IAC offers alternatives to athletics fee

Editor's note: This is the third of a four-part series examining the men's and women's athletics budget and the proposed $10 fee increase.

By Cindy Michaelson
News Editor

In July, the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee gave Vice President for University Relations George Mace 13 recommendations for ways to boost funding of athletics.

None of them was for an increase in the athletics fee paid by students.

In fact, recommendations by IAC subcommittees say the University needs to get away from "the burdensome intercollegiate athletics fee."

However, the IAC's reluctance to continue the athletics program's dependence on student fees is not expressed in the resolution for a $10 increase in the student athletics fee being presented to the Board of Trustees Thursday.

Nor does the resolution make any mention of the IAC's recommended alternatives for financing the athletics program.

The IAC's involvement in drafting the fee proposal is summarized in the sentence, "Their recommendation was to seek additional funding from all available sources."

At Monday's IAC meeting, a motion to oppose the proposed fee increase was narrowly defeated. The two IAC members who called for the vote said they didn't understand why the fee increase was needed, but the members who voted against the motion said they needed more time to review the matter in a special session, which has been scheduled for Monday.

Composed of 13 members—seven faculty, three students, and three others to include alumni and community representatives—the IAC is charged with reviewing and making recommendations regarding athletics budgets, ticket prices and other such fiscal matters. Both athletics directors participate in meetings, but do not vote.

To be considered for a seat on the IAC, a person should "reflect a demonstrated interest in intercollegiate athletics and support the concepts inherent therein," as stated in the IAC working paper.

The IAC arrived at a number of recommendations for the financially-troubled athletics program after months of subcommittee work.

The minutes of IAC meetings over the last two years reflect the course of action taken by the IAC in its attempt to study the future of intercollegiate athletics at SIU-C.

—On June 19, 1978, the IAC approved an athletics budget for fiscal year 1979 with the understanding that funding of athletics at SIU-C was inadequate to maintain the present level of programs.

—To attain an adequate level of funding, the IAC offered to be the major focal point for studying internal reallocation of funds, the student fee structure, development of external funding and present expenditure policies.

—In February of 1979, two subcommittees were appointed to find "Recommended Ways to Increase Funding for Intercollegiate Athletics" and "Recommended Ways to Increase Efficiency and Use of Available Dollars."

—On July 12, 1979, the IAC submitted its final subcommittee reports to Mace, who is the administrator in charge of the athletics program.

When then-IAC Chairman W. D. Klimstra appointed the subcommittees, he instructed them to be "concerned about the long-range, primarily, but the short-range does exist if indeed there is a grace period to

USO leader to oppose fee hike in address to Board of Trustees

By Jacqui Koszciuk and D'anna Penner

In an attempt to emphasize strong student opposition to the proposed $10 athletics fee increase, the Student Senate has selected a representative to address the Board of Trustees at its meeting Thursday in Edwardsville.

Chris Blankenship, vice president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, will speak to the board as the senate's representative. This is the first time this semester that the senate found it necessary to speak directly to the board on an issue.

At a special meeting Monday, the Student Senate unanimously passed a resolution reaffirming its opposition to the increase. The resolution was tabled at last week's senate meeting. In October, the senate approved a similar resolution.

The decision to address the board was made at Monday's meeting. East Side Senator Christ Cordogan said that no senate support for an athletics fee increase will be forthcoming until the administration provides a clear explanation of how revenue from the fee increase will be spent.

George Mace, vice president for University relations, spoke to the senate last month and said the increase was necessary to bring the University into compliance with Title IX and to account for inflation.

"No one has explained why we need a $10 increase, as opposed to a $5 or a $7 increase, for instance," Cordogan said. "We have not received a specific account of how the money will be used, as we have in the past from other administrators proposing fee increases."

The senate's Student Affairs and Community Services Committee was charged last month with investigating the proposed increase. A report drafted by the committee questions the administration's rationale for the increase.

The report states that Mace informed the senate of a budget deficit in the men's and women's athletics program that could be resolved by the increase. Since Mace also said the deficit has accrued since 1978, the committee states that the administration has not explained why no action was taken to alleviate the deficit prior to the current proposal of a fee increase.

Blankenship said that feedback from the student body is also a major factor in the senate opposing the increase.

"A survey taken by the SACS committee involving about 1,200 students indicated that undergraduates oppose the increase," Blankenship said. She added that it is the responsibility of student government to inform the administration of the views of the student body.

A report issued by the Women's Intercollegiate Athletics Discrimination Investigative Commission lists a fee increase as "the most efficient way to substantially increase revenue." The commission, appointed by USO President Pete Alexander, also lists six other budget alternatives to achieving equitable distribution of athletics fees to men's and women's programs.

Alexander urged the senate last week to table the resolution passed Monday until the report of the commission could be reviewed.

"We have now gotten all of the information and can take a stand," Alexander said. "I am now actively opposing the increase."

Alexander said he would sign the resolution passed Monday before the board meeting.

He said the report cites changes in program alternatives that would "have a positive effect on the amount of funding available." The change ranked first in the report is a recommendation by the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee to "develop a state-wide network of business and professional people headed by a

Higher education board votes to table tuition policy

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education voted Tuesday to table a vote on a seven-point tuition policy until next month.

William Norwood, IBHE member, said the action was tabled in order to "give the universities and the governing boards a chance to look at the recommendations." If passed at the December meeting, the policy will govern tuition rates at all Illinois public universities.

SIU Chancellor Kenneth Shaw was present at the meeting in Chicago and urged the board to reconsider the policy in light of all the factors which determine how and where students can get into college.

"Tuition level is only one matter that relates to access and choice. The others are financial aids to students, grants to nonpublic institutions and program availability. Treating them separately will not produce a comprehensive philosophy and set of goals for access and choice in the 1980s," Shaw said.

Norwood, who is also a member of the SIU Board of Trustees, said that generally, most board members were favorable to the recommendations and hoped the policy would mean a move away from the mandatory one-third rule. One of the policy recommendations is that resident tuition rates for undergraduates should be no more than one-third of the university system's instructional costs.

The policy of the board since 1976 has been that tuition at public universities should be equal one-third of instructional costs. However, Norwood said that tuition has never been that high and that it should be pegged at the average rate of 26 to 28 percent.

The new policy would also require legislation giving the university governing boards sole authority to set tuition rates. The legislature currently has that authority.

Other recommendations in the IBHE policy are:

—this year's tuition levels, plus the amount needed to meet inflated costs, should be the standard for future years;

—cost adjustments should be based on annual calculations from the Higher Education Price Index;

—when tuitions increase, the Illinois State Scholarship Commission awards for needy students should also be boosted;

—the one-third formula should be made state law by the General Assembly.

Council sends rezoning request back to commission

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

After hearing representatives from a Carbondale financial institution and real estate association ask for more housing, the City Council decided to send Ira Parrish's request to rezone 64 acres for a housing division back to the Planning Commission.

In other action Monday, the council approved the Comprehensive Community Plan after members removed plans for University Parkway and College Street extension, and sent plans for an Oak Street and Wood Road extension to the Planning Commission.

At the Oct. 15 meeting, council members killed the rezoning request in a stalemate vote.

Parrish, a Carbondale developer, requested the rezoning of 64 acres of land on Chautauqua Road, near Tower Road, so he could initiate plans to build a 200-unit housing division.

Residents from the Kent Drive and Chautauqua Road area opposed the rezoning at the Oct. 8 council meeting, saying there were already too many drainage, sewage, water and traffic problems in the area.

The Planning Commission is scheduled to discuss the plans Dec. 5.

Barbara Schauwecker, secretary for Home Federal Savings and Loan, told the council, "When the housing industry slows or stops, a large segment of the city dies, too. I am here to ask you to refer one major builder to the Planning Commission . . . to extend the growth potential of Carbondale."

Schauwecker said Tuesday that she and others are concerned about the availability of houses in Carbondale. She said she is concerned that Carbondale might be slipping behind some of its neighboring cities in building houses.

"We would hate to end up like St. Louis with 97 municipalities surrounding one city core," Schauwecker said.

We would like to see Carbondale increase housing by 20, 300 or even 500 new houses, Schauwecker said. This would increase the tax base and keep taxes low.

"We want to encourage the council to start looking into that now," Schauwecker said.

Al Suguitan, vice president for the Carbondale Real Estate Association, said, "Parrish Acres South plan is worthy of being considered by the Planning Commission. We encourage planned growth in the city. I hope Carbondale will see fit to send it back to the commission."

Suguitan said, "Our desire is that the council refer this back to the Planning Commission so that any problems the council has can be referred and cleared up."

Suguitan explained that some of the problems the council had with a housing division relate to any future divisions and not just Parrish Acres South.

"It's the position of the Real Estate Association to encourage planned growth, but it's also the responsibility of the city to work with developers to foster growth," Suguitan said.

Residents opposed University Parkway at public hearings, claiming the road would cause excess flooding in the area, upset the ecology, ruin the woods, and harm animals and humans in the area via the pollution emitted from cars.

Before voting on the road, Fischer said, "Mr. Jones and I have been on the council for 10 years. We were both opposed to the road when we first got on."

But after the two were on the council for longer periods of time, and saw the alternatives to the system, they concluded that the parkway is still the only viable plan, Fischer said.

Petition opposes athletics hike

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

Over 1,500 students have signed a Graduate Student Council sponsored petition expressing opposition to the proposed $10 athletics fee increase.

The petitions were signed during the past two days at a booth in the Student Center set up by the GSC. The booth will be operating through Wednesday.

GSC President Gary Brown said he wants to submit the petitions to the Board of Trustees at its Thursday meeting in Edwardsville. If the increase is approved by the board, the athletics fee will be raised from $20 to $30 each semester. The board, however, will not take final action on the increase until the December meeting.

In addition to the petition, Brown also placed a coupon in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian advertising a $10 savings for students opposing the fee increase. The $10 is the amount that students will save each semester if the increase is not approved.

Mike Higbee, graduate student in community development, and one of the organizers of the petition said "a number of GSC members wanted to do something about the increase instead of just pass a resolution."

The council has passed resolutions stating that it does not support an athletics fee increase at its past two meetings.

"We want to get a momentum going. We are going to get petitions in the dorms and hopefully start a letter writing campaign to the board," Higbee said.

"You'd be surprised how many students don't know about the increase. Some students think the fee increase is going toward the Recreation Center and not for intercollegiate athletics," he said. "That's really sad."

"But the response has been good and we're hoping for 3,000 to 5,000 signatures by Thursday," he said.

Brown said the petitions will serve as another "piece of information for the board that students don't want a fee increase."

"But an even bigger piece of information will be the budgetary errors in the athletics budget," Brown said.

City prepares for Halloween 1980

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

After looking at the reports on Carnivale '79, the Carbondale City Council decided to prepare ahead for Halloween festivities for 1980.

At Monday's formal council meeting, members discussed the problems with the Halloween festivities — included in reports by Police Chief Ed Hogan, Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter and Assistant Streets Superintendent Wayne Wheelers, and directed the city staff to prepare a report on solutions to the problems.

Fry suggested moving the festivities to the farm the city owns. The farm is located east of town on Old Route 13, near the southeast water treatment plant.

"Make this area available," Fry suggested. "You can have big tents and have the beer bust out there."

Fry said, "I think Mr. Hogan laid out some very forthright proposals. I think next year we need to make some changes. Carbondale is an oasis in a desert of thirst."

Fischer and others recommended that the city staff meet with members of the SIUC administration, Towne Central and Undergraduate Student Organization to come up with some good ideas.

Fry also said that Hogan's recommendation of closing the bars down is a "very good one."

Alternatives to student fees offered by athletics committee get to a particular point in time."

"Do not put too much weight on the matter of (the University's) commitment (to athletics) but rather think in terms of what are the possibilities of increasing funds because that and that alone is going to be the key issue as to whether current programming of athletics can be continued," Klimstra stated.

With that framework, the subcommittees devised 13 alternatives to student-funding of athletics, and suggested four courses of action in using dollars now available more efficiently.

The subcommittees concluded that:

—A greater emphasis must be placed on revenue-producing sports. The traditional feeling toward program philosophy must give way to the needs of present program needs.

—The necessary support for the proposal to initiate the formation of a women's athletics conference has not been adequately dealt with.

—The University's continued refusal to appropriately finance athletics has resulted in the serious financial decay of the men's program. Student fees intended for the men's scholarship program and facilities development were improperly extracted from the men's program and given to the women's program for operating funds. The institution of student fees was not intended to fund anything other than the scholarship program and development of facilities for athletics.

—The present ticket policy is not only obsolete but also anti-revenue generating in nature. The present policy toward student fee assessments and gate charges is contradictory in nature to revenue generation.

—Consolidation of the men's and women's programs to cut expenses should be explored. The subcommittees recommended that:

—a position of chief fundraiser for intercollegiate athletics be created;

—a prominent alumnus with extensive business contacts throughout the state be appointed to chair a network of businessmen and professionals for the purposes of identifying new sources of income;

—an ongoing market value survey of athletic programs be instituted through the Department of marketing.

The recommendations were submitted to Mace in July with the request that he respond to the reports.

Associate Vice President for University Relations Jerry Lacey said he expects the reply to be ready "sometime in late December or early January."

Mace said last week that he has reviewed the IAC recommendations and considers them "far-reaching, and covering all sources."

"There are some interesting notions but I think others in the University may take exception to some of the recommendations," Mace added.

U.S. hostages still in jeopardy

By The Associated Press

Washington officials said Tuesday the United States will not use force to free about 60 American hostages threatened with death by demonstrators occupying the American Embassy in Tehran and it expects Iranian authorities to protect them.

The Palestine Liberation Organization, which has good relations with Iran's Islamic regime, said it would send a delegation to Tehran to save the hostages' lives.

U.S. oil company executives in Washington reported an interruption in Iran's oil shipments to America and said it appeared a threatened oil boycott of the United States had begun.

Protection of the embassy captives is now the responsibility of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Revolutionary Council, which the religious leader ordered to run the country after Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan and his Cabinet resigned Tuesday.

Adviser carried out assassination alone

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea's powerful intelligence chief assassinated President Park Chung-hee without military or foreign help in a miscalculated attempt to install himself as president, according to the final report on the investigation issued Tuesday.

The plot is spiced with mysterious women and a misfired gun, but the report places the blame for Park's death entirely on KCIA chief Kim Jae-kyu, a close adviser to the president.

"He had the illusion he was best-suited for president," the report said. "He miscalculated that he could exercise influence over key leaders in the government and military."

The report said Kim began plotting alone in June to assassinate Park and his chief bodyguard and most trusted adviser, Cha Chi-chul.

Carter, Kennedy to debate next year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy have accepted an invitation to debate each other at a newspaper-sponsored forum in Iowa in early January, it was learned Tuesday.

A White House official, who asked not to be named, said the president had accepted an invitation to the forum sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

The Des Moines Register

confirmed Tuesday that Kennedy also had accepted the invitation. The Massachusetts senator was expected to announce Wednesday he will challenge the president.

Bidding blocked for off-shore oil leases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. on Tuesday blocked the sale of oil-drilling leases in the Georges Bank, a major Atlantic Ocean fishing ground off New England's coast.

Brennan, acting on an emergency request to postpone the opening of bids for the off-shore oil-drilling rights, said no bid should be opened until further word from him or the full Supreme Court.

Brennan's one-paragraph order was released at 3:40 p.m. It said a temporary postponement allowed by a federal appeals court so he could consider the emergency request "is hereby continued pending further order of the undersigned or of the court."

Athletics fee increase not committee's idea

It has been a trend among colleges and universities since the early 1970s to create advisory panels of students, faculty and staff to aid administrations in the development and implementation of policies and programs.

The theory was that involvement of the people affected would foster respect for and understanding of university policy. The pursuit of knowledge and truth, the business of higher education, would be best served in an atmosphere of cooperation, openness and democracy, some said.

Presumably, this was the prevailing attitude when the University established the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee.

Unfortunately, it has not worked in exactly that fashion. On the surface, the IAC sometimes appears to be little more than a rubber stamp for the whims of the athletics directors of SIU. The seven faculty, three students and three "other" representatives who compose the IAC might look like show pieces for constituency input.

Appearances can be deceiving.

The problem is not that the constituency representatives on the IAC have been dormant all these years. It is not that, in the face of the current budgetary crisis within the athletics program, the IAC has acquiesced to the heavy hand of University administration.

The problem is that the input of an advisory board can only go as far as the administrator it serves will allow.

In February of this year, the IAC established two subcommittees to review the funding of intercollegiate athletics at SIU. Four months later, the subcommittees completed their work.

In July, the IAC adopted the final reports of the subcommittees and forwarded them to George Mace, vice president for University relations and the administrator in charge of the athletics program.

The reports were a sober analysis of the myriad problems facing men's and women's athletics now and in the future. But nowhere in the report does the IAC recommend further student fee support of the athletics program.

In proposing a $10 student fee increase to support athletics in the next few years, Mace has summarized the committee's four months of work and eight pages of recommendations in one sentence: "Their recommendation was to seek additional funds from all available sources."

That's constituency involvement?

The Student Senate took a positive step Monday night when, in special session, it voted to "adamantly oppose the proposed $10 increase in the athletics fee."

The benefit of this action to the student body is not that the senate chose to assert its opposition to a questionable increase in student fees—the senate generally opposes any move on the students' pocketbook.

Rather, the significance of the senate's stance lies in its basis in research and investigation. Too often in the past, student representatives have blindly lashed out at administrative proposals on principle alone. The current fee structure stands as testimony to the effectiveness of that tactic.

Monday, the senate heard a report from its Student Affairs and Community Services Committee on the athletics fee. While it does not present all the definitive arguments against the proposed fee increase, the SACS Committee report will go a long way toward establishing some much-needed credibility for the Undergraduate Student Organization.

If, as expected, Student Vice President Chris Blankenship speaks out against the athletics fee increase at the Board of Trustees meeting Thursday, she will need some cogent arguments to dissuade the trustees from adopting the administrative request for more funds. The committee's report alone will not provide that. But it may raise enough questions to forestall acceptance of the increase by the board until further investigation is completed. It is hoped that the committee will continue with that effort.

Also mentioned at the meeting was the final report of the Women's Intercollegiate Athletics Discrimination Investigatory Commission appointed by Student President Peter Alexander. The commission took the easy route and suggested that an increase in student fees is "the most efficient way to substantially increase total revenue." Given Alexander's reluctance to stand up to the administration on the athletics fee, his commission's finding is no surprise.

However, the commission's report, along with the SACS committee report, does represent an apparent realization on the part of USO that getting the administration to take student concerns seriously will take some work.

OF COURSE WE KNOW WHAT WE'RE DOING! WHY WE CHECKED THOSE MONEY SUPPLY FIGURES FOUR TIMES!

Letters

East campus counts; raid reveals spirit

This letter is to comment on the party raid held in the east campus area, and the article concerning this in the Friday, Oct. 19 Daily Egyptian.

The party raid which brought nearly 300 students together was a great showing of the enthusiasm and school spirit held by the residents of the University Park and Brush Towers area. This is enthusiasm and spirit that can not be found anywhere else on campus. I am sorry that the University Police feel that nothing but a large amount of trash being scattered around was accomplished. I realize that it is very hard to measure the amount of tension that was released during the peaceful demonstration. The raid brought the residents of these areas closer together and created a more relaxed environment on east campus.

I also must comment on the quickness in publication by the staff of the Daily Egyptian in response to the party raid. I hope that the "east campus really doesn't matter" attitude is changing within the Daily Egyptian and the rest of the University. East Campus really does matter, and that will be proven at the upcoming Student Senate elections.

Since the Daily Egyptian has a policy that no anonymous letters and comments will be printed, I hope that the unprofessional, unnecessary, and very biased feelings of "Gus Bode" will be discontinued or at least his identity be made known to the students of SIU-C.

Birth control really is female's concern

It's hard enough to believe that two pregnancies are confirmed at the Health Service every day. What I find inconceivable, however, is the irresponsibility of those women who become pregnant rather than "break the spontaneity" of sexual intercourse.

It is the responsibility of the woman to avoid getting pregnant, a responsibility that cannot be transferred to anyone else. That may seem unfair and one-sided, but that's the way it is.

There are methods of birth control that do not inhibit the pubescent prerequisite of spontaneity. Granted, women, for the most part, have been led to expect to be swept off their collective feet. This myth is perpetuated through romance novel and soap opera morality: Premarital (or extramarital) sex is okay as long as you're out of your mind with passion. This "temporary passion" sounds, appropriately enough, a lot like "temporary insanity." Either way, it's a weak and self-deprecatory excuse: "I am most desirable when I'm least logical."

We've all had to give up the tooth fairy and Santa Claus. It's about time we said goodbye to the stork, too. (The Easter Bunny will be retained for rabbit tests.)

'Girlie' pictures OK, but not male nudes

I cannot resist pointing out the irony inherent in a juxtaposition of two articles which appeared in the DE last week.

One was a matter-of-fact story reporting the decision of the University bookstore to begin selling "girlie" magazines; the other a rather sensational announcement regarding a photographic exhibit of male nudes. Two follow-up stories about the latter examined the history, purpose, artistic value and viewer reaction to the photographic display. No such questions were raised about the magazines.

The message is clear: our society accepts without question its right to view nude female bodies, however prurient the viewer's interest, while nude male bodies may not be dealt with so cavalierly, however pure the artist's intent.

We are all bombarded every day with sexist messages. This one is neither more significant nor more subtle than most. I raise the issue only because the appearance of the two stories in such close proximity is a fine example of how deeply ingrained the double standard is.

'Halloween Helpers' did job adequately

As "Halloween Helpers" we feel that we were unfairly portrayed in a recent edition of the Daily Egyptian. Joe Sobczyk, in his editorial in the Oct. 30 issue of the DE, called the 23 "Halloween Helpers" "completely invisible." We would like to know where he was looking for us. Our jobs were to help those who were hurt, clean up the general area surrounding the booths as best we could and provide general assistance.

We feel that we did those jobs adequately. For example, we helped the person who was injured in front of the Varsity Theater, which included helping the police keep the crowds back. Also, throughout the whole night we picked up bottles and broken glass, put out small fires and provided information and assistance to many people on the strip. Out of all the people on the strip, not one person harassed or verbally abused us. In fact, everyone who commented on our work had nothing but praise for the job we were doing.

It is true that there is a lot of room for improvement and expansion of our duties as "Halloween Helpers," but we feel that we did a good enough job to warrant the rehiring of "Halloween Helpers" for next year at Carnivale '80.

State migrant council honors STC program

By University News Service
The Career Development Center of the School of Technical Careers has been honored for its contributions to migrant vocational training in Southern Illinois.

The Illinois Migrant Council presented the award to Larry Hepburn, CDC director, at a recognition banquet in Chicago. Hepburn said, "CDC is intent on continuing to serve individuals in need of vocational training to enable them to achieve economic independence."

Two former CDC students were also recognized for personal achievement. Teresa Romero graduated from CDC's clerical training program and Egardo Romero completed the machine trades training program. Both are employed by Southern Illinois firms.

The CDC serves clients sponsored by the Illinois Farmers Union, Illinois Vocational Rehabilitation Services, Illinois Migrant Council and other service agencies. About 135 students are now enrolled in eight vocational training programs.

Tom Hammerschmidt and Patricia Hunter rehearse a scene from 'The Shadow Box,' which will be presented Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the University Theater.

'Shadow Box' explores different views of death

"The Shadow Box," a Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award winning Broadway drama, will be presented Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. in University Theater.

The play focuses on three people, each of whom have a terminal illness, and their families. Each of the people is confined in the same hospital.

Felicity is the elderly mother confined to a wheelchair. She is a bundle of energy living on a thread, but she never loses her stubborn crustiness. Agnes, her daughter, continually cares for her mother, not out of guilt, but because her mother is her life.

Brian, a semi-genius and a fraud, spends his last days doing everything that he failed to do in life. He writes novels, poems, philosophy and several autobiographies, all totally different from each other. His visitors include a male hustler who loves him and his drunken ex-wife.

A blue-collar worker is the third person who is dying. His wife and teen-age son visit him, but the son is unaware of the severity of the situation. The wife refuses to accept her husband's death and is reluctant to even see him.

An interviewer analyzes the responses of each of the characters and seeks knowledge about the nature of dying.

Tickets for the play are $3 for students and senior citizens and $4 for the general public. They may be purchased at the Theater Box Office in the Communications Building from noon to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Lecture on shyness set for Wednesday

Susan Ackerman Ross, assistant professor in the School of Medicine, will speak on the subject of shyness and how to deal with it at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Mackinaw Room of the Student Center.

'Feed the Hungry' drive relies on donated food

By Cindy Humphreys
Staff Writer

"Everywhere I go, somebody's handing me a can of food," said Mike Chylewski, the originator of WCIL's "Feed the Hungry" canned food drive.

But Chylewski's not complaining. He wants as many cans of food as he can get, so that fewer people in the counties of Jackson, Williamson, Perry, Franklin and Union will be hungry this Christmas.

"I'd like to feed everybody in Southern Illinois," he said. "At WCIL, we don't set goals. Our motivation is to go for the kill."

The drive began Oct. 1 and will continue until Dec. 15. Boxes upon boxes of canned food are stacked in Chylewski's small office. "There are cans of food stored all over the station," he said.

Chylewski had tried for a couple of years to organize a canned food drive, "but this year we figured out the mechanics of it."

The main difficulty he ran into was figuring out the method of distribution. "The offices that could help me find hungry people, couldn't, by law, give out names."

"It was frustrating to try to find out who's in need. There was no way to bring the food and the hungry people together," he said.

An alternate plan was devised through which the 50,000 watts of WCIL was utilized. "We're doing on-the-air requests for people to write us and tell us the names and addresses of the needy people they know," Chylewski said. "All that's invested is a stamp."

"A lot of older folks are in

need, too. The Social Security office wanted to help, but they couldn't give me names," he said.

"I don't care about the circumstances of the need or whether the family's father is no good. You can't cash a can of food in at a bar, you can only eat it. There's no excuse for a hungry kid," Chylewski said, "...especially in Southern Illinois."

The cans will be sorted into food groups and then delivered, along with the names received in the letters campaign, to local fire departments, which will handle the actual distribution. Getting the canned food is less of a problem than distributing it, Chylewski said. "It's phenomenal how people are turning out," he said. "Southern Illinois people are very giving. You come up with a cause, and they respond to it."

"We're not asking for money. We're asking them to give

Jazz performance scheduled

Faith Pillow, a singer who terms her music "tropical jazz," will perform at 8 and 10 p.m. Friday in the Student Center's Old Main Room as part of the International Coffeehouse Series.

Pillow created the term "tropical jazz" to describe her own style, which is a unique combination of tropical island rhythm, progressive rock and straight jazz.

Pillow, who is a composer, acoustic and electric guitarist, is known for the angular rhythms and self-revealing lyrics of her original compositions, such as "Renaissance" and "Sanity."

She also performs renditions of other artists' material, such as Van Morrison's "Moon-dance," Fats Waller's "Honeysuckle Rose" and the Beatles' "Blackbird."

Pillow has performed with artists such as Gil Scott-Heron, Les McCann, Kenny Rankin, Gary Burton, the Fifth Dimension and Muddy Waters. She has played in Caesar's Palace, Reno Sweeney, the Playbox Clubs and Catskill resorts.

Pillow says she often chooses to perform material that is "a little off the beaten track" because she likes uniqueness and feels her audience does too.

Much of Pillow's music reflects her exposure to reggae, which has had a strong effect on her work. Because reggae is rhythmical, she finds it conducive to guitar playing.

Pillow has experienced several changes since she started performing about eight years ago with a group called the Jazz Quintet. The changes have inspired her to write songs that are deep, involved emotional tapestries.

Tickets for the performance can be purchased at the Student Center ticket office for $3.50.

'SWEETHEART' CONTRACT

CHICAGO (AP) — Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon said he would continue a state food-service contract with Canteen Corp., despite allegations that previous contracts were disadvantageous to the state.

Shryock hosts organ recital

Gregory Herall Largent, a recipient of the SIU-C School of Music's Floyd Wakeland Music Educators Award, will perform an organ recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium. Admission is free.

Largent's performance is sponsored by the School of Music as part of the Distinguished Alumni Organ Recital Series.

Largent received a bachelor's degree in music education from SIU-C. He presently is the minister of music at Fairview Presbyterian Church in Indianapolis.

His program will include several well-known organ pieces. He will perform three works by Johann Bach

Senior voice recital slated for Thursday

Clark Ann Mitchell, a senior in music, will present her senior voice recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation chapel. Admission is free.

Mitchell is originally from Benton, Illinois. She has been involved with the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater and has appeared in two Calipre stage productions. In 1977, she toured Europe with the SIU-C chorale.

The recital will include a variety of numbers. Mitchell will sing a few Italian arias, some French chansons and a group of Schubert songs.

Sheila Snow Plummer, who received her masters degree in music from SIU-C in 1978, will accompany Mitchell.

something they already have—canned food."

Chylewski has pitted school against school and organization against organization in two separate competitions for the WCIL "Jam Van," a mobile music vehicle.

The school and the organization that collects the largest number of canned goods in direct proportion to its size or members will win a free four hours of non-stop music. The Jam Van usually costs $280 per evening.

"The Jam Van is better than a band," Chylewski said, "because you'll hear the original music by the original artist, as loud as you want.

"All the jocks get real involved in this sort of thing," Chylewski said. "Freebies are a good time. It's something we feel we want to do. The station's not making any money at this."

Part of the reason behind the drive is "Carbondale turns into a ghost town around Christmas. The radio is advertising all these things that poor people can't afford, and it can become a very depressing time of year," Chylewski said.

"I'd like to see the merchants get involved in our "Feed the Hungry" project," he said. "It'd be nice if the people who are usually asking others to buy would turn around and help with some giving."

BAKER'S BID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acknowledging that he has yet to demonstrate he can beat his Republican rivals, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. has announced his candidacy for president and urged the voters to "judge me."

The 53-year-old senator is the ninth contender for the GOP nomination.

David Bowie stars in weekend film

"The Man Who Fell to Earth," an exotic science fiction movie starring David Bowie, will be shown Friday and Saturday as the featured SPC weekend movie.

Showing on Thursday will be "Castle Keep," starring Burt Lancaster and on Sunday, Luciano Visconti's "The Innocent" will be featured. All films will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium. Admission is $1.

Bowie portrays an alien exposed to and finally overcome by modern technology and American capitalism in "The Man Who Fell to Earth." This 1970 film was directed by Nicolas Roeg.

Peter Falk and Patrick O'Neil star along with Lancaster in "Castle Keep," a war movie about an oddball infantry group attempting to hold a strategic castle. Lancaster tries to rally his forces which are reeling under German pressure during the Battle of the Bulge.

"The Innocent" stars Giancarlo Giannini as an Italian lover who betrays his wife.

David Bowie stars in "A Man Who Fell to Earth," showing Friday and Saturday in the Student Center Auditorium.

Tull tickets remain

As of Tuesday afternoon, more than 2,000 tickets were still available for Wednesday's Jethro Tull and U.K. concert at the Arena, according to Julie Moller, Arena promotions director.

However, all top price tickets have been sold out for the 8 p.m. show, Moller said. She added that the Arena staff was very satisfied with the ticket sales.

Student mixes dance, sports in first try at choreographing

Charity Gould
Staff Writer

The Fall Student Dance Concert scheduled this Friday and Saturday will be a big event for Patricia Wilcox.

"Art of Sport," a modern dance abstraction piece, will be performed. It is Wilcox's master's thesis and her first attempt at choreographing.

Wilcox has taken the sports of archery, fencing, karate and racketball and transformed them into an hour-long abstract dance.

Although she has been dancing since she was 6, the 25-year-old from Decatur has been modern dancing for seven years and loving every second of it.

"I wouldn't want to do anything else," the petite blond said.

"I explored any aesthetics which might exist between dance and sports. Both of them use the same medium, movement, and the same tool, the body. That's how I came up with the title 'Art of Sport'."

In the production, Wilcox tried to use students for every job from making the costumes to writing the music.

Even though the materials for the show are paid for by the Student Center, the students are not paid for their labor.

There are eight dancers in the show, which Wilcox has been working on for more than a year.

"Two of the dancers are instructors, five are undergraduates and one is a graduate. This week we'll be working every night a minimum of five hours," she said.

Wilcox, a graduate assistant in physical education, took classes in the four sports to study the fundamental relations between sport and dance.

Wilcox has been in four major dance pieces at SIU. She is a member of the Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater, a student organization that performs in the Southern Illinois area.

Patricia Wilcox

The performance will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 9 and 10. Tickets are $1.50 for students and $2.50 for the general public.

Ex-network head to speak

Oil, Mideast topic of lecture

Robert Evans, a former correspondent and bureau chief for CBS News, will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday in Ballrooms A and B of the Student Center. Evans will speak on the subject of oil and the Mideast.

The lecture is titled "Energy and Oil: the Middle East is the Juggler." Evans will relate his experiences in the Middle East and his ideas about the current energy crunch.

For the past 18 months, the well-known journalist has covered the Middle East. He was there in 1956 when the Arab-Israeli War first broke out.

From 1961 to 1964, Evans worked as a special assistant to Edward R. Murrow, who was the director of the U.S. Information Agency at that time.

Evans spent much of his career covering Russian affairs. He became a Moscow correspondent in 1967 and was later appointed chief of the CBS Moscow bureau. In 1968 he was one of four journalists, who, despite warnings from the Russian foreign ministry, attempted to attend the Intellectual Dissident Trials in Moscow. He was forced to leave Russia within 72 hours.

Evans was in Hungary for its short, ill-fated revolt against Russian in 1968 and was in Berlin during the construction of the Berlin Wall.

Admission to the lecture is $1.

BRIEFS POLICY—Information for Campus Briefs must be delivered or mailed to the Daily Egyptian newsroom, Communications Building, Room 1247, by 1 p.m. the day prior to publication. The item must include time, date, place and sponsor of the event and the name and telephone of the person submitting the brief. Briefs will be run only once.

Commercial Design students plan efficient interior for bank

By Liz Schindler
Student Writer

Students in an interior design class are getting practical experience this semester through a $500,000 project designing the interior for a bank in Houma, La.

Denny Hayes, assistant professor in interior design, said the magnitude and complexity of the project is the type of work that the students will be expected to do when they get out of school.

The class situation is set up as realistically as possible and is geared toward those seniors who will be doing their thesis next semester, Hayes said.

The two sections of Interior Design 391B, "Commercial Design," taught by Hayes and Robert Guy McGinnis, have been working together to fill approximately 45,000 square feet of space with an efficient, functional plan for the interior of the bank.

Hayes said Phase I, the research stage of the four-phased project, has been completed. Part of this stage involved investigation of various activities performed by bank personnel and completion of extensive research concerning different functions within the bank, such as vaults, safe deposit boxes, teller windows and office spaces.

Decisions were then made for the completion of a functional plan which specifies and identifies all elements that must be included, explains where different activities will take place, and describes the types of functions that should be included, he said.

Students are currently working on Phase II, the conceptualization stage. This stage involves the creative handling of the information and research collected in Phase I to produce floor plans and various interior design layouts, Hayes said.

Phase III, the design development stage, involves the refinement of all decisions made in preceding phases, Hayes said, and Phase IV is the presentation of the project as a whole to the client.

Bank Corporation in St. Louis is sponsoring the $500,000 project and James Ferguson, adjunct professor, helped put it together and provides criticism on a regular basis.

An SIU-C professor has been chosen to coordinate a U.S. Agency for International Development program aimed at strengthening the food production of underdeveloped countries.

Howard Olson, professor of animal industries will administer a $500,000 AID grant given to the School of Agriculture to "strengthen us in the areas of crops, animals and aquaculture (fish) production."

"The idea of this grant is to get institutions to gear up their faculties, to have more appreciation for the problems of these countries and to get them equipped to go over and aid these countries to establish programs which will help them improve their food production programs," Olson said.

"We will look at not only production, but marketing and distribution, as well," he added.

AID will inform Olson of program opportunities opening up in foreign countries. Olson will then formulate written proposals for SIU-C's participation in those programs.

"Workshops, seminars and visiting faculty" will be used to carry out the programs, Olson said, but "no specific focus" on any countries has been determined.

Countries that SIU-C faculty have experience with and which would subsequently be looked to favorably for contract bids under the AID program include Ethiopia, Kenya, Liberia, Tanzania, Afganistan and Costa Rica.

Olson said that the countries SIU-C chooses "will depend in part on our faculty's interest and on the expertise we have on our staff."

"There will be opportunities for at least six faculty members to explore and do research during short trips into the developing countries," he said.

AID's grant calls for $100,000 a year payments for five years. The University has to match that figure, Olson said. An office for international food and agricultural development will be set up in room 117 of the Agriculture Building.

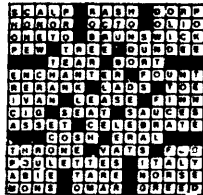

Olson has been to Egypt four times.

A board of directors for the AID program chose Olson to coordinate the program. The board includes Charles Klasek, director of the Office of International Education, Norman Doornbos, dean of the College of Science and Gilbert Kroemig, dean of the School of Agriculture.

Tuesday's Puzzle Solved:

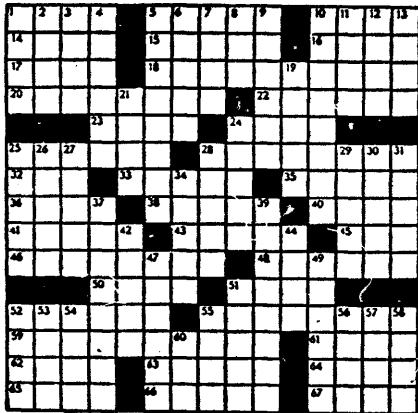

Workers on board old hat in Europe

LONDON (AP) — The proposed elevation of Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, to the Chrysler board of directors breaks new ground in the United States, but it's old hat in Europe.

Many European nations have learned that a labor voice in management does not guarantee industrial peace, increased productivity or "industrial democracy."

Worker representation on boards of directors or other decision-making bodies is firmly established in West Germany, Austria, the Netherlands and the Scandinavian countries.

Economics professor to receive award for leadership and service

By Shelley Davis
Staff Writer

Milton Edelman, professor emeritus of economics, will become the third recipient of the Willis Moore Award given by the SIU-C chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

The award will be presented by Robert Layer, professor of economics, at a banquet beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday in the University House. There will be a reception at 6:30 p.m.

The award is named after its first recipient, Willis Moore, a former SIU-C professor and retired member of the Board of Trustees. It is given by the AAUP "in recognition of outstanding service to the AAUP and SIU."

According to Martha Ellert, president of the AAUP, the award is given to people who are not only members of the

Milton Edelman

AAUP but who also display high University leadership.

Edelman came to SIU-C in 1950. He has served on numerous University councils and committees such as the Faculty-Senate, the Graduate Council, and several ad hoc committees.

He was director of the graduate program in economics for four years and associate dean of the graduate school for two years.

Edelman received his master's degree in industrial relations in 1947 from the University of Pennsylvania. He has acted as arbitrator in over 1,000 labor-management disputes since 1952 in the automotive, aerospace and oil refining industries and in retail sales, government and schools.

In 1974, Edelman served as chairman of the National Academy of Arbitrators in the St. Louis region.

Edelman, 60, joined the AAUP in the early 1950s. He said he was "very honored" to receive this year's award.

5 Caribbean stops planned

Alumni offers winter cruise

By Kay Blachinsky
Student Writer

The Alumni Association is offering faculty, staff, students and alumni a chance to get away from cold and snowy days this winter on its own version of the "Love Boat."

An eight day, seven night Caribbean cruise aboard the Starward is set for Jan. 5-12, according to Robert Odaniell, director of Alumni Services.

Bob Saltzman, assistant director of Alumni Services, said, "Our alumni are asking for more trips. They have expressed a need and this cruise is one way we're trying to meet that need."

The Starward will sail from Miami and will stop in Port Antonio and Ocho Rios in Jamaica; Port au Prince, Haiti; and Nassau and Berry Islands in the Bahamas.

"The last stop is a beach on an uninhabited island," Odaniell said. "Everyone will be taken by boat to the beach where there will be entertainment and pure, clean water."

The SIU Caribbean package includes round-trip air fare from Chicago or St. Louis to Miami, a double-occupancy cabin, four meals a day plus snacks and access to all ship-board activities and entertainment, Odaniell said.

Fares for the trip at the group rate range from $815 to $1,085, depending on the choice of cabin.

Odaniell said reservations are being taken on a first come, first served basis. Reservations made after Nov. 15 must pay the full amount instead of the $200 deposit required before this date.

This is the fourth cruise the Alumni Association has sponsored, Odaniell said. Last year a group of 48 alumni, ranging from the Class of 1920-21 were aboard.

Groups from Eastern Illinois

University and SIU-E will also be on the Starward and there is a possibility that two other Illinois universities will participate, Odaniell said.

Craft night planned by newcomer club

The SIU-C Newcomers will have a Christmas Crafts Night 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Carbondale Savings and Loan.

Craft leaders will demonstrate how to make Christmas decorations which will be purchased and assembled at the meeting. There will be kits for all of the decorations.

Man arrested in church disturbance

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

After allegedly disrupting church services in the Newman Center over the weekend, a Carol Stream man has been arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Robert Rupp, 33, was allegedly disrupting noon Mass in the Carbondale Newman Center chapel by preaching from the audience while service was being conducted. When asked to leave, Rupp said everyone's tongues would rot if he was forced to depart.

Rupp had been denied entry to the center at the north entrance before the disruption occurred, according to Charles Hempstead, an SIU student who was at the Newman Center at the time. Police said Rupp then ran to the front door of the center, entered the chapel and began preaching.

Hempstead led Rupp from the chapel and a fight began outside, police said. Rupp then ran down South Washington Street and was arrested by police at the intersection of East Park and South Washington Streets.

Police said Rupp had also been caught stealing food from the Newman Center over the weekend.

Rupp posted $35 bond and is scheduled to appear in Jackson County Court Nov. 14.

Student, citizen charged with battery

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

An SIU-C student and a Carbondale man have been charged with battery in separate disturbances that occurred over the weekend.

Robert Middleton, senior in clothing and textiles, was released without bond from Jackson County Jail after he allegedly punched two students in the Recreation Center Friday night.

The two students, Nafith Alhanbali, freshman in engineering, and Eman Al-Zaben, senior in engineering, said Middleton punched them after their volleyball went onto the basketball court that Middleton and others were playing on.

Alhanbali and Al-Zaber said their ball accidentally rolled onto the basketball court and Middleton threw the ball in the other direction. Alhanbali said when he approached Middleton, he was punched in the face by him.

Al-Zaben then tried to help Alhanbali and he was also allegedly punched by Middleton. Both were bleeding from the mouth, and Alhanbali had a bruise under his left eye, University police said.

Middleton said he had asked the two to move because the court was reserved for basketball play until 7 p.m. The incident occurred at about 6:35 p.m. The volleyball had come onto the court twice and basketball players had repeatedly asked Alhanbali and Al-Zaben to move, he added.

Middleton has received a notice to appear in Jackson County Court Wednesday.

Cardell Shepard Jr., 1109 E. College, was also charged over the weekend with aggravated battery and assessed a $1,000 bond after he allegedly hit a Murphysboro man in the head with a baseball bat.

Jerry Davis is in satisfactory condition at Firmin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis following the dispute. Carbondale police said Shepard and Davis were arguing in the 1100 block of East College Street.

According to police, Davis said he was going to get a gun from his car when Shepard followed him and struck him in the back of the head with the bat.

prominent alumnus to raise contributions."

Other programming alternatives listed include recommendation for the women's athletics department to become a member of a conference and for both athletics departments to increase involvement in tournaments.

Blankenship said the senate may approve the commission's report, but that it does not agree with the ranking of the budget alternatives. She said that based on student feedback, the senate probably would rank an athletic fee increase as a last alternative.

Council OK's rezoning review

Jones said, "I am very sympathetic to the people who live in the area. I believe the drainage problem could be solved. I certainly wouldn't vote for something that would drive out the people living there."

"Some people may feel they'll be damaged greatly by this road, but I don't think so," Jones said.

In discussing what to do with the College Street extension part of the Complan, Councilman Archie Jones said, "I listened to the city manager's reasoning and I agree. I think we have a pretty good way of getting to Giant City Road and I am in favor of deleting the College Street extension from the plan."

The College Street extension was proposed to extend College Street east to Giant City Road.

In other action, the council:

—adopted a policy to plan and grid water and sewer lines within a 1/2-mile area of the city, putting an emphasis on "requiring a public water supply and public sewage facilities;"

—adopted a social impact assessment that will be sent to the City Council for consideration on zoning matters; and —approved a contract with Gilbert and Gilbert law firm for the remaining work on the Railroad Relocation project.

Halloween parking tickets no treat

By Jim Barnhart
Student Writer

Ghosts and goblins weren't the only ones out leaving their chilling marks on people Halloween weekend. So were the campus police. Only the law's idea of a "trick or treat" was different — parking tickets. According to M. L. Austin, coordinator of the parking and traffic division for SIU-C, a total of 127 illegal parking tickets were issued between Friday and Sunday.

Austin said there was no way of determining how many of the tickets were issued to visitors and how many were issued to students. The parking violations did not include those who were ticketed in metered areas.

"We do issue guest parking permits," Austin said. "The permits are valid for three days and will allow visitors to park on any of the 14 visitor parking lots on campus. Visitors can also park on these same lots without a permit after 5 p.m.," he said.

Many visitors parked in the grassy area north of the Brush Towers housing area, an area which was designed for recreational activities, not automobiles.

"Normally, parking in this area could get you nailed," Austin said. "But I think the campus police tended to look the other way most of the weekend."

SIU economist says flexibility, mobility help in job-hunting

By University News Service

Flexibility and mobility. Two very important words for job-hunters during a recession.

And recession is an accurate description of the nation's economy right now, according to SIU-C economist Robert J. Ellis Jr.

"Economists disagree about whether or not we are in a recession, but it's my feeling we've been in one for approximately six months," Ellis said.

"And, of course, the most critical impact of recession is increased unemployment, a condition which has substantial consequences for the economy as a whole and creates chaos in the lives of many individuals and families."

Overall, recessions result in widespread production cutbacks and added burdens for taxpayers in terms of swollen unemployment-benefit rolls and federal welfare spending.

But the real problem lies with the thousands of households disrupted by lack of work.

"People who are hunting for work need to remain flexible and mobile. They should be willing to take jobs they may be either not prepared for or over-prepared for," Ellis said.

"That might mean accepting a temporary job at less pay than the individual is used to. But temporary income is better than no income at all."

Frustrated job-seekers might try looking to other parts of the country, says Ellis.

"Mobility is important, because even during periods of high unemployment nationally, some areas of the nation experience low unemployment," he said.

This is reflected in what Ellis calls a "significant shift of employment opportunities in the Sun Belt" during the past several years.

"Many parts of the country have been seeing unemployment running at 8 percent and more. But in areas of the South and Southwest the figures have been half that," Ellis said. College and high school graduates embarking on careers should choose their employers carefully, Ellis said.

"Job stability is a very important consideration. People should take a look at the records of firms with regards to layoffs and cutbacks, as well as the future prospects of the industry as a whole," Ellis said.

And college students with bleak job prospects in their fields should consider staying in school as a hedge against unemployment and a way to better prepare for future career stability, he continued.

Ellis said he doesn't expect the current recession to be the last one most people will experience in their lifetimes.

Top gymnast Erickson joins Salukis

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

Lori Erickson is at SIU. Erickson, a freshman from Palatine, was Illinois' best high school women's gymnast the past three years. Originally, she was enrolled at Southwest Missouri State, but transferred to SIU when team members at Southwest Missouri began to quit.

"Everything went really well at Southwest Missouri the first two weeks," Erickson said. "We had good workouts the first two weeks. But Kelleen Casey, their All-American, decided she no longer wanted to compete. She decided she had fulfilled all of her goals.

"It was kind of like a domino system after that," Erickson continued. "Tracy Moore, another gymnast from Palatine, decided to transfer to the University of Minnesota. I found myself without a team, and I realized a team is something I need to work with. I wanted to be able to travel and compete, so I decided to come here."

Erickson said there was no dissension at Southwest Missouri.

"Everyone got along really well," she said. "When Kelleen quit, there was a different atmosphere in the gym. It made everyone stop and think about the situation."

Erickson said her high school coach, Sandy Oldham, recommended SIU and its coach, Herb Vogel. So far, she said, she has not regretted transferring.

"Southwest Missouri was really small, about 6,000 students," Erickson said. "It's a real change here. I find it enjoyable because I think it's real school life. Everything is much more exciting. It's kind of fun to hear people say, 'You're from Palatine,' instead of hearing them say, 'Where is Palatine, Illinois?'"

"No one knew where I was from at Southwest Missouri," Erickson continued, "so it's kind of fun being able to relate to people who have been in my area."

Erickson hopes to have as much success in the nation's college gymnastics arenas as she had during her high school career, which she spent performing in such a northwest suburb as Barrington, Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove.

She moved to Palatine from Minnesota as a high school sophomore. Erickson burst onto the prep gymnastics scene that year in the IHSAA state women's gymnastics tournament, winning championships in the all-around and the floor exercise. She took second in the vault, balance beam and parallel bars.

As a junior, she won the championship in the vault, and took second in the all-around. She recovered from a pre-season arm dislocation to take firsts in the all-around, balance beam, floor exercise and parallel bars as a senior, and placed second in the vault.

"I enjoy floor exercise the most," Erickson said. "I feel that that's the event in which I can express myself the most. In all the other events, you have to worry about falling out. I really like picking my own music and making my own routine."

Erickson said she has had to make an adjustment to college gymnastics.

"Right now, I'm trying a lot of new tricks that I haven't tried before, and it's a new experience," she said. "I've always had female coaches, and now I have a male coach. He can really spot a lot of new tricks, and it's an easier experience. It's been exciting because I've done something new every day.

"Since I came down here, I've improved all four of my events," Erickson continued. "Right now, I have to improve the difficulty in my routines."

Erickson said she is excited by the prospect of traveling with the Salukis, and meeting new gymnasts.

Men's gymnastics Coach Bill Meade calls it "unusual." Team members call it a "one-shot deal." The real name for it is the Collegiate Classic, and SIU will send 12 of its athletes to Indianapolis, Ind., Saturday to compete in it.

The meet is composed of individual performances, and only two athletes from each school can participate in any one event. Each athlete will have one chance to perform in each event.

"It's a showcase meet where only the top two gymnasts in each event from each school compete," Meade said. "It's a good meet, and we have a good chance of doing well in some events."

The Salukis, who placed fourth in the Big Eight Invitational last week, will compete against 14 other schools, including all the Big Ten schools, for individual honors. Meade believes his team may be weak in the still ring and vaulting events because of lack of experience.

Meade said David Schieble, who placed first last week, has a good chance of placing high this week on the pommel horse. Other strong events for SIU will be high bar and parallel bars, in which Brian Babcock will compete, and the floor exercise, where Bob Barut and Randy Bettis will perform.

"We don't have the experience in rings and vaulting," Meade said. "As of now, I don't know who will compete."

The Salukis may have to do without their top all-around gymnast, Dan Muenz, after he hurt his knee on a dismount off the still rings last week. Muenz was in the hospital Tuesday having his knee checked for ligament damage. He had been X-rayed for structural damage at the meet, but the results were inconclusive.

Last week's Invitational was the Saluki's first meet of the season, and Meade said he was very pleased with his team's performance. He did say, however, that some of the routines that his team performed may have been too difficult this early in the season.

West Texas' Yung keeps faith

And, he added, they hung together. When senior quarterback Larry Thompson was hurt, the team rallied behind sophomore Matt Patterson. When tailback Clint Plant became injured, several backs started in his place.

The team rallied to tie Lamar, 12-12. Yung said the Buffs should have won the game, but fumbled at the goal line. Since then, West Texas State has won three games and lost one, including a 58-0 whipping of Wichita State and a 54-21 pounding of New Mexico State.

"We stress the conference games," Yung said, adding he told his players not "to drop their heads" before they played, and beat, Indiana State in their second conference game.

Yung again stressed positive values once the conference season began. West Texas State had beaten the Salukis, a team that was picked to win the conference. He reminded his team about it.

"That was a key victory, there is no doubt about it," Yung said. "They had a senior group and we were younger, so I felt it was to their advantage to play us early."

Yung said he stressed that the game would be played at home and placed emphasis on enthusiasm. He told his team the game will be played at a higher altitude than SIU was used to. He believed this would be enough to overcome the difference in experience.

The motivation continues. West Texas State was picked to finish last in the Valley by the coaches and media. It was picked to finish last in 1977, the year the Buffaloes won the conference crown. There are similarities between the two teams, and Yung reminds his club of them.

"The two are so much alike," Yung said. "We had those early losses and the injuries that season, and then came on strong in the end. It is kind of unreal. This team is coming together."

In 1977, West Texas clinched the title by beating the Salukis, 28-9, in Canyon. The team which stands in the way of this year's title is Drake. West Texas State will have an extra week to prepare for the Bulldogs, who entertain SIU this week.

Enjoy winter by learning how to ski

The snow is coming! One way to enjoy the winter months instead of dreading them is to cross country ski. The sport is easy to learn, inexpensive, and great fun.

Equipment needed for cross country skiing is minimal; the basics are skis, boots and poles. Many stores in the Carbondale area sell and rent equipment, equipment.

Woolsey's Sports, located in the University Mall, has a large selection of cross country equipment, with the price for a package of boots, skis and poles running about $150.

Phoenix Cycle is planning on having a selection of both non-wax and waxable skis. Persons will be able to rent equipment, with the option to buy. Prices for a package will run around $150. Skate Street also will have skis for rent, and will order equipment for persons interested in purchasing gear.

Touching Nature Debbie Sugerman

Many have heard of cross country skiing, but have no idea how to get started. Other people have equipment and would like to learn more techniques, find out about ski trails in the area, or find other persons who like to ski. Touch of Nature is planning a series of activities to interest all skiers in the area.

The first is a free workshop on cross country skiing Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. in the Student Center's Ohio Room. The idea of the workshop is to introduce persons to the sport, and to get them excited about winter, snow, and skiing. A movie showing persons skiing in beautiful winter weather will be shown, and we will talk about equipment, areas to ski, and activities offered this winter.

Starting in January, Touch of Nature will offer weekend clinics in which persons will learn how to cross country ski. Each clinic will consist of a Friday evening session covering equipment, clothes, and food and safety. Saturday will be spent learning flat land techniques, and will end with a short tour. Sunday, participants will learn uphill and downhill techniques, and will take a longer tour.

The classes are taught at Touch of Nature, and the tours take place in Giant City State Park. The cost is $24 if you rent equipment from Touch of Nature, or $12 if you have your own equipment.

For persons who like to combine cross country skiing with winter camping, there will be two opportunities this winter. The first is a 10-day expedition to Vermont, Jan. 11-20. The group will ski into Green Mountain National Forest with all necessary gear, set up a base camp, and go on day tours in the area, along with learning winter skills such as building snow caves and igloos.

The cost of the trip is $270 with Touch of Nature equipment, and $210 with your own equipment.

Wrestlers to test skills in opener

Youth is something that many coaches like to have as a base for the future, but dread having to rely on immediately. Not so with Saluki wrestling Coach Linn Long, however.

Although Long's squad is young and made up of a number of freshmen, he is confident about their ability to have a successful season.

"Our wrestlers have set some good goals for themselves and our team," Long said. "I think they've been fruitful in the way they've been practicing and conditioning."

"Some of our freshmen came into practice in sloppy condition, but they have been working hard to get themselves in better physical shape."

Long said many times a talented wrestler will come out of high school and will not do well in college. Long said also that such isn't the case with his team.

"I feel very positive about about the group of athletes we have this year," Long said. "They are very interested in wrestling. For a majority of them, it has become the No. 1 thing.

"Most of the team is really into wrestling as more than just a sport. It has become almost a way of life."

One of the mainstays for the Salukis this year will be sophomore Bill Ameen. Last season, the Midwest City, Okla., native racked up a 20-11 record, including a trip to the NCAA's in the 190-pound weight class.

Ameen, a former Oklahoma all-stater who went 30-0 his senior year, finished with a 2-2 record in NCAA competition. Long said Ameen is expecting another good year for himself.

"Bill is expecting a lot of himself this year," Long said. "I'll be around to help remind him of his goals in case he's not living up to his own expectations, but I know how dedicated he is to his sport."

Ameen will compete in the 177-pound class this year, a significant drop from his weight last season.

Long said the rest of his team has talent and experience also.

"Each individual on our team is pretty unique based on his background in high school,"

Long said. "Although many of them haven't had any college competition before, they have good, strong experience behind them."

The Salukis will have their first opportunity of the season to test their skills when the wrestlers travel to the Midwest Takedown tournament in Huntington, Ind., Saturday. The tournament will be scored on an individual basis, with no team scores kept.

"The tournament was set up to award the individuals," Long said. "There will be three minute periods in the tournament instead of the longer eight or nine minutes. A lot can be done in those three minutes, however. Besides, it is still very early in the season."

Long said that the takedown tourney would help to strengthen his team for the upcoming dual meet season.

West Texas coach refuses to lose faith

Faith. Some say it is an overused word with a nebulous meaning. To Bill Yung, however, faith has kept his West Texas State team in contention for the Missouri Valley conference football title.

The players' faith in themselves and each other has allowed the Buffaloes to rebound from a 1-4 start and remain undefeated in conference play, according to the third-year coach.

Yung said his faith in his players and God kept him from panicking when West Texas State lost its fourth game in a row after beating SIU to begin the season.

"I have two views on pressure," Yung said. "You can throw up your hands or you can go crazy changing this thing and that thing. My faith is equal to perfect peace. I believed the Lord would give me the right words to say to the guys.

"We didn't panic," Yung continued. "We coached in a positive manner."

Yung believes in accentuating the positive. Consequently, he said he isn't concerned with what people say about a first-place team that has a 4-5-1 overall record. He looks not at what the record is, but of how his club rallied from 1-4 to get there.

"The name of the game is to win the MVC championship," Yung said. "It's been our goal all season. A lot of people never get the chance. Some teams get whacked real good and give up."

West Texas State was one of those teams which could have given up after the fifth game of the season. Penalties, fumbles less than two yards away from the goal line and a field goal kick that hit the upright led to losses to Texas-Arlington, McNeese State and Southwestern Louisiana.

The Buffaloes then were thrashed by Houston, now ranked fifth according to the latest polls, 49-10. The team was 1-4. It could have been the coup de grace.

"We tried to point to the positive aspects of the Houston game," Yung said. "We scored more points and made more yards on them than SMU (Southern Methodist University) and Baylor did."

"Although our defense was knocked around a bit, we felt we learned things," Yung added.

Porter guided by Christianity Coach believes soccer should be 12th sport

By Rod Smith Staff Writer

For thousands of amateur athletes around the world, competing in the Olympics represents years of strenuous training and is ultimate goal of a lifetime.

For Greg Porter, a former four-time, All-America swimmer for SIU, his successes in the pool and his quest to join the U.S. Olympic Team are secondary in his life to his Christian beliefs.

"When I moved to Hinsdale and began to see my times drop, competing in the Olympics was my ultimate goal," Porter said. "But when I became a Christian three years ago, I began looking at my goals as a way to give glory to Jesus Christ through swimming."

Porter, who plans to graduate with a degree in physical education in December, is presently student teaching at Lincoln Junior High School in Carbondale. He is training five days a week in his specialty, the 100-meter butterfly, for the Olympic trials in June.

Porter is acting as a student assistant to Coach Bob Steele also, and is a member of the Columbia Swim Club in Maryland.

"When I was a freshman here, I swam well. Swimming became my God. My happiness was determined by how well I performed," Porter said. "I became frustrated with my sophomore year, but a friend of mine in Hinsdale told me a passage from the Bible that enlightened me. 'Those who are in Christ are a new creation, old things have passed away, new things have come.'"

David Swenson, another former Saluki swimmer, created a Bible study group with some other teammates.

"I really enjoy sharing fellowship and the love of Christ with others," Porter said.

Porter's career goal is to join the staff of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, a nationwide organization with local chapters involved with high schools, universities and professional teams. The position would deal with organization of chapters and activities and discussion with others as to the Christian way of life.

Porter said he is thankful he came to SIU. He was planning to attend Louisiana State University until Steele came to visit at his home.

"I was impressed with his diligence," Porter said. "I also saw how Mike Salerno dropped his times considerably. Bob had really improved him."

"Steele is really a great coach and our teams were always very close," Porter added. "We've had good student support for our team, better than anywhere else I've been, including Indiana."

In the indoor nationals of the NCAA, Porter qualified first in the 100 yard butterfly and finished third in the finals that night. Porter said it was a great moment, but added that it is hard to pinpoint any one accomplishment which stands out most.

"Just being able to compete is enough," Porter said. "I think the greatest thing I've gained from swimming is meeting other swimmers from here and other countries. I've also learned what being dedicated really is, and how it feels when you've really done your very best."

Porter, who holds school records in the 100 and 200 yard butterfly, spends about two hours a day in the water, and works out every day in the weight room in his attempt to join the Olympic swim team.

"I'm training long course, which they swim in the Games," Porter said. "The sessions are laid back now, but will accelerate just before the trials."

"I was doing heavy dead weight, but I was getting too tight in the upper body," Porter added. "I've been concentrating on the lower body, developing my legs and trying to gain flexibility in my upper body."

The Olympic trials will be held at the University of Texas at Austin. Porter said Texas has a new pool which is "fast" due to its depth and good gutter system. The gutters are designed to keep the waves from hitting against the swimmer.

Porter must finish in the top three in the 100-meter butterfly to make the Olympic team. If he finishes first, he also would be included on a medley relay team.

Although University officials expressed interest in adding water polo as the 12th sport in the men's program, Roy Inglis believes soccer should be the chosen.

With little money and small fanfare, the soccer club has struggled for good success in recent years, according to Inglis, coach of the club. Inglis believes soccer is heading for the limelight at SIU. He added the sport has enjoyed tremendous growth nationally for over a decade.

"In my mind, there's no doubt whatsoever," Inglis said of the choice of soccer at the 12th sport. "Soccer's the one they (people) want. There would be an outrage if soccer didn't make it."

It became evident that soccer might not make it Monday. Gale Sayers, director of men's athletics, and Jerry Lacey, associate vice president for University relations, said $30,000 would be needed to add soccer as the 12th sport at meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee, and that the men's athletics budget could not afford such an outlay. Sayers and Lacey believe it will cost no more than $8,000 to add water polo. SIU must add another sport to the men's program for the 1980-81 season to remain in Division I-A.

The soccer club has been successful, according to Inglis. Last year, SIU was the only club entered in the 12-team Eastern Illinois indoor tournament. The team is confident it can capture the title if it is invited back this year.

In September, the club hosted Leicester of England. SIU battled the visitors to a 4-4 tie.

"There was a lot of open-eyed reaction," Inglis said. People asked where England, Illinois believes soccer should be was England. They couldn't believe it was England."

The club works on a $1,000 budget provided to them by the University. Inglis said the lack of funds sharply limits the amount of traveling the team can do.

Inglis said the team loses many potential athletes because it is unable to give scholarships. Because the competition in the region is strong and SIU can't lure the best athletes, Inglis said the club is losing ground steadily. He added that the stronger teams avoid playing SIU because it is only a club.

"St. Louis University, SIU, Edwardsville, Indiana, and Indiana State all have major programs," Inglis said. "They can offer their athletes scholarships. We can't."

"St. Louis plays some of the best soccer in the country," Inglis continued. "For some reason, they shun us. If a powerhouse loses to us, they're embarrassed. If they win, they prove nothing."

Inglis believes if soccer is made an intercollegiate sport, it could flourish in a short number of years.

In four to six years — I believe it wouldn't take that long — we will have a well-established program which would have to be ranked very high nationally," Inglis said. "When Indiana started its program, it became the national champions in 3 1-2 years."
