So This Is London

Most Popular Play of 1922 in Both
England and America

The Socratic play, "So This is London", is considered by critics to be the most intensely interesting and amusing play that has ever been staged. Its universal appeal has been felt not only throughout this country, but also in England, where the kindly and keen observation of the author was justly appreciated as much as it was by the American public. The London audiences went wild when the scene depicted the Englishman's idea of the gum-chewing Americans—like wise, the American tourists in St. Martin's, the London show house, loudly applauded when the scene shifted to the American's idea of the English tea hounds.

The son of a rich and characteristically American shoe manufacturer, Hiram Draper, Jr., becomes acquainted with Eleanor Beauchamp, daughter of Sir Percy Beauchamp, an English manufacturer of shoes. The meeting took place in the most romantic of all spots, on ship board, prior to the opening of the play. Before the boat arrives in England the young people are engaged, to the consternation of both families. Old man Draper imagines (and his notion is dramatically shown in a very funny scene) that all English people are affected fools—"Bally rot and all that"—while Sir Percy (in a similar scene) is convinced that all Americans chew gum and tobacco. At last the two families meet and become acquainted with each other, finding to their great surprise that there is not so very much difference between England and America after all. Thereupon the family opposition of both sides is dropped and the young people are allowed to marry. It may be said in passing that the uniting of both families means the uniting of the two big rival shoe factories.

The principal roles are taken by Lucille Gray as the English daughter, Wendell Margrave and Harriet Dubois, as Hiram Draper and his wife, Othel Eaton and Martha Heinrich as the English couple, Harry Hicks as the young American boy, Melba Davidson as the Lady Amy Ducksworth and Everett McGlasson as the English business man.

The first act takes place in the

Zetetic Annual Banquet Held Friday

The Zetetic Society celebrated this year's successful work with their annual banquet at the Christian church Friday evening, May 20. The dining room was decorated in the society colors of green and white with unique individual place cards bearing the names of the loyal Zetets and their friends, also the visiting Socrats and faculty members.

Prof. Dilla Hall, who for many years was a very faithful worker in this organization, was toastmaster. The society was also fortunate in being honored with the presence of Mr. Blakey, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Southern Illinois, who gave a talk on college life. Miss Hamilton, a state Y. W. C. A. worker, gave a talk.

After the welcoming speech of the Zetetic president and the Socratic response, the remainder of the program was as follows:

Vocal solo—Helen Duncan.
Violin solo—Doris Reiman.
Toasts: "Craig's Wife," the Zetetic spring play.
Craig's Wife—Catherine Brewer.
Romance—Wyatt Aikin.
Applesauce—Bessie Curtis.
Intelligence—Bessie Smith.
Gates—Lemen Wells.
Socrats—Corem Waller.
Women—Bert Casper.
Ignorance—Irwin Yates.
Fords—Frank Armentrout.
Eats—Lucille Throop.
Vocal solo—Warner Dixon.

There was a very unique color scheme carried out at one table and the colors were not the established ones for the Zetets. For particulars, see Frank Armentrout.

BRADLEY TECH WINS 1. I. A. C. TRACK MEET

Bradley Tech won the eighth annual Illinois Intercollegiate Track and Field meet held at Peoria Saturday with a total of forty-one points. Knox finished second, and Illinois State Normal third. S. I. N. U., along with six other state colleges failed to score.

The tennis tournament was not held due to wet courts. Kunze and Lollar were to represent the Teachers, and we are sure that the point column would have been different if the tour-

Concert Reveals Rare Home Talent

The Choral Society and Orchestra should be highly elated at the success of their program. The student body is accustomed to a high degree of art in such entertainments, but this was one of the best it has attended. The Chorus is the best the school has had, at least within the memory of the present generation of students. They gave their three numbers much as professionals might have done. The soloists were Arline O'Brien, Doris Moore, Bessie Bevis, Carl Williams and Irwin Kelly. Warner Dixon gave the monotone recital of the Nicene creed in the second number.

The S. I. N. U. orchestra is better now than it has ever been in the history of the school. Its performance was increased by the participation of Mr. Max Steindel, cellist, and Mr. Tholl violist, of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The first part of the program consisted of three numbers, "Overture to Russian and Ludmilla" by Glinka, "Andante from the 5th Symphony," by Beethoven, and "Concerto in G Minor, Opus 25" (Mendelssohn) which was rendered perfectly by Mrs. Helen Smith Matthes.

Four cello solos followed. They were: "Italian Long Song," "Laendler" and "Tarentelle," Max Steindel was the cellist, Helen Smith Matthes accompanied.

The last two numbers were by the orchestra. One of them is already one of the school favorites, "In a Persian Marketplace". The second number was "Einzugsmarch de Bojaren."

The temptation is to indulge in superlatives, but a simpler statement is that the school is proud of its musical department and appreciates the efforts of all those who helped make the program a success.

Criticism of music is valuable only when the critic is competent. The Egyptian wishes to publish the words of George M. Brush, a competent critic of music, to express its appreciation of the concert.

One attends certain functions either to show professional courtesy or manifest community spirit. On such occasions one expects to be more or less bored, perhaps. There is always

Craig's Wife

"Craig's Wife," the Zetetic play, was awarded the thousand dollar Pulitzer prize for the American original play, which best represented the educational value and power of the stage in raising the standard of good morals, good taste and good manners. It is the portrait of a thoroughly selfish woman. Mrs. Craig is house-crazy. She worships her house as coldly as ragans do their idols, and frets so much about dust that a frank domestic reminds her that she will be dust herself some day, or, that is, if she isn't drowned."

Mrs. Craig married Walter Craig, a well-to-do, common sense business man, not for love of him but to secure her future—cold unscrupulous, calculating, she moves about her beautiful home a merciless, malignant figure, bullying the servants, picking at her husband, snubbing the neighbors. Finally the worm turns, and after a violent scene, the husband leaves the house forever, and Mrs. Craig is left to herself—just as Miss Austin, the aunt, predicted for her.

Mrs. Craig is as cruel as a Borgia or Medici—she is without social perceptions. This is revealed when, in the midst of a crucial discussion with her husband, in an acute crisis in her life, at a climax of the play, she goes to the mantel and discovers that a maid has moved a bit of bric-a-brac. Her cruelty is Heddagobler-like when she tries to prevent the meeting of her niece with the young man she loves.

Helen Duncan takes the leading role of Mrs. Craig and plays opposite Lemen Wells, who is the patient and long suffering husband. The part of Miss Austin, the aunt, is taken by Kathrine Brewer, who strikes the keynote to the play in one of her speeches—"People who live to themselves, Harriet, are generally left to themselves." Lucille Throop takes the part of Mrs. Frazier, the kind but talkative woman across the way.

The response of audiences and critics in New York, where it ran from October, 1925, through the spring of 1926, testifies to its sincerity and truthfulness, as well as its qualities as entertainment.

The date of this play is Tuesday, June 14.

NOTICE TO ALL STUDENTS WHO EXPECT TO GO TO ENGLAND SOME DAY

Wouldn't you like to know whether all Englishmen really do wear monocles? Or whether they all do say "Righto," "Bally rot" or "Oh, how ripping!" Wouldn't you like to see what they think of us? Or won't it be interesting to see their surprise when they discover that we're not all gamblers or that all husbands do not speak of their wives as the "hull and chain," etc. Come to see "So This is London" and see how delightful the English are after all. Of course, the English lady wonders whether our Niagara Falls are still running or not, or our cute American lady spoofs a little, or lies a little for the fun of it or tells her, "No, we had to stop them on account of shortage of labor." But that's all in the game. You'll enjoy this show. It's June 13.

I. S. N. U. PAPER EXPECTS WEEKLY FEE FROM ADS

President Felmley announced Saturday that a course in Journalism is to be offered at Normal University all three terms next year to fit teachers to manage and direct High school publications. In connection with this course Dr. Felmley plans to use the Vidette as a "playground" for the class. He hopes to make the Vidette an eight page weekly with no advertising and to allow the Journalism class to contribute 40 percent of the material, the remainder being taken care of by the regular staff. This would make the money for the support of the paper come from the activity fee. At present advertising pays for about one-half of the cost of the paper. This matter is to come before the Student Council and the apportionment board at a later date.

TRUE LOVE

About a year after Jim Smith got married his wife said to him one night: "Jim you do not speak so affectionately to me as you used to when we were first married. I fear you have ceased to love me."

"Ceased to love you?" growled the man. "There you go again. Why I love you more than life itself. Now, shut up and let me read the baseball news."—Bucknell Bell Hop.

THE GROWTH OF OUR SCHOOL

Students and members of the faculty who have come to Carbondale within recent years can hardly imagine dear old S. I. N. U. as it existed fifty years ago.

The first building was dedicated July 1, 1874 and the first faculty commenced the work of instruction on the following day, July 2. At that time a summer session of four weeks was opened, with fifty-three students in attendance. This beautiful building, the pride of this part of the state, burned to the ground November 26, 1883.

What is now known as the "Main Building" was erected on the old site and dedicated February 24, 1887. For the next nine years it housed the entire student body which was only about four hundred. Then came the Science Building in 1896; the Library Building in 1904; the Allyn Building in 1909; Anthony Hall in 1913; and within recent years the auditorium and new Gymnasium.

What has just been said does not read like an editorial, but your thinking is now directed not so much to the growth in the number of students, but to their calibre and to the type of work that has been done within recent years. Instead of a large high school enrollment, strengthened by a small number of college students, we now pride ourselves upon the fact that ours is no longer a school of class "C" rank but now has class "B" standing, and is rapidly qualifying as a class "A" college.

What has been accomplished within the last ten or fifteen years is pretty generally known throughout Southern Illinois, but the causes of these accomplishments are not so thoroughly understood.

Without a doubt the greatest single factor is the dominating force of President Shryock, who has worked incessantly for the kind of college we now enjoy. In fact, he has lost himself in service to what he considers the biggest thing in this world, that of taking the youth of our country and helping them to develop into useful men and women. May we somehow catch the spirit of education, as it is revealed to us, and pass it on to those with whom we come in contact?

Best Similes of 1927

The sixth annual crop of similes harvested by Frank Wilstach from the literature of 1927 contains these examples:

- As necessary as the black squares in a crossword puzzle.
- As commonplace as garters in a motor bus.
- As bashful as a college student in a raccoon coat.
- As brutally frank as a passport photograph.
- As thrilling as a phonograph record of a Liberty loan speech.
- As shaky as a set of flivver windows.
- As jolly as a hospital.
- As inconspicuous as a new filling station.
- As obscure as the king of Italy.
- As near alike as an alligator and an alligator pear.
- As mean as the man who gave away a homing pigeon.
- As terrible as a radio trio.
- As slick as a crippled grasshopper in a pen of turkeys.
- As slick as an oyster in a bottle of castor oil.
- As nervy as a set of false teeth.
- As unfriendly to the touch as a horsehair sofa.
- Her smile was as misleading as a detour.
- His face was as red as a movie exit light.

S. I. N. U. CONTRIBUTES TO FLOOD FUND

Mr. Smith made a very impressive appeal to the student body and faculty last week in Chapel at which time he urged their support in aiding homeless and starving families of the flood districts. He especially wanted to aid those people in McClure and in nearby counties where the railroad was forced to abandon its services because of flood conditions. But the Illinois Central railroad has consented to assist the Carbondale headquarters in distributing food, clothing, and funds for the shelter and the help of these unfortunates. It was reported that scores of families in distress have had to seek refuge in box cars with practically nothing to eat and they are in dire want of more clothing. The collection from this college amounted to $150.31.

NORMAL WINS BOTH SINGLES AND DOUBLES AT MCKENDREE

On Saturday, May 14, the Normal tennis team went to McKendree for the purpose of participating in a tennis tournament, the winners of which are to go to Peoria for the state tournament. The Normal was represented by Elmer Kunze and Max Lollar in doubles, and by Ray Ferrill and Kunze in singles.

It was a very disagreeable day for tennis. The wind was unusually strong and prevented any of the teams from playing good tennis. At frequent intervals there were light showers which compelled the players to discontinue the playing.

The teams participating in the tournament were: McKendree, Shurtleff, Illinois college and Carbondale Normal. Charleston and Blackburn were supposed to enter, but did not come.

In the draw for the doubles matches McKendree drew Illinois college and Normal drew Shurtleff. McKendree defeated Illinois college without any trouble. Kunze and Lollar defeated Wood and Welsh of Shurtleff, the score being 6-3 and 6-2. It was not necessary to play the finals as two teams were to go to the Peoria meet.

In the draw for singles Ferrill drew Mowe of McKendree. Ferrill was defeated in this match. Our only hopes now lay in Kunze, who was also entered in singles. Kunze proved equal to the occasion, and defeated Meyers of Illinois college and Mowe of McKendree. Mowe and his partner were second in the state meet last year. His ability as a tennis player soon came out in his contest with Kunze. The score in this match was 8-6 and 6-4. The state contestants from this section will be McKendree and Carbondale in the doubles, and Illinois college, and Carbondale in the singles.

SIGMA ALPHA PI ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Sigma Alpha Pi Fraternity is now finishing one of the most successful years since its formation. Under the leadership of Lester Buford and the cooperation of all of the members the Fraternity has figured very much in S. I. N. U. activities this year.

They are now preparing for an other successful year by electing new officers and making other plans for next year.

The officers for next year are Clyde Dearing, commander, and Clarence Samford, secretary-treasurer. With such leaders at the head of the fraternity it is sure to be successful next year.

A. A. U. W. MEETS

The American Association of University Women met last Tuesday, May 17, at the home of Mrs. Fuller Coombs, for the election of officers. Twelve members were present.

The officers for the coming year are:

President—Mrs. Fuller Coombs.
Vice President—Miss Mary Louise Fry.

Secretary—Mrs. John Jaquish.
Treasurer—Miss Mina Fox.
Some plans were discussed but were left to be further considered at the next meeting.

LEADING UNIVERSITIES RECOGNIZE OUR STUDENTS IN ZOOLOGY

Two of the leading universities of Illinois are honoring our students, by offering them positions as graduate assistants for the coming year in the Department of Zoology.

Willard M. Gersbacher goes as assistant in Zoology to the University of Illinois. Here under the direction of Dr. Victor E. Shelford, an authority in Animal Ecology, he will continue the ecological research studies which he has begun during this year while here in school.

Lemen Wells will go to the Northwestern University, Evanston, also as a graduate assistant in Zoology. While at Evanston he will continue his studies in Zoology and do research for his master's degree under the direction of Dr. F. D. Barker.

These are the first men who have gone from our school as regular graduate assistants in college work. They are well equipped for the task and our school looks forward to their success as the doorway through which others may pass to such recognition.

"SO THIS IS LONDON"

Drapers' suite at the Ritz, London; the second act is in Sir Percy Beauchamp's living room in Brimshap, a day later; and the third act is in Lady Ducksworth's drawing room, the same day.

The date of this play is Monday, June 13, in the Auditorium.

one reward in such a case, viz: the feeling that one has done one's duty toward others who are aspiring for higher accomplishment. But there may also be a second reward, namely—surprise and gratification with the quality of the entertainment offered. The latter reward was the dominant one received by this writer last night when he was listening to the concert given by the musical forces of the State Teachers' College.

The program offered by Prof. Jaquish was an ambitious one and displayed excellent taste in the character of the selections chosen and their arrangement.

The choral numbers by Tchesnokov and Gretchaninov are beautiful music and were impressively sung by the chorus. Mr. Warner Dixon as the cantor in "Crede" deserves mention.

Buck's familiar Festival Te Deum was sung with animation, the soloists being Arline O'Brien, Doris Moore, Bessie Bevis, Carl Williams and Edwin Kelley. The number was ably accompanied by Miss Ruby Robertson.

Time and space will not permit one to go into detail about the various orchestral numbers. Suffice it to say that all of them were played amazingly well. The ensemble was good; there were no offensive discrepancies in pitch among the various instruments; there was satisfying sonority and working up of climaxes frequently.

This writer felt that the Andante Con Moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony was taken just a shade too slowly. Otherwise the interpretation was surprisingly good.

Helen Smith Matthes, a member of the faculty of the Teachers' College, and a pianist of real talent, was greeted with much applause as she appeared on the stage to play Mendelssohn's brilliant and tuneful concerto in G minor. She acquitted herself with much honor in this fine work, playing with brilliancy and musical understanding. The orchestral accompaniment was excellent, except in two or three passages when it was so loud as to obscure the piano part. Mrs. Matthes received loud and prolonged applause at the close of her performance and the audience wanted an encore. This writer for one was disappointed that she did not respond.

The feature of the evening, professionally speaking, was the appearance of Max Steindell, world-renowned cellist, in a group of solos. He played three programmed numbers and an encore, Nina, by Pergolese.

These were given with the virtuosity and beauty of tone that only a Steindell has at his command. I hope all piano students observed how beautifully Mr. Steindell drew a melody from his cello. So should they strive to transform the piano into an instrument that sings.

Mrs. Matthes gave Steindell fine support with her piano accompaniments; and it is not amiss to state that Steindell himself was enthusiastic over her playing.

Finally, only one in the profession knows the great labor and anxiety associated with the presentation of a program such as that given at the Teachers' College last night.

Mr. Jaquish can take great satisfaction in knowing that he "put over" what he attempted and furnished genuine pleasure for the large audience present.

WEE WUNDER:

Why the Coss family was all upset, last week?

Why Fields tried to ruin the Zetetic furniture?

Why Staley couldn't stay for the rest of the show?

Who played off on Ray Holmes, last Wednesday?

Who explained her absence in the following manner to Mr. Colyer: "I wasn't here tomorrow, but I will be absent yesterday because I got married?"

Why visitors from Springfield are always welcome in Chapel?

NOTICE TO MARRIED STUDENTS OF S. I. N. U.

Is your wife one of these creatures who is a slave to her house? Will she let you smoke in her house? Or must you drag your weary carcass to the back porch while she follows in your wake with a vacuum cleaner? If this ever happened to you, there's just one thing that will cure her. Bring her to the play, "Craig's Wife" Get her a good seat, too—don't let her miss a word, then let her see herself for two hours in a dramatic quarrel on the stage. Just watch her on the morning after June fourteenth—she will be a changed woman after she sees what happened to Mrs. Craig she will be an angel to you. If she doesn't let you smoke all over the premises we'll refund your money.

Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. CABINET HOLDS RETREAT

The annual "Y" retreat was held May 21-22, 1927, at the Country club.

The leaders were Mr. Hugo Thompson, the state Y. M. C. A. student secretary, and Miss Julia Mae Hamilton of the National Student Staff of the Y. W. C. A.

The retiring Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. cabinets, and the newly elected cabinet officers, with their faculty advisors, Mr. Dilla Hall for the Y. M. C. A. and Misses Heridge and Fox, for the Y. W. C. A., constituted the group.

The purpose of the meeting was to plan the work for the coming year, and discuss the present problems.

The Y. W. C. A. girls prepared the eats and all were well cared for.

The group was very active, attentive, and very much interested in our future work.

Mr. Thompson and Miss Hamilton are very able leaders and the meetings were full of spirit.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. wish to thank Mr. Geo. W. Smith, Mrs. Chas. Hayes, Mr. John Stollar, Mr. Bush for the use of their cottages.

OLIVER L. McILRATH,
Y. M. C. A. President.
LUCILLE THROOP,
Y. W. C. A. President.

IDIOTORIAL

If you kiss much you will die young. A San Francisco doctor discovered that just one kiss makes the heart jump from its normal 70 to an abnormal 90 and it beats about 200 extra times before it quiets down. As 1,545,264,000 heart beats is the average for a lifetime, that means every kiss costs 3 minutes of life. But what's life for anyway?
