Mike Evans, of Murphysboro, talks with customers Tuesday at Classic Gaming Connection and Video in Murphysboro. Jeff Raits and Cory Nowley, both of Murphysboro, are shop regulars and both agreed the store is like a trip back in time. “Every system here we grew up playing. It’s our childhood in one store,” Nowley said. Evans said one of his favorite parts about working at the shop is the social interaction. “People with like interests come in, and we can talk all afternoon,” he said.

Tuition

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>School</th>
<th>In-State</th>
<th>Out-of-State</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Southern Illinois University Carbondale</td>
<td>$4,083*</td>
<td>$5,764*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Southern Illinois University Edwardsville</td>
<td>$4,474*</td>
<td>$6,885*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>University of Illinois</td>
<td>$5,818</td>
<td>$11,890*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Northern Illinois University</td>
<td>$4,847*</td>
<td>$6,236*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western Illinois University</td>
<td>$4,006*</td>
<td>$5,226*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eastern Illinois University</td>
<td>$4,185</td>
<td>$5,763</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*Rounded to the nearest dollar

Out-of-State Total:

- SIU's out-of-state tuition is 2.5 times the in-state rate.

If passed, a high-achieving out-of-state undergraduate student for fall 2012 who is enrolled in 15 credit hours would pay $5,763 for tuition and fees compared to the $11,890 they would pay out-of-state. Since 2009, all undergraduate and graduate students — excluding professional schools and the physician assistant program — in neighboring states Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee and Arkansas have been able to pay in-state tuition.

If the rate is approved, Cheng said the students would be considered high-achieving based on ACT and SAT scores. She said this could mean more students in the honors program and pre-med program.

Sarah Schneider can be reached at sschneider@dailyegyptian.com or 536-3313 ext. 256.

Residents say Evergreen Terrace could use facelift

Evergreen Terrace, student housing for married couples and families

Everyone terrace, student housing for married couples and families, may need some updating, according to several students familiar with the complex.

Among the problems are broken machinery and outdated fixtures, said Anthony Moorehead, a graduate student in geology from Wilkes-Barre, Penn. Moorehead said the apartments sizes could be an issue. He lived in the apartments from August 2010 to August 2011. “The room size would be good for two people,” he said. “I think it would be small for two adults and kids.” Since the complex is for families, it might not be the right place for people looking for peace and quiet, Moorehead said.

He said the apartments were outdated and had not been repaired in a while. The cabinets began to rust, he said, which would eventually bleed over onto dinnerware. Although Carbondale is not prone to heavy snow in the winter, Moorehead said seasonal maintenance could also be an issue. “They do not keep up with wintertime maintenance,” he said. “I shoveled the sidewalk most of the time. They would let the ice build up, and they wouldn’t put down salt.”

Moorehead said his biggest complaint was the staff’s responsiveness. “I don’t think they really went out of their way to bring you in and make you feel welcome,” he said.

One benefit of the complex was the residents diversity, Moorehead said. Someone who comes here from a foreign country might be able to find someone who speaks the same language and practices the same culture, he said.

The buildings in the complex are also very spread out, he said, so residents don’t feel as if they live on top of each other.
About Us

The DAILY EGYPTIAN is published by the students of Southern Illinois University Carbondale 50 weeks per year, with an average daily circulation of 15,000. Fall and spring semester editions run Monday through Friday. Summer editions run Tuesday through Thursday. All intersession editions will run on Wednesdays. Free copies are distributed in the Carbondale and Carterville communities. The DAILY EGYPTIAN online publication can be found at www.dailyegyptian.com.

Mission Statement

The DAILY EGYPTIAN, the student-run newspaper of Southern Illinois University Carbondale, is committed to being a trusted source of news; information, commentary and public discourse, while helping readers understand the issues affecting their lives.

Copyright Information

© 2012 DAILY EGYPTIAN. All rights reserved. All content is property of the DAILY EGYPTIAN and may not be reproduced or transmitted without consent. The DAILY EGYPTIAN is a member of the Illinois College Press Association, Associated Collegiate Press and College Media Advisers Inc. and the College Business and Advertising Managers Inc.

Publishing Information

The DAILY EGYPTIAN is published by the students of Southern Illinois University Carbondale and functions as a laboratory for the department of journalism in exchange for the room and utilities in the Communications Building. The DAILY EGYPTIAN is a non-profit organization that survives solely off of its advertising revenue. The DAILY EGYPTIAN receives no student fees or university funding. Offices are in the Communications Building, Room 1259, at Southern Illinois University Carbondale, Carbondale, Ill., 62901. Bill Freivogel, fiscal officer.

Mission Statement

The DAILY EGYPTIAN, the student-run newspaper of Southern Illinois University Carbondale, is committed to being a trusted source of news; information, commentary and public discourse, while helping readers understand the issues affecting their lives.

Copyright Information

© 2012 DAILY EGYPTIAN. All rights reserved. All content is property of the DAILY EGYPTIAN and may not be reproduced or transmitted without consent. The DAILY EGYPTIAN is a member of the Illinois College Press Association, Associated Collegiate Press and College Media Advisers Inc. and the College Business and Advertising Managers Inc.

Publishing Information

The DAILY EGYPTIAN is published by the students of Southern Illinois University Carbondale and functions as a laboratory for the department of journalism in exchange for the room and utilities in the Communications Building. The DAILY EGYPTIAN is a non-profit organization that survives solely off of its advertising revenue. The DAILY EGYPTIAN receives no student fees or university funding. Offices are in the Communications Building, Room 1259, at Southern Illinois University Carbondale, Carbondale, Ill., 62901. Bill Freivogel, fiscal officer.

Throwback Thursday: Today in 1955

Freshman halfback Ranette Lewis plants a big kiss on Jerry Hart’s cheek as the SIU griders celebrated their upset victory over the Central Michigan Chippewas Saturday night in McAndrew Stadium. Coach Al Kawal expresses his feelings about the whole affair as he grins approvingly.

GEORGE BLISS
DAILY EGYPTIAN

PUNT, PASS, AND KICK YOUR WAY TO $500 IN TEXTBOOKS*

Register at 710 Bookstore on the strip or at any Saluki Team Store to be randomly selected to participate at halftime of this weekend’s football game.

Register before Friday at 9:00 a.m.

* To be awarded in Spring 2013. Must be a current SIU student to win.

Freshman halfback Ranette Lewis plants a big kiss on Jerry Hart’s cheek as the SIU griders celebrated their upset victory over the Central Michigan Chippewas Saturday night in McAndrew Stadium. Coach Al Kawal expresses his feelings about the whole affair as he grins approvingly.

GEORGE BLISS
DAILY EGYPTIAN
WASHINGTON—Democratic candidates for federal office have spent about twice as much as their Republican counterparts on Spanish-language political ads, according to a survey of 10 states with large Hispanic populations.

Overall, the percentage of campaign dollars dedicated to Spanish-language ads has barely increased from the 2008 and 2010 election cycles, even though Hispanics are viewed as a voting bloc growing in size and influence. About 4.6 percent of advertising dollars, or $16 million, went to Spanish-language political ads in the states reviewed.

Officials at the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, which commissioned the study from Kantar Media CMAG, described the overall spending trend as troubling because it essentially omitted millions of Hispanic voters from the nation’s political conversations.

“It’s a bad strategy for candidates. It’s a bad message to our community and ultimately, it’s unhealthy for our country,” said Monica Lozano, chief executive officer at Impremedia, a media company that caters to Hispanic audiences.

In all, the Democratic candidates for federal office have spent about $3.8 million on Spanish-language ads, while Republican candidates have spent about $33.7 million. President Barack Obama’s campaign has dedicated about 9 percent of its television ad budget to Spanish-language ads, while Republican nominee Mitt Romney has dedicated about 4 percent, the report said.

The difference is most striking in House races where Democratic candidates and groups have invested about 12 percent of their ad dollars in Spanish-language ads, while Republican House campaigns have invested less than 1 percent.

In Senate races, Democratic candidates invested 5 percent of their television budget on Spanish-language advertising versus 1 percent for GOP candidates.

One in five registered Hispanic voters say Spanish is their primary language, according to a December 2011 Pew Hispanic Center survey. Another 45 percent are bilingual and more than a third are English dominant. So, ads directed to English-speaking viewers have the potential to reach most Hispanic voters.

Nevertheless, officials said that Unavision’s ratings success with adult viewers demonstrates that millions of Hispanics tune in nightly to Spanish-language programming.

Lozano added that the content of Spanish-language ads is more targeted to Latino voters, and as a result, often more effective.

“The reality of it is there are literally millions of Hispanics not being reached effectively, if at all, by the majority of these campaigns,” said Javier Palomarez, president and CEO of the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

In all, the Democratic candidates for federal office have spent about $3.8 million on Spanish-language ads, while Republican candidates have spent about $33.7 million. President Barack Obama’s campaign has dedicated about 9 percent of its television ad budget to Spanish-language ads, while Republican nominee Mitt Romney has dedicated about 4 percent, the report said.

The difference is most striking in House races where Democratic candidates and groups have invested about 12 percent of their ad dollars in Spanish-language ads, while Republican House campaigns have invested less than 1 percent.

In Senate races, Democratic candidates invested 5 percent of their television budget on Spanish-language advertising versus 1 percent for GOP candidates.

One in five registered Hispanic voters say Spanish is their primary language, according to a December 2011 Pew Hispanic Center survey. Another 45 percent are bilingual and more than a third are English dominant. So, ads directed to English-speaking viewers have the potential to reach most Hispanic voters. Nevertheless, officials said that Unavision’s ratings success with adult viewers demonstrates that millions of Hispanics tune in nightly to Spanish-language programming.

Lozano added that the content of Spanish-language ads is more targeted to Latino voters, and as a result, often more effective.

“The reality of it is there are literally millions of Hispanics not being reached effectively, if at all, by the majority of these campaigns,” said Javier Palomarez, president and CEO of the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

Teachers union to count ballots on new contract

CHICAGO — Chicago Teachers Union officials are set to start counting the ballots that its members cast on whether they want to accept a proposed contract.

Last month, teachers at more than 600 schools ended a seven-day strike after union delegates discussed the proposed contract settlement and voted overwhelmingly to suspend the labor action.

The union’s financial secretary, Kristine Mayle, says teachers voted before and after school Tuesday, and that the union would count the votes Wednesday.

Mayle says that the results of the vote could be known as soon as Wednesday night or Thursday.

Teachers walked out Sept. 10 after months of tense contract negotiations, marking the first teachers strike in the city in a quarter century.

Electricity is paid through his bursar account, he said.

Kids are free to run and do whatever they want, and the privacy is nice, Smudde said. He said he feels safe in the complex because cops often patrol the grounds.

Smeddle said the apartments occasionally have insect issues, as he has seen problems with grasshoppers and spiders. Occasionally, Orkin will come and spray for bugs, he said.

In Senate races, Democratic candidates invested 5 percent of their television budget on Spanish-language advertising versus 1 percent for GOP candidates.

One in five registered Hispanic voters say Spanish is their primary language, according to a December 2011 Pew Hispanic Center survey. Another 45 percent are bilingual and more than a third are English dominant. So, ads directed to English-speaking viewers have the potential to reach most Hispanic voters. Nevertheless, officials said that Unavision’s ratings success with adult viewers demonstrates that millions of Hispanics tune in nightly to Spanish-language programming.

Lozano added that the content of Spanish-language ads is more targeted to Latino voters, and as a result, often more effective.

“The reality of it is there are literally millions of Hispanics not being reached effectively, if at all, by the majority of these campaigns,” said Javier Palomarez, president and CEO of the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

Teachers union to count ballots on new contract

CHICAGO — Chicago Teachers Union officials are set to start counting the ballots that its members cast on whether they want to accept a proposed contract.

Last month, teachers at more than 600 schools ended a seven-day strike after union delegates discussed the proposed contract settlement and voted overwhelmingly to suspend the labor action.

The union’s financial secretary, Kristine Mayle, says teachers voted before and after school Tuesday, and that the union would count the votes Wednesday.

Mayle says that the results of the vote could be known as soon as Wednesday night or Thursday.

Teachers walked out Sept. 10 after months of tense contract negotiations, marking the first teachers strike in the city in a quarter century.

Electricity is paid through his bursar account, he said.

Kids are free to run and do whatever they want, and the privacy is nice, Smudde said. He said he feels safe in the complex because cops often patrol the grounds.

Smeddle said the apartments occasionally have insect issues, as he has seen problems with grasshoppers and spiders. Occasionally, Orkin will come and spray for bugs, he said.

In Senate races, Democratic candidates invested 5 percent of their television budget on Spanish-language advertising versus 1 percent for GOP candidates.

One in five registered Hispanic voters say Spanish is their primary language, according to a December 2011 Pew Hispanic Center survey. Another 45 percent are bilingual and more than a third are English dominant. So, ads directed to English-speaking viewers have the potential to reach most Hispanic voters. Nevertheless, officials said that Unavision’s ratings success with adult viewers demonstrates that millions of Hispanics tune in nightly to Spanish-language programming.

Lozano added that the content of Spanish-language ads is more targeted to Latino voters, and as a result, often more effective.

“The reality of it is there are literally millions of Hispanics not being reached effectively, if at all, by the majority of these campaigns,” said Javier Palomarez, president and CEO of the United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.
Colorado carry laws reignite debate

Karsten Burgstahler
Daily Egyptian

Concealed weapons will now be allowed on the University of Colorado Boulder’s campus because of a recent Colorado state Supreme Court ruling, which has sparked debate on the matter. SIUC does not allow weapons on campus in alignment with Illinois policy, said Todd Sigler, director of the SIU Department of Public Safety.

“Illinois is the last state in the union without a law that allows concealed carry, according to an August article in the Huffington Post.”

The last two Illinois Congress sessions have introduced a bill that allows concealed carry, but both have been defeated, Sigler said.

“They’ve been defeated for a number of reasons,” Sigler said. “The primary reason given is that the Democratic powerbase in Chicago has been able to defeat any proposed concealed carry in Illinois.”

He said students who want to have a weapon on campus can store it with the Department of Public Safety.

“That’s our policy for handling folks that want to have a firearm,” he said. “We have a number of students who like to hunt and have farms in the area, and to be able to take advantage of that right, we afford them the opportunity to keep their weapons stored here.”

William Freivogel, director of the School of Journalism, said students and professors could create uproar if Illinois were to allow universities and professors could create uproar if Illinois were to allow universities to carry concealed weapons on campus.

“I know I wouldn’t want any students in my classes with guns,” Freivogel said. “If presented with the situation, I would insist that they not bring guns into the classroom. It’s just ridiculous.”

Freivogel said armed citizens might not be effective in a situation such as a gunman in a classroom.

“If you have multiple guns in classrooms, the chance of people being shot accidentally would increase greatly,” he said. “Plus, the police arriving at the scene of a classroom shooting wouldn’t know who was the shooter and who was the person trying to get the shooter.”

Freivogel said he did not believe there was any evidence to support the claims that crime has decreased in areas where concealed carry is permitted.

Philip Habel, associate professor of political science, said he has not considered concealed carry because of Illinois law.

“It’s not feasible unless we have some change in state law anyway,” he said. Peter Lucas, a graduate assistant in English, said he has not seen any evidence to support concealed carry.

“I fail to see how having more guns on campus is a good idea,” he said.

Gregory Maddox, a lecturer in sociology, said he held a discussion about concealed carry with colleagues following the Virginia Tech shooting of 2007. The idea that students could have guns in their backpacks concerned him.

“It scares me because what appears to be a threat varies from one’s perspective,” he said. “I’m not a sportsman. I’m not a hunter. I’m not all that comfortable around weapons.”

Kyle Ludwig, a freshman from Sikeston, Mo., studying English, said concealed carry is a good idea. He mentioned the incident in Aurora, Colo., in which alleged shooter James Holmes killed 12 people July 20 during a midnight show at a movie theater, as a reason for concealed carry.

Nelson also mentioned the July shooting in Florida, where a man shot two robbers at an Internet café with his concealed weapon.

Freivogel said the classroom is no environment for guns.

“There are all sorts of arguments for why students should be able to arm themselves,” he said. “I think in the end, having armed students is more dangerous than having unarmed students.”

Karsten Burgstahler can be reached at kbuartahler@dailyEgyptian.com or 536-3311 ext. 254.
Tonight

Music

Memory Lane (karaoke & DJ) @ Key West Bar & Grill
DJ Poin @ Cali’s
Motown dance party @ Tres Hombres
Generations & Devin & Jordan McCoy @ Hangar 9
DJ Spin One @ Premiere Lounge
SU Wind Ensemble Shryock Auditorium

Other

Perspectives on Illinois Government: Past, Present & Future (lecture) @ Student Center Ballroom "D"
Salsa Dancing & Lessons @ Blue Martin
Strategic Gaming @ Castle Perilous
Cosmic Bowling & Karaoke @ S.I. Bowl

Friday

Music

DJ Spin One @ Premiere Lounge
DJ Poin @ Cali’s
Dirty Muggs @ Copper Dragon
Me Swarm Fox @ Key West Bar & Grill
Giant City Slickers @ Tres Hombres
This Must Be the Band @ Hangar 9
Larry Dillard & Blues Therapy @ Walker’s Bluff
Salpin’ Henry Blue @ Rustle Hill Winery
Eric Mundel & Paul Tannus @ Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall
DJ Kent @ Two 13 East

Other

Little Egypt Ghost Society’s Carbondale Ghost Walk @ Old Train Depot
“Language Has Left the Building” @ Communications Building, Marion/Kincairn Theatre
Saluki Volleyball Vs. Evansville @ Davies Gymnasium
Strategic Gaming @ Castle Perilous
Open Mic @ Gia House
“God of Carnage” @ Variety Center for the Arts
Buffalo Two Fundraiser @ Touch of Nature Environmental Center
Haunted Hollows Trail & Haunted Prison @ Wolf Creek Hollows
The Haunting of Chittyville School @ Chittyville School
Cell Block 666 Haunted House @ Wakefield Prison

Saturday

Music

Ventura @ Tres Hombres
Flatline @ Key West Bar & Grill
Bible of the Devil & ZuuL & It Burns @ PK’s
Hobo Knives @ Hangar 9
DJ Spin One @ Premiere Lounge
DJ Poin @ Cali’s
DJ Kent @ Two 13 East
Bill Harper @ Blue Sky Winery
Dan Barron @ Walker’s Bluff
Oktoberfest & Waterloo German Band @ Von Jakob Orchard
Rural Kings @ Ovd Creek Vineyard
Chicago Red & Jim Keery @ Rustle Hill Winery
Toni Ann @ SunView Vineyards
Bob Pina @ Hideout
Martini Trio @ Newell House
Grotto Lounge

Other

“God of Carnage” @ Variety Center for the Arts

Sunday

Music

DJ Kent @ Two 13 East
John Miller memorial @ PK’s
Acoustic Feedback @ Blue Sky Winery
Sharon Clark & Larry Dillard @ Von Jakob Orchard
Taylor Made @ SunView Vineyards
Phyllis Powell & Moving Mary @ Rustle Hill Winery
Musical Company @ Hidden Hill Winery

Other

“The Hunger Games” @ Walker’s Bluff
Southern Illinois Irish Festival
Celtic Fair @ Turley Park
Strategic Gaming @ Castle Perilous
Drag Show @ Two 13 East
The Haunting of Chittyville School @ Chittyville School
Cell Block 666 Haunted House @ Wakefield Prison
“God of Carnage” @ Variety Center for the Arts
For Violet Juno, the artist-in-residence this week at the university’s Marion Kleinau theater, language can be interpreted in different ways.

Juno has visited the university for residency periods since 2005. Her performance “I’m Still Here” Language Has Left the Building” at 8 p.m. Friday, which is free for the public, deals with the relationship between language as well as the absence of it, she said.

“In my life, sometimes literally I don’t have the word,” Juno said. “All these languages are competing and there’s just no word there. And what is that like, when you’re searching for something, you can’t find?”

Juno said students have told her the themes she deals with resonate with them from different angles, from struggles with the English language to struggles with cultural issues.

Juno’s performance uses minimal props, but she uses her words to paint the audience a picture, she said. Juno said she wants the audience to use the images they took and create their own performances right there on the beach, and props and created performance hang out at the lake.

“One of the things that happens when you create artwork from documentation is that there are a million different stories that can be told,” Juno said.

Juno said that she makes on stage that she loves. Baldwin said audiences should come into Juno’s performance with an open mind.

“It’s different every single time, depending on where you are in life,” Baldwin said. “She understands that. She creates shows in thinking about the audience.”

Karsten Burgstahler can be reached at kbburgstahler@dailyegyptian.com or 536-3312 ext. 254.
THE Daily Commuter Puzzle by Jacqueline E. Mathews

ACROSS
1. Carpets
5. Remembered
10. Pretense
14. Huge continent
15. Sadistic
16. Cab
17. Bridges or
Foxworthy
18. Dwelling
19. Small brook
20. Dancer Fred
22. Harmed
23. St. Louis
26. Capital of Vietnam
29. Madrid's nation
31. Or Dennis
32. Unexplained
34. Helpful
35. Blood analysis
site
36. Save from danger
37. Mont Blanc or the Matterhorn
38. -_ Rex;
Greek tragedy
40. Laying bird
41. Short jacket
42. Actor...
Hunter
44. Clutter
45. Spirited horse
46. Evil
47. Group formed
to help a sheriff
48. Adjust a clock
50. Hope or Barker
51. Accepts one's domination
54. Snide remark
56. Farmland unit
58. Audio's buddy
61. Adhesive strip
66. Greek letters
67. King's order
69. - L. although
71. Chimney flue
casting
69. Strikers
67. Monthly expense

DOWN
1. Indian prince
2. Does drugs
3. Present
4. African hunting
expeditions
5. Ringing clock
6. Part of the ear
7. In the past
8. Noon
9. Body of water
10. Pulls through a sleeve
11. Reagans Sec.
of State
12. Alexander
13. Wheel rod
14. Not at all harsh
15. Actor McKellen
16. Exodus leader
17. Natural environment
18. Punctures
19. Availa
20. Mac maker
21. Pope
22. Pain
23. Redskin
24. Good judgment

Now arrange the circled letters suggested by the above cartoon.

SOLUTION TO WEDNESDAY'S PUZZLE

Answer:

Answer:

Pick up the Daily Egyptian each day to test your crossword skills.
Cubs beat Astros 5-4 in Houston’s NL finale

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Chicago Cubs’ misery now stretches to 104 years, and the Houston Astros will depart the National League with a whimper. Obviously there’s no winner in a season finale between a pair of 100-loss teams.

Bryan LaHair homered and hit the winning single in the ninth inning, and the Cubs beat the Astros 5-4 Wednesday in Houston’s final game before switching to the AL next season.

In the first series between 100-game losers in the major leagues since 1962, LaHair homered in the second and broke a 4-all tie in the ninth against Hector Ambriz (1-1).

“I was pretty psyched up about today’s game,” LaHair said of his rare start. “I talked to my grandma last night and I wanted to get one more (home run) for her. Luckily, I did. It was a good feeling right there.”

The 29-year-old LaHair held down the starting first base job through much of the first half after spending most of the previous nine seasons in the minors. His story reached its peak when LaHair was selected to the NL All-Star team last month after having a career year, hitting .300 with 28 HRs and 76 RBIs.

“Most of the Cubs’ regulars were given the day off. The exception, Starlin Castro, became the first player in franchise history to play shortstop all 162 games,” Porter said. “He’s ready to go home. It’s been a long season.”

Justin Maxwell hit a tying, three-run homer for Houston in the eighth and the Astros became the first team with 106 or more losses in consecutive seasons since the 1964-65 New York Mets.

Houston finished in NL West with 3,999 regular-season wins, 4,134 losses and five ties. The Astros are moving to the AL West next season, creating three divisions of five teams in each league.

The Astros were 16-25 under interim manager Tony DeFrancesco, who took over after Brad Mills was fired on Aug. 18. Washington third base coach Bo Porter already has been hired as Houston’s manager for next season.

“It’s going to be a game I’ll always remember,” DeFrancesco said of his last gig at the helm of the Astros. “I just want to have one more shot to go to the World Series before I (retire),” Castro said.

Bobby Abreu hit a tying, three-run homer for Houston in the eighth.

Wood also chased Astros starter Edgar Gonzalez with a two-run single.

Houston went 55-107 and set a club record for losses with one more than last year. The Astros became the first team with 106 or more losses in consecutive seasons since the 1964-65 New York Mets.

Houston finished in NL West with 3,999 regular-season wins, 4,134 losses and five ties. The Astros are moving to the AL next season, creating three divisions of five teams in each league.

To go through the adversity he’s had to go through after having a great start, the All-Star game, then having a month off, is a good feeling right there,” LaHair said. “Unfortunately, the record didn’t say that, but just to finish the season is a great start to his year,” Cubs manager Dale Sveum said.

The longest active streak in the NL is 195 consecutive games played by Jimmy Rollins in 2007. Castro’s 195 consecutive games played is the longest active streak in the NL.

Most of the Cubs’ regulars were given the day off. The exception, Starlin Castro, became the first player in franchise history to play shortstop all 162 games, and the first major league to do it since Philadelphia’s Jimmy Rollins in 2007. Castro’s 195 consecutive games played is the longest active streak in the NL.

How to find a new home that will embrace her upbeat and loving personality.

Freshman pole vaulter Kemar Jones focuses on his swing up Wednesday during practice at Lew Hertzog Track & Field Complex. Coach Brian Porter said off-season practices are geared toward establishing a base for each vaulter to build upon leading up to the season. “This is putting it together right now. Then they’ll adapt to a longer run,” Coach Porter said. “This is setting up their base for the season and getting them ready for what’s going to happen when we get started in January.”

Vaulters build their bases
THE SIU women's tennis team travels to Wichita, Kan., this weekend for the Missouri Valley Conference Individual Championships.

Last year, junior Anita Lee won the Flight-5 singles championship and defeated her first two opponents in straight sets (6-3, 6-0 and 6-0, 7-5). Lee won the championship match by staging a comeback, as she won the final two sets after losing the first (6-7 (2), 6-2, 7-6 (3)).

Senior Melanie Delhart and junior Korey Love won their first two matches 8-4, and they improved their play in the doubles championship in tandem as they won the decisive match 8-1.

Coach Audra Nothwehr said the team hopes to exceed last year's success. "We did pretty well last year, which was one of the best performances we have had at the MVC Individuals," she said. "This year we are aiming to win at least a few more matches."

Nothwehr said the team will see more familiar opponents since this is a conference tournament. Lee said familiarity could be a negative as much as it is a positive. "We will be competing against the players who probably know our games better than anyone else," Lee said. "It's harder to win against people you have already beaten because they make adjustments."

She said the team has practiced with extra intensity and implemented earlier practice times this week. "We have been doing more early morning practices because we have early match times," Lee said. "By doing this, our bodies should be more prepared for the tournament."

Senior Jennifer Dien, who won the 2011 Flight-2 Consolation Championship, said she hopes to improve her approach to the tournament. "I've done a lot of practice on my backhand, serve and volley … but this year I have to maintain a positive attitude no matter what happens," she said. Nothwehr said she has noticed how much effort every player committed to the tournament. "Of course practices are intense. This tournament is a big deal," she said. "The girls have done a great job of working extra hard this week and pushing through minor setbacks. Some girls have even come back from injuries a little earlier than they were supposed to in order to get a sufficient amount of practice."

Lee said the team must remain aggressive and close out matches when it can. "Since we are playing within the conference, we have to keep the intensity up," she said. "We also have to try and finish matches. We can't leave any openings."

Delhart returns to the No. 1 singles slot for the Salukis this weekend. Lee jumps to the No. 2 slot and sophomore Natasha Tomishima will play at the No. 3 singles slot. The three doubles teams to compete in Wichita are Delhart/Love (Flight-1), Dien/Tomishima (F-2) and junior Anastacia Simons/Lee (F-3).
When I was 14, I decided I wanted to be an astronaut. To achieve this, in high school I took physics classes that gave me the foundation I needed. During the summers, I worked an internship for NASA and took physics classes that not only cost money but presumably do not lead to an applicable benefit upon graduation. This adds up to additional classes that exceed 30 hours, or a full year of college. This allows for the additional benefit of a smoother transition for transfer students, especially from community colleges, because it would be a standard of required core classes.

Many universities already have similar programs to assist undecided students.

The University of Illinois’ Division of General Studies “is the preeminent resource at Illinois for those students who are undeclared, exploring or in transitional stages of major declaration.” Leadership should assist students and provide them with more time to make decisions that would improve overall undergraduate academic excellence.

Students who make a decision on their major later in their schooling will save stress, time and money.

Our universities must take these measures to improve the quality of their students’ education in these trying economic times.