistance recipients will be notified of their eligibility by mail by Robert Kelly, Carbondale township supervisor, and will be able to pick up the cheese at the township office, 317 E. Main St.

Carbondale, Murphysboro and Somerset did not receive cheese in January's allocation of cheese for Jackson County. In contrast, Jackson County, which went instead to smaller townships, Stalls said township supervisors in Murphysboro and Somerset will distribute cheese in those towns.

More advisers sent to El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States is sending more military advisers to El Salvador and is "going to do everything we are able to do" to prevail in the guerrilla war there, State Department said Thursday.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said the government will increase the number of advisers to its self-imposed ceiling of 55. There are presently 45 advisers, eight more than the average 37 in the past year. He left open the possibility of sending more later.

Once the maximum is reached, he said, "that would be the time to look at the possibility of going beyond it."

Meanwhile, three Congressional Republicans broke ranks with the administration and urged that military aid to El Salvador be cut off unless the Central American government agrees to negotiate an end to the war.

In other developments, an undersecretary of state testified that the administration's prediction that the Salvadoran army could run out of ammunition in 30 days is based on "considerable" figures that is going on now.

In Los Angeles, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said: "As far as combat troops, rule them out. As far as advisers, our initial plan is to move it to 50 and see how that works."

Hughes said Salvadoran guerrillas have seized psychological initiatives in the war. There is a pressing need for the United States to provide the military aid it thinks the Salvadorans must have to "put the guerrillas on the defensive again," he said.

A Defense Department official, speaking on the condition he not be identified, said the United States is "absolutely not" considering changing the role of American trainers.

A State Department official, who likewise insisted on anonymity, said a decision is likely within the next several days, after consultations with Congress, on whether to seek specific congressional approval for $60 million in additional military aid for El Salvador this year, or take the money from a special emergency fund.

Reagan will confer Friday in California with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on the situation in El Salvador, which is causing increasing worry within the administration.

Herschel Walker

The pro gets a pay raise

WHEN HERSHEY WALKER took the $5 million dollar pass from the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League last week, it was only a case of getting a raise in pay.

Herschel Walker was a professional football player long before the New Jersey Generals got him to sign on the dotted line -- and an underground one at that. He was an employee of the University of Georgia, the National Collegiate Athletics Association, and every television and radio station, newspaper and national sports magazine in the nation. And now he will finally get paid like a pro, which is only right.

Walker was working for the University of Georgia, he was hired to play running back on the 1978 national championship team. Georgia, the National Collegiate Athletics Association, who may be gainfully employed as a professional football player, plus the university are happy alumni and they heard turnstiles grinding. Being a respectable place of education was not enough for the University of Georgia; they wanted to be the "Home of the Great Herschel Walker, Super Football Player."

AND THE TEAMS ON Georgia's schedule heard the same sounds. The first time Walker touched the ball at the University of Georgia, they actually paid him. Better yet, buy season tickets and you'll be assured of a good seat to see the Great Herschel Walker. Walker was just another selling point for the NCUA to use for college football on the national networks.

And the national television networks? Herschel Walker was the star of the latest "Highlight Show on television. Just like Henry Winkler of Happy Days. Only this "Fonzie" was real. He really was a super person. He really had the charisma, and he really had the admiration of the people who bought the beer and the potato chips. Walker was so real that the networks could tack a few extra thousand dollars on the price of a commercial when he was playing and yet they did.

Sunday morning sports sections weren't complete without a story on the Great Herschel Walker (wrapped around the $20 ad from Joe's Pizza.) With the burgeoning world of sports magazines, a cover photo of Walker would ensure a purchase over a Rose, a Jartley, or a Greaksky picture.

YES, WALKER HAS BEEN a professional football player for three years now, and he is finally going to start getting paid like one. And more power to him -- more power to any college football player who makes enough money to cover his professional sports.

And why shouldn't Walker take the money and run with it? Who was hurt in the deal? Not Walker himself. He's a $76.000 a week college dropout with a business education that he very well could have got.

Not college football. It will continue, as college baseball, basketball, hockey, soccer, tennis and golf programs have continued over using their stars.

Not the college athletes themselves. There are thousands of people earning their education with their athletic skills, the whole point of them will never be offered professional contracts. They will continue to make money and they will continue to play, and, in all likelihood, they will continue to make way more money than the athletes who are in college football.

Herschel Walker, 20, is now the highest paid football player in history. Good for him.

Letters

First in line given priority

Here are the facts regarding the Tom Petty ticket giveaway by Georgia Power:

First, the tickets given are not "front row" at all. They are located in the upper right section of section Y on the main floor. This is several rows back from the stage, behind section M, X, and W.

Second, the tickets used in the promotion were not acquired by WTAS from the arena, but through a regional ticket distributor in Mt. Vernon. The Arena was contractually required to provide those tickets and had no control over their distribution.

Give Iranian students respect

I am writing this letter in response to Gerald Kendall's editorial of February 22, "Iranians can go home," in which he stated "proud Americans will no longer have to tolerate your backward presence." Mr. Kenny, how many Iranians do you know personally? Do they deserve your ignorance? Being a civil American and making such a generalized statement seems to be quite backward.

Despite the present regime, neutral Iranians must not be penalized and insulated. Perhaps, there are still some things for you to learn about being civilized and opening your mind.

A snip here, a clip there ... all in a day's work

Thirty-six years ago, when Walter J. Arbuckle started business at the O.K. Barber Shop, he was among 15 other barbers in downtown Anna. Today, at most, three barbers can be found in that same business district.

As for business, Arbuckle says "After you've been here so long, you know it's going to be either feast or famine. You either get too much or too little." He doesn't seem to be bothered by the slow days. "I just use this as a place to come in," Arbuckle says he prefers the quiet atmosphere - he originally became a barber so he could work into the later years of his life.

Through the years, Arbuckle's customers keep coming back. One long-time customer, Glenn Rosson of Anna, said "Oh, I don't know how long I've been coming here, but it's been a long time."
Southern Illinois women honored

By Joanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Ten area women have been named Regional Women of Distinction as part of the celebration of National Women's History Week. From among these women, a Southern Illinois Woman of the Year will be selected.

The honor will be bestowed at 7 p.m. Monday at the University Mall.

Nominated women are affiliated with SIU-C. The other candidates are from a variety of Southern Illinois communities.

Sharon Murphy, director of the School of Journalism, is a founding member of the SIU-C Women's Caucus. She has a doctorate degree in communications and has authored two books. "Women Journalists in 19th Century America: A Social and Professional Portrait" and "Women of the Press." Murphy is the faculty adviser of the student chapter of Women in Communications, Inc., for which she won the WICI Outstanding Student Adviser Award in 1987.

She is the chairman of the Journalism Faculty Search Committee and the Graduate School's Graduate Faculty Membership Committee. She is also a member of the Graduate Advising Committee, Women's Studies Advisory Board and the Research Development and Administration Review Committee for Business, Education and Social Science.

Barbara Cordoni, founder of Brehm Preparatory School, was nominated by a student at that school. She is the head of Project Achieve at SIU-C. Both the school and the project are designed to help the learning disabled.

Doris Turner, academic advisor in secondary education, was nominated by the Shawnee Chapter of the National Organization for Women and by the SIU-C Women's Caucus. She is a founding member and former chairwoman of the SIU-C Women's Caucus and she serves on the organization's executive committee.

Turner is the president of Friends of VSU. She has also been president of the Carbondale branch of the American Association of University Women and the SIU-C Women's Club.

Listed in the "World Who's Who Among Women" fifth edition, Turner is a member of the State Board of Directors of the ERA Illinois and the 50th Legislative District Coordinator of ERA Illinois.

Henrietta Miller was nominated by the Carbondale Chapter of Professional Secretaries International, for which she is a founding member and president. Miller is secretary to the dean of Morris Library. Her boss, Kenneth G. Peterson, dean of library affairs, endorsed her nomination.

She received the Secretary of the Year Award and the SIU-C Outstanding Service Award for Civil Service Employees in 1982.

She is nearing completion of a bachelor's degree at SIU-C. Gayle Rowan Farley, Outstanding Young Woman in America in 1982, was nominated by the Carbondale Business and Professional Women's Club. She was the first licensed women stockbroker in Southern Illinois. Today she is an account executive and tax shelter coordinator for F.F. Hutton Securities.

Clarinet recital to be performed

Marina Antoline will present a clarinet recital at 8 p.m. Monday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. Accompanying Antoline will be Anita Halter on piano.

Works to be performed are, "Phantastische," Op. 73, by Schumann, Sonata, Op. 107, by Saint-Saens, "Premiere Rhapsodie," by Delucata, and "Quartet, Op. 4," by Cruelin. On "Quartet, Op. 4," Antoline will be assisted by Barbara Libeinstein on violin, Brenda Schrieck on viola, and Dane Forsmick on cello. Miss Antoline is the daughter of Luther and Doris Jean Antoline of Harrisburg and is studying clarinet performance.

Hypnotist Tom DeLuca in the process of mesmerizing the crowd.

Hypnotist uses humor in act; sees his show as "therapy"

Want to let go of inhibitions in front of a ballroom full of observers? Free Monday night! Hypnotist Tom DeLuca might be happy to help you.

Newsweek Magazine called DeLuca's combination of comedy and hypnosis "one of the most requested acts on college campuses." He differs from other amateur hypnotists in that he takes risks. DeLuca takes random volunteers from the audience and simultaneously places them under hypnosis, allowing their minds to cleverly and sometimes hilariously exhibit their personalities. He also does an original comedy routine as an extension of his ESP skills.

Tom's educational background also separates his performance from that of an ordinary hypnotist. Drawing upon his Master's Degree in Psychology and years of experience as a clinical hypnotist-rapist and seminar instructor, DeLuca sees his show as therapy, a chance to make people laugh, loosen up, and have a good time.

DeLuca will perform at 8 p.m. March 7 in SIU-C Student Center Ballroom D. Tickets are $2.50 for students, $3.50 and are available at the door.

As the lights came up at Shryock for "The 1940's Radio Hour," the stage took on the appearance of a real radio show as various members of the cast began arriving at the fictitious home of the "Radio Hour" Studios as the Radio Hour was about to begin.

As each stereotyped character of 1942 strolled, walked or ran onto the stage, the action and tension built until it was showtime and the golden-tinted master of ceremonies, Clifton A. Feddington, took the stage and the cast and bag band broke into an authentic version of "The Wentworth Choo Choo." From that point on, it was chaos on stage -- entertainment chaos that is. The script of the show flowed at such a hectic pace it was impossible to focus and notice everything going on at any particular time. Especially interesting were the actions and expressions of those not in the spotlight. Each actor was in-character for the duration of the show, not just when they were center-stage. Clifton is also the director on the action and tension built until presented performances that were record-perfect of the Rio Grande ("guaranteed to relieve you of body odor forever - tests proved it"), and U.S. Rubber.
Student elected to state board

Glenn Stolar was elected Saturday to the executive board of the Student Advisory Committee.

SAC is composed of members from public, private and community colleges throughout the state. It serves to inform the respective colleges about the activities of the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Stolar, a senior in economics, has served on SAC since 1981. While running for the position on the executive board, he told members of SAC he would like to increase attendance by public universities at SAC meetings.

"I've enjoyed representing SIU-C in the past, and I am very happy to be serving in this new capacity," Stolar said.

Boo President Jerry Cook said he is proud to know Stolar will represent SIU-C on the executive board.

"Obviously Southern is very influential in statewide student leadership," said Cook. "Glenn has certainly provided that leadership in the past, and we know he will do an excellent job.

Women's History Week is planned

"National Women's History Week sets aside a special time each year for schools and communities to recognize and celebrate the lives of countless women of all races, cultures, ethnic traditions, religious faiths and ways of life. It is a time when focus is set on the recognition of women's roles in the labor movement and international connections among all women," said Jean Fugel, coordinator of the Jackson County Women's History Commission.

Weeklong displays to commemorate National Women's History Week are scheduled to appear on and off the SIU-C campus.

Famous artist will show statue of Morris at festival on April 9

By James Derk
Staff Writer

Her work has been exhibited around the world and includes sculptures of many famous people, including Mahatma Gandhi, Buckminster Fuller and Russian poet Vladimir Mayakovsky and Indira Gandhi among others.

Sculptor Fredda Brilliant has led a multifaceted life. She has been an actress, film maker, script writer and artist. However, her greatest claim to fame is her series of busts of many of the figures.

In 1976, where Edmund Feldman, professor of art at the University of Georgia, viewed the exhibit. "This exacting work calls for the utmost in artistic skill," Feldman said. "She also possesses the ability to perceive that inner dynamic which accounts for a different order of reality."

Brilliant's work on the statue of Morris was begun in 1969. Morris sat for her in a small room in Woody Hall. Of her work on Morris, Brilliant said it was perhaps as an independent artist and relentlessly objective in my work. I am able to appreciate the greatness of (Morris) and what he has achieved."

The statue of Morris will be unveiled during a day-long festival April 9. The statue will rest on a pedestal made of bricks from the Old Main Building, which was destroyed by fire in 1969. Brilliant recently returned from a trip to Europe and is expected to travel to Carbondale for the ceremony.

Brilliant's other works include Sir Isaac Hayward, Pandit Nehru, Krishna Menon and Carl Albert, former speaker of the House of Representatives. Brilliant said in 1976 that her greatest claim to fame is her sculptures of many famous people.

The two spent 16 years in India. The husband of Herbert Marshall, former director of Soviet and East European Studies at SIU-C, created the statue of the late Delyte Morris that will be presented to the University in April.

Brilliant has done sculptures of Charlie Chaplin, Russian poet Vladimir Mayakovsky and Indira Gandhi among other famous people.

According to University News Service files, Brilliant began her career in Australia, where her family immigrated from Poland in 1923. She traveled extensively through Europe and the Soviet Union, where she met Marshall. They were married in 1935. She traveled to India in 1923. She had a month-long exhibit in London in 1968.

Throttles are at full power, and you're waiting for the signal to launch.

Now. The catapult fires. G forces press you back into your seat. Suddenly, you're flying low and fast over the open sea. Zero to 150 in 2.5 seconds.

Nothing else feels like Navy flying. Nothing. And when you become a pilot or flight officer you're at the very heart of it.

Once you've earned your wings, the Navy puts you in full control of a multi-million-dollar supersophisticated combination of jet aircraft and electronic wizardry.

And Navy training makes sure you're up to the challenge. Rigorous flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

Leadership and professional schooling prepare you for the immediate decision-making authority and management responsibility you have as an officer in the Navy.

On the ground, as a Navy officer, you work with and supervise today's most highly skilled aviation professionals. In the air, as part of the naval aviation team, you have about the most exciting job anyone can have.

It's a uniquely rewarding job with pay to match. You start at $18,300 a year — more than the average corporation pays you just out of college. After four years, with regular Navy promotions and pay increases, your annual salary climbs to $31,100. That's over and above a full package of benefits and privileges.

Magazine lists '83 job possibilities

By Duane Schomber

Students graduating this semester may be wondering, "Where can I find a job?"

Their job search can be made a little easier with the publication of a special supplement to Changing Times magazine. The supplement includes a survey of 100 major employers from across the country who plan to hire new college graduates.

Copies of Changing Times are available free at Career Planning and Placement at Woody Hall, according to Marilyn DeThomasi, professional placement counselor.

"The supplement is excellent," DeThomasi said. "It contains information that is consistent with things we tell students and what employers tell us. It's very concise and well-written."

Each employer contacted by Changing Times was asked to respond only if they intended to hire graduates this spring, according to True L. Mosley, account executive for Dunlap Communications.

Mosley said, "The job section provides a brief description of each organization's principal products and services, along with an address where applicants should send their resumes." In addition, each listing specifies the type of academic background wanted and the actual job categories where opportunities exist. Many listed areas where candidates for job openings are in short supply.

DeThomasi believes this section is a "highlight of the supplement and an excellent resource for both undergraduate and graduate students who are looking for jobs.

Mosley said the supplement also provides an overview of this year's job market with suggestions on how to make a good impression on potential employers, how to write a resume, and tips on structuring a job search and where to go for additional help.

Doctors give tips for healthy hearts

By Lisa Myers
Staff Writer

Four physicians and a health director discussed the danger signs of heart disease and ways to avoid the risk factors which can contribute to the illness at a public seminar Wednesday night in Morris Auditorium. Sponsored by the American Heart Association, "A Guide to a Healthy Heart" was part of Heart Fest '83, a week-long series of sports and educational activities held by the Jackson County Unit of the AHA to promote the good health of the heart.

Dr. Hurley Myers, president of the Illinois Affiliate of the AHA and associate professor at SIU-C's School of Medicine, described heart disease as "one of the major problems in this country." Myers said that over 41 million Americans have one or more forms of heart disease, which is the leading cause of death in the United States.

Myers identified two types of factors which can increase the risk of heart disease -- non-modifiable and modifiable. The non-modifiable risk factors include age, sex and family history of different aspects of heart disease. Nothing can change these risk factors.

But a person can reduce other risk factors, such as cholesterol intake, smoking, high blood pressure, diabetes, obesity, lack of exercise and personality characteristics.

Myers said some people's personalities make them prone to heart disease because they put themselves under a great deal of stress by being too aggressive, ambitious, competitive and impatient. They should try to relax more often and give themselves more free time, he said.

Dr. Ronald Knowlton, physical education professor at SIU-C, stressed the importance of exercise in maintaining a healthy heart. He said exercise makes the body function better, look better, feel better and, perhaps, live longer.

Knowlton said aerobic exercise is especially good for the heart and blood vessels because it increases the oxygen uptake capacity. Aerobic activities include running, cycling, swimming and cross-country skiing.

But as well as getting too little exercise, a person can also get too much, Knowlton said. A person should get medical clearance from his doctor before beginning an exercise program. He said exercise slowly.

Proper nutrition is also important to the health of the heart, but Dr. Frank Konishi said that experts disagree about what proper nutrition is.

Konishi said that the egg is praised by some nutritionists, condemned by others. Eggs are an excellent source of Vitamin A and protein, but are also high in cholesterol and saturated fats, which under certain circumstances can accumulate in the arteries.

NCAA ruling eliminates two teams from playoffs

By Brian Higgins
Staff Writer

Welcome to the only post-season basketball tournament in which teams are eliminated before they even set foot on the court. Welcome to the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Association.

No sooner had Northern Iowa gotten a thumb down sign regarding its post-season eligibility when Indiana State decided it would try its luck at flexing the NCAA rules. It didn’t work.

Monday, the GCAC announced that Northern Iowa was ineligible for its first conference tournament. The Panthers’ coaching staff had scheduled, and played, 28 games over the course of the season. The NCAA, however, stipulates that in order to be eligible for post-season play, a team must not play its 28th game until the tournament itself. The Panthers’ coaching staff had announced that Northern Iowa was ineligible for its first tournament.

The SYcamores were night contest. Whatever the outcome of the game, the team was ineligible for its first post-season tournament. The SYcamores were eliminated after the game on Tuesday night the conference committee declared the season over. The Salukis In.

The matter didn’t end there. The NCAA saw the situation. We simply interpreted the rule.”

Under last year’s AIAW rules, if you played two games in one day you had to count one of them. "As for the Monday night contest, it was my decision to play,” she said. "We weren’t given enough time to assess the situation. We simply misinterpreted the rule.”

The SYcamores lost their case, and, to add insult to injury, lost the game. Exit Indiana State.

After Northern Iowa (seeded ninth) was deleted, Southwest Missouri (seeded eighth), the Panthers’ opponent in Wednesday’s preliminary round, apparently had received a forfeit and would automatically advance to Saturday’s first round. After Indiana State was axed, however, the conference decided to scratch the entire schedule and begin anew with the eight-team slate, getting rid of the midweek preliminary round (in which only the seventh through 10th seeds competed), and put the remaining teams into Saturday’s first round. In short, there was now no need for a preliminary round, whose purpose was to narrow the field to eight.

The new schedule reads as follows. All games will be played on Saturday, March 5 (seedings in parenthesis).

Western Illinois (8) at Illinois State (1); Southwest Missouri (7) at Drake (2); Bradley (6) at SIUC (3); Eastern Illinois at Wichita State.

Gymnasts face NIU in home finale

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

Sunday is the last chance for the Salukis' men's gymnastics team to clinch one more high mark this season, as its heads into the final stretch of the regular season as an exemption in special cases. That brought about the clause which allows a team to send the second place-team to the NCAA's.

About that to qualify.

It is a rare sight to see a team that had used their exemption for the GCAC tournament. Although neither team was considered a contender for the conference title, the NCAA and the GCAC decided to avoid the possible embarrassment of having to send the second place-team to the NCAA's.

And though a great deal of the mixup may have been due to the fact that the NCAA is in its expansion year of governing women's sports, SIU-C Coach Cindy Scott stated that the real losers were the players.

"I feel bad for the players on the team that don't have a chance to play in the tournament," Scott said. "Particularly the seniors. The rule's right there in the book. It was the coaches' responsibility to know it."
Salukis face one of a kind Shockers

Saluki basketball coach Allen VanDyke divvies up the Missouri Valley Conference into three First there is the company SIU-C keeps, along with the two teams from Texas-and the other teams struggling for a playoff spot.
Then there are the prosperous teams like Bradley, Tulsa and Illinois that have the luxury of competing for home court advantages.

Do or die for Saluki trackmen

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Coach Lew Hartzog sees it this way.
"Put his mile relay team on the same track as other top relays and the result would be a national qualifying time.
'Tony Adams is feeling better. Parry (Duncan) is running good and I'm running well," said Javeli Heggs, who runs the second leg of the relay. "I don't see why we can't go 3:10 easy this weekend."

The Salukis' relay will have to go 3:10 and they'll do it the hard way.
The Salukis travel to Middle Tennessee in hopes of qualifying for the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships next weekend in Pontiac, Mich. This is the final weekend to qualify for national festivities. It's do or die for the Salukis.
"I think we can do it," said Hartzog, who will also take Tom Ross and Mike Keane.
"Right now, Nebraska is one of the teams already qualified and we beat them pretty easily. But we will have to run better than 3:11. The Salukis have run 3:13 so far this season.

And then there is Wichita State.
"Wichita State is so much better than anyone else," said Hartzog.

As such, they're so, so much better than SIU-C. Which makes the Salukis' final regular season game, Saturday night in Wichita, a dangerous undertaking. Game time is 8 p.m.

Especially since it will be the last game of the year for the Shockers, whose probation makes them ineligible for any form of postseason play.

Wichita State Coach Gene McDowell.

While coach McDowell and the Salukis' coach, Allen VanDyke, know that the Salukis' only losses were to nationally ranked Memphis State, at Illinois State, and at New Orleans, the Shockers played Bradley Thursday night.
"We'd like to win the last two games to cap off possibly the finest basketball season Wichita State has ever had," said Smithson.

The Shockers' year might be one of the greatest seasons ever appreciated by a national audience. Their probation will keep players like Antoine Carr, Xavier McDaniel and Audrey Sherrord out of the NCAA
Men netters face tough foes

The outlook for the men's tennis team this weekend is "pretty scary," according to Coach Dick LeFevre.

The Salukis face three strong teams, Eastern Kentucky, West Virginia and Middle Tennessee at a quadrangular match in Richmond, Ind.

"We hoped for a breather this weekend, but they're pretty tough," LeFevre said.

The meet will bring together some of the better players not only in the area, but in the country, according to the coach, who added, "The quality of tennis in this area is getting awesome."

SIU-C faces off against West Virginia on Friday. The Mountaineers are the defending Atlantic 10 champions, and are especially strong at Nos. 1 and 3.

Carr had a chance last year to jump to the National Basketball Association along with teammate Cliff Levingston, but he stayed, and Smithson said it was worth it.

"This year's been very good to him," said the Shocker coach. "His total game has come along. He's more mature, which will enable him to handle the grind of the pros."

In a big win against SIU-C earlier in the season, Carr had things his own way. He decided to score from the outside, and he hit 13 of 22, mostly from 12 feet or more, and had 29 points before fouling out. McDaniel added 21 points and had 15 rebounds.

The Shockers won 100-78, breaking open what had been a close first half. It was the only time this season the Salukis have been blown out at home.

Cagers host Bradley in playoff opener

When sixth-seeded Bradley steps onto the hardwood at Davies Gymnasium at 7:35 on Saturday night, Saluki Coach Cindy Scott knows exactly what her third-seeded squad is going to have to do to avoid an upset in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Association tournament's first round contest.

Stop Judy Burns. That unenviable task will belong primarily to guards D.D. Plead and Rose Peeples. Stop No. 10. Stop the 5-foott-6-inch sophomore flash, the conference's second-leading scorer, averaging 25.3 points an outing. Stop Judy Burns, and you'll more than likely stop the GCAC's most potent offensive.

"They basically run the team around Judy Burns," said Julie Beck, Scott's top assistant.

"She's an excellent guard. She penetrates from the outside, she does it all. We've never been up against anyone like her."

SIU-C has never been up against Bradley, either. Saturday's game will be the inaugural contest between the two sides, and will also mark a reunion between two Missouri Valley Conference Saluki Joe Stowell, in his first season at the Brave helm, and having mapping strategy against George Isidore, the Salukis' consultant. The two will face off each other for over a decade on the men's circuit; Stowell as Bradley's mentor, Isidore as SIU-C's assistant coach.

Burns, at 5-foot-11, is a talent not without backup artillery. Pairing with her at guard is Karen Anderson, a senior who is averaging 16 points per game, and at 6 feet, 9 inches in the Brave's leading free throw shooter. At 5-feet-11, senior Rosanne Grabow will be giving up a lot of height to Connie Price. But facing taller pivoters hasn't hurt Grabow's 13-point scoring average this season, nor has it affected her 50 percent shooting from the field, a clip that has kept her apace with the school record 56 percent that she set last season.

Flanking Grabow on the front line are 5-foot-6-inch Mandy Neal and 5-foot-8-inch Pattie Bontz. The senior duo has managed to score just over 14 points between them this year, but more importantly, has had trouble keeping bigger players out of the lane. That's one reason the Braves are the worst defensive team in the conference, giving up nearly as many points. (67.2) as they score (63.2, first in the GCAC).

The Braves are a very tall team, with their 5-foot-11-inch Mandy Grabow's 13-point scoring average, this season, nor has it affected her 50 percent shooting from the field, a clip that has kept her apace with the school record 56 percent that she set last season.

With the regular season completed, Price has all but sewn up the national title in the field goal percentage category. Since the 6-foot-3-inch junior center has returned from a three-week layoff two weeks ago, she has had trouble adjusting to her previous form. Whereas Price has stumbled, however, forwards Char Warring and Sue Fisher have shown Warring has pushed her scoring average up to 16.8 points, closing in on Price's team lead of 17.3 points. Fisher has clipped the team lead in steals (46), assists (138) and blocked shots (22), while maintaining a 19.3 scoring average.

"We just want to play well and win," said Scott. "At this point in the season, it doesn't matter who we play. We've got to win them all now. Bradley's a capable team. They have a tremendous point guard. But they're a very up and down ball club.

Up and down like a roller coaster. Bradley, 14-13, scored 159 points in wallowing Chicago State early in the season, then gave up 111 while being thrashed by Illinois."

And come Saturday night, only the 19-4 Salukis can decide who will run the valleys for the GCAC's most inconsistent team.

Salukis notes - The first playoff game will be broadcast on WSIU radio, with Bob Reek doing the play-by-play. The broadcast, which will be followed by a post-game show, begins at 7:30.

Salukis win in 2 OT's

With eight seconds left in the second overtime, Darmall Jones sank two free throws to bring his game total to 26 and the final score to 106-104 as the Salukis defeated West Texas State Thursday night. Charles Nance (above) added the SIU-C game winner with 22 points. The Salukis are tied for seventh with West Texas State with a 5-12 league record.

Saluki baseball opening day doubleheader Wednesday was far from a worst case scenario.

The Salukis made a few errors, and both games, primarily in the infield, but overall coach Ithy Jones was satisfied with the team's split at Arkansas.

"The kind of mistakes we made are correctable," said Jones.

Jones' worst case scenario has occurred twice in his four years here. Each time, the veteran baseball coach has been forced to juggle his defensive lineup after finding out that the group which looked as well in pre-season practice couldn't hack it in a real game. But that hadn't happened this time.

"Right now we're pretty well set," said Jones.

The Salukis, then, should show the same lineup this weekend when they travel to South Alabama for three games in two days. SIU-C has a doubleheader starting 1 p.m. Saturday and a single game the next day at the same time.

South Alabama is managed by ex-Seattlepianenator Eddie Stanky, the former big league player and manager. Last year he led them to second place in the Southern Belt Conference.

"We've had some players out of there who've made the big leagues," said Jones.

Stanky, who survived in the big leagues by drawing walks and stealing singles, has a team that uses a very short right field fence to its advantage. Every year, the team boasts more than one 50 home run man.

Jones remembers throwing curveballing right handers at the Jaguars, and getting beat by the long ball.

This year, SIU-C's two veteran pitchers are left handers. Jones isn't certain yet, but lefties Tom Caulfield and Dick Wysocki should start games this weekend. If Wysocki and Caulfield were both stilt and neither one could get (Saturday) I'd probably go with (Gary) Backhorn, and (Rich) Ellis in the second game.

Then Wysocki would pitch Sunday, said Jones. He didn't think the Salukis were too early to plan on setting a rotation.

"It's offense, short on power and maybe on speed as well, will probably show a similar batting order.

"We don't have much power," said Jones, and despite three steals against Arkansas, he doesn't think the Salukis are especially fast on the bases either.

"We're going to have to bunch our hits and hit and run," said Jones.

The Salukis offense might be built around the speed of lefthander Jim Rebakeit, and RBI men P.J. Schranz, Robert Jones, Mike Blumhorst and Mike Gellinger.

"Rebakeit's going to make things happen," said the Saluki manager.

Rightfielder Jones, who turned down a lucrative contract offer from the Cincinnati Reds to come to SIU-C to polish his skills, made a fine running catch Wednesday, but misjudged another ball and was fortunate to catch it up and get the out, said Jones.

But his hitting is no problem at all.
