Hoye proposes new bond issue to fund center

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

A new financing plan for the city's downtown conference center has been proposed by developer Stan Hoye, but the plan isn't ready for approval of the City Council, City Manager Bill Dixon said Thursday.

Hoye has proposed to build the 240-room hotel and 1,500-seat conference center with economic revenue bonds, but who would back the minimum $14 million worth of bonds to make them attractive to investors is unsettled.

Hoye said Thursday that U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, has asked the Farmer's Home Administration, which backed an earlier issue of conference bonds, to back the new issue. Although the FHA no longer guarantees such bonds, Hoye said, it may be able to because the conference center project began several years ago.

But, if the FHA is unable to guarantee the 10-year bonds, Hoye said he will ask the city to do so with its taxing authority.

Dixon said the city is looking into whether the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development would allow the city to stand behind the new bonds and retain a $2.071 million Urban Development Grant for project land acquisition from HUD.

Payments on the bonds would be about $1.56 million annually. Hoye said the hotel would generate sufficient revenue to meet that, with an average capacity of 62 percent.

"Chances are very remote" that hotel revenues would fall short of that needed for the bond payments and the city would have to step in with tax

Student progress rules tightened; some may lose aid

By Anne Flaszka
Staff Writer

Full-time students seeking federal financial aid must have completed eight credit hours of classes this spring to be eligible again for those funds, a University official said Thursday.

Because of new federal regulations which are retroactive to Jan. 1, students who would normally have been allowed funds may soon find that they have been squeezed out by fiscal belt-tightening.

Joe Camille, director of student work and financial assistance, said that the U.S. Department of Education's new regulations have forced the University to redefine its standards for "satisfactory progress."

Until the guidelines took effect in January, students receiving financial aid were allowed to fall up to 18 hours behind in the amount of credit hours which would "normally" be completed over an unlimited number of semesters.

But now, Camille said, financial aid eligibility is being based on hours completed during each semester.

A full-time eligible student must complete at least 8 credit hours per semester during that student's first four semesters. At least 10 credit hours must be completed per semester during the fifth through eighth semesters, and at least 12 credit hours must be completed per semester during the ninth through 12th semesters.

This, Camille said, may cause some problems for students

Trojans fail to block approval of USO elections

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

A walkout of 10 Trojan Party senators failed to deny Wednesday's Student Senate meeting of the quorum necessary to ratify the Undergraduate Student Organization's elections.

The Trojan walkout took place after the passage of all agenda items and an unsuccessful attempt to adjourn the meeting without approving the elections. A quorum call was met by one vote, and the elections were approved 11 to 1 with one abstention.

If all the Trojans had stayed and voted in opposition to the election bill it would have failed. The bill approved the election of Action Party candidates Andrew Leighton and Jack Cranley as USO president and vice president, and the election of 36 senators.

The senate also granted fee allocations for the Southern Publishing Information Network, for $1,238, and the Synergy Student Auxiliary, for $740.

The Senate added $150 to the Inter-Greek Council's 1984-85 fee allocation to conduct an open house at the Student Center during orientation week. Ron Orr, assistant commissioner of the USO Finance Commission, objected to the additional funding. IGC's total allocation was $9,395.

"Any other group wouldn't have gotten more money, but the senate was biased because there are so many greek senators," Orr said.

A bill introduced by Leighton to oppose the creation of a doctoral program in engineering science was withdrawn after discussion concerning the program's appropriateness.

revenues to make payments, Hoyer said.

"If I thought I was going to lose money, I wouldn't be in this deal," Hoyer said.

The council is slated to review a status report of the proposal Monday, although Dixon said he has briefed each council member individually on it. Dixon said the council will be asked to authorize him to seek an opinion from the Internal Revenue Service on whether Hoyer could issue the bonds without violating federal tax codes, but more information is needed before the council will vote on approval.

Dixon speculated that the north side of the proposed project site would be the most likely site for the conference center because the city owns all but two properties there. The proposed parking garage, which Dixon calls a "key component" of the project, would more likely be built to the south. But Dixon stressed that the project is not yet ready to move ahead.

Hoyer said the north site is smaller than the area to the south which had been earlier proposed as the conference center site. Putting the hotel-conference center on a smaller piece of land would be more costly, Hoyer said. The building would need to be taller than four stories as planned, which would mean increased construction costs to meet stricter fire codes for taller buildings, he said.

unaware of the new guidelines.

"If a student didn't know about the changes, thought they would still be eligible and only completed six credit hours, they could appeal the termination of their financial aid to the Financial Aid Advisory Committee," Camille said.

Camille said the 7-member committee may be somewhat lenient with students who were caught off-guard by the new regulations due to the retroactive nature of the law.

In addition, the DOE has placed a ceiling on the number of semesters students are allowed to attend and still receive aid. Students are only eligible for financial aid for 12 semesters, or six academic years.

Students who have not received federal financial aid will find that the satisfactory progress stipulation applies to them also.

"Now we will have to look at students' work for the previous semester even though they were not on aid then but are applying for it now," Camille said.

Students who are not receiving aid but seek it and find they are ineligible because they did not complete eight credit hours during the previous semester may also appeal, he said.

Although the regulations were listed in the Federal Register in October of 1983, Camille said the redefinition of SIU-C's policy could not be completed until further clarification came from the DOE.

Camille said his office and other financial aid offices across the state had anticipated a deferment of the regulation deadline. When that didn't happen, Camille said, the University's policy had to be altered to conform to the changes.

Camille said he believes the changes were implemented because the DOE felt some schools were being too lenient in deciding financial aid eligibility.

The Financial Aid Advisory Committee and representatives from the Graduate School are working now to draw up a separate satisfactory progress policy for graduate students.

Until now, graduate students were not included in the DOE guidelines, Camille said.

Development of a policy for graduate students will be more difficult, he said, because of the wide variance of the total of credit hours those students take.

The number of students the changes will affect will not be known for about another month when financial aid termination under the new rules begins, he said.

public discussion, said during discussion that he feared the creation of the doctoral program would lead to the "cannibalizing of liberal arts programs."

Tracy Stenbeck, a senator from the College of Engineering and Technology, said that engineering was "one of few growing programs on campus" and the new degree ought to be approved.

Pope urges reconciliation in Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Pope John Paul II called for reconciliation between North and South Korea and "a more human society of true justice and peace" as he began a 10-day pilgrimage to Asia in South Korea on Thursday.

The pontiff, on his first of five days in South Korea, expressed hope that the communist and anti-communist halves of the divided nation will be reunited and political repression will lessen in both.

Auto exhaust inspection bill OK'd

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A bill aimed at preventing the cutoff of millions of dollars in federal highway funds by setting up car-exhaust inspections in four populous Illinois counties sailed through a Senate committee Thursday.

The Senate Transportation Committee voted 7-0 to send the measure, affecting Cook, Lake, St. Clair and Madison counties, to the full Senate for consideration.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Max Coffey, R-Charleston, was proposed by Governor Thompson.

Bill edges toward judge appointment

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Illinois would take a baby step toward appointing judges rather than electing them under legislation backed by Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan of Chicago.

The legislation would set up local boards across the state, made up of lawyers and others, to recommend lawyers or judges to fill vacancies at the supreme, appeals and circuit court levels.

But the impact of the measure apparently would be minimal, as only a small percentage of the state's 750 judicial seats become vacant before a judge's term is up.

Grad Council OKs engineering doctorate plan

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

A proposal for doctoral program in engineering science and a call to create a committee to develop an overall mission statement for the SIU-C were approved by the Graduate Council on Thursday.

The engineering doctoral program was approved 21 to three with two abstentions, though Steve Katsinas, a doctoral candidate in higher education and a member of the new programs committee, objected because two-thirds of the students who would enroll in the program would be foreign.

Elizabeth Eames, professor of philosophy, and Katsinas both asked why provisions were not made in the engineering program proposal for the recruitment of women and minorities. Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of engineering, said the program would be a great benefit to the University, and that plans were currently being developed to recruit American students, particularly American blacks and women students.

Tempelmeyer also said most American master's graduates aren't interested in doctoral engineering programs because of the incentive of high salaries in private industry.

Now approved at the University level, the engineering sciences proposal will be sent to the Illinois Board of Higher Education. It asks for $436,000 in state funds over four years, and is projected to graduate 30 students per year, over half of them foreign, by 1990. The program would begin in fall, 1986.

Also approved was a resolution to create a committee to develop an overall mission statement of S.U.-C. The call for a "master plan" came from Eugene Timpe, a professor of foreign languages and literatures, who said that new degree programs too often were judged on their merits alone.

"We have to consider what we want the University to become, and where new programs fit in with those goals," Timpe said. He asked that a joint committee from the Graduate Council and the Faculty Senate be put together to consider the future direction of the University.

Aristotel Pappelis, a professor of botany, objected to the resolution. He said faculty do not have the expertise to look at the effects of adding new programs and that social change was too rapid to allow locking the University into a stated mission.

Katsinas and Ann Greeley, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council said that excluding students from the mission development committee was a mistake. Greeley said that students have a unique contribution to make and their input should not be omitted.

The Graduate Council did approve a doctoral mission statement to send to the IBHE. Two previous drafts of the doctoral mission were rejected by IBHE, but Barbara Hansen, dean of the Graduate School, said she was confident this one would be accepted, allowing for the approval of future SIU-C doctoral programs.

Malisa Janes, a doctoral student in rehabilitation, said that there were problems with the goal statement section of the document. Goals such as providing the state with graduates who are experts in vital fields was relegated to the 11th out of 12 goals, while ensuring laboratory equipment and instrumentation were of high quality, ranked sixth point, was not a goal at all, she said. John Jackson, professor of political science, said the document was well written and commended Dean Hansen on the document. He said that the goal to provide experts in vital fields was probably ranked 11th so as "to go out with a bang." Jackson was the author of the second mission statement rejected by IBHE.

The council also approved the consideration of doctoral students for a dissertation research award before they enter their doctoral candidacy, and a new graduate student grievance policy and procedure.

Senate eyes $144 billion deficit plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, inching toward endorsement of a $144 billion deficit-reduction package that President Reagan backs, heard a warning Thursday from the president against seeking military spending cuts beyond those he already supp

In an appearance before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger reluctantly delivered a list of suggested Pentagon cuts as part of the effort to meet the deficit-reduction goal. He also noted Reagan had sent the committee a letter saying, "I strongly believe that any further reductions would be counter to our national security and could not be accepted."

Meanwhile, the unabated flow of red ink prompted the Senate Finance Committee to approve legislation increasing the government's line of credit by $207 billion to accommodate a national debt expected to hit nearly $1.7 trillion by the end of next March.

The full Senate was in its seventh day of considering plans for making a "down payment" on eliminating the deficits, projected to total about $600 billion over the next three years. No action was scheduled Friday as a courtesy to legislators who wanted to make their way to Louisville for Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby.

Action Thursday focused on a three-year, $200 billion plan offered by Democratic leaders.

Voters demand tough prosecutor

WHEN JOHN CLEMONS promised a hard-line approach to plea bargaining, the voters of Jackson County quickly ushered him into the state's attorney's office. Clemons' election in 1980 was a clear-cut message about the public's attitude toward plea bargaining...

While other county officials may disagree with Clemons' curtailment of the practice of plea bargaining, it is obviously the wish of the voters.

Judge Richard E. Richman is right in saying that plea negotiating cannot be eliminated. Clemons never promised elimination of bargaining, but rather a sharp limitation of its use.

The result of Clemons' policy is a minimal number of negotiated pleas and a large number of convictions, with an increase in trials. It has also lessened the possibility of discriminatory use of plea bargaining...

WHILE PUBLIC DEFENDER Patricia Morris says her office will not abandon the idea of rehabilitation, apparently almost everyone else has. The criminal justice system has yet to demonstrate that pursuit of the goal of rehabilitation has translated into a reduced crime rate.

But even if rehabilitation were plausible, that's not Clemons' job. His job is prosecuting and convicting criminals. While defense attorneys are naturally concerned with the welfare of their clients, Clemons is right in leaving rehabilitation to the courts and corrections system.

Clemons has no obligation to give defendants any breaks. His first responsibility is to the people who elected him. The public is frightened by the increase in violent crime, and electing a state's attorney who is tough on criminals is a manifestation of those fears.

Clemons' willingness to toughen up on plea bargaining may seem harsh and, because of the growing number of trials, expensive. But if it works, and it's what the voters want, he is taking the right course.

Letter Stolar has praise for predecessors

As the newly elected president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, it is my duty and honor to thank the current student government leaders for their hard work and dedication. I have worked with student leaders for five years, and this year's leaders are some of the finest people to have occupied student leadership roles.

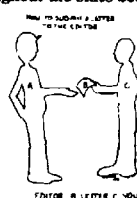

Ann Greeley has been totally devoted to representing the views of graduate and professional students for the past 15 months. The standing ovation that the GPSC gave Ann at our last meeting is a perfect example of the respect and admiration graduate students have for her. Ann has been an inspiration for me, and I can only hope to be as great a president as she was. I wish Ann, and GPSC Vice President Dan Venturi, the best in years to come.

Bruce Joseph has provided a desperately needed professional aura for the Undergraduate Student Organization. In his tenure as USO President, Bruce numbers among his accomplishments the delivery of the most accurate student directory and perfect attendance at Board of Trustee meetings. Bruce helped me a lot in my role as a student member of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, and for that I thank him.

Bill Fuller, president of the Illinois Student Association and Policy Chair of the IBHE Student Advisory Committee, is probably the hardest working student leader in the state.

Bill is highly respected by student government officials throughout the state because of his intelligence and his loyalty to Illinois students. Bill has been my advisor and partner in all my dealings with statewide student issues, and I also thank him for his help.

As for next year, I see a great year in store for student government. No president can have a better Vice President than I have in Nancy Bandy. Nancy and I have known each other for about two years and share the same commitments to equity, quality, and accessibility.

I also look forward to working with Andy Liegton and Jack Cranley, president and vice president-elects for USO, and Bill Goodnick, student trustee-elect. I am impressed with all three and know that they will excel in their respective jobs.

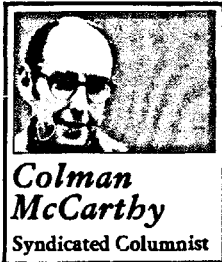

I am sure I speak for all of us involved in student government when I say that we are dedicated to serving the students of SIU, and that is exactly what we do. — Glenn Stolar, Graduate Student, Business Administration

Press, feds handled Nazi, Klan trials badly

IN THE MIND of Glenn Miller, a political leader in North Carolina, an outrageous injustice has occurred in the April 15 acquittal of nine Ku Klux Klansmen and American Nazi Party members. The group had been charged with civil rights violations in the November 1979 Greensboro street killings of five members of the Communist Workers Party and the wounding of seven others. Miller is angry and demands justice.

It is time, he said in a press conference after the acquittals, for the communists to stand trial. They, not the Klan or Nazis, were the troublemakers at that November demonstration. The Klan and Nazis were "heroes" who acted in self-defense. Since then, Miller said, the Klan and Nazis have suffered "pure hell" because of persecution by the government and the "Jew-dominated news media."

WHO IS GLENN Miller? Unhounded and unleashed, he is the leader of the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Of the many reactions to the all-white jury's verdict that federal civil rights law were not broken when the Klan and Nazis opened fire on a group of people in a legal demonstration, Miller's is the most brazen and disgusting. Five American citizens — one physician, four labor organizers and all of them educated and humane people — are dead in televised shootings, and this bigot rants that the not-guilty verdict is a "great victory" for "all patriotic anti-communist, freedom-loving Christian people."

Miller's thinking is easily dealt with. This is the raw venting of the traditional derangement that has marked the Klan since its night riders began lynching blacks in the 1890s. Instead of nooses, the Klan now kills with guns. Hate, too, must be modernized.

MILLER AT LEAST leaves no questions unanswered. The same can't be said for either the performance of the Justice Department or the media in the Greensboro case.

The federal indictment against the gunmen was a loosely tied knot which all but invited the unstringing that eventually came. It had to be proven that the Klan and Nazis went to the demonstration out of racial opposition. The civil rights statute used by prosecutors forbids the violation of citizens' rights because of their race, color, religion or national origin. This gave an opening to the argument that the gunmen were not racists but anti-communists. That was political motivation, not covered by the statute enforced in the trial.

WITH A STATE jury already having acquitted the Klan and Nazis of murder in 1980 — in a trial that overlooked the role of two government infiltrators into the hate groups and the possibility of their fomenting the attack — the federal jury remained unpersuaded that racial motives were at work. This is astounding enough: the Klan and Nazis are not racially motivated? But in addition, one of the five in the Greensboro massacre was black and two were Jewish. The demonstration was held in a black neighborhood.

One of the wounded was a physician whose mother lived through Hitler's death camps. She survived the German Nazis only to see her son shot in the head by the North Carolina Nazis. Anti-communism is so ingrained in the American psyche that it has become legal to gun down those who hold communist beliefs. It was reported that one of the defense attorneys started the trial by "suggesting that in retrospect German Nazis weren't all bad because they opposed communism."

THE PERFORMANCE of the media was worse than the government's. At least the Justice Department — after public pressure brought by congressional and civil rights groups, such as the Black Caucus — responded belatedly and did make a case, however weak. With some exceptions, the national media chose to sit out the case.

At first, the Greensboro massacre was written off as a shootout between two groups of crazies who deserved each other's violence. It was not that at all. The slain activists had proven records of working peacefully among the poor and blacks of North Carolina. They were not spoiling for gunplay on the day of the demonstration. They had a permit to march. Many brought children with them.

AFTER THE SHOOTOUT theory was disproven, the national press then saw it as only a North Carolina story. Several papers in the state reported extensively on the flaws in the two trials and the lingering suspicions. But network television and the major news organizations had juicier trials to cover than lowly civil rights cases. The public was treated to microscopic details in the trials of a Jean Harris, Klaus von Bulow or Roxanne Fultizer, as it is now about to get a stomachful of John DeLorean's dealings.

Big media cover well the glittery misdeeds of the upper class. What's done to those at the bottom — some gunned-down communists — lacks entertainment value. Civil rights was for the '60s.

Soccer column inaccurate and malicious

Responding to a recent column about the International Soccer Tournament, I would like to state a few inaccuracies and prove the existence of journalistic malice.

First I would like to point out the inaccuracies. The writer, Chris Ogbondah, stated that the championship was enveloped by acts of barbarism and vandalism. According to Webster's Dictionary, barbarism is an expression against contemporary standards while vandalism is a willful or malicious destruction of public or private property. For the former, all players played for the victory; for the latter, McAndrew Stadium is still intact.

I would also like to clarify the suggestions made by the writer on how to run the tournament. The tournament is organized by the International Student Council with the assistance and approval of the member organizations. Mr. Ogbondah claimed to be acting president of the Nigerian Student Association. As an executive member of the NSA, he has missed ISC meetings for the past eight months. He could give some input how to run the tournament in those meetings rather than sensationalizing his recommendations through the Daily Egyptian.

Mr. Ogbondah has a very short memory. The ISC was not established four years ago to achieve some noble objective. The ISC was established in the 1960s and has met many objectives. Mr. Ogbondah also ignored the fact that all the participants knew the rules but him. Mr. Ogbondah saw two referees. Should he have asked anyone affiliated with the tournament, he would have learned that the game rules for the tournament will be those adopted from FIFA and as amended by the Soccer Tournament Committee. A good journalistic rule of thumb is "check before you print," isn't it?

Mr. Ogbondah again shows his short memory by writing that the only achievement of the ISC is that it brought soccer to SIU-C. He should know better! The ISC has been successful with many issues, the Student-to-Student Grant, serving international dishes at the cafeteria once a week, the orientations for new students, the ISC's newsletter... How did Mr. Ogbondah forget all this as well as the International Festival which brought more than 6,000 people together and which he covered for the DE.

Why is Mr. Ogbondah trying to make a successful event look so bad? He happened to be a player for the African team. He was instrumental in disrupting the game between Africa and Greece; he was ejected from the game so he could not play in any other game for the tournament.

Mr. Ogbondah was the player who was allegedly struck by a referee after the game. Eyewitnesses stated that Mr. Ogbondah deserved more than he got for his physical and verbal abuse of the referees. He was instrumental in disruptions but he got space in the DE to write his memoirs. Isn't it like sour grapes?

I recognize that everyone should be given the right to express their point of view and criticize constructively. Unfortunately Mr. Ogbondah is a poor example who used the DE to put forth his own biases, thus turning the Daily Egyptian into a Daily Inquirer. — Aris Kotsioris, President, ISC

Editor's note — The abbreviation ISC in Chris Ogbondah's column (sports page, April 26) referred to the International Soccer Championship, not the International Student Council. Ogbondah's statements were directed at the soccer tournament not the International Student Council.

Story personal attack; reporting was faulty

It was with much indignation that I read Chris Ogbondah's article on the International Soccer Championship. It lacked factual reporting and seemed to be a personal attack against the organizers of the championship. I was an officiating referee at the tournament and was appalled that such an unresearched article could be published in the Daily Egyptian.

To say that the tournament was marred by violence and enveloped by acts of barbarism and vandalism is purely a figment of the author's imagination. There were disputes on the field, tempers did flare but the offending players were penalized and the game continued without too much disruption.

In fact, most of the offending players always came and apologized after the match for their ungentlemanly conduct. To classify the minor incidents as acts of violence of barbarism or vandalism misses its mark by a mile. I suggest that Mr. Ogbondah join a terrorist group or tour Lebanon or Northern Ireland to understand the meaning of the words he used. For Mr. Ogbondah's information, there never was an incident in which "a referee lost his temper and physically attacked a player." It makes me wonder how such flagrant misrepresentation of facts can happen when a phone call to the organizers could have cleared matters and averted this false statement. Ethical standards must be maintained and reporters should seek clarification before making such accusations of the sort written by Mr. Ogbondah. He should not abuse the privilege afforded him by the DE but, rather, he should use it to report accurate stimulating journalism.

His earlier reporting on the progress of the tournament also contained many inaccuracies, especially when it came to reporting the scores. The ISC organizers had the official results but Mr. Ogbondah must have decided to provide readers with his own set of inaccurate scores.

If Mr. Ogbondah had wanted to write a truly reflective and factual article, he should have inquired as to why the Africans forfeited their game rather than just stating that they did not show and he should have mentioned that Pars would have made it to the semi-finals even without the African forfeit. He also should have checked the FIFA rules book to see that there is no cardinal rule that states that only a single referee system can be adopted for a soccer game.

Finally, I must add that the spirit of sportsmanship was evident throughout the tournament. The International Soccer Championship has definitely achieved its objective of bringing together sportsmen from different nations to compete successfully and in a sportsmanlike manner. Which other sport on campus can claim such honor and distinction? — Gerard Joseph, Junior, Computer Science

Lack of homework hurt reporter

If Daily Egyptian reporter Chris Ogbondah had done his homework and checked the facts before writing about the International Student Council Soccer Tournament, his criticism would have more credibility. His complaints about violence are curious. What Ogbondah does not say is that, as a player, he was ejected from the first match of the tournament (Africa vs. Greece) for striking a referee. After this tournament-long ejection, his objectivity is questionable.

As a coach and observer, I was impressed with the level of play and satisfied with the way the tournament was run. A simple phone call to the ISC organizers or any of the team coaches would have cleared up the reporter's confusion about the rules or organization of the tournament.

If Ogbondah had checked the facts, he would see that soccer has been a part of campus life since 1967, when the International Soccer Club was founded. For 17 years, the club has successfully offered opportunities for competitive and recreational soccer to both international and American players.

Ogbondah's cheap shots directed at the Pars (Iran) team further show his ignorance of the facts. The Africans' "glorious" third-place finish in the fall tournament came as a result of another team not showing up for the third-place match. Pars needed no walkovers to advance, needing only a tie against Africa to advance; not unlikely as Africa had two losses and a tie to that point. Again, what was not said is important in that Pars went on to win third place in the tournament.

In conclusion, this reporter has abused the privilege of media access that his column provides. His strategic omission of key facts call his journalistic ethics into question. The Daily Egyptian would profit by assigning a reporter to the next ISC tournament who does not have a personal axe to grind. — Bill Mebrinus, Team USA Coach

Tournament was just and fair

To request a kindergartener to write the history of his teacher is like asking a three-year old boy to speak on behalf of his father. This is exactly the case of the article by Chris Ogbondah in the Daily Egyptian of April 26. It is however, widely acknowledged that the authentic report worth hearing, or reading, is the report of what was done, seen and heard from the mouths of those who did and saw. This semester's soccer tournament was the most well-organized, and the most successful since its existence.

In order to foster unity, and make the international students feel at home, the soccer tournament was incorporated among the many wonderful services given to international students by the International Student Council. The soccer tournament for the international student began during the fall semester of 1962. Since its existence, we have never had as much excitement or such a wonderful time as we did this semester.

I have participated fully in the tournament since its existence and, in fact, was the captain for the African team for the last two tournaments. I have witnessed all the games, and to consider this semester's championship as being enveloped by acts of barbarism and vandalism, as was reported in the DE, would be very erroneous. There was no violence during the semifinal playoff, the little misunderstanding between two players was immediately settled by the referee in less than no time.

It is part of the outlined rules made for the tournament that any team that fails to show up for their game loses their $40 deposit. This was agreed by the representatives of the team that registered. Since there was a breach of contract by the African team, could we then say it is not justified if they lose their deposit?

The tournament was organized to foster the spirit of friendship, fraternity and unity among international students and not purposely for competition. The spirit of sport is for participation and not compulsory for winning, even though it is more fun to win than to lose. The Hellenic team came in second and African team third last semester, this does not necessarily have to be so for all the succeeding tournaments, even the North Carolina State basketball team that won the NCAA championship in 1962 did not qualify for the final playoff in 1963. Could we then say it is not justified for Georgetown to win this year? I think this semester's tournament was just and fair, and the ISC should get be complimented for organizing it.

Therefore, in answer to the questions puzzling the writer of the article in D.E. April 26, I would like to give some answers: "Has the International Soccer Championship achieved its ideals?" — of course yes. "Has the championship been successful in any respect?" — Yes it has in many respects. "Is it worth stagnating every year?" — It is worth staging every semester. — Caleb Awoniyi, Graduate, Physiology

Ogbondah column hit below belt

I read with utter dismay the appraising article on the recently completed International Soccer Tournament, written by Mr. Chris Ogbondah. The article is what I personally consider, hitting below the belt, and since Mr. Ogbondah has decided to reopen the proverbial old wound, I will respond to that part that deals with my position as the tournament coordinator.

First, Mr. Ogbondah violated his journalistic ethics by allowing his prejudice to pervade his writing. It is highly unethical of any journalist to use his/her access to any media as a forum for a personal vendetta. What Chris failed to state in the article is that he, as a player, was expelled from the tournament for his display of tantrums and unbridled verbal and physical aggression toward a match official. As a result of the incident which he precipitated during the first game of the tournament, his team captain was mandated by the organizing committee to write a letter of apology to the ISC.

Second, because Chris was never on the field to perform; the duty which was assigned to him, he frequently got the scores and facts wrong. Sure, there were a few incidents during the semi-finals, but they were not serious. Besides, this is not uncommon in any soccer game. As a matter of fact, soccer is reported to be the most violent sport competition.

The suggestions he offered in the article came too little, too late. If he had taken time to read the policies, rule and regulations guiding the tournament, he would have noticed that it is a requirement for all participating teams (countries) to be represented by players from such countries, except in the case of Africa and Latin America, where countries were grouped together as a special concession to nations with a small number of students.

However, this is not to say that we are infallible. We welcome constructive criticisms from any quarter. Since Mr. Ogbondah has by his article shown himself to be such a smart organizer, maybe he should tell us a thing or two about his accomplishments as the current president of the Nigerian Student Association. After all, that dynamic organization was declared defunct under his administration. Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones. — Adeniyi Bello, Coordinator, International Soccer Tournament

Bloomington folks bare teeth as models bare, uh, lingerie

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — A new lingerie shop where lithe young women model racy underwear in private sessions with men has stirred a tempest in this usually placid Midwestern community.

Talk that more common focuses on the weather or corn prices suddenly has shifted to issues of sex and morality, all because of the shop on the east side that beckons with a large yellow sign reading, "Sexy Lingerie Models."

"Maybe this kind of place would go unnoticed in a big city like Chicago or Los Angeles," said Terry Williams, head of McLain County Citizens for Decency Through Law. But he said his group believes the modeling at the Sexy Lingerie shop "violates established local standards of decency."

Steve Clevenger, Sexy Lingerie owner, said, "I do not think it is immoral and I do not think it is sleazy. I think it is a form of selling that most people are just not used to."

Clevenger, who owns similar shops in Rockford and Janesville, Wis., said he opened the shop in Bloomington two months ago "because I think Bloomington has always been a progressive town."

But Williams said that "Bloomington, in general, is a conservative town" and "the majority of people in the city don't want it (the shop) here."

Other area residents, while saying the lingerie shop isn't their cup of tea, have criticized Williams and his decency league in letters to the local newspaper.

"At best, Sexy Lingerie is a temporary joke," wrote one city man. But he said, "It would be better if Citizens for Decency would start spending their time on projects that help the hungry and the abused and, in the long run, enhance all of our lives."

The shop is located in a small, A-frame structure near a busy highway. Inside, from dark-paneled walls in a front waiting room, hang women's underwear, sleepwear and other intimate apparel.

For a minimum $30 fee, models show off garments ranging from tame gowns and robes to sheer nighties, fishnet teddies and see-through panties and bras. For tips, the women will take everything off. By some accounts, they have also been letting customers fondle them.

That kind of activity has provoked plenty of talk in Bloomington and its adjacent twin city, Normal, which have a combined population of about 75,000 and sit like an island amid miles of corn and soybean fields.

The local newspaper, the Bloomington Pantagraph, recently sent a female reporter to the shop to apply for a job then ran a story on her experience. Reporter Jill Gleason wrote that two female managers told her the models earn little from the modeling, get a small commission on lingerie sales and earn most of their income from customers' tips.

"I was told to charge about $15 to take the men to fordle me and from $15 to $20 to undress in front of them," Mrs. Gleason reported in her story.

Ms. Gleason reported she also was told that some men might expose themselves and masturbate during modeling sessions, and that in such cases she should offer them paper towels.

Williams launched a petition drive to get the modeling stopped. The Bloomington City Council responded by passing an ordinance that, while allowing modeling to continue, barred fondling for cash.

David Stanczak, the city attorney who drafted the ordinance, said it "falls somewhere between doing nothing and fulfilling the fondest dreams of the opponents."

Clevenger, a commercial photographer in Moline, said he agreed with the ordinance because "there's not supposed to be any fondling. Fondling was never a part of the corporation's position."

Clevenger said: "We sell lingerie."

Refuge, will present two programs on Wednesday: "Introduction to Wildlife," at 9:30 a. m. and "Bird Songs" designed to challenge the audience to identify bird songs at 1:30 p. m. Both programs will be held in the Museum Auditorium. Admission to the exhibit and the programs is free.

The University Museum is located in Faner Hall, C Wing, and is open from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. Sundays.

Child care centers give love, learning

Child care has become a selling point in the recruitment of University faculty and staff, says Jo Ann Nelson, faculty director at the Child Development Lab.

Four child care facilities affiliated with SIU-C are available to parents. CDL, in Quigley Hall, is primarily a lab for students and research.

Nelson said the lab has adapted over the years to meet the changing needs of dual-career families. Most children spend four hours a day in the lab, either in the morning or afternoon. Only eight spots are open each semester for all-day children.

CDL is licensed by the state to care for 42 children at one time. Nelson estimated that about 80 students work with the children each academic year.

Each week the children participate in activities centered around the theme of that week. Play time is used to integrate science, art and language.

THE CHILDREN at CDL are divided into categories according to their ages.

The infants are from six weeks to 18 months old. The child to adult ratio for infants is four to one. The cost for infant child care is $421 per semester.

Toddlers, aged 18 months to 2½ years, have a child to adult ratio of eight to one. The cost for toddler child care is $412 each semester.

The requirements for children going into preschool are that they be 2½ years old and toilet trained. The child to adult ratio for preschool children is 10 to one. The cost of sending a child to preschool is $405. For the eight children that are at the center all day the cost is about $700, Nelson said.

The Child Study Co-Op, at 1910 S. Elizabeth, has been in existence since 1956. Children who are 3 years old by Dec. 1 are accepted and usually stay until they are 5.

with the children. Parental participation is required and two parents must be at each session.

The Child Study Co-Op is also a research facility for the SIU-C Psychology Department, according to Director Shirley Dunagan.

"The University maintains the nursery school so that there are children available for faculty and graduate students interested in studying the various stages of development of the young child," she said.

The children also participate in art activities and have play time. Although there is no formal teaching, many language oriented activities are done as games, Dunagan said.

Children at the center are taught how to solve their problems with other children. The workers help them understand what to say to children they're not getting along with.

THE COST of child care at the Child Study Co-Op is $75 a semester, and the children spend four hours there.

Head Start is a child care program designed especially for low income families. The program includes health care, education, nutrition, social services, parental involvement and handicapped services.

The service, available since 1965, is at 925 Giant City Road. The goal of Head Start is to increase the child and family's social competence and enable the child to interact in the school system and community.

The components of the program are essential for children of low income families, says Director Barbara Grace. Until their basic needs are met, children's educational needs won't be met, she said.

PARENTS ARE very active in the program. They receive training in health care and nutrition to increase their knowledge of what they should be doing for their whole family, Grace said.

About 235 children and their families are involved in three Head Start programs, in Murphysboro, Carbondale and Johnston City, and the Homebase program. The Homebase program guides parents in teaching their children.

Because children from low income families are often unable to function adequately in the public school system, Head Start was developed to meet educational and basic needs inabling them to function in an educational setting.

The program is federally funded so there is no charge to parents. Children who are 3 to 5 years old are cared for at the center. Priority is given to 4-year-olds whose families meet the eligibility requirements.

HEAD START is different from the other centers because it focuses its enrollment on the community.

Rainbow's End opened its doors to children about 8 years ago, according to Director Sandra Lutzker. Its primary purpose is to serve the children of SIU-C students, faculty and staff.

About 45 to 50 children are cared for at Rainbow's End. Twenty to 30 SIU-C students work at the center each semester, in addition to nine adults.

Activities are geared toward math, science and language development.

Children at Rainbow's End have their lesson plans posted and participate in activities that have a theme.

Children 2 to 8 years old are involved in Rainbow's End. Infants will be accepted soon, according to Lutzker.

A sliding fee scale based on income is used to determine the cost. It also depends on the number of hours the child is enrolled. The center is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Rivals break up after making up

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Harold Washington and Alderman Edward Vrdolyak, political rivals whose juggling at a recent Democratic Party dinner seemed to suggest reconciliation was at hand, came out slugging again Thursday.

During a brief speech Wednesday at the dinner in Springfield, Washington characterized Vrdolyak, the leader of a City Council majority that has opposed the mayor since he took office in April 1983, as the party's "distinguished" county chairman.

He then vowed "to do everything I can to make the party better, so help me God, Eddie Vrdolyak."

Vrdolyak greeted Washington as the mayor made his way back to his table and the two embraced briefly while photographers captured the rare moment of warmth.

Vrdolyak told Washington it was "good to have the family back together" and promised to "take this show (of unity)" back to Chicago.

But Thursday, the mayor said he was uncertain what Vrdolyak meant.

"I've never been a member of the family," he said.

Washington also said his remarks were not intended to deter blacks who have discussed forming and supporting independent slates to oppose the Democratic Party's slated candidates for county offices this fall.

The mayor said his "gesture of goodwill" toward Vrdolyak was designed to make new party registrants "feel welcome" and to unite all Democrats behind U.S. Rep. Paul Simon of Makanda in his bid to unseat incumbent GOP Sen. Charles Percy in the fall.

Responded Vrdolyak: "The language doesn't mean one thing in Springfield and another in Chicago."

Asked whether the mayor's clarification of his remarks meant the political war that has split the city into two factions remains, Vrdolyak said: "If it does, it's too bad."

Evers named to head Grad Council

James L. Evers, an associate professor of engineering, was unanimously elected president of the Graduate Council on Thursday. Evers, who was chairman of the new programs committee this year, said he expects to continue the Graduate Council's work to implement and enhance graduate programs.

"It will be business as usual," Evers said. "We'll evaluate new programs and accept issues from the council-at-large." He also said that faculty merit pay, promotion and tenure will continue to be discussed.

Patricia B. Elmore, professor of guidance and educational psychology, was elected vice president. She chaired the council's research committee this year, and said that she expects the council will maintain work on efforts to improve the University's research productivity and research support services.

Create your own kind of summer.

Try Triton's "5-8-5" plan.

Don't let summer get away from you this year. You've probably got dozens of things you want to do...earn some money, take a trip, spend time with your friends—even hit the books a bit to ease the load at school next fall.

How will you fit it all in before September?

Triton can help you out with "5-8-5"—a summer plan that lets you earn some college credit and still have time for work, play or both.

Lighten your load.

Are you dreading next fall when you have to take that impossible course along with all your other classes?

By taking one or two of your more difficult courses at Triton this summer, you can put all your study time where you need it most so you're sure to have an easier fall next fall.

Triton courses are equivalent in content and quality to any that you'd take during the school year.

Cut your costs.

You can take classes at Triton at a very low cost. Tuition rates for in-district residents are much less than you would pay at state universities and a lot lower than private college tuition. And since you'll be living at home, you won't have to worry about dorm or apartment expenses.

Going to Triton this summer could be the best inflation fighter you've found yet.

Pack work and school together.

Triton's summer classes can fit into any work schedule. If you choose a 5-week class, you'll still have almost two full months for a job. The first 5-week session could be especially good for you since many employers wait to hire summer help until the peak vacation period—July and August. By then, you'll be done with summer school and ready for work.

Even if you decide to take classes during all three sessions, you'll still be able to work. We've scheduled a lot of popular courses during evening hours, so you can leave the daytime open for your job.

Pick up some extra credits.

Graduation day seems years away and you're in a hurry. The courses you take at Triton this summer can bring that degree a lot closer.

The credits you earn here are fully transferable to four-year schools. We have a staff of advisors who can answer your questions about which Triton courses best fulfill your school's requirements.

With our "5-8-5" plan, you can rack up lots of credit by taking classes during all three sessions.

Shawnee land trade plan irks trustee of conservation group

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

A proposal to swap about 270 acres of Shawnee National Forest land in Pope County for privately owned land five miles northwest of Golconda is concerned at least one resident of that county.

Lewis Stannard, a trustee of the Illinois chapter of the Nature Conservancy, has sent notices to conservation organizations in the area urging them to object to the trade by writing the Regional Forester for the U.S. Forest Service in Milwaukee, Wis., by May 18.

Stannard said Steamboat Hill, the national forest land being considered in the trade, should be kept in public ownership. The hill is a Forest Service recreational park with picnic tables and camp sites. It has been reforested, and trees are reaching the stage where they could be selectively cut and sold for a return on public investment in the area, he said.

Bob Mason, a Forest Service staff officer at Shawnee, said inefficient operation and little use of the hill led the service to consider a trade for the land.

According to Roger Bucklew, district ranger for the forest's Vienna Ranger District, use of the campground and picnic area at the hill is about 100 "visitor days" each per year. A visitor day is equal to one person using the hill for 12 hours, or 12 people using the hill for one hour. Altogether, people spend an estimated 2,400 hours each year at the hill.

An offer of about 261 acres of land by Leland Studley, of Kenschaw, was chosen for consideration from among several propositions. The land received in the trade would help consolidate the Shawnee because it is surrounded by Shawnee land on all sides, Mason said. Elimination of seven square miles of survey land would also reduce costs.

"There'd be 153 landline corners that we wouldn't have to mark, which would reduce maintenance costs," Mason said.

The trade would also reduce the number of rights of way the Forest Service must acquire for public access to parts of the forest. Studley agreed to include two rights of way along with the land in consideration for trade, Mason said.

The land that would be acquired contains flood plains and wetlands. Mason said a long-standing presidential order protects such lands because of their ecological sensitivity.

The deadline of May 18 for complaints is necessary in order to work out other details of the trade, he said.

Stannard, a retired professor of entomology at the University of Illinois, said Steamboat Hill offers unequaled views of other hills in Illinois and Kentucky. It also has the only public camping bluff in the county that overlooks the Ohio River.

"There are wild turkeys and deer up there," Stannard said. "Even if they are trading for good land, I hate to see a public park given away."

The land traded for would not have the view that Steamboat Hill does, and is not set up as a park, Stannard said.

The Steamboat Hill bluff contains a naive mock orange, a rare plant not found in other parts of Illinois, according to Stannard.

Hormone may help more kids

CHICAGO (AP) — More abnormally short children could benefit from treatment with a growth hormone than was previously thought, researchers say.

The current procedure for identifying a shortage of growth hormone is not sensitive enough to single out subtle disorders in the way the body releases the hormone for its own use, doctors said in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The problem can be serious for the children involved because they may suffer "social embarrassment and anxiety" as a result of being short, said the doctors, led by Dr. Barry B. Beru of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

If such children can be treated, "there could be substantial psychological benefits," added the doctors. However, an accompanying editorial in the Journal said it is not known whether there might be harmful effects from the long-term use of the growth hormone on such children. It suggested that doctors not prescribe hormone therapy for them until more research is done.

"We urgently need more practical methods of measuring partial deficiency of growth hormone secretion," said the editorial, written by Dr. William H. Daughaday of Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

In the study, seven patients not considered deficient in growth hormone by usual standards were found to have disorders in the way their bodies secreted the hormone, doctors said.

Six of the seven began to grow much more rapidly when they were given human growth hormone replacement therapy for six months to two years, the doctors said.

"Our studies indicate that there is a group of short children who, although not growth-hormone deficient by classic definition, do not secrete an adequate amount of growth hormone during a 24-hour period," the researchers said.

"For the past 25 years, human growth hormone treatment has been generally restricted to only the most profoundly affected children," they said.

Normally, treatment was only given to children who grew slower than 1½ inches per year, had bone structures characteristic of younger children and failed to respond to chemicals that usually stimulate production of growth hormone.

have voiced concern over the trade, as have residents of Golconda, Stannard said.

"But many residents don't want to say anything," he said.

Stannard said he was concerned about rumors that the hill might be developed into a parking area or trailer park, but Studley said he had no such plans.

"As of now, I have no plans to develop the hill commercially beyond talks of possibly putting a VFW hall up there for Golconda," Studley said. He declined to go over the details of the trade, however.

The land should not be traded, Stannard said, until a public hearing is held, an environmental impact study is conducted and the status of rare and endangered plants there is investigated.

Hot dogs, candy big culprits in choking of young, study says

CHICAGO (AP) — Every five days, somewhere across the nation, a youngster chokes to death on food, and the biggest single culprit is hot dogs, a new study indicates.

"If you were trying to design something that would be perfect to block a child's airway, it would be a bite-size piece of hotdog," says researcher Susan P. Baker of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Because they are both cylindrical and compressible, pieces of hot dog can plug the airway that opens into the food tract when a child coughs, chokes or laughs, she said in a telephone interview Thursday.

More than 40 percent of food choking deaths among children are due to hot dogs, candy, nuts or grapes, the researchers reported in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Hot dogs alone accounted for 17 percent, the researchers added.

The researchers, led by Carole S. Harris of Falls Church, Va., said the number of childhood deaths from food asphyxiation is about the same as the number of poisoning deaths per year — 75.

Half the choking deaths in infants younger than 12 months were caused by hot dogs, apple pieces and cookies or biscuits, according to the data, collected on children up to 9 years old in 41 states from 1979 to 1981.

Among 1-year-olds — who suffered the highest incidence of food asphyxiation of all the groups — carrots and hot dogs were most often the cause, the study found.

Grapes and peanuts were the most frequent causes of fatal choking among 2-year-olds. Among 3-year-olds, only 10 food fatalities occurred, but seven of them were blamed on hot dogs, the doctors said.

Though federal regulations have been established for non-food products that present choking hazards for infants and young children, no similar regulations have been set for foods, the researchers said.

"A child under the age of 4 should not be given a whole hot dog to eat," Ms. Baker said. "Neither should they be cut crosswise. Most parents don't know that."

Besides modifying products to make them less dangerous, researchers recommended preventive measures such as providing warning labels on packages and distributing information on high-risk foods to reduce the incidence of childhood choking.

The warning label they suggested would read, "Not intended to be given to children under 4 years of age. Fatal choking may result."

Father: Bible justifies son's refusal

BLUE MOUND (AP) — The father of a high school senior who refused an assignment to read "1984" and "Brave New World" on religious grounds says his son's justification is in the Bible.

Larry Cooper said Wednesday that his son, Tony, will not comply with the school board's demand that he provide written proof that it is against his religion to read the books.

"All they have to do is start with the first book of Genesis through the last book of Revelations," said Cooper.

He said his son's reasons for asking for a different reading assignment were personal, based on the Bible and his own religious convictions, and did not involve the family's church — the Blue Mound Church of God.

Tony, 18, objected to the sexual content of the books and asked school officials for another assignment.

However, the board demanded to see religious tenets, articles of faith or a written statement from a minister or church official saying the books are against the church's teachings.

"I don't know yet... what will take place," said school superintendent Maurice Wilhoit. "We will have to do something one way or the other."

Cooper said he believes his son can pass the social studies course and meet graduation requirements regardless of the grade he gets on the book report assignment.

'Last Chance One-Acts' offer entertaining break from finals

Play Review

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Mr. Smirnoff (Peter Elton) teaches Mrs. Popov (Rebecca O'Bleness) how to fire a pistol for their duel in an upcoming play.

"Last Chance One-Acts" offer an entertaining break from finals week cramming.

These three plays will be performed at 8:00 each night through Friday at the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building.

"The Brute," written by Anton Chekhov and directed by Karen Kessler, involves two extreme characters — Mrs. Popov (Rebecca O'Bleness) and Mr. Smirnoff (Peter Elton). Popov is a young widow who has grieved for seven months and plans to stay faithful to her husband by confining herself to her house until death.

That's until Mr. Smirnoff shows up. He comes to collect on a debt Mr. Popov left outstanding. He refuses to leave until it is paid, though Mrs. Popov claims she can't pay for two days.

Smirnoff is "in a rage" for money he needs it desperately to save his land from foreclosure. Hence, there is a battle of wits between a "woman-hater" and a "living man-hater," which is refereed by Mrs. Popov's deteriorating servant, Luka (Doug Bines).

The farce is filled with funny lines and innuendos, humorous characters and a cliché ending.

The performances are exceptional for the Lab Theater. Each of the three performers has been successful on the main stage this season, and the smaller Lab Theater provides the audience a closer look at them and their acting ability.

The show opens with "Icarus's Mother," written by Sam Sheperd and directed by Wynn Alexander. This play is for lovers of the abstract or of the just plain weird. Five young adults gather for an Independence Day picnic and regress to childhood play and petty arguments.

After group activity is abandoned because the five characters cannot agree on what to do, Bill (Bernard Bruno) and Howard (Mike Rogers) keep vying the other three on silly chases so they can be alone to play Indians and send smoke signals with the barbecue grill.

Intoxication leads to insanity for Frank (Doug Blines). Every time he comes back from walking on the beach, he seems to have lost touch a little more, describing details of feelings and images he derives from walking on the beach.

What's confusing about this play is that both Bill and Howard listen intently as Frank talks in circles, but at other times in the play they seem like practical guys (aside from the fact that they're playing Indians) who would not put up with such ramblings.

The group is never excited about seeing the fireworks display, but while waiting for nightfall, Frank, Pat (Mary Reticker) and Jill (Colleen Knight) return to the beach and witness the crash of an acrobat pilot.

If there's any message in this play, it's people's love of gore. The fireworks become unimportant to those who witnessed the crash.

"Ladlow Fair," written by Lanford Wilson and directed by Caroline James, examines emphatic love affairs and roommate relationships.

Rachel (Regina Pewh) thought she was madly in love (the sixth time in nine months) with a guy who turned out to be a thief wanted by the FBI. Because she turned him in after he stole $400 from her and her roommate, she goes through an emotional trauma that leads her to try to psycho-analyze herself.

Good characterization by Pewh and by Karen Kessler, who plays Rachel's roommate Agnes Mulligan, helps the comedy in this play work.

The performance is free, and worth checking out if you're looking for a good escape from the stresses of semester's end.

Rabid bat found in Murphysboro

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

A rabid bat was found Wednesday in Murphysboro, according to a spokesman for Murphysboro Animal Control.

Tom Goodin, animal control officer, said the bat was found by a CIPS crew Wednesday morning. It was sent to the Illinois Public Health Department Laboratory in Carbondale, where tests confirmed rabies.

No cases of human exposure have been confirmed.

The rabid bat was the second found this year. Goodin said the number of rabid bats found in Jackson County has doubled every year for three years. Last year, seven rabid bats were found in the county.

Goodin warned that all domestic pets should be vacinated for rabies, even if they are kept in yards, indoors or in kennels. He said pet owners should watch for odd or suspicious behavior, especially in nocturnal animals.

People who believe their pet may have contracted rabies should report them to Animal Control at the Jackson County Courthouse.

Jackson County Animal Control will hold a vaccination program this weekend.

U.S. 'assembly line' creates most tornado-prone country

by the Associated Press

From the mountains to the prairies, the geography of the United States forms a west-to-east assembly line that helps make the nation the most tornado-prone on Earth.

"Most countries experience tornadoes, but not on the level we do here," said Ed Ferguson, deputy director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

The assembly line makes the area between the Rockies and the Appalachians the most vulnerable to tornadoes, and this year it and less prolific tornado mechanisms have been especially busy. As of late Thursday morning, the storm forecast center had counted 491 tornadoes nationally since Jan. 1, compared to 327 last year. Though revisions might reduce this year's total a bit, Ferguson believes 1984 has gotten off to the busiest start of any in the last 10 years.

On average, about 740 tornadoes strike the United States each year. They have snaked down from the sky on every day of the calendar and in every state, but they are most common from April to June and they concentrate in Tornado Alley: an oval that reaches from north-central Texas across central Oklahoma and into eastern Kansas, eastern Nebraska and northwest Iowa. It stretches up to 200 miles wide.

Tornado Alley is the last stop for the tornado assembly line. It begins near the West Coast, where large low-pressure troughs send smaller low-pressure centers eastward. The centers strengthen as they slip down the eastern slopes of the Rockies.

Consul: Capitalism would help China's 'backward' economy

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Capitalism could improve the livelihood of the Chinese people, who live in a "very backward" country compared to Taiwan, a trade consul from Taiwan said Wednesday.

William Hui-Lien Sun, a trade commissioner for Taiwan, praised President Reagan's encouragement of communist leaders in China to return to a free market system, which he said would establish rewards and incentives that were taken from the Chinese working class over 30 years ago.

Sun, who is based in Chicago, was one of 19 trade commissioners who visited Southern Illinois Wednesday to meet with manufacturing business representatives and city officials about potential investment opportunities overseas.

In Reagan's recent trip to China, The Associated Press reported that the president said a consumer-oriented economy with less rigid organization would be more basic to the spirit of progress for a farmer, laborer or merchant.

Reagan told the most populous nation in the world that these workers should be rewarded for their "legitimate risk and honest toil." Reagan said that in the last five years

China has made progress in that direction.

"When President Reagan witnessed the true aspect, the plight of the people, he thought of ways to improve the livelihood of the people of communist China," said Sun, who left China for Taiwan in 1946.

Sun said that when communists took over in 1949, many freedoms and working incentives were stripped from the Chinese.

"The government took everything away and didn't encourage rewards or incentives for the people," he said. "So the people began lacking interest."

"In communism, what's yours is mine, but mine is not yours," said Sun, who has been a trade representative to the United States since 1957.

"That's why (Reagan) would like to promote capitalism."

Sun said that China is about 30 years behind Taiwan, and China's economy is promoting poverty and disenchantment "with the spirit of progress."

In Taiwan, which Sun said has a democratic system similar to the United States, people are disciplined but encouraged for the work they do. "The rewarding system exists there," he said.

Sun said, however, that relaxing the official opposition to private enterprise in China would not have a negative impact on free markets and trade in Taiwan. In fact, he said, Taiwan would welcome it.

"The Chinese in Taiwan would like to see the people in mainland China have the most freedom possible," he said.

Art group to sponsor exhibit

The Associated Artists Gallery, a non-profit artists cooperative, will present the pottery of Lois Lembecke and the painting of Bonnie Moreno, May 8 through June 9 at the gallery, 213 South Illinois Ave., 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Lembecke's pottery is characterized by unique design features that give flower arrangers compartments and stem-holding holes to stabilize the flowers.

Moreno's paintings and drawings are of landscapes. Included in her exhibit are two silverpoint drawings, a technique developed before the pencil was invented.

A public reception will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, May 13.

Two win Ultimate Frisbee titles

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Big Twist and the Frogs CoRec captured the Ultimate Frisbee A and B co-rec championships, respectively, on Wednesday.

The Big Twist overcame deficits of 4-0, 8-4 and 9-6 to defeat the Fris People, 11-10 in overtime.

"I thought the Fris People played a tough game and I thought we were outplayed most of the game," said Alex

Dee, The Big Twist coach.

"But our team had a lot of pride to come back and we held tough. After we scored late in the game on a pass from Mike Walker to Keith Wilcoxson, we were like a freight train moving in, feeling no pain."

Dee said other players who played well for The Big Twist were Maureen Kent and Steve Kempner. The Big Twist and the Frogs CoRec each finished 5-2 overall.

In the co-rec B final, the Frogs CoRec stunned the Grateful Discs, 11-9. The Frogs CoRec, who entered the playoffs with a 2-4 record, finished 4-4. The Grateful Discs finished 4-2.

In the men's A semifinals, the Dragons defeated the Bearded Bees, 13-5. The Dragons improved their record to 5-1 while the Bearded Bees finished 4-2.

Big Twist clobbered the New Mutants, 17-6 in the men's B semifinals. Big Twist improved to 5-1 while the New Mutants finished 3-5.

Bellissimo, Jones' No. 2 starter until he went out with an ankle injury two and a half weeks ago, pitched two innings Wednesday at Illinois and allowed one run in two innings. In his absence, Neibel has stepped in and pitched well, so Bellissimo's return adds depth to the pitching staff, Jones said.

Indiana State's other starters will be right-handers Andy Ghelfi (4-2, 3.36), Mike Gardiner (3-1, 4.81) and Bill Horn (4-5, 4.20).

SALUKI NOTES: The Salukis will be recognizing the "Hill Gang" at Abe Martin this weekend. Itchy Jones said that he and his players would like to display their appreciation to the gang for its rambunctious support this year. "There's a lot of tradition out on the hill," Jones said. "Not many schools in the country have as many student fans as we do. It's always good to have people cheering for you." First baseman Mike Blumhorst will receive the Alumni Association Scholar Athlete Award between games Saturday. The award is presented annually to the male and female senior athletes with the highest cumulative grade point average. Blumhorst, an agriculture major, has a 3.9 GPA. Scott Bridges will be presented the Glenn "Abe" Martin Award, given to the Saluki who shows honesty, dedication and loyalty on and off the field.

Franks in the 60 Feb. 4.

The Salukis will be without Adams in the 400. Hartzog said Adams wants to run in the 100 and 200 instead. Adams hasn't run the 100 since high school but Hartzog said he feels confident that he will perform well.

Duncan and teammate Sam Nwosu are favored in the intermediate hurdles, but Hartzog said the Illini are favored in the 800, 1,500 and 5,000.

"It will be a very fine track meet as it always is," Hartzog said.

Hartzog said he is pleased with the progress of his team.

"They're running awfully well," Hartzog said. "We had good workouts this week. They're doing all the things they have to do."

3 trackwomen to try to follow teammate in NCAA qualifying

By Steve Koules
Staff Writer

It's one NCAA qualifier down and possibly three to go for the SIU-C women's track team.

Shot putter Rhonda McCausland was the first Saluki to qualify for the NCAA outdoor championships this season with her 50-foot, 8-inch throw last Saturday at the Drake Relays.

But Coach Don DeNoon thinks he has two other NCAA hopefuls in Denise Blackman (100- and 200-meters) and Debra Davis (400), and possibly a third in Karen Cooper (400 hurdles). They will get their opportunities this weekend in the Illinois Intercollegiate Championships at Northwestern University.

"If we get a 50-degree day and the track is in good condition, then I think the three have the potential to qualify," DeNoon said. "Denise is running very well and Debra had a good workout Wednesday. I think Karen Cooper has an outside chance. She has taken a few steps forward in practice."

The athletes will be hand-timed in the meet because Northwestern doesn't have fully automatic timing. Blackman needs hand times of 11.4 and 23.5 in the 100 and 200 respectively, to qualify for the NCAA's. Her best times this season have been 11.92 in the 100 and 24.18 in the 200.

Davis, whose best time in the 400 is a 55.60, needs a 53.5 to qualify for the NCAA's. Cooper is a longshot because she needs to slice more than three seconds off her best time of 62.64 in the 400 hurdles. The qualifying time is 59.2.

DeNoon's other goal is for the Salukis to win the meet and score 170 points. He expects Illinois State to be the Salukis' toughest opponent.

Other schools entered in the state meet are Illinois, Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, Loyola, DePaul, Bradley, SIU-E, Illinois-Chicago, Chicago State and host Northwestern. Other Salukis entered in the running events include Jennifer Bartley (100, 200, 4x100), Kathryn Doelling (1,500, 3,000), Sally Zook (5,000, 10,000), Olette James (10,000) and Lisa Hicks (5,000, 10,000).

In the field events, entries include Sue Anderson (heptathlon, high jump, triple jump), Sydney Edwards (long jump, triple jump), Laurie Dvorak (javelin), Cynthia Joy (javelin), Sydney Edwards (long jump, triple jump), Sharon Leidy (heptathlon, long jump), Connie Price (shot put, triple jump), and Bartley (long jump).

SALUKI NOTES: DeNoon signed distance runner Dawn Nease of Parkersburg, W.Va., to a national letter of intent on Monday. Nease is the defending state champion in the 800 meters (2:20) and mile (5:10). She joins Santha Gore of Wiltshire, England, and Patty Kelly, of Stanton Island, N.Y., to bring the total of distance runners signed to three. DeNoon said he still hasn't received a signed letter of intent from Noeleen Mullen of Derry, Northern Ireland, who verbally committed to the Salukis in April. DeNoon has been unable to reach her because she doesn't have a phone. Two other distance runners who verbally committed to the Salukis earlier this year, Lisa Reed from London, Ontario, and Laura Fiedler of Old Bridge, N.J., signed letters of intents with other schools. Reed is going to Louisiana State and Fiedler to Maryland. "I think we've done a good job recruiting even though we lost two quality kids in Fiedler and Reed," DeNoon said.

Talented claims bowling title

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Led by the Johnson brothers, Darryl and Darrick, and also by Raenn Noetzel, the bowling team Talented won the SIU-C bowling club league finals Wednesday at the Student Center bowling lanes.

Talented beat Strange Brew 2,883 to 2,790 to claim the victory. Darryl Johnson bowled a 602 series and Darrick Johnson had a 507 series. Noetzel bowled a 531 series. Endon Perkins (503) and Will Furnell (495) rounded out the scoring for the winning team.

Talented took an 81-pin lead after the first game and took the second and third games by six pins each.

Strange Brew consisted of Dan Parkin, Jack Favelick, Rick Riffer, Dave Watts and Mark Hufnagle.

In the consolation game,

Loaded claimed third place with a 3,005 to 2,736 win over Young Lust's Return.

Loaded was led by Tom Morrell and Scott Jones. Morrell had the night's high series and high game. He bowled a 217 game and a 507 series. Jones had a 537 series.

"It was kind of a low scoring final," said Pavelick, who bowled for second-place Strange Brew. "Everyone was kind of tense."

Salukis to renew Illini rivalry

Salukis, ISU to battle for first place in MVC

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The Saluki baseball team will cap its regular season this weekend with first place on the line in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Salukis and Indiana State play double-headers Saturday and Sunday at Abe Martin Field. The twin-bills are both scheduled for noon.

The Salukis, who've beaten up at the right time, took all four games in their series with Creighton last week. The wins boosted their conference record to 7-3, good for a first-place tie in the Valley with Illinois State. SIU-C is 18-19 overall.

Indiana State, 6-4 and 31-18 overall, dropped Illinois State into its deadlock with SIU-C by taking three of four games from the Redbirds last week, and put itself in striking distance of first place.

"We're ready for a big series," said Indiana State Coach Bob Warn. "There's a lot on the line, and I'm happy with the position we're in."

Warn would like to finish on top, since the first-place team will host the Valley tournament May 12-15. The winner receives a bid to the NCAA regional.

The Salukis will have to gain at least a split with ISU, then rely on Bradley to beat up on Illinois State in Normal. If the Salukis and Illinois State are still tied after the weekend, the Redbirds will host the tournament since they are 2-0 against SIU-C.

"We can't worry about what anybody else does," Saluki Coach Itchy Jones said. "We have take care of ourselves, do the things it takes to win and play one game at a time."

Indiana State started slowly after being ranked 21st in the nation in College Baseball's pre-season poll. But the Sycamores are cooking now, having won seven of their last eight games, including a double-header sweep at Evansville on Wednesday.

"We've had good pitching and fielding all year," Warn said. "Now we're swinging the bats."

ISU's designated hitter, Tony

Collins, has swung the biggest stick thus far. A freshman walk-on who was red-shirted last year, the stocky Collins has banged out 16 home runs and has 53 RBI. He is hitting .348, tops on the team.

Right fielder Scott Mann (.320), center fielder Jim Sullivan (.315), and third baseman Tom Gillis (.302) complement Collins. Gillis is on the tentative 44-man U.S. Olympic Team roster.

Sullivan made several outstanding catches in the Illinois State series, and is ISU's best base stealer. He's been thrown out twice in 23 attempts. Second baseman Mike Lexa, a .290 hitter, has 11 thefts in 15 tries.

Saturday's opener will be a matchup of each team's ace. SIU-C's Gary Boelhorn (4-5, 4.45) goes against lefty Blaise Ilsley (6-4, 2.90). Jones will choose from a foursome of Rich Koch, Jay Bellissimo, Lee Meyer and Todd Neibel for his starters in the remaining three games.

Men cagers sign Benton senior

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's basketball team signed Kai Nurnberger, a senior at Benton High School, to a letter of intent Wednesday.

Nurnberger, a 6-1 point guard who helped the Rangers reach the Class AA state quarterfinals in March, is from Wollensbettel, West Germany. He attended Benton on a Rotary Exchange Program.

Nurnberger averaged 8.8 points per game, shot 53 percent from the field and 82 percent from the free-throw line. He made the Southern Illinois Coaches Association all-star team.

"He's a good athlete, a good ballplayer and a good shooter," said Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle.

Nurnberger is the second high school senior guard signed by Van Winkle, who landed Steve Middleton, of Brooklyn, N.Y., last fall. Two junior college players from Texas, 6-8 Tony Snooks and 6-7 Eugene Lewis, signed last month.

"Kai made great improvement during the season," Van Winkle said. "and looked very good in the state tournament. We are pleased to have him with us. We feel he can develop into a good Missouri Valley Conference player."

Nurnberger will play for the West German Junior National 19 and under Team this summer.

"I think it will be a special experience for Kai to be here in the USA and it will be a great experience for the players in our program to interact with a teammate who is from another country," Van Winkle said.

SIU-C men's track Coach Lew Hartzog would like to go out a winner Friday against long-time rival Illinois in Champaign.

If history repeats itself, Hartzog may get his wish. The Salukis have won 12 of 16 outdoor meetings and have lost just once in the last 10 years to the Illini.

However, Hartzog said that winning will be no easy task.

"I expect a very close track meet out of it," Hartzog said. "I consider this one will be the closest we've had in a long time."

Hartzog said SIU-C and Illinois have a "good and old rivalry," and he realizes the Illini will be going with all they've got to beat the Salukis. "That's how it should be," Hartzog said.

The last time the Illini defeated the Salukis was in 1980 by a score of 62.5 to 90.5. The Salukis pounded the Illini last season 96-58 and also pulled out a 69-62 win in the indoor season in February.

That indoor victory may have been, for Hartzog, the most exciting, and nervous meet ever against the Illini. The Salukis trailed throughout the meet but managed to pull it out in the final event, the triple jump. Salukis' Gavin Harshbarger and Mo Crawford turned in clutch performances by placing first and second in the event to secure the win.

Decathlete John Sayre will be competing for the first time since he was injured at the Texas Relays April 6. Sayre is entered in the shot put, pole vault, discus and high hurdles. Hartzog said Sayre, who still has a sore tendon in his groin, has been running for the last two weeks, but only began sprinting this week. Hartzog wants Sayre to qualify for the NCAA's in the decathlon next weekend when the Salukis play host to the Missouri Valley Conference championships.

Parry Duncan will compete in the high hurdles for the first time ever outdoors. He has never lost to Illinois' Derrick Gentry in an outdoor event. Duncan injured his ankle during the season while hurdling, but expressed a desire to hurdle this weekend against the Illini.

"He wanted to," Hartzog said. "Parry wants to keep his string alive of beating Gentry outside."

Hartzog said that Duncan will have a difficult time beating Gentry because Gentry has been high hurdling all season while Duncan has not.

Hartzog expressed concern over the slump that senior weight man John Smith is in. Smith's progress has fallen behind that of Illinois' weight man, Jeff Lehmann. Lehmann won the discus and shot put at the Drake Relays last weekend after Smith had easily defeated him in the shot during the indoor season.

"He (Smith) is getting progressively worse as the season goes on," Hartzog said. "He's not been good in the discus. He's throwing less distances now than when he was a junior."

The Salukis are heavy favorites in both relay events, the 400- and 1,600-meters. Duncan, Tony Adams, Elvis Forde and Mike Franks set an NCAA record in the 1,600 last weekend at the Drake Relays by winning with a time of 3:00.78. That victory also completed the foursome's quest for the intercollegiate track and field triple crown.

Duncan, Adams, Forde and Franks also broke SIU-C records in the 3x200 (1:21.44) and the 4x100 (39.80). The 4x100 time qualified them for the NCAA's.

Hartzog said Stephen Wray will be an "overwhelming" favorite in the high jump, as will Forde in the 400 and Edison Wedderburn in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. He said Franks will "have his work cut out for him" against Illinois' Mitchell Brookins and Lester Washington. Brookins won the 60-yard dash at the indoor championships and defeated

Softball team splits, still alive in tourney

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The SIU-C softball team stayed alive in the Gateway Conference tournament by hitting five triples in an 8-1 win over Wichita State Thursday. SIU-C had lost the opening game of the double-elimination tournament, 4-3 to Eastern.

The Salukis continue tournament play Friday against Indiana State, a team that swept the Salukis two weeks ago, when SIU-C was without pitcher Sunny Clark. Clark was back Thursday and started both games.

In the second game, six got ample support from the SIU-C attack, which pounded out 11 hits while taking a 6-0 lead after three innings.

SIU-C got two runs in the first when Tonya Lindsey singled, Chris Brewer hit into a fielder's choice and Pam Flens hit a home run into the gap in right center field. Kathy Freske then tripled, the first of five such blows, but was stranded.

In the third, Lindsey tripled over the center fielder's head, and scored on Brewer's ground ball. Brewer was safe at first as Lindsey beat the throw home. Grounds reached on a fielder's choice and Kathy Freske got on base after an error. Then Kelly Nelis tripled to score two runs. Nelis scored on Kathy Richert's single.

In the fifth, Freske got her second triple, and scored when Richert got another RBI single. Nancy McAuley drove her in with another triple.

Clark allowed seven hits and one unearned run.

In the opening game, SIU-C blew a 3-0 lead in the seventh inning, and lost in 10 innings. Eastern Illinois got three hits and scored two runs on an error, when a ground ball got by right fielder Nelis and rolled to the fence.

In the 10th, the Panthers scored the winning run with two outs, when a ball took a bad hop and got past Nelis.

"It was a heartbreaker," said SIU-C Coach Brechtelsbauer. "We were in a position to win all the way and we let it get away."

Four teams remain undefeated after one day of play -- Illinois State, Southwest Missouri, Western Illinois and Bradley. Drake and Wichita State were eliminated.
