Minister finds 'Heaven's Gate'; describes 'extra' life as trying

Editor's Note: So you've always wanted to be in the movies? The Rev. Theodore A. Gill, director of University Christian Ministries, got his big break in "Heaven's Gate." This is his story.

By the Rev. Theodore A. Gill, Jr., Director of University Christian Ministries.

"Heaven's Gate" is something unusual among contemporary films: an unmitigated disaster. Or so wrote Vincent Canby of the New York Times when Michael Cimino's epic western was first released last fall.

Thanks to the unanimity of opinion expressed by Canby and his fellow critics, the film was withdrawn from circulation the next day, cut by over 90 minutes, and re-released April 24. The latest critical response can be summarized by the Globe-Democrat's headline, "Heaven's Gate" is Still a Distasteful Movie."

In my own small way, I contributed to making "Heaven's Gate" what it is today.

It started in Oxford, England, just over a year ago. I was completing the residence requirement for a doctorate at Oxford University and serving as minister of a church several miles away. I was a student at Mansfield College, one of the more than 30 colleges which make up that university.

"Did you hear? United Artists is going to make a film here over spring break!"

The news spread through the library and commons rooms of Mansfield College hours before any official announcement had been made. The board of trustees had signed a contract to rent out the entire college as a movie set. The rental fee was $40,000.

We heard that Michael Cimino was the director and that the film had a $32 million budget. As it turned out, the original budget had been $15 million, but it has ended up costing nearly $50 million.

We heard Cimino planned to dig up the circular lawn in our central quad and put in a 40-foot silver beech tree imported from America. At an Oxford college, the manicured lawns are venerated almost as much as the library and bar.

We heard that our Oxford locale had been selected as the opening scene for a western. And in the film it would be described as Harvard, circa 1870. It took some time for that particular insult to lose its sting.

We heard the film would star Kris Kristofferson, a former Rhodes scholar who holds a master of arts in English literature from Oxford. The singer-actor would be living in a room in the college during spring break.

Best of all, we heard that this movie was a Hollywood epic in grand style. It would feature a "cast of thousands," and any Mansfield student could have a job as an extra. The pay was $5 a day and the excitement of being in the movies.

So I put in for a two-week leave from my church and arranged for guest preachers those Sundays. There are such things as priorities in life.

Our first day's work was a costume fitting. At Pinewood Studios near London we received tail-coats, stove-pipe hats and fancy vests. There was even some talk of shaving off beards, but we hastily persuaded the assistant director that whiskers were as popular at Harvard in 1870 as in Oxford in 1870.

Meanwhile, back at the college, the tree was being installed. In place of roots there was a huge concrete block to support the 40-foot trunk. Once that was in place, the severed limbs were nailed back on. Finally, the leaves were tacked to the ends of the branches. The tree cost United Artists almost $50,000 and the college demanded more money for damage to the lawn.

All manner of papier-mache backdrops were erected around the college to eradicate the sight of telephone poles, city traffic and electric lights. A full-scale plaster cast of the city wall was built along one side of the quad. Though what a 12th Century wall was doing in Massachusetts remains unexplained.

As this work neared completion, we extras were whisked back to Pinewood Studios for our first and only day of rehearsal. Again, it consisted almost entirely of

ISSC neutral on funding bill

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission neither supports nor opposes legislative action to "borrow" $3 million from next year's proposed budget to use as supplemental ISSC funding this year, an ISSC legislative liaison said Tuesday.

Sue Leonis said the commission did not initiate the legislative action and will not take a stance on it.

"If it works—fine. If it doesn't, it doesn't," Leonis said.

The move is designed to sidestep a $2.7 million to $3.4 million ISSC shortfall this year. It was initiated by the Federation of Independent Colleges and Universities as a reaction to ISSC plans to reduce student awards in order to balance this year's budget.

The FICU feels the ISSC has a legal obligation to follow through on awards it has already made. The group hopes to amend some other agency's supplemental funding bill, probably one which has passed the Illinois House but not the Senate.

Leonis said that if the ISSC takes a stance on the amendment, it stands to lose no matter what the General Assembly does.

If the commissioners oppose the amendment, they may offend the substantial number of educators who support it, she said.

But she said that if commissioners support the measure, they have no guarantee that the governor will sign it. If the governor neither signs nor vetoes the amended bill, the ISSC would be out $3 million next year and would have no supplemental money this year.

If the ISSC does not get supplemental funding, it plans to deduct $100 from spring-term and third-quarter awards to 33,000 students statewide who have unmet needs of $800 or less.

Camille, director of student work and financial assistance, said a "substantial number" of SIU-C students would be billed by the University.

He said an earlier plan to reduce all awards by 10 percent would be more equitable, even though more students would be affected. Under the previous plan, overruled by ISSC action Monday, SIU-C students would be billed a maximum of $148.88.

The new plan would also be more unfair to public school students because they get smaller awards than private school students, Camille said.

Former director criticizes SIU-C radio-TV program

Editor's note: This is the third part of a series examining the controversy over the separation between SIU-C's Radio-Television Department and the Broadcast Service.

By Karen Gulio
Focus Editor

SIU-C's Radio-Television Department isn't the place for students seeking "hands-on" broadcast experience, according to a former director of the Broadcast Service.

John Kurtz, who was on the radio-television faculty for 18 years and was director of the Broadcast Service from 1971 to 1974, said the separation of the service from the academic department will make it impossible for students to get hands-on experience in the future.

"If students want an education in broadcast that includes experience with equipment, they will have to go somewhere else," said Kurtz. "In the future, the department will gradually alter the curriculum and faculty and there will be a different program geared towards textbook theory broadcast education and research."

Kurtz is presently the chairman of the Department of Telecommunications at Ball State University in Indiana. He said the split between the two units was one of the reasons he left SIU-C last year.

Kurtz was appointed campus director of the Broadcast Service in 1971. The campus director assisted the official who had the dual role of serving as head of the Broadcast Service and chairman of the department. Kurtz had previously served as the assistant director under Buren Robbins, the first director of the service and founder of the Radio-Television Department.

Before the separation of the two units last August, the director of the service also served as department chair.

Sands' body taken home; 21 are injured in riots

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The body of hunger striker Bobby Sands was carried home from Maze Prison Tuesday in a black hearse that moved slowly through the riot-torn streets of Belfast's Roman Catholic strongholds. Grieving residents draped black flags from their windows to mourn the latest IRA martyr.

Firebomb-hurling rioters clashed with British troops and police in the worst riots in the last two weeks of trouble surrounding Sands' hunger strike. At least 21 people were injured, three critically.

But the level of violence Tuesday fell short of that predicted by those who said Sands' death would trigger civil war.

The body was taken from the prison hospital by authorities shortly after his death early

Tuesday, the 66th day of his fast demanding political status for IRA prisoners. After an autopsy was performed, it was released to Sands' family in the early afternoon.

From the prison, the hearse made its slow, 12-mile journey to Sands' family home in Belfast's Twinbrook district to await an IRA burial Thursday with full military honors — as the IRA guerrilla had requested.

Seventy more of the 440 convicted Irish Republican Army prisoners at the prison threatened to join three of Sands' surviving comrades — one of them reported within days of death — in a hunger strike.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher declared Britain would never grant political status to the IRA prisoners, "no matter how many hunger strikes there may be."

Sands, 27, is the newest martyr to the cause of the IRA and its supporters — unification of the Protestant-dominated British province of Northern Ireland with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic. His death touched off a wave of rioting, hijacking and burning in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast and Londonderry, the province's second largest city.

Disturbances eased in mid-afternoon, but tension was high despite dramatic appeals for calm from Catholic and Protestant church leaders, British officials and Sands' family.

Cardinal Tomas O'Fiaich, Catholic Primate of All Ireland, appealed to the surviving hunger strikers to call off their fast and to Britain "to abandon its inflexible attitude regarding prison dress and work."

Sinn Fein spokesman Austen said Francis Hughes, 25, the IRA's most wanted gunman until his 1978 capture and conviction on a murder charge, was in grave condition, nearly blind and in severe pain on the 52nd day of his hunger strike.

Two other convicted guerrillas, Raymond McCreesh and Patrick O'Hara, both 24, were in the 45th day of their fast.

The rioters were summoned onto the streets as news of Sands' death was spread by women clanging the lids of garbage cans, the signal they have used for years to warn their men when British troops swooped into Catholic districts seeking IRA members.

News Roundup

U. S. shaping new military policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Tuesday that the Reagan administration is shaping a new strategy on military power designed to meet growing Soviet threats anywhere on the globe with extended conventional war, if necessary.

Weinberger indicated strongly that the new administration intends to broaden the main focus of U.S. military strategy, which in recent years has focused mainly on defending Western Europe and has been grounded in an assumption that a war with the Soviet Union would be a short, violent conflict there.

Syria defends use of missiles

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria said Tuesday its deployment of surface-to-air missiles in Lebanon is an "unquestionable" right of self-defense but it will receive a special envoy President Reagan is sending in an attempt to defuse the Israeli-Syrian crisis.

The U.S. announced that retired career diplomat Philip C. Habib would visit Israel, Syria and Lebanon as Reagan's envoy.

Miner shot in Kentucky coalfield

By the Associated Press

Two railroad bridges were dynamited and a miner walking a picket line was shot and wounded Tuesday in the coalfields of eastern Kentucky where a strike by the United Mine Workers has resulted in frequent outbreaks of violence.

Kentucky State Police said the dynamiting and the shooting apparently were unrelated. There were no immediate arrests.

The FBI was called in to investigate the explosions, which occurred in an area that has seen several shootouts between union and non-union forces during the past six weeks.

University to hire consultants for study of available space

By Randy Rogushi
Staff Writer

A $20,000 study designed to examine how SIU-C uses its space will soon be underway and will probably be completed by the end of the summer, according to Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services.

The University hopes to contract with two facilities planners from Purdue University by the end of the week, Dougherty said. The men are James Blakesley, school and space director, and Fred Wolf, facilities consultant.

Dougherty said the study is prompted by complaints from faculty and staff that they are cramped for lab, teaching and office space. The consultants will recommend ways for the university to reorganize its space so that it will be used where it is most needed, he said.

"Getting new construction money from the state is a thing of the past," Dougherty said. "Many, many universities are suffering from the same problems."

President Albert Somit requested the project in November and approved funds for it earlier this semester. The study has been delayed, however, because the consultants have been slow in providing information about their credentials, Dougherty said.

David Grobe, director of facilities planning, said Somit wanted the study done by reputable outside consultants who don't have prior conceptions about the University's use of its space.

He said the University's worst space problems are where the most research is being

Water meter contract awarded by City Council

By Tony Gordon
Staff Writer

Carbondale took the first step Monday night towards the replacement of 5,000 water meters presently in use in the city when the City Council awarded a $127,678 meter purchase contract to a Hinsdale manufacturer.

The meters are being replaced because of concerns raised last year that the city was losing money on consumer water sales due to inaccurate meter operation.

Jack Foster, city director of water and sewer services, in a memo to Assistant City Manager Bill Moss, said that a random sample of 204 domestic-size water meters was tested last year by city employees for accuracy and reliability. The results of that testing, the memo said, proved the overall accuracy of only 43 percent of the meters.

The new meters will be purchased by the city over the next two years from Rockwell International of Hinsdale. Foster's memo estimates the city will be able to install 300 of the new meters per month. The memo says that accurate meters will add approximately $55,000 in city revenues during the next fiscal year.

Finances for the project will be divided over the next two fiscal years. The program's budget for fiscal 1981-82 is $80,084, and the water department will request another $47,584 in the fiscal 1982-83 budget to complete the replacement.

In other action, the council established guidelines for the selection of a councilperson to replace Susan Mitchell, who has said she intends to resign on June 1. Under the new state consolidated elections law, the council must appoint Mitchell's replacement rather than hold a special election.

Mayor Hans Fischer suggested, and the council approved, a process that will set a June 1 deadline for applicants to send an expression of their interest in serving on the council to the city manager's office. The applications will be reviewed in what Fischer called "an open discussion and evaluation of the candidates' qualifications," at the June 8 council meeting.

'Party school' image could benefit SIU

By Kay Blachinsky
Student Writer

LABELS CAN HAVE a pervasive influence on people, places and things. And that influence shines a negative light when the place turns out to be a university and the label reads "party school."

Seeping into cracks and crevices, the negative light affects students, alumni and prospective employers. "Party school" need not be a totally negative label, however, and SIU-C administrators and students are at an advantage if they use the media to transform that negative, party image into a positive one.

After all, it was the media that placed the scarlet letter on the Sakuki's coat in the first place. Naturally, students like to think that their school is a place to have a good time as well as a place to obtain an education. All one has to do is interview students at Illinois State, Western Illinois or Eastern Illinois to ascertain the truth of this assumption.

But it is Southern Illinois that the media makes a fuss over when talking about party schools in Illinois. One reason for this brand is the annual Halloween celebration. The attraction draws hordes of students from other state schools and has a reputation in Illinois similar to that of Mardi Gras. Like Mardi Gras, this event draws media coverage. But what TV viewers, newspaper readers and especially visitors to the celebration neglect to realize is that Illinois Avenue is not in the Halloween state every Saturday night of the year.

A second reason for the "party image" stems from an article in "Chicago Magazine" which portrayed the atmosphere of Carbondale as a continual Halloween party. "Burned Out in Carbondale" is a 1979 article by former student Lynn Emmerman which most students still remember.

EMMERMAN PAINTED a picture of Carbondale filled with apathy, drugs and violence. Her judicious use of photographs, along with sordid details of drug use, rapes and propositions by teachers further embedded a negative image of SIU-C in the minds of readers.

Emmerman forgot to include in her article photographs of overcrowded Morris Library. She also forgot to mention Sakuki athletics and job placement figures.

This neglect holds the key for SIU-C image-makers. While the flavor of the image thus far has been distasteful, the fact that the media pays any attention to the school at all is certainly an advantage.

Just this year "Roadshow," a late-night TV documentary, filmed a segment on the SIU-C Halloween celebration. Thus, the school has media attraction power; now it needs to use that power in blowing the paradigm in a positive direction.

First, students must utilize the media during special events such as "Roadshow." They can voice their views on the school and explain why they chose SIU-C.

Secondly, students can work with administrators in gaining positive recognition for the school. A good past example is the Undergraduate Student Organization's effort to create the world's largest broom. When the broom received "Ripley's Believe It or Not" recognition, the story went out over the AP wires.

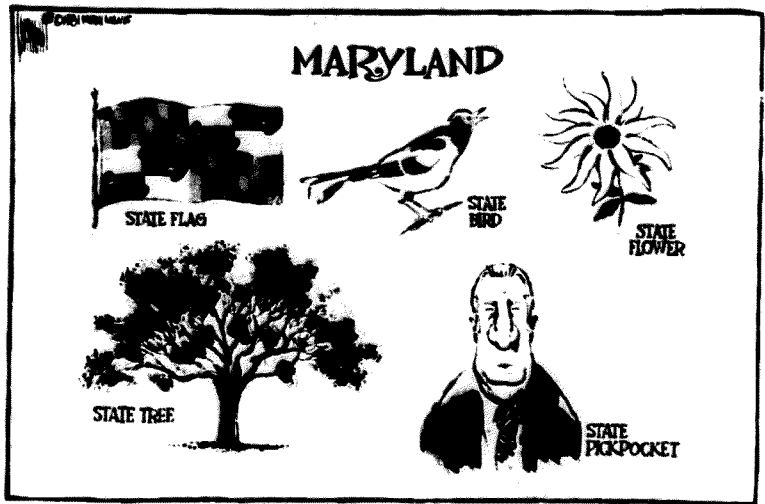

ADMINISTRATORS SHOULD reciprocate student achievement by pushing for media recognition. This could take place in the way of press releases to hometown newspapers when students receive scholastic honors, scholarships or special awards.

Administrators should also utilize the athletic program to attract media attention. A first step in this direction is to schedule basketball games in-state. When the Sakukis packed up to Chicago to play Loyola (and why not DePaul?) the school gains exposure in the city's newspapers and television stations. Alumni in the area are given a chance to unite, providing a visible symbol to represent the school.

These recommendations may appear to be only a drop of water aimed at putting out a blazing fire. The fire, however, is not really out of control.

The furor over Lynn Emmerman's article has died. The "Roadshow" presentation really did nothing to demean the school, but it did provide national media coverage.

The "party school" image, despite where it came from, is really not so bad. It just needs augmenting by media exposure to the academic, athletic and social advantages to SIU-C.

Letters

Our freedoms could be lost Kill the bugs

I am finally angry enough to write to the Daily Egyptian. After I read Ann Puckett's letter, "It All Comes Down To Freedom," April 20, I praised her for her fine statements on freedom, on women and on democracy. She said it all. She told the readers of the DE what I have been trying to tell others for years.

Then, I read an unbelievable response to Puckett's letter. Colleen Blaney and Adrienne Goss ("Puckett Analogy Misses the Point," April 22) ignored the point of Puckett's letter completely. Instead, they attacked her analogy calling it a "ridiculous parallelism." The analogy could obviously be applied to anyone—not only to Puckett and her father. Puckett's simple rational equation, her analogy, could illustrate to many "doubters" the very essence of freedom of choice.

Furthermore, Blaney's and Goss' point that "he man and woman are directly responsible for the life that they knowingly choose to create" even excludes rape as reason for abortion. Do all men and women "knowingly choose to create" each time they have sexual intercourse?

The freedom of choice is essential to a free, democratic society. Puckett's stand that we will fight against mandatory abortion as we now fight against mandatory pregnancy expresses the desire of many people to combat the destruction of individual freedom—whether that be the fight to choose an abortion, to have any number of children, to practice any religion, to read a free press, to speak one's mind, to have equal opportunity in education and employment, to get a fair trial, to elect officials of one's choice, to own property, to object to mandatory military service to receive decent medical care, to receive compensation as a retired or injured employee. And the list goes on. Blaney and Goss should think hard about the freedoms they now enjoy and just how fragile those freedoms are becoming.—Jane Forte, Department of English.

This is preposterous! I cannot believe people took me seriously when I suggested that we use BB guns, bows and arrows and handguns to slaughter the bird population of Carbondale.

Ridiculous! What we need to do is implement a sterilization program. As for the increased insect population, I suggest stepping on the little buggers.

I envision a day when there isn't a bird or bug to be seen in all of Carbondale. I envision a day when there isn't a feather or fly to be found from sea to shining sea. I envision a day when zoology students attain a sense of humor.—Michael Schmidt, Junior, Cinema and Photography—Note: This letter was also signed by 12 other people.

A tribute to a speech teacher

I'd like to take a moment to recognize a University faculty member for being more than just a faculty member. Dr. Marvin Kleinau, chairman of the Speech Communication Department and president of the Faculty Senate, is the kind of person one can depend on to do more for students than lecture and administrate.

With the help of Dr. Kleinau and the Speech Department, we have been able to establish our organization as an extension of that department and as a working and contributing part of this University.

Through his genuine concern for the inner growth of students and his warm compassion for all, Dr. Kleinau has set an example of superb student-teacher relations that we would all be wise to follow.—Kevin Knight, senior, Public Relations and past president PRSA.

Sports reporters need to compare

In response to Steve Houseworth's article concerning sports reporting, we would like to ask Mr. Houseworth just what the real world of sports is to him?

Who would've ever thought, as you state, "we must read this article through to find out" the results of a certain competition. Isn't that the idea behind a headline: to grab the reader's attention so he or she will read the article and thus, informing those not behind the scenes?

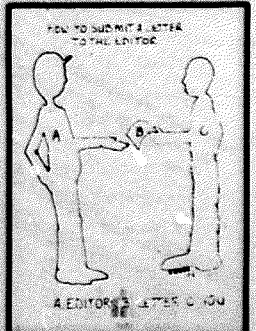

Reporters are not to blame for the "constant comparisons of individuals or teams to an idealized standard." All coaches compare their athletes to others in the state, region and nation. We, as athletes ourselves, believe that competition would be very boring if there were no comparisons. Would you run for last place?

Biased opinions being what they are, why compare the women's athletic performances to the men's? Who is downplaying who?

Isn't it possible to think that a sporting event reported in the paper as just results, would capture no attention? In the real world, Mr. Houseworth, don't we sometimes have to take the good news with the bad news?—Jan Meehan, senior, Marketing—Note: This letter was also signed by two other people.

Sands' hunger strike reviewed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Here is a chronology of important dates in the hunger strike by Irish Republican Army guerrilla Bobby Sands at the Maze prison.

March 1 — Sands, 27, begins his hunger strike, demanding special status for IRA prisoners in Northern Ireland.

March 2 — IRA calls off 4½-year "dirty" protest at Maze prison in order to focus attention on Sands hunger strike.

March 5 — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher visits Northern Ireland and declares the province will remain part of Britain.

March 15 — Francis Hughes, 25, once the IRA's most wanted gunman, joins the hunger strike.

March 22 — IRA activists Raymond McCreech and Patrick O'Hara, both 24, begin hunger strikes.

March 26 — Sands supporters announce he will run for the British Parliament in Northern Ireland's Fermanagh and South Tyrone constituency, where the incumbent's death caused a vacancy.

April 9 — Sands elected to Parliament, narrowly defeating Harry West, a Protestant hard-liner.

April 18 — Sands is administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

April 19 — Thousands of Roman Catholics march in Belfast to mark the anniversary of the 1916 uprising in Dublin against British rule.

April 22 — At a press conference Mrs. Thatcher says, "There can be no question of political status for someone serving a sentence for crime. A crime is a crime is a crime." Anti-British rioting spreads to six cities in Northern Ireland in the eighth straight day of violence.

April 23 — Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark and Roman Catholic priest Daniel Berrigan arrive in Belfast to see Sands but the British government rejects a meeting, saying it would serve "no useful purpose."

April 24 — Sands' family asks the European Commission of Human Rights to intervene to try to end the hunger strikes.

April 25 — Two members of the commission spend nine hours at the Maze prison but leave without seeing Sands. They said they had "established that Mr. Sands did not want to associate himself with the application made by his family."

April 28 — Sands receives the last rites for a second time. Pope John Paul II's personal envoy, the Rev. John Magee, arrives on a "mercy mission" to save the hunger striker and meets Sands.

April 30 — Magee returns to Rome, having failed to persuade Sands to give up hunger strike in three visits.

May 3 — Sands slips into a coma. His mother, Rosaleen, and Irish nationalist leader Bernadette Devlin McAliskey appeal to his supporters to remain calm.

May 4 — The European Parliament rejects an Irish plea for emergency debate on the hunger strike.

May 5 — Sands dies at 1:17 a.m. (8:17 p.m. Monday EDT), in the 66th day of his hunger strike.

IBHE approves funding for two law dormitories

The Illinois Board of Higher Education Tuesday approved a $300,000 University plan to reconvert back to dormitories two buildings currently being used to house the School of Law.

Meeting in Chicago, the IBHE also approved plans for improvements to University parking lots 13, 18, 49 and 52 at a cost of $382,000.

The plan to convert Kaplan Hall and the school's current law library, both located in Small Group Housing, will create 80 new single-occupant rooms and should be completed by January. Allen Haake, supervising architect engineer for physical plant has said.

The two buildings, along with Kesner Hall, were originally converted from dormitories to a temporary facility for the school in January 1974. Construction on the new Law Building is expected to be completed this summer.

Student hurt in bus incident

JOLIET. (AP) — A 9-year-old boy suffered facial cuts Tuesday when either a small-caliber bullet, a rock or some other hard object broke a public bus window.

Jesse Johnson, who was on his way to school when the incident occurred, was treated at Silver Cross Hospital for cuts and released, a spokesman said. Charles Hahn, undersheriff in the Will County Sheriff's Department, said an investigation was unable to determine the type of object that broke the window. No arrests were made.

Hahn said the incident occurred at 8:30 a.m. about four blocks from the A.O. Marshall School.

The Department of Foreign Languages and Literature will hold its tenth annual Foreign Language Day for high school students from 9:45 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, in the Student Center ballrooms. SIUC students are invited to attend the presentations that will be made throughout the day by SIUC faculty and high school students.

Student Center Programming and the Student Center Food Service will sponsor a barbecue and musical entertainment from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday on the south patio of the Student Center. The entertainment is free and the food items will be priced a la carte.

Bobby Wright, director of the Comprehensive Community Mental Health Center in Chicago, will give a speech on "The Concept of Mentacide," the destruction of a group's mind, at the Psychology Colloquium to be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Morris Library Auditorium.

An exhibition of ceramic works by undergraduate students in ceramics will open Wednesday in the Art Alley on the second floor of the Student Center.

The Rape Action Committee of the Women's Center in Carbondale is now accepting applications from women interested in being trained for the Rape Crisis Go-Out Team. The committee is a group of trained professional women volunteers who provide psychological support and information and will accompany a rape victim through medical, police and legal procedures if requested. Interested women should stop by the Women's Center at 408 W. Freeman to pick up an application. The application deadline is May 15.

The La Leche League of Carbondale will hold the third in a series of four meetings at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at 217 W. Gray St. in Carbondale. The topic of the meeting is "The Family and the Breastfed Baby."

Student Bar Association may ask GSC for fee revisions

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

Students in the School of Law may return as members to the Graduate Student Council at its meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Renaissance Room of the Student Center.

Members of the Student Bar Association are expected to propose a revision of the GSC Fee Allocation Board calling for the direct payment of one third of Student Activity Fees paid by law students to the SBA at the beginning of the fiscal year. The resolution also would allow law students to request further funds from the GSC.

The law students withdrew from the GSC fall semester 1979 because they were unhappy with the way the GSC distributed its money. Although the SBA withdrew from the GSC, law students still requested and were granted funding from the GSC.

The council also is expected to decide whether to fund the personal research of graduate students. The current FAB guidelines do not include such funding.

The council also is expected to vote on a proposed $15 Health Service Fee increase to begin summer 1982. The Undergraduate Student Organization approved the increase at its meeting April 15.

Grad Council may take vote on residency rules

A clarification of residency requirements for master's students is expected to be voted on at the final Graduate Council meeting of the semester Thursday at 8 a.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

Several committee reports, including an annual report from John Yopp, Graduate Council chairman, the review of the graduate dean and departmental reviews are expected to be given.

The newly elected council will begin its meeting at 9:30 a.m. Election of officers for the 1981-82 school year are expected to take place.

John Corker, director of the Student Center, is expected to give a presentation to the council examining the need for an increase in the Student Center Fee for fall semester

Resolutions opposing sexual harassment, recognition of graduate faculty and revision of the GSC constitution also are expected to come to a vote.

ONLY THE ARMY GIVES YOU TWO WAYS TO LOWER THE COST OF EDUCATION IN JUST TWO YEARS.

LOAN FORGIVENESS

If you have a Guaranteed Student Loan or a National Direct Student Loan (made after October 1, 1975) hanging over your head, consider spending a couple of years in the Army.

If you train for certain specialties, the government will release you from 1/3 of your indebtedness (or $1,500, whichever is greater) for each year of active duty.

Obviously, a three-year enlistment would eliminate 100% of your indebtedness. But you may prefer to take a shorter route and sign up under the Army's two-year enlistment option (and put 2/3 of your debt behind you).

Or you might want to join the Army Reserve. If you qualify, as a Reservist you can stay home, get paid for your active duty, and receive 15% loan forgiveness (or $500, whichever is greater) for each year you serve.

But we're not just offering you loan forgiveness. With your education, you can probably qualify for a higher rank and pay grade. You'll have your choice of many sophisticated Army skills.

And you may be eligible for generous monetary educational incentives.

TWO-FOR-ONE SAVINGS PLAN

If your dream is to continue your education some day, joining the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program can bring that day closer.

In fact, in just two years you can accumulate up to $9,200 for grad school. (Only the Army can offer you a two-year enlistment.)

It's not a loan, so you'll never have to worry about making payments. It's simply a savings program between you and the government.

THE ARMY'S COLLEGE BENEFITS
	Per Mo.	2 Yrs.
You Save	$100	$2,400*
Gov't Adds 2-for-1:	$200	$4,800
Total	$300	$7,200
Army Adds		$2,000
Total Benefits		$9,200

*Maximum individual contribution during a 2-year enlistment

Certain 4-year enlistments can get you as much as $14,100 for college, plus a $5,000 cash enlistment bonus for a total of $19,100

If you save between $25 and $100 of your monthly Army pay, the government will match that amount two-for-one. On top of that, you might qualify for an exclusive Army educational incentive of $2,000. (Longer enlistments can result in higher incentives.)

And you can participate in VEAP at the same time you're receiving loan forgiveness.

So, in just two years, you can go back to school with 2/3 of your debt behind you and up to $9,200 for your education ahead of you. (Of course, a longer enlistment could result in more educational benefits and 100% loan forgiveness.)

To find out more about both ways to serve your country as you serve yourself, call 800-421-4422. In California, 800-252-0011. Alaska and Hawaii, 800-423-2244. Ask for the name of the Army's college representative nearest you.

ARMY. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Student Senate will consider fee allocations to three groups

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

Student fee allocations for the Black Affairs Council, WIDB Student Radio and the Inter-Greek Council are expected to be voted on at 7 p.m., Wednesday at the Student Senate meeting in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

The senate will consider the funding recommendations made by its fee allocations commission concerning the three groups, and then vote on whether to approve all of the commission's recommendations. At a meeting April 28, the senate gave tentative approval to the allocation of approximately $61,000 in student fees to 35 recognized student organizations.

The commission has recommended an allocation of $15,321 to the BAC, which is the largest amount recommended for any group except the Undergraduate Student Organization, which received a recommendation for $31,752.

The allocation, if approved, would be used to fund grants in aid to the coordinator and assistant coordinator of the BAC. It would also help fund costs of publishing The Black Observer, Black History Month activities and black student activities.

The commission has recommended that $11,000 be given to WIDB, most of which would be used to fund expansion of the station's transmission into Thompson Point.

The Inter-Greek Council, which is the coordinating body for all fraternities and sororities at SIU-C, will receive $8,155, if the commission's recommendations are accepted.

Beg your pardon

The batting average of Saluki softball player Pat Stang was incorrectly reported in the May 5 edition of the Daily Egyptian. Stang's team-leading batting average is .291.

The Daily Egyptian regrets the error.

Stang was named to the Illinois AIAW all-tournament team following the state tournament in Evanston last weekend. Stang, the only Saluki senior, played first base.

DJ Steve Dahl to bring show to bar on 'strip'

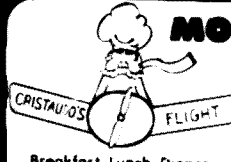

Steve Dahl with Garry Meier and Teenage Radiation, a music and comedy act, will give two shows Sunday at T.J. McFly's. The shows, which begin at 6 and 9 p.m., will also include WTAO disc jockey Earl Live.

Dahl, now a disc jockey for WLS-FM radio in Chicago, received notoriety for his satirical versions of rock 'n' roll hits. Among his most noted efforts are "Do You Think I'm Disco" and "Ayatollah."

In a phone interview, Dahl said the band's 90 minute show will feature songs mixed in with some stand-up comedy. Two new songs he will perform are "Ronnie Be Good" and "Better Get A Gun Jane," a song about Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne's recent stay in Cabrini Green.

Besides wanting to find out if SIU-C was really a party school, Dahl said he booked into T.J.'s because a large percentage of SIU-C students are from Chicago.

Advance tickets are $5 and can be purchased at the Music Box and Plaza Records. Tickets will also be available at the door for $6.

Patient abuse report verified by Mental Health Department

CHICAGO (AP) — A spokesman for Illinois' Department of Mental Health says a television report that some blind and mentally retarded patients of a unit at the Dixon Developmental Center are being abused is "an accurate picture of conditions at that unit."

A report by WMAQ-TV, using undercover scenes, show some blind and "profoundly retarded" persons being shoved by staff members at one cottage.

The television station also reported that one staff member kicked a resident in the face while she was being held down by other staff members. That staff member was fined only $150 and placed under court supervision for two years, WMAQ-TV said.

The investigating team also said unsanitary and potentially dangerous conditions existed at one Dixon cottage and that two staff members who were found guilty of abusing residents still worked at the center.

Don Neltnor, the state department spokesman, said Tuesday that unit B-5 at the center is probably "the worst unit in the whole department" and that problems there primarily were due to a shortage of qualified staff.

Gov. James R. Thompson recently waived his hiring freeze on state employees to allow the department to fill 55 vacancies on the Dixon Center staff. Neltnor said only 17 had

Eldorado may condemn town's water company

ELDORADO (UPI)— Carmi attorney Ivan Elliot Jr. has been hired by the city of Eldorado to look into the possibility of filing a condemnation suit against the privately owned Eldorado Water Co.

The Chamber of Commerce Water Task Force Committee, which also discussed the possibility of taking legal action against the water company, will meet Tuesday night with the City Council in seeking short-term solutions to the water shortage problems.

The city and water company met last Friday but were unable to agree on a price the city would pay for buying the water company.

Following the draining of a private lake near the Eldorado Reservoir, the town's water supply is estimated at about 14 days.

been filled. He said the department also hopes to reduce the number of patients at the center from 1,100 to 700 or so.

Neltnor said unit B-5 was especially crowded when the television crew shot scenes there because some patients from other units had been placed there while renovation work was carried out elsewhere. In the coming months, unit B-5 will be renovated, he said.

The TV report of the allegations were based on the findings of Jean Wyatt, a "resident advocate" who works for several independent agencies.

Ms. Wyatt made an unannounced visit to the cottage and said she found feces on the floor and a wall. She said some residents were partially clothed, barefoot or improperly supervised and others tripped over or stepped on a resident sleeping on the floor.

Ms. Wyatt also said several Dixon residents she saw had suffered significant weight loss and the number of resident injuries had increased substantially.

All of Ms. Wyatt's findings were sent in a memo to Christian Simonson, Dixon superintendent.

waiting around on folding chairs. After seven hours, the excitement of being in the movies began to pall.

At last we were ushered into an enormous soundstage. A "stunt coordinator" was introduced and he explained that the most complicated part of the action for us extras would take place around the tree in Mansfield's quad.

To re-enact the graduation rites of 19th Century Harvard, 200 of us would link hands and run rapidly around the tree in two concentric circles. Then 100 others, preceded by a marching band, would come charging up to the tree trunk to try to capture a garland of flowers hanging on it. Those in the circles were to resist, violently if necessary.

The musicians turned out to be the band of the Coldstream Guard of Buckingham Palace fame. Fallen on hard times, it seemed. By the end of that rehearsal, a dozen extras had collapsed of exhaustion.

AT THAT REHEARSAL we saw Michael Cimino for the first time. He looks a lot like the young Napoleon, only shorter. And we discovered he has a curious manner of directing extras. He would watch us do a scene, ponder a moment, then whisper some instructions into the ear of an assistant director. The assistant would in turn repeat Cimino's words through an electric megaphone. Cimino spoke directly only to the stars, or the "leading players" as we say in the biz.

A few days later, filming began in Oxford. We converged at 6:30 a.m. on three circus tents set up south of town. After two hours in wardrobe, make-up and standing in line for breakfast, we got in line to wait for buses. The excitement of being in the movies!

We were driven to the Sheldonian Theatre, the first building designed by Sir Christopher Wren in the early 1600s while still a professor of astronomy at Oxford. Harvard should be so lucky.

Here we filmed the graduation scene. Joseph Cotten played the president of the college and Kris Kristofferson and John Hurt were members of the senior class plunging another if necessary, to demonstrate the exuberance of the occasion. Ankles were turned, top hats crumpled and sometimes we wound up in a pile of extras heaped just inside the main door. Once we nearly knocked the camera off its crane. In all, we did over 30 takes of our entrance, and not one was accomplished without some minor physical injury. The extras grew restive.

Then came the graduation speeches. Cotten gave one, followed by Hurt's valedictory address. Hurt is a marvelous actor, but the speech was terrible. I'm delighted to say it has been cut from the finished film. But that afternoon we heard it 50 times.

By late afternoon we were wondering about lunch. Falling over fellow extras is hard work, but we learned Cimino had booked the Sheldonian for only one day and didn't have time for luxuries like food. There was also talk that we might be working an 18-hour day to get the good out of the site.

BY TEA-TIME, we were talking union. Thirty-five dollars a day is fine for eight hours' work, but not so fine for 18 hours without a break. Our first strike was supported by the professional actors on the set. By 5 p.m., they were hungry too. We won regular meals, and a new hourly rate of pay. We were happier when work ended at 1 a.m. and richer by over $100.

The next week went smoothly. I spent one day marching behind the Coldstream Guard in what is now the opening of the movie. This took place on a city street which had been blocked off and covered with a foot of sawdust to accommodate the horses and carriages.

We put in a couple of days on the graduation dance, either circling around the tree in the quad or standing on the sidelines watching. The weather was magnificent and the worst hazard was sunburn.

But the final day of filming brought the scene we had rehearsed. We extras called it "the fight scene" and not all the blood came out of make-up bottles.

THROUGHOUT THE DAY, extras ran around the tree while others charged for the garland. Pushing and shoving naturally ensued and sometimes extras would come to blows. I never saw the script, but I don't think Cimino was displeased.

After the seventh take, the assistant director yelled "Cut!" As the crowd cleared from around the tree, we discovered an extra unconscious on the ground. One arm was bent at an acute angle. He didn't regain consciousness until after arrival at the hospital. Two takes later, another extra was knocked unconscious.

Our second strike slowed down the pace of that scene and raised our hourly rate. The professional actors said their union called it "danger money."

Still, quite a few noses were bloodied that afternoon. There was a third strike, and by then the national press and BBC crews began to arrive to film the reported mayhem at an Oxford college. The studio denied anything unusual was going on, denied there was a "fight scene" and refused to grant any further concessions to the extras. About half our number quit on the spot. The rest held out until offered an extra $12 apiece to return to the set. And so it concluded.

I had high hopes when the first reviews came out. In the Times, Canby said, "If you thought the Orthodox wedding in 'The Deer Hunter' was too long, wait until you see the Harvard graduation in 'Heaven's Gate.'" Think of all that glorious footage, I thought. Alas, in the re-edited version, all my work takes mere seconds of the film.

You can see me in those opening scenes if you know exactly where to look, but I'm always well to the back. This was explained to us extras early on. You see, Kristofferson is 5 feet 10 inches tall. So those of us who are taller than 5-10 were kept well away from him. After all, a star is a star.

But thanks to our three strikes during the course of shooting, I earned in a week about half what my church was paying me per year.

And that's not even counting the excitement of being in the movies.

New York man makes wines fit for a queen

By John C. Given
Associated Press Writer

HAMMONDSPORT, N.Y. (AP) — His wines have been served at the tables of the queen of England and the president of the United States. He trained at a vineyard once owned by an uncle of Czar Nicholas II of Russia.

Admired by many, tolerated by some, the name and achievements of Dr. Konstantin Frank are known far and wide. Now 81, Frank has devoted his life to proving that vinifera grapes — those that produce the great wines of Europe and California, among them whites such as Johannesburg Rieslings, Pinot Chardonnays and Gewurztraminers — can also produce first-class wines in New York state.

It was an idea that was unthinkable when the Russian-born German immigrant arrived in the United States in 1891.

Believing the climate too cold for vinifera, New York growers and winemakers relied on hardier native American labruscas and French-American hybrids.

Then, as now, their consumers enjoyed the "grapey" flavor of many of these wines — which gave New York a dismal reputation among wine drinkers preferring more traditional varieties.

To Frank, the idea that vinifera could not be grown here was balderdash. It was not the cold winters that made them easy victims, he said, but the weakening of the plants by insects, fungus and virus diseases.

In Russia he had grown vinifera, and "in Russia the climate is cold," he said. "If you spit from here to the floor, you have ice."

Fleeing from the Soviet regime in 1941, Frank spent 10 years in Austria and Germany before landing in New York City with his wife, son and two daughters. He washed dishes in a cafeteria for two weeks — long enough to pay for a one way bus ticket to New York City, N.Y.

He explained why he didn't head for the already established wine country of California: "I know that New York need me, because New York have no good wine, and California have good grapes."

Frank, the son of an Odessa cattle breeder who also grew grapes, says he made his first wine in 1911.

In 1924, he was a scientist at the Odessa Agricultural Institute, two years later becoming technical director of the Tubetskoje Experimental Grape and Wine Station — a 22,000-acre vineyard — the Bolsheviks had confiscated from the czar's uncle in 1917.

At the age of 52, and speaking no English, Frank arrived at the New York State Agricultural Experimental Station, expecting to be greeted as a colleague. He was in for a shock.

"They have said to me, 'Go home.' But I could not go home, because I had no home. No money," he said. "They gave me blueberry hoeing — 70 cents an hour."

His big break came two years later, when Charles Fournier, president of the nearby Gold Seal Vineyards, who shared his interest in the potential of vinifera, gave him a job.

Fournier said that before he hired Frank, station experts had discouraged him from growing vinifera, "telling me the winter would kill them."

Today, he said, Gold Seal has 150 acres of vinifera in the ground.

Frank left Gold Seal in 1961 — after buying land for what is now his own vineyard and winery, Vinifera Wine Cellars.

man who reported to the dean of the college. With the split, each unit has its own head who reports independently to the dean.

Kurtz said a separation of the department and the service always existed "on paper," but the two units were able to complement each other's functions. He said the service's primary functions were always public service and instruction, and although the equipment belonged to the service, there was an understanding that the instructional programs were of equal importance to the public service mission of the station.

Kurtz said when he was with the Broadcast Service, tensions sometimes erupted between the two units.

"You walked on a tightrope, each function having 50 percent importance," Kurtz said. "Occasionally, you fell off either side."

A separation between the service and department can only work as long as the people who work within it can agree, Kurtz said. Before leaving SIU-

C. Kurtz said he saw disagreements surfacing between the two units.

"There was a change in administration, and some of them are not committed to providing an education in commercial broadcasting," Kurtz said. "They want more emphasis placed on research and on faculty publishing and less on the 'service aspect.'"

When student programs were cancelled last fall, the broadcast service claimed that the quality of the productions was low and more professionalism was needed. Kurtz said this was a "cop out."

"You won't increase the slickness of a production by eliminating students," he said.

This semester, complaints about students allegedly mishandling the broadcast equipment have been circulating in the department. Kurtz said when he was director of the service, sometimes equipment was damaged by students who didn't know how to handle it yet.

"That's one of the trade-offs we decided to make when we started the service," Kurtz said. "It's part of the price you pay if you want to get the students involved."

Kurtz's sentiment was echoed by another former director of the Broadcast Service, Charles Lynch, who served as chairman of the department and director of the service from 1974 to 1979, said students mishandling the equipment is "one of the prices of doing business."

"I assumed it was part of the business of operating a program like SIU-C's," Lynch said in a telephone interview from California State University-Northridge, where he is the chairman of the Radio and TV-Film Department. Lynch left SIU-C in 1979.

Lynch said the Radio and Television Department is in an "unusual situation," and there probably aren't five broadcast schools in the country that operate the way SIU-C does. He said the department has always had one of the strongest broadcast programs in the country because of the combination of instructional and public service functions.

"People say that the system can't work, but it worked for 36 years," Lynch said.

Every year one representative is elected from each sector. There are three representatives per sector.

According to the administrative and professional operating procedures, elected council members may not succeed themselves after a three year term. Being replaced are Larry Aut, administrative coordinator at the School of Medicine; Jane Crichton, director of the Personnel Records Center; Charles Daugherty, acting director of Communication Services; Billie Jacobini, chief academic advisor in general studies; and Charles Landis, director of the Counseling Center.

Daugherty, as current chairman of the council, may act in an advisory capacity beginning July 8.

"There's a movement on this campus to do more research," Grobe said. "I think the faculty are saying, 'provide me with the space and I'll be happy to do research.'"

Some information on the University's total available space, broken down by individual department, has already been provided the Purdue planners, Grobe said.

French TV debate may influence election result

PARIS (AP) — A televised debate Tuesday night between French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Socialist challenger Francois Mitterrand may tip the balance in their close presidential race.

Fighting neck-and-neck for re-election, Giscard d'Estaing hopes the debate will be a turning point in his battle for the votes of 36 million Frenchmen. Mitterrand was considered the loser in their debate seven years ago and Giscard d'Estaing went on to victory in the election.

without hardship. Two of his best gymnasts, Frank Schmitz and Gary Morava were killed, Schmitz in an auto accident and Morava following a fall from the pommel horse. He said he couldn't have had such an illustrious career had it not been for a supportive wife, son and daughter.

"I feel sorry for my children because they had to be raised in a situation where I was winning all the time and they felt they couldn't fail because they would disappoint me," Meade said. "As long as they did their best, that was the greatest satisfaction."

"It was especially hard on my son," Meade added. "I've heard every excuse to come down the pipe. I've heard them all, so he could never come on."

Meade is also a man in constant search of a new challenge. He has learned to relax and does so by riding his moped or flying an air plane. He hates to run and loves to eat and has had to endure an endless diet. He is also atypical of most coaches because he is fond of taking a few belts of Jack Daniels occasionally and doesn't get upset if his gymnasts do the same.

"I tell the kids if they go to the bars, they better not go to the same bar I go to," Meade said. "I also don't want any calls at 3 a.m. and they know that better not happen."

He would like to see the Sabuks win another NCAA title. He would like to see his current superstar, Brian Babcock, make the World Games, win an NCAA all-around title and win an Olympic medal. He does have one ultimate goal which, considering his success, could come true some day.

"I'd like to see a six-man Olympic team made up of gymnasts from Southern Illinois University and me sitting in the stands doing nothing but watching."

Cubs blow ninth-inning lead; Astros capture 4-3 victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Alan Ashby's pinch two-run double with two out in the top of the ninth inning lifted the Houston Astros to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

Jose Cruz opened the ninth with a single. Art Howe beat out a infield single, and Cruz continued to third on shortstop Scott Fletcher's throwing error.

Reliever Lee Smith retired Gary Woods. Kiko Garcia struck out as pinch-runner Dickie Thon stole second. Ashby, batting for Luis Pujols, then lashed his game-winning double into the left field corner.

Dave Smith, 1-3, was the winner in relief of Joe Niekro. Lee Smith, 0-2, was the loser.

The Cubs trailed 2-0 when they rallied in the seventh inning. Scot Thompson's three-run double off reliever Dave Smith gave the Cubs a 3-2 lead.

Niekro had a four-hit shutout working going into the seventh when Hector Cruz led off with a single. One out later, Niekro issued walks to pinch batters Jim Tracy and Gary Krug to fill the bases. Thompson drilled Dave Smith's second pitch over left fielder Jose Cruz's head for a bases-clearing double.

Cubs starter Rick Reuschel left for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Reuschel allowed five hits and struck out six.

Reuschel was touched for two runs in the Houston fourth when Dan Heep and Jose Cruz singled and Howe walked to fill the bases. Heep scored as Woods grounded into a double play and Cruz scored when shortstop Ivan DeJesus threw wild past first for an error on Garcia's ground ball.

Rain postpones baseball squad's twinbill at SIU-E

The Saluki baseball team's scheduled doubleheader at SIU-Edwardsville Tuesday was canceled because of rain.

The Salukis, 26-13 and on a five-game winning streak, are scheduled to play a doubleheader against Illinois at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Abe Martin Field. The Fighting Illini who clinched a berth in the Big Ten playoffs last weekend, are having their best season in Tom Dedin's three-year coaching stint.

After the twinbill with Illinois, the Salukis will be off until this weekend, when they'll travel to Peoria to play doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday against Bradley. If SIU-C defeats the Braves just once in the four games, the Salukis will clinch the Missouri Valley Conference's Eastern Division championship and will play Western Division titlist Wichita State for the MVC championship May 15-16.

Dan Casebeer qualifies for New York bike race

SIU-C bicycle racer Dan Casebeer has qualified for the National Sports Festival race to be held this summer in New York.

Casebeer qualified for the race by finishing fourth out of 96 cyclists in a 35-mile race Saturday in Morton and finishing second out of 70 racers in a 35-mile race Sunday in Peoria.

"I really wanted to qualify for the Sports Festival," Casebeer said. "That's kind of an honor."

SIU-C's Linda Elgart finished ninth in the women's division at Morton. In the men's division, Fred Steinbrecker finished eighth; Rich Fitscher was 15th; Chris Trotter, 16th; Kevin Budd, 17th; Dave Dietrich, 18th; and Lynn Irons was 19th. Cyril Friend won the citizen's race. Elgart won a women's intercollegiate race in Bloomington Sunday. SIU-C finished second in the bicycle racings meet behind Indiana University. In the men's division, John Belcher finished fifth, Irons was 10th and Trotter finished 11th. Friend placed fifth in a citizen's race which had entrants who had competed in IU's famous Little 500 race.

The next competition for SIU-C will take place in three weeks at Moline and will be followed by a race in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

New basketball coach adjusting to job

By Scott Stahmer
Sports Editor

The way new SIUC men's basketball Head Coach Allen Van Winkle has figured, he's a positive influence on the Saluki basketball team. After several weeks of strenuous recruiting, he had a chance last weekend to relax at Abe Martin Field and watch the team sweep four games from Indiana State.

"I told Itchy Jones (baseball coach) I'm 4-0," Van Winkle said. "I'll have to keep attending baseball games."

Van Winkle, hired March 30 to replace Joe Gottfried, has been in town since late last week. Besides watching baseball over the weekend, he talked to members of last season's basketball team, which lost its last 18 games, placed last in the Missouri Valley Conference, and finished a pathetic 7-20.

"Basically, we just got to know each other better," Van Winkle said of the weekend meetings with the players. "I asked them what their immediate plans were, where they were academically, how they felt about next year and what their plans were for the summer."

"I enjoyed the talks. I think the players enjoyed them and appreciated them. I'm sure they feel like they know me better. I think I learned some things, and I think they learned some things."

Van Winkle, who signed five recruits, must revoke three players' scholarships because the Salukis had just two available. He said he will not decide which players will not return until May 15, and will speak with the players involved before telling anyone else.

The new coach's signees include three players—James Copeland, a 5-10 guard, Ken Byrd, a 6-3 guard, and Pye Walker, a 6-6 forward—from the Jackson, Mich., Community College team he coached this year. The other recruits are David Tucker, a 6-9 forward from Lincoln Trail Junior College in Robinson, and Dennis Goins, a 5-11 guard from Vincennes, Ind., Community College.

"Given the few weeks we had, we added some young men to the program who should help," Van Winkle said. "This certainly is not the approach to recruiting we would have taken if we had a full year, but I'm very optimistic about the types of attitudes and positive thinking we'll take into next year."

Van Winkle said he's no longer interested in signing guard Gary Robbins, who verbally committed to SIUC but later leaned toward Northern Michigan. And he's not disappointed that Kevin Willis, a 7-0 center who played at Jackson, signed with Michigan State.

"All my energies can't be focused on one person," Van Winkle said.

Van Winkle met with point guard Rob Kinsner, who has announced his intentions to transfer, on Monday.

"I told him I would be as helpful as I could, and give him some positive recommendations," Van Winkle said.

With Tim Somerville's resignation, Van Winkle said one of his top priorities will be to hire an assistant coach. One assistant, Rob Spivery, remains from Gottfried's staff.

"I've been contacted by about 50 people who are legitimate college, junior college or high school coaches," Van Winkle said. "All of them seem to be very fine applicants."

New champs decided in IM softball finals

By Keith Mascitti
Student Writer

Contrast is the word to describe the scores of the intramural softball tournament championship games played Thursday at the Arena Fields.

Most of the games were seesaw battles while one game was a one-sided thrashing.

The Sultan's of Swat captured the Men's A division by edging Who's On First, 14-10. The game wasn't as close as the score might indicate.

Intramurals

Who's On First scored only three runs through five innings, and were down, 10-3, going into the top of the sixth.

Who's On First managed to nudge across three runs in the sixth inning. In the seventh both teams scored four runs, but the Sultans hung on for the win. The Sultans finished with a 6-2 record.

The Men's B division game was a close battle between Slim Whitman's Express and the Winning Streak. When it was over, the Express slipped by the Streak, 7-6.

Winning Streak led, 6-5, through four innings, but the Express managed two runs in the sixth and held on for the win. The Express finished the season with a 10-1 record.

Ballbuster's Are Back exploded for 48 runs and defeated Alpha Gamma Delta, 48-3, in the Women's final. Ballbuster's scored 27 runs in the second inning and 14 in the fourth before the game was called in the fifth inning due to the 10-1 rule.

The Ballbuster's finished the season with a 9-1 record. Earlier this season it won games by scores of 45-0, and 56-0.

Diddle Squat, winners of last season's Co-Rec B division title, moved up to A division this season and won the championship game. Diddle Squat scored three runs in the top of the seventh inning to break a 15-15 tie with Last Chance for an 18-15 win. Diddle Squat finished the season 6-1.

The Co-Rec B division was decided by one run. K.W.I.K.A.B. broke a tie in extra innings and nipped Ladies and Tramps, 17-16. The game was knotted after seven innings at 16. K.W.I.K.A.B. scored one run in the eighth for the win, to make its record 8-1.

Gymnastics Coach Bill Meade sits in front of some of the awards he has won in his 25 years at SIUC.

Success may buckle Bill Meade's walls

By Michelle Schwent
Staff Writer

If Saluki gymnastics Coach Bill Meade receives one more award, he'll have to petition Men's Athletics for more wall space.

His office walls are covered with awards, certificates and pictures of former gymnasts. Those walls were further burdened this season as Meade was honored as Coach of the Year of the Midwest Region. Meade was surprised by the honor, but also was pleased.

"I was totally surprised," Meade said. "I was also very pleased because our 8-7 record wasn't outstanding but we reversed that from a 2-11 season. A quick look at the schedule will show we competed against more of the top 20 teams than any other team in the United States."

Meade has been coaching gymnastics for 31 years. He started the gymnastics program at the University of North Carolina in 1949 and came to SIUC in 1956. The gymnastics bug caught him when he was in junior high school in Warren, Pa.

"The gymnastics club practiced during the lunch hour," Meade said. "I carried my lunch and sat in the stands and watched practice one day. I said to myself, 'That's what I want to do.' So, I stopped carrying my lunch and began to practice with the club."

He says he doesn't know why he likes gymnastics, but his fondness for the sport is typified by "The Motto," which also hangs on his wall. "The Motto" reads: "There is only one sport, the rest are games and contests."

Meade competed on four high school championship teams, worked out with the gymnastics club at lunch and practiced from 3 to 5 p.m. after school. His penchant for hard work followed him from graduation at Penn State, through his stint at North Carolina, and through his 25 years at SIUC.

"My philosophy is, if you're going to do a job, do it well and work hard," Meade said. "I've never hated coming to the gym, whether it meant coming in off the golf course or coming in seven days a week."

The early years at SIUC were trying, due to lack of funds and a program just beginning to emerge. Meade is quick to add, however, that he has always enjoyed the full support of every athletics director and staff.

"We won our first national championship in 1964," Meade said. "That was the last year we were in Davies Gym. We went in, set up the equipment, won the national championship and mopped the floor before 8 p.m., so they could have intramurals in there. I had a national champion and Olympic team member mopping the floor."

The Salukis won national titles in 1964, 1966, 1967 and 1971. Meade has produced 15 NCAA individual champs, 54 All-Americans, three Olympic team members, four Pan American team members and two World Games members. He was also the assistant coach of the 1980 U.S. Olympic Team. He has to be doing something correctly to enjoy such success and that may be due to his coaching method.

He treats every gymnast like each is his own son. He thinks motivation is the key ingredient to coaching, which can take on a variety of forms.

"It depends on the individual, but I try to make them mad at me or themselves, aid them or shame them," Meade said. "You have to be fair, though. The best guy will catch more flack than some lowly freshman. I don't believe in letting the superstar have an easy road."

Such motivation can range from boisterous cheering to plain old yelling.

"When I stop yelling at you, you're in trouble because I don't care anymore," Meade said. "I never entered my mind to be liked. I don't want some kid coming back here years from now telling me he could have been better if I had made him work harder."

Meade will periodically berate a gymnast during a meet, but most of the time he is pacing the sidelines or chain-smoking in the hall outside the Arena.

"When I quit being nervous, I'll quit coaching," Meade said. "I see all the hard work the kids put in and I want to see them do well. I know they are hurting their bodies and don't like to see them screw up."
