Ledge walking at the highrise dormitories could result in a fatal fall, as this view from the 17th story of Schneider Hall might indicate. So, University policy in this matter is tough. See accompanying story.

Did he jump or was he pushed?
This is a question SIU officials are making quite certain they never have to answer. The policy being carried out by the Dean of Students Office in cases of students who venture onto the ledges of University high-rise dorms is, in a word, tough.

SIU maintains three 17-story highrise dormitories which serve as on-campus living facilities for unmarried students, most of whom are undergraduate. Neely Hall is the women's highrise in University Park; Mae Smith and Schneider Halls accommodate women and men respectively at the new Brush Towers complex.

Each of the towers is nearly identical, having ledges extending approximately three feet from the plane of the buildings. The ledges are accessible through the windows and facilitate maintenance work.

William B. Sweet, acting assistant dean of Brush Towers, commented Thursday on the problems his area has had with students who wander out onto the ledges.

"Our air conditioning system has had to be revamped," he said, "and since it has been off we have permitted students to open their windows. When the air conditioning is functioning again there will go into effect a $5 penalty for opening the windows."

The University Physical Plant reports the Brush Towers' air conditioning system should be operating today.

In addition, Sweet said persons who endanger their lives by going onto the ledge will be "subject to possible dismissal from this institution."

There were four incidents involving students who ventured onto the ledges this summer, according to Sweet. Two of the students withdrew from the University before action was taken, he said. Two others were suspended.

One such case has occurred already this quarter. The student, a first-term freshman, was handed disciplinary probation for the remainder of the quarter. Sweet said the disciplinary action was reduced because the infraction took place the first day of the quarter, before the student was informed of the regulation by his resident fellow.

"We have to be consistent about this," said Sweet, "and I feel we would be negligent unless we took a firm posture on this issue."

"The act is not a crime in itself, but the person is endangering his life and I feel responsible for preventing this."

He said the bottom half of the windows in Brush Towers will be bolted down sometime before the end of this quarter. According to John Evans, head resident at University Park, the bolted lower window has been effective in preventing girls from going onto the ledge at Neely Hall.

Sweet cited several factors, including the value of humidity and fire control, as further reasons for requiring closed windows. In addition, he said it would also aid in the prohibition of water balloons, women's pants, and other items frequently hurled into the atmosphere from the towers.

Felts Hall water line breaks; boys mop basement

A water line break at Felts Hall Thursday afternoon caused flurry of excitement for physical plant workers and students.

Workers were called to the muddy scene when it was discovered that the basement was being flooded.

After the main was shut off, residents took mops and brooms to sweep up the water on the basement floor.

When physical plant workers arrived the basement was mostly dry and the University employees proceeded to work on the muddy lawn around the break.

Some machinery was necessary to clear away the mud, particularly on the basement steps.

Gus says he's been thinking about it and he can't find a good reason to pay $45 to park his $10 car.

Home Ec adds 6 instructors

Several new instructors have been appointed in the School of Home Economics at SIU, effective this fall, according to Eileen E. Quigley, dean.

Nancy Donave Greene and Mrs. Elaine Sanders Flint have been added to the faculty of the clothing and textiles department; Mrs. Shirley Rogers as home economics adviser; Mrs. Mildred Collins, Mrs. Veva Nell Ramsey and Mrs. Marilyn Lorraine Filbeck in the home economics education department.

Miss Greene, a specialist in interior design, housing and textiles, holds both the bachelor's and master's degrees in home economics from the University of North Carolina, Greensboro. She is a native of Charlotte, N.C.

Mrs. Flint, a native of Clarksville, Ind., is a graduate of Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, and completed her master's degree in clothing and textiles at SIU. She also has done graduate work at Pennsylvania State University. She taught at Western Illinois University in 1966-67.

Mrs. Rogers, who formerly taught at Valier, McNabb, Hurst-Bush and Carbondale Community High School, holds both the bachelor's and master's degrees in home economics from SIU.

Mrs. Collins, whose home is at Murphysboro, has taught at SIU and from 1965 to 1967 taught at the Edwardsville campus.

Mrs. Ramsey holds both a bachelor's and master's degrees in home economics from

SIU. A native of Eldorado, she has taught for a number of years at Ridgway.

Mrs. Filbeck, a graduate of California State College, holds the master's degree from Loma Linda University at La Sierra, Calif. Last year she was a graduate assistant in the home economics education department.

Nora Stirling play to tour during year

"Ever Since April," a play by Nora Stirling, will be the mental health production to be presented on tour this year by the Department of Theater at SIU.

The play, sponsored by the State Department of Mental Health, will be presented at no charge to interested groups during the entire school year with the exception of vacation periods, scheduled campus performances, and University finals weeks. The play centers on mandatory retirement at age 65 and the effects on concerned people.

Camille Willingham, graduate assistant of theater at SIU, will direct the play, Miss Willingham, of Chicago, graduated from Central State University at Wilburforce, Ohio, and directed two productions there before coming to SIU.

Auditions for the play will be held at 7 p.m. Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 in the Communications Building.

Church groups and civic organizations within a 100-mile radius of SIU may book the play by contacting the Department of Theater, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois. No stage is required for the play's presentation.

Who controls?

The recent controversy involving the role of student government officials in "running this University" points to a larger and more far reaching problem on this campus. Prejudices on both sides are standing in the way of progress.

It appears that resentment, mistrust, and disbelief exist which could destroy any mutual cooperation between student government and administration. Such cooperation is requisite to any meaningful discussion.

Former Student Body President Ray Lenzi's progressive campaign on behalf of student rights last year awakened many to the urgent needs of this campus. But his impatient quest for immediate change alienated the establishment, and ensuing anxieties led to frustrated protestations with violent overtones. His means led to negligible, if not negative, results.

Sam Panayotovich, student body president, is now faced with the task of re-establishing lines of communications which hostilities have, to an uncertain degree, severed. And now is the critical time, for he must wage a cold war with the authorities without appearing to have "sold out" the responsibility he owes his electorate. To do so would be to render himself impotent in the coming months.

New and more effective programs need to be thought through; the progress of the past must not be lost.

The president should put his cards on the table. A set of priorities and alternative methods of attaining them should be established and made public. For valuable negotiations can only occur in the presence of clearly stated objectives on all sides.

Mistakes of the past should not hamper work in the direction of a more successful future. It is only through establishing a solid line of communication between student, faculty and administration that any true progress can be achieved this year.

Pools needed

Carbondale citizens should vote yes on the swimming pool bond issue Saturday.

The bond issue requests $600,000. The money would be raised by charging $1.05 per $1,000 assessed valuation. The average assessed valuation in Carbondale is $8,600 so the average cost to taxpayers would be approximately $8.00.

The plan is to build three neighborhood pools and one Olympic size pool at the Carbondale Reservoir. The neighborhood pools would measure 30 feet by 60 feet and would also have a bath house with shower. The reservoir area would also be used as a more comprehensive recreational facility.

Few persons will doubt the need of at least one swimming pool—Marion, Herrin and Murphysboro have pools although their population is smaller. However, many persons may doubt the need for four pools.

There are several reasons why four are needed.

The selection of these sites eliminates the need to purchase additional land. If a centrally located community pool site were purchased, it would add perhaps $200,000 to the cost of the project.

There will be virtually no traffic problems created because a pool will be located within walking distance of almost all of the 5,000 students in grades one through 12. No bussing will be needed.

T. E. Samuelson & Associates, architects who studied the problem, say a town the size of Carbondale should have an average of 14 pools.

Voters who are against a certain part of the proposal should consider whether they favor four pools or none at all. There is no middle ground. The bond issue deserves a yes vote Saturday.

Now to 'toughen up' courses

To the editor:

Last summer the grades assigned to students in a couple of General Studies science courses inspired some interchange in this section of the Daily Egyptian. The essentials of the episode involved some students' complaining about a large percentage of low test and course grades; an instructor's response that the reason for so many low grades could well be that science is a more difficult subject matter than others; and another instructor's opinion that students find science courses so boring and irrelevant to their interests that they don't try very hard.

I think the first instructor may be wrong, but he did expose a highly important point. There is a common tendency to judge the significance of a course by its difficulty. The more students that fail, the more significant the course. Thus, the obvious solution for instructors in non-science courses who would like to improve the academic image of their courses is to "toughen up" their courses. Following are a few suggestions which might help achieve this goal.

One way to make a course more difficult is to require students to do things for which they do not have the prerequisite knowledge and skills. By giving a brief diagnostic test at the beginning of the course, it is possible to find out what students know and can do. Given this information, it is a simple matter to start the course several levels beyond the level of the majority of the students.

Another popular and effective technique is to require students to learn more than can possibly be learned in a given time period. This usually frustrates them and results in their learning nothing well, plus the extra bonus of hating the teacher, the course, the subject matter, learning, and college in general. The real beauty of this procedure is that students can be convinced that there are some things they just "cannot learn" (which is probably not true since it is fairly well accepted that any student can learn anything with adequate instruction, motivation and time), and they will give up completely and feel good about it.

In addition to providing insufficient time to learn, it is often helpful to present material in as complicated, disorganized, and boring form as possible. Lecturing and reading aloud from books can be effective. Audio-visual aids should be avoided. Actual contact with students (particularly answering questions about anything) should also be avoided. Textbooks should be out of date and outside readings unavailable.

If there are still a few students who don't seem to know when to give up, a surefire method for them is to make sure your tests do not cover what was learned in the course (this is called "the hidden objective"). For example, if all term was spent teaching students to name and identify the works of certain 18th Century composers, then a good final exam would test them on their ability to discuss the influence of the Industrial Revolution on the production of musical instruments in the 20th Century.

A final caution—instructors in the arts and humanities are often going to have to work much harder than science teachers to beef up the bottom of their grading curves because students do seem to get quite interested in their subject matter and, as a result, become aggressive learners. But science teachers probably faced this problem once upon a time, and they overcame it—and by drawing upon some of the methods they have developed (mentioned above), I see no reason why most non-science instructors cannot make a significant improvement in the level of academic respectability of their courses.

Antero Pietila is a Finnish graduate student in the Department of Journalism. He has worked for newspapers in Finland and the United States. He went to Chicago to cover the Democratic National Convention for two magazines in Finland. Although he does not mention the word "police" in this account, Pietila says he is for law and order . . . and justice.

Chicago in retrospect: prayers, poetry, press

By Antero Pietila

Billy Graham came to Chicago, led the opening session of the Democratic National Convention in an invocation, prayed also for "the candidate of the other party," resumed his crusade in another city and said that the unreality of Chicago surpassed everything he had seen before.

He should have been there a couple of nights later. In the opening night somebody still innocently asked a news media bus driver, "Anything happened outside while we were in? I mean, have we declared war on anybody or..."

As you may or may not remember, one night the session was called off without a prayer. Therefore, I am tempted to reproduce here what was heard one night from the press gallery in the International Amphitheater. It is called "Mantra Singing, Prayer, and Poetry" and it was unforgettable and forcefully performed by Allen Ginsberg the poet, his bushy beard fluttering. Curiously enough it was not included in the King Richard Version of what actually happened in Chicago. Maybe this was because it might have suggested that the holy men of the Himalayas had something to do with the events of that week.

Here then is the prayer in the form it was distributed by the yippies. It should be read aloud.

7. LA ILLAHA EL (LILL) ALLAH WHO

—There is no God
but Allah God

There were two other gurus who even in their absence were very much present in Chicago. One was a man from the country of DEW-line, Marshall McLuhan, the other was Grigori Aleksandrovich Potemkin, a Russian prince that passed from this world in 1791 but whose spirit is still marching on.

Marshall McLuhan who himself is "cool" teaches that while print media is also "cool," television is "hot." Some of his fellow professors in communications sometimes treat his thesis with something less than respect and something more than disbelief. Yet McLuhan has some following, one reason for this being that he has become a part of the pop culture he helped to create.

This year's conventions were the first ones in the history of this electronic age that were broadcast in living color instead of dead. And whatever reservations we might have about McLuhan's teachings, they should be carefully examined in the light of events in Chicago.

For another thing, in Chicago, television stepped down from its role as a reporter of news and became a maker of it. Whatever the critics claim, television only reported the riots on Michigan Avenue. It did not present "a camera shot of the yuppies provoking the police or shouting obscenities at them" (as West-side Dorm Senator and Daley fan James J. Hodl so eloquently put it in Tuesday's Egyptian) because television in its nature is not an anticipatory medium. If it were it would lose all its viewers.

The "hot" hour of television came with the rumors that Senator Edward Kennedy might after all be compliant to accept the nomination. There and then it was CBS that became the leader of this draft movement. NBC resisted for half an hour or so, then joined the draft. And it is certain that if you broadcast a little information of substance and then rumors and especially comments on rumors you simply must produce something.

In Chicago the networks produced a Kennedy boom and nobody can be sure about what might have happened had Teddy Kennedy himself accepted the genuineness of the draft. Whatever the outcome of the election in November, it seems clear that the networks will place this charismatic name for nomination soon after the inauguration because it is an attractive name and will make Nielsen ratings look good.

You have read so much about big city political machines and their decline that to find one so strong and so efficient as that of Mayor Daley was somewhat startling. It might have served some educational purpose for every Chicagoan, believers and non-believers alike, to drive through Mayor Daley's own neighborhood during the convention. Unfortunately the good people of Chicago were not allowed to do so. And it can be doubted whether they would have been in a position to fully appreciate that kind of a tour because for that you must have been to Russia during an official state visit.

Of course it looked awfully nice to have all those screaming kids on the streets along that well-guarded official route to the International Amphitheater with signs welcoming the Democrats and spreading the glorious name of Richard J. Daley. Otherwise you might have even forgotten in whose city you were. But it was somewhat strange to see so many older people there too doing the very same. You could only pray that they were duly noticed and that heavenly manna they were waiting for eventually fell upon them from the City Hall.

They have nice brick houses in Bridgeport. It may also be told (if you missed the story) that paint was still fresh there. Countless new fences were also erected as Chicago is a beautiful city and there were no unpleasant scenes in the original script.

You could only admire the efficiency of the ward captains. The windows of every house were plastered with "Welcome Democrats" signs, but except for a lonely McCarthy poster it was impossible to see any placards favoring any political candidate. Oh yes, once somebody waved a sign, "We want Teddy," although the Illinois delegation was still uncommitted. But after Mayor Daley had announced his preference, Humphrey posters just abounded in Bridgeport. He has such considerate subjects, this Mayor Daley. Really, when he was attacked the good people of his neighborhood welcomed the press with signs, "Newsmen Go Home" and "CBS Stinks."

There were lots of Humphrey supporters in Chicago who said that they could not understand the high spirits of the McCarthy kids even after the Senator himself had prematurely conceded his defeat in a newspaper interview. And certainly not one of them expected that kind of highly emotional rally that was staged at the entrance of the Conrad Hilton after the lost battle. The kids, tears in their eyes, pointed at incoming Humphrey delegates, chanted "You killed the party" and sang patriotic songs.

"What will happen to these kids now after Chicago?" it was frequently asked. Nobody knew, although some pessimists pointed to the melee at Grant Park.

But the McCarthy movement of 1968 was so distinctly an upper-middle class movement that it was hard to believe. (There is an account, fascinating in its self-criticism about McCarthy's campaign in the Summer issue of New Mexico Quarterly). And yet never has there been so well-trained a young political generation as those who followed the Senator from New Hampshire to California. So somebody said that they will campaign hard for antiwar candidates and then stage a huge McCarthy rally outside the Democratic National Committee Headquarters in Washington on the very day Dick Nixon is inaugurated. Whether he really meant this or merely said something in order to break the silence is not clear. We shall see.

In the meantime, AUM AUM...

Driver education workshop Oct. 17

The 13th annual Fall Driver Education Workshop will be held at the SIU Safety Center Monday, Oct. 7, according to James E. Aaron, director of the center.

It will be attended by approximately 60 high school driver education instructors from the Southern Illinois area. Its purpose is to provide a medium of exchange for ideas and information concerning driver education and to acquaint participants with policy changes at the state level. The workshop is sponsored by the Illinois High School and College Driver Education Association, the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the SIU Safety Center.

SIU dancers available for tour

Southern Dancers, a new repertory company at SIU will be available for touring engagements at schools and for civic organizations in Southern and Central Illinois, according to W. Grant Gray, director.

The dance group made several appearances on the campus last year and presented a concert as a feature of the Edwardsville Campus Dance Festival. A summer workshop in dance was conducted by Gray and members were presented in a public performance.

Members of the 1968-69 repertory company are Kent Baker of Oblong, Robert Batts of Hampton, Va., Alice Dornak of Berwyn, Vikki Lee of Lafayette, Calif., Clarice Marshall of Carbondale, Eric McKamey of Chicago, Steven Parker of Decatur, Pamela Pollak of Wilmette and Charleen Robertson of Chicago.

The touring company is sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association of the women's physical education department, Southern Players of the theater department, and the University Extension Service, Gray said. Bookings may be arranged through the University Extension Services office.

Gray, who joined the University faculty last fall as assistant professor of dance, has directed and choreographed approximately 100 dance-theater productions and organized dance companies in high schools in Colorado and California. He holds bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees in theater and dance from western universities and has also studied at Perry-Mansfield School of Theater and Dance and Modern Dance Center at Berkeley and in master classes with noted professionals.

Audition date set for Oct. 1

Auditions for the Southern Illinois Symphony will be held Oct. 1 at 7 p.m. in Room 111 of Altgeld Hall, according to Herbert Levinson, director of the symphony and assistant professor in the Department of Music.

The symphony's first concert will be the Homecoming Concert Nov. 1 at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium.

Grads granted 6 week book loan

A two-week extension on the library loan period for books has been given to graduate students, provided they follow a prescribed procedure.

Robert Keel, circulation librarian of Morris Library, announced the new policy effective this quarter.

A technicality in the computer program for checking out books requires graduate students to provide the circulation desk with proof of status.

Keel said the computer as it is now programmed does not differentiate between graduate and undergraduate students. Keel said that to bypass this problem, graduates may obtain a form from the Graduate Office certifying their status.

The form, accompanied by an ID should be presented to the circulation desk. The badge will be embossed indicating graduate status and eligibility for a six-week loan for books from the regular collection.

The change does not affect the current policy for browsing and reserve books and special material, Keel noted.

A further change in library policy is the discontinuance of periodical circulation.

In previous quarters, faculty could check out periodicals for a specified length of time. Now, however, Keel said, periodicals may not be taken out of the library except as authorized by reference librarians on a title-by-title basis.

Ferris Randall, director of Morris Library, said the five-cent self-service photocopiers in each of the four subject reading rooms provided the basis for the change.

Voting age 18 in only two states; others plan reduction; riots, demonstration hurt cause

CHICAGO (AP) — Only two states permit 18-year-olds to vote, and despite presidential support most states are balking at lowering the voting age or are ignoring the matter, an Associated Press survey shows.

Many proponents of the lower voting age contend Americans are mature at 18 today because of better diets and health care.

Many opponents point to rioting on college campuses and youthful demonstrations such as those during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago as proof that 18-year-olds are not mature enough to vote.

Georgia and Kentucky have allowed 18-year-olds to vote and both have done so for many years. Alaska has had a voting age of 19 since it became a state.

In five other states, measures lowering the voting age from 21 are under consideration.

Citizens of Nebraska and Hawaii will vote Nov. 5 on constitutional amendments setting lower voting ages to 19 in Nebraska and 18 in Hawaii.

The Nov. 5 ballot will ask Tennessee voters whether they wish to empower the state's next constitutional convention to draft an amendment lowering the voting age to 18.

Five bills introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature are languishing in committee.

Three propose 18 years and one 20 years. Another would retain the 21-year level, except for servicemen with at least seven months' active duty, who would be permitted to vote at 18.

In Massachusetts the legislature barely passed a resolution setting the voting age at 19. However, this must be passed again after elections in October, then go to the 1970 ballot. Anxiety over youthful agitation appears to have contributed to the downfall of lower voting age measures in at least four states.

A proposed constitutional amendment put through the 1967 North Dakota legislature was turned down recently by voters, 61,813 to 59,034.

Rates rise on insurance for students

The Blue Cross-Blue Shield health insurance for SIU students can be purchased at the Bursar's Office through Monday, the last day of late registration. For persons with deferred fees the deadline is Oct. 7.

Application forms and brochures, which together serve as an official policy, may be picked up at the Dean of Students Office.

The insurance rates are nearly double those one year ago. The present rates are $9 per quarter for individual students and $28.20 per quarter for family membership. The former rates were $5.60 and $14.70.

The coverage extends from the first day of classes (earlier in the case of students involved with orientation) to the day before classes begin winter quarter. The coverage can be purchased quarterly or yearly.

The rate increase is due to a lower-than-expected number of students buying the insurance, according to Melvin Byrd, a representative of the Blue Cross-Blue Shield office in Springfield. When announcing last year's cost, underwriters estimated about 15,000 would buy the insurance. However, only about 4,000 purchased the coverage which forced an increase in this year's prices.

A change has been made in the procedure for obtaining instant identification cards. The cards will be available at the Dean of Students Office at a later date, not at the Bursar's Office as previously planned. The instant ID card plan will be initiated beginning winter quarter.

Worship services set

The Carbondale Religious Society of Friends will hold Sunday worship services at 11 a.m. in the Student Christian Foundation this year.

On Oct. 6 the Quakers will interrupt the schedule to join the St. Louis Friends Meeting at Little Grassy Methodist Camp for a weekend retreat.

Interested persons should dial 549-4706 for more information.

Begins Oct. 10

Grand jury to explore bribe attempt charges

A grand jury investigation will begin Oct. 10 to look into Carbondale Mayor David Keene's charges of attempted bribery.

The date is the earliest possible time that a grand jury could begin investigating, according to Jackson County States Attorney Richard Richman.

Richman said it normally takes three weeks before a grand jury begins investigating but they have been advised to get started sooner.

Charles Siragusa, head of the Illinois Crime Commission, said he plans to give the states attorney's office all of the information he has received.

The commission plans to drop efforts to investigate the bribery attempts rather than duplicate the work of the grand jury.

Richman pointed out that the grand jury will possess the bribery attempts rather than duplicate the work of the grand jury.

City Attorney George Fleerlage said he was pleased that the grand jury investigation will be conducted.

City endorses idea for group to aid handicapped

By John Durbin

The Carbondale City Council passed a resolution Tuesday night sponsoring the establishment of a council for the employment of the physically handicapped in the southern Illinois area.

Councilman Randall Nelson has been directing efforts to establish the council as re-

Saturday deadline for registration set for luncheons

Saturday is registration deadline for a series of six weekly lecture-discussion luncheons for women at SIU.

Titled "Food 'n' Thought," the series will begin at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Illinois Room at the University Center with a discussion of "Legends and Lore of Southern Illinois" by author-historian John W. Allen.

The series is sponsored by the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education. Fee for the six sessions is $14 and includes luncheon, according to Adult Education Coordinator Harold F. Engelking. Registration should be made by noon Saturday at the office of adult education, 908 S. Wall, telephone 453-2202.

Other topics and lecturers scheduled for the series are:

"Recreational Opportunities in Southern Illinois," Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge Manager Arch Mehroff; "Painting in Oils," Don Ross; "Charm and Personal Improvement," Eileen Adams; "Behind the Scenes of a Musical Production," William Taylor; and "Oriental Flower Arrangement," Suzuko Mita.

Any interested woman may participate in the series, but enrollment will be limited, according to Engelking.

Yom Kippur service set

Yom Kippur service will be held at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 1, in the ballroom of University Center.

Services will be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Oct. 2, in the Jewish Foundation, 803 S. Washington. A dinner will then be served at 7:30 p.m. There will be a slight charge.

The organization will hold its first general meeting at 8 p.m. Oct. 7 in the Foundation.

New student talent to perform tonight

The 1968 New Student Talent Show will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the Southern Playhouse of the Communications Building.

The show will feature 20 acts performed by new SIU students, according to Dave Fabian, co-chairman of the annual affair. This year's program has been changed from an all-freshmen show to one featuring new transfer students as well, Fabian said. Miss Southern, Phyllis Green, will be one of the show's emcees.

quested by Mayor David Keene and George Conn, representative of the Governor's Commission for the Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

Conn had requested that Carbondale undertake sponsorship of the organization.

Nelson pointed out that "although such a council would have to be sponsored by the city, it must be established as a self-governing and self-financing organization."

Companies throughout southern Illinois will be asked to join the council for an annual membership fee of $5. The fees will be used to finance the organization.

Nelson explained that "the essence of this project is to provide a continuous interest on the part of the employers in the employment of the physically handicapped."

"There are many jobs that a physically handicapped person can do," he said. "For example, a job that requires a man to sit at a desk or on a stool all day does not necessarily require a man with two legs."

Nelson contends that "many physically handicapped persons are denied employment because the employer does not understand his problem."

Nelson said already a number of such councils have been formed in the major regions of Illinois.

The Governor's Commission and the councils throughout the state are designed to accomplish two purposes. They seek to place the right man in the right job and convince employers of the desirability of giving physically handicapped men and women equal opportunity in obtaining employment for which they are qualified, Nelson said.

Mr. James Medlin, a Carbondale attorney and member of the Chamber of Commerce, has agreed to assist on the project, Nelson said. The councilman also said that Professor Robert Lee of the Rehabilitation Institute at SIU will provide technical assistance and Fred Tamen, head of the regional office of the Illinois Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, has promised full cooperation.

Nelson said an organizational meeting will be held as soon as he has received a sufficient number of affirmative replies from companies in southern Illinois.

Despite rising prices at SIU football ducats remain same

One of the few costs that hasn't yet increased for the SIU student is the admission charge for Saluki home football games.

Seventy-five cents still entitles the holder of a valid SIU fee statement to purchase a ticket for the east stands of McAndrew stadium.

Both general public admission reserved and non-reserved tickets have been hiked an average of twenty-five cents to $3.25 and $2.75 respectively, and for Homecoming to $4 and $3.

Students may pick up football tickets on Thursday or Friday before a game in either Room H of the University Center or at the Arena ticket office. Hours for sales at both locations are 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Both locations are open from 8:30 a.m. to noon on game days.

Season football ticket sales for the general public, SIU alumni, faculty and staff were closed on Sept. 20; however, students may still purchase

Religious groups

hold, plan events

for new students

Welcoming events for new students were recently held by several religious organizations affiliated with SIU. The Baptist Student Center held a fall retreat over last weekend, and the Lutheran Gamma Delta Student Center and the Wesley Foundation each held open houses on Sept. 22.

Other events scheduled for the near future are listed below.

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will meet Friday at the home of Elbert Hadley, assistant dean of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The Baptist Student Center has planned a progressive dinner to take place on Sunday at 3:15 p.m. Different courses of the meal will be served at the following Baptist churches: Lakeland, Walnut Street, University and Lantana. This type of dinner will give students an excellent opportunity to visit the various Baptist churches in the area and meet the pastors serving these churches. Interested students should contact the Baptist Student Center if they wish to attend.

The Student Christian Foundation at 913 S. Illinois will have a buffet dinner at 5:30 p.m. on Sunday. A discussion led by Wilbur Moulton, dean of students, will follow the dinner. Charge for the meal will be $.75.

The Jewish Student Association will hold its first general meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Student Center, 803 S. Washington.

an athletic event ticket. The price of such ticket is $6 for both fall and winter quarters, $3 for fall only or $3.50 for winter only.

Holders of athletic event tickets are admitted free to all home football, basketball, swimming, wrestling and gymnastics events.

The holder of the athletic event ticket may also elect to pay an additional $2 and thus receive, before the first game, all of this season's basketball tickets. He will also be assured of some choice in the selection of his seat for the games and will be assured of the same seat for all games.

Those who don't elect to pay the $2 will be required to pick up their tickets at the Arena ticket window two days prior to each home game, and they will not be assured of the same seat for all games. The extra $2 thus saves the purchaser 12 trips to the Arena during the season.

Purchase of the $6 athletic event ticket helps the student realize a substantial savings on ticket prices over buying his tickets for each individual event—if he plans to attend a majority of the scheduled fall and winter sports events.

Students may also purchase a ticket for the Nov. 22 Gateway Classic football game to be held in St. Louis' Busch stadium. The Saluki opponent will be Southwest Missouri State. Prices are seventy-five cents for students and $4 for others. All proceeds will go to the St. Louis-based HELP social, welfare and scholarship organization.

Industrial course series to begin

Three courses of a series leading to the Industrial Management Certificate will be offered this fall by the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education.

Registration for the courses will be at the first class meeting, according to Assistant Dean Glenn E. Wills.

The program is designed to upgrade skills of persons in management positions in business and industry and consists of a core of five required courses and a choice of three from among seven electives, or a total of eight 10-week courses to earn the certificate.

The three courses offered in the fall term are all among the five required, according to Wills. They are:

Practical Psychology for Supervisors I, taught by John Reising, Room 111, Communications Building, Mondays at 7 p.m. beginning Oct. 7. Tuition is $12 plus $8.50 for textbook.

Effective Speaking for Supervisors I, taught by Arthur Workun, Room 116, Communications Building, Mondays at 7 p.m. beginning Oct. 7, tuition $12 plus $4.75 for textbook.

Labor Management Relations, Gola Waters, Room 301B, Wham Education Building, Wednesdays at 7 p.m. beginning Oct. 9, tuition $12.

Participants may enroll in either of the Monday courses and the Wednesday course if they wish, Wills said. Additional information is available at the Adult Education office, 908 S. Wall, telephone 453-2202.

4-week course for policemen begins Oct. 6

A four-week basic training course for policemen will begin October 6 at SIU.

The course will be conducted at the SIU Little Grass Facility by the Division of Technical and Adult Education. Enrollment is limited to 30 full-time officers employed by a local, county or state law enforcement agency, according to Adult Education Coordinator Thomas W. Dardis.

Officers will receive 160 hours of instruction in traffic problems and control, firearms, Illinois criminal law, collection and preservation of evidence, fingerprinting, civil rights, handling of juveniles and other phases of law enforcement.

Courses will be taught by personnel from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Illinois State Police and Department of Public Safety, Secretary of State's office, National Automobile Theft Bureau, U.S. Secret Service, SIU Security Office and the SIU academic faculty.

The Illinois Local Governmental Law Enforcement Officers Training Board has certified the SIU program under provisions of the Illinois Police Training Act. The $225 fee includes housing, food and supplies.

Additional information is available from the Division of Technical and Adult Education, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

Hart loses job to Johnson

Jim Hart, ex-Saluki, has lost his starting quarterback job for the first time since last fall as the St. Louis football Cardinals prepare to meet the New Orleans Saints Sunday afternoon.

Coach Charley Winner announced Thursday that Charley Johnson will replace Hart as the starter.

The move came because Winner has gotten little offense out of the Cardinals so far and Hart has been unimpressive in the first two regular season games.

Against the Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49'ers Hart completed only 25 of 60 passes for 354 yards and two touchdowns. The TD's were the only two scored in both games.

Many uses

Cork is used in insulation, floor coverings and many other products, but bottle stoppers and liners for bottle caps still create the main demand for the product.

Jim Hart

Johnson first started quarterbacking the Big Red in 1963 when Sam Etcheverry's arm was going bad. From that time he was a fixture with the Cardinals until getting called up for military duty. This season he served as back-up man to Hart.

Winner says that starting Johnson in Sunday's game, may take some of the pressure off of Hart.

Hart was signed by the Cardinals as a free agent in 1965 and he inherited the quarterback job in 1967 when Johnson was called into the service.

Hart was impressive in his first full season with St. Louis although the team faltered near the end of the year losing five of the last six games. Hart set the Cardinal record for the most pass interceptions in a season with 30, but also was named "Offensive Player of the Week" on two occasions.

It was reported that the decision to start Johnson was made earlier in the week but was kept under wraps until late Thursday.

The Cards and Hart were 3-2 during exhibition play but couldn't seem to jell once the regular season got underway.

With Johnson at the helm the Cardinals own a 29-10-2 record.

Hinton says running became a habit

By Barb Leebens

"I like to run; sometimes I don't think I could do without it. It has become a habit with me."

That habit has brought Gerry Hinton to SIU and the cross country team.

A freshman from St. Catherine, Ontario, Canada, Hinton has run in two cross country meets for SIU and won them both. Against Miami of Ohio in the first meet of the season he won with a time of 21:12 and finished first with a 20 even clocking against the University of Illinois.

"I chose Southern after I looked at a lot of schools in the U.S.," Hinton said. "I liked the school; it was close to home; Coach Hartzog impressed me; and several Canadians here influenced me."

By choosing SIU, Hinton eliminated such schools as Florida, Kansas State, Ohio, UCLA, and Brigham Young—who all offered him a full-ride scholarship.

"No Canadian colleges offer athletic scholarships," Hinton explained. "I couldn't see trying to go to school in Canada and still running without some sort of financial aid."

Hinton began to run when a friend asked him to come out for the cross country team when he was in the ninth grade and he has been running ever since.

As a high school miler in the 20-years-old and under class Hinton has never been beaten. His best mile clocking is a 4:08.2 when he was a junior in high school. An injury to his leg cut short his running career as a senior.

Cross country in Canada is run on longer courses of five to eight miles compared to four, five or six miles in the U.S.

"In the States, cross country is better organized than in Canada," Hinton said. "Here you have more boys and basically the sport is a lot more of a team sport. At home not that many boys are interested in the sport and it is more of an individual sport."

As an athlete here at SIU it is Hinton's personal goal to run a four minute mile.

"I just want to be able to say that I ran a four minute mile," Hinton said. "It will give me a lot of personal satisfaction."

In comparing track and cross country, Hinton likes track and field best because:

Garry Hinton

"You have a better chance of seeing how you are improving. It's the same distance time after time and you know the course. Whereas, in cross country some of the courses are hilly and different distances. You can't really tell if you're improving."

Hinton defines himself as an offensive runner.

"I like to take the lead, I'm use to being out front," Hinton said. "I like to set the pace, but that's not always possible. Since I've been here I've run with the pack waiting to see what they'd do and hoping that I'd have enough sprint to take them in the end. So far it's worked."

Being an athlete has lots of benefits according to Hinton. "You get to meet a lot of very nice people, travel to many places, and mentally you have to put yourself on a time table that helps you to be organized."

Recreation areas open

The University Pool is open for recreational swimming on Friday from 7 to 10:30 p.m.; Saturdays 1 to 8 p.m.; and Sundays 1 to 5 p.m. during the fall, winter and spring terms.

The University School gymnasium and weight room are open for free play Monday through Friday from 4 to 10:30 p.m.; Saturdays 1 to 8 p.m.; and Sundays 1 to 5 p.m.

The Women's Gymnasium is open from 7 to 10 p.m. on Fridays; 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays and during the final examination week.

Students are required to show their identification cards before being admitted to these areas.

Students may check out the following recreational equipment at the Intramural Office: tennis rackets and balls, softball equipment, handball gloves, basketballs, volleyballs, horseshoes, and footballs.

The fall Intramural tennis singles tournament will be held on Oct. 16.

All students who wish to compete should come to the Intramural Office in Room 128 of the Arena to get rules governing the tournament. The deadline for entries is 5 p.m., Oct. 15.

Any student who has earned an athletic award in a four-year college is not eligible to participate.

Lineman out

(AP) — Letterman line-backer Hans Liesso, a 205-pound senior, has been lost to Northwestern for Saturday's football game with Southern California.

Liesso, a standout performer last week against Miami of Florida, suffered a sprained ankle and it has not responded to treatment.

Minister, wife become secretaries

A southern Illinois Baptist minister and his wife have joined the staff of SIU as secretaries so he can go to school.

Now working as secretary in the office of coordinator of SIU's Nepal education contract with the U.S. Agency for International Development is the Rev. Robert Goepfert, Belleville native who preached his last sermon Sunday at Parish Park Baptist Church, Marion, where he has been pastor since March, 1965. He plans to take courses in guidance at the University.

His wife, Jacqueline, also a Belleville native, is employed as secretary in the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency, and Corrections. The Goepferts have two children, Robin, 20, an SIU junior, and Stephen, 15, a sophomore in high school.

Before the Marion pastorate, the Rev. Goepfert was minister at the Villa Hills Baptist Church. He has been an ordained Baptist minister for 16 years.

He holds a bachelor of arts degree from William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo., where he majored in history, and the degree, bachelor of divinity, from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. He hopes to be kept busy on Sundays supplying a preacher for churches that need a pastor.

Eric Kramer says he never would have finished college without Reading Dynamics.

Come to Carbondale's new Reading Dynamics Institute and see why he feels this way.

Whether you're worried about finishing college, or would just like A's instead of B's, Reading Dynamics can make you a more effective student.

How? By improving your basic ability to read.

The average person reads about 250 to 400 words a minute . . . word by word, the way he was taught in grade school.

Eric Kramer of St. Louis University is one of thousands of college students who have decided to stop reading like fourth-graders.

A pre-med student from Plainview, Texas, Eric says "I took the Reading Dynamics course when it became evident that I could not keep up in college, or even hope to achieve the educational goals I had set for myself, unless I learned to read faster and more effectively. Now I read 2,000 to 2,500 words a minute in literature courses, slowing down to around 1,200 for technical books. I wish I could have taken the course in high school."

Jerry Burns, a St. Louis University psychology major from Oaklawn, Illinois, says "Prior to taking the Reading Dynamics course, I found my reading to be tedious and time-consuming. With my reading speed increased, I am able to read more material in different areas and in a shorter time. Also helpful were the methods of teaching Dynamic Reading — i.e., the recall patterns. I remember what I read much longer and I'm able to enjoy my reading much more than ever before. I got eight friends to take the course. I'd recommend it to anyone."

Marge Rumely, a St. Louis University junior from LaPorte, Ind., says, "My greatest improvement came from the use of recall patterns learned at Evelyn Wood. All my grades have gone up. I think it should be stressed that the recall patterns become a real asset in lectures as well as reading. I find it possible to practically quote lectures heard a year ago, after looking at a short recall pattern."

Come to a Reading Dynamics demonstration. See someone just like you read two, three, four-thousand words a minute, with excellent comprehension and recall . . . someone who eight weeks ago did well to read much faster than a fourth-grader.

Come, call or mail the coupon today. You owe it to yourself to improve something as basic as your ability to read.

Health Service exists only for benefit of SIU students

SIU students may feel comforted in sickness or in health by knowing that a staff of competent doctors and nurses is available to them at all times.

The University Health Service was created for student use only, and part of all Activity Fee payments is given to the Student Medical Benefit.

If a student has paid the Activity Fee, treatment by a doctor between the hours of 8 and 5 on weekdays and until noon on Saturday, is free. These free services also include laboratory work and x-rays. For convenience, a pharmacy, where drugs are sold at a discount to students, is located in the Health Service building.

Treatment by a Physician after Health Service regular hours requires the student to pay a $5 fee. If any laboratory or X-ray work needs to be done, there is a $4 call-back fee for technicians who must return to the Health Service from their homes. All fees collected are returned

Computer seminar held for business, industry personnel

A three-day seminar on "Computer Applications in Management and Engineering Systems Analysis" was held at the School of Technology at SIU Sept. 19-21.

Purpose of the seminar was to acquaint management and supervisory personnel in business and industry with the "systems approach" to management and engineering problem solving and the application of computer technology to management system and engineering system design, as well as provide practical experience with computers. No prior computer experience was required.

The seminar was sponsored by the Illinois State Technical Services Program and SIU's School of Technology, School of Business and Data Processing and Computing Center.

to the Student Medical Benefit Fund.

To make an appointment to see a physician, a student need only call the Health Service, 3-3311. An appointment must be made at least a day in advance, but a student may see a doctor without one. He may visit the Health Service at a time convenient to him and wait his turn to see a doctor.

A 12-bed infirmary is available for students who must receive special care during an illness. If a Health Service doctor decides a student needs bed rest in order to recover properly, the patient can rest easy knowing that he will receive 10 days of free care. This free care, which payment of the Activity Fee entitles him to, includes room, board, and doctor's services. Students must pay only for the medicines they receive during their stay.

An ambulance service is also offered the SIU student by the Health Service. A nominal fee of $2.50 is charged each student for an ambulance call whether or not he has paid the activity fee.

All ambulance drivers have been trained in first aid and are well equipped to deal with emergencies. Oxygen is always available if needed, and equipment such as hydraulic jacks, to be used in the event of automobile accidents, is also available aboard the ambulance.

Eleven attend APA meeting

Eleven SIU faculty members were in San Francisco Aug. 30-Sept. 3 for the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

Heading a five-member delegation from the SIU Rehabilitation Institute was its director, Guy A. Renzaglia, who was accompanied by Edward S. Sulzer, B.L. Hopkins, Harris Rubin and Nathan Azrin.

The Department of Psychology was represented by David Ehrenfreund, chairman, Robert A. Levitt, Neil A. Carrier and Charles Peyser.

Also making the trip were Clayton E. Ladd of the Office of Counseling and Festing and Beth M. Sulzer.

Many religious groups represented on campus

In the confusion of new aces, new places and new things to do, a first term student may find solace in discovering his particular faith represented at SIU. SIU has religious-affiliated organization and interdenominational groups representing 15 different religions. So the chance of a student not being able to find the church of his choice at SIU is slim.

Each of the recognized student religious groups at SIU is invited to join the Inter-Faith Council. This voluntary organization seeks harmony and cooperation between the various groups.

Church affiliated groups are: Jewish Student Association at 803 S. Washington, offers religious, cultural and social programs to all students. Faculty advisor Jerry Slegler can be contacted at the JSA Center by calling 457-7279.

Christian Science Organization holds weekly meetings on Thursday at 9 p.m. in the University Center. Information can be obtained at the Student Activities Office.

Lutheran Student Center (Missouri Synod) and the Chapel of St. Paul the Apostle, at 700 S. University, are open daily to Lutheran students. The Center sponsors a Chapel choir and many religious and social activities. Rev. Rueben C. Baerwald, pastor, can be contacted at 549-1694.

Luthern Student Association (Lutheran Church in America and American Lutheran Church) holds meetings and activities in Epiphany Lutheran Church at Chautauqua and Glenview Drive. Pastor

Robert Trendel is available at 457-2065.

Gamma Delta, the Missouri Synod sponsored International Association of Lutheran University Students, is a joint program of both Lutheran foundations.

Canterbury House (Episcopal Anglican) is located at 402 W. Mill St. and holds monthly meeting and dinners. Chaplain Albert W. Hillestad is available daily at St. Andrew's Church, 404 W. Mill (457-5740) or at Canterbury House (457-5740).

The Newman Center (Roman Catholic) at 715 S. Washington, offers weekly evening services, devotions and social programs. Meeting of the General Assembly are on Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. Rev. Cletus Hentschel can be reached at 457-2463 or at the Center.

Baptist Student Center offers the facilities of its recently erected center to students of all faiths. The center has many student-led religious and social activities. Information can be obtained at the Center's reception desk or by calling 457-8129.

Three receive dental scholarships

Three SIU students have received scholarships for Dental Laboratory Technology school.

Allan R. Penny of Sparta was recipient of a $650 second-year scholarship. Richard L. Bierman of Sparta and Richard L. Hinshaw of Pontiac won $500 second-year scholarships.

These SIU students were among 18 to receive the scholarships given by the American Fund for Dental Education for the 1968-69 school year.

Bernard J. Beazley, chairman of the Fund's scholarship awards committee said this was the largest number of annual scholarships ever awarded by the Fund.

Elm trees soon to disappear from Carbondale

By Guy C. Johnson

Like the Passenger Pigeon, the American Elm tree is destined to disappear soon from the Carbondale area. Those stately trees which grace the city and campus are slowly but surely vanishing forever before an insidious scourge which relentlessly seeks them out and kills.

The victims can be seen in the backyard of a house at Whitney and Oakland, the offices of the President's Scholars Center and on Walk-up Street. A casual observer can see dead trees and stumps in the yards of most of the older homes in the area.

Death comes fast, usually before anyone is aware that there is anything wrong. The leaves turn brown, curl and fall off the branches. Next the bark begins to fall off.

Archaeologist sees

SIU digs, facilities

John Cotter, regional archaeologist for the Northwest Region, National Park Service, has been visiting archaeological digs being conducted by the SIU Museum and Inspecting Museum and Department of Anthropology facilities.

He toured field work being carried on this summer along the Kaskaskia River near New Athens and the Kincaid Mounds dig.

The National Park Service since 1958 has extended grants totaling more than $100,000 for Museum field work at southern Illinois sites, according to Philip Weigand, curator of North American archaeology. During the current year the grants amount to more than $12,000, he said.

Haag speaker

at Harrisburg

Herman M. Haag, professor of agricultural industries at SIU, discussed grain and livestock price outlooks as the speaker for the Harrisburg Production Credit Association annual meeting in Harrisburg Sept. 10.

Haag, a native of Poplar Bluff, Mo., has been on the SIU faculty since 1959. Previously he taught agricultural economics at the University of Missouri, and was director of research for the Missouri Farmers Association for 12 years. He served two years as a Ford Foundation adviser in agricultural education and development in Southeast Asia, and was on leave for a year of teaching and research in Mexico.

What once was a proud living organism is nothing more than a grotesque problem.

Carl Budelsky, a tree physiologist for the forestry department at SIU, said, "Dutch Elm disease was first reported in Illinois in 1950 and by 1959 all 102 counties had reported instances of the disease.

Budelsky said the disease didn't seem to move in any particular direction, it seemed to explode and turn up in spots isolated from one another. "If there is a direction of spread it would be the movement from a heavily populated area of Elms to the outlying areas where the spread would be slower," he added.

The disease is transmitted by tiny insects such as the European Bark Beetle, Aphids and the flea-sized Leaf Hopper. "There is no known cure, however, we can slow down the rate of spread if we act early and apply the treatment to a wide area," Budelsky said.

Budelsky said that the tree should be removed and destroyed as soon as possible and the remaining trees sprayed to kill the transmitting insects.

He added, "This type of eradication is very expensive and most people say, 'Why bother, it's going to die anyway,' and so goes the Elm."

Forest researchers are working on some kind of ipred resistance through genetics, however, it is very difficult to produce young seedlings that will produce seed before they, too, are affected. Recently a second disease which affects Elms, Phloem Necrosis has been discovered in this part of the country in addition to the Dutch Elm Disease.

The two diseases are so identical that tree experts have trouble distinguishing between the two, according to Budelsky. "The diseases in many case compliment each other; one may strike and weaken the tree and the other comes in for the kill.

Many so called "tree surgeons" have tried to capitalize on the problem by claiming "cures" when in fact it is just a matter of time until the disease will kill.

Budelsky, whose hometown is Elmhurst, said that the Elm lined streets of Elmhurst have given way to smaller and different species of trees.

"Most trees," said Budelsky, "have weaknesses, which makes it desirable for the home-owner to consider a variety of trees."

He added, "We will prob-bably have the Dutch Elm Disease and Phloem Necrosis until all of the Elms are dead."

The American Elm which has played its part in American history will probably not be around for the next generation.

Experience 'worth it'

Professor tells of Vietnam trials

Mrs. Jane P. Ford, who was dodging bullets six months ago in South Vietnam, believes what she went through was worth it.

"I think results of work with students at Ban Me Thuot show that any hardships and dangers have been justified," said Mrs. Ford, a member of the SIU education team in South Vietnam. She is an adviser at the Ban Me Thuot Normal School, where 97 highlanders known as Montagnards are studying to become teachers.

Now home on vacation, Mrs. Ford said that in the midst of fighting at Ban Me Thuot early this year when the Viet Cong entered the area, she lost two of her students to the enemy. One boy was killed, another captured and taken away.

"The Montagnards comprise an outgoing group," she said. "They're open, friendly people, and anxious to learn. Since they are so eager, it makes me eager to help." She explained that the Montagnards are not Vietnamese, but an entirely different racial stock. Two Montagnards have been students on the SIU Carbondale campus during the past year.

The SIU professor said the students, mostly boys, have an average age of 19. They board at the school when classes are in session. Right now they are on vacation.

"The Montagnards love American movies, which we get once a week from the American military," she said.

"They like cowboy and spy pictures best. In these films they can follow the action without having to concentrate on the dialogue."

Mrs. Ford was living in California when she joined the SIU team in 1966. She was assigned to the Ban Me Thuot school in 1967.

Two new ag teachers begin duties at SIU

Two new faculty members, recently approved by the SIU Board of Trustees, began their duties on the SIU School of Agriculture staff Sept. 1.

Gerald D. Coorts of the University of Rhode Island will be associate professor of plant industries, specializing in teaching and research in floriculture, ornamentals and greenhouse management. Louis E. Strack, a Murphysboro veterinarian with his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine from the University of Illinois, will have a joint appointment as assistant professor in the Department of Animal Industries and the Department of Physiology.

Coorts is a native of Emden with a master's degree from the University of Missouri and a Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Illinois (1964). He formerly was an instructor at Purdue University and joined the Rhode Island University faculty in 1964. His graduate and faculty research has been concerned primarily with nutrition problems of ornamentals and other flowering plants.

Strack, a native of Champaign, attended Eastern Illinois University before going to the University of Illinois for his bachelor's and veterinary medicine degrees. He has completed master's degree work at SIU and has been a practicing veterinarian in the Murphysboro area since 1961. He held a part-time appointment for teaching and veterinary services at SIU during the summer term. In his full-time appointment he will divide his time between animal industries and physiology teaching and research, and in animal health services for the School of Agriculture livestock centers and the small animal laboratory collections of other SIU units.

Lantz selected as visiting professor; leaves for Europe

Herman R. Lantz, SIU sociologist, left September 18 for a European trip which will take him to Ireland, Sweden, Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia, Italy, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland.

Lantz has been selected by the National Academy of Science to be a visiting professor abroad in its exchange program for the second consecutive year. He will be a visiting scientist at the Romanian Academy of Sciences for one month.

Lantz will also visit two SIU doctoral students working on dissertations. They are exchange students Richard Stivers, at the National University in Galway, Ireland, and James McMillin, at the University of Stockholm, Sweden.

Instructional TV underway

The eighth year of instructional television programs for kindergarten through Grade 8 began Sept. 16 on SIU's two stations, WSIU-TV, Channel 8, in Carbondale, and the new outlet, WUSI-TV, Channel 16, in Olney.

About 43,000 children in 200 member school districts will receive the instruction as part of their regular classroom work. The programs are produced by the SIU Broadcasting Service under the auspices of the Southern Illinois Instructional Television Association.

Color will be utilized for the first time this year in a new program, "Sing Along With Me," a series of 32 music lessons intended for the upper elementary grades. The popular "Wonder Why!" so-

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Sidney N. Starr

What was the longest football game ever played? . . . It took place in 1962 in the American Football League's title game . . . Houston and Dallas were tied at the end of regulation time and played a sudden-death overtime . . . The game wasn't decided till 17 minutes and 54 seconds of overtime . . . It's the only game in history that ever went that long.

It's hard to imagine men football players taking the field wearing pink uniforms, and playing for a school whose color was pink . . . But such a thing happened in the early days of football at a major college — Syracuse . . . However, the pink color lasted just one season . . . The next year officials quickly changed it to orange, and Syracuse's color and nickname have been "Orange" ever since.

Did you know there are two kinds of football in the world where a player has to bounce the ball when he wants to run with it? . . . In both Gaelic football as it's played in Ireland and in Australian football, player can't run with the ball as we do in American football . . . He has to dribble it — something like in basketball — when he runs.

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy — lower death rate and are living five years longer on the average than non-college men. The lower death rate of college men makes possible broader benefits and greater cash values in College Life policies. This certainly makes good sense, doesn't it?

As in the past, programs will be shown regularly Mondays through Thursdays from 8:40 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Teachers at schools which are members of the SIITA receive lesson manuals, newsletters and other teaching aids well in advance to enable them to utilize the shows to the best advantage.

Cost of the service to schools is $1 per pupil per year. This year by special arrangement, schools which

Regional data volume published

By Don Johnson

Have you ever wondered what surveys have been conducted in southern Illinois, or what the zoning plan for Edwardsville is, or what the public attitude toward press performance is?

Leads toward these answers, and to other similar questions, can be found by consulting a new publication of the Community Development Services: "The supplement to Sources of Social and Economic Information Concerning Southern Illinois."

The book, Social and Economic Information Concerning Southern Illinois, and its supplement, are the first compilation of surveys dealing with this region.

The first volume is now being printed with a press run of 2,000 copies that will go to libraries, individual researchers, and economic development agencies. It contains about 145 pages of single-spaced material listing different surveys, cross-listed by subject matter and the community where the survey was done.

Each survey listing tells the title, the locale, the researcher and the dates of the survey and offers a brief abstract.

A researcher considering investigations can go to the listings and find out who has or is running the surveys of interest to him, where they were run, what they were concerned with and what the results were, if the survey is completed.

Ernest K. Alix, assistant director of Community Development Services in charge of community studies, said the project was begun to encourage research by individual faculty members. His department offers help to persons interested in making other surveys.

"The main purpose of the whole thing is to encourage faculty members to do studies on southern Illinois," he said. "When we began the project, we found a little duplication between individual faculty members and some of the different institutes."

Part of the purpose of the compilation is to avoid duplication in the future, according to Alix. Researchers will be able to tell easily if someone else has done or is doing studies they are interested in.

The main volume will be kept in a binder, Alix said, and will be kept current by quarterly supplements. The first supplement has already been published, he said, and the second should come out about December or January.

The supplement lists surveys taken in 15 southern Illinois towns and covers topics ranging from the Edwardsville zoning plan to a study "to determine the need and/or value of a community seeing its history dramatized on stage."

The current supplement lists community development, economics, education, health and welfare, planning, recreation and social studies as topics. More will be added as the need arises, Alix said.

In preparation for the publication of the first volume, questionnaires were sent to 1,000 faculty members on the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses. About 200 replied, sending in information on surveys they were running or asking to be placed on distribution lists for the main volume and quarterly supplements.

University Centennial book

Obelisk plans history supplement

By Mary Lou Manning

"Carbondale has not had a saloon for about 10 years and it is safe to say that the city will never have saloons again."

This phrase, written during the Prohibition era, was found in the back of a 1918 Obelisk and is only one of many unusual tidbits of SIU history found by Mimi Sandifer, editor of the 1969 Centennial year-book.

The Southern Illinois Normal University was founded in 1869 and opened its doors in 1874. To commemorate the 100th anniversary of the founding, the Obelisk staff is planning an historical book—a Centennial book to supplement the regular Obelisk.

"Basically it will be a history of Southern from 1869-1969. Because it is lengthy (112 pages), we cannot only hit the high spots but go deeper into the school's development," said Miss Sandifer, a senior from Greenville. "Hopefully, we can go into every aspect of campus life."

The staff first came up with the idea of printing two books during a convention of the Associated Collegiate Press in Chicago last year.

"We were browsing around looking at other yearbooks for ideas when we saw one from the University of Kentucky which consisted of two separate books contained in one slip-cover. And we were sold," explained Shirley Rohr, editor of the regular 1969 Obelisk.

"As far as I know no other school uses this format unless for special occasions," Miss Rohr said.

When completed, the 488-page Obelisk and the 112-page Centennial book will be delivered enclosed in a slip-case.

"Tentatively, the books will be maroon, and the slip-case, cordova white—the school colors," stated Miss Rohr, a senior from Flora.

The centennial book will be printed on yellow paper and use old Egyptian type faces in the headlines. A University and Centennial seal will adorn both books.

"So far I've been digging through old yearbooks and archives looking for pictures and pieces of information. I've also looked through written histories of SIU and visited the different departments asking for old pictures," she said. "I've collected about 50 pictures depicting the early years of Southern; these are the hardest ones to find," Miss Sandifer said.

Her search has led her to the University Museum, exhibits and private individuals.

"Everyone has been so helpful to me," she added.

In her collection, Miss Sandifer has pictures of the original Old Main burning in 1883 and the 1906 women's basketball team.

Not long ago she found a poem hidden inconspicuously among the pages of 1920 Obelisk. The unsigned verse reads:

The Obelisk is wonderful;
The school gets all the fame;
The printer gets the money
And the staff gets all the blame.

Graffiti age-old barbs; no clean surface safe

By Jim Greenfield

A generation ago it was "Kilroy was here." Now it's more likely to be "make love not war."

Both are examples of graffiti—those age-old messages scribbled or lettered on walls, fences, posters, desks, vending machines and other such places.

Since the days of the cave man, the writing of graffiti has mirrored the social and political commentary of mankind's development. Therefore it is not surprising to find that the art of graffiti writing exists at institutions of higher education.

Graffiti have even permeated the hallowed halls of SIU.

Printable examples of graffiti can be found from the desk tops in Old Main to the bathroom walls of Lawson Hall—one only has to look for examples.

Some graffiti are informative such as this example: "Got a problem? Dial a Prayer."

Unfortunately the informant neglected to leave the number.

Graffiti can be political such as this example found in the Social Science Library's restroom which reads "nix on Nixon."

The recent controversy over gun control has created some interesting graffiti:

"Guns don't kill people, people kill people."

A rebuttal was found on a nearby desk:

"More people are busy buying more guns to protect themselves from more people who are buying more guns."

Some graffiti attempt to be poetical:

"See the happy moron He doesn't give a damn I wish I was a moron My God! Perhaps I am!"

One example found in Old Main asked the philosophical question "What is happiness?" Another example implored the reader to "Pray for Rosemary's Baby."

Graffiti writing takes its toll on walls and desks where it is written. A custodian in Old Main, who didn't wish to be identified said, "We constantly have to repaint walls and refinish desks because of all the damage done to them."

Some of the newer buildings such as the General Classroom and Office Building have, for the most part, escaped the serious effects of graffiti writing.

Thomas Lynch, a custodian in the General Classroom and Office Building commented that the Formica-top desks prevent much damage from occurring.

"Most of the writing can be washed off with soap and water," he said.

Graffiti resistant surfaces may signal the end to graffiti writing in the future. However, the ultimate in graffiti writing may have been reached already.

On one desk was found these words: "Help stamp out graffiti."

University Center: a building, a program, an organization

By Robert Carter

Of all the buildings on the SIU campus, perhaps none is so intimately connected with the day to day lives of the students outside the classroom as is the University Center. It is a building, a program and an organization.

The Center offers a cafeteria (Roman Room) in which the student may purchase anything from a glass of milk to a full meal, and a snack bar (Oasis) offering soft drinks, hotdogs, and hamburgers. Although these are primarily dining areas, many students use them for studying.

Other areas of the building include the Magnolia Lounge, which is used mostly as a study lounge, television room, and a bookstore.

Other recreation areas in the University Center are the Olympic Room and the bowling alley. In the Olympic Room, a student may shoot pool for 90 cents an hour or play table tennis for 30 cents an hour. The Center provides all necessary equipment except pingpong balls. Students who wish to play cards may get them free upon presentation of a student ID and a current Activity Card. In the 16-lane bowling alley, students may bowl for 35 cents a game. Bowling shoes may be rented for 15 cents.

Perhaps the most extensive services of the University Center are offered through the Student Activities Office. This is primarily a service office whose main functions include recognizing student groups and assisting students in activities outside the classroom.

Student activities on campus generally are handled by such student organizations as the Activities Programming Board with the advice and assistance of the Student Activities Office.

Services offered by the Student Activities Office include the securing of space on campus for any recognized student group wishing to present a social or educational activity and advice concerning lighting, public address systems, etc.

The Activities Office pays all rental charges on University facilities. For example, the Activities Office, which rents the University Center Ballrooms from the University Center, guarantees the use of these facilities free to any recognized student group once a year. The Activities Office also schedules meeting rooms in the activities area for use by student organizations.

In addition to these services offered to student organizations, the Student Activities Office also has outside operations. For example, it is in charge of operating the Lake-on-the-Campus.

Finally, the Student Activities Office maintains a special free checkout service. Students may check out anything from punchbowls and chess sets to blazers (for students representing the University off campus), record players and Santa Claus outfits.

Anthony Giannelli, head of the Student Activities Office, stresses the importance of student decision-making in the presentation of student activities on campus. The Student Activities Office, he says, serves primarily as an advisory and coordinating organization.

Talented students to attend

high school Rally Day Oct. 5

A large number of high school seniors are expected to attend the third annual Rally Day at SIU, Saturday, Oct. 5.

Fourteen hundred high school seniors achieving high scores on the American College Test have been extended invitations.

Jerrie Johnson, assistant director of admissions, said over 250 students and 300 parents have already sent confirmations for the program.

The major purpose of Rally Day is to present and discuss programs available at SIU for the academically talented student.

The program will begin in the morning with registration and a social hour held in Grinnell Hall at Brush Towers.

Speakers in the program will include Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar and Andrew Vaughan, assistant dean of General Studiefy.

William McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, will address a luncheon in honor of the guests.

The day's activities will conclude with a tour of the campus.

Rally Day at SIU is one of three to be held this year. The other two will be held November 6 at Bloomington and November 7 in a Chicago suburb.

The 1967 Rally Day November 4 at SIU was host to approximately 150 students.
