Union vote tabled

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Union leaders say an election to determine whether University employees want to unionize will have to wait until next fall because of another delay by the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board.

Robert Perkovich, executive director of the IELRB, said the board decided Thursday to postpone its decision so it could decide if the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses should vote together and if department chairpersons should be allowed to vote.

The administration feels the two campuses should vote together, but the unions feel the campuses are too distinct to vote as a single unit.

The administration also feels department chairpersons are the "front line" of management and should not vote in a collective bargaining election. But the unions feel the chairpersons duties are closer to those of faculty members.

David Stevens, a member of the Illinois Education Association, said the board's decision "will mean on the Carbondale campus that it will be virtually impossible to hold an election this spring."

The Illinois Education Association is one of two unions vying to represent University employees should they decide to unionize.

Stevens said however, that if the board makes a decision later this month, there may be time to hold an election at the Edwardsville campus if the board decides the two cam-

Patrol says walk bikes or pay price

Rogue bicyclists beware. The Saluki Patrol has been stepping up its efforts in issuing tickets to cyclists who ride their bikes through "walk bike" zones on campus.

The zones include the breezeways in Faner Hall, the Agriculture Building and the Wham Education Building. The paths of Thompson Woods also are off-limits to bike riders.

Merilyn Hogan, manager of University Security Parking Division, said her office receives frequent complaints from irate pedestrians about bicyclists riding through the breezeways.

"People get scared when they are almost run over by a bicycle. Then they get mad," Hogan said.

She said bike riders pose a safety hazard in the frequently congested breezeways and Thompson Woods paths. "We just don't want anybody hurt," she said.

Even if the breezeways or paths aren't crowded with pedestrians, bicyclists must still walk their bikes, Hogan said. "They'll (the Saluki Patrol) get you anyway," she

Evangelist quits traveling ministry

Jed Smock vows return 'someday'

By Richard Nunez

George "Jed" Smock, the traveling evangelist who preached God's message on campuses around the country, has decided to settle down.

Smock appeared on campus each spring preaching near the free forum area or at the north end of the Student Center. Smock, of Columbus, Ohio, said he will give up his crusade and teach young men the profession he has worked at

Jed Smock won't be preaching on campus this spring diligently for over a decade. "I'm working to establish a ministry with the intention of training young men to do what I have been doing for the past thirteen, fourteen years now," Smock said.

Before 1972, Smock was a college history professor and a self-described hippie caught up in the drug movement.

"I got involved in the drug movement, dropped out and joined a hippie commune in Morocco," he said. "When I came back to the United States, I started reading the scriptures."

Smock became a Christian a few years later, in 1972, after meeting an old friend in a grocery store parking lot.

Contra aid plan killed by House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democrat-led House, in a surprise move praised by President Reagan, killed a plan late Thursday that would have given $30 million in humanitarian aid for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, but barred guns and ammunition.

The House voted 216 to 206 against the plan, which was opposed by Reagan and conservative Republicans as well as some liberals who

"I'm very happy," Reagan said as he arrived at the White House late Thursday from a trip to Western Europe for a NATO conference.

The defeat of the aid came only minutes after the House had tentatively approved the same plan on a 215 to 210 vote.

On the first vote tentatively approving the aid, 212 Democrats and three

Gadhafi reaffirms claim to restore 'line of death'

LONDON (UPI) — Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi has reaffirmed his claim to the disputed Gulf of Sidra, the site of past clashes with U.S. forces, and pledged to renew his "line of death" across the entrance to the gulf. Gadhafi's challenge came in a televised speech at Ras Linuf on the gulf some 450 miles southeast of Tripoli Wednesday night. Gadhafi said Libya is determined to "renew the line of death" along parallel 32.20.

Soviet official acknowledges riot deaths

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet official acknowledged Thursday that recent ethnic riots in the Soviet republic of Azerbaijan caused "loss of life" and did not deny reports that as many as 17 have died in the unrest. Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said the deaths occurred last weekend during riots in Sumgait, an industrial city on the Caspian Sea, but he refused to say how many were killed.

U.S. pressures Pakistan to drop demands

GENEVA (UPI) — A Pakistani official said Thursday his government, apparently under pressure from the United States, may drop its key demand for an interim government in Kabul prior to signing an agreement ending the Soviet-Afghan war. Such a position would move negotiators a step closer to a promised withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan and a settlement to the 8-year-old war.

Violence erupts in Israel prior to Shultz's visit

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Soldiers firing real bullets to break up crowds of stone-throwing protesters in the occupied West Bank wounded three Palestinians and an Arab stabbed a teenage Jewish settler in the back in Hebron's market Thursday, officials said. Police reported thousands of chickens were slaughtered as part of an outbreak of sabotage inside Israel.

Judge blocks regulation against health clinics

BOSTON (UPI) — A U.S. district judge blocked implementation Thursday of new federal regulations barring health clinics that receive federal funds from recommending, or even mentioning, abortion as an option for pregnant women. "The regulations are specifically designed to suppress speech, and particularly directed at the suppression of one viewpoint. As a result, they run directly contrary to the dictates of the First Amendment," U.S. District Judge Walter Jay Skinner said in a 28-page ruling.

Mecham moves government to Glendale home

GLENDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Forced out of his executive suite, impeached Gov. Evan Mecham has moved his "government in exile" to the Glendale home where he raised his seven children in quieter times, before the tumult that led to his being the first governor to simultaneously face impeachment, criminal charges and a recall election.

Official: Drug testing sought in airline industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary James Burnley proposed a sweeping regulation Thursday that would require drug testing of all commercial airline pilots and other industry personnel with safety or security jobs. Pilots, flight attendants, flight engineers and navigators, aircraft dispatchers and aviation security screeners would be affected by the proposed rule.

Legislators: State should seek expansion of prisons

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The state should expand construction of new state prisons being built at Canton and Mount Sterling as an alternative to building another new prison, two central Illinois legislators said Thursday. Rep. Jeff Mays and Sen. Laura Donahue, both Republicans from Quincy, asked state officials to expand the 750-bed prisons to accommodate an additional 150 inmates each when they open in the fall of 1989.

Day of Action planning continues

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

The Illinois Student Association will meet at SIU-C this weekend to discuss a second day of protest in Springfield and decide its stance on tuition increases.

Heidi Leisner, USO governmental relations commissioner, said Day of Action II, set for April 13, already is well organized. The ISA will decide on dates to distribute posters and how to get more people involved, she said.

During last year's Day of Action, students from across the state gathered in Springfield to lobby legislators for more money for higher education.

During his visit to Southern Illinois Tuesday, Gov. James R. Thompson said massed lobbying efforts have little impact on lawmakers' decisions.

Leisner disagrees. "It was effective last time, because one of the legislators was proposing a house bill that states that tuition increases won't exceed the higher education price index."

But the rally is not aimed at influencing legislation, Leisner said. "We're going to voice our opinion."

Part of the plan this year is to write letters to legislators and make appointments to see them personally, she said.

The governmental relations commission has begun planning the trip for University students, Leisner said. There will not be an on-campus rally as there was last semester because of the low turnout for the rally.

However, funding will be requested from USO to take several bus loads of students to the Capitol, Leisner said.

She said tables will be set up in the Student Center about two weeks before the Day of Action so students can sign up for buses and get organized to make banners.

Campus election groups wait to endorse candidates

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

The campus arms of the Democratic and Republican parties say they won't endorse presidential candidates until after the parties' nominating conventions.

But Vincent Lacey, advisor for College Democrats, said most group members are leaning toward endorsing Sen. Paul Simon. Many members have been working on Simon's student-backed campaign, Southern for Simon, and plan to be at Simon's Illinois campaign kick-off rally in Marion today, Lacey said.

"I doubt that we'll endorse a candidate," he said. "That's why we hold primaries - because we all don't agree."

The group, which has about 40 active members and more than 250 registered members, lets its members endorse candidates in the "beauty contests" (primaries) individually so that no one is forced to conform to an opinion they don't subscribe to, Lacey added.

Jim Schnepfer, president of College Republicans, said his group, which has about 25 members, doesn't endorse candidates to keep peace in the organization. College Republicans has about 25 members.

Instead, the group sponsors tables in the Student Center where members can distribute literature and campaign for the Republican candidates of their choice, Schnepfer said.

"We try to play it safe and not get anyone upset with us," he said. "The SIU students can swing the county's election if student's get out and vote. We try to encourage students to vote."

If students get behind a candidate, the candidate has a good chance of getting elected, Schnepfer added.

"For the most part, we'll help any Republican candidate who asks for help," Schnepfer said.

The group has made and is in the process of hanging signs for William Maurizio's state's attorney campaign, he said.

Patrick Kelly has contacted College Republicans for support in his congressional campaign, but his opponent for the Republican nomination, Peter Primeas, hasn't. Its "up to the candidate to contact us," Schnepfer said.

College Republicans wasn't active last year because it "was a non-election year," Schnepfer said.

"There's not much of an agenda to take care of and there was a lack of interest in the issues," he said.

Committee examines mass transit system

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Northern Illinois University's mass transit system provided many ideas for members of the Undergraduate Student Organization's mass transit committee, who inspected the system last weekend.

"There are a lot of good things mass transit can do for the public and the campus, and I've got a lot of concrete evidence on that," Drayton Roose, chair of the mass transit committee, said.

The committee hopes to get the city's cooperation and prepare a formal proposal to present to SIU's Board of Trustees in hopes of implementing a transit system here.

NIU's bus service, which has been operating for 17 years, is run by a transit service, American Transit Corp., a St-

Louis based company.

Roose said the buses were 10 to 15 years old, but very well kept. "I was very impressed with ATC's management and upkeep of the service," he said.

The bus service at NIU is completely student run, Roose said. Students have their own mass transit board and are not affiliated with the city, he said. The board does things like route analysis every month to keep the service running efficiently, he said.

Non-students must be allowed access to the buses because of Section 18, a matched funding program run by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

IDOT becomes a second party and matches the funds of the other party, Roose said. But, the funding must be applied for by the city, and the university must become a third party in this case, he said.

"We want to encourage city (of Carbondale) involvement to get matched funding," Roose said.

A mass transit board structured after NIU's would consist of five undergraduate members, two graduate members, and a resident of the city, Roose said. These would be the voting members of the board, he said. Other members would include a University administrator, a city official, and a representative from the transit company.

Area merchants who might be on a bus route are being asked to fund the survey, Roose said. The survey will be taken after spring break, he said.

A referendum also will appear on the student elections ballot in April.

Kudos from the Daily Egyptian

THE FOLLOWING PEOPLE and groups at SIU-C receive official Daily Egyptian congratulations for accomplishments in the past couple of weeks.

■ The SIU-C debate team, which recently won its third consecutive national championship and took the top four individual places at a tournament in Joplin, Mo. The team is ranked No. 1 by the Cross Examination Debate Association.

- The following team members deserve kudos:
  - M. Scott Parsons, who won the individual title;
  - BiBi Christoff, who teamed with Parsons to win the team title.
  - Mark West, who placed second;
  - Chris Carey, who teamed up with West to place second as a team;
  - Mike Korcok and Valerie Sulfaro, who placed third and fourth, respectively.

■ Two moot court teams from the SIU-C School of Law, which recently won regional competitions and will advance to national and international tournaments.

The SIU-C chapter of the Black Law Students Association won the Frederick Douglass Appellate Court Advocacy Competition in Cleveland, Ohio. The team will compete for the national title in Washington, D.C., against nine other teams from around the nation.

SIU-C team member Delbert D. Denny won best oralist awards.

Also, the Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team won the Jessup Cup tournament in Lawrence, Kan., and will compete in the Jessup World Championship in Washington, D.C.

Team members Todd Hayes and Mark Metzger tied for the title of Best Oral Advocate.

■ The following seniors in the School of Art, who will split $20,000 from the annual Rickert-Ziebold Trust Award for outstanding artwork:

- Catherine G. Tallon, sculpture;
- Richard C. Stone, product designs;
- Jerald F. Overton Jr., product designs;
- Patricia A. Hamilton, painting;
- Ana Escomei, drawing and painting.

■ The College of Engineering and Technology, which recently held its annual engineering pentathlon. The competition is a great way to make learning interesting and exciting.

For the pentathlon, the college gets the DE Award for Creative Teaching. It is to be hoped that other colleges will follow in the College of Engineering and Technology's footsteps and try to find innovative ways to motivate students and encourage them to learn.

Opinions from elsewhere

The Tennessean (Nashville)

For some people, the scandals surrounding the shenanigans of fundamentalist TV evangelists are a source of great amusement — they enjoy seeing hypocrites get their comeuppance.

For many others ... the scandals are a source of pain and embarrassment — not only have they been betrayed, but their religious beliefs now are being ridiculed.

In some quarters, fundamentalism is seen as undeserving of respect. The excesses of TV evangelists have contributed to this climate.

Under these circumstances, some are tempted to poke fun at fundamentalists. But ridicule of others' religious views is not seemly, regardless of its source or the apparent certainty from which it springs.

Letters

Get up and cheer, basketball fans; let Salukis know you're awake

This letter is addressed to the so-called "boosters" who sit behind the benches in the Arena. I have been at SIU-C for three years, and feel it is time to let you know what inadequate Saluki basketball fans you are.

I realize you may provide vital financial support to the SIU-C basketball program, but please don't stop there. As true supporters, your responsibilities go beyond that.

I have attended approximately 80 percent of the men's home games and have never failed to leave the Arena with a hoarse throat. Many other students and fans do the same, I'm sure. But most of the time, those "spectators," since few can be called true fans, are expressionless and occasionally venture a few rounds of applause.

The student sections may be on their feet, frantic with excitement, but a third of the Arena usually is lifeless except for a few real fans who are not afraid to stand up and join the cheering.

The Bradley game was an excellent example. For at least half the game, two-thirds of the Arena crowd was on their feet, with the rest reclining in their obviously comfortable seats. Wouldn't you, as a player, be more inspired seeing the fans behind your bench on their feet instead of half asleep?

Rich Herrin is doing a splendid job with men's basketball, and I look for more improvement next year. The coaches and players are doing their part to make the "Dogs" a force to be reckoned with, and I think it is about time the fans start doing their bit. — Albert P. Lense, junior, mechanical engineering

Blacks ask for too much special treatment

After reading the Daily Egyptian this semester and observing the events around campus, I must say I'm getting very angry.

What am I getting angry about? I am getting really tired of reading stories like "Minority protesters, University officials meet" (Feb. 22) and "University attempting to phase out Black American Studies program" (Feb. 19).

The issue I'm bringing up is that blacks have been constantly complaining about getting the short end of the stick on college campuses. This is ridiculous! They have their own University organizations, (Black Affairs Council, Blacks in Communications Alliance and Black Together ness Organization, to name a few.) There are also scholarships restricted to just blacks.

If anything, they are taking advantage of their so-called position. What would happen if someone started organizations such as the Caucasian Affairs Council, or scholarship funds such as the Caucasian College Fund?

What would happen is that a black organization would take it to court and say it's racism. I don't feel an organization should be entitled to exclude a race. I am not prejudiced, I just feel that everyone should be treated as total equals.

I think they better wake up and realize the position they are in and shut up before it's too late. — Kurt Sicilia, senior, journalism

Blacks must continue struggle for justice

Black History Month has ended, and the emphasis on blacks will decline until next year. People now look toward other upcoming events; that is, everyone except me.

The struggle continues for what we blacks on campus feel to be of significance, as well as for black students of tomorrow. This struggle is not one to be forgotten, nor will it deteriorate in time.

The black experience should be taught with the utmost truth at the college level, if not high school and elementary. You must remember that "knowledge and awareness bring forth reality."

If you are not aware of our struggle for Black American Studies yet, then you have cast a stone upon blacks as a whole, to bury us underneath the rocks of fabrication. — Derrick B. Hobbs, sophomore, engineering technology

Morris from Genesis to Revelations

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

One small room set aside in a fourth floor corner of the only building on the Southern Illinois Normal University campus was the inauspicious beginning of what is now a 2-million volume library.

Since 1874, SIU-C's library has undergone a metamorphosis. Many of the changes were orchestrated in the early 1950s by University President Delyte W. Morris. Others were funded by the state.

The first library, housed in Old Normal, the only building on campus, was destroyed by fire in 1883. Some books were salvaged from the blaze, and with the help of University President Robert Allyn, who donated many of the books from his personal collection, a new library was formed.

A temporary building was constructed for the library in 1884 until a permanent building, Old Main, was completed in 1887. But the growing library was soon on the move. In 1896 the library found a new home in the Gymnasium, Library and Science Building, later renamed Altgeld Hall.

This facility was eventually outgrown, when in 1903 the number of volumes housed in the library reached 17,000. Wheeler Library was built in 1904 after the Illinois General Assembly appropriated $25,000 to build one of the first college libraries in the state.

During the 1920s and '30s, students were given greater access to library materials. Books were allowed to circulate for two weeks. Fines of one penny per day were implemented for overdue books in the 1930s.

Increasing funds and a larger budget during the 1940s wrought even greater changes in the ever-growing library system. More staff and a larger number of collections added to what promised to be an important facet of University life.

In 1948, the State Division of Architecture and Engineering declared that Wheeler Library was no longer capable of bearing the weight of the collections. As a result, 60,000 volumes were moved to a nearby quonset hut.

The Legislature, recognizing the need for a new library, appropriated funds for the first stage of construction in 1952. The new edifice, designed for expandable construction, would initially accommodate 350,000 volumes and seat 1,200 users. Plans also called for facilities to house audio-visual materials, a photographic laboratory and an auditorium.

Newfangled conveniences, such as air conditioning, fluorescent lighting and acoustical ceilings also were included.

The first stage of the project, an area of 145,000 square feet, was estimated at a cost of $2.3 million.

Woes Budget squeeze drains the library

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

When fire was threatening to destroy the library in 1983, quick-thinking University President Robert Allyn told students to toss books out the windows.

Morris Library, reeling from the campuswide budget pinch, is throwing out books too, but not because it wants to.

Dean of Library Affairs Kenneth Peterson said the number one problem with the library is the budget. Budget increases "have not kept pace with the rising cost of library material."

"The state should meet its responsibility of providing adequate funds for the library," Peterson said.

In 1987, 86.3 percent of the library's expenditures were covered by state appropriated money and 13.7 percent came from grants and gifts.

About 57.5 percent of the allocated funds was used for salaries and wages, 32.9 percent for the purchase of materials and 9.6 percent for supplies and upkeep.

The cuts "hit us mainly in the journal and periodical area," Peterson said.

During the 1980-81 school year, Morris Library subscribed to 16,003 periodicals at a cost of $936,780. While the number of subscriptions decreased to 14,369 during 1986-87, costs skyrocketed to almost $1.5 million.

Darrell Jenkins, director of library services, said 171 subscriptions were cut during the summer and fall of 1987. The numbers, he added, are continually decreasing.

The number of books to be purchased also has decreased. In 1986, about 24,000 new books were ordered. In 1987, Jenkins said, the number dropped to less than 18,000. Less money is being devoted to book repairs and paperbacks, which have a through the parking lot when I met an old high school friend who was preaching to passers-by," he said. "I saw the power of Christ in him and was amazed at the incredible change that had taken place in his life."

Smock said he began preaching on campuses because he saw the need to reach "sinners" and turn their lives to God.

"I had a real concern for reaching the non-believers," he said. "I was trying to find a way to reach those people effectively. The apostles did most of their preaching outside and I decided to make the campuses the main thrust of my messages."

On campuses, Smock preached to passing students, warning that if they did not repent, they would be damned forever. Smock admits that his fervent messages frequently angered students and resulted in heckling and, sometimes, assaults.

"I expect it," he said. "The apostles were stoned and beaten for preaching the word of God. I think they (the students) are interested in what I have to say, but they are afraid to reveal themselves to their friends."

Smock said he believes his commitment to reach the unrepentant is more honest than the efforts of many television evangelists. He takes the time to reach people personally, sometimes traveling half a day to preach at a college campus.

"I don't condemn all television evangelists, but many of these men are being exposed as hypocrites," he said.

In the past 13 years, Smock said his ministry has probably preached to more people personally than any other ministry in the world today.

"We've reached thousands of students in one day."

Smock said he will now use that recognition to strengthen the Campus Community Church in Columbus. He also said that his work would be much more effective if he remained stationary.

"I haven't completely eliminated traveling," Smock said. "I will return some day."

Republicans voted for the plan, while 37 Democrats and 173 Republicans voted against.

On the second vote that killed the aid, 203 Democrats and five Republicans voted in favor, while 45 Democrats and 171 Republicans voted no.

Assistaat Democratic leader Tony Coelho of California said Republicans were responsible for defeating the bill.

"The Republicans decided to play politics," he said. "We had plenty of Democrats who put the thing on the board."

He said the Republicans had known all day what was likely to happen.

House leaders have no plans to introduce new Contra aid legislation, he said, adding that it would have to wait until the matter comes up again during future legislative action.

Rep. Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., said the final rejection of the Democratic package was "what we hoped for."

The Contras would have gotten little benefit from the Democratic package, Edwards said.

said. Bicycle regulations are enforced more stringently as the weather gets warmer and more people ride their bikes, Hogan said.

The University motor vehicle and bicycle regulations state that any vehicle or bicycle that belongs to a University student or employee found on University property, must bear a current registration decal.

Since August 1, 1987, the parking office has issued 7,127 decals. Hogan said she sees many more bicycles on campus that are not registered. Bicycles that aren't registered are subject to impoundment by campus security.

Bicycle decals, which are issued every two years, cost $2. After June 1, decals will cost $1 and will only be good for one year, a parking division spokesman said.

The current two-year decal expires Aug. 31, 1989.

In 1987, 1,126 tickets were issued to bicyclists. Hogan said most of the tickets were issued for riding a bicycle at night without a headlight.

She said another common offense is riding through a pedestrian crosswalk. "Some bicyclists think they have the right of way (in a crosswalk), but they don't," she said. Only pedestrians have the right of way over a vehicle.

Hogan said bicyclists should "use common sense and obey the rules of the road, which is something they should have been taught in grade school."

uses should vote separately. The Carbondale campus would shut down too early for an election to be held.

The academic year at the Edwardsville campus, which runs on the quarter system, is longer than Carbondale's academic year.

The IEA and the University Professionals, the other union vying to represent employees, filed motions in early February with the IELRB to move up the collective bargaining decision.

Perkovich had told union leaders on Feb. 18 that the board had decided that an election could be held this semester. According to what Perkovich said, the two campuses would have voted separately and votes from chairpersons would have been imposed until the board made a decision on their status.

However, Perkovich told the unions the next day that he was mistaken and that the board actually had decided to wait until the University had responded before making a final decision.

Construction of a basement and two stories began in 1953. An additional five floors were to be added later.

On Jan. 9, 1956, Morris Library, named for the president who would serve the University for 22 years, was opened.

Materials were classified by subjects and divided into four areas: humanities, social studies, education-psychology and science.

Always interested in promoting the growth of knowledge, President Morris founded the Friends of Morris Library in 1960.

The number of volumes increased at a steady pace with student enrollment at the University during the 1960s. The library, modernized to improve service, installed Xerox copying machines in an effort to discourage mutilation and removal of books. In 1964 a new IBM circulation system was begun.

The Learning Resources Service, established in 1967, offered faculty members a chance to improve their instructional techniques and prepare teaching aids.

The expandable construction design permitted the addition of five floors to Morris in the mid-1960s, and by 1968 the library's collection had grown to one million volumes.

The one-millionth book was presented to the library on Nov. 17, 1968, by friends of President Morris on the 20th anniversary of his succession to the presidency. The book, a first edition of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," was placed in Special Collections.

Special Collections, located on the second floor of Morris, contains rare books and manuscripts, as well as University archives. The priceless collection of over 60,000 volumes is primarily used by graduate students and faculty for research.

The undergraduate library, opened in 1970, has a separate card catalog to provide easy access to books selected for the undergraduate curriculum.

In 1974 the library gained computer access to a national data base of over six million bibliographic records. Other improvements include the addition of Braille to the elevator and special tables to accommodate wheelchairs in 1982.

In 1983 a new computer system was added to enhance library services. Located on the third floor, the terminal allows students to call up a book title, find the book's call number, location in the library and indicates whether or not the book has been checked out.

A faster method of checking out books was implemented in 1987. Optical Character Recognition allows books to be labeled with a number that can be read by a light pen instead of librarians punching call numbers into a computer.

Dean of Library Affairs, Kenneth Peterson, recently expounded on the future of Morris Library in a library brochure article entitled, "Southern Illinois University Library: A Century of Growth and Service."

"The accomplishments of the past 20 years have been the most notable," said Peterson. "The momentum for amassing outstanding collections, together with provisions for adequate building space, equipment, and staffing should be the University's highest priority as it moves forward into its second century of service."

shorter shelf life, are being purchased.

On the plus side, the Morris Library Two-for-Two fund drive could be the key to returning the library to its "golden years" status.

The campaign will not help restore budget cuts, but it will raise money necessary for library improvements.

Inter-library borrowing has increased, Jenkins said. In 1986 5,300 books were borrowed in 1987, 7,000.

The 30 percent increase either is a "surge in intellectual fervor," Jenkins said, or the declining purchases and cancellation of serial titles" is having some effect.

The major impact, he added, has been behind the scenes. Reference desk hours have been reduced and there have been delays in processing orders for new material.

This really has not had an adverse effect on public service, he said, because staff and student workers have been working harder to keep up with things.

Jenkins noted the implementation of new programs or expansion of existing ones, such as the Optical Character Recognition, which checks out books by scanning them with a light pen. It began in 1987 and has been expanded to labeling student ID cards, as well as books, to speed up the check out process.

"The goal is to see a faster and more accurate circulation process as a result," Jenkins said.

The online catalog is another new project. It will require additional money for computer terminals and staff time for training, but will provide access to public, law and business libraries throughout the state, Jenkins said.

"We're really just seeing what are the important types of services we need to maintain and enhance," Jenkins said. "With a finite amount of funds there may be some programs and services that may need to be eliminated."

Peterson said space and staffing are major problems, but projects such as the Two-for-Two campaign, a new storage facility and Optical Character Recognition are "all moves in the right direction."

The Two-for-Two fund drive began in September 1987 to raise money for the library endowment fund and provide the financial stability that would allow the library to expand.

The drive's goal is $200,000 and over $112,000 has been raised to date. The campaign was named in honor of the 2 millionth volume, which will be added to the library this spring.

There is one problem that won't easily go away. As with all of the previous buildings, the shortage of space in Morris Library has become severe.

That problem is about to be solved. A new storage facility is near completion on McLafferty Road west of campus.

Peterson believes that the new storage facility may fulfill the need for extra room for five of six years, but by the 1990s an addition to the main library will probably be needed.

Special gifts chief chosen

Assistant dean replaces Carman

Patricia D. Arey has been named director of special gifts for the Southern Illinois University Foundation. Arey, who took office March 1, replaces former SIU Foundation President Anne Carman, who also served as director of special gifts. Carman left the foundation in December to become a vice president for the Council for Advancement and Support of Education in Washington D.C.

Before joining the foundation staff, Arey served as assistant dean for external affairs at the College of Communications and Fine Arts since 1985.

Arey will be responsible for identifying potential donors, preparing proposals that match donors' interests to University needs and advising individuals who assist the Foundation in contacting potential donors.

Arey is no stranger to the foundation, having interned in the Foundation's research area from 1986 to 1987. She also coordinated the College of Communications and Fine Arts annual telefund.

SIU Foundation acting President Rex H. Ball said Arey comes to the post highly recommended. "I was impressed by her ability to think like a fund raiser. She has strong interpersonal skills and a strong analytical mind," Ball said. "She's really first rate. We're thrilled to have her over here."

Arey earned her bachelor's degree in University Studies from SIU-C in 1984. She serves on the Illinois Arts Council community development panel and has been a director and executive committee member of the Southern Illinois Arts.

Landlord-Tenant Union informs students of housing rights, duties

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Dorm residents who plan to move off campus and students who are currently renting apartments or houses can get answers to questions about their rights as renters from the Landlord-Tenant Union.

The Landlord-Tenant Union — an ad hoc committee of the Undergraduate Student Organization's housing, tuition and fees commission — has been alerting students about what to look for when renting for several years. Susan Hall USO chief of staff and member of Landlord-Tenant Union, said.

Landlord-Tenant Union has been showing a slide show for the last two years about tenants' rights and responsibilities, city ordinances and other information, Hall said.

The slide show will be shown in the residence halls at 7 and 8 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday through April, beginning the first Tuesday after Spring break. Anyone can attend, Hall said.

The program is designed to be preventative, to make students more aware of problems so they don't end up with them, Hall said.

Students also are informed of organizations that can help with specific problems, such as code enforcement, the student attorney's office and small claims court, Hall said.

The organization was started in the 1970s, but died out and began again in 1984. "It's been going strong since then," Hall said.

Prison guard's union fights drug test policy

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — A state workers union is fighting the Corrections Department's employee drug-testing policy before the State Labor Relations Board, contending the agency bargained in bad faith.

The complaint, filed this week, objects to the policy which allows the agency to test current employees when it believes there is a "reasonable suspicion" that they are using drugs. The union, which represents 9,000 Corrections workers, is seeking an injunction to prevent the policy from being implemented.

"We are just as concerned as the state is about keeping drugs out of the prisons because they present a safety hazard to our members," said Steve Culen, executive director of Council 31 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. "But we warned the department that we would not sit back and allow them to implement a policy that violates our members' rights."

Culen maintains that since the issue was not dealt with during the last contract negotiations, it cannot be implemented now. And, even if the agency was not barred from implementing the policy, Culen said, the agency failed to bargain fairly. In addition, the policy violates union members constitutional rights, he said.

The Corrections Department's policy is not being enforced pending the outcome of action by the Labor Relations Board, said agency spokesman Nic Howell.

Howell said the agency has had several discussions with the union about the policy and he charged they were stalling the matter.

"They wanted to talk this thing to death," Howell said. "We are expecting additional steps to thwart us in this effort."

Howell believes the agency will win the fight with the union. He said many high level agency officials must be convinced of the need for a test before it is sought.

"We are on solid legal ground and on solid moral ground on this," he said.

Howell said the union's fear the program will be abused is unwarranted.

But Howell said it is necessary nonetheless. Contrary to union officials claims that visitors are bringing drugs to the prisons, some of the workers are responsible, he said.

He noted that workers have been arrested on and off the job for drugs and he noted that cocaine was found in a guard tower at a Joliet prison recently.

The Battle for the Books started off in the spirit of competition Thursday at Morris Library.

The Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate and Professional Student Council are competing in the contest to raise $10,000 each for Morris Library's Two for Two fund drive. The drive is trying to raise $200,000 for the library's endowment fund.

John Attard, USO president, and Darrell Johnson, GPSC president, jokingly insulted each other as they donated the first money.

"The undergraduates will, no doubt, win," Attard said.

Johnson responded by saying, "Only two-thirds of the undergraduates know there is a library, and half of them have never been there." He also showed Attard a map of campus with an arrow pointing to the library that GPSC had prepared to send to undergraduates.

Five collection containers will be in the University Bookstore and one will be at the Student Center information desk. The contest will run through Mar. 31.

USO and GPSC will have a sponge-throwing booth at Springfest, with the loser of the funding fight providing the targets. The president of the losing organization will also have to wear a dress for the day.

All Registered Student Organizations' contributions will go toward the USO total. USO is sponsoring a contest to encourage RSOs to participate.

All RSOs are divided into five categories, with local merchants donating prizes for the RSO in each division that raises the most money.

The five categories and prizes are:

—Departmental organizations: first place, $200 cash from the Daily Egyptian; second place, 50 custard cones from Great Licks.

—Fraternal organizations: first place, pizza party for 100 people from Domino's Pizza; second place, $50 gift certificate from Gusto's.

—University housing organizations: first place, VCR from Video Mania; second place, $50 gift certificate from Subway.

—Sports-recreation clubs: first place, $200 gift certificate from Bleyer's Sports Mart; second place, $50 gift certificate from Southern Illinois Kroger Stores.

—Special interest groups: first place, $200 gift certificate from University Bookstore; second place, $50 gift certificate from Kinko's Copies.

Theta Xi show to benefit 'Southern' service award

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

Students will sing and dance for contributions to the "Service to Southern Award," during the 41st Theta Xi variety show at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

The annual $500 award will be presented to a student for outstanding contribution to the University, Glenn Januska, graduate assistant for Greek affairs, said.

The $400 Leo Kaplan scholarship also will be awarded to an undergraduate student in biological sciences in memory of the former faculty adviser to Theta Xi fraternity, he said.

The Inter-Greek Council, sponsor of the variety show, uses ticket sales and patron donations to provide for the service award, he said.

Patrons will be given a reception, complimentary tickets and small gifts prior to the show.

About 100 undergraduate and graduate students, both Greeks and non-Greeks, will participate as performers in the variety show, Januska, said.

"It's an all-campus variety show. It's sponsored by the Inter-Greek Council but anybody can attend," he said.

Soloists, duets and large groups of fraternity and sorority members will perform.

"Lights, camera, action," is the theme for the variety show, he said.

"Each group will have their own theme that falls under the show's theme," he said. "For example, the theme of one group is 'A look back at the movies.' They will sing and dance to songs from movies of our past."

Soloists and duets will perform one act. Large groups will perform three acts each, Januska said.

"This year it just happened that all the acts are singing and dancing. We would've liked to have had other performances," he said.

Trophies will be awarded to the best acts in each group category, he said.

The University orchestra will provide music for the show, Januska said.

Police Blotter

Two teen-agers accused of brandishing a knife and toy gun at bouncers of Gatsby's, 608 S. Illinois Ave., Thursday morning and were arrested on aggravated assault charges one hour after the incident, Carbondale police said.

Terence A. Keene, 18, and Tracy L. Wimberly, 17, were arrested after returning to Gatsby's at 3 a.m., allegedly to recover the toy gun that Wimberly had dropped, police said.

Both were taken to Jackson County Jail to await a court appearance Thursday afternoon.

Police said witnesses gave this account. Keene and Wimberly argued with Gatsby's employees Wednesday night. When employees forced them to leave at 2 a.m., Wimberly drew the toy gun from his pants and Keene produced a knife.

Wimberly dropped the gun as the two fled from the employees, police said.

A University student was arrested after a footrace with police at the Quick Trip service station on the intersection of Grand and Wall streets early Thursday morning, University police said.

Kevin D. Jackson, freshman in pre-radiologic technology, was charged with trespassing to a vehicle and resisting arrest at 2:09 a.m., police said. He was taken to Jackson County Jail where he was unable to post bond, police said.

The Parking Division will consider whether to levy a fine or revoke parking privileges for Gregory G. Kosiarek, sophomore pre-major, after a meter maid discovered a homemade parking sticker on his car Wednesday afternoon, University police said.

The employee found the sticker to be a piece of red tape with white numerals that allegedly had been fashioned by Kosiarek. The "sticker" was affixed to his car, which was parked at a lot north of Pulliam Hall, police said.

Contras: Efforts for peace plan killed by Sandinistas' decision

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The U.S.-backed Contra rebels said Thursday the Nicaraguan government delivered "the final blow" to the Central American peace plan by dismissing Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo as mediator in talks between the two sides.

President Daniel Ortega visited the Roman Catholic cardinal Wednesday night and, after thanking him for his role in mediating cease-fire negotiations between the government and the Contras, said he would "dispense with" the cardinal's services in favor of direct talks with the rebels.

Ortega named his brother, Defense Minister Humberto Ortega, a general, to head a proposed round of talks inside Nicaragua. The Contras in the past have called for talks inside Nicaragua. Previous discussions were held outside the country.

Contra leader Adolfo Calero said in a telephone interview from Miami the Sandinistas "have acted as criminals" in dismissing Obando y Bravo.

"The Sandinistas have given the final blow to the Guatemalan accord," said Calero, referring to the regional peace plan signed in August in Guatemala by the five Central American presidents.

Calero said the Contra leadership wants Obando y Bravo to continue as mediator, but will convene shortly to discuss Ortega's decision to have his brother head another round of the negotiations.

"Obando y Bravo was the only person who had made these efforts march ahead. By removing him, the Sandinistas have acted as criminals," Calero said.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the United States backs direct talks between the Sandinistas and Contras.

Panama's main bank faces shortage

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Panama's central bank faced cash problems Thursday, a day after a New York judge halted transfer of its American deposits. President Reagan said the United States might seek to freeze more assets to pressure Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to resign his military command.

In a statement published in local newspapers, Banco

Nacional, Panama's central bank, announced it could not pay out any cash reserves to local banks because of the New York judges' restraining order on $10 million held for Banco Nacional. The statement said the bank had not seen the order and cash payments would resume when the situation was clarified.

Some Panamanian-owned banks remained closed, apparently because of cash shortages in the central bank. Some of the banks reportedly had closed earlier in the week fearing a run by people seeking to withdraw deposits.

Banking sources said Wednesday Banco Nacional was facing liquidity problems. Foreign banks were pulling their funds out of Panama and putting them into offshore accounts in the Cayman Islands, the sources said.

Swaggart tells church he saw demons

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana Assemblies of God ministers spoke in tongues during their debate over stiffening a penalty against disgraced evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, a member of the state council said Thursday. "There was such prayer and concern about Jimmy Swaggart in that room that some people spoke in tongues," said the Rev. Gerald Lewis. Lewis and the council decided to stick by its three-month suspension from the pulpit and two-year rehabilitation for Swaggart, who was photographed in the company of a prostitute at a New Orleans-area motel. Swaggart told members of his church Wednesday he had been visited by demons the day before. He said when a friend called in the midst of the demon attack, he told him "Praise God, I have the victory."

CDC finds AIDS risks limited to blood, sex

CHICAGO (UPI) — Government researchers who have studied every case of AIDS reported since the epidemic began concluded Thursday there are only three ways the disease is transmitted in the United States — through blood contamination, sexual contact and through birth from an infected mother.

Despite theoretical concerns and anecdotal reports, there is no evidence to suggest the virus that causes AIDS has been transmitted through saliva, tears, urine, eating utensils, vaccines, casual contact or insects, the federal Centers for Disease Control reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The possibility that the virus can be transmitted through breast-feeding is still being evaluated, the CDC said.

"We have studied this for six years now, and if there were other ways HIV (the AIDS virus) was transmitted, we would have seen it," said Dr. Kenneth Castro, an epidemiologist with the CDC in Atlanta. "Adults are getting this through sex or through sharing needles and that's about it."

Castro said the 1,700 AIDS patients currently classified as having "no known risk factors" are not examples of mysterious AIDS transmission but of inadequately investigated cases.

"If we take the time to look (for primary risk factors), we find them," Castro said.

As of Feb. 29, 54,723 cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome had been reported to the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, and 30,715 people afflicted with the disease had died.

Of these, 34,687 were classified being transmitted through homosexual contact, 9,473 through sharing of needles and 4,016 through one or both. In addition, 1,182 women and 987 men contracted AIDS through heterosexual sex with an infected partner, and 663 children were infected by their mother, either in the womb or during birth.

Although 600 hemophiliacs and 1,415 others have contracted AIDS through contaminated blood products or transfusions, screening procedures have made the risk of more of these infections extremely low in the United States.

Noting concern over the high number of undetermined cases, Castro and his colleagues investigated 2,659 AIDS patients who were classified as having no recognized risk factors as of Sept. 30, 1987. No information could be obtained on 921 cases (due to death or refusal to be interviewed), and 32 of the AIDS patients turned out to be wrongly classified.

AIDS statistics available through electronic means

ATLANTA (UPI) — The growing AIDS epidemic and the attendant big demand for information about the deadly disease has prompted the national Centers for Disease Control to install automatic electronic devices to disseminate the data.

Since the beginning of the AIDS epidemic in June 1981, the CDC's public information office has handled an increasing number of requests for information about AIDS from the general public, health care providers and the news media.

"We're just trying to be more efficient," said Don Berreth, CDC public affairs director. "Our people spend hours every day just trying to give statistics out to the media."

He estimated the CDC gets "thousands" of telephone calls every week asking for AIDS information.

"The demand for information about AIDS and AIDS statistics has increased in tandem with the spread of the disease," Berreth said.

Under its new system announced Thursday, the CDC will respond to requests for updated AIDS statistics 24 hours a day via three answering machines set up on three different telephone numbers. In addition, the CDC's entire five-page weekly surveillance report on AIDS is now available by facsimile during weekday working hours.

Study: Suicide rates rise for male AIDS patients

CHICAGO (UPI) — The suicide rate of male AIDS patients is 36 times higher than expected for men their age, 66 times higher than in the general population and higher even than rates seen in dying cancer patients, the first study of its kind concluded Thursday.

Researchers from Cornell University Medical Center reported the annual suicide rate of men with AIDS in New York City is 666 per 100,000 population, a rate comparable to people suffering from severe neurological disorders.

In contrast, the suicide rate was only 18.7 per 100,000 for the other men and 9.29 per 100,000 for the general population.

The suicide rate of people dying of cancer is generally estimated at three to four times the population average, said Dr. Peter Marzuk, who headed the research.

The scientists, whose study was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, suggested there may be neurological as well as psychological reasons for the self-destructive behavior.

Magazine guilty in ad case

Jury finds fault in publication of 'kill-for-hire' ad

HOUSTON (UPI) — A jury Thursday ordered Soldier of Fortune to pay $9.4 million to the family of a woman killed by a hit man hired through an ad in the magazine — a verdict that could provide a precedent for other suits based on actions resulting from classified ads.

Jurors deliberated for 12 hours over three days before finding the magazine negligent in the death of Sandra Black, who was killed at her Bryan, Texas home in 1985.

Her mother and son had sued the Boulder, Colo., magazine for $22.5 million, claiming its negligence led to the slaying.

John Wayne Hearn, a self-described mercenary hired by Black's husband through a Soldier of Fortune ad, previously was sentenced to life for her murder and also is serving two life terms in Florida for other killings.

Robert Black previously was convicted in his wife's death and is on Texas's death row.

John Wayne Hearn, a self-described mercenary hired by Black's husband through a Soldier of Fortune ad, previously was sentenced to life for her murder, also is serving two life terms in Florida for other killings.

The trial was considered important to publishers, who now may be obliged to scrutinize more carefully the items they run as classified ads with the foreknowledge that they may be held responsible for consequences stemming from them.

Hearn's ad, which ran September through December 1984 in the magazine, read: "Ex-Marine — Nam vets. Weapons specialist, jungle warfare, pilot, M.E., high risk assignments in U.S. or overseas. World security group."

The jury twice interrupted deliberations on Wednesday to question U.S. District Judge David Hittner.

Jurors first asked who would receive exemplary damages, if any are awarded. Of damages sought in the suit filed by Marjorie Eimann for herself and her grandson, Gary Wayne Black, $20 million were sought in exemplary damages.

Hittner responded by telling jurors to consult with his earlier instructions, which said such damages could be assessed as a way to punish the defendant.

Later, jurors asked why Jim Graves, the magazine's former managing editor, was not called to testify. Graves provided prosecutors with information that led to the conviction of a man who used an ad in the magazine to hire someone to poison his wife.

After that inquiry, Hittner called jurors back into court, re-read certain portions of the charge to them and ordered them to re-read the entire charge.

Witness in supremacists case says members committed crimes

FORT SMITH, Ark. (UPI) — A former security guard at the Aryan Nations in Idaho said Thursday he had expressed concerns to the Rev. Richard G. Butler about members of a radical offshoot of the group committing illegal acts.

Kelly Carner was one of a string of witnesses the prosecution put on the stand to support previous testimony about counterfeiting and robberies that members of The Order are accused of performing to help finance an overthrow of the government and establish a white nation in the Pacific northwest.

Butler, 69, was leader of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations) at Hayden Lake, Idaho. He is one of 10 white supremacists on trial on charges of seditious conspiracy. One of them and four other people are on trial for conspiracy to assassinate an FBI agent and a federal judge in Arkansas.

Two of the 14 also are charged with interstate transportation of stolen money. Seditious conspiracy is punishable by a maximum 20-year prison sentence and $20,000 fine.

"I think I raised various different concerns as to our legal liabilities since these people (The Order) were members of Aryan Nations," Carner said.

He said Butler told him Aryan Nations had been compromised, but that he had a newly devised security council that was taking care of the situation.

"Reverend Butler said the boys had done some good things with the money and that their intentions were good, but we had to disassociate ourselves from them entirely."

—Kelly Carner

"Reverend Butler said the boys had done some good things with the money and that their intentions were good, but we had to disassociate ourselves from them entirely," Carner said.

Carner said members of The Order were "ideologically different than we were."

"They were using his (Butler's) place, but they were doing different things on their own," he said. "I felt like we could have some problems caused by the things they were doing."

Carner mentioned he was afraid police could trace the counterfeit money to the press owned by Aryan Nations.

William Solderquist, 24, of Salinas, Calif., a former member of The Order, testified Wednesday he helped guard a printing press that was used for counterfeiting at a home near Newport, Wash.

The prosecution called four other witnesses, including two store clerks who told of having received counterfeit $50 bills from Bruce C. Pierce, 33, one of the 10 charged with seditious conspiracy.

Five other witnesses, including bank tellers and an FBI agent, testified about robberies in Seattle and Spokane in December 1983 and January 1984, which the prosecution contends were carried out by members of The Order.

Senate limits employer use of lie detectors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved legislation Thursday to prohibit most private employers from using lie detectors to screen job applicants and impose an outright ban on random polygraph testing. Senators voted 69-27 to approve the bill, which also would bar employers from disciplining employees based solely on refusal to take a test or failure to pass one. The bill, sponsored by the political odd couple of Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, would allow employers to use polygraphs to investigate specific incidents of employee theft or workplace injuries. However, employers would have to present evidence, in the form of an insurance claim, police report or written statement, substantiating reasonable suspicion before they could ask an employee to submit to a polygraph. Opponents succeeded in amending the legislation to exempt nuclear plants, security firms and armored car companies from the ban on pre-hiring testing. The issue now goes to a House-Senate conference committee.

House panel approves legislation to raise employee minimum wage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House panel approved legislation Thursday to raise the minimum wage from the current $3.35 an hour to $3.85 an hour next year. $4.25 an hour in 1990 and $4.65 an hour in 1991.

However, the House Labor Standards subcommittee rejected a proposal for automatic annual increases after 1991, meaning any further increases to keep up with inflation would require additional congressional action.

If enacted into law, the bill would mark the first time in more than seven years that the minimum wage had been raised — the longest time without an increase since it was created in 1938.

Supporters of the bill said during that time inflation has eaten up 79 cents of the $3.35 an hour wage, meaning a person at that wage level is making just $2.56 an hour when calculated in 1981 dollars. "We have more than 15 million American wage earners who are below the level of decency, and I think that is criminal," said Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., the chairman of the full Education and Labor Committee, which will consider the bill March 10.

Hawkins, who sponsored the legislation, pointed out that Congress increased its own salary by 47 percent since 1981.

Opponents of the measure argued an increase in the minimum wage will cost hundreds of thousands of jobs as employers lay off people, especially young, inexperienced workers, rather than pay them more.

An increase also could spur higher inflation as employers pass along additional labor costs to consumers, they said.

"There are better ways of accomplishing the goal of assuring a decent wage for American workers," said Rep. Steve Bartlett, R-Tex., who tried unsuccessfully to get the committee to include a lower "training wage" for employees in their first six months on the job.

The subcommittee voted down a Republican alternative that would have raised the hourly minimum wage to $3.60 in 1989, $3.80 in 1990 and $4.00 in 1991 and allowed employers to include fringe benefits in calculating what they pay workers.

Although approving the overall bill by a 6-3 vote, the subcommittee voted to delete a controversial indexing proposal that would have automatically raised the minimum wage each year starting in 1991.

Supporters said the index was necessary to keep those making the minimum wage from falling victim to inflation.

PRSSA wins award

The University chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America was named Outstanding Chapter of the Midwest district at a conference in Madison, Wis.

The Midwest district is the largest in the country, containing 20 chapters with more than 800 members.

In order to compete for the award, PRSSA submitted a 20-page analysis of the organizational structure. In addition, 80 pages of last semester's accomplishments were included with the chapter's application.

"They always say it's quality, not quantity but this chapter proved that quantity is just as important," Sean Essex, district director, said.

Entries were judged on chapter structure, organization and development, service to members, community service and professional contact.

'Jimmy Reardon' a one night stand

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

"A Night in the Life of Jimmy Reardon" is just another action-thrill movie.

The action is any breathing female, and the thrill is a quick and easy brief relief for shouting hormones. In fulfilling his desires, Jimmy (River Phoenix) jumps from car seats to the beds of both younger and older women.

One encounter has him impersonating "Jack the Ripper" while his unenthused partner sighs over Erroll Flynn in a movie she is watching on TV. In this scene Jimmy realizes he is not the only person being used for personal satisfaction.

If Jimmy is not stripped down to his boxer shorts, the plot either has him or the rest of the cast talking about sex. During the movie, Jimmy blames his overactive sex life on his father, whom he calls an "extra-marital joy boy."

His father also is a source of conflict. He and Jimmy argue about where Jimmy is going to college. His father wants him to attend the business college he attended. Jimmy would rather go to another school and become a writer. Only when Jimmy wrecks his father's car and discovers that his father is seeing one of his girlfriends do the two get their father-son

Film Review

The movie, an adaptation of the novel "Aren't You Going to Kiss Me Goodnight" by William Richert, uses that title in dialogue between the protagonist and his girlfriend. It takes a lighthearted approach to sex and is not serious enough to support that line.

relationship in order.

The movie is an adaptation of the novel "Aren't You Gonna Kiss Me Goodnight?" by William Richert, who also wrote and directed the movie.

Richert unsuccessfully keeps the novel's title in the movie as dialogue. Jimmy quotes the book's title after his girlfriend leaves a dance with another date. The movie takes a light-hearted approach to sex and is not serious enough to support that line of dialogue.

Missouri Valley passes out honors

Hersey Hawkins of Bradley was unanimously named the Player of the Year in the Missouri Valley Conference for the second year in a row in separate balloting by the league's coaches and news media.

Hawkins, the leading scorer in the nation with a 36-point average, was a unanimous first-team selection on teams named by the coaches and media.

SIU-C's Steve Middleton, the second-leading scorer in the Valley with a 25.6 average, also was a unanimous selection on both teams. It was the second straight year the Saluki guard received all-conference honors.

Guards Rod Mason of Creighton and Tracy Moore of Tulsa were first-team selections on both teams. Mason is fourth in the league with a 20.3 average and Moore is third with a 20.8 average.

The coaches named forward-center Sasha Radunovich of Wichita State, who had a 14.0 scoring and a 7.4 rebounding average, to the first team while the media chose Drake forward Sam Roark, who led the conference in rebounding with a 9.1 average and had a 14.0 scoring average.

SIU-C guard Kai Nurnberger, the fifth leading scorer in the conference with a 17.8 average, was a second-team selection by the media and an honorable pick by the coaches. SIU-C forward Randy House, with a 13.8 scoring average, was an honorable mention selection by the media.

Indiana State freshman forward Eddie Bird, who led all freshmen in the Valley in scoring with a 15.1 average, was chosen Newcomer of the Year and received the Outstanding Freshman award.

Joining Bird on the all-newcomer team were junior college transfer Eric Berger of Drake and three Creighton players, junior college transfer James Farr, and freshmen Chad Gallagher and Bob Harstad, who finished second behind Roark in rebounding with an 8.1 mark.

Other competitors:

Here is a capsule preview of the other six teams in the Missouri Valley tournament.

Bradley (23-4) — The importance of 6-foot-3 senior guard Hersey Hawkins, who is shooting for nationwide Player of the Year honors, can't be understated. But Hawkins is far from being the only gun on the top-seeded team. Coach Stan Albeck has Luke Jackson, Anthony Manuel and Donald Powell running an NBA-style attack to near-perfection.

Drake (14-13) — As long as senior point guard Glenn Martin can get his hands on the ball, the Bulldogs have a chance. Coach Gary Garner is counting on Martin's passing to lead his team.

Illinois State (16-11) — The last time Coach Bob Donewald's Redbirds played at Carver Arena they gave No. 1 Bradley one of its two conference losses of the season. Jeff Harris is shooting well of late. Matt Taphorn is deadly from three-point range.

Indiana State (7-20) — Veteran Coach Ron Greene has tried to regroup the Sycamores following the death of player Tim Alakija. Newcomer of the Year, 6-foot-6 freshman guard Eddie Bird is a top-notch threat to score from outside.

Tulsa (8-19) — Forget this year's win-loss record. Coach J.D. Barnett had the Golden Hurricane playing together by the end of the season. Tracy Moore, a 6-foot-4 senior guard, can be nearly unstopperable at times.

Wichita State (19-8) — If Coach Eddie Fogler thought it was tough beating Tulsa 79-74 in overtime last year to win the tournament title, it could be tougher as the No. 2 seeded team. The Shockers move the ball up court well. Sasha Radunovich plays well underneath.

Salukis' MVC game on TV

The Salukis' first-round MVC tournament game against Creighton will be televised on a tape-delayed basis by WISL-TV, Channel 3, in Harrisburg at 10:35 p.m. Saturday.

If the Salukis win, their game against the Bradley-Indiana State winner will be televised live by WISL-TV at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

The championship game will be shown live by ESPN at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

ESPN is also televising the Bradley-Indiana State game at 6 p.m. Saturday.

TOURNEY, from Page 28

was in foul trouble much of the game and scored 10 points in 24 minutes.

In the first meeting, Jan. 11, the Salukis beat Creighton 102-98 in Omaha, Neb.

Saturday's game could be decided on the boards. In the Salukis win, they had a 45-34 rebound edge. In their loss, the Salukis were outrebounded 38-31.

Creighton's leading rebounder, forward Bob Harstad (8.3 ppg, 8.1 rpg), had had considerable success in the two games against the Salukis. He has totalled 22 points and 25 rebounds.

"We can't allow that to happen," Herrin said. "We can't let him beat us to death on the boards."

Other starters for Creighton include guard James Farr (12.8 ppg, 2.8 rpg) and center Chad Gallagher (11.4 ppg, 5.1 rpg).

As the other forward, Creighton coach Tony Barone has started Matt Rogenburg (7.0 ppg, 2.6 rpg), Mike Johnson (4.2 ppg, 3.0 rpg), Chris Rodgers (3.6 ppg, 1.9 rpg). Lately, Porter Mosey (1.6 ppg, 0.6 rpg) has received the nod.

If the Salukis win, a probable rematch with Bradley looms on the horizon.

"For us to beat Bradley, we'd probably have to catch Bradley on a down note and we'd have to play very good because they're so talented," Herrin said. "We're capable of playing with them. We proved that when we played them both times. We just haven't gotten over the hump."

"The advantage we have on Bradley is maybe they'll take us lightly. We could do the job before they realize it," he said. "They're still the team to beat in their own backyard no matter who they play."

Scott: I'm angry, but I can't blame the players

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

After spending a week mulling over the pluses and minuses of the 1987-88 women's basketball season, Coach Cindy Scott said the Salukis should have done much better.

The team finished fifth in the Gateway Conference and closed out with a 16-11 record.

"I'm angry, I'm sick," Scott said. "We thought all along this season it would be OK, but it wasn't OK. It's not OK we're not in the conference tournament. We let our conference down."

The Salukis, conference champs in 1986 and 1987, didn't qualify for the tourney for the first time.

But Scott doesn't blame her players for being the first team since 1981-82 to not win 20 games. "I can't find fault with the effort the kids gave us. I know they tried," she said.

"I think you have to evaluate a season's success on the team's potential. To have a winning record is insignificant, because we games. I think we all learned a lesson. None of us realized that once you get to the top you have to fight harder," Scott said.

The Salukis were 3-6 in games decided by a margin of five points or less.

Four seniors completed their careers with the 79-67 loss to Northern Illinois last Saturday. They are Bridgett Bonds, Mary Berghuis, Anne Thouvenin and Regina Banks.

Bonds was No. 6 on both the career-scoring and rebounding lists with 1,227 points and 717 rebounds. Berghuis was No. 7 in scoring with 1,218 points and No. 4 in rebounds at 778.

"Bridgett and Mary had outstanding careers," Scott said. "They are a big part of what we have accomplished. I'm really proud of them."

Thouvenin ended her four years with 226 points, and Banks, who was a transfer from John A. Logan College, had 101 points in two seasons.

"Anne didn't get to play a lot this season, but she was always supportive and handled the situation well," Scott said. "Regina was a great competitor. When we needed a defensive stopper she was there."

Scott said the leadership for next season must come from the incoming class of seniors, especially center Cathy Kampwerth and guards Dana Fitzpatrick and Deanna Sanders.

Other notes:
—Some have speculated that moving the team from Davies Gymnasium to the Arena might have caused problems. "I refuse to use the Arena as an excuse," Scott said.

The Salukis were 11-9 the two previous seasons at Davies and were 10-3 in the Arena this season. The home losses came to Indiana, Illinois State and Eastern Illinois.

—Berghuis led the team in scoring and rebounding with 11.7 points per game and 7.1 rebounds. Her 26 points against Illinois State on Feb. 20 was a career-high.

Kampwerth's 22 points against Western Kentucky was a career mark, as were Sanders' 13 against Southwest Missouri, Tonda Seals' 27 against Southwest Missouri, Banks' 11 against Purdue, Deanna Kibelkis' 17 against Southwest Missouri and Amy Rakors' 13 against Western Illinois.

—Scott captured her 200th career victory in a midseason victory over Bradley. Her win-loss mark stands at 211-104.

Shortstop makes comeback, 'can't wait' for Austin Peay

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

It's been almost a year since an Austin Peay baserunner plowed into shortstop Theresa Smugala.

She hasn't played an inning since. It's taken that long for Smugala to rehabilitate her knee from the injury it suffered in that collision.

When she takes the field for the women's softball team at 2 p.m. Saturday in Clarksville, Tenn., against that same Austin Peay club, it will culminate a long comeback for the 5-foot-1 senior from St. Louis.

"I can't wait to get back out there," Smugala said. "I don't know if I remember what it's like."

Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said Smugala's injury was so severe there was doubt she might even be able to play again.

"But she's been spending a lot of time in therapy," Brechtelsbauer said. "She lived in the training room. She was very determined."

Frustrating was how Smugala described her first practices after coming off the injury. "I couldn't do the little things like I used to. But I told myself that I was going to be back playing," she said.

Brechtelsbauer is counting on Smugala to produce at the plate just as she did in junior college and in the two games she played for the Salukis last year.

Smugala lettered .446 in her sophomore season at Forest Park Community College, and was considered by some scouts to be one of the top 15 players to come out of St. Louis in 15 years.

Smugala passed up scholarship offers from California, New Mexico and even 1985 NCAA runnerup Nebraska to attend SIU-C.

In her only appearance in the Saluki uniform, Smugala rallied the offense to a victory over the Governors. In just five at bats she slugged two triples, batted in two runs and scored three runs.

Brechtelsbauer said Smugala has earned the respect of her teammates in her comeback effort. "She's a quiet leader, not a rah-rah type," Brechtelsbauer said. "She's a true leader by her actions. The other players respect that."

Other notes:

—Brechtelsbauer said the Austin Peay Governors have improved since the Salukis swept them 9-2 and 7-3 last year.

"Just because we defeated them twice last year doesn't mean that we can look past them," Brechtelsbauer said. "In the second game last year we had to come from behind to win. We'll have to work to get two games from them."

—Although Brechtelsbauer hasn't decided fully on her starters, she did provide a probable lineup.

Michele Davidovich and Kim Hulsey are the catchers.

The infielders are Angie LeMonnier at first base, Shelly Gibbs at second, Mary Jo Firnbach at third and Smugala at shortstop.

Jan Agnich, Shannon Taylor and Kayla Boston are the reserve outfielders. Stacy Coan is the pinch runner.

Volleyball team to play in Normal

The women's volleyball team continues spring exhibition play Saturday in a tournament in Normal, Illinois State is the host school.

The Salukis are led by redshirt senior Sue Sinclair, who did not play during the regular season because of a knee injury.

Sinclair and junior Dawn Thompson are the setters. Juniors Teri Noble and Beth Winsett and freshmen Lori Simpson and Amy Johnson are the outside hitters. Sophomore Nina Brackins and freshman Margaret Cooney are the middle blockers.

The Salukis are 4-1 after winning a friendship tournament last weekend in St. Louis.

Following this weekend's matches, three dates remain on the schedule. The Salukis are at Illinois on March 12 and at Indiana on April 9. They will hold a tournament April 16 at Davies Gymnasium.

Fashion foregoes traditional, moves toward personal look

By Kimberly Clarke
Student Writer
and DE Staff Writers

While the traditional look of "trilly" femininity and "tailored" masculinity is making its mark on spring fashion, new options also are on the upswing along with changing roles for men and women.

The warm-weather look for the late '80s combines a touch of familiar tradition with a dose of spunk and a refreshing breath of individualism.

"Working women are finding it easier to dress," Donna Chapman, manager of Ruthie's, said. "Bright colors and the professional look are definitely evident this year."

Nedean Sparks, owner of Libra II, which specializes in clothing for professional women, said that the tailored look is popular. "The jackets have a little more structure. They have a closer fit to the body, not the oversized look."

Clothes for women are dominated less by the lace and frills that once ruled, while pastels are being slowly excluded. Tighter, brighter and shorter seems to be the theme, paired with color schemes of black and white, navy and lots of neutral tan.

Fashion trends include the popular shorter skirts. "Everything seems to be a lot tighter," Lisa Greenwood, department manager for the Young Circles department at Meis, said.

Women are being encouraged to show off their bodies with the tight, sporty look. Hemlines are rising not only in skirts, but also in sweaters, shirts and jackets in the new cropped look and dresses in body-hugging knit.

Flowery and geometric prints are the rage in designer fashion, a trend that will hit college campuses this spring in the new fashions put out by designers Liz Claiborne, Esprit, Guess, Chaus and Union Bay.

For men, the rough, rugged look of the proto-typical masculine man is back, complete with "adventure" clothes, safari outfits and exaggerated padded shoulders. But, as Meis sales associate Monique Stadler says, men have their pick of the fashion trends.

Designer labels run the gamut of styles. There is Tommy Hilfinger and Rivertrader, which carry oversized cotton shirts and basic, baggy pants.

On a more dressy but tastefully casual note, there is Claiborne For Men. Stylish cotton sweaters in pinks, tans and other neutral pastels are paired with stone-washed or tan pleated pants for a quietly sophisticated look.

Stone-washed jeans are still making their mark on spring fashion. However, pants are leaning toward a more dressy note. Still baggies, pants are coming out in khaki and army green, along with added pockets and worn with rolled-up straight legs.

Oversized shirts also are a big item in men's fashion, and plain T-shirts seem to be a thing of the past.

For the first time, men are dressing to show their own personal style, whether that means wearing faded Levi's and a big cotton shirt or pleated baggies and a pastel sweater. The trends, while they include both the modern "ultra-masculine" and mainstream "ultra-traditional" look, are moving toward a more individualistic style.

The individualism of the era is definitely making its mark on the fashion world, for both men and women. The '80s is seeing a surge of people who want to dress in their own personal style, perhaps traditional and perhaps not.

Why we all want style

By Mary Caudle
Staff Writer

Style. What we're all after when we open the closet door.

Style is the quality that makes an outfit look effortlessly fashionable (or unfashionable in the right way). It's the ability to understand the added oomph of a great pair of earrings, the charm of a pair of well loved jeans-ripped in all the right places.

Style comes to some people naturally. But for most of us it's elusive.

We excuse ourselves by saying we're broke college students — we'll have style (we hope) once we graduate and have money. But how will we even know style when we see it?

And why, exactly, do we care so much about it? Why are we obsessed? We wouldn't be caught dead wearing the bell bottoms of the 1970s (God forbid — fashion suicide) and many of us wouldn't be seen even in last year's styles.

Clothes make the man (and the woman). In our image-conscious society the saying takes on new importance each year. Even among the deliberately anti-fashionable, there are general dress codes.

There are the naturally stylish, the unnaturally stylish, the wannabees, and, of course, those who say they never pay attention to style. Don't try to pretend you don't notice yourself. How many people have you met whose sense of style didn't give you an immediate first impression?

First impressions are not all we have at stake these days. Many of us subscribe to the belief that if we can't actually play the part we can at least look it: Maybe we're not rich, don't travel to exotic places and don't have exciting jobs, but we can at least dress like we do. We dress to show not just our personalities, but to project an image.

This especially is evident in college, when student still are experimenting with how they want to be seen.

Call our society vain, call it yuppie attitudes filtering down onto the mainstream culture, call it what you like. But any way you go about it we are close to neurotic by the time we open our closet doors each morning. Why shouldn't we be: We have a lot at stake! And not a thing to wear.

'Stiff' has seen its last days in spring business fashion

The new look combines comfort with polish

By Andrea M. McBride
Student Writer

Students who anxiously await job interviews can safely dispel the myth that "stiff" is in.

A more casual attitude can be seen in professional wear this spring, as men don comfortable suits and oversized shirts and women dare to be bold with shorter hemlines.

Not too long ago, men in the corporate world wearing three-piece,

The key to a functional business wardrobe is to buy basics you can do a lot with.

double-breasted suits were the norm. But the days of the three-piece suit are over, men's clothing store representatives say.

A typical spring outfit for a young professional man today might be "a two-piece navy or gray suit with a white shirt, solid color tie, one-inch-thick black belt and black shoes," says Steve Martin, a sales associate for men's clothing at Meis.

The key to a functional business wardrobe is "to buy basics you can do a lot with," says Bill McPhail, manager of Sohn's. Many men's retail stores are promoting oversized shirts and looser-fitting designs, replacing the perfectly pressed, solid business shirt, as an economical way to bring a business wardrobe up to date.

The big news in women's professional fashion is the short skirt. Although there has been controversy over whether this is appropriate for the rise slightly above the knee.

"Women are getting far in their careers — they are realizing that they can be bold," Rae Stiff, manager of Susie's Casuals, said.

The shape of the woman's business suit is moving from stiff and boxy to a more relaxed and figure-conscious look. Instead of the standard blue suits and long skirts of the early '80s, women are wearing dresses with longer jackets and blouses with fuller-cut skirts in colors that range from creamy neutrals to brights.

Scarves in a variety of rich fabrics and prints are worn with suits to add a splash of color to the polished professional look — and can be worn in almost as many different ways as there are scarves. Floral patterns and geometric designs are some of the more popular prints.

Men don comfortable suits and oversized shirts and women dare to be bold with shorter hemlines.

Wide belts in blacks, taupes and creams with gold buckles are the accessories of choice, replacing the narrow, bright-colored metallic belts. The pump is still popular, but is mid-heel and in an open-toe design.

"The tailored look will always be essential to women's professional attire," says Rila Bentivoglio, manager of Hecht's. This can be emphasized with accessories by wearing classic pearls and discreet earrings.

Fashion accessories get smarter

Colorful clips, pins and scarves brighten up wardrobes for spring

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

The newest fashion accessories for spring range from dainty silk flowers, scarves and shoe clips to bright and bold jewelry.

"For the past two years, accessories have been a main concern," Rita Nation, buyer and manager of Hechts, said.

Scarves range in size from as small as a tie to 58 square inches. Floral patterns, tropicals and some geometricals are the most popular prints.

"Shoe clips are the newest item," Nation said. Shoe clips, which are clipped over the toe of shoes, run from casual nautical symbols to dressy bows with rhinestones.

For spring, silk flowers are a new item to pin on dresses or suits. Ruthie Altekruze, owner of Ruthie's, said. They are also being used for hairpieces and earrings.

Another item, which has been around for a while but is still popular, is the scarf. "For the last two years they have been extremely hot because of what you can do with them," Nation said.

Nation said that light rayon, cotton and silk are the three primary fabrics for spring scarves. "The fabric would depend on what you want to put it with and your budget," she said.

Scarves range in size from as small as a tie to 58 square inches. Floral patterns, tropicals and some geometricals are the most popular prints. "You don't see a lot of solids, most have a pattern," Nation said.

Pins and brooches are used with the scarves, along with scarf rings, which are back in fashion.

Scarves are versatile and can be worn many ways. "You can use a scarf inside of a suit instead of a blouse, it takes the place of it," Nation said. "Scarves can be used for anything, depending on the size of the scarf and your creativity."

Other popular accessories include shells and semi-precious stones.

"Shells have been popular for the past two years," said Nation. They are used for necklaces, earrings and scarf clips. Shell colors range from neutrals to all types of dyed pastels.

Semi-precious stones, such as amethyst, black onyx and quartz are being used in earrings and belts, Nedean Sparks, owner of Libra II, said.

The trend for earrings and necklaces is "bolder," Hilda Jenkins, manager of Casual Corner, said.

Nation agreed, adding that "some jewelry are just pieces of art."

"You are seeing more and more silver," Sparks said. "It's getting stronger. The little gold chain is definitely out."

Briefcases vamp their fashion IQs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Career women make an effort each day to make sure their hems are straight, there are no missing buttons on blouse or jacket, no runs in their stockings and both shoes match. Why then, do they walk out of the house carrying a clunky briefcase?

"Women have no choice," said accessory designer Mary Ann Rosenfeld. "Very few handbag designers manufacture matching briefcases and handbags. Most that do design briefcases create something totally unrelated to their handbags ... or fabricate fashionable stylish cases that are functionally useless."

This season, Rosenberg fills that gap with two new collections coordinating briefcases, handbags and portfolios.

The Criss-Cross style is made of soft leather and comes in a variety of colors. The briefcase can be carried in hand, or converted to a shoulder bag.

The MAR signature briefcase is styled like a traditional schoolbag, made of textured fabric with leather trim. The portfolio is extremely light and resembles an oversize clutch. It is available in a variety of colors that coordinate well with this season's fashion fabric — denim.

Rosenfeld's designs are available at major department stores, including Lord & Taylor, Marshall Fields, Nordstrom's and Robinson's. Prices range from $50 to $175.

Shorts replace skirts for casual and formal wear

(UPI) — Short skirts are yesterday's fashion flash. Designers are racing ahead with another option in this Year Of The Leg — shorts in all shapes, from the baggy ones you packed as a kid for summer camp to the style Betty Grable shimmied into as a round-bottomed pin-up girl.

Chanel's sassy thigh-grazers in stripes are like the hot pants that sizzled on gams of the '70s. Others are long, sexy and skinny — such as Yves Saint Laurent's — and shown with bustiers, not very wearable unless you're living on Yoplaiz.

Center stage in the evening shorts brigade is Carolina Herrera, who cuts hers in white satin and pairs them with cropped tuxedo jackets. "And always with high heels and opaques for a finished look," says Herrera. "I think they're very flattering, and it's a modern way of dressing for the evening. I have been wearing them since last summer."

Other Herrera crowd-pleasers are black and spangled with paillettes, worn with matching camisoles and beneath organza overskirts. That's the night stuff. By day, Seventh Avenue is having a virtual picnic with shorts in crisp, natural fibers done up with comfort as top priority.

Giorgio Armani, the kingpin of class, puts women at ease in bermudas of silk crepe de chine and double-breasted blazers. Calvin Klein also ushers crepe de chine into daywear with full and long pleat-front shorts patterned with iris, white rose, and red rose florals.

Another Klein short cut comes in handkerchief linen colored in solid neutrals. He shows them with cropped cardigans, boat necks, or T-shirt style sweaters.

Eleanor Brenner's lighthearted weekend collection, EPB Easy, includes hiking shorts and brief tap pants in hot-hued washable silks. Her idea of cool shorts' toppers are fly-away blouses or triple-pocket work shirts.

Artist creates unique jewelry designs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ana Roland didn't get too upset when a woman stopped her in the supermarket checkout line and asked her where she bought her necklace. She's met some of her best customers that way.

"I was standing in line and this woman turned around and said, 'Oh my, what a beautiful necklace,'" Roland said.

"I said thank you and told her I made it, and she went absolutely berserk. She asked if she could try it on and then started walking around, asking people for a mirror.

"Then she said, 'Do you have anymore? I have to come home with you, I have to buy something else,' while the whole time her ice cream is melting. She did come home with me and bought a few more pieces."

Today, Roland is probably Washington's best-kept secret, but if her unique, affordable necklaces, bracelets and earrings kept getting that kind of attention, that may not be the case. At least that's what she's working for.

Her striking designs are based on combining materials — semi-precious stones, beads, charms — in a unique juxtaposition of color, size and shape.

"I put things together where people say, 'I would never have thought of doing that,'" she said, pointing to her necklace, a combination of heavy pipestone beads and delicate shell charms. "They are a statement in themselves, but the wearer isn't overwhelmed by it."

Comfort the main focus in men's casual fashions

By Edward Rahe
Staff Writer

Loose, light and bright are what's in for men's active wear this spring.

"Everything seems to be really comfortable," says Terry Jones, salesman at Caru's.

Denim is still here in full force. Loose and comfortable is the rule for guys' denim pants this spring.

Oversized 100-percent cotton tees by Ocean Pacific in a variety of bright pastels accent cotton twill walking shorts in an array of pastels and patterns, which range from combinations of solid yellows, reds, greens and blues to pastel stripes on solids or white.

Still popular footgear this season is the loosely worn hightop tennis shoe in a wide selection of colors to top off the loose look.

Topsider boat shoes still rule the waves this spring in a variety of colors and styles, from the traditional brown smooth leather model to suede leather in black, white and several colors in between.

Button-down shirts by St. John's Bay will be dressed up with pastel stripes making tracks horizontally, vertically, or both in shades of red, green, blue, yellow, orange and lavender on cotton pastel or white fabrics.

A striped pastel shirt worn with whitewashed denim makes a stylish combination, says Billi Gladwell, a salesperson at Union Jack in the University Mall.

Denim is still here in full force. Loose and comfortable is the rule for guys' denim pants this spring. Denim slacks are wider in the thigh for more comfort and tapered in the ankle.

"Denim is turning darker," says Michelle Scott, manager of Glicks for Guys and Gals. Black whitewashed, stonewashed, and acid-washed denim will all be in big demand.

Bright colors return to menswear

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men's fashions for spring and summer herald a return to the brilliant colors and bold individuality missing from male attire since the French Revolution of 1789.

On the eve of that revolution's 200th anniversary, sartorial history has come full circle to its peacock prime of Louis XVI's reign. Unless he spends his working days in offices of starchily proper business concerns, the smartly dressed 1988 man will be wearing brighter, easier fitting clothes for all occasions in the months to come.

"Tailored clothes are loosening up and sport wear is dressing up," said Chip Tolbert, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association of America, a trade organization.

The looser look pioneered by the late Perry Ellis showed up in almost every spring-summer collection shown by buyers in Chicago in early February by the menswear establishment.

Loose but sane, a far cry from some of the avant-garde fashion eccentricities that crept into menswear in recent years, is the fashion message of the day.

Women's active wear gets a sporty attitude

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

Bicycle and nautical-inspired fashions and the latest material — lycra, will be the rage in women's active wear this spring.

"The cycle look is going to be really big," Susan Barrick, manager of Worth's at the University Mall, said. She said that active wear this season will be dominated by coordinated, layered pieces and leggings made of lycra.

Lycra is the shimmery, silky material swimsuits have been made of in the past.

Michelle Scott, manager of Glik's for Guys and Gals, said stretch-to-fit lycra tanktops also will be popular.

Stretch fabrics and knits are popular items this spring because they're comfortable, Ruthie Altekruise, owner of Ruthie's, said. "We'll see a lot of cotton or polycotton," she added.

Nautical colors will brighten the new spring look with pastels and brights remaining favorites. Combinations of both black and white, and gold and silver, also will be in demand.

Shorts and shirts will be in bright colors such as orange, yellow and blue, Scott said, to emphasize tanned skin. Summery sweaters in a range of pastels also will make their mark.

Frosted jeans will remain the favorite over stone washed, Scott said, while padded shoulders and mini-skirts are still popular on the fashion scene.

While the tight, bike cycle look will be popular, many skirts and pants will feature a fuller cut. "Skirts will feature a cavaerri waistband (with gathered material above the belt) and pants will be fuller with high, pleated waistbands," Scott said.

Altekruise said once again there will be controversy concerning what length skirts and dresses should be, with hemlines for spring running either on the extra-short or extra-long side.

"Everyone is concerned about what length the dresses are going to be — real long or real short," Altekruise said.

Skirts will be worn above the knee for the young and below the knee for adults, she said.

Fashion is taking a romantic turn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Taking its direction from the European couture collections, spring clothes are increasingly feminine and romantic with emphasis on short lengths, rounded skirts, fitted suits, pants and lots of floral prints.

"Basically the couture has reinforced and summarized a lot of trends we already believe in for spring and summer," said Kal Rutenstein, Bionningdale's senior vice-president for fashion direction. "There was no big revolution there, just a confirmation of things that are happening."

In keeping with the 1950s influence, there will be more bareness than in recent memory. For weekends, stores are stocking midriff tops and short skirts or Bermuda shorts, and for balmy evenings, both long and short strapless dresses, with or without puffs, which are now giving away to full skirts.

After a period when designers went overboard on thigh-high hemlines and skin-tight clothes, things are easing up. The very straight pencil skirt is giving way to a belled or gathered skirt which is more romantic, versatile and wearable.

International clothing buyers seek loose-fitting alternative

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Ethnic clothing brings a "conservative international flair" to Southern Illinois, an import clothing store manager says.

Beth Cox of Pier I Imports said people often buy international fashions because they are looking for a loose-fitting change from American fashions, which are often form-fitting. Pier I features fashions from Greece and India.

Cotton pastels are the most popular fabrics for spring and summer fashions, while heavier, darker wools are popular in the cold-weather months.

College students like their clothes to be different, Cox said, adding that the fabrics are what catch the attention of many buyers.

"People like the 100 percent natural fibers," Cox said. She added that cotton pastels are the most popular fabrics for spring and summer fashions, while heavier, darker wools are popular in the cold-weather months.

This spring Pier I predicts jersey-knit cotton jump suits from Greece will be a popular buy, as well as mini skirts and crop tops in nautical colors.

Bastir Mughal, manager of International Fashions, said most of his customers are SIUC University students looking for unique, hard-to-find clothing. Clothing from many different countries are featured at International Fashions, including clothes from India and Pakistan.

While the majority of Pier I's customers are younger, Cox said she thinks more people are becoming aware of their international fashions. "Older people come into the store and realize that all of our loose-fitting clothes are not harem pants," she said.

"The clothing section is 25 percent of our business right now," Cox said. "I think we are able to sell more international clothes than other stores because of the price."

Because of mass merchandising the store is able to sell most of its clothing in the $11 to $29 range, she said.

Surfing sets new beachwear trends

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Remember when California beachwear meant a flowered bathing suit under a pastel Terry-cloth coverup?

This summer, kids will ride the waves on customized surfboards and The Look on the beach will be spandex-tight, neon-colored corset swimwear. Hard bodies will sport hard black bikinis with zippers and lizard-black pants.

Remember jogging shorts, tennis rags and aerobic leotards? They're history. The two sports that now dictate outdoor fashions along the Pacific are surfing and skateboarding.

And where Southern California

beachwear goes, so goes the nation.

Dave and Sharon Nash are veterans of the activewear industry. For 13 years, Dave was the CEO of Snowden-Mize, a sportswear giant that sold everything from nylon singlets to velour sweatsuits.

Then Sharon got the idea to specialize in what she saw as the budding trends: surfwear for beachcombers and skateboard wear for streetcombers.

The result was Sun Diego, a two-store sportswear chain in San Diego County that was recently named one of eight hot new area businesses by a local television station.

Tie-dye fashions come back from '60s with new message

By Adam Broad
Staff Writer

Spring is settling upon us and dedicated followers of fashion may see the narcissistic anxiety of deciding which old fashion can be drafted to serve as new.

Accordingly, a desire to impress others and seem "cool" led to an investigation of the alleged resurgence of styles from the late 1960s.

Data from a pseudo-sociological study done at Huck's indicated there is an ongoing tie-dye T-shirt fad.

The tie-dye fad actually originated in the early '70s, but it's the nearest indication of a return to late 1960's style, aside from Reagan's policy towards Central America, so a study of it will have to suffice.

One woman, a sophomore living in the dorms, said that tie-dye shirts look comfortable. "She said she could tell the shirts were becoming popular again, 'just by looking on campus.'"

Of course, if you can tell what is popular, or is becoming popular "just by looking on campus," then why are you reading the fashion guide?

Another woman, a senior living off-campus, said the shirts symbolize love, free sex, grooviness, freedom rock — the whole generation groovy.

"I feel like a real hippie," she said, "the goddess of hippies."

Self-satisfaction. Happiness. If our shirts are providing us with these things, they're doing their job. We should hope they stay in style.

Tie-dye is increasingly hip

Monokini: The hot new style

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

Headed for the beach during Spring Break or the summer? This year's swimsuits for women and men are bright and colorful and made of fast-drying material.

"Everyone wants something fast drying," Ruthie Altekruise, owner of Ruthie's, said. The swimsuits are made of lycra, which stretches and fits well to the body, she added.

Two popular ladies' suits are the monokini and the "wet suit," which is modeled after the suit that scuba divers wear.

The monokini is one of the hottest swimsuits this year. "It's the most popular," Tammy Veach, Junior Swimsuit buyer for Meis, said.

"The monokini is a one-piece suit that looks like a two-piece," Tina

A monokini looks like a bikini from the front, but the top and the bottom are attached at the sides.

Demack, Meis department manager for Womens World Activewear, said. A monokini looks like a bikini from the front, but the top and bottom are attached at the sides. Both Ocean Pacific and Jantzen Labels carry monokinis.

The "wet suit" is the biggest and newest suit this year, Veach said. Sassafras is one label that carries the "wet suit" this season. It is a neon yellow and black two-piece suit, with a top that zips up the front and bikini bottoms with a french cut. Demack said. The suit is made of rubbery materials.

The hottest line of men's swimwear this year is 'Catch It.'

As for colors, the new swimsuits range from pastels to neons. "A lot of suits have black as just a trim," Demack said.

Metallic suits in aqua, pink and gold are another hot item. Abstract prints, including animal prints, are also selling, Altekruise said.

The hottest line of men's swimwear this year is "Catch It," Susan Haake, owner-manager of Caru's, said. The swim trunks in this line, which can also be worn as shorts, are made of 100-percent nylon, which is a fast-drying fabric.

The trunks are available in all colors, from brights to subdued pastels overdyed in charcoal, green and blue. Oversized cotton tank tops also will be making tracks on the beach this spring. "The bigger the better, really," Haake said.

Haake said this year's trunks will be shorter and boxier. "They are more the surf type," she said. "Surf wear is a carryover from the West Coast. The swimming line and trunks go with that idea."

Gymnasts to take on Nebraska

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The men's gymnastics team faces Nebraska, the highest scoring team in the country, at 7:30 tonight at the Arena in the Salukis' last home appearance this season.

"They are probably the best gymnastics team in the United States at this moment," SIU-C coach Bill Meade said. "I saw them and they were pretty awesome. I was impressed with their performance."

Nebraska's highest team score is 286.35. SIU-C made its highest team score, 271.40, in a loss to Northern Illinois.

The Cornhuskers are 6-1 in dual competition, the Salukis are 3-5.

"Anytime you compete against a better opponent and you're a strong, dedicated competitor, you'll improve and learn," Meade said.

Nebraska is led by 1987 NCAA all-around champion Tom Schlesinger.

Schlesinger and teammate Kevin Davis are hopefuls for the 1988 Olympics in Seoul. Schlesinger and Davis tied for the individual championship on the parallel bars at the NCAAs.

Meade said the Salukis will be competitive in the floor exercise, vault and high bar. In the other events, pommel horse, still rings and parallel bars, the Salukis are not even in the same class as the Cornhuskers, he said.

Dean Magliocca will be back in the lineup, but Marcus Mulholland will not. "He (Mulholland) is still (injured) out but he is improving," Meade said. "We won't have him for another couple of weeks."

Tonight will be the last home performance for seniors Tom Ghielmi and Mark Taylor. Ghielmi is ranked nationally in the floor exercise and vault.

Kal Nurnberger, No. 20, drives the baseline for a layup during the 87-82 loss to Creighton Jan. 28. The Salukis play Creighton in the first round of the Missouri Valley postseason tournament Saturday in Peoria.

Salukis up for MVC tourney

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The last two times the men's basketball team has played Creighton, guard Rod Mason has burned the Salukis for 31 and 29 points.

When the Salukis take on Creighton at 8:20 p.m. Saturday in Peoria for the first round of the MVC postseason tournament, Coach Rich Herrin says his team is not planning to do anything different to defend Mason. Mason averages 20.3 points per game and 4.6 rebounds per game.

"I've never been a great believer that you try to stop one person," Herrin said. "We'll play a man-to-man (defense). They're too good of a shooting team to play a zone against them."

Creighton is 15-15 overall and 6-6 in the Valley. The team had a midseason win streak of seven but then went on to lose seven of their next eight.

With Creighton's 72-58 win against Marquette Wednesday in Milwaukee, the Blue Jays take a two-game winning streak into the tournament.

"Creighton's pretty hot right now," Herrin said. "They're the best shooting team in the Valley. They run the halfcourt game as good as anybody."

"It'll be a tough basketball game. We're a better basketball team than we showed against them."

The Salukis, 12-15 and 6-8, have won four of their last five games. In MVC tournament action, SIU-C is 3-8.

On Jan. 28, Creighton beat the Salukis, 87-82, at the Arena. Saluki guard Steve Middleton

Garrett gets another chance to qualify

Bret Garrett has one last chance.

Garrett will compete Friday at the Florida Fast Times Invitational in Gainesville, Fla., in his last hope of qualifying in the 800-meter run for the national indoor track championships.

"I wouldn't take him down there if I didn't think he would qualify," Coach Bill Cornell said. "If they (team members) didn't qualify by this meet, they had to be awfully close."

He missed qualifying for the nationals by two-hundredths of a second at the Illinois Invitational Feb. 20.

The qualifying standard for the meet is 1 minute, 50.50 seconds.

Two Salukis already have qualified for the national meet.

Ron Harrer was the first to qualify in the 35-pound weight with a throw of 62 feet, 3 inches at the Illinois Invitational. Harrer was an outdoor all-American in the discus last

Sinou's career hinges on 1 race

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Vivian Sinou must meet the indoor track qualifying time for the 3,000-meters Saturday at the National Invitational in Indianapolis, Ind., to continue her SIU-C career.

Sinou is ineligible for the 1988 outdoor season. But she and four teammates will try a final time to qualify for the national indoor track championships, which will be held March 11-12 in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Sinou holds the school record in the 3,000 at 9 minutes, 42.70 seconds. To qualify she must run in at least 9:23.53.

Rosanne Vincent, who holds the school record in the 800 at 2:12.3, will try to meet the qualifying standard of 2:09.

Brian Bradley qualified in the long jump with a leap of 25-7 last weekend at the Missouri Valley Conference Cham-ampionships. The jump was good for Missouri Valley Conference and SIU-C records.

"We knew he (Bradley) was getting close," Cornell said.

"He deserved it. He has worked hard."

The national indoor meet will be March 11-12 in Oklahoma City, Okla.

U. of Kentucky to be publicly reprimanded

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — The University of Kentucky will be publicly reprimanded for failing to cooperate in a probe of alleged violations in the school's basketball program, the NCAA announced Thursday.

The NCAA Infractions Committee said the university failed to satisfy its obligation to "cooperate fully" with the committee's "relevant inquiries" into allegations described in an Oct. 27, 1985 newspaper article.

The allegations, outlined in a story in the Lexington Herald-Leader, included excessive payments to athletes for speaking engagements and "cash handshakes" from boosters.
