Austerity now reality as school needs grow

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

As one SIU administrator put it, "we're sweating it."

These days "sweating it" and "belt tightening" are recurring phrases among University administrators and department heads who are trying to reconcile burgeoning academic needs with dwindling budget allocations.

The belt tightening is being felt throughout the academic body as austerity ceases to be an abstract term and becomes a reality.

Experimental animals in the psychology department may have to be sacrificed. There will be fewer trips and no new instruments for SIU music groups. Skippy scenery and costumes will be the bill of fare for opera productions. Pigs from the SIU farms will go to market early to save on the feed bill.

At most offices it is not as easy to "xerox off a few copies" of things as it was in the past. Pencils, pens, paper and other commodities are kept under lock and key. Use of telephones, especially for long distance calls, is closely monitored.

The general mood seems to be one of apprehensive optimism that the cuts can be dealt with for a year or two as long as they don't increase.

But where administrators differ in their appraisals of the difficulty caused by the present cuts, they unanimously say that living with additional budget reductions would be impossible.

Although the need for reductions in personnel, equipment and the rest is generally accepted with varying degrees of resignation, most administrators point out that austerity can be lived with for a year or two but after that the education process will suffer.

The budget for SIU at Carbondale last year was $42,697,000 and is $44,394,000 this year. Of these amounts $28,271,000 went for instruction and departmental research while this year the instruction allocation was reduced some $2.1 million to $26,129,000.

Clifford Burger, Board of Trustees financial officer, pointed out that these figures are somewhat deceptive in that they don't consider the various central operations and units which were transferred to the Carbondale campus as part of decentralization.

Considering the allocations these units would bring with them, Burger said the instruction allocation is relatively less than it appears to be.

Most departments have fewer graduate assistants, research assistants and faculty as cuts made last year in personnel, especially first term appointees, take effect.

Restrictions on student workers and the number of hours they may work is hampering many departmental functions. Exemptions to the 35 hour work period for student workers are being sought by various organizations in the University.

These requests will have to be reviewed before any decision is made, according to Frank C. Adams, program director of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

W.E. Keeper, dean of the School of Agriculture, said his school is trying to comply with the hour limitations except where special skills are needed, for example by milkers.

Charles Hinderman, dean of the School of Business, said budget allocations for salaries have dropped from $1,566,000 last year to $1,398,000 for staff and from $34,000 to $28,500 for students.

Gus says if they cut you in the right place, your population would be down, too.

"The loss of manpower has been the most important effect of the budget problems for us," Hinderman said, adding that while the school is trying to cooperate with the realities of the situation, reductions in budget allocations beyond those already made would cause serious problems for the school.

The further reductions Hinderman speaks of in part stem from a directive from the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) asking state universities for lists of non-priority programs within their colleges, schools and departments to total 15 per cent of operating budget allocations. The IBHE aim is to trim higher education spending requests even further.

Administrators who were upset at the 10 per cent budget cuts made last year are now reeling under the pressure to single out programs for possible reduction or elimination.

David Ehrenfreund, chairman of the Department of Psychology, said cuts have been absorbed across the board in psychology with no drastic effects yet. But he is apprehensive of further budget reductions.

"I hate to think of what the situation would be with an additional 15 per cent cut," he said.

The number of credit hours the department generates has increased several thousand during 1969-71 with no increase in funds to handle this, he said. This increased teaching load and reductions in staff and students workers have caused a situation where "in some cases some students may not be getting as good an education as before," Ehrenfreund said.

Reductions in equipment and supplies have hurt lab classes, he said, but "none have been dropped."

The reduction in student workers and general budget austerity has also affected the department's experimental animals. Because of the lack of funds and people to care for the animals, some of them may have to be sacrificed. Ehrenfreund said this has not become necessary yet but could happen this year.

The anthropology department is expanding rather than cutting down its programs. Edwin Cook, chairman, said general revamping and expansion of the undergraduate program is scheduled because of problems with the previous program.

He said the department has received cuts along with all the others but this has not caused drastic problems. However, if anthropology gets cut 15 per cent "we most likely would not be able to expand the program, but I think this is highly unlikely," Cook said.

Micro-teaching is one program the College of Education offers which is suffering from the budget squeeze. The program which features video-taping of student teachers in action is not being used now "to the extent we would want," said Dean L. Stuck, assistant dean.

The School of Music is also doing some reducing of programs. Robert House, director, said he is particularly worried about reducing programs of music clinics and visiting artists. Cuts in activity funds which support the band, orchestra and choirs have "severely crippled" them, he said.

The budget allocation for opera productions has been cut in half.

"We'll keep going but the scenery and costumes will be pretty skimpy," he said.

Reductions in equipment allocations are also causing a hardship. In addition to curtailing the performing schedule of the groups and cutting out trips, uniforms, music and instruments cannot be replaced as had been planned.

House pointed out that equipment is usually replaced a little at a time but that several years of reduced funds could mean that nearly all equipment will need replacement at once. "We can live with it for two or three years but then the situation will get drastic," he said.

Switch on!

A. Frank Bridges, retired director of SIU Civil Defense, threw the switch inaugurating the improved Civil Defense siren warning system Tuesday. Three additional sirens were recently added to the system so the blasts would be audible indoors. The five sirens will sound at 10:30 a.m. on the first Tuesday of each month. ## SIU enrollment drops

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

For the first time since 1951, enrollment at SIU has decreased, according to figures released Tuesday by Loren Jung, director of institutional research.

Jung said the total decrease was about six per cent over 1970, with 22,382 students enrolled this fall, 1,461 fewer than last year.

Jung added that undergraduate enrollment stands at 19,490, a decrease of 1,198, and that there are 2,892 graduate students, 263 less than last year.

President Robert G. Lyster said a number of factors might be responsible for the decrease.

He said the combination of economic hardships, particularly for low income families, and the increasing availability and development of junior colleges have convinced some students to "get their college education at home, rather than at a large university."

Lyster added that the pressure on high school graduates to go to college is not as great as it has been in recent years. He said that many parents have changed their notions about higher education, with the emphasis now being more on vocational training instead of academic development.

Lyster said that throughout the nation there is a decline in college enrollments, seen in metropolitan public schools as well. He said the large number of campus enrollments in recent years was due to the enormous "baby boom" after World War II.

Now, he said, the maturation of World War II babies has peaked, and "we should see a general period of leveling off in enrollments."

Ed Hammond, assistant to the president for student relations, agreed that the increased availability of junior colleges was a significant factor in the lower enrollment figures. But, he added, tuition increases and the disturbances of May, 1970, may also have contributed to the drop.

Hammond added that changes in the enrollment pattern for SIU are in accordance with the policy of the Illinois Board of Higher Education. He said one of the main points of Master Plan, Phase III, is for SIU to limit its growth pattern and specialize in upper division graduate and research studies.

City Council hears views on blockage

By David L. Mahman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The City Council chambers at Carbondale City Hall overflowed into the hall Tuesday night with people wanting to express their opinion on what to do about weekend street blockage on South Illinois Avenue.

Some specific suggestions were made in an attempt to alleviate the problem, but most discussion centered around whether or not highway traffic should be rerouted.

Health Service may collapse without more funds--Clark

By Sue Miller
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If the Health Service continues to operate in the manner it has in the past, it may soon collapse, according to Dr. Walter Clark, director of the University Health Service.

Increases in the number of patients without proportionate increases in operating funds has caused the crisis, Clark said. Clark said the Health Service has not received a student activity fee increase since Aug. 7, 1964, when fees were raised by $1. The only other additions to revenue have been made through the increase in enrollment.

Since February, 1965, several unsuccessful pleas were made to increase the amount given to the Student Medical Benefit. Presently $4.15 out of the $16 activity fee goes for health care.

Clark said no provision have been made for the increased cost of living since 1964. "No business can operate on a seven-year-old budget," he said.

Last year the Health Service had a $64,689 deficit. "If the Student Medical Benefit (activity fee) increase to $7 comes too late, the added funds will have to go to pay off the deficit from the previous year," Clark said.

Clark said during the '70-'71 fiscal year there were 54,765 patient visits. On the average that's 250-300 appointments per day.

The total budget for the Health Service is $806,151.53 with $400,002.47 figure coming from the Student Medical Benefit. The remaining $397,659.46 comes from the state.

In the past, much of the opposition to raising the fees has come from the stipulation that compulsory hospitalization insurance was included in the increase.

Clark said many colleges and universities already have compulsory insurance programs. He said Harvard University students pay over $100 per semester and Kansas State University has a $20 fee for health care.

"We basically offer the same benefits these two schools do with the exception of hospitalization and time per patient," he said. In the long run, Clark said compulsory insurance is less expensive.

Some possible alternatives to the problem are: extra charges for x-rays, pap smears, cast dressings and emergency room fees; a satellite health care unit; possible closure of the emergency room and requiring all women interested in obtaining contraceptives to get advanced counseling. Clark estimated that $111,000 could be made in chest x-rays alone.

He said that the satellite health service has been established and will be ready to operate very shortly. It is located on Marion Street, about one block east of Washington Square. The 'mini-health service' will have four examining rooms and will be staffed by registered nurses.

Clark said hopefully the Health Service won't have to make any more appointments for upper respiratory diseases. Most upper respiratory diseases cannot be cured by medication. "But you can't convince people of that because we are such a pill conscious nation," he said.

He went on to say that part of the problem lies with doctors all over the country. Too often medicine is prescribed just because the patient wants it, Clark said.

This becomes a crisis situation when there is only one doctor to every 3500 people, as it is at the Health Service, and a community conditioned to go to a doctor for simple ailments, Clark said.

The 'mini-health service' would provide a screening service to help identify the acutely ill. He said those who are acutely ill will be referred to the on-campus Health Service.

Another suggestion that may help lighten the overcrowding is to increase the appointment time. Clark said originally the 10 minute appointment system was used to increase efficiency. He said the result was that the Health Service became too efficient. Students who formerly didn't bother to come because of the long wait now could afford the 10 or 20 minutes it took to get in and out.

A schedule is being set up so that long term appointments will be fewer and harder to get. Because patients who require something like a pelvic examination take up more time. Last year 1239 pelvises were performed. "We simply can't afford to do this anymore," he said.

Clark said in general his whole staff is unhappy because they are not given the opportunity to practice medicine the way they were trained, in terms of quality. He said several members of his staff have either turned in their resignation or mentioned that they are thinking about it.

He said the Health Service staff feels they have been let down by the students. Most of the doctors at the Health Service had successful practices and took quite a pay cut when they came to the University.

He said now his staff is so disgruntled that most of them no longer get the satisfaction that should come from their jobs.

Clark also said he was aware that the Health Service did not have a good reputation, but said that was par for most university health services. He said people associate anything free or inexpensive with poor quality, but that the situation would only get worse if there was no fee increase.

'Lib groups' bringing new pressures

From a speech by William J. McGill, president, Columbia University. Reprinted from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Sept. 26, 1971.

The radicalization of the campus was always a kind of game, and suddenly last year it seemed to be over. The techniques will of course continue to be used, and many difficulties will surely continue to appear in isolated circumstances, but the difficulties will not become the cataclysmic problems for universities which they once were.

Campus tensions, however, are not diminishing; they are changing. Our students are no longer displaying bitter anger with society. Instead we are witnessing a new and powerful growth of a variety of narrowly defined "liberation movements" peculiarly related to the avant-garde character of campus life. These movements provide a new system of tensions. They are bound eventually to have a profound influence on the larger society. The universities are being asked to assume leadership in this new service to society because no other part of society is as responsive to social change as we are.

We are witnessing the rapid growth on campus of sensitive alienated groups, each pressing for a special identity and using techniques of confrontation in order to achieve a sense of personal freedom. The idea is not to seek acceptance or assimilation but to close ranks with your own kind in order to feel free. A multitude of such groups is now visible on campus. They are in mutual competition and in joint contention with administrators who, it is claimed, are insensitive to them. I believe that our universities are furnishing an important model for a developing pluralism in society at large.

The process began several years ago in confrontations with black students over the intellectual and fiscal resources that universities were willing to devote to black studies. Largely influenced by our academic conservatism, we were unwilling to engage in large-scale efforts in ethnic studies as demanded by black students. The black students then forced the issue by confrontations and threats of violence and we changed in a hurry.

Other groups harboring similar, although perhaps less intense, feelings of alienation and lack of identity, watched the effort conducted by organized black students very closely. They are now moving to define their own status. These groups have copied the combination of confrontation and moral pressure used by the blacks in achieving their objectives. In the last several years such groups have begun to spin off from the campus radical movement, setting up narrowly defined liberation movements based on highly particularized forms of social change.

At Columbia this year, for example, we find a tightly organized Puerto Rican Students' Union advocating socialism and independence on the island. Last year we went through a number of tough interactions with these students because they viewed us as hostile to their radical politics, and because we were unwilling to tolerate their efforts to suppress the views of Puerto Rican history different from their own.

We are also dealing with organized women's rights groups attempting to correct centuries of intellectual discrimination provided by the social role which Western society has accorded to women. There will be much struggle over this problem because our correction processes are notoriously slow and our critics are not merely impatient. They have immensely powerful federal support manifested in repeated threats by Government agencies to cut off our federal grant support unless we produce affirmative action programs satisfactory to the agencies involved.

At Columbia homosexuals have organized to free themselves from political and social discrimination. Such discrimination exists, as you know. Columbia's gay movement thus has considerable external political support in seeking to find attention and status on campus. Walking the narrow line between genuine concern for the civil rights of homosexuals and alumni outrage over the thought of organized homosexual activity on the Columbia campus is an art that I have not yet quite mastered.

As the liberation movements develop, we must seek earnestly to play our leadership role in building a new society sensitive to the aspirations of previously excluded groups. We are prepared to do this by using all the university's resources to discover the forms of institutional pluralism compatible with stable institutional functioning. If the latter is our criterion, I believe it would be wise to attempt to manage the inevitable conflicts associated with such discovery by constructing formal mechanisms which would insure a fair hearing for both sides with formal mediation procedures conducted on campus while the testing is going on. One of the greatest achievements of American law has been construction of the rules of orderly conflict between management and labor embodied in our now classical concepts of labor law. We need a closely related legal framework for working with social change and with the conflicts engendered by the variety of liberation movements now developing on campus.

We do not now have such formal procedures. Thus for a while we may safely expect much agitation, much pressure for liberation, and repeated tense confrontations. If somewhere someone slips in the heat of such action we may again see occasional outbursts of real violence.

"Peace"

Letters to the editor

Explanation wanted

To the Daily Egyptian

With the dawning of the Age of Shoeboxes and Racetracks, the academic community has apparently succumbed to equally nebulous actions being taken by the Presidential Selection Committee of the SIU Board of Trustees. The dearth of scholarly capability in the present Board seems an acceptable excuse for the lack of faculty-staff protest of asinine acts and decisions. The hiring of the Quaintance mercenary headhunters was repugnant, unprofessional, and unnecessary.

The preeminent objection to hiring mercenaries is based on ethical considerations. National Placement organizations such as the College Placement Council (CPC) and the Association for School, College, and University Staffing (ASCUS) have opposed use of employment agencies due to their tactics. The use of an employment agency has done irreparable harm to the entire university community.

Another objection stems from the paradox of spending exorbitant sums of money for unnecessary expenses while releasing nearly 200 graduate assistants, secretaries, instructors, student workers and others on term appointments. Unemployment in Southern Illinois is reaching crisis proportions yet the Board feels justified in furnishing housing, paying utilities expenses, paying ridiculous club memberships (country clubs, Missouri Athletic Club, Stadium Club, et al), and inflating salaries and titles of a chosen ambitious few. The use of a mercenary simply adds insult to injury for the many who lost their jobs. In simplistic terms, Quaintance's $30,000 plus would support approximately seven graduate assistants or 25 student workers; James Brown's $33,000 salary, plus $15,000 in repairs, plus about $10,000 in utilities and ground expenses, would support approximately 25 TA's, 75 student workers, or about eight full-time instructors for one year. Certainly the individuals reaping excessive salaries are to be envied, but the conviction held by most of us flunkies is that based on today's cost of living there is no individual worth greater than $30,000 at any university. The institution supposedly exists for a scholarly mission, not for capitalistic gold-digging.

A third objection is the damage done to the persons presently at SIU who are overly qualified for selecting a President. One example is Dr. Royce R. Bryant who is the only person to have served as national president of both the CPC and the ASCUS organizations. Other examples such as the faculty selection committee members are apparent but were also given the backhand. The five candidates selected by the faculty committee are now in better positions and were not aggressively pursued.

Is there some explanation?

Safety reminder

To the Daily Egyptian

The Safety Committee Chairmen from the various Carbondale elementary schools and myself, as Safety Chairman of the Carbondale Council of the PTA, feel there are several safety problems that should be brought to the attention of all readers. These safety problems concern pedestrians, bicycle drivers, children who ride buses, motorcyclists, and automobile drivers.

One problem that concerns us is the illegal action of vehicles to pass stopped school buses. It is illegal for any vehicle, bicycle, motorcycle, or automobile, moving in either direction, to pass a stopped school bus. A city ordinance was passed last year making it illegal and any violator is subject to police action. Anyone who observes a driver passing a stopped school bus should be willing to report the license number to police as well as identify the driver.

A second problem concerns bicycle drivers: I want to remind bicycle drivers that they are subject to all traffic regulations while they are driving on the street. They are to drive in their proper traffic lane, observe one-way traffic laws and all other regulations for vehicles on the street. It is especially important to drive in the proper lane of traffic and move in the correct direction. I, myself have had some near-tragedies where on a one-way street I suddenly was confronted with a bicycle moving toward me in my lane of traffic.

A third point to be stressed is that all parents should be certain that their children know the correct pedestrian safety practices to follow. Some rules to follow are to cross carefully only at intersections or crosswalks and whenever possible cross where there are crossing guards. Walk on sidewalks whenever possible and avoid walking on the street except when crossing.

Everyone should be safety conscious for the other person whether he be driving or walking, as well as for himself. Be certain to follow all traffic laws because they are written for your own safety.

Carbondale Council

Water for Carbondale will cost $6.7 million

Editor's note: This is the second of three articles concerning the Cedar Creek reservoir project. This section deals with the design and financing of Carbondale's future water supply.

Construction of Cedar Creek reservoir, Carbondale's proposed new water supply, is expected to begin in November.

Total estimated cost for the project is $6.7 million. Of this amount, the federal department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has granted $1.5 million and has provided a low interest loan of $1 million. In addition, the U.S. Forest Service would supply $600,000 to purchase a required portion of land on the south end of the lake. The remaining $3.6 million would come from a revenue bond issue.

The $3.6 million backed by the city would be placed in series "A" bonds, while the $1 million HUD loan will be placed in series "B" bonds, according to Bill Schwegman, director of public works. The interest is estimated at 5 1/4 per cent on the guaranteed loan, Schwegman said.

The Report on Raw Water and Transmission Facilities, prepared by Stanley Consultants Inc., an engineering consulting firm, lists two plans for carrying water to Carbondale's existing and proposed water treatment plants.

Plan A is a conventional system with pumping station and pipelines at an estimated cost of $3,014,000, the report said. Plan B, costing $2,231,000 would involve pumping water from Cedar Creek reservoir over the ridge, using Piles Fork as a waterway to recharge Carbondale reservoir as a raw water storage basin, it said. Both plans include a flood control reservoir for the protection of downstream areas, the report said.

These prices would include the land acquisition, preliminary expense for repairs to the existing Carbondale reservoir spillway, engineering, legal and administrative costs and allowances for interest on interim financing during construction, according to the report.

Plan A new construction would include a pumping station at Cedar Creek reservoir, a pipeline to existing and proposed water treatment plants and a flood retarding basin around Carbondale reservoir, it said.

Preliminary design

The preliminary design for the pumping station would call for an initial installation of two, eight million gallons per day (mgd) pumps and four one mgd pumps, it said. Provisions for future installations of two additional eight mgd pumps would be included, the report said.

Plan B is most beneficial, according to the reports by Stanley Consultants Inc., because it would offer better flood protection, improvement in raw water quality and would be compatible with recreational development around the lake at lower cost.

It said new construction for Plan B would include a pumping station at Cedar Creek reservoir; a pipeline to headwaters of Piles Fork, improvements to Piles Fork Channel, flood retarding basin above Carbondale reservoir, an outlet structure at Carbondale reservoir; and a gravity main to the proposed and existing water treatment plants.

Two dam structures are proposed and both reservoirs would contain storage for municipal water supply and flood control, the report said.

Structure no. 1 would contain two mgd, it said, while structure no. 2 would contain 12 mgd. Storage capacity would be 3,761 ac.-ft. for structure no. 1, it said, while that for structure no. 2 would be 17,415 ac.-ft.

This green valley will soon be filled with blue water of the Cedar Creek reservoir. Covering 1,750 acres and reaching a maximum depth of 45 feet, the lake promises not only a new water supply for Carbondale, but a new home for some of those famous Southern Illinois bass.

Structure no. 1 would take two years to build, it said, while construction for structure no. 2 would take one-and-one-half years. Since there is an immediate need for water, it said, construction of structure no. 2 will begin immediately with plans being made for the future building of structure no. 1.

Intake and pumping facilities would either be an impoundment structure or would be located in the reservoir pool connected to the dam with a foot bridge, it said. Power would be provided by either of two power sources, it said, or one power source along with a standby diesel engine.

More work planned

The report said construction of an 11 mgd facility is also contemplated. It said the facilities would be built in the following order: reservoir structure no. 2, raw water pumping, transmission lines, water treatment plant, high service pumping, expansion of treated water pumping, expansion of water treatment plant, high service pumping expansion and reservoir structure no. 1.

Structure no. 2 will impound waters of Cedar Creek and Clay Lick Creek, it said, southward almost to the southern border of Pomona Township.

According to the Report on Cedar Creek Dam and Reservoir, by Stanley Consultants, Dams no. 2 and no. 4 are the preferred sites for construction.

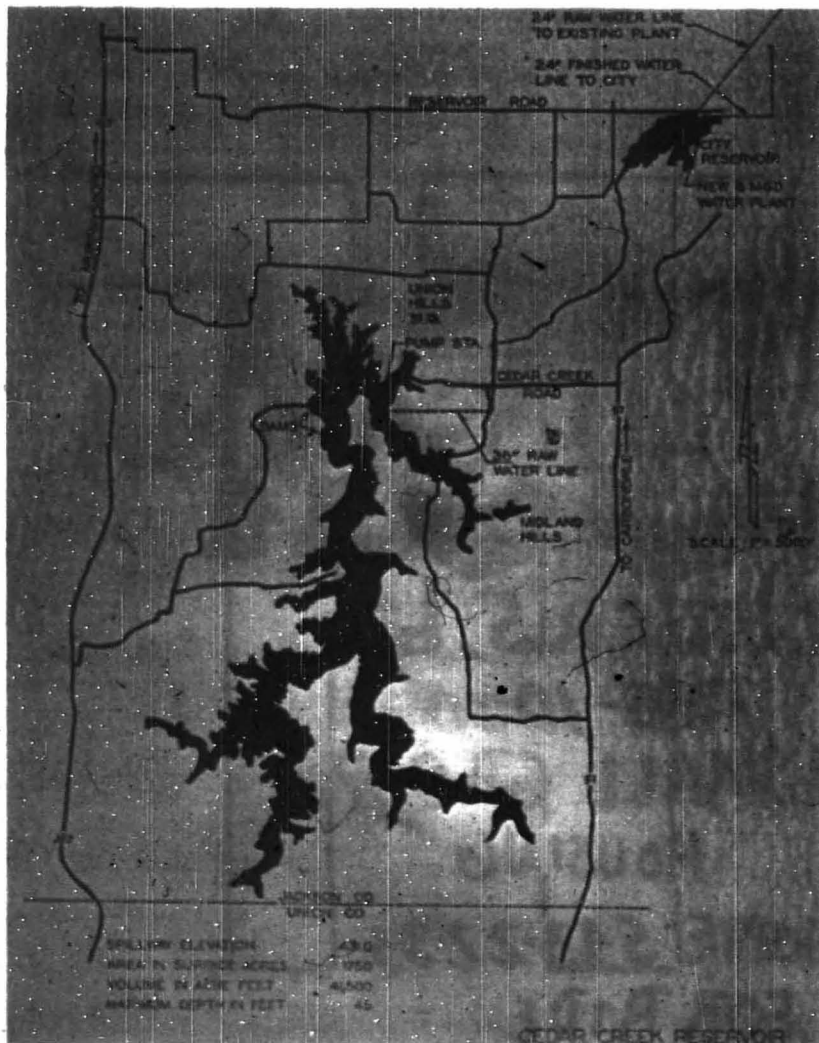

Preliminary designs of both dams are similar, the dam and reservoir report said. Dam no. 4 would consist of a main dam, it said, and a saddle dam of earth construction. Exposed top and downstream faces would be seeded and mulched.

Spillway provided

Riprap and bedding would protect the upper half of the upstream slope from erosion and rodent penetration, the report said. The service spillway would be a concrete structure located in the saddle dam, it said, with a 72-inch coated steel or reinforced concrete pipe through the dam leading to an energy dissipator. A spillway will be provided and miscellaneous construction would include an access road, improvements of off-site roads to replace an existing road to be inundated and relocation of an electric power transmission line across the reservoir site, the report said.

Dam no. 2 would have a cross-sectional design similar to the main dam site no. 4, it said, in that this would be an earth dam with a similar spillway. Miscellaneous construction would include an access road to the dam site, it said.

Sometime in the early 1980's, according to present water use projections, Mayor Neal Eckert said the city would need to construct a new water treatment plant at an estimated cost of $4.7 million. Money for this project could come from the excess funds accumulated by the bond coverage, he said.

The Social Work Club will hold an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Social Welfare Program Office, 806 S. Elizabeth. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Col. Paul E. Coke, new commandant of Air Force ROTC Area E which includes the AFROTC program at SIU, visited the Carbondale campus recently.

Col. Coke, whose headquarters are at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, was accompanied on a campus tour and to conferences by Col. C.R. Carlson, commander of the SIU detachment.

Ronald W. Stadt, chairman, and Dennis C. Nystrom, assistant professor, in the Department of Occupational Education, School of Engineering and Technology have been selected by the Illinois Division of Vocational and Technical Education to serve as team leaders for Phase III of the division three-phase system for statewide evaluation of occupational education programs.

Stadt and Nystrom are among 25 occupational educators named to direct teams to assess the effectiveness of occupational programs at secondary and post-secondary levels throughout the state. Seventy-five secondary and post-secondary programs will be evaluated this school year. Team leaders will have primary responsibility for organizing the visitation.

An exhibition and sale of original graphic art is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center.

Presented in cooperation with Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore, Md., the exhibit will include a collection of original etchings, woodcuts and lithographs by Picasso, Baskin, Anuszkiewicz, Daumier, Kollwitz, Goya and others.

A book co-edited by Arthur E. Lean and the late Douglas Lawson, both former deans of the College of Education, has gone international. The book, "John Dewey and the World View," has been published by Editorial Nova of Buenos Aires, Argentina in a New Library of Education series. The Spanish translation is by Denise Rivero.

Originally published by the SIU Press in hard cover in 1964, the book was reissued in the Arcturus paperback series by SIU Press in 1966.

The book grew out of the Dewey Centennial programs on the campus in 1959, co-sponsored by the College of Education and the Department of Philosophy.

SIU feels the effects of dwindling budget

C. Horton Talley, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said the effect of the cuts on some things is yet to be determined but that generally the college is not being drastically hurt by the cuts.

"We will only be able to replace the absolute necessities where equipment is concerned and can't go in any new direction in programs right now," he said.

He said the college is in good shape concerning faculty because while the University has declined in the number of students enrolled, the college has increased its enrollment, and so maintained its need and number of faculty.

Thomas Jefferson, dean of the School of Engineering and Technology, said the biggest effect of the cuts on his school is the reduction in equipment allocation to five per cent of what it was last year.

The completion of some projects has had to be postponed and the school will no longer use a computer terminal located in the Technology Building complex.

"I think we can survive for the short term on this sort of thing but if it continues very long we'll be in real trouble," Jefferson said.

He said the school has the advantage of having much new equipment and so less need for replacement.

"I think we're still running a quality program," he said.

Kepper said the School of Agriculture has had to reduce some of its herds over the past year which in turn reduces their value for research. The school is still recovering from the effects of the corn blight on its feed supply, he said.

In another effort to adjust to the budget cuts, the school is selling its pigs as feeder pigs rather than developing them as fat hogs in order to save in corn consumption, Kepper said.

John M.H. Olmsted, the dean of graduate studies and research, said cuts already made have had a harmful effect on graduate programs. He was apprehensive of the effects of further cuts.

"The very severe reduction in the amount of budget allocation for equipment has a paralyzing effect on individuals and departments where research work is going on," he said.

Ronald G. Hansen, associate dean and coordinator of research and projects, said the most immediate effect has been the reduction in research equipment which has caused some research programs to be delayed indefinitely or abandoned.

Research programs that have been hurt include several plant industries programs and the central electron microscope facility. Hansen pointed out that reductions in central support facilities, like the electron microscope facility, have a broad general effect on all research.

He said graduate assistantships and supplies have also been drastically reduced.

The reduction in research, graduate and teaching assistantships is still not entirely known yet, Hansen said, but he estimated that they are down about 15 per cent from last year.

Hansen said graduate studies has tried to distribute the 10 per cent cut uniformly over all individuals and programs.

"Any more cuts would mean selectively pruning whole programs in some cases. Anything more will really hurt us," he said.

Another problem voiced by several administrators is the rising cost of living. Departments have received no compensation for the rising cost of supplies, equipment and research, Hansen said, to technically this amount must be added to the other budget cuts.

"So actually we've had about a 30 per cent cut over the last two years. I don't know how we could handle another 15 per cent cut," Hansen said.

Roger Beyler, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, said the 10 per cent cut has been distributed throughout the different departments in that school.

He said that equipment allocations are down 95 per cent. "You can get along without these things for a year or two but then it cripples a program. It is a painful process, that is for sure," he said.

Draft numbers above 125 safe

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Men classified as 1A in this year's draft pool won't be called if their lottery numbers are over 125, but all with numbers below that can expect a summons, Selective Service officials announced Tuesday.

Earlier, draft officials had said men probably would be called with numbers as high as 140. But that was when 15,000 to 20,000, instead of 10,000, were expected to be drafted in the remaining months of this year.

Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr, in another change, said draftees will be given 30 days to report for induction rather than the 10-day minimum set down in law.

The 30-day notice means that nobody will be drafted this month. But the Pentagon's 10,000-man call will be split 6,500 between Nov. 1 and 18 and 3,500 between Nov. 29 and Dec. 9.

When the draft was suspended on June 30 there had been calls totaling 88,000 men called. Selective Service said it does not plan to make up the 4,000-man backlog.

Tarr, in another announcement, said he has ordered local and appeals boards to defer action on classification, personal appearances and appeals until new regulations on draft requirement provisions under the new draft law are drawn up.

New committee approved to benefit faculty and staff

The Governance Committee of the University Senate Monday approved, but did not recommend to the Senate, a resolution calling for the formation of a new joint standing committee to deal with faculty and staff benefits.

The new committee would be called the Campus Faculty and Staff Common Benefits Committee. It would incorporate the functions of the All University Common Faculty and Staff Benefits Committee into the governance system. Such programs as retirement and health insurance are under the committee's jurisdiction.

The proposed committee would consist of seven members: four from the administrative and professional staff, two from the faculty and one from the administration.

The Governance Committee did not act on a request from the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics to become a standing committee of the Senate. It is now a subcommittee of the Committee on Campus Management.

A problem with a National Collegiate Athletic Association rule is the main question. The NCAA requires that men's intercollegiate athletics be under faculty, administrative or a combination of faculty and administrative control. The problem is determining whether the University Senate would fit this requirement.

The composition of the Senate has 23 faculty and administrative representatives out of 50. There are four representatives from the administrative and professional staff. Members of the Governance Committee are unsure if these four can be classified as administration.

President Robert G. Leyer, a member of the Governance Committee, said he would call Walter Byars, executive secretary of the NCAA, for clarification.

Citizens air street views

Carbondale Police chief Joe Dakin said that police supervision would be needed on Illinois from Main to College, even if the street is closed. He cited breaking of glass, setting of fires, smoking marijuana and public drinking as reasons for his contention. He added that every Carbondale resident has the right to travel on Illinois Avenue.

On the other side of the fence, D.E. Christensen, chairman of the Carbondale Planning Commission, said he views the rerouting of traffic as a possible opportunity for the city. He said that intentional closing of Illinois Avenue may tell the city whether a passed proposal for a mall in the downtown area would work. He suggested that the city close the street for the next four weekends "and see what happens."

Bill Hitchcock, representing Merlins, a nightclub at 315 S. Illinois, admitted that much of the problem starts at his club, when 200 or 300 students pour out onto the street during band breaks.

As a possible solution to that problem, Hitchcock said he would convert the parking lot adjacent to the club into an area where bus patrons could go during breaks. He said he could have a fence erected around the area by Friday, and that movies or bands could be provided during break periods. The cost for the proposed conversion would be shared by the seven liquor dealers in the area. Mayor Neal Eckert said he would allow bus patrons to bring their drinks into the lot.

Other specific proposals were:

Ask the owners of the Dairy Queen, 508 S. Illinois, to convert part of their parking lot into a park area for their customers.

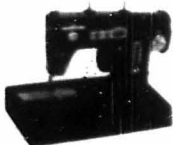

Request the use of the First National Bank parking lot adjacent to Dairy Queen for student activities.

Investigate possibilities of building a "mini-park" on land owned by the Illinois Central Railroad.

Develop currently unused land owned by the city or SIU into areas for student use.

Murray Banks is convo guest

Murray Banks, noted psychiatrist, author and lecturer, will be the guest speaker at convocation at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Arena.

Banks, a graduate of New York University and Columbia University, studied clinical psychopathology at Bellevue Hospital in New York City.

He has written several books including "Things My Mother Never Told Me" and "How to Overcome an Inferiority Complex."

Banks has also made a name for himself in the recording field. His records which are somewhat lighter material than his books include: "Just in Case You Think Your Normal," "The Drama of Sex," "A Love Lesson" and "How to Quit Smoking in Six Days or Drop Dead in Seven."

Before beginning his lecture series at various campuses, Banks was a full professor at Long Island University and Pace College in New York City. While at Pace College he was the chairman of the psychology dept. for five years.

He has been a visiting professor at the University of North Carolina, New York University, Temple University and others.

Banks has lectured in every

English speaking country in the world. One critic called his lecture "the most captivating, fascinating combination of psychology and humor ever heard."

He is considered a top platform speaker in this country. The lecture that Banks will give at convocation this Thursday has been given over 5,000 times, and is said to be the second most frequently given talk in the world.

After Convocation there will be a coffee hour sponsored by student government on the first floor of the Student Center.

City renewal coordinator resigns post

Gerald Osborne, a project coordinator in Carbondale's Division of Urban Renewal, has resigned saying that certain of the city's hired officials have not dealt openly with the urban renewal staff. Osborne's resignation becomes effective Oct. 31.

Osborne will assume a $19,000 per year post Nov. 1 as director of Peoria's three-year-old urban renewal project. Osborne's current salary is $12,805.

Osborne declined to specify officials for failing to deal openly with the urban renewal staff on issues critical to taxpayers.

He said that the staff had been promised they would be informed of events leading to the abolishment of the policy-making Community Conservation Board, but were told nothing.

"I've been here 14 years," said Osborne, who has held his current post for three years. "I feel I have to go to a city that appreciates the efforts its employees put forth."

Osborne last year filed a charge of unfair employment practices with the state's Fair Employment Practices Commission, saying his salary was not in keeping with his responsibilities and ability. The commission later dismissed the charges for lack of substantial evidence.

Medically-trained staff needed

Carbondale Free Clinic needs help

The Carbondale Free Clinic is sending out a call for help.

The clinic, which is located on east Jackson Street, is currently open on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6 to 9.

According to Dr. Bruce Hector, chief and only physician affiliated with the clinic, more help is required in order to increase the hours the clinic will be available to the public.

Dr. Hector said that maintenance, medical, secretarial, and general volunteers are encouraged to render their services, but should also be willing to take on some responsibility. He said people with any medical training are especially needed at the clinic.

Although outfitting the clinic with people is a grave problem, the biggest problem is that of gaining the acceptance of the Carbondale medical community. Besides Dr.

Hector, no other local physicians are affiliated with the clinic or want to be.

The clinic receives reimbursements from the government for certain medical examinations and medicine used in the treating of venereal diseases.

Since it was recognized by the Carbondale City Council, the clinic has its rent paid for by the city.

At certain times during the year, the clinic holds fund raising dances, usually in the Student Center. Otherwise the clinic depends solely on donations of money and services.

SIU police patrols end inside city

Students living off-campus but within the city limits will probably not see much of those familiar SIU security patrol cars around their neighborhoods this year.

Virgil F. Trummer, assistant security officer for SIU, said the off-campus patrolling by the University security police was discontinued and they are now restricted to patrolling outside the Carbondale city limits. Trummer added that University officers will give assistance in areas where it is requested by the city in special cases.

The off-campus patrolling was stopped as well as many other police actions performed by the SIU Security Office after a meeting last spring of local and SIU law enforcement agencies.

According to Trummer all police work and investigations on incidents which happen within the city limits of Carbondale will be handled by the city police. The reason for this, said Trummer is that the Carbondale Police Department has grown sufficiently to handle the areas once patrolled by the University police.

Trummer commented that the rapid growth of the University with its major affect on the town of Carbondale was the reason the SIU Security Office was helping the town until this time.

Trummer warned students not to under estimate the authority of the SIU security officers, who have the official powers of any sheriff or city officer in areas where the University owns property.

Black Greeks ask aid in funding social events

By Jay Needleman
Student Writer

Representatives from Black societies and fraternities asked the Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) Monday to fund social events that the black Greeks have planned for Homecoming Weekend.

Wenona Whitfield, adviser to the Panhellenic Council, said the black group was trying to secure funding that would give blacks an equal portion of the student activity fees. Paul Costello, chairman of the Homecoming Committee, said that there is a definite need for black programming.

The problem, Miss Whitfield said, is that the black societies and fraternities are the only organizations sponsoring social activities for blacks at SIU, and that the black Greeks had to foot the bill for all of these activities.

"Blacks are paying more for less," she said. Miss Whitfield explained that for blacks to have their own activities, they must pay double because all students pay the activity fee.

The black Greeks asked that the SGAC give them money to run their own separate programs. The Council agreed when Dotti Davis, co-chairman of the cultural affairs committee, said, "I don't dig separate activities."

SGAC chairman Tom Kelley said that both groups should separately discuss exactly what each desires and meet again at a later date.

The group of black Greeks left the meeting with one member saying, "It burns me up to come in here and beg white students for what belongs to us."

In other areas, the SGAC discussed its internal budget. They decided that the budget should be resubmitted at next Monday's meeting.

SGAC also discussed use of the new activity board located in the Student Center, resolving that any student who wishes an activity to be listed on the board should contact the SGAC office.

Correction

The organizational meeting for Alternative '72 will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Activity Rooms C and D of the Student Center.

MOVE seeks volunteers and ideas

By Pat Nussmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"The whole thing changes each quarter," M.O.V.E. consultant Michael Patrick said.

The Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE) is one in the process of obtaining volunteers and organizations to place them in for fall quarter.

MOVE is presently: "A student directed organization serving as a clearing house to coordinate students and staff volunteer efforts with service organizations on campus, in Carbondale and in surrounding communities," according to the MOVE booklet.

Eventually, however, Patrick sees the organization as going toward a social-problems orientation.

"We can start dealing with some more abstract problems, such as social injustice," he said.

"We may find out what we can do besides tutor and be big brothers," Patrick commented. "And we may also be forced to confront some of the problems, to do something about some of the problems."

Right now, the problem is finding people, telling them what MOVE is about and putting them where they want to be, Patrick said.

"We've got to get students to find out what we are and what we are trying to do," he said. "We can use people regardless of whether they can volunteer one hour or 20 hours a week."

Presently, many of the volunteers go to the Carbondale Free Clinic, Senior Citizens, Anna State Hospital or the tutoring program, according to Patrick.

However—"Right now, we're still in the process of consulting places and finding out exactly what they want," Patrick said.

On the whole, most people, Patrick said, are very pleased with the program. Every week he gets letters, he said, thanking MOVE and asking them to send more volunteers.

Patrick plans to hold workshops for the volunteers at the end of each quarter. "To get their general feelings on volunteerism, what it meant to them and the people they are working with."

"All the volunteers placed this summer thought it was a good experience for the people involved," he commented.

MOVE is also open to ideas, said Patrick.

Second meet slated

Student Senate has full agenda

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate will meet for its second regular session of the quarter Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Lawson 231.

Two bills and two amendments are expected to be acted upon by the Senate, Jim Peters, student body vice president, said Tuesday.

A bill submitted by Jeanie Cochran, westside nondorm senator, would provide for the formation of a committee to "determine a suitable method for receiving information on student problems."

The other bill, also submitted by Miss Cochran, would authorize an inquiry into the Community Cooperation Association, which solicited for funds on campus last winter.

Miss Cochran also submitted an amendment to the constitution which would change the official name of the Senate from "Campus Senate" to "Student Senate."

An amendment to the bylaws of the senate was submitted by Bill Atkinson, eastside dorm senator. It would provide for a restructuring of the present senate committee system, with committees designated "major" or "minor," whereas, under the present system, all committees are nominally equal in power and in status.

In addition to these bills and amendments, a number of others are expected to be submitted, Peters said. A report from the committee on committees is also anticipated.

A summer report and policy statement is in the works but is not yet ready for presentation to the Senate, George Camille, student body president, said Tuesday.

Board eyes DE changes

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A new ad hoc committee of the University Senate known as the Interim Board held its first meeting Tuesday to begin study of proposed changes in organization and control of the Daily Egyptian.

The board recently appointed by the School of Journalism's faculty-student Advisory Committee at request of the Senate, elected Walter Wills, chairman and professor of agricultural industries, as chairman.

Discussion of the new board's function and responsibilities for implementing Expro-II occupied most of the meeting.

Expro is a plan for reorganizing the Daily Egyptian newsroom to give students more control and encourage more volunteer participation in news and editorial operations. It would not affect the advertising, mechanical or business operations.

The U-Senate endorsed Expro in principle this summer.

Board members besides Wills are Harry Stonecipher, assistant professor in journalism and vice chairman of the board; Gene Wiggins, graduate student in journalism and board secretary; Clifton Lawhorne, associate professor in journalism; Ken Knop, senior in agricultural industries; Bob Duff, senior in journalism; and Fred Brown, junior in journalism.

E. Earle Stutz, chairman of the Internal Affairs Committee of the Senate, told the board members that the function of the board is to determine means of implementing the proposal. A letter sent to all the board members by William Simmons, president of the U-Senate, said the board should continue the examination of the proposal and recommend clarifying revisions as needed, including the formulation of more specific guidelines for implementation.

The U-Senate has asked the board to present a progress report sometime during the fall term and to have its final report by the end of the second week of winter quarter.

The board will ask Gerald Grotta, associate professor in journalism, and Ed Chambliss, senior in journalism and Daily Egyptian news staff member, to appear at a meeting next Tuesday. The topic will be how Expro should work.

William Harmon, journalism instructor and managing editor of the Daily Egyptian, and William Epperheimer, business manager, will be asked to appear at a later date to discuss the effect Expro might have.

Route 13 to be completed early

Bill Schweigman, Carbondale director of Public Works, said Tuesday that the Route 13 construction will be completed 10 months ahead of schedule.

By mid-January, says Schweigman, Walnut Street will be one way going east, and Main Street one way going west. Both streets will converge at Penny's where Route 13 will become a two-lane highway.

The E.T. Simonds Construction Company had a projected date of completion around October 1972. According to Schweigman, however, the bulk of the construction will be finished by mid-January. Detailed maps of the new roads can be viewed in the public works office at City Hall.

Freshman joins kin

Kevin O'Boyle joins football 'dynasty'

By Eric Schwelt
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

To anyone following SIU football, the name of O'Boyle should ring a familiar bell.

There's Tom O'Boyle, defensive coordinator for the Saluki varsity and there are also the O'Boyle brothers, Dennis and Mike, who play defensive halfback and linebacker for SIU respectively. Don't look now but there's another O'Boyle on the horizon. His name is Kevin, brother of Dennis and Mike, nephew of Tom.

It appears then that the O'Boyle's are starting a football dynasty at Southern and if Kevin meets with the same kind of success the rest of the family has had so far, no one will mind.

In fact, the two playing O'Boyle's deserve part of the credit for Kevin coming to Southern.

"Mike and Dennis had a lot to do with my coming here," Kevin said, "but it only took me one trip down here for me to decide this was for me."

Unlike his two brothers who spend most of their time chasing the football on defense, Kevin's speciality is throwing and running with it. Judging by his records at Des Moines East High School, he did it quite well, too. In his senior year, the 5-8, 185-pounder won all-conference and all-state honors.

As might be expected from a small quarterback, Kevin's long suit is running and quickness. In high school he was his team's leading ground gainer and the way he is running the freshman option play, he has the coaching staff smiling collectively.

"You can get around a big man with good speed and quickness," he said. "No lack of height doesn't bother me."

Thus far in practice, it has been a tight race for the first string quarterback job between Kevin and the 6-2, 290-pound Mike Hanna. The two freshmen slingers present a tremendous contrast in styles, according to assistant freshman coach Jim McKay.

"Hanna is the big strong drop back type with a real strong arm," said McKay. "Last year while I was coaching him in Memphis, he had the strongest arm in the state. I think he threw the ball 60 yards."

Hanna needs work on his hustle, according to McKay, and that strangely enough is where Kevin excels—especially in running the ball. So who will be bending over center for the first play of the 1971 freshman season?

"I'd like to think we'd go with the one that can be a winner," said Kevin. "I can't wait for the first game though."

Coed bowling league now forming

Women's bowling leagues are now being formed for competition during fall quarter.

Players may enter their own team of four, or single entries will be placed on a team.

All matches will consist of three games. The league will be operating on an 80 per cent handicap.

Guys, Dolls golf this weekend

The Guys and Dolls Golf Tournament will be Saturday and Sunday at the Jackson County Country Club. The tourney was originally scheduled for last weekend but was held back due to a similar tournament.

The entry fee to the annual event is $20 per couple. Prizes of silver will be awarded to the winning couple and individual shot winners.

Activities for the tournament include a day of games followed by a free meal and after-dinner dance.

For further information call the Jackson County Pro Shop at 684-2387.

'Huskers still No. 1

By The Associated Press

Texas, No. 3 behind Nebraska and Michigan again this week in The Associated Press College football poll, takes No. 8 Oklahoma in one of two games between ranked teams Saturday.

National champion Nebraska, which has been No. 1 since the season began, garnered 41 first place ballots and 1,062 points after blitzing previously unbeaten Utah State 42-0.

Auburn and Colorado received two top votes each to move up one notch to No. 4 and No. 5 respectively. Notre Dame, which had slipped from second to fourth in the previous poll, skidded to seventh despite a 14-2 victory over Michigan State.

The other undefeated teams in the Top Ten are No. 6 Alabama, No. 9

Penn State and No. 16 Georgia. The other Saturday contest between ranked teams pits No. 11 Washington against No. 19 Stanford. Stanford plunged from 16th place last week after losing to Duke, 9-3, now No. 14, while Washington moved up from 15th with a 58-14 trouncing of Illinois.

Southern California, with a 2-2 record after a 33-20 loss to Oklahoma, was dropped from the rankings and was replaced by No. 20 Toledo, 4-0, after squeezing past Ohio 31-28 for its 27th straight victory spanning three seasons. No. 12 Arizona State and No. 18 North Carolina are the only other unbeaten teams in the lower bracket.

Others in the second ten are No. 13 Tennessee, No. 15 Ohio State, No. 16 Louisiana State and No. 17 Arkansas, each with one loss.

It is 'do or die' time for Giants in NL playoffs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Richie Hebner crashed an eighth-inning home run, snapping a tie and giving the Pittsburgh Pirates and surprise starter Bob Johnson a 2-1 triumph over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday.

The victory gave the Pirates a 2-1 edge in the best-of-five National League playoff series. Another triumph for Pittsburgh Wednesday would send the Pirates into the World Series Saturday against the American League playoff winner.

Hebner's blast, was a two-out solo shot over the right fence and was only the fourth hit off loser Juan Marichal, 18-11.

The Pirates scored their other run on another homer, Bob Robertson's fourth blast of the series, in the second inning.

Johnson, 9-10, got the start when scheduled starter Nelson Briles aggravated a right thigh injury.

The right-hander went eight innings and scattered five hits. Dave Giusti stopped the Giants in order in the ninth.

The Giant's lone run came in the sixth on Hebner's throwing error. Ken Henderson opened the inning with a single and scored from first when Hebner threw wildly to first on Tito Fuentes' sacrifice bunt.

Orioles bound for Series

OAKLAND (AP) — Lanky Jim Palmer pitched the Baltimore Orioles into the World Series for the third consecutive time Tuesday, beating Oakland, 5-3, on a seven-inning game with the Robinson boys, Brooks and Frank, supplying the off-feeve punch.

Palmer, 19 days short of his 36th birthday, completed the Orioles' American League championship playoff sweep for the third straight season. He also hurled the clinchers in playoff sweeps against Minnesota in 1969 and 1970.

The Orioles, who have never lost a playoff game, took command when the Robinsons started connecting against Diego Segui and four Oakland relievers.

Baltimore had nicked Segui for a run in the first but it was a cheap price for the A's to pay after the veteran right-hander loaded the bases with none out on walks to Don Buford and Boog Powell sand-wiched around a hit by Paul Blair. Frank Robinson struck out on three pitches but Elie Hendricks long fly ball got the run home.

The Adventures of J. Cruthbert MacSnyde (part II)

"Yes," MacSnyde said, "I recall well the time I was caught with my pants down, so to speak, in the picturesque community of Tetopolis.

"The natives were less than friendly, however, as the aforementioned incident with a pair of trousers occurred in the community water reservoir, a rather large ditch filled with water near the center of town.

"I was soon surrounded by babbling townsfolk who seemed to feel that I had somehow befouled their drinking water. Didn't bother me, of course, as I never touch the filthy stuff."

"Discretion being the better part of valor, I left the town with all due haste and have yet to return." "I often wonder what became of it," he concluded.

(If MacSnyde read the DE Classifieds, he would know that Tetopolis is alive and well in Buffalo.)

Defensive line all broken up ...and its no laughing matter

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

They're a different breed of animal, these defensive linemen. Massive bulging biceps. Quick and ferocious, full of hate. They're indestructible.

Well, almost.
At the moment, all of Southern's best massive, quick and ferocious, hating defensive linemen are pretty well broken up.

And it ain't about their girlfriends. No less than six of the top eight defensive linemen are injured. The other two, both sophomores, have seen almost zero action.

Tom O'Boyle, SIU defensive coordinator, sums it up this way: "Not only do we have a formidable opponent (Arkansas State) this week, we've got internal turmoil in finding out who the hell can play for us."

Wichita linemen

Not even a string of Wichita defensive linemen could keep George Loukas (24) back in the game last weekend. Loukas pushed and plowed constantly toward the goal, setting a new SIU record with 35 carries for 224 yards and three touchdowns. The Salukis lost anyway 26-24. (Photo by Nelson G. Brooks)

Three ankle injuries, two of the knee variety and a pulled calf muscle have decimated the line, originally considered a Saluki strength.

Charles Canali (knee), Jack Rushing (ankle), Mike Kaczmarek (ankle) and Gordon Richey (pulled muscle) were hurt against Wichita State. Ken McAnelly, out for the year with a knee injury, and Butch Chambers (bad knee and hemorrhaging thigh) were already benched before Wichita State.

From a sentimental viewpoint, Canali's injury is a real loss. After a one-year layoff, he has played tremendously in three outings.

And that despite a shoulder injury in the first game against Dayton.

"He's been giving us above and beyond the call of duty and by God, he's just worn down," said O'Boyle. "He's played the last three ballgames better than he played the four previous years."

Canali and Richey have outside shots at playing Saturday night against Arkansas State. But Rushing is doubtful and Kaczmarek has his left ankle in a walking cast. Chambers' knee will undergo x-ray.

O'Boyle outlined two possible solutions to this uncalled for disaster: "We're going to try to elevate some substitutes into these positions and give them a chance to show us they can handle the assignments and the second thing we'll do is reach over to the offense and see who they can spare to give us some help."

The second is far more probable, since 6-7, 257-pound All-American Lionel Antoine and offensive tackle Nate Stahlke will get a looksee on defense, probably at end. Stahlke is no shrimp either, 6-5, 230 pounds.

"We'll go one day with one and one day with the other and see what happens," O'Boyle said. It's unlikely both would be moved and they'd really rather leave Antoine on offense.

"To take Antoine off offense would be a little precarious to say the least," O'Boyle said.

Could Antoine go both ways? "He could, but we don't want him to," O'Boyle said. "We'd rather make some other decision and stick with it. But he could do it. He's in better shape than ever before in his life."

The remnants of the top eight defensive linemen are sophomore ends Mike Fagan and Ed Dixon. Neither has seen much action thus far, playing behind McAnelly and Richey and then Richey and Kaczmarek.

Another possibility O'Boyle discussed just briefly is adding a fourth linebacker and going with three linemen.

Terry Anderson, a starter last year, was sidelined by knee injury but could fill the fourth spot. He's played about half the time in a reserve role.

But that would almost completely thin out the linebackers, as All-America Brian Newlands still has corrective pins in a broken finger and Craig Enokian is another member of the Crucifix Club.

Some quick patching up in that line is needed because the Arkansas State Indians have two Grade AAA backs in All-America Calvin Harrell and running mate Johnnie Carr.

"When you have to stop two guys like Harrell and Carr, you've got to do a lot of praying," said O'Boyle. And hope someone is listening.

Alone

Gerald "Scooter" Wilson seemed like a lonely, diminutive figure standing along the sidelines during the Wichita State game Saturday night. The 5-6 running back has carried the ball 47 yards for an average of 9.4 yards in five punt returns for the Salukis so far this season. (Photo by Nelson G. Brooks)

Harriers blossoming to meet Kansas

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Lew Hartzog stood on one of the highest vantage points of the Midland Hills Golf Course in late September, watching his cross country team in a practice run.

Hartzog had delayed the opening date of practice to the eve of the first meet in an effort to save money, and it showed in the early season meets—two losses in the first two outings.

Worse, the Salukis dropped the next one against Indiana the following weekend.

"We should be at our top performance by second week of October," Hartzog said on that hill at Midland Hills.

That was two weeks ago.
Last Saturday was the first week of October and the Salukis were beginning to look like the outstanding team the pre-season brochures had predicted.

Southern easily defeated Midwestern Conference rival Illinois State, 16-40. After SIU runners Dave Hill, Ken Nalder and Jack St. John grabbed a three-way tie for first place.

This coming weekend is the period Hartzog predicted the Salukis would blossom to their full potential and what better team to face Saturday but arch-rival Kansas, the powerhouse of college track and cross country.

Have the Salukis developed in one month to beat Kansas?

"I'm no dreamer," said Hartzog Tuesday. "I've been in this business too many years and you can't bring a distance man around sooner than that (one month)."

"We have come around pretty well," he continued. "We may not beat Kansas, but we should give Kansas a pretty good tussle."

"Two weeks ago, I didn't think we could have beaten anyone," he added. "This week, I think we could beat Kansas."

Kansas is one of the top track and cross country powers in the U.S. and it "will be looking for revenge when we go to Lawrence this weekend," Hartzog said.

The Jayhawks were the early season favorite to take the Big Eight conference championship last year—as they are this season—when they visited Carbondale last year and were upset, 25-30.

"I don't think they ever got over that," said Hartzog. The Jaybirds were never the same team for the rest of the season and lost out to Missouri for the Big Eight crown.

Kansas is even better this season, losing only one runner—Jay Mason—to graduation.

Kansas has won the NCAA championship in cross country twice, the individual first place honors six times grabbed the outdoor track title three times, and indoor track three times while tying once and placing second twice.

Cage workouts begin Oct. 15

The SIU basketball team will open fall workouts Oct. 15. A basketball Media Day is set for Oct. 14 when head coach Paul Lambert welcomes back eight lettermen including four starters from last year's 13-10 season.

Southern will open the 1971-72 season Dec. 1 in the SIU Arena against Sul Ross State College of Alpine, Tex.

The 26-game schedule includes trips to Florida and Las Vegas.
