Saluki Hall cited with code violations

By Karen Torrey
Staff Writer

Nine violations of city housing codes were found during a Tuesday morning inspection of Saluki Hall, an off-campus approved residence hall at 716 S. University Ave.

No citations have been issued for the violations, according to John Yow, director of the city's code division, which conducted the inspection. Yow said that Saluki Hall owner-operator Wes Walton has been sent a letter listing the infractions and will be given four to five days to correct them.

The inspection was made in response to a resident's complaint to the code division. The violations found were:

— Insufficient lighting in hallways and stairways. The major problem, Yow said, is burned-out light bulbs which have not been replaced. Poor lighting in the stairways is considered a hazard, he said.

— Clogged bathroom sinks. Grease poured into recently-installed kitchen sinks, which connect to the bathroom plumbing, caused the bathroom sinks to back up, Weston said Wednesday.

— Unclean and unsanitary conditions in bathrooms and kitchens. There are three shared bathrooms and two kitchens in the three-story, 47-room residence hall, which currently houses 43 people.

A first-floor hallway light which needs to be rewired. The light now is fed electricity through an extension cord, Yow said.

— Swinging doors on bathrooms. The doors must be replaced with ones which shut securely and lock.

— A refrigerator in a second-floor kitchen which must be replaced or repaired.

— Sink faucets in the first-floor bathroom which must be repaired or replaced.

— Malfunctioning lights in the lobby.

— Exterior premises in need of "general cleaning," according to Yow.

— Grass which has grown 'too high, about six inches according to Weston. Yow said the grass is not considered a serious violation, because the weather has been too wet to mow.

Yow stressed that the code enforcement division is concerned mainly with compliance with housing codes, not with prosecuting violators.

"We want the violations corrected," he said. "We don't want litigation."

Weston said he believes Saluki Hall is in "no danger whatsoever" of losing its status as a University-approved off-campus housing. Director of Off-Campus Housing Lisa Rauback said Wednesday that action would be taken only if the violations are not corrected. She would not elaborate on what that action might be.

Weston, who operates Saluki Hall with the help of a full-time janitor, said the plumbing became congested over the weekend and will be repaired as soon as he can find a plumber to do the work.

Weston added that he has posted signs in kitchens warning residents not to put grease or food scraps down sink drains.

The other violations will be corrected "as soon as possible," according to Weston, who said he expects another visit from the code inspector on Monday.

Nursing home gets green light to expand into second building

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

The new management of a problem-plagued Carbondale nursing home received some good news Wednesday.

The Carbondale Manor nursing home, formerly known as Southern Manor Nursing Home and the Kare Center, passed a state health inspection Wednesday afternoon and now can reopen a second building on the facility's grounds, according to Nancy Huebner, the facility's new administrator.

The green light from the Illinois Department of Health means that the nursing home will be able to admit more residents, expand its services and hire new staff, Huebner said.

Currently the home has 99 residents in a building which can house up to 120 people, she said. The second building can house an additional 99 people.

Earlier this week, the operation of the nursing home was taken over by Health Care Affiliates, a corporation based in Springfield, Mo. HCA is operating the facility for Angell Group Inc., which is leasing the buildings from Paul Shinn, the owner.

A third building on the site is leased to the SIU-C Rehabilitation Institute.

The facility has a troubled history, being obtained in foreclosure proceedings five years ago by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and then sold to Shinn, a Carbondale resident, last fall, when it was renamed the Kare Center.

Many of the recently-unionized employees were not rehired after the change of ownership last fall, but the National Labor Relations Board cleared Shinn of charges that the Kare Center had discriminated against union employees.

The new management of the Carbondale Manor hopes that those types of troubles are behind them, Huebner said. The nursing home can expand into the second building as soon as they have enough trained staff, she said.

Huebner said they will likely be filling a variety of positions, such as nurses, housekeepers, cooks and maintenance workers. The number of people hired will depend on the number of additional residents admitted to the home, she said, adding that the company is an equal opportunity employer.

Huebner, who comes from St. Louis, started work on Monday. She said the center currently provides basic and restorative nursing care, and has a dietitian and full time activity and social services program. She said she would like to expand the rehabilitation program to include occupational, physical, and speech and hearing therapy. She said they have much of the equipment needed for the therapy programs, but lack qualified staff.

Huebner said she has not been in Carbondale long enough to determine what nursing care needs are not being met in the community, but plans to do a lot of research in the immediate future.

Huebner said she is also looking forward to working with University students.

WIDB gets 'new life' with SPC link

By James Derk
Staff Writer

The Student Senate vote to help WIDB has given new life to the radio station, according to WIDB General Manager Jim Hagarty.

"The senate decision was a big morale boost for the staff," Hagarty said. "We're very excited about the changes."

The changes for WIDB include new offices and studios on the fourth floor of the Student Center — a move that Hagarty said will make a big difference in the radio station.

"I think the move will help get more students involved with the station," he said. "We will be up in the Student Center and very accessible to the students."

The Student Senate voted last Wednesday to absorb an existing $9,000 debt and also fund WIDB $11,800 for phone line costs.

"There is no question that the senate vote gave new life to the station," Hagarty said. "It is almost like a whole new beginning for us."

Hagarty said the move to the Student Center will also help WIDB's security.

"Vandalism has become a way of life for us over in Wright I," Hagarty said. WIDB has had many windows broken in its studios and offices. Hagarty said the facilities in the Student Center will be much more secure.

The vote also changed the fiscal responsibility of the station. WIDB will now be under the umbrella of the University Programming Office and fiscal officer Bruce Zimmerman. This will affiliate WIDB with the Student Programming Council.

"We're looking forward to working with SPC," Hagarty said. WIDB will be utilized to promote student activities and events, thus recycling student fees.

The move to the Student Center is tentatively scheduled for summer 1984, but Hagarty said he would like to have the entire project completed by January.

"We're really excited about it, and I would rather have it done as soon as possible," he said. "It will be a lot of work, but I would like to see it done sooner."

Hagarty said the station will try to remain on the air during the move.

The proposal was drawn by Hagarty. Undergraduate Student Organization President Jerry Cook and SPC Executive Chair Dale Shepherd. Hagarty credited Cook with much of the success.

"I think Jerry Cook and the USO did a great job with the proposal," he said. "Jerry worked really hard getting this all done, working as a liaison with the Student Center and SPC. A lot of the credit goes to him."

Much of WIDB's problems stem from rising phone line costs. WIDB uses phone lines as its method of transmission. Hagarty said the station is investigating both open-air and cable transmission possibilities.

The station has done frequency searches on both the AM and FM bands, but found no open frequencies.

"We will continue to work 'o solve the transmission problems, but this plan will definitely help WIDB live up to its full potential," he said.

Gus says it's honeymoon time now for WIDB and SPC — but wait until the bills start coming in.

CSEC questions priorities report

The Civil Service Employees Council Wednesday approved a resolution which questions some of the recommendations in the Committee on Non-Academic Priorities report.

The resolution says that the council "recognizes the tremendous amount of work and effort that went into the study, but questions some of the recommendations and recommends that further study be done before action is taken based upon this report."

The Committee on Non-

Academic Priorities evaluated state-funded University programs that don't generate credit hours and recommended either enhancement, maintenance, reduction, elimination or combination for each program.

The council, which met in Anthony Hall, was asked by the administration for a reaction to the report.

A motion by council member Pat Harris, internal auditor, that asked the council not to support the committee's report because of "grave errors in judgment, methodology and conclusions reached" was not approved by the council.

The CSEC also designated a special committee to make recommendations concerning reports by the Committee on Academic Priorities and the Service Evaluation Task Force.

In other business, the council also approved a motion which requests that vacation for civil service employees be accumulated on a yearly basis.

House approves freeze resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday passed the long debated resolution calling for a "mutual and verifiable" nuclear weapons freeze, but only after President Reagan's forces won a key concession linking a freeze with a reduction in weapons.

Sponsors have claimed all along that they had the votes to prevail, but Reagan administration allies managed to delay that final vote for nearly two months largely through the filing of dozens of amendments.

The new arms control proposal unveiled late Tuesday by Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov figured prominently into Wednesday's floor debate.

"The Soviets have made a potentially significant new offer not to freeze but to reduce nuclear weapons," said Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan, the ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Let's give President Reagan and Chairman Andropov a chance. Let's not muddy the waters by passing a freeze resolution that has been overtaken by events," Broomfield added.

And House GOP Leader Robert Michel of Illinois told colleagues that Andropov never would have made the proposal "if he knew President Reagan would sign" such a freeze resolution.

Andropov said he was ready to reach accord to reduce the number of nuclear warheads in Europe, offering for the first time to count warheads as well as missiles in striking a balance between Soviet and NATO nuclear forces — a possible concession.

Plan would penalize dumpers

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Dumping toxic wastes illegally could draw seven years in prison and $500,000 in fines under measures that sailed through a state Senate panel Wednesday.

The committee endorsed the proposals after Illinois' top prosecutor declared "the game's over" for so-called midnight dumpers.

"These are the toughest penalties in the history of this state. I think they're long overdue," Attorney General Neil Hartigan told the Senate Energy Committee before it unanimously OK'd the package.

"Toxic waste is not a partisan problem; it does not differentiate between victims," Hartigan told the panel, adding: "I've never seen a more serious, more complicated problem."

Key features of the three-bill package, sponsored by Democratic Sen. Vince Demuzio of Carlinville, include: —Increasing criminal penalties for illegal dumping, to up to seven years in prison and a $500,000 fine for each incident. Authorities also could confiscate the vehicle used.

—Expanding the definition of hazardous waste to include waste oil.

—Allowing the state attorney general to fight the issuance of permits for disposal sites.

Resident reports valuables stolen

About $2,500 worth of property was reported stolen from a Carbondale residence Tuesday afternoon, police said.

Carl R. Flowers told police someone broke into his 912 E. Cindy St. home through a rear door between 4:15 and 6:15 p.m.

An AM-FM cassette player, receiver, turntable, cassette deck, video cassette player, black and white television and 35mm camera were reported stolen.

News Roundup

GTE granted rate increase

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — General Telephone Co. customers will pay an average 8.4 percent more on monthly bills next week under a rate increase granted Wednesday by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The $21.7 million boost is about two-thirds of the $31.5 million sought by General Telephone.

Commissions approved the rate increase in a 4-1 vote but rejected a staff recommendation that would raise the charge for GTE pay phones from 20 cents to a quarter.

State Senate panel backs taxes

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Two key elements of Governor Thompson's plans to raise Illinois taxes by $2 billion a year were approved Wednesday — and changed in one case — by a state Senate panel.

The increase in liquor taxes, which was voted 5-2, would raise state taxes on beer, wine and spirits by about 65 percent, generating approximately $50 million a year.

The second component of the Thompson tax plan — a gas and truck tax transportation package — also won endorsement on a 9-2 vote and would raise the state's gasoline tax from 7.5 cents a gallon to 11 cents.

And it would index the tax so it would increase in proportion to future increases in personal income.

In addition, license plate fees for small cars would increase from $18 to $36 this year and $48 next year.

License fees for large cars and small trucks would go up from $30 to $48 this year.

Ruckelshaus vows EPA integrity

WASHINGTON (AP) — William D. Ruckelshaus vowed Wednesday there would be "no hit lists ... no sweetheart deals" if he is confirmed to head the embattled Environmental Protection Agency.

Ruckelshaus — whose confirmation is virtually assured — told a Senate hearing considering his nomination that some of what's happened at the environmental agency has been "abuse of process."

"I think EPA's crippled. I think it's in trouble," Ruckelshaus said. "If I didn't believe that, I wouldn't be back here."

Flood cleanup called 'dangerous'

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

With crests of the Big Muddy and Mississippi rivers expected soon, receding waters will bring more than relief to flooded areas.

Flooded water supplies, damaged food and property, and contaminated water present health hazards which must be dealt with carefully and thoroughly, said James Bloom, director of the Environmental Public Health division of the Jackson County Health Department.

Cleaning up after floods can be very dangerous, he said. "Handling things in basements, for example, people risk stepping on nails. Puncture wounds are a main problem."

The health department hasn't received any reports of injuries or sickness, he said, but waters are still rising. During floods in December, no reports were received either.

He also suggests that, when working in an area that has been contaminated by flood water, people should wear rubber gloves and boots and wash their hands frequently with soap and hot water.

Debris should be stored in tightly covered cans so it will be less likely to attract rats and dogs. Food items that become wet and have not been kept in sealed or water-tight containers should be tossed. Cans and jars should be washed with hot soapy water and a chlorine solution before opening.

Bloom said the health department is concerned about the many people in this area — south and west of Murphysboro and around Grand Tower — who have private water supplies. If a well is flooded, the department should be contacted for a free test of its water and instructions on how to disinfect it.

Contaminated water can cause diarrhea and sometimes dysentery, he said. Although no calls have been received yet, Bloom said he is sure there are flooded wells in the area.

Flooded water should be boiled for a full 10 minutes, he stressed, to kill off bacteria. Ice should not be added to cool the water because it might recontaminate boiled water.

Bloom said people are not usually impatient about the timely disinfecting process because "that's their only means of water and they know they could get sick."

Bloom had some other suggestions for flood victims:

All surfaces which have been in flood waters, including walls, should be scrubbed with hot soapy water and rinsed thoroughly.

Items such as mattresses, box springs, and upholstered furniture, which can't be washed, should be thoroughly dried and then sprayed with a disinfectant to prevent growth of bacteria, mold and mildew.

Pillows, clothing and carpeting should be washed or cleaned according to manufacturer instructions and then sprayed with a disinfectant.

Residents should try not to turn their electricity or gas on. Wait for the utility companies. If the refrigerator has been off for more than three to four hours, meats, milk, eggs, fresh fruits or vegetables should be discarded.

If food in the freezer still contains ice crystals and can be moved immediately to a working refrigerator or freezer, it can be kept.

Exigency adequate for fiscal emergency

IF THE ADMINISTRATION is worrying these days about a financial crisis, the Faculty Senate argues what's wrong with procedures already in place for meeting such a crisis? The Senate, after establishing a committee last month to study options for the University to consider, decided last week there was nothing wrong with the existing measures for declaring a fiscal exigency.

That's just what the Board of Trustees should adopt, or rather maintain, next month when it considers the input of constituencies and the administration on how to meet a possible shortfall of up to $12 million within the next year.

Nobody has ventured a strong argument supporting the administration's proposal to empower the University to declare a fiscal necessity and to suspend or reduce the salaries of faculty and administrative-professional staff members — to rewrite contracts in the course of the year.

The thought is unsettling and, as some faculty have pointed out, it threatens the stability of the University, the continuity of research and the ability to attract top-notch faculty, not to mention the ability to keep those who are here. Faculty and staff bristle at the thought of their paychecks being tampered with under the vague plan offered by the administration.

EXIGENCY, TOO, is a vague concept, says John Baker, assistant to the president.

But financial exigency does emphasize emergency.

The strength of fiscal exigency, the Faculty Senate's Committee on Financial Exigency said in its report, is that fiscal exigency, since the policy exists, is not likely to be declared "unless the most dire of circumstances exists."

The already existing exigency procedures insure participation of all constituency groups in determining that a bona fide emergency exists. And when the emergency ends, fiscal exigency would be rescinded. Having the president declare a fiscal necessity would leave it up to the president to determine when the necessity was over.

President Somit says exigency procedures aren't adequate for meeting a short-term crisis, that more flexibility is needed in making budget adjustments.

However, exigency gives the administration flexibility in meeting an emergency. The steps leading to declaration of exigency enable savings by furloughing employees, declaring payless work days or a University shutdown or leaving unfilled positions unfilled.

The University has already in place the measures needed to meet a financial crisis and another stop-gap measure would be no improvement.

Model U.N. brought hope

The 1983 Model U.N. which was held at SIU-C recently and sponsored by the United Nations Simulation Association was a triumphant success. Although the problems of the world were certainly not resolved, it was a time for the coming together of hearts and thoughts, as well as stimulating verbal exchange.

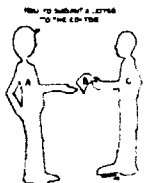

I wish to commend all delegates for your participation — your very presence demonstrated a noble concern and interest in world peace. I would also like to thank the members of the Executive Committee and others who offered support and guidance to this important event — it could not have been possible without your dedication to the cause.

I am already looking forward to the 1984 Model U.N. with enthusiasm, and encourage anyone who is concerned about the future of our world to participate, or at the very least attend. The opportunities for learning are great, but most important of all is the chance to interact with such a diverse group of faculty, students and others who all share a common interest in the peaceful coexistence and development of all nations of the world.

Although my participation in the 1983 Model U.N. has increased my knowledge and perception about the state of the world, I have even more questions than ever. In addition to the educational benefits, I have come away from this event with many new friends and memories, but perhaps most valuable of all—hope. Anita D. Earls, U.S.S.R. Delegate, 1983 Model U.N.,

Special Political Committee on Nuclear Disarmament.

Bookstore buying boosting budgets?

By Julie Grady
Student Writer

Ever wondered what happens to the money left in departmental budgets each year? How is it spent, or where does it go? Maybe it is saved up for the next year, or it is stored in a "over-budget" account.

Wrong. Most departments don't save their money, if they have any left. At the end of spring semester, when this left over money is found, employees are sent out to spend it.

Now that would be okay, if this money were spent wisely, but it is not.

Employees are sent out, with campus requisitions in hand, to spend what ever is left in the account. A popular spending place is the University Bookstore in the Student Center.

Here they can purchase pewter SIU-C mugs and marble SIU-C paper weights.

Valuable tools for your standard campus department. It all adds up to one big waste of both campus and student funds.

This waste is not only the department's fault, but the University's. If at the end of the fiscal year, the department has not spent their funds, they will be allotted a smaller budget for the next year. A punishment for not spending all their money.

These departments should be rewarded for keeping their spending down instead of punished. The reward would be keeping the same size budget for the following year. But that doesn't happen.

So they spend it. Such departments as the Physical Plant spend it on technical drawing pens and mechanical pencils — along with extra leads and erasers.

Admissions and Records spends it on $30 calculators. Surely they already have much better calculators but, none the less, they purchased two recently.

Other departments spend it on 10k Gold Cross pens and brass Saluki paper weights.

They spend it all, until it's gone. This insures that they will have the same size budget next year. It is obvious that they needed this amount of money in the first place.

It is clear that someone has their priorities mixed up, but who is it. The University is encouraging this behavior but demanding they spend their entire budget. The departments, on the other hand, should learn to spend what they have in a better manner.

The University should not have to raise such things as tuition when they have the money they need in their own school system. I suggest that the University look at their own spending habits, rather than concentrating on how others should spend their money.

'Let's abolish USO, GPSC altogether'

What a deal! What a raw deal! That's the contrast this graduate student sees as a result of the WIDB "bailout," the Black Affairs Council's call for stripping USO's allocation authority, and the Obelisk II's added cry of "foul."

There is no real way WIDB can ever regain respect as an organization unless it voluntarily pays back every dime it has over-spent for whatever reasons. While it does seem reasonable to assist WIDB in paying for a transmission system it cannot presently change, how can anyone condone the same fiscal irresponsibility that has brought the economy of Illinois and SIU-C to its knees?

Can you blame, then, the Southern Publishing and Information Network staff? Here is a mere management structure change that places the Obelisk II yearbook and Grassroots magazine under an umbrella RSO. Even before the name was applied to that still-developing governing board and formal organization, the yearbook on its own cleared up nearly one-third of its initial $16,000 debt. WIDB, with greater access to the direct advertising dollars available can't make the same claim. Indeed, the USO, which probably does have a debt, since no one in charge apparently wanted us to know about it, couldn't make such a claim of fiscal success. So, what was the reward for SPIN? False information about its request in the Senate resolution to fund it, the yearbook and Grassroots; a 50 percent slash in yearbook funding (yeah, folks, they cut an organization that's taking responsibility for correcting its errors!), and a blatant and reckless disregard for the truth of their requests.

In view of this I can't but agree with the BAC that it's time the USO was stripped of its allocations authority. But, I propose one further step — abolish USO and the GPSC altogether. Let's ownsize this big, impersonal glob of useless sibling obnoxiousness (USO) and allocate a per-student share of these fees to the individual colleges under which all RSOs could be assigned. It seems to have worked well at other colleges. In light of the state economy, it's long overdue. Steve Warnell, Graduate Student, Radio and Television.

They're not a source for biofeedback facts

I wish to clarify a few points from an article that ran in the April 19 edition of the DE entitled "Wellness Center helps students control stress electronically." The article recapped a workshop that I gave for the Wellness Center on biofeedback during Wellness Week '83. A few important details from that workshop were omitted.

The Wellness Center teaches a variety of stress management techniques, but biofeedback itself is not available from us. For clinical help in dealing with a stress-related malady, students may contact either Don Shoemaker of the Clinical Center (453-2361) or Roger Poppo of the Rehabilitation Institute (536-7704). To learn more about biofeedback, students may consider taking either Rehab 577b or CDS 431. Books on biofeedback may be checked out at the Wellness Center Library.

I also wish to extend my thanks to Mike Hoshiko of Communications Disorders and Sciences for his help at the workshop. Otherwise, Jeanna Hunter did an excellent report. — Cynthia Vaughn, Student Health Assessment Center.

'The vacation is over'

In the letter "Thinking Japanese? I don't think so" by H. Woods, some incorrect statements and judgments were made. First, I would like to address "Our history is full of startling accomplishments possible only because, during a particular struggle, those involved felt a strong and self-sacrificing loyalty to an endeavor." In business administration I hope your instructors have pointed out that you can have the most "strong and self-sacrificing loyalty" among individuals, but if you lack organization, technology, people, education, etc., your accomplishments are likely to be far from startling.

Woods went on to say, "Hierarchical authority is abandoned and decision making becomes a group and individual effort, simultaneously, as each mind is tuned in to the common goal." I see nothing wrong with this philosophy since it is amazingly close to the definition of democracy.

The Japanese environmental and ecological record was then attacked by H. Woods. However, the Japanese record is spotless compared to the United States. Japan doesn't have the problems of nuclear waste and dioxin, just to name a very few. The Japanese are much more environmentally conscious than the Americans. Neatness, cleanliness, and efficiency are important parts of the Japanese culture. With 125 million people on such small islands, the Japanese have to be more pollution conscious. Japan doesn't have vast areas to create "stockpiles" of trash like the United States. The declining natural environment is a problem throughout the world, especially in the United States. The declining environment is due to short-sited business administrators maximizing their return on the dollar invested in the short run.

For too many years Americans have been sitting on their lazy butts, bragging about how great the U.S. is, well, the vacation is over, and it's time to get to work and pay our debts. H. Woods, in the future, we should clean up our throw away society before we start evaluating other cultures, which most Americans are extremely ignorant of. — Brad E. Virden, Junior, Forest Resource Management

Campus police set firearms deadline

Students at SIU-C who are storing firearms at SIU-C's campus police department need to pick them up by May 13, police say.

The guns may be picked up at the department's office in Washington Square at any time during the 24-hour day.

Weapons not retrieved by the deadline will be transferred to evidence lockers in the police department's investigation section, Braswell said, and it will be harder for their owners to get them back.

Alumni artist to give two lectures, critiques

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

Artist and SIU-C graduate Buzz Spector is returning to Carbondale to present two lectures to the campus and community and will be available to the Art Department for critiques.

Spector will present his lectures "Artists, Artists' Books and Art Criticism" and "Other Windows, Other Mirrors" at 3 p.m. Thursday and 3 p.m. Friday, respectively. Both lectures are free and will be held in the University Museum.

Since his graduation in 1972 with a bachelor's degree in art, Spector has become a prominent Chicago artist and writer. He is editor of "White Walls," an artists' periodical published in Chicago.

Spector's artistic medium is books, says Ed Shay of the art department.

"He takes specific books and tears them up in a certain way so they are metaphors for something else," Shay feels "the only way to really be aware of the process is to see his work or see slides of it."

Spector's work is in the collection of The Museum of Modern Art in New York, The National Museum of American Art in Washington, D.C., The Tate Gallery in London and The Stedilijk Museum in Amsterdam. He is represented in Chicago by The Roy Boyd Gallery.

Spector's visit is funded in part by the Illinois Arts Council, a state agency, under their Readings and Residencies Program.

The University Museum is located in Faner Hall C Wing. The public is welcomed.

Student Bank closed by state

EASTON, Mass. (AP) — A group of youngsters and a teacher who started a bank at school were learning a lot about high finance when the state decided to teach them a lesson about the law — by shutting them down.

"The law is the law," said Robert Ledbetter, a state deputy banking commissioner, whose examiners closed the bank at Easton Middle School for not having a charter, among other things.

The bank was started as a learning tool, teaching the children the rudiments of finance by loaning out money for lunches and pocket cash.

Borrowers were charged 8 percent interest a week with a maximum credit line of $1.50, twice the price of a day's hot lunch.

But "the school has gone well beyond the (banking) statute," Ledbetter said. "Making loans at 8 percent runs about 400 percent per annum and that's in clear violation of the law. The bank was in violation."

Heart disease linked to sex hormone

NEW YORK (AP) — A widely held belief that excess cholesterol leads to heart disease has been challenged by a new study showing that men with heart disease have higher-than-normal levels of female sex hormones in their systems. The study, published in the May issue of the American Journal of Medicine, found that men with heart disease had elevated levels of estradiol, one of the hormones called estrogens, according to Dr. Gerald Phillips of the St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital Center in New York.

Phillips, who directed the new study, said the finding could change what doctors recommend to prevent heart attacks.

The study did not examine how the hormones affect women's hearts.

Encore '83 to be presented

"Encore '83: A Night of Jazz," will be presented Friday at 7 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

The show, sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha fraternity, will feature the SIU Big Band, the vocal group, A Touch of Class and The Carbondale Jazz Showcase, featuring Joe Liberto, John Moulder, Darvell Samuel, Jim Wall and Dan Ward.

A suggested $1 donation is asked, with all proceeds going to the Harold McFarlin Fund.

Two music students win scholarships

Two freshmen have won $100 scholarships awarded by Phi Mu Alpha, a professional fraternity for men in music.

Cecilia Wagner, freshman in Music Theater and Dan Barford, freshman in Music are the recipients. Both performed in front of a panel of six adjudicators.

Wagner is a member of the Opera Workshop and the SIU Symphony Orchestra, while Barford is a member of the SIU Guitar Ensemble.

Lumber firm to lobby against forestland bill

By Michele Inman
Staff Writer

A new bill to promote forestry development in Illinois may be facing trouble in the general assembly.

Promoters of the bill, which is sponsored by Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Makanda, say that opposition has come up from strong forces in the industry.

Westvaco Corp., a pulp and paper packaging and special chemicals company that is one of the largest lumber firms in Southern Illinois, said that it will lobby against the bill, said George Weaver, chairman of the Forestry Department and one of the foresters who worked on the bill.

Weaver said there is a chance that the bill, which was introduced to the Senate committee April 15, won't even get out of the committee. Friday is the deadline for any action on the bill in the committee. If the bill is not amended and no action is taken, the bill dies, he said.

The Illinois Forestry Development Act proposes creation of statewide programs to support forestry development on unused forest resources in Illinois. Weaver said. It recommends creation of an Illinois Commission on Forestry Development which would study forestry problems and recommend solutions by 1986.

The bill calls for the Illinois Department of Conservation to assist landowners in developing management plans for their forest lands. Provisions of the bill include a tax break on property taxes for landowners working with the department and financial assistance to these landowners through a "cost-sharing" program.

This program will be funded by a 4 percent fee on timber purchases.

Weaver said much of the forestry industry supports the bill, but some people may be reluctant to accept the 4 percent increase.

For Westvaco, this fee is a problem.

Public Affairs Forester of Westvaco, John Wood, said the money for the landowners to develop their lands wouldn't be collected properly. He said money should not be collected from timber purchases, but from the companies of saw mills.

Westvaco, he said, is not in favor of taxation because the majority of the funds will not go back to the land. Because of this, landowners will not have incentive to develop their lands, he asserted.

"We have to look at the future of forestry," Wood said, "and it lies in the hands of private landowners. The Forestry Development Fund will only give him 20 percent of the amount of money he needs to develop his land. He'll have to come up with 80 percent."

Westvaco also opposes the bill because, "it is too much of a last minute rush to get something through."

Wood said Westvaco's main concern is that there are similar bills in other states, such as in Virginia and Florida, and "we should look at other states to see their mistakes."

Wood added that Westvaco is strongly in favor of establishing the commission and that the commission "could come back with some sound legislation by 1985."

"We consider no bill is better than a bad bill," Wood said. "This bill is just not studied enough."

The bill is important, Weaver said, because it would "provide much needed stimulus to forestry in Illinois. It will promote soil and water conservation — especially on marginal lands — improvement of wildlife, increased use of forests for aesthetic and recreational purposes and increased production of and markets for forest products." He said developing these resources will also contribute to state economic development.

Phone home to Mom for free with two-day service from GTE

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

People who are tired of standing in crowded drug stores and sorting through an array of mushy Mother's Day cards will have an alternative again this year.

General Telephone and University Mall are offering people the chance to give a personal message to Mom for free.

GTE Phone Mart Manager Sandy Vaughn said that from Friday to Sunday anyone can make a three minute phone call from the GTE kiosk—a small booth containing four phones which will be set up at the south corridor of the mall. Calls can be made to a mother anywhere in the U.S. Friday from 5 to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

"The cost of making the three-minute phone call and paying for it would vary according to the city and state called," Vaughn said. "But the cheapest rate within Illinois would be 18 cents, and the highest would be $1.50."

The free calls were offered on Mother's Day and Father's Day last year as a customer service for both businesses, and it was so popular that it is being done again.

"The response was great especially from the students," she said. "They really seemed to like it."

People don't even have to worry about talking too long and having to pay for extra time because an arrangement is made so that the operator tells the caller that the three minutes are almost up and it's time to stop.

Air Patrol provides aid in disaster

By Lisa Nichols
Staff Writer

If a natural disaster, such as a flood or tornado, hit the Southern Illinois area, would the townspeople know what to do?

No, they would not, according to Chief Master Sgt. Erwin Mueller of the Carbondale unit of the Civil Air Patrol.

"None of the towns in this area are prepared for anything," Mueller said. "People never prepare until it strikes them. These towns aren't set up equipment-wise. They're just not ready."

That's where the Civil Air Patrol comes in.

Organized in 1941 as part of the U.S. Office of Civil Defence, the Civil Air Patrol became a permanent civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force in 1948.

The Civil Air Patrol is a non-profit, non-military organization dedicated to humanitarian services, Mueller said. The Civil Air Patrol consists of volunteers who are best known for their search-and-rescue missions. But they perform many other functions as well.

In the event of a natural disaster, the Civil Air Patrol performs air and ground searches for victims, Mueller said. They also help officials seal off the disaster area.

"We have floodlights, stretchers, cots, blankets, wreckers, tents and other equipment the town needs. We also help doctors keep any victims covered up and out of shock. We even have hand-me-down fatigues from the Air Force to give to people without clothes," Mueller said.

Other functions CAP units have performed include transporting blood for the American Red Cross, transporting organs for transplants, locating people lost in wilderness areas and recovering airplanes which have crashed, Mueller said.

Volunteers for the Civil Air Patrol must be at least 18 and be a citizen or resident alien of the U.S. A special component of the patrol is the cadet program for young people 13 to 18.

The cadet program teaches leadership, military disciplines and courtesies and a basic knowledge of aerospace. Interested cadets can even learn to fly a plane.

"It all depends upon what they want to do," Mueller said. "They get out of it what they put in to it." Once a teen enters the cadet program, he is under no obligation and can quit anytime, Muller said.

Mitch Ruger, a former Civil Air Patrol cadet who is now an airman first-class in the Springfield Air National Guard, said, "I learned military customs and courtesies and military procedures through my experience as a cadet."

The training Ruger gained from the cadet program helped him to graduate from Air Force basic training at the top of his class and get a higher pay grade, he said.

"I never would have made honor graduate if I hadn't served as a cadet in the Civil Air Patrol first," Ruger said. "If you want to carry on with a military career, Civil Air Patrol really helps."

Club to make students aware of it

The Psi Chi Psychology Club, with a current membership of 15 to 20 plans to make others more aware of the club during the summer semester, said Joe Angelillo, club president.

Plans for the summer and fall semesters for the club were discussed at the last meeting of this semester.

"We will spend the summer trying to create an awareness of our group," said Angelillo.

Over the summer Angelillo said he plans to pull the club together, tighten it and make it more organized. He wants more people to know about the club and what it does. Angelillo is also working on plans for the fall semester.

He said he hopes to implement an awards dinner for the end of each semester. Examples of awards that will be given are: one to an outstanding professor in the Psychology Department; the most productive member; the member with the highest grade point average; and the member with the most research contributions.

The number of awards to be given will be limited to about seven. Angelillo said.

Professors, students submit papers

By Lisa Nichols
Staff Writer

Five professors and three graduate students from the Geography Department presented papers at the national conference of the Association of American Geographers in Denver last week, according to David Arey, chairman of the department.

"It's unusual for so many from this school to participate," Arey said. "We're a small department — we only have nine professors and over half attended the conference."

Arey, who presented a paper on his research in the field of industrial air pollution, said the Association of American Geographers is this country's major organization of geographers in academia, private industry and government. He said between 1,500 and 2,000 geographers attended this year's conference.

The purpose of the conference, Arey said, is to trade the latest ideas in the wide-ranging field of geography. For graduate students, it's a "chance to get their feet wet" and gain some positive response to their research papers, which reflect their dissertations, he said.

The conference is also a chance for graduate students to make professional contacts, an important step in securing a job after graduation, Arey said.

Craig Brown, Pradnya Dharmadhikari and Ben Dziegielewski, the three graduate students who gave presentations, were extremely successful, which is a good reflection on SIU-C, Arey said.

Seven other graduate students from SIU-C attended the conference but did not present papers. The other faculty members who gave presentations are Duane Bowman, Stanley Lieber, Colin Prowse and David Sharpe.

County hopeful site for Hospice

By Paula J. Finlay
Student Writer

Many people with terminal illness prefer to stay home in a safe, comfortable setting. Hospice is a program that makes that possible.

If progress continues on schedule, Jackson County will have an operating hospice by this fall.

"We hope to have direct services by the fall. That's our goal," said Donna Lynch, chairperson of Hospice Care board of directors.

Hospice Care is a group that organized in February 1982 when people in the community decided that there were some gaps for the dying person and his family that a hospice could address, Lynch said.

A general membership meeting will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday at St. Joseph's Hospital in Murphysboro.

"We see ourselves as supplementing services that already exist in the community, certainly not replacing any existing services," she said.

"Presently, our bylaws are completed, and a board of directors has been elected.

The Jackson County Hospice Care will be a community-based "in home" program and will involve referrals from physicians, hospitals, nursing homes and the public, Lynch said. People with a terminal illness, usually toward the dying stage who need supportive care, will be aided by the hospice, she said.

Hospice Care will also involve bereavement counseling to help the family work through the grief process after the person die, Lynch said.

Members of TKE, ATO awarded

By Julie Fagin
Student Writer

Two members of SIU-C social fraternities received the Greek of the Year Award recently at the 52nd Annual Inter-Greek Council Awards Banquet.

The Outstanding Service Award for service to the Greek-letter organization system went to David Gorsage, a senior in finance and member of Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and John Steinway, a senior in history and member of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity.

The Scholarship Award for the chapter with the highest grade point average was given to the Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity, which maintained a 3.01 GPA for both the fall and spring semesters.

The Most Distinguished Chapter Awards were presented to Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority, Alpha Kappa Delta Sorority and Tau Kappa Epsilon (IFC).

Gorsage was president of Tau Kappa Epsilon and producer of the Theta Xi Variety Show. Steinway was chairman of the IGC and a member of the Student Center Policy Committee.

'Lincoln' to speak on day of prayer

The essence of Abraham Lincoln will be captured Thursday night in a speech by look-alike Fritz Kline of Springfield.

The speech, to be held at 7 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom D, is part of a national week of prayer declared to coincide with President Reagan's day of prayer for the nation Thursday.

Kline will draw his speech from Lincoln's letters and speeches. His address will be followed by a prayer for the nation, given by John Somers.

Donations will be accepted to meet the expenses of the program.

SUMMER SESSION CIPS SERVICE DISCONNECTION

If you will be leaving at the end of the SIU summer session (or any other time) and wish to stop billing in your name for Central Illinois Public Service Company electric and/or natural gas service, you must notify the CIPC office.

Protect yourself. Billing is continued in your name if notification is not given.

For those customers in the Carbondale District which includes Carbondale, DeSoto, Dowell, Elkhville and Makanda, the CIPS office to notify is located at 334 N. Illinois Avenue, Carbondale. You may request that your service be discontinued either in person, by letter or by telephoning 457-4158.

ISU can hurt Salukis by staying home

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

There are more important things than track and field meets to Illinois State Coach John Coughlan.

For the first time since the Illinois Intercollegiate's inception in 1969, his Redbirds will not be represented at the annual meet for state schools. Final exams and the chance to rest for the Missouri Valley Conference meet the following weekend have prompted ISU to pull out completely or send a skeleton squad.

If they do send any competitors, says Coughlan, it won't be enough to challenge the nearest dorm team.

"Maybe one or two," he said. "Right now, we are in the middle of exams and graduation is on Saturday, the same day of the meet's finals. Another thing is that we ran very well at Drake last week and we've got the Missouri Valley meet on the 13th."

"I think we would do a lot better at the Valley meet if we take this weekend off. Sometimes you have to make these kind of decisions, to see what's best. We talked about it, and have agreed it is best for Illinois State."

The elimination of the Redbirds, a team that finished just a notch behind SIU-C in the indoor meet in February, should be good news to Coach Lew Hartzog and his running Salukis — right?

Wrong. The Redbirds have an experienced distance team and were being counted upon by Hartzog to take a few points away from co-favorite Illinois. The Illini are mighty potent in the distances and now have a chance to score even more points because of their depth. That is the main reason Hartzog isn't counting his 95-58 dual meet win over Illinois earlier this year.

"In a dual meet," said Hartzog, "you have only three scoring places. Now there's six."

Which means Illinois may have enough depth to pick up points by placing fourth, fifth and sixth, if it doesn't capture first, second and third.

"It will be a very competitive meet," said Hartzog. "Their distance team had a great meet at Drake."

It's the 15th outdoor state championship and as it has been 14 times before, the top two teams are SIU-C and Illinois. The pair have traded first and second places quite a few times during the history of the meet.

Illinois leads the indoor series 8-7 and SIU-C is ahead in the outdoor segment 10-4, including a six-year domination from 1971 to 1976. In last year's meet, the Salukis scored a record 275 points, bouncing back from two successive losses to Gary Weneke's Illini in 1980 and 1981.

The Salukis return a houseful of title holders from last year, but three of those may not compete. Tony Adams, last year's 400-meter champion and Kevin Baker, who captured the long jump, are out with injuries. It's been a month-long layoff for Adams, who injured his leg April 2 in a dual meet at Indiana. Baker hurt his ankle last week against Oregon. And Andy Geiger, 1982 pole vault champion, is lost for the year.

The Salukis do have Mike Franks, however, the sophomore who has led the Salukis in scoring for the second straight year. Franks won the 100- and 200-meter dashes last year and anchored the winning Saluki efforts in the 400- and 800-meter relays.

Either way it goes for the Salukis, the loss of Illinois State will do much more harm than good.

"It puts a burden on us," said Hartzog.

Upbeat gymnast makes center stage

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

Editor's note — This is the ninth in a series of articles on Saluki Olympic hopefuls.

Everybody wants him. So say men's gymnastics coach Bill Meade about Brian Babcock, his elegant star all-arounder and holder of most Saluki records.

"Right now he's a hot item," Meade said. "If he continues to do well and do the job, the judges will realize he doesn't have weaknesses, that he's consistent. That's what they're looking for. If the judges get hot on someone, they'll try to help him as long as he doesn't blow it all."

The only gymnasts that get such breaks are the good ones, not that once they get to the top they stay there because of breaks. Babcock is on a roll, though, having a solid dual meet season, a third-place in the all-around competition at NAAs, a tie for first in the Emerald Empire Cup, and good sets at his first overseas trip as a member of the U.S. national team. He is gathering the momentum that he will need in the effort to attain another goal — becoming a member of the 1984 Olympic team.

Babcock had his best month

On the road to '84

of competition in April. Always on the edge of the spotlight but never quite in it, mostly because of injuries, the SIU-C senior is the center of attention now.

"It's expected of me to do well now, and there a little bit more pressure," Babcock said.

"There's always been the pressure of 'I want to do well, and now it's coming to 'I have to do well.'"

"Everybody likes a winner," he continued. "But I want to do the best I possibly can."

Not because it's expected, but because of the love he has for the sport.

"It's always been enjoyable just to compete," he said. "Just being able to do what I really love to do. It's frustrating when you don't reach your goals as well as you'd like, but it's fun just go out and have a good time. It works out better that way than worrying about what you have to do."

Babcock has had his share of frustrations, including a knee injury suffered while practicing in February 1982 that sidelined him for nine months. Those have never set him back, though. He has too positive an attitude for that.

"I've seen him a little disappointed, but never down," said Meade, who has worked with the gymnast for five years.

"It's so easy to look at the negative things, and that's where you ruin your workouts and what you've been trying to accomplish," Babcock said. "If you think of the negative things, you're not going to get anywhere."

"You have to look at what you accomplish each day. Maybe it's just a little thing, but it's better than looking at all the bad aspects and maybe dropping back. If you look at life that way you don't get much out of it and I try to look at life the same way as I do gymnastics."

His life is gymnastics right now; about 80 percent of his time is devoted to it, he said. Babcock would like to coach but now his emphasis is on his training. He'll be at SIU-C next year to work on his masters and train for his biggest goal.

Making the Olympic team would mean a lot, he said, but he won't be that disappointed if he doesn't make it, an outlook which has come about after the many injuries.

"Making the effort is the important part," he said.

For Babcock, who has been competing for nine years, gymnastics meets are places where he meets friends and cheers for them while at the same time competing against them.

"It's easy to give encouragement because everyone has been in the same situation of having to deal with pain, fear, and not being able to accomplish what you want," he said. "Everyone knows what you're dealing with, so most people are encouraging, even from other teams."

"I think it's the uniqueness of our sport. You set your own destiny. When someone else is competing, it's all up to them, so it's very easy to cheer."

"I have more friends through gymnastics with people I never would have met in any other situation. Like one individual, Scott Johnson of Nebraska, and I have been competing against each other for six years. I've beaten him, he's beaten me, but we're still friends."

"We're not out for blood. We want to have fun."

Men's SID accepts job with Olympic committee field trial events.

"I think we've got a hell of a coaching staff, and I'm proud to have been associated with them," Kopriva said of his departure from Carbondale. "I wish them a lot of luck. This opportunity in Los Angeles, however, is one that I could not pass up. It's a challenging assignment in the biggest sports event of all."

Kopriva, 33, will serve with the LAOC until the Games' completion. At that time, he said, he'll have to make another career decision.

"I've been in the sports information business for 12 years now, and maybe it's time to move on," he said. "We'll see what kind of opportunities open up as a result of this. I think a lot will. I think the thing I'd like more than anything would be to be an editor or publisher of a small paper, but that's kind of a dream thing."

Don Kopriva, sports information director for men's athletics, has resigned to accept a post with Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee.

Kopriva, who accepted the SIU-C post less than a year ago after serving as SID at Wisconsin-Parkside for 11 years, will assume his duties with the LAOC on June 6. He will work in press operations as manager of the main press center during the games, which are slated for July 28-August 12, 1984.

Kopriva formerly served as a press officer for the U.S. delegation at the 1979 World University Games in Mexico City, as well as serving in that capacity during the 1981 and 1982 National Sports Festivals and at two Olympic track and

Schranz wins top baseball award

P. J. Schranz is second on the Salukis in batting average, third in runs, second in steals, and has played an almost flawless centerfield this season while wrapping up a successful four-year career at SIU-C.

That helped Schranz win the annual Abe Martin award Wednesday. But it took more than skill on the baseball diamond for Schranz to gain the honor, given annually to the ballplayer who most exemplifies honesty, leadership, excellence, dedication and loyalty on and off the field.

"He's been a four-year starter and his dedication, loyalty, competitiveness and his helping of the younger players mean more than the baseball aspect," said SIU-C coach Itchy Jones.

"He's always been helpful to the young kids. He's the type of young man you'd like to coach for your whole life."

A lot of veteran players ignore the freshman and sophomore players, said Jones, but Schranz has always gone out of his way to teach the younger players.

"He's helped Robert Jones with his play in the outfield. He'll go out and spend time with Robert while I hit fly balls to him."

Schranz was drafted out of high school by the Los Angeles Dodgers, but opted for school instead, and will get his degree in Business Administration soon.

He batted .250 as a freshman, .325 as a sophomore, .268 a year ago, .328 this season, and has played a new position almost every year.

Schranz has been a second baseman, a shortstop, a right fielder, and this spring, a centerfielder.

"Good athletes can play different positions," said Jones. "His best position is probably going to be in the outfield." Jones said that Schranz had a solid shot at being drafted by a major league team.
