AN ECONOMY OF ABUNDANCE

If the United States is to win the peace as well as the war, it must solve the problem of FULL EMPLOYMENT. Full employment means providing a job for everyone able and willing to work, regardless of nationality, creed, sex, race or equal pay for equal work.

Our war economy, which harnessed the manpower of 65 million men and women, is an example of an economy of abundance geared to war-time conditions. A continuation of this policy on peacetime level is necessary as seen from the fact that 59.5 million people will seek work. This means we must not go back to pre-war levels of production. If this occurs, at least 20 to 25 million persons will be unemployed.

World War II has established beyond doubt the fact that our prosperity in the United States depends on the prosperity of the world.

Many nations are in dire need of goods. They will want to rebuild their national economies and seek a higher standard of living. To keep goods flowing to these countries, we need an expanded production, employment, exchange, consumption. The adoption of the Bretton Woods plan, for setting up an International Bank and an International Fund, to loan money to devastated and backward areas as well as stabilize currency, will insure a modicum of postwar stability. Along with this, the United States should extend the reciprocal trade agreements and cut down the tariff as has been proposed in Congress. The United States cannot hope to maintain its high standard of living, if that of other countries is at a low level.

In addition to expanding foreign markets, expanding at home is a requisite of FULL EMPLOYMENT. This presupposes control of production by government, labor, management working together instead of monopolistic handling.

One of the major problems of providing full employment at home is the reconversion of our economy with the least amount of unemployment. What to do with 15 billion dollars worth of government owned plants is already causing much concern.

If private industry cannot handle the load, it has been suggested by many that provision be made for federal-state-local public works program. The creation of the Missouri Valley Authority will provide employment for about four million persons. A Federal Housing program could absorb surplus labor. Full production, full employment and full consumption must rest on an adequate program of taxation based on the ability-to-pay principle.

Considering the terrible price paid for the ultimate winning of World War II, it is not too much to ask that our government, coupled with the help of private enterprise and labor provide every American with the goals embodied in President Roosevelt's SECOND BILL OF ECONOMIC RIGHTS:

- THE RIGHT TO EARN ENOUGH FOR ADEQUATE FOOD, CLOTHING AND RECREATION.
- THE RIGHT TO A USEFUL REMUNERATIVE JOB.
- THE RIGHT OF EVERY FAMILY TO A DECENT HOME.
- THE RIGHT OF MEDICAL CARE AND OPPORTUNITY TO ENJOY GOOD HEALTH.
- THE RIGHT OF ADEQUATE PROTECTION FROM FEARS OF OLD AGE, SICKNESS, ACCIDENT, AND UNEMPLOYMENT.
- RIGHT TO A GOOD EDUCATION.

SOONER OR LATER

The question of fundamental human rights is a question over which people have fought more than they have fought for food. It is a question of controversy at the present time, because there are small nations all over the world who want a declaration for the protection of liberties from the United Nations.

Mr. Marshall Field, publisher and editor of the Chicago Star and author of the recent book, Freedom Is More Than a Word, says that this question of guaranteeing certain basic human rights in all countries is in danger of side tracking the main subject of the San Francisco Conference, that of setting up machinery to settle disputes between nations without recourse to war.

Yet, there seems to be a general expectation that a world wide Bill of Rights be drawn up by the United Nations. Such a document has been drafted by a committee representing the principal cultures of the world and appointed by the American Law Institute.

Warren A. Seary, professor of law at the Law School of Harvard University, believes that there are three freedoms which are so fundamental to decent human existence that no country can claim to be civilized which permanently denies them. They are: freedom to give and to receive ideas, the freedom to worship as our conscience dictates, and those freedoms which come from having independent and impartial courts.

Would Russia accept these three freedoms? Can the United States say they have freedom of communication if Russia should rebuke her for suppressing a Communist newspaper? Can the courts of the United States be said to be freemocratic when the rights of a certain creed or race are expounded?

A matter similar to the one of an International Bill of Rights rose during the French Revolution; when they came to draw up the declaration of the rights of man and the citizens. The question was raised as to whether their declaration of rights ought to come before the constitutional question or whether it should come after, as an amendment to and as a limitation upon the constituted authorities. In the University Roundtable on "A World Wide Bill of Rights", April 29, 1945, Louis Gottschalk, professor of modern history at the University of Chicago, summed their findings up as follows: "We all want an international declaration of fundamental human rights, whether sooner or later."

The question still stands: Should an International Bill of Rights be drawn up at the San Francisco Conference?

INTERNATIONAL BILL OF RIGHTS

(Written by Warren A. Seavey, Professor of Law at Law School of Harvard)

PREAMBLE

"Upon the freedom of the individual depends the welfare of the people, the safety of the state, and the peace of the world."

"In society complete freedom cannot be attained; the liberties of the one are limited by the liberties of others, and the preservation of freedom requires the fulfillment by individuals of their duties as members of society."

"The function of the state is primarily to promote conditions under which the individual can be most free."

"To express those freedoms to which every human being is entitled and to assure that no nation shall deprive its citizens of them, this declaration is made."

THE EIGHTEEN ARTICLES OF ESSENTIAL HUMAN RIGHTS, AS DRAFTED BY A COMMITTEE REPRESENTING THE PRINCIPAL CULTURES OF THE WORLD AND APPOINTED BY THE AMERICAN LAW INSTITUTE:

Article I. Freedom of Religion
Freedom of belief and of worship is the right of every one. The state has a duty to protect this freedom.

Article II. Freedom of Opinion
Freedom of form and hold opinions and to receive opinions and information is the right of every one. The state has a duty to protect this freedom.

Article III. Freedom of Speech
Freedom of expression is the right of every one. The state has a duty to refrain from arbitrary limitation of this freedom and to prevent denial of reasonable access to channels of communication.

Article IV. Freedom of Assembly
Freedom to assemble peacefully with others is the right of every one. The state has a duty to protect this freedom. Freedom to form with others associations of a political, economic, religious, social, cultural, or any other character purposes not inconsistent with these articles is the right of every one. The state has a duty to protect this freedom.

Article V. Freedom From Wrongful Interference
Freedom from unreasonable interference with his person, home, reputation, privacy, activities, and property is the right of every one. The state has a duty to protect this freedom.

Article VI. Fair Trial
Every one has the right to have his criminal and civil liabilities and his rights determined without undue delay by fair public trial by a competent tribunal before which he has had opportunity for a full hearing. The state has a duty to maintain adequate tribunals and procedures to make this right effective.

Article VII. Freedom From Arbitrary Detention
Every one who is detained has the right to immediate judicial determination of the legality of his detention. The state has a duty to provide adequate procedures to make this right effective.

Article IX. Retractions Laws
No one shall be convicted of crime except for violation of a law in effect at the time of the commission of the act charged as an offense, nor be subjected to a penalty greater than that applicable at the time of the commission of the offense.

Article X. Property Rights
Every one has the right to own property under general law. The state shall not deprive any one of his property except for a public purpose and with just compensation.

Article XI. Education
Every one has the right to education. The state has a duty to require that every child within its jurisdiction receive education of the primary standard; to maintain or insure that there are maintained facilities for such education which are adequate and free; and to promote the development of facilities for further education which are adequate and effectively available to all its residents.

Article XII. Work
Every one has the right to work. The state has a duty to take such measures as may be necessary to insure that all its residents have an opportunity for useful work.

Article XIII. Conditions of Work
Every one has the right to reasonable conditions of work. The state has a duty to take such measures as may be necessary to insure reasonable wages, hours, and other conditions of work.

Article XIV. Food and Housing
Every one has the right to adequate food and housing. The state has a duty to take such measures as may be necessary to insure that all its residents have an opportunity to obtain these essentials.

Article XV. Social Security
Every one has the right to social security. The state has a duty to maintain or insure that there are maintained comprehensive arrangements for the promotion of health, for the prevention of sickness and accident, and for the provision of medical care and of compensation for loss of livelihood.

Article XVI. Participation in Government
Every one has the right to take part in the government of his state. The state has a duty to conform to the will of the people as manifested by democratic elections.

Article XVII. Equal Protection
Every one has the right to protection against arbitrary discrimination in the provisions and application of the law because of race, religion, sex, or any other reason.

Article XVIII. Limitations on Exercise of Rights
In the exercise of his rights every one is limited by the rights of others and by the just requirements of the democratic state.

THE INEVITABLE AFTER EVERY BIG PARTY

The House of Representatives in the legislature at Springfield has refused to grant to the people of Illinois the right to decide whether we need a constitutional convention or not. The proposal was rejected after five hours of furious debate, several weeks ago by only 21 votes of the required majority.

It was somewhat of a surprise that Chicago representative, who has increased spending in opposition to the measure. Representative (Democrat from Collinsville) stated he felt that there was no public demand and no dilemma in public demand, and further contended that the plan for a constitutional convention was "concocted" to divert the attention of the public from the house and foreign (Democrat from Chicago) proponents of the measure, contended the debate should concern only whether such a proposal should be submitted to the people and not the varied plans for the framing of a new constitution.

MONOGAMY OR BIGAMY

The Supreme Court, earlier this week, returned a decision which should give impetus to a much-needed uniform Federal marriage and divorce law for the 48 states.

In a 6 to 3 ruling, the Court decided that divorce and marriage laws are a matter of state's rights and any state may hold invalid a divorce granted one of its inhabitants under Nevada's 6 week legal residence. This is an about-face in 1942 decision.

The Court upheld a finding in North Carolina that a couple who divorced in Nevada and married again without establishing a bonafide residence in Nevada—were not legally married in North Carolina.

In a dissenting vote on the case, Hugo L. Black said "This decision makes this court the divorce court of the nation. It no more settles the question of divorce, than the Dred Scott case decided the question of slavery."

The reversal of opinion will in all probability affect the Reno divorce and marriage mill. It has already spurred Congressmen to think about the problem. Senator Arthur Capper revealed that he will carry on a fight for a federal divorce and marriage law by introducing one of two measures:

1. Resolution proposing a constitutional amendment which would give Congress authority to enact marriage and divorce laws, or 2. Propose uniform regulation before Senate Judiciary Committee.

Over half of the students in Books in Review, thought the sports coverage was adequate, however, an equal number expressed opinions that sports are not fully covered. A large majority (80%) thought that the editorials were of school wide interest. Only 19% said they were not. Students would rather read editorials on local subjects, than on national or international matters, however, surprisingly, more said they would rather read editorials on international questions than national.

In indicating which page students read first, the reactions were: news page 1st; read first; 56% of students; 27% read feature page first; 9% read editorial page first; 8% read sports page first.

In addition to the many comments made, unfavorable and otherwise, concrete improvements were suggested: for example, several students thought a larger staff should be assigned to cover circulation in order to get the Egyptian boys in service. Another student said that the Egyptian need more and varied ads—"to make it have the appearance of a desirable paper." Several students suggested that in connection with journalism, several courses be instituted that give more training to prospective Egyptian reporters.

STUDENT OPINION POLL

By Lois Alexander
EGYPTIAN RATED HIGH BY STUDENTS

The results of the poll taken last Tuesday show that students at Southern are not too critical in judging the Egyptian. Such comments as "Personally, I think it's a darn good sheet! More power to the staff!" "As good as any professional paper"; "better than the average college paper"; were forthcoming. However, tempered with the favorable were suggestions for improving the Egyptian.

On the whole, students thought the news coverage was adequate but could be improved. Generally, the results of the poll show the following: 69% of the students thought the coverage on club and organizations an adequate, while 25% disagreed; 47% thought annual coverage as adequate, 31% dissented; 42% believed that Personal news was not adequate, while 39% said coverage was sufficient; the news in other activities popular in preference to story to 41%, with 25% saying no.

Students were generally more critical of the features. Suggestions were made to expand features by writing up good interviews on celebrities, S.I.N.U. visitors, students, etc. The results of the feature preference revealed that students are partial to student opinion, news about students, and are enthusiastic about expressing student thinking. This seems to coincide with the present policy of the Egyptian. The ranking on features is as follows:

1. News
2. On the Social Front.
3. Student Opinion Poll.
4. Southern Salutes.
5. Sherman was Right.
6. Xerops from Ebeings.
7. Religion in the News.
8. Musicals.

The president notified the Council that the meeting was Dr. Lay which was to have been held May 15, but had been postponed to 4:30 p. m. May 21.

The committee which was sent to Dr. Lay regarding the picture of the Little Egypt Building, reported that the action recommended by the Council had been taken. Final elections for members to next year's Council are to be held May 22. There was some question concerning the eligibility of some students who were nominated. The question was discussed and the motion was made and seconded that if the nominee would have enough hours to be a member of the class he represents by the opening of Fall term, he should be on the ballot. The motion carried.

TENNEY'S TENNIS TEAM RUNNER-UP IN ANNUAL IAC NET TOURNEY ON THE OLD NORMAL COURTS

Sheffer and Cain Win 3rd and 4th Division Championship in Singles Competition

Dr. Charles D. Tenney's 1945 tennis hopefuls scored six points to finish second to a strong team made up of Navy V-12 Trainees from Old Normal in the annual conference meet on the I.S.N.U. courts. Western State Teachers of Macomb was third in the tri-school meet. Northern of De Kalb and Eastern of Charleston were not represented in tennis this year.

In the first round of the 31st division singles, Southern's Jim Knott lost a close and well played match to the very consistent Dillon of Macomb. Paul Smith, the Macomb number two, was defeated by Wich of Old Normal 6-1, 6-0.

It was in third and fourth division play that Southern picked up her points. Don Sheffer defeated Vir of Western in a four fought three set match 5-6, 11-9, 6-3.

At general points Vir needed only one point to win over the Southern basketball star. But, the persistent Sheffer, kept plugging to win the second set 11-9, and went on to win the third set easily.

In fourth division play, Ted Cain won over Hughley, another naval trainee from Normal, 6-0, 4-6, 6-3 to win the championship in this division.

Each of Southern's doubles teams dropped its initial match. Norman and Smith met the strong team from Normal; King and Wich. The latter pair went on to win the doubles championship. And, Sheffer and Cain dropped out of play by losing to Zimmerman and Rhodes of Western 8-6, 1-6, 6-4.

In the later competition to determine the individual champion, Sheffer and Cain lost to Wich. Then, the two Normal stars met in the final and Wich won the individual championship 6-5, 6-4, 6-3.

Postcards with the son's address are given to the men who get a piece of the birthday cake so that the men in Italy write the boy if they wish.

Normal, Illinois What a Cincinnati Red Likes... An ambitious Hittopow student has interviewed Eric Tipton, the slugging left-fielder of the Cincinnati Reds. Eric was born in Petersburg, Va., in 1915. He attended Duke University and graduated in 1939 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. Playing football for Duke from 1935-37, he was a three-time All-American halfback in 1938. He was co-captain of the Rose-Hulman team of 1941. He has been playing organized baseball on the Philadelphia Athletics under Connie Mack. After playing a while for Kansas City he came to the Reds in 1942 in a trade for Harry Carter. Since he has been hit by the steady ball season after for many seasons last season he hit 201. At first Tim was a pitcher, but he has reached fame as an outfielder.

The Highland student also found out many personal information. He was in the Wisconsin. Highland High School, Port Thomas, Ky.
