Our Opinions

Now It's the 'Thoughtful' Generation

Let's try our hand at psycho-analyzing the younger generation. Let's give it a name, now. And when we're through, let's tell the older set so they can stop worrying about us—for they are worried.

The first and biggest symptom of this worry was a survey by four pages of its magazine section. Latest in the series of worries is the New York Times. Recently four pages of its magazine section were devoted to "Portrait of the Korean Veteran."

Dating Etiquette

Once again the students of Southern are faced with the problem of dating. Any second may be sure of being dated a good many times, and any man may be sure of being accepted, if a few simple rules of etiquette are followed.

- MEN: 1. Always ask the girl at the last minute. This makes her feel that you tried to resist her charms. 2. When asking the girl for a date, be sure about the type of appointment which you plan to attend. An air of mystery increases interest.

'Rescuing' Bodies From Water

One part of the contract read something like this: "Whenever a floating body is found or sighted by a crew member of any Federal Barge Line vessel, a line will be secured to the center, and it will be tied or made fast to shore. The Coast Guard will immediately be notified. Either the vessel will stand by the body until a Coast Guard boat arrives or the body will be towed to a place to be fired and transmitted to the Coast Guard vessel."

Looking Back

In 1940 the world situation was probably worse than it is now, and Southern students were actively engaged in world and national affairs. The Egyptian was liberally sprinkled with stories concerning such issues; one of which mentioned the Japanese world minister, C. I. Wick.

MRS. EDITH BOYD of Detroit, known as the cause of her troubles with the law in three words: "I like men." Mrs. Boyd is being held for investigation on charges that she obtained money under false promises. This was heralded as exonerating the college from any charges of radical tendencies.

An enterprising reporter uncovered an ancient rivalry between the senior class at the university high school. The high school group paid $35 for a huge stone obelisk which they erected on the "Senior Parade" (that plot of ground that surrounds the flagpole in front of Old Main) just behind the cannon.

A roll of all the students' names in the high school class was handed out to the seniors. Such activity was too much for the seniors of the college, and a vigilance committee set out to demolish the sacrifice. The following morning, instead of the monument were seen rows of granite gravestones in a miniature cemetery.

The Texas County commissioners got a bill for ten gallons of fire water. This firewater, he told, was a special brand of soft water that is four or five times more effective than ordinary water for dousing fires. The commissioners paid the bill.

SPKING OF FISH — a couple of years ago a certain student was taking a course in beginning art, and the class was drawing straight lines at the time. As far as this student was concerned, a set of straight lines was just that. However, the instructor came around on a tour of inspection and highly lauded the student for his work.

The aspiring artist was then asked what he would name his masterpiece. This caught him off-guard, but he finally answered, "Drunkenship Fish."

The observed, harked off and looked at the drawing from every angle, and finally said, with a triumphant beam of recognition, "By gosh it is a drunken fish!"

Excellence

Excellence in a university is difficult to define. To say what it is, is not, is much easier than to say what it is. Certainly it is not a matter of size. One can readily call to mind a university which has been notorious for its worship of bigness. It has issued frequent press releases about its dozens of buildings, its hundreds of staff members, its thousands of students, and its millions of dollars. It has threatened disaster to the city if its dozens, hundreds, thousands, and millions are not allowed to proliferate. It has judged other universities, too, by the dollar sign, and apparently has not understood that excellence may be pursued without doing everything in the most grandiose or expensive way. But in spite of its tremendous size and wealth, it has never quite edged its way into the company of the world's great universities. —SIU Faculty Bulletin

Student Has Car Trouble For Two Years

(ACP) Bruce Wormald, a Columbia University student, has been having car trouble—for more than two years now. In 1951, when he was driving his 1936 model automobile conked out near New York City's Welfare Island. Unable to get the car started again, Wormald pushed it into a secluded corner and left it there. This month he received a warning letter from Welfare Island officials. They wanted him to retrieve his deserted car. So he and a friend went back to the Island and, finding the car in the motor room, they pushed the vehicle off a 24-foot cliff and into the ocean. An alert doctor saw the car being dumped, though, and notified the police. Now the two students are in the hot seat with "driving without a New York City license in violation of the Sanitary Code," and the police are grappling for Wormald's white elephant.

English Research May Help Future Students

By Don Phillips

What started out as merely department research has mushroomed into an expansive project which will probably be of great help to students in future SIU English classes.

During the winter and spring terms of last year members of Southern Illinois' English department visited 17 schools in the surrounding area, traveling as far as Tri-Co in the northwest and Metropolis in the southeast.

"Henry Wilson, director of SIU freshman composition; Fred K. Linple, who has had wide experience with high schools; and other members of Southern's English department examined the methods and problems involved in the various English classes," according to George C. Camp, SIU English instructor, also a participant in the project.

THE HIGH SCHOOL visits are only part of the English research. Douglas H. Shepherd, now a graduate assistant in the department, conducted "on campus studies" recently of Freshmen English students.

All the papers written by a selected group, throughout the year, were used to learn (1) The nature of errors that persist, (2) Kinds of errors that persist, and (3) To form an estimate of various kinds of assistants throughout the year.

Concerning the high school visits Camp continued, "Certain practices seemed fairly well established—most curriculums included four years of grammar, various types of American literature the third year, literature the first and second years, and frequently a year or two of English in literature the final year.

SIU Students To Tour Southwest This Summer

By Don Phillips

Would you like to see the Grand Canyon? How about visiting California, the Petrified Forest, and Yosemite? Well here's the opportunity!

Next summer Southern Illinois University will offer the Fifth Annual Field Course in Geography. This course—Geography 450—consists of one week on the campus and six and one-half weeks in the field.

THE CLASS WILL TRAVEL through the Southwest states, visiting New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada, Utah and Colorado. Among the points of interest scheduled for the trip are Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Phoenix, Hoover Dam, Los Angeles, San Francisco, the California redwoods, Lake Tahoe, Salt Lake, Estes Park, Denver and Colorado Springs.

Dr. Robert A. Harper, Assistant Professor of Geography and director of the course, pointed out that "Each person admitted to the course for credit must spend the first week, June 21 to June 26, on the campus studying to detail the various areas to be visited."

Students may earn 10 quarter hours credit in this course. The course satisfies the natural science requirement to the extent of five quarters hours.

addition to the major points of interest," continued Harper.

COST OF THE TRIP, June 28 through August 11, has been set at about $325. This amount will cover the registration fee, bus transportation, meals, and tuition.

A deposit of $50, which includes a registration fee of $5 is required for admittance to the class and may be made any time after Nov. 15. Students will be accepted in order of receipt of deposit.

The first 35 qualified students sending the $50 deposit will be admitted to the course. The balance of $275 is due not later than May 15 and may be paid in monthly installments before May 15, if desired.

"The course is open to juniors, seniors, and graduate students who have had a minimum requirement of the introductory course in geography or the equivalent thereof," according to Harper.

"After Feb. 1, 1954, in the event the class has not been closed, individuals who do not wish credit may enroll, whether of high school age or adults. Academic requirement will be waived for those not wishing credit, but no further exceptions will be made," Harper said.

A similar tour, under the direction of Dr. Floyd Cunningham, was made last summer to Alaska.

Duplicating Service Has Grown Rapidly Since 1945

By Jim Hicks

The Duplicating Service has come a long way since it was first started in 1945. At that time it consisted of one civil service employee, Mrs. Hazel Jarrett and two students. The equipment at that time was two mimeographing machines. Now there are three civil service employees and 12 students who work part time.

Their machinery is quite varied, containing some seven presses. They have a machine that does plastic binding and recently received a $5,000 ATF process camera, for making negatives. "For the first time in our history we have sufficient space and a much better selection of equipment with which to do a good printing job," Earl Parkhill, director, said.

Parkhill started with one Duplicating Service as a student in 1948 for 40 cents an hour. He was appointed faculty assistant in June, 1950. He stated that his immediate concern was to raise the standards and quality of their printing. In the future he stated that he had hopes of making the Duplicating Service into a University Press which would print everything for the University. At the present they do only a small percentage of the University printing.

"Since we do have the equipment to do more University printing, we will print more for them as more help becomes available," he said.

The Duplicating Service has just recently finished a folder concerning the Little Cross Lake area. This work on the departmental project will soon be completed.

They also have printed office forms, student literature and directories, and promotional literature such as the Little Cross folder, University Housing, Music Under the Stars, Development folders, and the Introduction to Southern literature. Recently they printed the booklet "Life in Southern Illinois" by Dr. Brownell.

Salukis To Face Bears At St. Louis Saturday

The Washington University Bears, successful in their first Homecoming game since 1949, were warmed by Coach Carl Snavely today that Southern Illinois will not succumb to their press clippings of the fine performance against Butler.

The Washington gridgers came through the grueling contest with Butler in reasonably good physical condition. The center spot is still precarious with Jack Dietrich and Bob Glass on the injured list, but the fine performance of George Rossmager against the Bulldogs was most encouraging. Both Glass and Dietrich may be available for limited service against the Saluki Saturday.

Cash Bill O'Brien's Southern Illinois gridgers sport only a 2-3 record for the season, but they have a potentially dangerous eleven which has the tools for an upset when the opposition is lax. Linebacker-Joe Huske the Salukis have a fine passer, and the Lane High of Chicago is the leading Interstate Athletic Conference in passing with 46 completions in 89 attempts for 492 yards and 4 touchdowns. He also leads the conference in total offense with 534 yards gained in 105 attempts.

End Wayne Williams is the favorite target of Huske, and the tall end has caught 20 of Huske's tosses for 221 yards and 2 touchdowns. Leo Wilson at the other end has caught six passes for 105 yards. Huske completed 14 of 31 passes against Missouri Mines last Friday night, and his receivers dropped four resulted in touchdowns.

The Salukis have been tough for the Bears the past two years, although they have been rated as underdogs in each tussle. Two years ago the Bears were on the long end of a 25-7 score, and last season the Bears routed them out by a 19-14 score with Ted Dunn carrying the bulk of the offensive burden. The Bears cannot afford to take the Salukis lightly in this years encounter.

Southern Illinois has the same line that held the Bears in check last season, and the improving but inconsistent Bear forward will make it up for the game to provide the fine Washington backfield with scoring opportunities.

The Bears will probably go with their regular line Saturday. Ted Dunn, needing only 42 yards to break the rushing record of Bob Clodfelder, should pick up enough yardage to set a new mark. Marge Siegel has already surpassed the team defense record and each gain by the former Clayton High star will constitute a new school mark. The Bears, with 192 points scored in the first seven games, will be one to break the team scoring record of 242 points.

Statistically, the Bears are one of the finest offensive teams to represent Washington University, and when the Siegel-Dunn-Burs - Dean combination is clicking, they could play with about any of the nation's teams.

It will be the final home game for the Bears, and one of the largest crowds of the season is anticipated. A Marine Reserve Detachment has reserved a block of 100 seats to provide vocal support for their former Leatherneck Buddy. Coach Bill O'Brien of Southern, and more than 200 tickets have been sold to Southern students and supporters.

Birdspotter's Got—er Wildfowl Spy Counts Ducks From Up In The Sky

A professional duck counter says it is right way to do the job is to switch places with the ducks. That is, count from the air while the birds are on the ground.

Frank Bellrose, an Illinois Natural History Survey zoologist who has been counting wild ducks for 15 years, has done it both from aloft and from the ground.

"To a man on the ground," he says, "a duck flying in the air looks like two or three."

"We try to census them while they're resting on the water. When you see thousands of ducks flying around, you would swear there were twice as many."

Since 1946, Bellrose has been counting sitting ducks from an airplane in the Mississippi and Illinois River Valleys. Before then, he did the job from a car or a motorboat.

Once a week he flies about 800 miles in eight hours, taking a census of mallards, pintails, canvasbacks and other duck varieties. A special federal permit allows him to ride at a low altitude of 150 feet.

Bellrose calls by "flock" and "area" methods. "In the first, a small segment of a flock is counted. If 50 ducks make a segment estimated at a tenth of the total flock, the flock is credited with 500 birds.

Bellrose estimates the square yards covered by the birds. "Experience," he says, shows that a duck's yard is about normal for water surfaces.

So, in mild weather, a 500-square yard flock would contain about 500 birds. Aerial photos help check the count per yard. In cold weather, the ducks huddle as many as three to five per square yard of ice.

Huskies-Western Tangle Saturday In League Match

Northern Illinois and Western Illinois will tangle in an IAC grid contest at Northern Saturday in a game designated as 'Dick's Day on the DeKalb campus.

The Leathernecks, with a highly successful 5-2 record, will be seeking to remain in the league title chase, while the Huskies will be looking for their first win in the most disastrous campaign in Coach Gregory "Chick" Evans 25 years at Northern.

In last week's 46-0 blasting at the hands of Central Michigan, the Huskies set an unenviable record in dropping their seventh-straight game of the season — more games than have ever been lost by a Blumheim eleven in the school's history. Northern teams had dropped six games in a single season in 1909, 1928, 1950, and 1952. If the Huskies drop their two remaining games, it will mark the first time in the school's history that the team has not won or tied a game.

Canada Style Football Steals American Stars

The moguls of Canadian professional football, armed with fast bankrolls and promises of good off-season jobs, have pirated away several dozen top flight U. S. players this season.

There are now about 100 Americans, imported from colleges and pro teams, playing in the two four-team leagues. The cream of the crop is Billy Vessels, the triple threat terror from Oklahoma, who signed a contract with Edmonton for $11,000.

Other Yankees of note are Glenn Dobbs, formerly of Tulsa U. and the Los Angeles Rams; Tex Coulter, Army and the New York Giants; Claude Arnel, Oklahoma; and Frankie Albert, San Francisco 49ers.

An American watching Canadian football for the first time would probably be somewhat baffled. There are 12 men on a team, five in the backfield, but only three downs are allowed to make 10 yards. Down 5-2 second, and they are expected to finish hitch in the race for a trophy in the conference meet tomorrow. (If they don't finish high, it is their'll get that way after the race.)

A touchdown is worth five points, and one point (called a rouge") is counted against the team which receives a kick behind its own goal line and fails to run the ball out.

You may remember the character that graduated from high school with me who's on the squad down here.

I hope that you recovered from your operation all right, and I hope that Dr. Jones found his scalpel. It would be awful if you cut a chunk out of yourself every time you hiccupped.

Remembering your fondness for long distance running, I provided around the gym the other night gathering dope on the cross country team which you might be interested in. The harriers (if you'll pardon the time-worn expression) have a fine allowed to make 10 yards. Down 5-2 second, and they are expected to finish hitch in the race for a trophy in the conference meet tomorrow. (If they don't finish high, it is their'll get that way after the race.)

You may remember the character that graduated from high school with me who's on the squad down here.

Another cross country speedster is Jacques Theriot. The flying Frenchman has lettered in both basketball and cross country. He is last year's cross country captain, and this year's basketball captain. This all-rounder also lettered in baseball.

Holder Slated To Talk At Basketball Clinic

Lynn Holder, Southern Illinois University basketball coach, has been invited to speak at the Illinois State High school basketball clinic at Champaign, December 21, the SIU athletic department announced today.

Holder will team up with Henry Ibs, Oklahoma A and M basketball coach, on the clinic board. The SIU coach will give a talk on offensive play.

After the clinic the coaches will attend the Oklahoma A and M-Illinois basketball game.

Darting Dick Gregory, Captain of the Saluki Cross Country squad, Dick has really been burning up the turf this year. He hasn't ran less than second this year and last week came in first in the Eastern Meet.

Primas At Large

Dear Grandma:

I hope that you recovered from your operation all right, and I hope that Dr. Jones found his scalpel. It would be awful if you cut a chunk out of yourself every time you hiccupped.

Remembering your fondness for long distance running, I provided around the gym the other night gathering dope on the cross country team which you might be interested in. The harriers (if you'll pardon the time-worn expression) have a fine allowed to make 10 yards. Down 5-2 second, and they are expected to finish hitch in the race for a trophy in the conference meet tomorrow. (If they don't finish high, it is their'll get that way after the race.)

You may remember the character that graduated from high school with me who's on the squad down here.

His name is Jim Greene (yes, that's his name, not a condition). He's the guy that wears the red corduroy pants.

I suppose a cross country runner leads a pretty lonely life, running over hills and dells with no crowds to cheer him on. Of course, sometimes this is a blessing; nobody is around to boo them.

Jacque Theriot will be running in his last meet tomorrow, and he'll be trying his darndest to bring home the bacon for the Salukis. They finished sixth last year, but they were running under a handicap—there wasn't enough money to buy shoes for them. But I heard Dick Gregory say that the boys sold enough apples and pencils this year to buy shoes. Well, that's all the dope I could gather. And speaking of dope, I'll be seeing you, Grandma.

Your grandson,
Don

Holdermen Will Drill On Plays For First Fracas

Coach Lynn Holder isn't "sprawling the rod and spilling" his 1953-54 basketball child with the first game only three weeks away.

Holder is working his Salukis on offensive drills with the emphasis on floor balance and play continuity. He has been alternating Charles Mansar, Alton, freshman, and Gordon Lambert, freshman from Madison, at the pivot post.

Under the banner at the forward positions Harvey Welch, Carbonade senior, and Jack Morgan, Carbonade sophomore, have been passing the ball to guards Gib Kurtz, junior from East St. Louis, and Dave Davis, returning service man from Pinckneyville who lettered two years ago.

With this returning nucleus Holder hopes to build a winning team, hopes of which have been dealt body blows in the past few months with the loss of Ray Ritzpelmeyer to pro baseball and Bob Nickolaus to the service.

Alternating with the veteran crew are Dick Blythe, Gary, Ind.; Bill Kallin, Bluffton; Lindford Thomas, Carbonade; Dean Giersten and Gus Chapman, Centralia; Wyanwan Holder, Carbonade; and Bill Woods, Lawrenceville.

Some promising freshmen who figure into Holder's future plans are Jim Good, Robbins; Ron Nelson, Farmersville; Keif Kirkland, Centralia; and Jack Tanner, Madison.

Capt. Jacque Theriot, Flora, will report for practice when the cross country season is over this Saturday and Dan Smith, Carbonade, and Gene Tabachki, Auburn, both veterans will bolster the squad. Doug Kay, freshman from Libertyville, will also begin sessions after the grid season.

The Salukis will open their season Dec. 4 at Decatur against the Big Blue of Millikin. Southern won one and lost one to Millikin last season.

Holder and pencils this year to buy shoes. Well, that's all the dope I could gather. And speaking of dope, I'll be seeing you, Grandma.

Your grandson,
Don

Sport Spiel

The Salukis footballers tangle with Washington U. of St. Louis this weekend, as most of you know. This should be a good match. The Salukis are somewhat outclassed I fear, however. But, outclassed or not this should be rugged exhibition. What other teams are to do with lots of material, the Maroons will wait with guts.

You may not know that Washington is regarded as one of the best small college teams in the country. I haven't kept up with their statistics, but a couple of games ago they were leading in rushing and passing for the nation. In small colleges that is, of course.

They've got some pretty hot backs and a better than average line. They've won both of the games played since I last saw their statistics, so I imagine that they're still pretty high up in the national standings.

If the Salukis can post an unimpaired, last-to-see squad, they will give the Bears a good battle. The only team both squads have played is Rolla. You know the outcome of the Rolla game. Well, the Bears put the skids to Rolla. It was no one-sided match. Rolla gave the Bears a real tough time for three quarters. Although Rolla beat us three TD's worth, the Salukis have more than they showed that night. If they had standbys reserves, they could probably upset the Washington Bears. As it stands now, they should give them a hard way to go.

Don Kling's cross country team is showing good stuff this year. Particularly Dick Gregory. I think Dick deserves a big hand. He's had a hard time getting through school, and it's been tough going; out for cross country and track as well as working and going to school. Besides all this, he's had up time somewhere to pound his drums and entertain at the Theta Xi variety show and stuff.

Baseball's just around the corner. We haven't been able to get much of an idea on it yet. All the team positions are wide open and the boys are still scrapping for starting spots. This season looms as a question mark. Right now it looks like Lynn Holder is going to have to pull some six foot or better rabbits out of his hat. He's done it before, I'm told. I hope he can do it again.

Say! If any of you are hunters, fishermen, or outdoor enthusiasts of any kind, and would like to write something about it, get in touch with me. I'd like to run something like that from time to time and can't find anybody who likes to rough it and write about it.

I was asked the other day about this Primas character who writes the feature stories on my page. Contrary to popular opinion, he doesn't hang by his tail in the sports office. Neither does he bear his chest or beg for peanuts. He's an ordinary mortal—if you understand him. He just has a peculiar facility for turning out good feature stories. He also writes straight sports stories. Don has nothing but one peculiarity. He eats nothing but old newspapers. He also drinks only printers ink, washed down with grain-alcohol. But most journalists majors aren't entirely sane. That stands to reason, if not, they wouldn't be journ Majors, particularly sports writers.

Beer And Rugby Don't Mix Well

(ACF) Constables were assigned to the University of Toronto's annual rugby train to make sure no one brought beer aboard. They were instructed to stop all students carrying suspicious parcels.

Last year the train suffered $500, damage at the hands of the rugby fans. The cost was paid through a general levy of students.

RECINE FOOTBALL TEAM LOSES PRO FRANCHISE

The Central Super Professional Football League said today it has "terminated" the franchise of the Racine, Wis., team.

Jack Emerick league secretary, said the grounds for the action was the refusal of Racine to complete its schedule. He said the Racine club had declined to go to St. Louis for a game Nov. 21.

The action leaves five teams in the league. They are based at St. Louis, Wausau and Delavan, Wis.; Waterloo, Ia.; and Waukegan, Ill.
