CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — The minority white gov-ernment and the African National APE TOWN, South Africa Congress met at the negotiating table for the first time in history Wednesday and started bargaining intended to lead to formal talks on the abolition of apartheid.

The delegations, headed by ANC leader Nelson Mandela and President Frederick de Klerk, held a four-hour meeting described in a joint communique as "Sharacteriyed by openness and straightforwardness."

It said both sides "emphasized each other's determination to seek agreement on the issues to be discussed without underestimating the complexities and differences that will have to be resolved.'

A working dinner was scheduled and formal talks were to resume Thursday afternoon, the nmunique said

Mandela and de Klerk opened their three days of meetings at midafternoon, shaking hands in the garden of a centuries-old homestead with their delegations standing expressionless behind them.

Each spoke of the urgency of "creating the right climate" for meaningful negotiations and overfor coming formidable mistrust between the white ruling party and the nation's largest black political movement founded in 1912, two years before de Klerk's National Party.

Declaring the talks a sacred exercise, Mandela said both sides would have to overcome the "ter-rible tradition of a 'dialogue' between master and servant

He rejected any post-apartheid solution based on race or "on any of the inhuman follies which have led our country into the destruc-tive crisis in which it is now immersed." "The black masses of our country der and and expect fundamen-tal change now, and not tomor-row," he said. "The people as a whole want the peace and stabil-ty which can only come about as a result of the total abolition of anartheid " apartheid.

De Klerk, who freed Mandela from 27 years imprisonment just 80 days ago and lifted a 30-year ban on the ANC in initial steps of his reform program, pledged his government was "approaching the talks with the utmost earnestness

There are bound to be difficulties, but there is cautious opti-mism as well as faith and conviction that our problems will be solved by negotiation," de Klerk said as plainclothes security and uniformed police patrolled the sprawling grounds of the Groote Schuur estate. "The government has accepted the challenge of doing everything possible to doing everything possible to achieve this."

The nine-man all-white govern-ment delegation and the 11-mem-ber ANC team of blacks, whites and South Africans of Indian and mixed descent then retreated inside the historic homestead for more than seven hours of sched-

Harris found guilty

By Chris Walka taff Writer

Dennis Harris, 23, was found guilty of first degree murder, armed robbery and armed violence Wednesday in Jackson County Court.

Harris sat quietly in the courtroom as the verdicts were read by Judge David W. Watt.

Harris shot and killed Jason Jackson, a Jeremiah's restaurant employee and University student, last October in an attempted robbery of the restaurant.

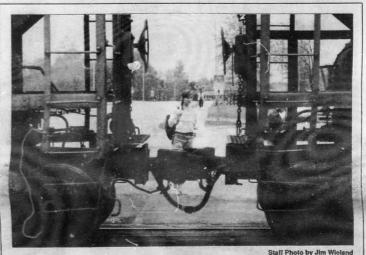

Stanley Algee, a co-conspirator in the robbery, is currently impris-oned in the Menard Correctional Facility, Chester

Friends of Jackson's and his parents sat quietly in the court-room as the verdict was read. State's Attorney Chuck Grace came over after the verdict and shook the parents' hands.

The state's attorney has asked the death penalty be invoked as punishment for Harris.

Proceedings will convene at 10:30 a.m. Thursday and will continue at 9 a.m. Monday to determine Harris' eligibility for Watt and both the defense and prosecuting attorneys estimated the proceedings will take about three days.

New city plan helping minority businesses

By Nora Bentley Staff Writer

Minority businesses are getting helping hand from the cit through a revision in Carbondale's affirmative action through plan

The City Council approved the Minority Business Enterprise Participation Plan for City contracts Construction al Tuesday's meeting. The plan will require bidders to take affirmative steps to obtain proposals from minority business enterprises when there is bidding on a city construction project.

"It's not a perfect solution, but it is a major step forward for the city," City Manager Steve Hoffner, said.

Mayor Neil Dillard said that he felt the plan was a very positive step, but recognized that there is still work to do.

The plan states: "It is the policy of the City of Carbondale to provide the maximum feasible

Jerre Pfaff, associate director for admissions, said the University has received 15,442 applications thus far, about 20 percent fewer than the same time last year.

"We have accepted 10, 878 stu dents, which is down about 2,700 from last year," Pfaff said. He said the primary reason for the dramatic decreases is a big drop in the number of high school ates in Illinois.

"This phenomenon...is not only statewide...but in fact nation-wide," Pfaff said.

Brent Musburger, fired by CBS Sports on April Fool's Day, Sports on April Fool's Day, Wednesday was hired by ABC in a move that may signal the exit of Al Michaels.

Michaels, who last week won Michaels, who last week won his third Emmy as the top sportscaster, has filed a grievance to get out of his ABC contract after a suspeasion by ABC Sports President Dennis Swanson for violating a rule against using a family member on an assignment

Musburger, who also had met with Ted Turner and officials from Turner Broadcasting, was dumped by CBS following an April 1 early-morning meeting between Musburger's agent, his brother Todd, and network officials. Musburger's 5 1/2-year contract that paid him $2 million annually was to run through July, but CBS Sports President Neal Pilson decided that Musburger's last assignment would be the NCAA Tournament final the following night.

Salukis' Danielle Sciano tabbed Gateway track athlete of the week

By Greg Scott

Danielle Sciano, a member of the Saluki women's track team, has been named the Gateway Conference Track Athlete of the Week.

Sciano, a junior, posted the Gateway's season-best 800 meter time of 2:11.6 at last weekend's Saluki Invitational. She also anchored the winning 4 x 400 meter relay team that turned in the Gateway's season-best time of 3:48.7 last weekend.

Saluki coach Don DeNoon said

Sciano is deserving of the award. "She (Sciano) has worked very hard," DeNoon said. "She really had an outstanding week." Sciano, from Fallston, MD., received the athlete of the week award her freshman year also. Sciano said receiving the award a second time fulfilled her goal. "I'm pretty excited about it," Sciano said. "It was something I wented before my career ended."

Rugby club hopes for positive finish

Dawgs face alumni team Saturday

By Kevin Simpson Staff Writer

The SIU-C rugby club is hoping to finish its season on a high note with a home showdown against a Saluki alumni icam Saturday

Saturday's season-ending showdown kicks off at 12 p.m in the fields behind the Arena.

The Dawgs suffered a 20-7 set-back to the Columbia Outlaws and lost a 10-4 decision to the St. Louis Royals Saturday in St. Louis. Both teams are Missouri city-side clubs.

Junior forward Norm Smyth aid the team's success so far has hinged on the defense and described the game against the Royals as the best defensive effort all season even though they lost.

'Defensively we've been able to cause our opponents some dif-ficulties," Smyth said. "Our over-all quickness and tackling has been excellent.

"In the first game they created a lot of overloads. They tied up our pack and then they were off to the races," he said, referring to the long distance runs by the Foyals.

After having their five-game winning streak snapped last weekend in swamp-like conditions, the ruggers, 6-4, are empha-sizing offensive drills in practice this work to spice up the scoring output.

The Dawgs rebounded from a 6-0 shut-out by Indiana University in the season opener to win six of the next seven games.

On the season, the ruggers are averaging 12.1 points per game while holding the opposition to a measly 6.6 points, including four shutouts.

"We could have stayed in the games we lost but we made men tal mistakes that cost us penalties," Smyth said. "Our forwards have been sup-porting well. They've done a good job of kicking out the ball to our wings."

The ruggers will hang up the cleats and tattered jerseys until they host the Illinois Collegiate Tournament Oct. 8. The University of Illinois, Illinois The State, Western and Eastern will be on the slate in the season opener.

'We've had a great year over we ve had a great year over-aii," junior wing Norm Smyth said. We've made a gradual improvement from the fall and are all looking forward to next fall."

Tennis team hoping for first title since '77 By Eric Bugger

Staff Writer

The Saluki men's tennis team traveled to Illinois State to begin Missouri Valley Conference tournament play today, hoping to exceed their second place finish of the last two years.

Action begins at the 9 a.m. and concludes Saturday evening. The Salukis, after battling injuries all season, posted a 9-13 overall record and are among the favorites to win the tourna-ment. They haven't won the MVC since 1977.

"We are playing well and I feel we have a good chance to compete for the title, but it depends a great deal on the draw we get," coach Dick LeFevre, in his 33rd year at SIU-C, said. "You never know how that will turn out and Drake and Wichita State have the talent to win it all.

'We have beaten Wichita State this season, but they have also defeated Big Eight Champion Oklahoma State. We know we will have to play solid tennis to be in contention Senior Mickey Maule and junior Joe Demeterco will play in the No. 1 and 2 spots respec-tively for SIU-C. Maule fin-ished the season at 25-12, while Demeterco ended up at a respectable 22-13.

Maule also was named the Region V Player-of-the-Year and Saluki Athlete-of-the-Year.

USG Judicial Board to hear case tonight

Students will find out tonight if the party they voted into office will finally fill their positions. The judicial board of gover-nance of the Undergraduate Student Government will hear an election general enherits i beneral election appeal submitted by win-ning Trojan party presidential candidate Michael Contile and vice-presidential candidate Brian Hawkins at 8 p.m. in the Illinois room of the Student Center.

Contile and Hawkins, along with their lawyer Larry Beard, filed the appeal after the election commission nullified election results declaring the the Trojan party victorious in the April 11 election. The results were declared null and void nearly a week after elections because excessive campaign violations by all parties

The judicial board will listen to representatives from the Trojan party and the defendants, who Tami Todoroff and USG president Tim Hildebrand, Chief Justice Jerry Sowders said.

The judicial board rejected Tuesday the election commission's motion to dismiss the hearing based on the board's lack of jurisdiction in the matter, but Sowders said the judicial board has the power to make a decision.

Contile said the election commission's opposition to the hear-ing reflects the entire attitude of both the election commission and the current USG administration.

"They feel nobody is above them-not even the judicial board which is backed up with the constitution," Contile said. The USG constitution states that the judicial board has the final word in student hearings.

Contile also said the election commission has no constitutional right or power to nullify an election

"It's never been done, and it can't be done according to the constitution," he said. The consti-tution states the election conmission can reprimand or disqualify candidates without giving specific rights for nullification.

Hildcbrand, a Progress party presidential candidate, defended the election commission's decision that fraud and cheating occurred on behalf of the Trojan party.

"It was the election commission's prerogative to nullify the results," Hildebrand said. "I think the election commission acted appropriately."

The USG senate passed a reso-lution Wednesday night to recommend Hildebrand remain presi-dent over the summer in case the judicial board fails to uphold Contile's appeal.

The senate will send its recom-mendation to the office of student affairs despite failing to match the required two-thirds vote.

Recycling job done well, but not finished

IN THE AFTERMATH of Earth Week, we at SIU-C can look at our collective efforts and be happy. The campus recycling program has been operating since February, reincarnating an average of about one ton of University waste each month.

A ton of recyclable products each month since February? Before we get too engrossed in adding up our awareness points, consider this: The University generates 192 times the amount collected by Poilution Control week for week.

AND WE THOUGHT we were coing a good job. We are, but it's a necessary good job—one that doesn't merit extensive hand shaking and back patting. Between 50 to 60 campus offices participate in the campus recycling program. The number of offices that call for weekly pickup vary, but some weeks as few as 15 require collection.

PARTICIPATION in the program is not mandatory. Hopefully, as response increases and improvements are made, every University office capable of creating recyclable trash will be required to participate.

With foresight, Pollution Control has made plans to open some eyes on campus. New students will receive information about the recycling program along with orientation or welcome packets. Veteran students and other members of the University community may require more drastic measures.

TO DATE, RECYCLING BINS are absent in the Sudent Center and Faner computer lab. These facilities generate a good deal of the 48 tons a week of University

Patrick Glisson, manager of waste pickup on campus, said Pollution Control eventually will install bins in both facilities. Apparently we need someone to hold our hands and teach us a little common sense.

AS LONG AS WE EAT and practice basic hygiene, we'll be responsible for living with the waste we create. We can live in it or with it. Those who merely border on perceptive some day may end up living in waste-hip to empty beer bottle.

Probably the majority of humans would prefer a clear distinction between trash and habitable space. Such space continues to grow smaller with every full can of varied trash.

SO FAR, OUR MOST effective solution to living with trash is recycling. Since it has not fully matured, we do not know the extent of its effectiveness

More effective solutions to the trash problem are not hidden in landfills. They are locked inside our heads in the form of ideas. Awareness is our lifeline.

egalizing marijuana first step in winning war against drugs

Discussion about the legaliza tion of drugs tends to divide par-ticipants into three camps-those strictly opposed to any reform, those who favor responsible consideration of decrim-inalization/legalization options and those who say it would be best to legalize everything. Along with an increasing number of prominent politicians and public figures, more and more pragmatic citizens fall into the middle category. I happen to be one of them, It's just a matter of determining the scope and pace of reform

Whenever this idea is men-tioned, the talk invariably drifts tomed, the tark invariably drives toward that other well-known use of the hemp plant—smoking for pleasure. If marijuana were legal-ized for industrial uses, opponents ask, wouldn't this lead to increased recreational usage?

Anybody with even a smidgen of foresight will answer yes. But anybody who also is willing to examine the consequences should reach the logical conclusion that legalizing marijuana-if properly implemented by the govern-ment-would be positive both for consumers and in President Bush's war on drugs. Saluki shuttle bus delayed

By Richard Hund Staff Writer

The trial run of the Saluki bus shuttle service has been delayed due to sponsor pullout, inaccessi-bility to use the Soluki tram and lack of student avarances

Last week, the shuttle service made half-hour circular trips around campus from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Students could park at the Arena and be transported to the Student Center and the Communications Building. Ed Walthers, the Undergraduate Student Government senator who began a trial run last week to determine student interest, said a sponsor decided not to contribute money to the trial.

Walthers declined to release the sponsor's name for print, but several organizations, such as the Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate and Professional Student Council. donated money to the service that cost $150 daily. He also said Transit Service

The woman told police she had not been drinking on the trip to Austin but that the advance main had. She told police she became separated from one of her friends when they returned to Waco.

At about 4 a.m. she became concerned about her friend and knocked on the man's door looking for her. McGee said the woman told authorities when she tried to leave, the man sexually assaulted her and she escaped when he went to the bathroom.

McGee said the woman said she waited more than 16 hours to report the crime because she was scared. The officer said the woman had bruises and cuts when she made her statement Sunday night.

Mother teams with law firm in battle against sex on TV

105 advertisers pull sponsorship from 'Geraldo'

Scripps Howard News Service

FORT WORTH, Texas — Lynda Beams, a Fort Worth-area mother outraged by sexual true confessions on after-school television has teamed up with a promi-ner a Washington law firm to take her grass roots crusade to the Federal Communication₃ Commission.

Beams, who persuaded 105 advertisers to quit sponsoring the "Geraldo" talk show on KDFW-TV Channel 4, is asking the FCC to admonish the station for broad-casting "indecent" mate als dur-ing after-school time slots. Under FCC guidelines, programming which panders to vulgar is consid-ered indecent and may not be aired before 8 p.m.

Beams, whose legal bills are being paid by an anonymous supporter, is also asking the FCC to broaden its definition of "indecency" to exclude un-newswor-thy depictions of murder and mayhem from the airwaves. The Fort Worth homemaker's attempt to shape federal policy in response to an official FCC inquiry regarding indecency that has drawn more than 90,000 let-ters and 14 legal briefs.

"We're not trying to bar any-thing from being aired," said Beams' Washington attorney David Irwin, a specialist in telecommunications law. "But, as my mother told me, there's a time and a place for everything." At KDFW-TV, which has agreed to change "Geraldo's" 4 p.m. time slot when the show's contract expires Sept. 1, station manager Jeff Rosser said "Geraldo," which is aired after school in about 130 markets, has toned down its topics since December. He said a backlash of viewers are accusing the station of caving into Lynda Beams' assault

Jeff Erdel, publicist for talk-show host Geraldo Rivera, termed Beams' stepped-up campaign against the media a move toward censorship. "People like Lynda Beams seek to censor other people's freedoms," the spokesman for the syndicated show said. "The FCC has rather stringent rules for keeping vulgarity off the air and these rules are strictly adhered to.

At ABC television, network pokeswoman Julie Hoover said, "We do not broadcast indecent material on any of our stations, and we think that the current FCC method of enforcing their statute is overly restrictive of legitimate free speech.

Beams said her brief before the FCC is nothing new, but merely the extension of a complaint she mailed the federal agency last Sept. 6. Alarmed by discussions of oral sex, group sex and incest aired on "Geraldo," she spliced together 19-minutes of excerpts and mailed the video to the FCC and dozens of advertisers.

Four months later, on Jan., 29, the FCC replied that the video was out of context and that Beams' complaint required more documentation.

Graduation is the 12th. That means there's only one weekend left to party before entering the real world." What should you do? Spend it on the strip dodging drunks, beer cans and bage! vendors? Will you risk bodily harm at Lewis Park dodging irate drivers? And where will you take your parents? Can you imagine your mother getting down and dirty at Checkers? Chevron officials: Exxon spill haunting petroleum industry

San Francisco Examiner

The Exxon Valdez oil spill is still haunting the petroleum industry one year later, said Chevron Corp. Chairman Kenneth Derr.

"Frankly, the industry has a ter-rible credibility problem," he told shareholders at the company's annual meeting in San Francisco Tuesday.

Derr noted that Chevron had reported dramatically lower earn-ings because of a $600 million write down of the value of its Point Arguello project offshore in Southern California

Permits for oil drilling were almost in hand when the massive oil spill further delayed the project. 'This is an example of unre-alistic public policy," Derr said. "As a consequence, we felt we should bring the recorded value of these assets down to a more realistic number.

Despite the drastic aftershock from the spill, Chevron defended the safety record for its 41-tanker worldwide fleet - second in size only to Exxon's. Last year, the San Francisco oil company shipped 651 million barrels of oil, spilling seven. There are 42 gal-lons of oil in each barrel.

Chevron Vice Chairman James Sullivan told shareholders the company has cut hazardous waste disposal by 60 percent since 1986 and reduced toxic emissions from its major manufacturing and chemical operations by 41 percent in 1987-88

Derr deviated from his prepared remarks to discuss what he termed "disruptive" efforts by Pennzoil to gain control of Chevron.

Derr told shareholders that Pennzoil "has a history of hostile takeovers" and he criticized Pennzoil's statement that its purchase was for investment purposes only.

NEW BRUNSWICK, (UPI) — Students protesting threatened tuition increases occu-pied campus buildings at New Jersey's state university and a major state college for a second day Wednesday. Administrators at both Rutgers University in New Brunswick and Montclair State College in Upper Montclair declined to take action against the sit-ins. But they also argued that cuts in state aid leave them with no choice but raising tuition.

Protesters at both schools directed their anger more at Gov. Jim Florio and the state Legislature than at university and college administrations.

"We've taken our concerns to the top-level administration at Rutgers," said Mia Ji, a Rutgers," said Mia Ji, a spokeswoman for the Coalition for an Affordable Rutgers Education. "Now it's our turn to focus our attention towards the

If the budget is approved by the state Legislature, Rutgers would get $216.5 million in aid, down $26.1 million from the current year, while Montclair would get $34.1 million, a cut of $4.3 million.

About 40 Rutgers students spent the night in Milledoler Hall, which includes the office of the dean of Rutgers College, an undergraduate school at Rutgers.

Ji said that friendly staff members had invited them to use their offices, making them officially guests instead of trespassers.

Students at Montclair boycotted classes to protest a proposal for a 15 percent tuition hike. College spokesman Ivan Tolbert said most students appeared to be attending class, but Rob Campos, a reporter for the Montclarion, the student newspaper, said about half the classes were canceled and that 75 percent of the college's 13,000 students were honoring the boycott.

Temple students stage protest of racial incident

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Hundreds of Temple University students tried Wednesday to "bring the campus to its knecs" by blocking streets in protest of the school's reaction to a campus brawl the students said was racially motivated.

Between 500 and 600 student-members of Concerned Black Students began sitting in the middle of four streets leading to the campus at 10 a.m., the deadline they set for the university to meet their demands.

"We said at 10 o'clock we would bring the campus on its knees," student leader Eddie Glaude said to the protesters.

"This requires discipline and it requires heart." The students demanded a meet-ing with Temple President Peter Liacouras to press their demands. School officials said they were trying to arrange the meeting.

Liacouras announced Tuesday that five campus police officers and 10 students would be disci-plined following a brawl last Thursday in which black students said they were beaten by white campus police. The incident began when sever Ine incluent organ when sever-al windows and a door at the pre-dominately white Phi Kappa Psi fraternity were broken. Fraternity members began chasing a group of black students they believed to be the undele. be the vandals

A brawl broke out and universi-ty police took eight students into custody. Eleven other were injured

The black students said the offi cers used undue force and treated the blacks differently than the whites

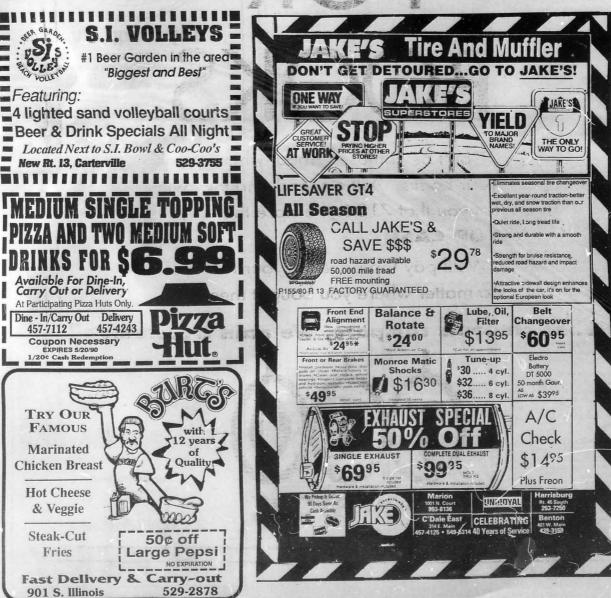

Liacouras said Tuesday school officials interviewed 78 persons in their investigation and found "plenty of provocation and ... plenty of blame to be spread around."

Liacouras said the students involved face penalties ranging to expulsion and the officers face sanctions ranging to termination.

He also suspended the fraterni-ty until the investigation was completed and said a private criminal complaint would be lodged against one officer. University police also will receive additional training in cultural sersitivity, conflict resolution and crowd control, school officials said.

But the students were not satis-fied and said Liacouras should have consulted them about the proper disciplinary action to take against the officers and students.

Student leader Eric Davis demanded the firing of campus security chief Charles Bush, even though Bush was not one of the five officers charged with violating work rules.

Business incubator to warm Southern Illinois economy

By Brian Gross Staff Write

Experience from both the business and academic worlds will help the new manager of SIU's business incubator promoting small business growth and expansion in Southern Illinois.

David Hampson will take the role as manager of the Southern Illinois Smal! Business Incubator July 1.

The incubator, a 55,000 square foot, University-owned building being constructed south of Carbondale at Route 51 and Pleasant Hill Road, is designed to house up to 35 new or expanding businesses. Hampson said he expects to have the first series of tenants signed up within 60 days after he begins work. Until July 1, he will serve only in a part-time capacity.

"My background allows me to work with the University in their way of doing business," Hampson said "yet, at the same time, I can efficiently involve the region so that it is truly a regional incuba-

Rhonda Vinson, director of eco-nomic development, said the incubator will benefit from the leadership and experience Hampson brings.

"I feel very comfortable with the choice because he has experience as an entrepreneur in the business world and he has experience in the academic world," Vinson said. "He can walk both worlds. Some of the people we Hampson said he wants to reassure concerned people in the area that the incubator is not just a University venture for the University's benefit. "There's been some suspicions that the incubator will not be effectively used for the region, which I want to dispense," he said. "It has been the intention to have an impact on the region for the long term, with new businesses coming in with new ideas to spawn economic development for the region."

The incubator's advantages for businesses that locate there include shared services for telephone answering, word process ing, photocopying, and meeting rooms; and assistance with accounting and book keeping, market studies and loan packag-ing. It will also feature an inhouse small business development center and a technology commercialization center

"(The incubator) offers some equipment you normally would not have starting up business,"

"The purpose is to get new business started by pooling their resources—library, computers, accounting—while drawing from the University's strength," Pettit said

The incubator is an effort to use the University for economic development, he said. "It's fairly common, and in some places it's successful," Petiti said. "Some places it's not. Usually you wait 10 years to indee" judge.

Construction began on the $6 million incubator in fall 1988. The incubator can accommodate up to 35 new or expanding small businesses, but Vinson said some space will always be left open.

"We have room for about 35 tenants, but we keep rotating the building," she said. "It will never be 100 percent full. Some tenants may need six months to a year (before they are ready to leave the cubator).

"We would be really lucky if some businesses are owned and run by students to stop the brain drain and keep some students in the area," Vinson said. "If the region is strong, it helps the University.

Vinson said the architect was able to squeeze in an additional 5,000 square feet to the incubator. Original plans called for a 50,000 square-foot building. "The architect did a real good Hampson, a native of England, a current resident of Virginia. He has taught a graduate course a SIU-C as visiting faculty in 1973.

After earning a teaching degree from Nottingham University in England in 1964 and a masters in education from Stanford, Hampson worked his way up mough the education ranks.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he opposed Sasser's plan because "I do not believe this budget is going to be implement-ed" and because the defense cuts are greater than the White House would accept.

Sasser's plan would cut the Pentagon by $2.8 billion below current defense spending levels. It contains $9.8 billion less it. cefense spending next year than President Bash proposed in his budget. Bush wanted a $7 billion increase over 1990 levels

The Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law requires that the budget law requires that the deficit next year be cut by $36 billion to a target of $64 billion, but the Sasser plan would trim the deficit by $43 billion — $7 bil-lion more than required by law. It would also cut the deficit by $7 billion more than the House plan.

Included in the Senate budget is an $11.1 billion "fair share" strat-egy for speeding up the collection of overdue federal taxes by forgiving penalties while collections proceed. Sasser said he modeled his proposal on annesty programs used by some states to collect back taxes.

The Senate committee's budget would also avoid the deep cuts in Medicare and agriculture pro-grams proposed by Bush and rejected by the House. The House, on a mostly party-line vote, passed its budget 218-208 Twendow Tuesday

The House never got to vote on the $1.23 trillion budget submit-ted to Congress in January by Bush

Republicans, who planned to offer Bush's budget as an alterna-tive to the Democratic plan, changed their minds at the last minute. That allowed Democrats to cite the switch as evidence Bush's budget had little support, even among Republicans.

"This is, in effect, a quiet, if secret, repudiation of the presi-dent's proposals," House Speaker Thomas Foley said.

Axe may fall in Boeing investigation

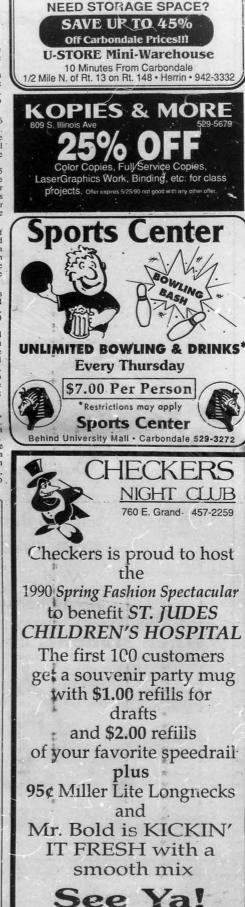

SEATTLE (UPI) --Boeing President Frank Shrontz said the company may discipline more employ-ees involved in a classified documents case that has led to one former executive being sent to prison, it was reported Wednesday.

An internal investigation into the role of other employ-ees should be completed in about two months, and will be reviewed by a special committee of Boeing's board of directors, Shipntz told The Seattle Times.

Seature times, Shrontz said the investiga-tion's goal is "to understand whether there were other people involved, what the degree of involvement was, and ... to decide whether we need to take disciplinary action in ar-y case." Richard Fowler, a Boeing marketing analyst between 1978 and 1986, is serving a federal prison term for obtaining secret government budget planning documents for Boeing and for refusing to tell a grand jury who in the Pentagon gave him the fruit." Government spokesman Rene Hernandez said security guard Jose Cubilla, 23, was accidentilly shot as about 30 guards surround-ed the Presidential Palace Turendey night and blocked off Tuesday night and blocked off nearby streets in the capital's San Felipe neighborhood.

Miguel Batista, vice minister of the presidency, was seen with the guards carrying a machine gun. Hemandez said the guards were on a routine exercise and that Cubilla was killed when another guard accidentally fired his machine gun. A witness told United Press International that he heard machine gunfire near the palace at about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

'It was an accident," said Hernandez, who gave no further details. He said the incident was under investigation and described the Presidential Palace as calm Wednesday.

Endara, who was installed dur-ing the U.S. invasion last December that ousted military ruler Manuel Antonic Noriega, was in the United States where he met Monday with President Bush. The Panamanian president was in New York for a private visit Wednesday and planned to return to Panama Thursday evening as scheduled.

Both Arias Calderon and Second Vice President Guillermo Ford were in meetings Wednesday afternoon and could not be reached for further comment

A Western diplomat, calling Panama "the rumor capital of the world," said the events on Tuesday night were probably the result of rampant rumors.

"This is not the first time rumors have gotten out of hand in Panama," the diplomat said. "I don't believe the government was ever in trouble."

The newspaper La Prensa reported the extra security measures were taken after a govern-ment official called the Presidential Palace to warn of a possible coup attempt.

Space telescope hits glitch, engineer's oversight blamed GREENBELT, Md. (UPI) -

An engineer's "oversight" caused a door protecting the the Hubble Space Telescope's sensitive appa-ratus to close, sending the orbit-ing observatory into hibernation for 12 hours NASA social for 12 hours, NASA said Wednesday

Daily Egyptian

Controllers indicated that 'anamolies' of thir nature are expected of HST (Hubble Space Telescope) and other complex spacecraft during this verification process," a NASA statement said.

'The HST team is building confidence in dealing with them quickly and effectively as they occur without significant impact on the schedule," it said.

"The spacecraft operated just as it should have," the statement said. "The problem was caused by ground controller oversight." The problem occurred at 7 p.m.

Tuesday while engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center at Greenbelt and the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., were testing the telescope's pointing system.

Engineers overlooked activating an aperture door ... inhibit switch and, operating as it should, (a telescope safety system) com-manded the (door) shut," the

The problem put NASA engineers even more behind schedule in their painstaking, trouble-plagued effort to slowly bring the $1.5 billion telescope to life.

"Body motion created by the motion of the (door) triggered the (telescope) into a 'safe' mode," a hibernation-like state built in to the telescope to protect the craft, it said.

'This is essentially the same sort of safe mode entry that occurred several days ago when the (door) was commanded open," it said.

The event occurred just before engineers planned to sent com-mands to the telescope that would have "desensitized" the telescope's sensors and prevented such an occurrence, the statement said

Ground controllers regained contact with the telescope "just after midnight," sent commands to "desensitive" the telescope's gyroscopes and reopened the door, the statement said. The telescope was brought completely out of the safe mode by 7 a.m. of the saf Wednesday.

The problem put NASA engineers even more behind schedule in their painstaking, trouble-plagued efforts to slowly bring the $1.5 billion telescope to life. In particular, the glitch forced workers to delay until 11 a.m. Wednesday starting to send computer commands from the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore to the telescope to finally begin turning on its instruments

The telescope was placed into orbit last week by the space shut-tle Discovery for a 15-year mis-sion to search for clues about the birth, structure and destiny of the universe by studying planets, stars and galaxies more clearly than before.

Problems in the initial steps of slowly starting the telescope forced NASA about a week behind schedule in the eightmonth process, delaying the his-toric first image of the heavens until the weekend at the earliest.

The most significant problem involved one of the telescope's two "high-gain antennas," which are needed to transmit the flood of data about the universe the telescope will collect.

Education Department: Schools not improving

WASHINGTON (SHNS) Despite billions of dollars in new spending, the nation's schools are not getting any better, the U.S. Department of E4r cation said Wednesday.

"For the fourth year in a row, we find no overall improvement," said Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos. "We have reached a plateau. Moving beyond this point will require radical changes."

Cavazos issued a state-by-state wall chart" showing that spending on elementary and secondary education increased sharply during the 1980s while test scores and most other measures of student achievement remained relatively flat.

The solution to the education deficit is not found by simply adding more dollars into the sys-tem," he told reporters. "Increased spending has failed to produce improved results."

His comments immediately vere challenged by the National Education Association, a teach-ers' union, which called for the abolition of "wall charts" as a measure of educational progress.

"It is evident that the report only continues to confuse and frustrate the public," said NEA president Keith Geiger.

Geiger said statistics "only give columns and numbers" and pro-posed that "new methods" be found to evaluate student achieve-

Cavazos conceded there has been progress in individual states, districts and schools, but he said these "piecemeal" improvements are not good enough. "We are still not seriously com-

"We are still mot semistry com-mitted to improving education for all Americans," he said. "Often 1 see indifference, complacency and passivity, despite the demon-strated need for immediate and radical school reform."

Cavazos predicted public edu-cation will be vastly better by the end of the decade, but he warned that backsliding could sabotage the goals set by the 50 governors and the Bush administration.

"Things had better not get worse, or we're not going to make it," Cavazos said.

He noted that three students in 10 fail to graduate from high school, a figure that has not changed much for years. Scores on college entrance examinations improved only slightly during the 1980s and are much lower than they were 20 years ago.

"Even after years of reform, only a few states require three years of math and three years of science in high school," he said. He singled out Minnesota, Wyoming and North Dakota as states with high (90 percent) grad-uation rates uation rates.

Cavazos said there is "some good news" in student achievement, including higher scores by blacks and Hispanics on college entrance exams and a greater ten-dency to take tougher courses.

Nineteen states now require minimum competency testing for high school graduation; eight states permit state intervention in academically bankrupt schools

Bond set in teen-age stabbing spree case

KANKAKEE (UPI) — Bond was set at $500,000 Wednesday for a high school wrestler charged with murder in a weekend stabbing spree.

Duane Parks, 17, Bourbonnais, a wrestler at Bradley-Bourbonnais High School, pleaded not guilty Wednesday during an arraignment before Kankakee County Circuit Judge John Michela. The judge set bond at $500,000.

Parks was indicted on 25 counts Tuesday, including charges of murder, attempted murder and aggravated battery.

Assistant Kankakee County State's Attorney Joe Anthony said Parks stabbed seven people in the incident Saturday night. Richard Pranskus, 18, Bourbonnais, died shortly after being stabbed when he tried to break up an argument. Three other teens injured in the attack remained hospitalized Wednesday in good condition.

A tentative trial date was set for July 23, and Anthony said the trial could be a lengthy one.

Entertainglent Photography organization shows spiritual, spastic work

By Jeanne Bickle tainment Editor

How does one go about the business of capturing a photographic image that is both spastic and spiritual at the same time?

the same time? Some SIU-C photographers have tried to do just that. "Spastic and Spiritual- The Human Figure in Contemporary Photography" is the theme of the cur-rent Photogenesis show displayed in the Communications Building. Photographs from students, faculty and guests were helicide to Photogenesis a student comprision of submitted to Photogenesis, a student organization of the Cinema and Photography Department. Twenty-five prints that fit the theme were accepted to run in the show

"The title of the show really gave us the freedom to do whatever," Rob Shields, a sophomore in photography, said.

The photographers must have felt this was not a restricting title, because all types of images were entered. Some are photographs of family or religious emerca, some are photographs of ramity of rengrous icons, some are objects and some are nudes. The last Photogenesis show, "Totally Naked, Totally Nude," was a compilation of photographs, celebrating the human form. But for some reason, the nude photographs in "Spastic and Spiritual" seem to be attract-ing more negative attention. By each of the three display cases, Photogenesis hangs a sheet of paper, asking for comments from peoments calling them, among other things, "trash." In fact, one of the anonymous comments says. "You 'artists' have freedom of expressions, but don't expect tax money for homosexual, blasphemous trash."

So why is this portfolio attracting this kind of attention?

Some of the "Spastic and Spiritual" photographers had some ide

"People are kind of blind," Chris Myers, a student photographer, said. "They only see the nudity, they don't think about what the intent was."

Deana Borla, another student photographer, said responding to the photographs requires spectators to open their minds. "A lot of people don't open up their minds and see "A lot of people don't open up their minds and see "But" is behind the images themselves," she said. "But is nice to know how people react to the photographs." For the most part, the photographers say they respect the value of the comments sheets.

"It gives people a feeling of cuptoria," Jennifer Keller, a student photographer, said. "They don't have to sign their names so they know what they say won't be ciallenged."

The overall intent is to extend the images outside of thinking." "People respond strongly to nudes in typically reac-"People respond strongly to nudes in typically reac-"Probably tor each comments sheet there's one good comment," Keller said. And to these photographers.

"Is the person going to go over the edge of the board or not," Ziolkowski said. "I use the male nude as vocabulary; it's not a picture of the person in the shot." More male nudes are in this show than in past shows, which may be part of the reason for the nega-tive reaction, Christa Moore, student photographer, said. "The comments are because the nudes aren't just female," Moore said. "People look at the female nudes and say 'what a great body,' but they think male nudes

'Good cop gone bad' focus of new film featuring Nolte

By Stephanie Steirer

Racial slurs and profanity are the focus of "Q & A," a typical "good cop gone bad" film.

Not only was the infamous four-letter word used over and over and over again, but racial, ethnic and sexual slurs against blacks, whites, Puerto Ricans, Jews, Irish and homosexuals were blatantly used and were very offensive

According to Tri-Star Studios, "Q a A" director, Sidney Lumet, intended to use these remarks to show whether or not ethnic lovalties are a positive or destructive force

After seeing this film, it can be concluded that ethnic slurs are destroying the New York Police Department.

The film stars Nick Nolte as Lt. Mike Brennan, a tough cop who is a legend on the New York City police force. In the opening scene, Brennan shoots and kills Hispanic dope A Review dealer Tony Vasquez, played by Harry Madsen, in the line of duty, or so Brennan says.

Timothy Hutton portrays Al Reilly, a young assistant district attorney assigned to Brennan's case by his superior, Kevin Quinn, played by Patrick O'Neal. Quinn tells Reilly that Brennen bet in cell defense and that it uses shot in self defense and that it was a justifiable homicide. He instructs Reilly to collect the facts, present them to the grand jury and close out the case. "It's cut and dried," he said.

Quinn wants Reilly to put all of the evidence on the Q & A, which the evidence on the Q & A, which means questions and answers, the official police record that defines exactly what happened. "If it isn't on the Q & A, it didn't happen," Quint said.

With the help of detectives Sam Chapman, played by Charles Dutton, and Luis Valentin, played by Luis Guzman, Reilly conducts a question and answer session with the witnesses of the shoot ing. Each witness plays a key role in the investigation of Brennan.

Armand Assante portrays Bobby Texador, who at first denies knowing Vasquez, reveals in a heated quarrel with detective I Guzman that he did know Vasquez and he didn't think Vasquez was shot in self defense.

It also is interesting to note that Texador is in love with Reilly's ex-girlfriend Nancy Bosch, played by Jenny Lumet. At first it seems this tie between Reilly and Texador will ruin the investigation, but in the end, it turns out to be a good thing.

Slowly but surely, the plot thickens. Reilly has to make a decision whether or not to bust Brennan. His heart says yes, but his superior says no.

If you like the basic "good cop gone bad" theme, then this movie may be for you. But if you are easily offended by racial and eth-nic clars, you might want to stay home.

Detroit Pistons return to championship form

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (UPI) — In case you didn't get the message, the Detroit Pistons would like you to know they are back in championship form.

The Pistons, who lost 8 of their final 16 regular season games, swept Indiana in their first-round series, performing like the team that swept three of four on the way to winning the NBA title last year. "We're playing great basket-ball," forward Dennis Rodman said. "The team is coming back. We're getting rebounds. The offense is coming from everybody. We are really playing together."

Only two teams have ever won consecutive NBA crowns, but De roit will be difficult to step

"This is for all the so-called experts who say we can't," said forward John Salley. "We're playing well on defense. Whe're how we win. We get the stops and the fastbreaks. That's what brings us championship rings." Salley sparked the Detroit reserves, who outscored Indiana's bench 104-35 in the three-game series and 35-16 in Tuesday's 108-96 finale.

"Their starters played a lot of minutes," Rodman said. "Our bench came in and played very well. They were important to us because Indiana really doesn't have a bench. They've got some great players but they aren't contributing the way they want them to. Their bench was not going to beat ours. We know we have to do now and we've got momentum going." Detroit made 34 turnovers in the series against Indiana but the Pacers lost the ball 44 times. The Pacers also never shot better than 46 percent against the NBA's toughest defense. "They made a couple of non-chalent passes and we were ready," said guard Vinnie Johnson. "Maybe it has to do with experience.

Isiah Thomas scored 23 points in the concluding game, hitting back-to-back 3-point shots to give Detroit its largest lead at 76-61 late in the third period. His 2 steals also helped spark an 8-0 run in the final 42. seconds of the first half after Indiana had cut Detroit's lead to 46-45

"Isiah is leading the charge. He's the one we follow," Rodman suid.

Pistors Coach Chuck Daly also praised Thomas's direction ofth of the half-court attack. "Zeke (Thomas) was really seeing the floor," Daly said. "He found Rodman for three great field goals within our offense when they made a mistake defensively

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) - It takes more than one lopsided loss - It to dampen the spirits of self-assured Philadelphia forward

Charles Barkley. The six-year veteran from Auburn said that despite Philadelphia's 122-95 loss to Cleveland Tuesday night at the Richfield Coliseum his club is still in control of the best-of-five Philadelphia leads the series 2-1 going into game four Thursday night at the Coliseum.

We still have to win only one out of two," Barkley said. "They have to win two of two. Obviously, we're still in control. If I was a betting man, I'd bet on us

A betting man probably would have given odds that the Cavaliers would win game three after losing two close games in Philadelphia, but there were some surprising developments along the way. Such as the more agressive, physical style of piay from the Cavs, who had spent the first two games getting hammered by the Sixers, particularly Barkley and Rick Mahorn.

Tuesday night, Philadelphia had just one offensive rebound in the first half.

Then there was the play of backup center Wayne "Tree" Rollins and off guard Derrick Chievous, neither of whom played in the first two games. Rollins had four points and four rebounds in 20 minutes of physi-cal play, while Chievous scored 13 points in 11 minutes and played some good defense on the Philadelphia guards.

Barkley: 'We're in control'

"I'm encouraged by the way we played the whole, total game," said Cleveland coach Lenny Wilkens. "I want us to come out with the same determi-nation and the same mindset that we had" in game three.

Philadelphia is counting on coming out with a new mindset, one ained at ending the series Thursday and avoiding a fifth game at the Spectrum on Seturday. game a Saturday.

"Sometimes, teams can just "Sometimes, teams can just come out with that kind of explo-sion and you can't catch up," Mahorn said of Cleveland's quick start Tuesday, "It's a five-game series, you've got game four com-ing up. You just come back, re-evaluate what happened and just take it to the next level. "You can't necessarily lose any."

'You can't necessarily lose any sleep, but you have to come back. You've got to win that third game. You can't sit back and relax on your cushion your cushion." Barkley will be well-rested in the fourth game, having sat out the final quarter and a half of Tuesday's blowout. After scoring 70 points in the first two games, Barkley had only 17 Tuesday. "We're still up 2-1, we've got another game coming up Thursday and we'll be ready,"

Barkley said. "Maybe it's a good thing it happened. Now we'll come out here ready to play."

Perhaps the most pleasing development from Cleveland's point of view, other than winning point of view, outer than winning and playing a more physical game, was the offense of two guard Craig Ehlo, who was 6-of-26 from the field in the first two games. Ehlo scored 25 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and dished out ping accessing and when he is: out nine assists, and when he is hitting his outside shots it opens up the floor for the Cleveland big en and the drives of point guard Mark Price.

"We know we're capable of winning (game four) if we do what we did" in game three, Ehlo said. "Hopefully, we'll take it back to Philly."

Price, the gutsy leader of the Cavs who exhibited Cleveland's resolve by diving after the ball three minutes into the game and who went after 6-foot-10 Bob Thornton after a cheap pushing foul in the second half, expects a much closer game Thursday

"I don't think Philadelphia was overconfident, but I don't think it (game three) was as important to them as it was to us," he said. "I think Thursday will be a little dif-ferent " ferent

Added Ehlo: "They should be madder than dogs and cats. They're going to come out fight-ing. The only way to (win) is to do what we did (Tuesday)."

Rockets victory over Lakers will cost Madonna $40.000

HOUSTON (UPI) - Houston's win over the Los. Angeles Lakers in Game 3 of their first-round playoff series was great for Rockets fans, but not so great for pop singer Madonna.

Bucks forwards key in playoff series

MILWAUKEE (UPI) Forwards Brad Lohaus and Fred Roberts — an unlikely pair of key players — have been the difference for the Milwaukee Bucks in their Eastern Conference playoff series with the Chicago Bulls.

Chicago forwards Scottie Pippen and Horace Grant outmus-cled and outscored Milwaukee's frontcourt in Games 1 and 2, both won by the Bulls. But Lohaus, Roberts and center Jack Sikma. bothered by a back injury, played about equal to Chicago's frontline Tuesday night as Milwaukee post-ed a 119-112 victory to trail 2-1 in the best-of-five series

Roberts had 23 points while Lohaus, who scored only three points in Game 1, chipped in nine points and seven rebounds. He also had four steals, including taking the ball from Michael Jordan and scoring on a dunk to give Milwaukee the lead for good with 1:56 left.

"We followed our game plan," Lohaus said. "If we play like that again Thursday, we have a chance. We'll just come out Thursday and try to do the same thing.

Sikma scored only eight points, but held Chicago centers Bill Cartwright and Stacey King to 13.

"I think Jack being more mobile, feeling better last night was a factor," Milwaukee 'Coach Del Harris said. "In general, Brad, 'Cadillac' (Anderson) and Fred did a better job of defensive pressure.

"If you forget statistics and look at the film, you appreciate what Jack is doing out there," Harris said.

Lohaus and Alvin Robertson denied Jordan a good look at the basket in the final minutes of Game 3 and the rest of the Bulls did not respond, allowing Milwaukee to finish with a 14-5 run. Jordan scored 48 points and 12 in the fourth quarter, but only two in the final 5:54.

However, the Bucks will not double-team the Bulls superstar every time downcourt in the closing minutes.

"You really have to be more selective when you double team him," Harris said. "Not only can be made the play but he can get it he make the play, but he can get it to other people who will make the

The Bucks had long scoring droughts in the first two games, but stayed close to Chicago for most of Game 3. The Bulls used a 16-3 run to open the fourth quar-ter and take a 101-93 lead, but Ricky Pierce hit a three-pointer and Robertson, who had 38 points, scored on a dunk to close the gap.

"They did all the right things down the stretch," said Jordan, whose team practiced Wednesday in Deerfield, III. "We felt if we could keep the pressure on, they would crack sooner or later. But they held it together."

Harris said his team could not afford to suffer through scoring droughts.

"That eight-point lead only lasted 15 or 20 seconds," he said.

Portland wins first playoff series, but lose two starters to injuries

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) ---The Portland Trail Blazers' celebration of their first playoff series victory since 1985 was tempered by injuries to two starters, one of whom could be out for the rest of the playoffs. The Blazers hung on for a 106

92 victory over the Dallas Mavericks at Reunion Arena Tuesday, but in the process lost power forward Buck Williams in the first half and center Kevin Duckworth in the second.

The Trail Blazers will meet San Antonio in a best-of-seven, sec-ond-round Western Conference series starting in Portland on Saturday. The Spurs completed a sweep of Denver Tuesday.

Williams, Portland's leading rebounder this season, suffered a corneal abrasion in his right eye and a crack in the bone near the sinus area from an elbow by Dallas' James Donaldson with 10 seconds left in the first period

Team spokesman John Christensen said Williams was troubled by blurred vision but should be able to resume normal activities in the next few days and was listed as probable for Saturday's second-round opener.

Duckworth fractured the fourth metacarpal bone in his right hand during the third period. Doctors put it in a splint for the next couple days then probably will place it in a cast.

Although both players will undergo further examination in undergo further examination in Portland by team doctor Robert Cook, the Blazers listed Duckworth as "highly unlikely" for the series against the Spurs — and he could be out for the rest of the playoffs.

"It would be pretty hard to pro-tect it," Cook said.

Duckworth, upset at the non-call on the play, said he didn't immediately notice the hand was seriously hurt.

"I shook it a few times," he aid. "I just thought it was ammed."

Jammed." Duckworth said he was told by doctors at Baylor University Medical Center that a plate may have to be put in the hand to aid in healing. "I don't want that to happen," he said. "I'm not big on metal plates

Duckworth said he and Williams were glad the team won without them. He also said Wayne Cooper can fill fill in during the next round. Duckworth was the team's third-leading scorer with

"I think 'Coop' will have to play some quality minutes," Duckworth said. "He can do that. He's a veteran and he knows what to do." to do

The Blazer bench contributed a strong performance in the absence of the two starters. Jerome Kersey scored 29 points and Clyde Drexler and Terry Porter each added 20 as the Blazers won for the seventh time in as many meetings against the Mavericks this seasor

Williams had played only 11 minutes of the first quarter before taking Donaldson's elbow in the eye while the two were going after a rebound. By then, he already had 10 rebounds and seven points. Duckworth left the game after scoring only 4 points and grabbing 3 rebounds. Kersey also had 9 rebounds and

2 steals as he held Dallas forward Sam Perkins to 13 points and 8 rebounds before Perkins fouled out in the final minute. Drexler had 10 assists and had 5 steals and 4 rebounds

Clark and Roberts lead Padres over Cards

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - Jack Clark and Bip Roberts each belted Wednesday, leading the San Diego Padres to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, runs snapping a five-game losing streak.

Bruce Hurst. 1-3, gained his first victory since Sept. 17 1989, allowing seven hits over seven innings. He walked one and struck out eight. Craig Lefferts worked the final two innings for his second save.

Jose DeLeon, 2-1, allowed eight hits in six innings to take the loss. He walked two and struck out eight

Trailing 2-0 and with one out in the sixth, Clark drove his fifth homer of the season deep into the left field seats and one out later, Benito Santiago kept the inning alive with a single. Roberts then pulled a 2-1 pitch over the right field fence, giving the Padres a 3-2 lead. It was Roberts' third of the year

The Padres increased their lead to 4-2 in the eighth. With one out. Santiago tripled and scored on Garry Templeton's sacrifice fly. The Cardinals had taken a 2-0 lead with single runs in the third and fourth

In the third, Vince Coleman's two-out single scored Rex Hudler, who had reached on an infield single and was sacrificed to second

Tom Brunansky reached on a fielder's choice in the fourth and came around to score on Todd Zeile's double. Hudler belted his first homer of the year with two outs in the ninth to complete the scoring.

Dawson's hot bat leads Cubs to victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Andre Dawson drove in three runs and scored three times Wednesday, leading a 16-hit attack and lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 9-6 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Mike Harkey improved to 3-1, despite giving up three homers over 5 1-3 innings. He gave up seven hits and all four runs, walking one and striking out four. Paul Assenmacher allowed two ninth-inning runs but finished up to gain his first save since Sept. 1988

Chicago used six straight hits with two outs in the third to score four times off Scott Garrelts, 0-3. Mark Grace started the rally with a double. Dawson, Dwight Smith,

Luis Salazar, Shawon Dunston and Joe Girardi each followed with singles to put Cubs up 4-1. Dawson, Smith and Ryne

Sandberg collected three hits each for the Cubs while Matt Williams belted two home runs for the Giants

Chicago added three more runs in the fourth to go up 7-1. Ryne Sandberg delivered a one-out sin-gle, Graced reached on an error by second baseman Robby ompson and Dawson followed with a two-run double. Dawson went to third on a single by Smith and scored on a sacrifice fly by Salazar

The Cubs added two runs in the sixth for a 9-1 lead. Sandberg led off with a single, was forced by Grace. Dawson followed with a base hit. One out later Grace scored on Salazar's single and Dawson scored on Danston's singie to left.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the second on the first of Williams' home runs.

San Francisco cut it to 9-4 in the sixth. Kevin Mitchell hit his fifth home run of the season and Rick Leach followed with a sin-gle. Williams then followed with his fourth home run of the year.

The Giants added two runs in the ninth to close to 9-6. Williams opened with a single and Gary Carter followed with a pinch-hit home run, his first of the season
