Secondary picket lines expected by machinists

MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines lashed out Sunday at pilots who have virtually grounded it by refusing to cross picket lines, while striking machinists mapped plans for secondary pickets expected to get up Monday in an effort to shut down railroads and other airlines.

In Washington, Secretary of Transportation Samuel Skinner said the Bush administration is prepared to ask Congress to outlaw such secondary pickets if they are honored by union members working for railroads and other airlines.

"We have legislation ready. I still hope that the unions will

Unions warned to watch actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner, rearing a nationwide disruption because of the Eastern Airlines strike, warned unions Sunday that sympathy walkouts by rail workers and other air carriers will be met with federal legislation outlawing such action.

Eastern Airlines' 8,500 ground workers walked off the job Saturday and pilots joined the dispute by refusing to cross the picket lines, virtually shutting down Eastern operations.

"This is what I don't understand," Skinner said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "Why should people in Chicago and California pay the price of the labor dispute between Eastern and its machinists in Miami?"

The machinists, under the not use this secondary picketing action and let the normal dispute between Eastern and its union go forward," Skinner said on NBC's Meet the Press.

Court orders had been obtained in at least two metropolitan areas — New York and Philadelphia — to prevent railroad employees from walking out in sympathy with the Eastern machinists. Meanwhile, leaders of the International Association of Machinists met in Washington D.C., during the second day of their strike to map picketing strategy.

"Our next target is Continental Airlines. We want to put them on the ground," said Wally Haber, general chairman of the IAM's District 100 in Miami.

Continental, like Eastern, is owned by Texas Air Corp. of Houston. But its workforce is largely non-union.

Haber said union leaders had also targeted commuter rail systems in the Northeast and Chicago area. A spokesman for the IAM in Washington declined to discuss specific targets, or to say when secondary pickets might go up.

Ice storm hits, snow counters

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Meteorologists are expecting 3 to 6 inches of snow today to cover ice from Sunday's storm, grounding all planes in Southern Illinois.

A winter storm warning has been issued for Southern Illinois because of the sleet and ice on the ground and the possibility of snow, Carol Abrams, employee of the SIU weather station, said.

The heavy sleet and winter storm warning has kept all planes on the ground as far north as St. Louis, Abrams said.

Freezing rain began late Saturday night and turned to heavy sleet Sunday morning, putting a sheet of ice on the roads, Abrams said.

Saturday's high temperature was 56 degrees about noon, and fell steadily throughout the day, reaching a low of 27 degrees.

The biggest problem occurring during such weather are trees that freeze and fall on power lines, discontinuing electricity and heat, Abrams said.

The U.S. Department of Transportation ordered 1,200 miles of roads to be cleared and salted, Darl Keehler, snow removal maintenance worker, said.

Keehler said he has seen several wrecks and overturned cars along the roads because of the bad weather, but cars did seem to be moving better after the roads had been cleared, he said.

The weather has not had any serious effects on the Illinois Route 13 bridge, which is currently under construction.

"The traffic was moving steadily on the detoured routes and no wrecks or even stalled cars had been reported in that area," Keehler said.

Tower: Plans for election to continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Embattled former Sen. John Tower said Sunday he had no plans to withdraw his nomination to be defense secretary despite indications that he has little chance of winning Senate confirmation for the post.

In an interview with CBS's "Face the Nation," the former Texas senator put to rest any speculation that he would withdraw his nomination to save the Bush administration from any further embarrassment.

"I have no plans to withdraw because the president doesn't want me to withdraw," Tower said, adding that the controversy over his nomination had become a fight over the right of the president to choose his own appointments.

"It would be damaging to the president if he withdrew my name or if I withdrew," Tower said. "I think the rationale of the president is that, if I'm voted down he loses, but that if he withdraws my name, he loses."

Tower's television appearance capped a hectic week

Die-hard winter weather grips regions of nation

United Press International

Die-hard winter weather gripped a large chunk of the nation Sunday, with frigid air stretching from the Great Lakes to Texas and more than a foot of snow falling in parts of western Texas.

At Dallas-Ft. Worth, the mercury sank to 21 degrees early Sunday, shattering by 1 degree a 69-year-old record, the National Weather Service said. It was 4 below in Denver, also a record.

But, with spring only two weeks away, warmer weather is coming.

"There should be a gradual warming this week," an NWS forecaster said, "especially in the Southwest and Midwest."

Meanwhile, thunderstorms lashed the central Gulf of Mexico states and there was flooding at Florence, Ala., where boats evacuated some residents water 3- to 7-feet deep. No injuries were reported.

Mary O'Neill, spokesman for American Airlines at Dallas-

Fort Worth International Airport, said the airline canceled 60 percent of inbound and outbound flights Sunday, primarily because of delays caused by de-icing procedures and because of closed destination airports.

Area police: Stringent gun laws needed

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

If the issue of gun control were in the hands of the Carbondale and Jackson County police, Southern Illinoisans would see stricter gun laws.

Jackson County Sheriff William Kilquist and Neal Jacobson, public information officer for the Carbondale Police, said Illinois gun laws should be more stringent, specifically for longer waiting periods, stricter permit standards and the banning of certain types of firearms, such as assault weapons.

Both agreed that weapons used for sport — mainly hunting — should not be banned, but that stricter laws should be considered for all types of firearms.

"There's no need for fully-automatic weapons to be in the hands of the public," Jacobson said. "But it's very important that we make the distinction between sporting weapons and assault rifles."

Assault rifles are sold to the public as semi-automatic weapons, but can be converted into automatic weapons. Semi-automatic weapons fire one round of ammunition every time the trigger is pulled and automatic rifles fire every

Iran asks China to help rebuild weak economy

(UPI) — Iran asked China for help Sunday in rebuilding its war-shattered economy in an apparent attempt to offset diplomatic isolation from the West caused by the controversy over the novel, "The Satanic Verses." The official Iranian media said Prime Minister Mir Hossein Musavi invited China to draw up "a solid and constant" program of expansion of bilateral relations during discussions in Tehran with Deputy Premier Tian Jiyun.

Conference held about saving ozone layer

LONDON (UPI) — Kenya President Daniel Arap Moi opened a 124-nation conference on saving the Earth's protective ozone shield Sunday, warning that only a true global partnership will stop man from damaging his own planet. Unless urgent and drastic actions are taken by all nations to ban chemicals that harm the environment, the fate of humanity and other living things is threatened, he said.

37 illegal aliens arrested during crackdown

More cops on the street in 'murder capital'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The District of Columbia begins putting more police on the street Monday to combat escalating drug-related violence that has made the city the nation's new "murder capital." Under a crime emergency imposed by D.C. Police Chief Maurice Turner, about 400 police officers are being reassigned one or two days a week from sitting behind a desk to walking a beat.

Senate schedules higher education action

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Senate this week is expected to initiate action on two fronts to help upgrade the quality of the state's public colleges and universities. Senate Majority Floor Leader J.B. Banks, D-St. Louis, said the Rules Committee would consider a resolution calling for a comprehensive study of the state's needs in higher education. Approval of the resolution would send it to the full Senate for debate.

200 angry vets, supporters assail U.S. flag display

CHICAGO (UPI) — About 200 angry veterans, their friends and families, some choking back tears, marched on the Art Institute Sunday demanding an end to a student exhibit that allows the American flag to be walked upon. "We are absolutely outraged at the insensitivity of the Art Institute and what has happened here this week," Tom Stack, a Vietnam veteran, told flag- and sign-waving protesters from the steps of the Art Institute.

R.E.M. gives bits of the unusual; long encores to Arena audience

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

R.E.M. kept the crowd moving and on its feet Thursday night throughout its concert, including its three encores at the SIU Arena.

When the group opened the show with a cut from its newest album "Green," the crowd went wild. A large screen welcomed the audience with a "Hello" and Michael Stipe, lead singer, asked everybody to read the screen along with him, working the crowd into a state of anticipation.

During "Pop Song 89," one of the opening songs, the words weather and government were flashed on the screen as Stipe sang "should we talk about the weather, should we talk about the government."

Stipe's use of a megaphone in the song "Underneath the Bunker," from its album "Life's Rich Pageant," showed the group's sense of the unusual.

The use of a chair as a drum in "World Leader Pretend," provided a beat to the song that the drums weren't able to compete with. Stipe held the audience's attention with his militant stance and repeated blows to the chair.

"Orange Crush," "Stand" and "Turn You Inside Out," all from its latest album, had the audience singing along as Stipe energetically jumped and danced across the stage.

DE No. 3 in state, collects 16 awards

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — For the second consecutive year, the Daily Egyptian has been designated one of the top three college newspapers in the state by the Illinois College Press Association.

The DE, including individuals in the photo, news and advertising departments, won 16 awards Saturday during a banquet sponsored by the Chicago Tribune and attended by 19 members of the ICPA.

Of the 19 competing daily and non-daily newspapers, the Daily Northwestern of Northwestern University finished first, and the Daily Illini of the University of Illinois placed second.

Four first-place plaques were awarded to former and current DE staff members.

Stephen Cox won first place for his cartoon, "It's A Rough Life."

Alan K. Hawes won top honors for spot news photo, and Dave Miller received first place for best sports story.

In advertising, Dhiana Nickels and Mike Wood took first for an in-house promotional ad, featuring turkey-shaped hand prints of the ad sales staff.

Cathy Hagler, acting business manager, said she expected the advertising staff to do well in the competition.

"I'm glad advertising won something. It's a pleasure to work with such talented students," Hagler said.

The DE finished second in the special supplement category.

Wanda Harris, managing editor, said "I'm delighted with the number of winning entries in the ICPA, but I'm not surprised. Our writers and photographers work hard to produce high-quality messages, whether they be visual or verbal.

"Most of the credit has to go to the DE staff members. But some of the credit can be claimed by the student editors who strive to create a learning and work environment that nurtures prize-winning works.

"Next year, we will be striving to win even more awards, and not just for the awards, but for what the awards stand for; good journalism," Harris said.

Awards received were:

News — Diana Mivelli, second place for news story; John Baldwin, third for features page design and DE staff third for front page layout.

Sports — DE staff, second for sports page design; and Miller won two third-place plaques for sports story and sports column.

Judges for the 1,520 entries were provided by the Illinois Press Association.

Three divisions were used to judge the competition: open, non-daily and daily papers.

Legislature at fault for summer budget

CUT!

Lately this has been the cry of University officials concerning budgets, but not through any fault of their own.

Recently University officials prevented colleges from spending budgeted funds that didn't exist to avoid a funding shortfall of more than $2 million. The shortfall resulted because semester budgets for 1988 exceeded the tuition brought in by students.

This shortfall has caused a reduction in the number of supplemental courses for the summer semester and a delay in hiring personnel until the fiscal year ends on June 30.

FOR THE SPRING semester the budget was $14.8 million, but to keep the University in the black, expenditures will have to be $13.8 million according to Budget Director Mike Williams.

College deans have said that since the money is not available, they cannot pay faculty to teach additional courses in the summer and some classes will have to be dropped.

The source of these cutbacks can be traced to the Legislature. Lack of a tax increase last year forced increases in tuition and cuts to programs.

LACK OF A push by legislators for a tax increase this year could result in more cuts and even higher tuition. Since Gov. James Thompson has not taken the lead in the battle for a tax hike, someone else must, or a tax increase bill will not even make it to the General Assembly.

The Illinois tax system is at the heart of the problems in state education.

Until there is a tax increase, education will continue to suffer and decline. And Illinois already is near the bottom of the list for quality of education in industrial states.

WITHOUT A solid education system, the state's economy also will suffer. It will be harder to attract businesses and corporations into Illinois because people moving in with these businesses would not have quality education for their children and many of the qualified people they would hire would have already left Illinois in search of better jobs. Without these businesses it would be difficult to provide jobs for young people and get them to stay here to use their skills.

Today's students are being hurt the most, because they not only will have to deal with program cuts and tuition hikes now, but later will feel the economic impact of the state's education system — if they choose to stay in Illinois.

ALTHOUGH STUDENTS alone may not have the means to influence a tax increase, with help and pressure from parents, grandparents, teachers and administrators maybe the Legislature will be educated to the facts — then maybe the students can afford to be.

Opinions from elsewhere

Every kid should be as smart — and as lucky — as Shirley Johnson.

The Tallahassee 14-year-old now has a scholarship waiting for her, compliments of Florida A and M University. She came to the attention of university officials via a newspaper report about widespread crack and cocaine abuse in her neighborhood. That report said she has to fend off pushers several times a day, and she's determined not to fall into the dead-end lifestyle of her childhood playmates who now think it's cool to get pregnant by dope-sellers.

"The (university) family wanted to do something to help you stay strong," the Florida A and M president told Shirley when he handed her the scholarship papers, worth at least $17,000.

Her career plans? Maybe she'll keep fighting back against drugs and be a prosecutor. She says, "I want to walk around the courtroom and say, 'You got 50 years.'" Scraps Howard News Service

SIU can promote good image keep Halloween, Springfest

Soon Halloween may be a thing of the past. In an effort to remove the "party image" of SIU, John Guyon has all but eliminated Halloween. The newly proposed calendar has much to be desired. It would be great to have a break earlier in the semester than to grind along waiting for relief. But sending students home over the Halloween weekend suggests that SIU students are the ones that cause all of the problems. It is evident that something needs to be done about Halloween. The celebration should be structured more like Springfest by having it during the day and on campus. I've never seen the problems of Halloween occurring at Springfest.

event (Springfest) for the safety reasons related to large crowds attending the annual festivities.

This can't do anything but increase the crowds at both the regatta and Springfest. I've been at SIU for four years and have yet to see a regatta since I've always watched the bands, but thanks to UPO, I can see both.

What seems clear to me is that the University is trying to get rid of alcohol at SIU. When the boat regatta ran out of funding, the Office of Academic Affairs and Guyon decided to pick up the tab as long as alcohol wasn't on the menu.

And now Springfest may not be allowed to have alcohol unless the Student Programming Council requests it. The University has no responsibility for prohibiting students from consuming alcohol.

In the Case of Rabel v. Illinois Wesleyan University (Ill. 1987), presiding Judge Spitz agreed with the finding of Beach v. University of Utah (Utah 1986). The Beach court stated "It would be unrealistic to impose upon an institution of higher education the role of custodian over its adult students and to charge it with the responsibility for preventing students from illegally consuming alcohol and, should they do so, with the responsibility for assuring their safety and the safety of others."

I think that the University should do what is needed to increase positive image of SIU. But I don't think the University should try to curb the consumption of alcohol by its students by eliminating Halloween and Springfest. Besides, I like Halloween — it's my birthday. — Chuck Bagerman, senior, biology and microbiology.

Now the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta rings a new problem. According to a DE article on Feb. 23, the University Programming Office "decided to split the

Woman resents letter's 'accusations'

I was very interested to read the American Baptist Campus Ministry's ad, "Abortion: The Debate Rages On" in the Feb. 24 paper. Although I braced myself for the rantings of another pro-lifer, I was surprised to find a somewhat reasonable article on the power of the individual to change his way of thinking.

Mr. Lewis' essay seemed very sane until the end, when he wished aloud for new legislation. "Another law could force people to become Christians knowing Jesus Christ as the Savior he truly is. Forcing people to understand that Jesus forgives... would be glorious."

I fail to see where forcing anyone to become a Christian would be glorious. I grew up thinking that one's beliefs are one's personal and very private choice. How does imposing beliefs on others, as Mr. Lewis considers, become right, satisfying or "glorious"? Isn't Christianity based on love and acceptance of everyone, or is it only of those who adhere to one set of values, one certain religion? Perhaps Mr. Lewis has forgotten that the world is largely composed of non-Christians who are Jewish, Shinto, Hindu, Moslem and even (gasp) Agnostic. In his essay, he has managed to alienate all of these groups. Is this love and acceptance?

Don't despair, Mr. Lewis! It's not too late to open your mind and accept others for who they really are, not for who you would like to "force" them to be. — Catherine J. Gregory, senior, mathematics.

'Forced' religion wrong, should be own choice

In response to Kevin R. Rathunde's letter (which I hope was a joke) please adhere to your own advice Mr. Rathunde, and "Judge not." If your letter was not intended to be taken seriously (I hope not) then something to that effect should have stated so.

Unfortunately, I took your letter very seriously. I resent the fact that as a woman you accuse me of being a "lost soul," "the one (of many women) who had led you into sin" and a (gasp) "brazen bussy." Augh! Haven't Christians learned that you can't lead "lost souls" to God by force, threats, and accusations? You may not realize it, but our country was established for people who chose not to practice religion as well as for those who did.

I'm an American citizen, an honest, hardworking student, and I serve in the military. I do not worship any god and I'm proud of all I do. I have not led anyone astray (below the age of consent) and if I choose to engage in sexual activity outside of wedlock, that's my right. If I should become pregnant, and decide to get an abortion, that's also my right.

If I obey the law, uphold it by my service, what I do on my own time (within legal limits) is my business, not to be judged or scrutinized by any verse-spouting, sexist. Fortunately for you Mr. Rathunde, you can say anything you want — I'm protecting your freedom of speech. Yes, you're welcome. — Stephanie R. Atkinson, senior, English.

alternative legally possible," said IAM spokesman Jim Conley. "When, if and how we implement them will be decided by the union leadership at the appropriate time."

The IAM struck Eastern at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, after negotiators in Washington failed to resolve a 17-month-old contract dispute. Eastern, which lost $335.4 million in 1988, had sought $150 million in concessions from its 8,500 mechanics and ground service workers represented by the IAM.

The pilots union at Eastern immediately endorsed the strike, and asked its members not to cross the IAM's picket lines. All but a handful complied, and Eastern was forced to shut down almost its entire operation.

On Sunday, Eastern Vice President Robin Matell said the pilots action threatened the viability of the airline.

"By continuing to stay out, the pilots are committing economic suicide. They are risking their careers and the careers of all Eastern men and women," he said. "This has been a very disruptive pilot strike so far, for Eastern's customers and for our employees. It places 3,600 pilot careers in jeopardy and it risks the very existence of a great airline."

Capt. Henry Duffy, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, which represents Eastern pilots, joined picket lines at Washington's National Airport Sunday in a show of solidarity with machinists.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson also appeared in support of the IAM in Atlanta.

National Railway Labor Act of 1926, have threatened to spread the disruption further Monday by dispatching roving pickets around the nation to interrupt airline and big city commuter rail services that are not directly involved in Eastern's contract dispute.

If that happens, it would be up to President Bush to declare a national transportation emergency and order a 60-day cooling off period, a move the administration has rejected.

Skinner said the administration is prepared to go to Congress to make such secondary boycotts illegal if the strike spreads.

"No other union in other industries has the right to strike on a secondary basis and affect people who aren't involved in the dispute," Skinner said. "If, in fact, secondary picketing occurs, we will send to the House and Senate legislation eliminating that right ... as soon as we think it's appropriate."

"We have the legislation ready," he said. "I still hope that the unions will not use this secondary picketing activity and let the normal dispute between Eastern and its union go forward."

Skinner said the public will be "very offended if pilots in other airlines slow down flights and inconvenience millions and millions of people. They are not going to like it and they shouldn't."

Skinner denied a suggestion that the administration might be siding with the management at Eastern, which is owned by Texas Air Corp.

"The side we're on is the side of the American people," Skinner said. "(Texas Air Chairman Frank) Lorenzo has the obligation ... to get in there and try to settle this dispute."

"The machinists have that (obligation). We're not involved in that, we don't want to be involved in that. Our job is safety and protecting people as best we can," he said.

"We do not believe 60 days is going to do any good at all and we're going to be at the same place we are now 60 days from now, and it's just going to be possibly even worse because of the intensity of the situation," Skinner said.

round loaded in the weapon, as long as the trigger is held down.

Jacobson said he feels no pressure to walk the line between proponents of gun control and opponents of gun control, specifically the National Rifle Association (NRA).

"We have to be very careful to stay away from the emotional aspects of the situation," Jacobson said. "We have to work within the confines of the law."

Jacobson said the police have to be more concerned with how weapons are transported, sold, licensed and used, rather than how effective the present gun laws are in Illinois.

Kilquist, however, expressed some concern about issues on both sides of the gun control coin.

"The NRA doesn't mean anything to me," Kilquist said. "They support some off-the-wall things — things like teflon bullets. There's no need for those types of things."

"Guns don't kill people, people kill people" is one of the NRA's most popular mottos, but Kilquist does not agree wholeheartedly.

"Guns enable people to reach out a little farther than they normally would," Kilquist said. "With a gun, someone could shoot me from a half a mile away. Whereas with a knife, that person would have to rely on hand-to-hand combat."

But Kilquist, citing Southern Illinois as a popular area for hunting, also supported the right of citizens to own firearms for hunting and sporting purposes.

Kilquist said a lot of people in Southern Illinois have been raised in an environment where guns are almost a necessity. Therefore, area politicians and officials are reluctant to support strict gun control laws.

Although most people who own guns do not use them for criminal intents, those people who do have criminal intentions force the need for stricter gun laws, much to the chagrin of the public, Kilquist said.

Kilquist said the illegal sale of firearms is not a big problem in the Southern Illinois area, but that most weapons used in crimes are bought and sold illegally. "They are easily saleable and in great demand," Kilquist said. He also said most guns sold illegally are in bad condition and are dangerous even to the owner.

In preparing for possible encounters with armed individuals, police go through two types of training procedures: target shooting and decision making training, Kilquist and Jacobson said.

Target shooting is designed to improve the aim and involves an officer shooting at a target from various distances.

The decision-making procedure is designed to test the officer's ability to assess whether an incident is a shoot or no-shoot situation. The officers shoot at targets, which emerge as fake images of armed or unarmed people, and the officer has a split second to decide whether to shoot.

Officers also are taught to observe other factors at the scene of a possible crime, such as the environment, body movement, the type of call they are involved in and whether they are alone.

Kilquist and Jacobson said as thorough as the training procedures may be, they do not fully prepare an officer for a real-life situation.

Peter Dinklage, another band popular with the college scene, sat in with the group.

Another highlight was Stipe's acappella performance emphasizing the strength of his voice which is sometimes lost in the band's more upbeat songs. Although some of the audience seemed to want the group to continue with its more popular songs, others appreciated the unhindered vocal experience.

Perhaps one of the most interesting uses of graphics occurred during "Finest Worksong," which featured fish swimming around behind the band. This may have been a comment on the group's environmental stand, which also is evident in the name of their latest album, "Green." The planting of a tree at Evergreen Park and the contest urging people to recycle cans also proves the band's commitment. At the beginning of the show, Stipe thanked everyone for coming out to the tree planting and asked everyone to continue recycling.

The band gave three encores making the show longer than two hours. Each exit the band made had the crowd yelling for more, and R.E.M. didn't disappoint them.

The encores, unlike some where a band will sing a couple more songs, was more like another set. Stipe seemed to enjoy coming back on stage, and the second set was just as strong as the first.

After singing "You Are the Everything," and saying goodbye to the audience, the band once again came back on stage.

Churches gather for prayer, songs

By Theresa Livingston
Staff Writer

Despite plummeting temperatures and freezing rain, members of Concerned Christians for Unity gathered as scheduled Friday for a night of prayer, songs and poetry.

The theme of the night, "Lighting the path for our youth through worship and song," was to have been demonstrated by a flashlight march at twilight to each of the eight churches in the group.

However, because of the poor weather, the procession rode in cars with blinkers instead.

"What with all the complaints of colds and flu and the nasty weather, we decided it would be best to drive (cars)," Rosetta O'Neal, chairwoman of the group, said.

The recently-formed group is a coalition of eight churches from the Northeast section of Carbondale.

"We're trying to bring unity, to concentrate our efforts in praising the Lord," Rev.

"We're trying to bring unity, to concentrate our efforts in praising the Lord."

—Rev. Robert L. James

Robert L. James, president of the Carbondale Ministerial Conference, said.

Accompanied by a police escort, the procession wound slowly around the scheduled march route, growing as representatives of each church joined the long line of cars.

The procession ended at the Greater Gillespie Temple, where the participants joined members of the congregation and choral groups from the various churches in song and prayer.

The children of the group presented a religious program and a prayer for unity was said by Rev. Robert L. Buchanan.

Abortion drug evokes great hopes, fears

(SHNS) — A small white pill that looks like an aspirin is provoking great hopes — and fears — in the nation's abortion debate.

Although the pill, RU-486, so far is approved for use only in France and China, it is being hailed by U.S. abortion rights advocates for its potential to induce safer, more private abortions in the early stages of pregnancy.

"It's a miracle therapy, no question about it," said Ann Mitchell, director of the Planned Parenthood Association in Cincinnati.

But abortion opponents like Dr. John Wilke, chairman of the National Right to Life Committee, decry the drug and are considering a worldwide boycott of its manufacturer and affiliated companies.

"We certainly have not even remotely ruled out a worldwide boycott," said Wilke, who expects a potential boycott to be discussed when the International Right to Life group meets in Brussels in about three weeks.

Discovered by a French researcher and manufactured by the French company Roussel Uclaf, RU-486 blocks the hormone progesterone, which is essential to embryonic development. The lining of the uterus crumbles and sheds, as it does during menstruation, and the embryo is expelled.

RU-486, also known by the trade name Mifepristone, is 80 percent effective in ending pregnancy within two weeks after a missed period, according to international research data reviewed by the Washington-based Population Crisis Committee.

Used with a prostaglandin, which causes contractions of the uterus, RU-486 has a 95 percent success rate in ending pregnancy through at least five weeks after conception, or three weeks after a missed period.

Dental remains key aspect in health research of slaves

Studies reveal diets, culture of early Africans

By Alicia Hill
Staff Writer
and Tim Crosby
Student Writer

If there is such a thing as a wisdom tooth, anthropology graduate student Beth Ritter hopes to find it in her research.

By examining the dental remains of slaves from the colonial to pre-civil war period in America, Ritter hopes to learn how their health compared to that of slaves in the Caribbean and South America during the same time period.

"Dental features tell us a lot about the person's health and diet," Ritter said. "It's a little like looking at the rings of a tree."

With the help of researchers in Arkansas and the Smithsonian Institute in Washington D.C., Ritter has been able to obtain plaster casts of jawbones and teeth from the remains of people known to have been slaves.

"In many cases, construction workers will accidentally uncover a forgotten cemetery," Ritter said. "That's what recently happened in Virginia at an old church," she said in reference to an excavation site she plans to visit.

Ritter is also in contact with researchers in South America and Barbados that have access to similar remains. Ritter said such international research takes time and can be frustrating.

"We haven't hit any major snags as of yet," she said.

Ritter is not new to this kind of research. In 1987, she co-authored an article with SIUC anthropology professors Jerome Handler and Robert Corruccini that discussed the physical evidence of lead poisoning in some slaves of the Caribbean Islands. Those studies, like this one, used the skeletal remains of slaves for evidence.

Ritter said there are several reasons for wanting to learn more about the treatment of slaves.

"The African-American community is interested in these studies for history's sake," Ritter said. "The more we learn about this, the better understanding we all have of what they as a culture went through during slavery, and how it affects their culture right up until today."

Another question to be answered through the study concerns how much African culture was brought to North America by slaves and sustained.

To do this, she will study the teeth and note indented bands where the enamel hasn't formed, called enamel hypoplasia or growth arrest line.

Incidents of disease and malnutrition are responsible for such an occurrence, which usually occurs when the child is weaned.

By correlating this feature with the age of the individual and with samples of other slave populations, Ritter said she hopes to establish an average age at which breast feeding was stopped throughout the population.

This information would indicate whether or not the African practice of late weaning survived slavery and would give clues toward other aspects of the culture which survived as well.

"Mutilated teeth indicate African birth," Ritter said. "This feature helps to determine if the individual was born in Africa or into slavery and thereby what generation of slaves they were."

Such features may also be compared to Euro-American populations and other slave populations of the same time period. This could help determine how isolated slaves were from their owners and each other, as well as indicating cultural survival.

To study these remains, Ritter relies primarily on an instrument called a dial caliper. This highly precise measuring tool, which can be used to measure the width or length of a tooth, is also essential in obtaining accurate measurements of enamel hypoplasia.

A small inaccuracy can greatly alter the study. "We're talking about microns here," Ritter said. "You have to be as accurate as possible."

Ritter's research will attempt to fill in some of the gaps in actual documentation concerning the conditions under which slaves were forced to live. It will also strengthen or weaken existing theories and physical evidence.

Despite the many books written on the subject, surprisingly little is known about the treatment of slaves in South America and the Caribbean. Ritter said many of these books contradict one another.

She hopes to add to that growing pool of knowledge with her own research.

It is thought that the kind of labor imposed on slaves in the Caribbean was much more harsh than that in America. Ritter said this would be due to the difficulties involved in raising sugar cane, the island's main cash crop.

"The labor required to raise sugar cane was physically more taxing than that to raise cotton," Ritter explained.

In addition to harder labor, food was more scarce on the islands than in North America. Consequently, slaves there did not eat as well as their American counterparts. Ritter expects to find this in her research.

"I hope research such as mine will provide more information about the everyday life of the earliest African-Americans," she said, "since this type of information has generally not been recorded."

Rock 'n' roll hopefuls eye dreams at camp

Scraps Howard News Service

So you wanna be a rock 'n' roll star.

Your fantasy can come true for a week in August. All you need is $3,500, minimum talent and a little luck.

Gilbert Klein, a part-time bar band guitarist and full-time bowling alley and nightclub owner in San Francisco, has formed the Rock 'n' Roll Fantasy Camp. Modeled after baseball fantasy camps, Klein promises that 25 wannabe campers will experience a "total immersion into the world of the rock 'n' roll star."

So does that mean sex and drugs as well as rock 'n' roll?

"As far as sex goes, if they want groupies the policy is BYOG. As far as drugs, I'm going to discourage any drugs," Klein said in a phone call from San Francisco. "If they don't use 'em in their regular life, they shouldn't use 'em in camp."

Why not, I wondered. It would certainly be realistic — as realistic as the rest of the camp activities. For starters, the campers will be put up in the Phoenix Inn, known as San Francisco's "rock 'n' roll hotel" having lodged the likes of REM, David Bowie, U2 and others. What about trashing the hotel rooms, another venerable rock 'n' roll tradition.

"The hotel and I have discussed it, and trashing hotel rooms is not acceptable. They will be able to use room service, but band members will have to show some restraint," said Klein. "They can't be ordering four pounds of M&Ms and say 'lose the brown ones.'"

The 25 participants will be divided into five bands after which they will rehearse, go to seminars, record and finally perform at a free concert at the Fillmore West Auditorium.

Although the show is free, Klein said a guest list will be used. "You know the old joke about how many rock 'n' rollers does it take to change a light bulb? One. Plus nineteen on the guest list."

All the while they will be receiving tips and instructions from music industry professionals, including celebrity musician "counselors." So far, the only counselor Klein has nailed down is guitarist Craig Chaquico of The Starship.

"But that shows you the caliber of musician that we're looking for," he said, adding that "five or six" more are expected to pledge their time for the camp.

For information on the camp write to P.O. Box 460159, San Francisco, Calif. 94146-0159.

Computers spreading roots, growing in primary schools

Scraps Howard News Service

By the year 2000, many believe that the three Rs of American education will be replaced by the four Cs: comprehension, critical thinking, communication and coping.

That's the consensus of several national studies and teachers and education experts surveyed, all of whom point to the classroom of the future as a high-tech landscape of new-age learning skills.

What will 21st century classrooms look like?

Nothing so startling as an Isaac Asimov scenario, teachers and computer programmers predict. At the same time, blackboards will become obsolete, while modular seating arrangements, personal computers and encyclopedias stored on disks will be commonplace.

Large-screen micro-projection units, videocassette recorders and voice-activated keyboards will also play a role in classrooms. And instead of students' being limited to school libraries, planners say computers will enable them to tap into national and global information sources.

"I believe you'll see computer and video technology merging in the classroom," said Jan Bybee, head of computer education for Jefferson County Public Schools in Colorado. "Computers are going to look much different in the year 2000, perhaps as radical as today's computers look from those of 20 years ago."

"Computers will be powerful tools that students control from their desk, and they may be the size of a notebook or smaller. Students will be able to do graphic presentations with their personal computers and (they) will be able to tap into data bases around the world. We will see students expanding outward, even though they are sitting in a classroom."

Steve Cowdrey, who specializes in technology instruction, predicts the future will bring a greater emphasis on visual education.

"I read a recent study that said 90 percent of us process information visually; so I think we'll see a trend toward that," he said. "We will see more in the way of visual data bases — optical storage, liquid libraries and interactive video."

"As such, I believe the classroom of the future will be a place where teachers will assume a different role than now exists in most places. Teachers will become facilitators of knowledge, rather than knowledge givers. They are going to teach kids how to learn."

Some of those futuristic elements are already in place at the Woodmen School in northwest El Paso County, Colo., where Nancy Bathke's fifth-grade students often spend 50 percent of their day working on computers.

All 27 students have an Apple II desktop computer, as does teacher Bathke. When Bathke gives an assignment students quickly plug software into a disk drive and begin testing themselves against a spelling program.

Prison camp keeps complex open while helping inmates

By Ann Schottman Knol
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

MARION — At the U.S. Penitentiary in Marion, some of the most dangerous criminals in the country are guarded by high-powered weapons in towers, 13 strands of razor wire, a double fence and at least seven steel-bar grilles between them and the front door.

At the minimum-security prison camp in the shadow of the main prison, there are no fences, no bars and no cells.

"If you've got to do time, this is about as pleasant an atmosphere as you can get," Elvis Jones, 46, of St. Louis, who is serving three years at the camp on a narcotics-related communications charge, said. "Nothing basically keeps you here, except you know you've got to do the time."

The ultra-high-security main prison at Marion and the adjacent minimum-security prison camp are a study in contrasts. But prison officials said the main prison couldn't exist without the camp. Many of the 436 hard-core criminals at the main prison can't hold jobs because they are confined to their cells over 26 hours a day. So more than half the 208 inmates at the minimum-security camp work to keep the main prison in operation.

The ultra-high-security federal penitentiary at Marion is the only federal prison that must depend on an adjacent minimum-security camp to provide the labor to keep the prison operating, prison officials said.

"If the camp wasn't there, (the main prison) wouldn't be able to exist," Marion Warden Gary Henman, said.

Marion penitentiary replaced Alcatraz and is the nation's only prison designated a Level 6, the most secure level in the federal system. Ninety-eight percent of the inmates have committed violent crimes and are "very assaultive, predatory types of individuals," Randy Davis, executive assistant to the warden, said.

The camp is a Level 1, or lowest, security-level prison. Inmates are nonviolent and may be "like your next-door neighbor, a local banker, a former law enforcement officer, a congressman — just completely different people," Davis said.

At the main prison, the average sentence is 37 years and almost all have served time at other prisons, he said.

At the camp, more than 90 percent of the inmates are in prison for the first time, and the majority are serving sentences of less than five years, Jack Crosley, camp superintendent, said.

Camp inmates generally seem to agree that if you have to be in prison, the Marion camp is the place to be. The camp looks and feels like a military post with several one-story metal-sided buildings, some dormitory-style barracks for sleeping quarters.

Donald Mitchell, 33, of St. Louis, a postal employee who is serving 18 months on a postal embezzlement charge, said the camp is "heaven" after spending 10 weeks in St. Clair County Jail, where inmates were "rough and tough."

John Vitale of St. Louis, who is serving 40 months on a cocaine charge, said the camp's atmosphere is "real relaxed, just like a college campus."

Federal prison officials try to place prisoners near their homes so 18 percent of the camp prisoners are from Illinois, 16 percent from Missouri and many others from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Indiana.

Only federal law violators end up at the camp. The majority of camp inmates — 54 percent — are serving time on drug charges, primarily for marijuana and cocaine charges, according to camp statistics.

Other common conviction categories include property violations, fraud, tax violations, postal law violations, which includes postal employees or individuals stealing welfare checks — and firearms violations.

Camp prisoners are required to work. The camp supplies all the outside maintenance and also inside jobs like food service, mechanical services and the business office.

The prison went on "lockdown" in 1984, after two guards and an inmate were killed within two days. A modified lockdown — now called a high security operation — has become permanent, making the employment of outside workers impossible.

Bringing in outside labor to help operate the prison would be "extremely cost-prohibitive," Henman said.

Even though over half the camp prisoners work in the main prison, they are protected from contact with the main prison's inmates, Crosley said. Some inmate jobs include electrical, masonry or heating repairs, carpentry, welding, painting, laundry work and prison powerhouse work.

Illinois conservation corps brings learning experiences

Crews work on general areas of Giant City

By Michael Miles
Student Writer

"It wasn't a hard day's work but it was a day's work," an Illinois Conservation Corps crew member said, while relaxing with his boss and three co-workers in the ICC work center at Giant City State Park.

John Stevenson, 21, of Carbondale said that working for ICC, a division of the Illinois Department of Conservation, has its drawbacks, but it is better than flipping burgers at some greasy spoon. All the crew members agreed that working construction for the state was better than most other jobs similar in pay.

As the old pole barn, which was built by the Civilian Conservation Corps during the Great Depression, sheltered the five men from the cold-driving wind, they directed their quitting time conversation towards the work they do for the state.

Crew member Patrick Rendleman, 21, of Anna said he has learned quite a bit about construction since he started working for ICC last November.

"I learned about concrete, siding and other parts of construction that I didn't know when I came here," Rendleman said.

The other workers, Michel

Baker, 23, of Anna; and Daniel Estep, 18, of Carbondale, and Stevenson said that although they knew quite a bit about construction before they were employed by ICC, everyday still brings a learning experience.

"Working labor day in and out; you will always learn something new," Estep said.

Baker, the oldest crew member, added "this job starts you out, and that's pretty good because there are not a whole lot of places out there looking for somebody without any experience."

Construction supervisor John Owens sat at his desk quietly while his crew talked about the ups and downs of their work.

"One of the best things about this job is that the boss works just as hard as any of us," one crew member said.

Owens said they were remodeling the shower facilities at the horse camp located about one mile southeast of Giant City Lodge. The project entails putting in new shower stalls, toilet stools, sinks, urinals and replacing all the old water pipes with new ones.

The camp, which joins 14 miles of horse trails, is expected to open May 1.

The projects that the crew work on are mostly general maintenance projects on various aspects of the park that people expect to be well kept, Owens said.

He said that some of the projects scheduled for the spring and summer are replacing one of the bridges on the main road, which connects Giant City Road with Route 51, repairing the roof at the youth camp ground and fixing, stripping and repairing park furniture from Pere Marquette State Park and Starved Rock State Park.

"Every winter we usually get furniture from a couple state parks and work on them in (the work center)," Owens said.

Stevenson said whenever crew members work outside they wear the required yellow hard hats that have the ICC emblem displayed on the front.

The crew's contracts expire in July, Owens said, and at that time they will either be terminated or offered a new contract. All ICC members are eligible to work until they are 25 years old, he said.

The ICC was established in 1965 by the Illinois General Assembly and Gov. James R. Thompson as a statewide program, employing men and women from the ages of 16 to 25, a 1965 Governor's press release stated.

Ed Wolfenbrger, projects manager of ICC at the main office in Springfield, said the corps was divided into two age groups, the Young Adult Conservation Corps, those 18 to 25; and the Youth Conservation Corps, 16 to 17. The Young Adult Corp works full time all year long, but cuts the crew in half during the winter. The youth corp works full-time for eight weeks for the summer.

Gymnasts capture first win of season

Gymnasts beat highest score by six points

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

In its first dual win of the season, the men's gymnastics team scored a season-high 287.55 points, six points over its previous team high.

The Salukis defeated Oklahoma 287.55-260.15 at the Arena Friday to move their dual meet record to 1-8. Oklahoma drops to 1-2.

Lone senior Brent Reed led the Salukis in the all-around competition with a total of 53.80. His score was good for fourth place.

Newcomers Jeff Jones and Ricky Armstrong both had personal bests in the all-around competition with scores of 52.60 and 52.25 respectively.

Jeff Jones had his best all-around score as a Saluki with a 52.60 and Ricky Armstrong reached his highest score ever in the all-around at 52.25. Oklahoma claimed the top three spots in the all-around.

Junior Marcus Mulholland won the pommel horse, the Salukis' weakest event, with a score of 9.45. The team had a season-high 40.45 points in the event.

Eric Hanson tied his career-high in the still rings with a score of 9.25. Jones and Mulholland also scored over 9.0 in the rings.

Marcus Mulholland won the Salukis' weakest event, the pommel horse, with a score of 9.45.

Coach Bill Meade uses the

Swim team breaks five meet records

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Swimming without its top swimmers, the SIUC men's swimming and diving team set five meet records at the Midwest Independent Championships in Chicago.

The Salukis were not involved in the team score because it was their first year of competition. A new team is required to sit out a year before it can be included in the team competition.

In Thursday's races, Todd Edison led the Salukis to a 1,2,3,4 finish in the 500-meter freestyle. Edison's time of 4 minutes 31.14 seconds was good for a meet and pool record.

Eric Bradec was second, 4:31.44; Stu Patterson, third, 4:35.52 and Dave Whitting, fourth, 4:36.02.

The 200 freestyle relay set pool and meet records in Friday's race with a time of 1:24.00.

Tim Kelly won the 400 individual medley with a record-setting time of 4:02.49.

Edison, Jeff Goetz, Lee Carry and Daryl Luebner teamed up in the 400 medley relay to set a meet record.

Carry won the 100 breast-stroke with a time of 56.92, but still fell short of the NCAA qualifying mark.

Eric Bradec set the Salukis' final pool record with a win in the 1,650 freestyle.

No. 9 Illinois beats No. 3 Indiana in final seconds

By Jim Slater
UPI Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI)—Nick Anderson sank a 35-foot shot at the buzzer to lift No. 9 Illinois to a 70-67 victory over third-ranked Indiana, snapping the Hoosiers' eight-game winning streak and keeping the Illini's Big Ten title hopes alive.

Anderson, who scored 23 points, took a 50-foot inbound pass, turned, and shot over Indiana's Jay Edwards just before time expired to break a 67-67 tie. The 3-pointer swished through the net and prompted Illinois players to mob the 6-foot-6 junior swingman.

Edwards, who had hit last-second shots to defeat Purdue and Michigan earlier this season, sank an 18-foot basket with two seconds to play to tie the score. His baseline shot arched over the right corner of the basket and swished through, but Anderson's final basket dimmed the accomplishment.

Stephen Barco sank a 3-foot shot with 1:38 remaining to give Illinois its first lead of the second half, 67-65. Todd Jadow and Lyndon Jones each missed shots for Indiana in the next 36 seconds, but Anderson and Kenny Battle each missed the front end of 1-and-1s to give the Hoosiers their final opportunity, which led to Edwards' tying basket.

The loss ended a stretch of 15 straight home victories for the Hoosiers, which began last year after a loss to Illinois. Indiana's only two losses in its last 23 games have been to the Illini.

The loss dropped Indiana to 24-6 overall and 14-2 in the Big Ten. The Illini rose to 25-4 overall and 12-4 in conference play. The Hoosiers have clinched a tie for the Big Ten title, but Illinois is the only team that can match Indiana for the conference crown.

Joe Hillman, a fifth-year senior, led Indiana with a career-high 24 points while Edwards added 17 and Jones contributed 14. Battle added 19 for the Illini.

The Hoosiers outscored Illinois 12-2 over the first five minutes of the second half, taking a 39-27 lead on Hillman's basket with 15:03 to play. Jones scored 8 points during the run. Illinois missed 7 of 8 shots and committed two turnovers during its first nine possessions of the second half.

Hillman sank a 3-point shot with 8:31 to play, putting Indiana ahead 54-43. But Illinois scored the next 9 points, pulling within 54-52 on a dunk by Anderson with 5:47 to play.

Battle sank a rebound shot four seconds before halftime, pulling Illinois within 27-25.

Syracuse get overtime win against No. 2 Georgetown

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—Derrick Coleman scored 5 of his 21 points in overtime Sunday and No. 6 Syracuse ended a six-game losing streak against Georgetown with an 82-76 Big East victory over the No. 2 Hoyas.

Coleman grabbed a rebound from a miss by Georgetown's Mark Tillmon and threw a pass to Sherman Douglas for a fastbreak dunk that finished the scoring as time ran out.

Douglas gave the Orangemen an 80-76 lead by hitting two free throws with 17 seconds left in overtime. Coleman pulled down a rebound and converted a 3-point play to put Syracuse ahead for good 78-76 with 1:10 left.

After Alonzo Mourning hit a free throw to put the Hoyas on top 76-75 at 1:50 to play, Georgetown, 23-4 overall and 13-3 in the Big East, was held scoreless the rest of the way.

Syracuse, 25-6 and 10-6, used a fullcourt press to rally from a 14-point deficit in the second half to force overtime.

Jaren Jackson's baseline jumper with three seconds left put Georgetown in a 69-69 tie at the end of regulation.

Coleman had 13 rebounds and 3 blocks to go with his 21 points, while Billy Owens scored 19 points, Douglas added 16 and Stephen Thompson 15. Tillmon led Georgetown with 18 points, Mourning added 16, Jackson 13 and Ronny Thompson 11.

Thompson hit his first of back-to-back jump shots with 4:52 remaining in the opening period as the Hoyas went on a 13-4 run to take a 40-31 halftime lead.

shovel pass to Rakers for a power layin that gave SIU-C a 20-12 advantage.

Ignoring Illinois State's halfcourt zone trap, the Salukis continued to execute their passing game. With 5 seconds left in the half, Heimstead ran the give 'n' go with Fitzpatrick, granting Heimstead an open baseline jumper that put SIU-C ahead 26-20 at intermission.

The first half success was short-lived, though, as Illinois State senior guard Pam Tanner cranked up her team's offense. She opened the half with a steal and a fastbreak layup, then hit from the left wing to pull the Redbirds within two, 28-26 at 18:22.

"I tried to be a little more aggressive than I had been," Tannersaid.

Tanner kept up the torrid pace. She finished with a game-high 18 points and six steals before fouling out with 44 seconds to go.

"We were out of sync at the start of the second half," Scott said. "We had to call timeout to make a switch offensively. That was a crucial point."

Although Illinois State tied at 28-all, the Redbirds never took the lead. The Salukis concentrated on getting lob passes underneath to the 6-4 Kampwerth, who had 14 points and 8 rebounds.

"Our inside game is stronger than anyone else in the conference because of our height advantage," Kampwerth said. "At the beginning we were looked at as an underdog. Now we've become a team to beat."

Illinois State got within a goal, 48-46, after Ferrell hit a Kaufmann charged down court and nailed a 3-pointer to cut the lead to 50-49. Then at 44 seconds, Tanner fouled out, putting Heimstead on the line. She made both free throws for a 53-49 advantage.

Cyd Mitchell added another free throw for SIU-C, while Ferrell scored off an offensive rebound as time expired.

Fitzpatrick missed a handful of games because of a knee injury, but she's back at nearly full strength, averaging 16.6 points.

Fitzpatrick did not play in the last meeting between the two schools, when Drake captured a 68-64 win Feb. 4 in Des Moines. SIU-C won the first meeting, 63-45 Jan. 7.

Yow said the game could come down to the seniors, particularly 6-0 guard Susan Caspers, 6-2 center Caroline Orr and 5-7 guard Missy Slockett.

"Drakes' seniors were in the playoffs last year, maybe they have an advantage in that regard," Scott said. "We also have three seniors that have been there and know what it's like to play in that situation."

"But then again, when you enter postseason play, you put the past behind you. I know it sounds cliché, but it's a new season."

Women's 4 X 400 relay team sets school record

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Rosanne Vincent and the 4 X 400 team of Danielle Sciano, Dora Kyriacou, Angie Nunn, and Vincent each set new school records at the Hoosier Hills Invitational in Indianapolis, Ind.

Vincent took third in the 800-meters in a school record 2:11.99. Her time was 2.69 off the NCAA qualifying standard of 2:09.30.

"I am dissappointed that I didn't qualify," Vincent said.

"But I'm really satisfied with my time, it was my best ever. I knew I was going fast, but I couldn't hold on at the end."

The 4 X 400 team placed first in Friday's meet in another school record 3:47.32, beating the qualifying mark of 3:41.75.

"We really ran well together," Sciano said. "We wanted to qualify but getting the school record isn't too bad."

Christiana Philippou notched two seconds — the long jump and the triple jump.

Philippou came up short of the NCAA distances while leaping 18-11 and 39-4 feet, respectively.

Kyriacou took second in the 400-meters in 55.8 seconds and also placed fifth in the 200-meters in 25.17.

Nunn finished just behind Kyriacou in the 400. She took third place honors with a time of 56.0.

Coach Don DeNoon said he expected more of his athletes to qualify, but there will be more chances.

"I expected a couple of the girls to make it to the NCAAs," DeNoon said. "It is not over though. We have outdoor starting in just a week. We will have a number of girls qualifying."

One athlete that had no pressure to qualify this weekend was Kathy Raske. Raske qualified for the 55-meter hurdles at last week's Gateway conference championship meet.

No men's track team qualifiers

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The men's track team went to the Florida Fast Times Invitational looking to qualify a few athletes for next week's NCAA championships.

400-meter runner Erick Pegues, pole vaulter Mike Michels, and the two-mile relay team all went to Saturday's competition to get one last chance for an indoor qualifying performance.

Unfortunately for the Salukis, none of the competitor could pass the NCAA's rigid qualifying times.

One performance that stood out was the first place win of the 4 X 400 team of Paul Burkinshaw, Paul Glanville, David Beauchem, and Craig Steele, which broke the SIU-C school record of 7:36.34. The team fell short of the NCAA qualifying time of 7:34.88.

Pegues, a three-time Missouri Valley Conference champion, placed sixth in the 400-meters in 47.71, short of the qualifying time of 47.16.

Michels, last week's winner at the conference championships, didn't make the initial height of 16-feet at the Florida meet.

"I wasn't ready mentally," Michels said. "I has trouble with my pole, which was my fault. It was a good learning experience though."

Coach Bill Cornell said that he was somewhat dissappointed with the outcome.

"I expected a little better," Cornell said.

Soviets win 13 medals at Track championship

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) — The Soviet Union finished Sunday with the most medals at the World Indoor Track and Field Championships followed by a depleted U.S. squad.

The Soviets earned four gold, five silver and four bronze medals. The United States, competing without Olympic champions Carl Lewis and Joe de Loach, sprinters Floyd Heard and Mark Witherspoon and recently retired Florence Griffith-Joyner, won four golds, three silvers and four bronze.

East Germany captured eight medals, including two golds, while West Germany had two golds in a six-medal haul. Cuba, which boycotted the Olympics six months ago, ended with two golds, a silver and a bronze.

Andres Simon, who beat Lewis earlier in the season, used a lightning start in the 60-meter sprint to clock 6.52 seconds, matching the fastest time in the world this year.

Outdoor world record holder Javier Sotomayor won Cuba's other gold with a world record 7-foot-11 1/2 high jump Saturday.

On Sunday, three Americans retained the titles they won at the first World Indoors Championships in Indianapolis two years ago.

Roger Kingdom earned America's first gold Friday night in the 60-meter hurdles. Antonio McKay retained his 400-meter crown, Larry Myricks his long jump title and Mike Conley the triple jump.

Conley, who won a bronze in the long jump, and Jamaica's Merlene Ottey, who won the 200-meter gold and a bronze in the 100 meters, were the only double medal winners.

Said Aouita proved he has recovered from the injuries that affected him last September by winning the 3,000.

"Many people thought after my poor performances in Seoul I would never again produce my best, and I was able to prove to day I am back to my best," Aouita said.

The Moroccan clocked the relatively slow time of 7:47.94 with Spain's Jose Luis Gonzalez second in 7:48.66 and European indoor champion Dieter Baumann of West Germany third in 7:50.47.

Defending champion Frank O'Mara hit the front with three laps to go but was outrun in the closing stages and finished fifth.

McKay retained his 400-meter title in an American record of 45.59 seconds, the fastest time in the world this year. Trinidad's Ian Morris clocked 46.09 to edge out European champion Cayetano Cornet of Spain, who won the bronze in 46.40.

Olympic 800-meter silver medalist Christine Wachtel of East Germany won the 800-meter title in 1:59.24, with silver medalist Tatyana Grebenchuk of the Soviet Union (1:59.53) and Ellen Kiessling of East Germany (1:59.68).

Salukis hopeful third time's a charm vs. 19-10 Bluejays

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

WICHITA, Kan. — The Creighton Bluejays, who own two regular season wins over SIU-C will be the Salukis' opponent at 8:30 Tuesday night in the MVC tournament title.

The Bluejays held off a late Drake rally Sunday to move to the championship game with a 54-49 win.

Bob Harstad scored 16 points for Creighton, 19-10, while Chad Gallagher added 14 and James Farr 12.

"I'm not the painter painting a pretty picture," Creighton coach Tony Barone said. "We just wanted the game."

"The key to the game was our rebounding in the second half especially. We were shooting a step outside our range and that makes a big difference."

The Bluejays may enter the final game minus the services of three-point sharpshooter Matt Roggenbuck who suffered an ankle injury in the game. Barone said Gallagher is suffering a bruised tailbone.

No matter who is on the court for Creighton, Saluki forward Rick Shipley said revenge is on SIU-C's mind.

"We know they beat us twice in the regular season," Shipley said. "We should have won at their place and that is in the back of our minds. I think we'll get them this time."

Missouri Valley notes

Comments on Kal

When it comes to talking to MVC coaches about the Salukis, Kai Nurnberger's name never fails to escape their comments.

"Nurnberger is a gutsy player and he's successful," Tulsa coach J.D. Barnett said, after the Salukis dumped the Golden Hurricane 73-66 Saturday. "He gets the most out of what he's got. He's the kind of player I like to watch."

Colorful coach

Coach of the Year recipient Tony Barone was the hands down winner of Most Colorful Coach at Saturday's session.

In the Bluejays game against Indiana State, Barone hopped about on the sidelines with some moves that would have made SIU-C coach Rich Herrin look twice. At one point, Barone lay face down on the floor slapping his hands on the court.

On Todd Eisner's knee injury: "He's a walking injury."

That is probably the only part of his body he hasn't hurt, so he was ready for it."

On being ready for Sunday's game while sitting with obviously tired Matt Roggenbuck and Chad Gallagher: "Just ask these guys. They're ready to go out and play again right now. Well, maybe that's a bit of an exaggeration."

Notable quotes

"We make teams play ugly with our triangle and two defense. We disrupt teams with our junk stuff." — Drake coach Tom Abatemarco.

"As you know I'm a Cub fan and there are some guys who come in against the Cubs and bat .500 but bat .190 all season long. Drake's Eric Berger is like that for us. He kills us." — Creighton coach Tony Barone.

"All the emotional advantages are with Wichita. They have the crowd, the atmosphere and the intensity plus they have the veterans." — Illinois State coach Bob Drenwald on March 3.

"We feel pretty bad. We were picked the favorite. Maybe that's a bad luck word for us." — Wichita State forward Dwayne Praylow.

Harstad's free throws lift Creighton by Drake

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Bob Harstad scored 16 points Sunday, including four free throws in the final 58 seconds, to push Creighton into the championship game of the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament with a 54-49 victory over Drake.

Creighton, 19-10 and the No. 1 seed in the tournament, will face the winner of Sunday's other semifinal — Illinois State against Southern Illinois. The MVC championship game is set for Tuesday night.

Drake's Eric Berger missed a 3-point shot with six seconds left and his team trailing 52-49. Harstad rebounded, was fouled and sank two free throws with one second left for the final points. He also hit two free throws with 58 seconds left to put Creighton on top, 51-46. Drake's Terrill Jackson answered with a 3-point basket eight seconds later to cut that lead to 51-49.

Creighton's James Farr hit one of two free throws with 32 seconds left to set up Berger's shot.

The Bluejays posted their biggest lead, 42-30, with 9:38 left, but Drake went on a 16 run to cut the margin to 49-46 with 1:00 remaining. Jackson spurred the rally with 9 points, including a pair of 3-point baskets.

Drake, 12-17, played without starter Sam Roark, who suffered ligament damage in his right knee in a first-round game Saturday against Bradley.

"He doesn't lose his composure," Herrin said. "He doesn't go back and just nail someone."

Shipley said he feels motivated defensively after failing to convert on offense.

"I go down to the other end and it makes me work harder," Shipley said. "Little things like that give me an incentive."

Salukis headed for Valley title game

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

WICHITA, Kan. — Not only can the Salukis be satisfied with a 20-win season, but they have paid back a few Missouri Valley accounts in full.

Namely, Illinois State and Tulsa.

Avenging a one-point loss Feb. 27 to the Redbirds, SIU-C advanced to the championship of the MVC tournament against Creighton with a 69-61 win over Illinois State Sunday.

The win comes hot off the heels of a 73-66 win over Tulsa Saturday which erased two losses to the Golden Hurricane in the regular season.

"It is somewhat of a payback," said Rick Shipley, who set a new tournament record Sunday pulling down 20 rebounds in Sunday's game.

"This is something we have been waiting for. We knew it was a three-game season, but now it is a one-game season."

The 20-win season is the first at SIU-C since 1977, also the last year the Salukis made the championship of the Valley tournament, which they won.

"Any time you win 20 on the college level, that's tough,"

Saluki coach Rich Herrin said. Tied at 30 at halftime, Salukis used a scoring run midway through the second half to propel them to the win.

Up 46-44 with 11:11 on the clock, the Salukis scored the next nine points to pull ahead by 11, 55-44. The closest the Redbirds would come was five at 59-54 with 2:16 left.

"This is a different basketball game than the other two we played in that both teams could feel the effects of (Saturday) night," Redbird coach Bob Donewald said.

"They pushed harder for a longer period of time and sustained their effort longer. I thought the game would go to who could hang in the longest and it was them."

The Salukis dominated the boards outbounding the Redbirds 51-32. Shipley's 20 was complemented by 10 from Jerry Jones, who also pulled down 11 rebounds against Tulsa Saturday.

"I felt the board play was significant," Donewald said. "I can't remember us getting any put-back baskets. They also got a little better perimeter shooting from Shipley and (Todd) Krueger than they have in the past."

Kai Nurnberger led the Salukis with 18 points while Shipley added 14, Freddie McSwain 12 and Jones 10. Krueger netted two three-pointers for SIU-C.

But in the end, it was Shipley that stole the spotlight.

"Twenty rebounds is a great effort," Herrin said. Shipley grabbed rebounds on four straight Redbird offensive misses late in the game, twice after failing to convert on offense for the Salukis.

Defense propels women's squad past Gateway champ Illinois State

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The women's basketball team shot only 38.6 percent from the field, yet the Salukis still managed to defeat Illinois State, the Gateway Conference regular season champ who is averaging 77.6 points per game.

Wichita State's own brand of man-to-man defense known as "player defense," the Salukis rewarded the Arena crowd of 759 with a 53-51 upset of the Redbirds on Friday, avenging a 23-point loss earlier in the season while preserving an eight-game win streak.

"We are playing as well as we possibly can play, with as much effort as our players can give," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "To hold ISU 26 points under their average was just a super job defensively. We need to keep it going with the same type of intensity."

The Salukis, who started this season with a 2-5 record, but transformed it into an 18-9 overall mark and a 15-3 Gateway finish, open the conference tournament against Drake (17-10, 12-6) tonight.

Illinois State (20-7, 16-2) plays Eastern Illinois (16-11, 11-7), an 81-53 victor over Indiana State Friday. The championship is Thursday.

"We are playing well right now. We weren't always this confident," said Amy Rakers, who showed no sign of the ankle injury that she suffered two days before the Illinois State game. She led the Salukis with 14 points and 8 rebounds.

"It felt fine. I didn't really think about it." Rakers and Cathy Kampwerth had to clog the lane against Illinois State's Leslie Ferrell, who was held to 7 points, and LuAnn Robinson, who had 10.

"Southern used their size effectively," said Illinois State coach Jill Hutchison, noting SIU-C's composite 7-inch height advantage in the post. "They did a nice job of shutting down our inside game."

That left 5-8 senior guard Dana Fitzpatrick (who earned her 19 points by posting up on Illinois State's two 5-7 guards) to deal with Illinois State's 6-0 sophomore forward Cindy Kaufmann. In a one-on-one situation the entire game, Fitzpatrick forced Kaufmann to miss eight shots and finish with 12 points, nearly three below her average.

"I think Dana did a heck of a job out there," Scott said. "We have a great deal of respect for Kaufmann. But we thought if Fitzpatrick could contain her it would work to our advantage."

Offensively, the Salukis played well in spurts. In the first half, they went on a 16-4 run, highlighted by a deft passing display at 6:03 when freshman Colleen Heimstead fired the ball into the low post at Fitzpatrick, who fed a

In her third season as head coach at Drake, Susan Yow has tried to bring a touch of Tobacco Road's basketball success to Des Moines, Iowa — and despite the inhospitable climate there, she is succeeding.

Yow, a Gibonsville, N.C., native who earned all-American honors while playing for her older sister Kay Yow at North Carolina State in 1976, has her Drake Bulldogs making their second appearance in the Gateway Conference tournament.

The 34-year-old coach's task at hand is to rally her team from Friday's draining 79-64 loss to last-place Wichita State so the third-seeded Bulldogs can challenge the second-seeded Salukis tonight in the first round of the Gateway tournament.

Tipoff is 7:35 at the Arena. "It depends entirely if we are ready to play," Yow said. "The only thing consistent about us is our inconsistency. That's a character flaw with this team. We have not lost a single game that I thought we have played well in. But if we play poorly, I predict an 18-point victory for Southern. I just hope the right team shows up."

The Bulldogs enter at 17-10 overall, 12-6 Gateway. The loss at Wichita snapped a five-game win streak. In addition, Drake has been on the road since last Tuesday, though you won't hear Yow making an issue of their extended stay from home. "I don't think it will be a factor," Yow said.

Yow also refuses to talk about pressure. "I know for myself I don't sense a tournament feel I think Southern's homecourt advantage neutralizes all that."

As far as Saluki coach Cindy Scott is concerned, all the homecourt advantage in the world will not neutralize Drake's junior playmaker Jenni Fitzgerald, who leads the Gateway in 3-point shooting at 47.7 percent and assists at 6.3 per game.

"Fitzgerald could well be the best point guard in the conference," Scott said. "She is a premier guard and a heady player who shoots well."

The Bulldogs also have 6-1 senior forward Julie Fitzpatrick back in the lineup.
