Senate hopes agree on jobs, acid rain

By Phillip Florisi
Staff Writer

The five candidates for the 90th District state Senate seat agree that jobs are needed to boost Southern Illinois' economy and that acid rain legislation will hurt the Illinois coal industry. They also said they would work together to moderate their views in the Senate.

The four Democrats who will soon be running for the Senate primary are Murphyboro Mayor Bill Wheetley, Randolph County Coroner Gary Marriage, Union County Farmer P.L. Parr, and former Makanda Mayor Bill Wheelley.

The independent trucker incident, the picket line, the talks continue

By Bruce Kirkham

One striker was arrested and a police officer was injured Monday morning when Tuck Industries employees confronted an independent trucker attempting to cross picket lines.

Officials of Tuck Industries and International Laborers Union Local 944 met Monday afternoon and agreed to continue negotiations Wednesday.

The incident occurred when an independent truck driver attempted to leave the plant with a loaded trailer, according to Carbondale police reports.

The truck driver agreed to take his trailer with an empty trailer, which he was allowed to deliver by the group of about 100 strikers. However, when the truck driver tried to leave with a loaded trailer, strikers tried to stop him by throwing objects, shouting obscenities and standing in the path of the truck.

The police officer was injured by flying glass when a bottle was thrown through an open window of the truck and broke a window from the inside, throwing glass outward, police reports said.

The amendment's backers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Reagan pressing for approval and liberals threatening to filibuster, the Senate started debate Monday on a proposed school prayer amendment that Republican leaders predicted stood its best chance of passing in a decade.

The measure is not before the House, but supporters plan a talkathon in the House chamber in a strategy reminiscent of the 1954 national amendment allowing voluntary prayer in public schools.

Demonstrators on both sides gathered for evening rallies outside the Capitol.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said he was short of enough votes to halt a filibuster, but "it's the best opportunity to pass this amendment that we've had since the mid-1950s."

As debate began, a high priority among Reagan's Senate allies was the prayer amendment. Reagan urged approval of the proposed amendment, which faces a vote this week in the Senate and an uncertain fate in the House.

"Our amendment would enshrine a right that would be forced to recite a prayer," Reagan wrote in a letter to the Senate. "We should not return to a time when children were forced to choose their school on the basis of a belief they were not allowed to express in the public schools."

SIU has done "quite well" under Illinois Board of Higher Education recommendations on the distribution of Gov. James Thompson's higher education budget request. Chancellor Kenneth Shaw is meeting in Chicago on Tuesday.

In addition to adopting the allocation proposal, the IBHE is expected to reaffirm its fiscal year 1985 higher education budget request at its meeting in Chicago on Tuesday. "If the tax increase had been extended, then I would not be happy," Shaw said. "But given the limited amount of funding available, higher education has done well, and this particular has done quite well."

Under the IBHE's allocation of the governor's request, faculty at state universities would receive 5 percent salary increases. Bernie Warren, IBHE deputy director for government relations, said Monday that the IBHE is hoping for added support from the Illinois legislature, but added that it's still too early to speculate on what will be the actual level of funding.

On Feb. 14, Thompson announced his intention to boost funding for higher education by $200 million for FY '85. The request, which amounts to about a 5 percent increase in current spending, fails $78 million below what the IBHE had requested be appropriated from the state's general revenue fund.

Shaw is expected to announce his budget for the state Wednesday night in an address to the General Assembly.

Shaw said that he will not appeal the 1-1 vote of the IBHE staff recommendation calling for the elimination of SIU's master's degree programs in French, German and Spanish, and the bachelor's degree program in Russian studies. If the recommendation is approved by the IBHE, the SIU Board of Trustees would be notified that the degree programs have been found educationally and economically unjustifiable by the IBHE.

"The Board of Higher Education staff recommendations are not binding," Shaw said. "Their independent review and what they recommend may be considered by the Board of Trustees later, but the recommendation does not command any action."

Mondale says nomination uncertain

An exuberant Gary Hart moved South, for government relations, said Monday that the university's recommendation does not command any action."

Tom McNamara, Carbondale police spokesman, said, "We are monitoring the situation closely."

Union President Ron Mitchell said that the incident was "peaceful."

A Tuck Industries employee wishing the picket line said that several trucks passed the factory after the incident Monday and did not attempt to cross the picket line.

Negotiators for Tuck Industries and the union met Monday in Carbondale, and agreed to continue negotiations at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Mitchell said, "There is dialogue and there is commitment by both parties to reach a settlement."

Two representatives from New York are expected to attend Wednesday's meeting, Mitchell said.

Plant Manager Matt Mazer would not comment on the content of the meeting, but said, "We are talking and trying to get things solved."

The negotiators discussed priorities of the union, the most important of which is employees' wages. Mitchell said. Mitchell also said the union was concerned about the company's requirement that employees must work on Saturdays during September, October and November. The union's current contract provided a $1.65 hourly wage increase.

Statewide tornado drill

SIU-C outdoor warning sirens will be activated at 1:10 p.m. Tuesday as part of a statewide tornado drill.

The test tornado warning is part of Tornado Preparedness Week in Illinois, March 4 through 10. Films and slides on tornado identification and safety are shown at severe weather seminars held by Carbondale's Emergency Services and Disaster Agency at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday at the Community Center, 607 E. College St., and at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the First Federal Savings and Loan basement, 500 W. Main St.

In a tornado emergency, people should take shelter in the lowest part of the building they are in with their knees up. If possible, protection, said Steve Pitts, coordinator of the Carbondale Emergency Services and Disaster Agency.

Pitts will outline the procedures and call for volunteers to assist with the event.

it's not getting enough revenue pumped into the economy," Dunn said.

Whetley believes that closing tax loopholes will move the burden from those with lower incomes to those less likely to suffer the consequences of taxes and will aid economic recovery.

Dunn, 70, said Southern Illinois' job market has suffered from a lagging national economy, which he feels is gradually being corrected.

"If high-sulfur coal industries and legislators must work hand in hand to stress the importance of coal to the state and national economy, and the damage that could be caused if the mines were shut down," Parr said. "In the past, some have said nothing can be done to save the coal industry, but I don't agree."

Parr said that funding could come from a progressive income tax to shift the burden for come tax to shift the burden for education from local taxes to state. This year, he said, the state funded only 27 percent of elemenatary and secondary education.

Whetley said closing tax loopholes would provide additional funding for education. Dunn is sponsoring a bill to force the state to fund 50 percent of education.

Seith, expert defend tax indexing

By The Associated Press

Alex Seith, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, called in an expert to defend his tax-indexing plan Monday, one day after his three main opponents in the March 20 primary blasted the plan.

The chairman of the University of Chicago's economics Department appeared with Seith at a Chicago news conference to discuss the income tax indexing issue as a bipartisan observer, according to Thom Seith, Seith's campaign manager.

Professor D. Gale Johnson said that tax indexing would save the take-home pay of people in low income tax brackets and keep inflation from cutting into wages.

Johnson said that if the plan does not go into effect as scheduled in 1985, an average family of four earning $10,000 would in the next four years be paying 46.1 percent more taxes.

Seith, a Hillsdale attorney, stands alone in the race among the four major candidates vying for the Democratic Senate nomination.

The sobering look at the Lebanon situation is needed. Our foreign policy needs to be analyzed and seen if the peacekeeping troops were at all effective. If not, measures must be taken to avoid another situation like this. If the peacekeepers have had a positive effect, how can their sake be improved and how can the American public have an accurate picture of our armed forces? What are we doing wrong? What must be changed?

The Marines were part of a multinational force sent to Lebanon in an effort to stabilize the area and create a two-state solution for peace.

Foreign forces have occupied the soil of Lebanon for years and years. Civil wars have been raging in Lebanon for decades. Many Lebanese know of no other life except the one they are experiencing now. To many of us, it is incomprehensible to have bombs exploding all around us, sniper fire in the streets and people roaming the streets. The people fear for their lives daily and they want peace.

In a world that is full of more nuclear armaments, our goals must be achieved.

The military production and dispersion rate, some 3 to 10 percent of GNP and 16 to 35 percent of the world’s arms are spent on military purposes.

FINANCIAL AND NATIONAL CONDITIONS of research and development are also affected. A closer look at the Lebanon situation and the peacekeepers would help a great deal to observe their effectiveness.

Today in Lebanon, the situation is unpredictable. The resistance is growing. Terrorist attacks are increasing. Nation after nation is concerned about another nuclear catastrophe. We need to observe the Lebanon situation and help bring stability to the area. The peacekeepers must continue to battle the enemy and bring peace to the area.

According to the 1983 year book of the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 56 nations are currently employed by the armed industry, including scientists and engineers. About 20 percent of the world’s top nations are spending over 10 percent of their gross national product in military research and development.

In DEMOCRATIC countries, peace efforts are supported by the public. People want to see an end to the war and to have peace. In fact, according to the SRI-NACF report in 1984, the public is very concerned about the Lebanon situation.

How is the public reacting to the Lebanon situation? Are they content with the peacekeepers? Are they content with the government? What is the public opinion?

The global defense budget has surpassed $50 billion, an increase equivalent to the total value of productions of the whole Third World.

Communist system doesn’t work in Cuba

In response to Rev. Ted Braun’s letter which was a response to the Daily Egyptian Feb. 9, letter, I would just like to respectfully offer a few clarifications.

It was not my intention, originally, to put one political system against another. I was simply drawing attention to the thoughtless, and naively one-sided argument made by Rev. Braun. I realize that there has been some minor, positive, but still significant, progress in the Communist takeover.

But let’s face it, there are still a few bugs in the system. One of them is the habit of using one person’s name against himself without even turning his grave, but rolling with gullish laughter.

Remember the Rev. Braun’s comparison of the current system with “a system that isn’t working” (in reference to the United States) and “Communist Cuba” (in reference to Cuban communism) is a line that would be coined to “useful idiots” referring to the type of person who, out of ignorance, spurs the communist cause. Lenin undoubtedly would appreciate the efforts of the Rev. Braun.

In his flowery presentation of Utopian Cuba, the Rev. Braun fails to mention that the Communist system “that system that works” (there exists strict food rationing: two pounds of meat a month per person, for example). That could very well be a system that “obviously isn’t working” but I get more than two dollars in my monthly allowance.

The Rev. Braun also fails to mention that the Cuban system “that system that works” owes western banks an estimated $3 billion. This “system that works” also receives more than $4 billion a year through the United States government.

Rev. Braun seems convinced that the Soviet Union, but still manages to run a $700 million-a-year trade deficit. To help pay some of that deficit, Cuba has been exporting cheaper labor (otherwise known as slaves) to create sweatshops for slave labor (slaves) were sent to Sri Lanka by the Rev. Braun’s “Cuba’s grassroot participatory democracy.”

In his Feb. 21 letter, the Rev. Braun wrote that “Western Cuba (Miami) and its Cuban residents. We live in a system that works” (in reference to Cuban communism). This statement is akin to the practice of calling someone a “saint” when the person has never been canonized. It is also akin to the practice of calling someone a “scientist” when the person has never been peer-reviewed, and subject to doubt.

In closing maybe I should say something good about Fidel Castro. I think that’s why Rev. Braun liked him so much — he amongst his peers. —Mark Hayes, Senior, Anthropology

Curriculum changes lack depth...

In 1999, the General Education Curriculum Committee was charged with the task of reducing the then General Studies (now General Education) curriculum by 25 percent. As of Spring 1998, they have accomplished their task. The newly proposed GE curriculum and courses purported to provide undergraduate students at SIUC with a coherent overview of the basics from all areas of the University curriculum.

The purpose of this letter is to let the University community know that at least one person believes the new General Education curriculum is neither well-balanced nor broad based. It more closely resembles the high school core requirements suggested by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The most glaring omission in the new curriculum are classes involving what I would term “life skills.” These courses deal with consumer skills, time management and male-female working and personal relations, i.e., such as rural life or the individual. “Human Relations Between the Sexes” and “Mass Media and Society.” Over 50 percent of General Education “practical life skills” courses have been eliminated. In all fairness to the GECC, they have eliminated the life skills courses of the original “Survival of Man” class titles (composed of “Survival of Man” and the addition of some other courses) is preferable and a new class from human resources — “Marriage and the Family” — a course Vice President for Academic Affairs John Guney informed the Graduate and Professional Student Council at its Feb. 22 meeting that courses with small enrollment were generally retained or eliminated based on the GECC’s own criteria of “validity” and “intellectual content.”

The administration will attempt to solve the blow of some people by saying they are still offered by the individual departments, but not for credit toward GE requirements. The reality is that job market forces students to be more concerned in taking electives related to their field — after

...and will discourage creativity

The decision to cut in half the number of General Studies courses offered by the General Education Curriculum Committee was a response to my Feb. 9, letter which was in response to the Daily Egyptian Feb. 9, letter.

The arts and sciences share in the need for imagination and creativity, and the notion that social science courses are somehow better than General Education courses lacks breadth and is void of many valuable General Studies courses.

The arts and sciences in the need for imagination and creativity, and the notion that General Education courses lack breadth and is void of many valuable General Studies courses is, some scientists would say, not developed but confusing, and provides a basis for more development of science.

The proposal of a General Curriculum Committee was an abuse of the GE process, it was the product of an unbalanced, and shallow as the military, but...

New counselor explores international job market

By Dave Saetens
Staff Writer

Many graduating students at SIU-C are no longer limiting themselves to the United States when looking for a job.

The Career Planning and Placement Center has recently added a counselor to its staff to help those students with their international job searches, as well as help international students receive practical work experience in the United States.

Frank Klein, who worked for nine years for the German Leprosy Relief Force in a variety of places, including India and Tanzania, was hired by the CCPC in December as an international overseas placement counselor.

Klein said his experiences working overseas help him to guide students in developing their international job search strategies, and he believes the new department is necessary to the University.

"This university has over 2,000 students representing over 16 countries," he said, "and we rank second in the number of graduates going into the Peace Corps.

Klein said many American students at SIU-C decide to look for jobs overseas because they see them as challenging and out of the ordinary.

"Many students have also had some sort of international exposure on campus and they are curious," he said.

When a student decides to look for a job overseas, Klein first helps them narrow down the type of job and the geographical location they want. He then tells the student to research the job and the country, as well as talk to international students on campus from that location to get an idea of the job conditions they will encounter there.

He said that a person's job experience and individual skills, rather than a particular major, are more closely looked at by international employers.

Klein stresses to students that the decision to accept a job overseas is a big commitment, but said many of the students he has worked with so far are very serious about their job searches.

Since the international placement department has only been in existence since December, they have not yet actually placed any students on jobs in other countries, Klein said.

"We do, however, have a number of American students on some great leads," he said.

Klein also works with many international students who are not looking for placement, but are trying to gain practical work experience in the United States.

The international overseas department is also offering workshops to international students on such things as immigration policies and job search strategies.

Klein said the workshops are also offered to American students looking for international jobs and cover basic strategies in seeking employment overseas.

"We have to accept a job offer," he said. "We can't get a man with a gun."

Four win Rickert-Ziebold trust award

By Terry Levecke

"Consistency" was the word for the work of 16 candidates who displayed their skills in the Allyn Building Monday in competition for the $20,000 Rickert-Ziebold trust award.

"Certain people are designated as recipients, but I don't think anyone should be designated as noers," said Bill Boyson, a member of the School of Art faculty and the Rickert organizing committee.

The award is the biggest of its kind for art students, and the most prestigious. The recipients are chosen on the criteria of creativity, craftsmanship, scholarship, and potential for professional development.

"This is probably the best show we've seen," said Pat Covington, chairman of the award committee for the show. "We have seen a wide range of work, from traditional art to experimental pieces. It is truly a reflection of the diversity of art being created today."

The award includes a studio space, materials, and a cash prize of $5,000 for each recipient.

The first lecture will be given at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lincoln Auditorium and will include a videotape showing of the film. The lectures are sponsored by the Department of Cinema and Photography.

The second lecture will be given at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Morris Library Auditorium and will include a videotape showing of the film. The lectures are sponsored by the Department of Cinema and Photography.

The awards will be presented to the recipients at a ceremony to be held on Saturday, March 8. The ceremony will include a reception and a special performance by a local band.

Law professor to speak on ethics

George Anastaplo, whose struggle to join the Illinois Bar Association without disregarding his principles spanned three decades, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Room 1004 of Fawer Hall.

In 1950, Anastaplo, a Carthage native, passed the Illinois Bar exam and needed only to clear a routine hearing by the Illinois Supreme Court's Committee on Character and Fitness. The committee asked Anastaplo if he was a member of the Communist Party an Anastaplo, who said the question was unconstitutional, refused to answer and was denied admission to the bar.

In 1954, after appeals to the Illinois and U.S. supreme courts failed, Anastaplo was granted a new hearing by the committee, but again he refused to answer the question and the committee refused to alter its original decision.

In 1979, the Illinois House unanimously passed a resolution asking the court to admit Anastaplo to the bar.

Last year, the bar asked the Illinois Supreme Court to reverse its decision. The court ruled that Anastaplo must reapply, but he refused on the grounds that he has already applied. That is how the case stands today.

Anastaplo is a law professor at Loyola University and teaches political science at the University of Chicago.

More donations, repayments may curb loan requirements

By Phil Milano, Staff Writer

More donations to the short-term loan fund, along with new rules on the loan repayment, could help lessen SIU-C's short-term loan requirements, according to Joe Camille, director of student work and financial assistance.

"It could be true that students were going to pay loans back, in short order," Camille said. "It's just a matter of finding any magic way of telling which students are going to pay and which aren't." Camille said.

Short-term loans range from a minimum of $21 to a maximum of $75,000 for a period of one academic year. The short-term loan system is to help students with financial aid, which includes up to a maximum of $175 for seniors, because it is believed that some memorial funds for SIU-C rely on donated funds, Camille said.

"This is just not feasible for us to go out and repossess a car," Camille said. "However, if a loan isn't paid back within two months after it is due, we send the bill to a collection agency; which changes the student one-third of the amount of the loan or $100, whatever is less.

All University debts must be covered by financial aid before a student job on campus," the director said. "If a student has a Pell Grant coming in for $800 and owes the University $500 for tuition, we know that he'll have enough money left over for a $100 short-term loan," Camille said.

The director said donors give the money to the fund and expect it to be loaned out in a reasonable manner.

A WELLNESS CENTER EVENT

"We've been delivering it down here," Camille said. "We've been making this whenever we can, and therefore claiming to correct energy and pain management problems. This workshop presents techniques for reducing and eliminating chronic back pain."

“We’ll play a little more controlled than our last few games,” Van Winkle said. “That’s subject to change depending on the situation, but to run up and down the floor with our health and depth problems wouldn’t be to our advantage.”

Van Winkle said the keys for his club will be rebounding and turnovers.

“I’m concerned about our size and depth up front,” he said. “We can’t allow Wichita to get two and three shots at a time. We’ll have to have a great day rebounding to win.”

The Shockers’ 4.3 rebounding margin is the second best in the league. Their front line is led by 6-7 junior Xavier McDaniel. McDaniel ranks second in the nation in rebounding with 13.3 rebounds per game. McDaniel also leads WSU in scoring with 26.8 points per game.

Senior Zarde Dacetic, a 6-10 center, is averaging 10.3 points and 6.1 rebounds, and forward Gus Santos, a 6-7 freshman, has 9.6 points and 4.3 rebounds. The Shockers have D-4 Karl Papke, 7.3 points, and Aubrey Sherrod, 10.3, at guard. Sherrod, second team All-MVC as a sophomore last season, had a string of 14 straight games in double figures snapped recently.

Papke played some forward early in the season but was switched to point guard.

In other tournament games, No. 1 seed Illinois State hosts host to No. 8 Drake, No. 7 Indiana State visits No. 2 Tulsa and No. 4 Creighton plays host to No. 3 Bradley. The winner of the Saluki-Shocker game will play the winner of the Tulsa-Indiana State matchup in Thursday’s semifinals. The highest-seeded team will host throughout the tournament.

Quitters slip past TKE to win IM wrestling title

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Behind three first-place finishes, the Quitters claimed the Intramural’s men’s wrestling tournament championship Thursday at the Recreation Center.

The Quitters, who won the team title with 35 points, had first-place finishes from Elmer Exconde at 118 pounds, Ken Guzman at 142, and John DiDi at 167.

Other winners were Keith Abeney at 126, Abdallah Ghassan at 134, Mike Longergan at 150, Don Kush at 158, Kevin Heller at 177, Derick McClellan at 190, and Gary Carter at heavyweight.

The three most competitive divisions were 150, 158, and heavyweight, where 10 wrestlers competed at each weight.

TKE finished second in the team standings with 30 points, and the Drinkers (12 points), and Abbott Hall (nine points), placed third and fourth, respectively.

First-place winners were awarded T-shirts from Bleyer’s Sports Mart and second-place finishers had their choice of a visor or a paper weight.

Possibly because of last week’s weather conditions, only 58 wrestlers competed at the tournament, down from last year’s total of 112.

“We had more people participate last year, but we think we had a good tournament,” said Kathy Hollister, assistant coordinator of Intramural Sports. “The tournament was run real smooth, and we had a lot of positive feedback from the wrestlers.”

Hollister said she thought the high level of competition was another reason for the low turnout.

Two cagers make All-GCAC squad

SIU-C’s Char Warring (forward) and D.D. Plab (guard) were named to the All-GCAC first team while forward Petra Jackson and center Connie Price were named honorable mention.

Drake placed three players on the first team (all repeaters): Lorri Bauman, Wanda Ford and Kay Riek.

Illinois State’s Dawn Hallett, Wichita State’s Lisa Hodgen and Eastern Illinois’ Toni Collins also repeated as first-team selections.

Indiana State’s Amy Hile, named honorable mention, was selected as the GCAC Rookie of the Year.

Two Salukis qualify in final swimming meet

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

Two members of the SIU-C men's swimming team recently qualified for the NCAA Championships in San Antonio.

The NCAA qualifiers, Gary Brinkman and Steve Frigo, met standards in a total of three events.

Brinkman met the NCAA standard in the 500 freestyle with a time of 4:57.61. This time broke the SIU-C record held by Roger Von-Juarez of 5:02.32, set in 1982.

"I got Gary not to worry about making the standard and to think about Von-Juarez's record," swimming Coach Bob Steele said.

"I think it is a little bit different perspective and took some of the pressure off him," Brinkman said.

He added: "I think there were two seconds under the standard, and I was third-best in the nation this season. Brinkman has already qualified in the 1,650 free, with the nation's fifth-best time.

"Gary has tried 11 times to make the standard in the 500 freestyle this season," Steele said, "and each time he has missed by no more than nine-tenths of a second. I'm really happy that he finally made it because he has worked hard on his turns and his leg strength."

Frigo met NCAA qualifying standards in the 100 and 200 breaststrokes. Frigo's time of 1:56.31 is the second-fastest in the nation this season.

"I wasn't surprised with Frigo's performance," Steele said.

"I'm really happy with Giovanni's times, he really got home," Steele said. "I knew he had a chance to make the 100 yard breaststroke, but he has his limitations at all times."

"Giovanni tries so hard and is working really hard," Steele said. "I know he has it in him to go faster, but I'm not sure about his finish at the NCAA's."

Counting the three qualifying times of Brinkman and Frigo, the Salukis men have qualified five individuals in six events, and qualified teams for the NCAA championships March 17-20 in Indianapolis.

Brinkman and Andre Brinkman have qualified in the 500 and 1,600 freestyles.

Kevin Krait has qualified in the 200 individual medley, while Steve Frigo has qualified in the 200 free.

The Saluki men have also qualified for the NCAs in the 300 and 400 free relays, and the 400 medley relay.

Steele said that he had expected all of the people that qualified to meet the standards. "I think having five individuals qualify is very respectable," Steele said. "I really couldn't ask for more than that.""}

Women golfers take 5th at LSU

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

The SIU-C women's golf team played fifth of 12 teams at the 54-hole LSU-Baton Rouge Invitational last weekend.

The Salukis' overall tournament score was 878, which placed them third in the Invitational overall.

"We cruumbled a little bit on the third day," Saluki Coach Bob McGirr said. "SIC's second round score of 317 was too high." McGirr said the Mississipp State's 307 on the third day, tied for the second-lowest rounds of the tournament.

Houston Baptist's second-round score of 313 was the lowest.

"It was the first time in three years that at least one day hasn't been rained out," McGirr said.

Lisa Kartheiser led a trio of Salukis scoring in the high 70s. Kartheiser's 78 tied the low round of the tournament.

LSU, third at 935, and Alabama, second at 931, were ahead of SIU-C on the third day.

"It was the first time in three years that at least one day hasn't been rained out," McGirr said.

"I saw this as a situation where we could give back some of the things BYU had given me in the last four years," Young said.

Young's contract, a source told The Associated Press, will be worth $1 million for the first four years and includes a $2.5 million signing bonus. The lifetime value of the contract runs through the year 2007, which includes payments totaling more than $20 million.

"I have nothing but good things to say about the NFL, but I really felt like the NFL was the best place to go," Young said.

"I'll probably be the first pick in the May 1 NFL draft. The spring draft was run by the NFL, but I decided to sign with the Express," Young said. "It was a very tough decision and it came after much deliberation," Young said.

A self-bander who re-tied 13 NCAA records last season, will become the first pick in the May 1 NFL draft. The spring draft was run by the NFL, but I decided to sign with the Express," Young said. "It was a very tough decision and it came after much deliberation," Young said.
