Southern Illinois Symphony To Honor Sibelius In Concert Nov. 22

The Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra will honor Jean Sibelius, Finnish composer, with its season-opening concert here Nov. 22.

2,315 Register For Winter Term

"More than one-third of students on campus have registered for winter term," reported Alden Hall, registration division head.

Up to last Monday, 2,315 students had registered for winter classes. This number is above the estimate of Hall said.

Dedication and open-house for the Wood-Products Pilot Plant at Southern Acres at 10 a. m. Saturday will include speeches, lunch and guided tours.

The plant, a relatively new kind in the wood-processing industry, is the only one of its kind in the United States.

The days program will open with songs by the SIU AFROTC Singing Squadron.

Pres. Delyte W. Morris will give the welcome address.

A talk on the use of the Pilot Plant by R. D. Lane, of the Carbondale Forest Research Center, will follow.

The main address will be given by C. Arthur Bruce, chairman of the board, E. L. Bruce Co.

Following the main address, a pork barbecue will be served on the grounds. A conducted tour of the Pilot Plant and equipment demonstrations will conclude the day's program.

Bruce, who will give the dedication address, is a native of Lawrence, Kansas. He has been with the flooring firm since 1914 when he started as a sales manager. He moved up to executive vice president and became chairman of the board in 1954. He is a past president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association and many other lumber organizations.

Several guests at the dedication will include: Dr. V. L. Harper, assistant chief of the United States Forest Service, in charge of all research activities. Director W. G. McGinnies of Central States Forest Experiment Station, with headquarters at Columbus, Ohio, and Congressman Kenneth Gray of Illinois.

The new plant is a part of a cooperative forestry program between SIU and the Carbondale Forest Research Center, Central States Forest Experiment Station, and Congressman Kenneth Gray of Illinois.

The lumber is stacked according to variety. Oak, hickory, gum, cypress, poplar, cottonwood and soft maple trees are used. The varieties are then stored and stacked according to grade.

Some lumber will go from air-drying directly to production. Some will go to the dry-kill. This is a mechanical means for removing moisture from the wood at a faster rate than air drying can do. This is done according to application, heat and the circulation of air to the boards.

After seasoning, the lumber goes into production. Boards are cross-ripped and surfaced. The boards are then stacked and ready to be glued together, and possibly a finish put on.

The plant works on new production possibilities. A picnic table, for example, will be made in several ways for the annual supply of lumber, until a desired result is obtained. Only enough tables would be made to complete the experiment.

The product would then be placed on the market, so if it would sell or not.

Any ideas or developments that result from research at the project become public property. This includes research work done for industry.

Industry research is done if they pay for the expense. The research must be of value to the hardwood industry.

The projects of the plant are jointly financed by the federal government through the Forest Service, and SIU.

Sculpture and pottery by Raymond and Jerry Grimm, man and wife graduates assistants in the Art Department will be presented in a joint exhibition of ceramics held at the Art Center, St. Louis, beginning Nov. 20.

The native St. Louisans graduated from Washington University, St. Louis, Raymond in 1953 and his wife a year later. They were married in 1953, and spent their honeymoon extending vacation in Carbondale at SIU under F. Carlton Ball. They began graduate work at SIU this year.

The show will continue for one month.

'Drownproofed' SIU Students Learn Realistic Method Of Water Survival

At least that's the way Dr. E. Edward J. Shea, chairman of the men's physical education department, likes to characterize the swimming courses being taught here.

In contrast with standard courses of swimming which tend to place emphasis on fundamental strokes over short distances, the SIU program places emphasis on what Shea calls "watermanship."

Shea defines watermanship as "a combination of endurance, breath control, agility, emotional fitness, body control and directed swimming."

"A swimmer can support himself indefinitely in this method," Shea stated. In fact, I have seen kids as young as nine years old float for over an hour in this way.

"I feel that skills taught under this system are so challenging to safety exists, will be forgotten when the swimmer is faced with real danger."

Dr. Pool To Lecture Tuesday Night

The address is open to students and faculty members alike, according to Dr. John W. Voigt, assistant professor of botany.

Too Dark To Park

There is a rather obvious need for lights on the various university parking lots. The greater number of students attending night classes combined with the colder weather that is due for the next few months will mean an increased number of cars on campus at late hours. More automobiles on campus will force a number of night-class drivers to park in the more distant lots.

Stronger Bond Between Frats Goal Of IFC

A stronger bond between fraternities is one of the Interfraternity Council's main goals this year, according to Kent T. Hawley, assistant dean of men and faculty adviser for the Council. In an attempt to do this as well as to help the various fraternities share the governing responsibilities of the council, five new officer workshop committees have been established. The committees meet at the discretion of their leaders, IFC members and have representatives from every fraternity.

Bob Crawford, Theta Xi, is in charge of the rush committee, which is making new rules for next year's rush.

John Steele, Phi Kappa Tau, is chairman of the Beta Beta Beta committee. R. T. Sullivan, Sigma Psi, heads the chairman's group, and Clyde Reynolds, Phi Kappa Tau, is in charge of the pledge trainers of the different fraternities.

An innovation this year besides the workshops is the Junior Interfraternity Council. The group is not formally organized, but is working on its constitution. Frank Matzenko, Theta Xi, is helping the Junior IFC.

The entire IFC is going to St. Louis, Dec. 2 and 3, to observe the National Interfraternity Council.

"They should meet a lot of people with a lot of good ideas," said Hawley. Four new fraternities are in the process of organizing here, Hawley announced. They are: Alpha Phi Alpha, Epsilon Tau, Sigma and one unnamed.

Alpha is of Masonic origin, but membership is not restricted to Masons. Alpha Phi Alpha is predominantly Negro fraternity. Epsilon Tau Sigma is a local fraternity at VII.

Father Follows Wife, Daughter To Obtain Degree At Southern

By Peggy Morgan
"I decided that as long as my wife and my daughter had degrees, I might as well try for mine," said Hughes Foster of Granite City.

Foster, a tall, distinguished-looking man with slightly graying hair, considers himself "just a new student." He attended college in 1921-22, but quit before his junior year and entered industry. His daughter, Phyllis, received her degree in music at SIU last spring, and Mrs. Foster completed work for her degree during the summer session.

"Though we had been talking for quite a while about my coming back to finish my education, I really didn't decide definitely until right before the fall term opened," Foster said. "A week before new student activities began I didn't even have a place to stay. Ralph Bravotto and I came down to see what we could arrange. We were sent from one person to another, and finally saw Professor Hall who offered us jobs as house-fathers at Dwyer Dorm."

"Neither of us had known there were openings for housefathers at the dorm. You might say it was a case of just happening along and being put to work. Being a housefather is really an experience, especially since I'm a student, too. The boys call me 'Pops' but they wouldn't dare heckle their own fathers like they do me!" Foster drawled.

Foster is carrying 17 hours this term, but will carry 15 hours in the winter. He plans to get his degree in elementary education with enough religion courses so that he can possibly become a religious education director in the Southern Baptist church.

"I'm only in one class with one of the fellows from the dorm," Foster said. "Larry Wolfe, a sophomore, and I are in the same speech class. We sometimes use each other as guinea pigs for our speeches. The boys and I discuss the other subjects, too. It helps a lot to at least talk about math, religious education, and speech. But they just don't seem able to help me with my psychology course."

"All in all, though, it hasn't been too hard to get back in the habit of studying. When I thought about returning, last winter, I took some extension work, trying to get back in the swing of things."

"Getting used to campus life hasn't been too hard. I'm 44 and I have been out of school for 22 years. So far the main difficulty is that I've forgotten so much of the vocabulary used in class."

"I really believe that if a person has either the inclination or the opportunity, or both, to return to school, there is nothing in the world to stop him. I would recommend finishing school to anybody."

"Still it does seem a little strange for Phyllis and my wife to come to SIU to visit me when it's been the other way around for so long. At times, it seems almost odd to be a student, but I'm glad I came back."

Dr. Dey SIU's 'Goodwill Ambassador'

Dey has had a life of travel during the past two weeks. He went to Cairo, Oct. 17, with Georgia Winn, associate professor of English, and Dilla Hall, assistant professor of mathematics, to arrange a service training project for mathematics in a d English teachers.

The next day, Dey met with a group of officers from the U. S. Army Depot at Granite City for their needs for educational facilities.

"The following day, he met with a committee of citizens from Edwardsville on their need for increased higher education facilities."

On Oct. 21 he attended a meeting of the state conservation committee in Springfield. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the conservation program at the state fair grounds in which all the state colleges and universities take part.

On Oct. 23, he met with a group in Champaign to discuss, in connection with civilian defense, the location of radiological defense centers in which high school science teachers are interested.

"I'm not the only one in this department who travels," said Dey. "I estimate that the faculty members of the department cover 100,000 miles a year in the course of carrying on our program."

Ag Shows New By-Products

Frank Teuton, Washington D. C. representative of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture public information service, presented a demonstration of new industrial products through agriculture Wednesday in the SIU Playhouse, according to W. E. Keeper, dean of the SIU School of Agriculture.

'No Tomorrow if Teaching Fails' Dr. Hand Says At Education Meet

"If teaching fails there will be no tomorrow," said Dr. George Hand, SIU vice-president of business affairs.

Hand was speaking to a mass meeting of students and faculty members of the College of Education who were observing the week of American Education Week Monday morning in Shreck Auditorium.

"Here is my reasoning," said Hand. "Every individual influences the thinking and action of one or more individuals. This is teaching."

"An individual coming from a religious and well educated family is the most useful citizen."

Churches Reflected

"One might think that the church would be the least effective institution because it has the individual in its sphere only a few hours a week. If the parents and teachers take these few hours seriously, the results will be reflected in home and school. The work of the church and school is made more effective by the family and its state colleges and universities take part."

Hand stated that the church and school offer the only full-time professions in the training of individuals.

SIU Plans Survey Of Area's Health Needs

Health educators at SIU are planning a survey of Southern counties to determine health needs, Dr. Donald N. Boydston, chairman of the Health Education Department, said recently.

University personnel will work with county boards of the Illinois Health Improvement Association in setting up health betterment projects.

"Several counties in the area with health improvement funds available have no program functioning," Dr. Boydston said. "We have trained, experienced personnel who can offer those county health boards survey, counseling and guidance service."

Administrative heads of the Illinois Health Improvement Association already have met with SIU officials to outline health improvement objectives and ways of teaching these goals.

SIU To Host Driver Education Meet

The meeting, at University School Study Theater, will begin with registration form 9 at 9:15 a. m. Following a welcome address by Dr. J. E. Grinnell, dean of the College of Education, George Mathis, state supervisor of safety education, will speak on "Upgrading Safety Education."

Lunch at 11:40 a. m. at the University Cafeteria will be provided by the Egyptian Motor Club of Harrisburg.

During the afternoon session, Lindell Rockwell, Raleigh, Illinois State Police safety instructor, will speak on "Law-Grant and the Teenage Driver." The Illinois Driver Education Association and SIU are sponsoring the meeting.

SIU Buys Army Patrol Boat

The boat, which is now in a shop shed on the Southern Acres campus, was shipped on a rail-road flatcar from New Orleans.

"The boat has to be caulked, the motor checked, and various minor repairs must be made," said Wolfe. "But we hope to have it on Little Grassy Lake next spring."

"Several classes, including Small Boat Handling, Boat Safety and Boat Maintenance, will use the boat," said Wolfe.

"Also, the boat will be on hand at all times for safety training and rescue work on Little Grassy and Crab Orchard Lake," said Wolfe.

The boat, which was built by the U. S. Government at a cost of $19,000, was bought by the Surplus Property Service for $500. This figure represents one per cent of the actual value of the boat, plus freight and shipping charges.

"We also hope to get a 32 foot motor to put in the Ohio River and Kentucky Lake," said Wolfe. "It would be used for geography and geology field trips to study various earth, geological, formations, and historical sites," explained the director.

6 From SIU Attend Systematics Meet

Six members of the botany and zoology departments attended the second Symposium on Systematics in St. Louis Friday and Saturday.

Zoology Department Dr. Harvey L. Fisher, professor; Dr. Howard James Sims, associate professor; and Edna Dudgeon, assistant professor.

Fisher stated that, "Some 130 people from all over the U. S. attended the meetings at the Missouri Botanical Garden."

Dean's Corner

Hitherto through the term the faculty is asked to report all students with grades of "D" or "E". These reports are then tabulated and a report is mailed to the student.

After that the Academic Deans or their advisers call in many of these students in an attempt to help them.

These mid-term reports do not become a part of the student's official record. They are intended to put the student on notice in the hope that this will enable him or her to improve his work.

Probably the most frequent cause for poor standing both at the mid-term and at the end of the term is insufficient time given to school work.

Personnel Office Has 3 Functions

"The Personnel Office has three primary functions, said Dr. Max M. Sappenfield, director.

"First, it recruits applicants for the various vacancies that occur on the staff from time to time," Sappenfield said. "We do this under provisions of the university civil service system, which applies to schools of higher learning in Illinois. We do everything from receiving applications to administering the tests."

"It also represents the university retirement system.

"One of the biggest jobs is the making up and the processing of the payrolls. I guess we make out the payroll for almost every type of work on campus. The records for civil service and faculty personnel are kept here, too."

Wesley Foundation Visits Cape Sunday

The SIU Wesley Foundation spent Sunday evening as guests of the Wesley Foundation of Southeastern State Teachers College at Cape Girardeau.

There were 62 students present at the meeting in the Education Building of the Centenary Methodist Church.

The opening service, led by Larry Hockett, was followed with a discussion led by the Cape Girardeau president, Bob Jettred. The discussion topic was the improvement of Wesley Foundations with such problems as organization, membership, finance projects and programs being discussed.

Planned recreation and refreshments followed the discussion.

Dr. Bryant Speaks To Commerce Club

Dr. Bove R. Bryant, director of SIU's Placement Service spoke to the Commerce Club at the meeting held Friday night in the University School Studio Theatre.

Elmo R. Earls, club president, introduced Dr. Bryant who told of the job opportunities for business majors.

Dr. Bryant said that there are more SIU seniors majoring in business than in any other field. According to the director's figures, elementary education majors were highest in number in the senior class last year. But there are 89 business majors this year compared to 84 in elementary education.

A field trip was discussed at the meeting and a committee was appointed to list possible cities to visit on the trip.

The club's next meeting was tentatively set for Dec. 6.

"Seasons Here Interesting" Coeds From Hawaii Give Impressions On USA

By Marian Hughes

Both girls came to SIU this term and are juniors in elementary education.

Unaccustomed to the unpredictable temperatures of Southern Illinois, the girls are looking forward to the first snow. Florence has never seen snow and Molly has only glimpsed it from a distance—a mountain top in Hawaii.

The girls met at the summer session of the University of Hawaii. They began talking about what it would be like to attend an American University, and then earnestly began discussing the possibilities of such a venture. Soon afterwards, they wrote sixteen different colleges and universities in the United States. They chose Southern, and are now living in Barrett's Dormitory.

"It's interesting, you meet so many different girls, and you learn to get along with them better," said Molly.

Drs. Gallington, Smith Attend Educators Meet

Dr. Robert E. Smith, professor of industrial education and Dr. Robert O. Gallington, chairman of the Industrial Education Department are representing SIU at the Mississippi Valley Conference of Industrial Arts Teacher Educators this week in Chicago.

The conference, to be at the La Salle Hotel, will be attended by about 60 instructors and chairmen of various industrial education departments in the Mississippi Valley, according to Dr. Gallington, a new faculty member who came here from Pennsylvania State University.

Ann Harding, Victor Moore and Charles Ruggles. It is a whimsical comedy that involves a philosophical hobo, a millionaire industrialist, and an excited veteran. The hobo lives in the vacationing millionaire's home and invites the ex G. I. to share it. When the millionaire and his wife unexpectedly return the fun really begins.

Florence and Molly said that actually there are not too many things that are really different here in America. The "hit parades" are very similar, as is the slang and dress. The girls say Hawaii's government is very much like that of the United States.

Tiny Molly looked very proud as she said, "We are trying to become a state, you know. We think we are ready for it."

Area Ad Men Enroll In SIU Night Classes

Ten advertising men from Southern Illinois and Northeast Missouri newspapers are enrolled in a special night class at SIU seeking to learn more about their jobs. The class is a cooperative program of the SIU Journalism Department and the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education.

Dr. Donald C. Hileman, SIU advertising specialist, and Dr. Wayne Rowland, former Missouri newspaper publisher and community newspaper specialist on the SIU faculty, are teaching the course in "Newspaper Advertising." The class meets each Monday evening for 12 weeks.

New Home Ec Group To Meet

A new group of homemakers will meet at 7 p. m. Tuesday, Nov. 22, in Main III with Kappa Omicron. Phi home economics sorority fraternity.

Dr. Vera L. Peacock, chairman of foreign languages, will talk on "Home and Family Life in Other Lands."

After Dr. Peacock's talk, the homemakers will meet by themselves to consider forming their own organization, according to Mrs. Mary Louise Barnes, assistant professor of home economics. If they do organize, the group will join the Division of Home Economics and Homemakers in the American Home Economics Association.

The group's purpose is to keep homemakers up to date on new home economics methods, to provide a way of participating in University home economics functions and professional meetings, and to meet other home economists in the area.

Three invitations have been sent to home economics graduates engaged in full time or part time teaching and homemaking. Women in Carbondale, Murphysboro and Anna as well as in Carbondale have been invited.

Any homemaker who hasn't received an invitation to this meeting is still invited," Mrs. Barnes said. "Our mailing list was made first from the department records, and the list of faculty wives and newcomers. We know it isn't complete. But if some homemaker wants to join and can't attend the Nov. 15 meeting, she can write her name and address to the Home Economics Department. # Salukis Face Cardinals In IAC Conference Game Tomorrow

SIU's gridgers will be out to strengthen their hold on third place in the IAC grid race Saturday when they tangle with the Illinois State Normal Cardinals in Bloomington.

This will be the 25th meeting of the teams since 1929. Southern has won seven, lost 15 and tied two. Last year the Cardinals won 7-2.

The Cardinals sport one of the best backs in the IAC in half-back Bob Riegenback, all-conference at the position last year. Darrell Spang, a member of the 1950 Redbird IAC championship squad returned to school this year after four years in the Navy and has aided the Redbird attack.

The Salukis, currently sporting a 2-1-1 conference record, are aiming for their best finish in the IAC since the reorganization in 1950. Normal is the biggest hurdle in the path of the Salukis.

Saluki Bees Fall To Cape 21-6, End Season

SIU's "B" squad closed its 1955 season Monday 5, Cape Girardeau, losing to the Indians by a 21-6 margin.

Cape drew first blood in the first quarter when the Indians covered a Saluki fumble, one of five, on the SIU 45. A 10-yard pass from Carroll Sanders to Bob Lohr in the end zone eliminated the drive. Lohr kicked the extra point, and the Indians led 7-0.

Late in the same period, the hosts scored again after recovering another Saluki fumble on the visitor's 30. Homer Hodges scored the touchdown, and Lohr converted to make it 14-0.

Early in the second period, the Salukis recovered a Cape fumble and drove 45 yards for the tally. John Orlando scored from the one. Bob Monnett's kick was blocked, and Cape held a 14-6 halftime advantage.

The Indians scored their final touchdown in the fourth period after recovering another SIU fumble. Hodges scored from the four and Lohr kicked his third extra point of the day.

John Orlando, SIU halfback, gained 56 yards in 10 carries to lead the Southerners.

Intramurals

By Bill Rupp

With the deadline for all entries in the Intramural basketball tournament set for yesterday, the 1955-56 edition of the Southern Illinois intramural basketball program will take off on regular league play Monday.

Winners of last year's all-school championship in the roundball sport was University Drug's "A" team. U.D.'s will enter two teams in the league this year.

The Men's Gym will be used each evening for the basketball games with the intramural teams playing some games in the Armory after December 1. A large number of teams have turned in entry blanks in the leagues and every indication has been given that the program will be even larger than it was last year. Several organizations have had to enter two teams in the competition because of the large number of members of their organization wishing to play with the team.

A meeting of all team managers will be held Monday at 4 p. m. in room 201W of the men's gym. Play will start Tuesday, November 15. The manager's meeting is extremely important.

The hoarseback riding program sponsored by the campus recreation association will be resumed tomorrow after last Saturday's postponement due to homecoming activities.

The program will take up at 9 a. m. and will last until noon and will consist of riding for both beginner and professional.

All students are invited to participate in the riding activities which

Wayne Williams, Salukis end and team captain, practices the skill which has kept him among the top punters in the nation this year. He is also the leading pass receiver on the team.

Young Spectator Makes Longest Run Of Game

A young teenage spectator made the longest run in the SIU homecoming game Saturday, however, the time will never be recorded.

University officials are still searching for the boy that made it.

The unique play came late in the fourth quarter of the game after Bill Spratt, Saluki fullback, sent an extra point kick sailing over its goal post. Catching the ball was an unidentified spectator who tucked the ball under his arm and charged out of the stadium.

Area Good For Outdoor Rec: Brightbill

"Southern Illinois is a good place to start" in more fully utilizing areas in the state suitable for outdoor recreation, Charles Brightbill, director of recreation curriculum at the University of Illinois, said Monday night in an address opening an annual conference of the Illinois Recreation Association at Giant City State Park.

Brightbill also called for the establishment of a state agency concerned with the development of community recreation. But unless the agency "is of the highest type professionally," it would be better to have none at all, he cautioned.

The speaker listed two other ways of improving the recreation program in Illinois: widening the scope of membership in the Illinois Recreation Association and clarifying state school legislation concerning the community use of school recreation facilities.

Brightbill charged recreation leaders with the responsibility of conducting scientific research "because without statistics to show the benefits of recreation the program will bog down."

Another speaker, Dr. Rowell D. Merrick, assistant dean of the College of Education, Southern Illinois University, challenged members of the association to do a better job promoting recreation needs in their communities.

For the first time, the association presented service awards. Recipients were Miss Frances Deere, former supervisor of women's activities, and Miss Florence Kiefer, former nature crafts supervisor, Chicago Park District.

Directors of the conference, which will close Thursday, Nov. 10, are Dr. William Freeberg, chairman of Southern Illinois University's recreation and outdoor education department, and John T. Mookie, director of the Carbondata Park and Recreation District.
