Carpenter's future uncertain

Football and athletic programs support troubled running back

PAUL WLEKINSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Speaking publicly at a press conference Friday afternoon at Lingle Hall for the first time since the issuance of a warrant calling for his arrest July 20, Karlton Carpenter said nothing about his future with the SIU football team or his personal well-being.

Carpenter's attorney, Rick Murray of Carbondale, instructed Carpenter not to comment on particular facts or circumstances pertaining to any of his criminal matters.

Nor would any panel members, including head football coach Jan Quarless, interim athletic director Harold Bardo and head trainer Ed Thompson, comment on Carpenter's health. Carpenter, Saluki running back, missed the July 20 court date because he was reportedly checked into a Chicago area hospital.

"First of all, I want to say it is very nice to be back here in Carbondale and at SIU," Carpenter read from a prepared statement with a low, monotone voice. "I miss being here enjoying my coaches and teammates.

"I'm not sure if I can explain to you all that has happened in my life in the past few months. I only want to tell you that I am anxious to get my life back to normal. I would appreciate any help that you guys could offer.

"And finally, I want you to know that I am sorry for any harm that I have caused the SIU football program, or the University for that matter."

Whether Carpenter, who is majoring in social work and is enrolled in classes for the fall semester, will rejoin the Salukis is still uncertain, but unlikely. Carpenter said he had started a training program for his return, but has since strayed away from it.

Whatever Carpenter decides to do, both the football program and the athletic program will stand by their man.

"We're very happy that he is here," Quarless said. "Based on all that has taken place, we want him with us. We're not so much concerned when he'll actually play, but he's a member of our football team."

Carpenter's legal troubles began in February when he was stopped in De Soto for speeding and was given until April to pay the fine. A warrant was issued for his arrest because of his failure to pay.

He was then arrested May 8, by state, Carbondale and SIU police on misdemeanor

Council may extend parking prohibitions on Illinois Avenue

KAREN BLATTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

The Carbondale City Council will vote tonight on prohibiting parking on the west side of the 500 block of South Illinois Avenue between midnight and 7 a.m.

The present ordinance restricts parking in that area from 3 to 7 a.m. to allow for street cleaning. Parking on the east side of the street is always restricted.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said the change in the ordinance is for the concern of the safety of cars and for the possible activity on the Strip.

"Because of the problems that occur when the bus comes, there are concerns about vehicles being parked in that area," he said.

Three parking spots, across the street from Stix Bar and Billiards, 517 S. Illinois Ave., will be the only spots affected.

In October 1998, the Council made an agreement to ban parking from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. on South Illinois Avenue from College Street to Hospital Drive for 30 days.

The council also will vote on the last step to allow a student-oriented apartment complex to be constructed on the south side of the city.

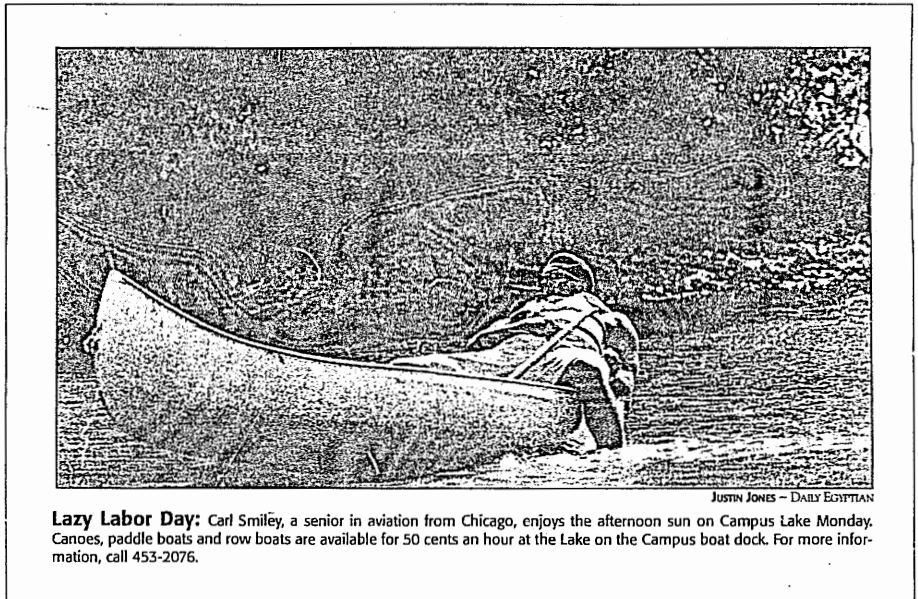

Place Collegiate Properties will submit the final Planned Unit Development (PUD) for the site of Saluki Place, 2170 S. Illinois Ave. The proposed 204-unit apartment complex will be constructed in two phases on 26 acres of land.

The PUD has to be approved before the council can issue zoning and building permits. The complex is scheduled to open in August 2000 with 11 buildings and 504 bedrooms.

Doherty also will submit a report about the possibility of expanding the city council. The report was requested by Councilman Brad Cole to describe how the composition of the city council may be changed.

The report reveals that any changes in the number of council members can only be made by voter referendum.

Watergate's Bernstein to speak at SIUC

TRAVIS MORSE
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Carl Bernstein, journalist and author best known for uncovering the Watergate scandal for the Washington Post, will speak today at 8 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Watergate was one of the defining moments of the early 1970s. After Bernstein and his colleague, Bob Woodward, broke a story about a White House cover-up of a break-in at Democratic headquarters, President Richard Nixon was forced to resign from office in 1974. Woodward and Bernstein went on to write two best-selling books on the subject, "All the President's Men" and "The Final Days."

"All the President's Men" became an acclaimed film directed by Alan Pakula and starring Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman.

Scott Furtwengler, associate director of the University Honors Program, is sure Bernstein's speech will make for an interesting evening.

"The speech will probably focus on his views regarding the state of journalism and investigative reporting now," Furtwengler said.

"I think it will allow us to get a fascinating insider's perspective on journalism and politics from someone who's seen both the good and the bad."

Furtwengler said the speech should cover the changes journalism has undergone since the time of the Watergate scandal.

"I think Bernstein will discuss how investigative journalism has evolved or devolved over time and also how our cultural climate, as a whole, has changed," Furtwengler said.

Frederick Williams, director of the University Honors Program, believes there are many benefits to be gained from attending Bernstein's lecture.

"The benefits are numerous," Williams said. "Those who weren't adults when Watergate broke will be able to reach back to that time and learn about the subject from someone who was a player."

Williams said the presentation should be of interest to everyone, regardless of whether or not they want to learn about the Watergate scandal.

"This will be an opportunity for fresh ideas to blow across the intellectual landscape," Williams said. "No matter what Mr. Bernstein talks about, I'm sure it will be intelligent, thought-provoking and of interest to our minds."

Williams said journalistic style will be one area Bernstein probably will avoid.

"He's not going to talk about journalistic style specifically," Williams said.

INVESTIGATE

In addition to his lecture tonight at 8, Bernstein will speak with reporters at 3 p.m. today in the Ohio Room of the Student Center.

For more information, contact Frederick Williams at 453-2824. To contact Bernstein, call the Royce Carlton Agency at (212) 355-7700.

Four suits but no license

SIU school of law grad unable to practice, but subject of two lawsuits

DAPHNE RETTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Although Matt Hale has been refused a license to practice law by the Illinois State Bar Association, one wouldn't know it by the amount of time he has spent in the court system lately.

Hale

Hale, a graduate of the SIU School of Law, is the openly racist leader of the World Church of the Creator. Hale currently has four lawsuits pending, two of which name him as the defendant.

July 2, former church member Benjamin Smith went on a two-day, racially motivated shooting spree, killing two and injuring nine. All the victims were black, Jewish or Asian. When police closed in on Smith July 4, he ended his own life.

Days after the shooting, a civil suit was filed on behalf of 15-year-old Ephraim Wolfe, one of the Orthodox Jews wounded by Smith. The suit alleges that Hale's church promotes violence against minorities and should, thus, be held responsible.

Hale insists he is in no way responsible for the shootings.

"I certainly wish that Ben Smith had not done this," Hale said. "In reality, everyone is responsible for their own actions."

One week after the civil suit was filed, Illinois Attorney General Jim Ryan filed a suit against Hale and his church. The suit alleges WCTC has been representing itself as a charity but is not registered with the attorney general's office accordingly.

Although Hale was to respond to the suit by Aug. 14, he was granted an extension until Sept. 9.

Lori Cornell, spokeswoman for the attorney general's office, said statements made by the WCTC can mislead the public.

"[Hale] calls [his church] a non-profit organization," Cornell said. "If you hold yourself out to be a charity organization, you must file with the attorney general."

Hale said that while his church is a non-profit organization, it is not, by any means, a charity. Hale denied the charges and called the suit "frivolous."

"If you ask the average guy on the street, I don't think he'd call us a charity," he said. "I hope it doesn't go to trial because it's a waste of taxpayer money."

Hale maintains the suit is driven by ulterior motives and lacks merit.

"They've brought the lawsuit to gain votes and because they hate us," he said.

The Illinois bar affirmed a judgment June 30 to deny Hale his license to practice law. Hale has filed an appeal, which is still pending, to the Illinois Supreme Court.

Hale also has a suit pending against Illinois State University, an ISU student and an ISU faculty member for retracting an invitation for

Rape prevention classes offered this fall

BOB JACOBINI
DAILY EGYPTIAN

SIUC crime statistics show sexual assaults on campus are declining, but the vast majority of rapes don't get reported, said Mary Kay Bachman, executive director of the Carbondale Women's Center.

Don Elliott, community resource officer for the Carbondale Police Department, said one of the best ways to avoid becoming a victim is to take the rape prevention course offered this fall by the Carbondale Police Department.

Forcible sex crimes reported to SIUC police decreased from 12 in 1996 to four in 1998, according to SIUC campus crime statistics.

But Bachman said that's just the tip of the iceberg.

"Last year we served 329 sexual assault survivors," she said.

Most sexual assaults go unreported even to a rape crisis center, Bachman said.

The Women's Center provides advocacy, individual counseling and group counseling for sexual assault victims.

Bachman declined to estimate how many rapes go unreported in Carbondale, but cited American Medical Association figures that only one in 10 victims report an assault to the

Three ways to beat the high cost of college.

1. The Montgomery GI Bill
2. Student loan repayment
3. Part-time income

The Army Reserve Alternate Training Program is a smart way to pay for college. First, if you qualify, the Montgomery GI Bill can provide you with over $9,000 for current college expenses or approved w/tech training.

Second, if you have or obtain a qualified student loan not in default, you may get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $1,500, whichever is greater, up to a maximum of $10,000. Selected military skills can double that maximum.

Third, you can earn part-time money in college, and here's how it works: One summer you take Basic Training, and the next summer you receive skill training at an Army school. You'll earn over $2,000 for Basic and even more for skill training. Then you'll attend monthly meetings at an Army Reserve unit near your college, usually one weekend a month plus two weeks a year. You'll be paid over $118 a weekend to start. It's worth thinking about. Give us a call:

Our Word

S.E.E. and H.O.P.E. forum a waste of time

The time for Jo Ann Argersinger pep rallies is over. If organizations like Students for Excellence in Education and Help Overcome our Present Emergency want to lead a wave of change, their forums must stop being discussion stimulators and become action initiators.

The sparse attendance at Wednesday's forum sponsored by S.E.E. and H.O.P.E. serves only to drive home the point the Daily Egyptian tried to get across all summer — the SIUC community, as a whole, is ready to get past the termination of former chancellor Jo Ann Argersinger.

While we admire the initiative of Dawn Roberts, coordinator of S.E.E., to have organized a forum of this nature, we have to ask if her energy would have been better spent organizing a forum to hammer out issues that are more pressing for SIUC, such as recruitment and retention problems, poor technology infrastructure or the Athletic Department's deficit. Better yet, how about finally putting the events of June behind us and working together to improve this campus and our vested interest in it?

How many more times will we hear of plots to mutinize the Board of Trustees and overthrow Ted Sanders? How much longer will the community be subjected to public forums, malicious press releases and broad, vengeful personal attacks on character of SIUC's top administrators?

SIUC has become home to a vocal minority of faculty, staff and students who cannot come to grips with three important facts: (1) Argersinger is terminated and very likely will not be returning to her former post; (2) even if Argersinger was to regain her former post, she would not be able to effectively do her job; and (3) forums to discuss Argersinger's termination are a waste of time.

For anyone who may take exception with the previous statement, let's talk numbers. SIUC is home to about 20,000 students and about 5,200 faculty and staff. Because H.O.P.E. claims to represent community members, let's figure in the 27,000 residents of Carbondale, too. About 65 people attended the S.E.E. forum Wednesday, not counting panelists and the media.

When it's all said and done, a little more than 1 percent of the University and Carbondale community cared enough about the "present emergency" to show up at the Student Center Auditorium to reshuffle this topic for the umpteenth time since June.

If these forums are designed to recruit members to the cause or to ignite a sweeping fire of change, then S.E.E. and H.O.P.E. need to find a new fuel to burn. If there really is a "present emergency," SIUC surely would be doomed from the lack of actual rectifying action to this point.

For S.E.E. and H.O.P.E. to lead meaningful existence, they must rethink their strategies and devote serious time and energy in building lines of communication with administrators who are capable of addressing their grievances.

John Jackson is one of these administrators, and while he may carry an interim designation in his title, he is still SIUC's chancellor and must be acknowledged as such. Whether or not he becomes our campus' permanent leader, he currently holds the reigns.

Rather than looking at Jackson as "The Guy Who Replaced Jo Ann," S.E.E. and H.O.P.E. must recognize him as a valued consultant to the very process of change they hope to invoke. A good way to stymie this process is by inviting him to a public forum at which he obviously would be uncomfortable and then berating him in public because he declined the invitation.

Without quality interaction, S.E.E. and H.O.P.E. will get about as far with their goals as a slug in a can of Crisco. These groups need a plan centered around communication and achievable goals. Otherwise, the forums and discussions will forever result in all-talk-no-action meetings where people console each other about the loss of Argersinger and never get anything accomplished.

Simple act of parking kindness causes chain reaction

Angels Among Us

ANNA BETH TRAYNOR

Angels Among Us appears Tuesdays. Anna is a senior in English education. Her opinion does not necessarily reflect that of the DAILY EGYPTIAN.

TRAYNOR@SIU.EDU

Have you ever tried to drive around this campus searching for a parking space before class?

I have, and so have some of my friends. Needless to say, parking on this campus is pretty much impossible.

One of my friends ran into class on the first day, tired and out of breath, exhausted from her quest for a parking space.

Frustration rising, my friend continued to explain that after driving around searching for a spot for a good 30 minutes, she was forced to park near the Student Recreation Center because there were no other close parking spaces available.

This meant my friend was forced to walk in her work clothes to Faner Hall, thereby making her late for class.

With this grim story in mind, I sat and waited around 5 p.m. Tuesday just to pull out of one of the overnight lots near Greek Row.

Five minutes went by, and I began to get frustrated.

Ten minutes went by, and I began to get a little angry.

How hard is it to take a few seconds to let an individual pull out of a parking space, to show a little consideration for others, a little selflessness?

Just when I felt the beginnings of SIUC-induced road rage, a young mother in a red mini-van let me out.

How kind of her to let me out, even though, as a student-mother, she probably had tons of things to do.

A little inspired, I continued to crawl through traffic at a snail's pace.

As I came to the next lot, a young woman looked like she desperately needed to get out of the lot. Absorbed in the whole problem of traffic, I almost forgot about the kind of gift that was just given to me moments before.

So, I let her out, out of respect for the woman who showed me kindness.

As we proceeded on, the lady in front of me let a male student out.

I am pretty sure the mom in the mini-van had no idea that her act of kindness could actually affect the lives of others. Because of her, three people got out into traffic during rush hour, nothing short of a minor miracle at SIUC.

Driving back to school the next day, I was alarmed to witness the aftermath of a fairly severe traffic accident. Chills ran up my spine as I viewed an ambulance taking away an individual, leaving some people on the sidewalk crying.

My thoughts shot back to the kindness shown through cars the day before, and I was instantly thankful for the lesson in patience and giving I was taught by the mom in the mini-van.

But, it just goes to show that showing a little consideration towards others cannot only make a difference in one life, but may save the lives of others.

Dorm cafeterias 'grab and go' idea isn't so great

DEAR EDITOR:

When I first came back this semester, I was approached by an awkward situation. Our cafeteria in Thompson Point has adopted a system where the student is forced to either stay and eat or be subject to taking a skimpy, brown paper bag lunch.

What is the point of this change? The reason the authorities decided to give students was that they wanted to save the environment. There are many ways to save the world; this is just another excuse for the cafeteria to make more money. By shortening the portion on a carryout, the cafeterias don't have to order as much, which leaves them with more money.

What's the point of making more money if this system isn't what the students want? I don't want to be regulated on what I want to eat when I decide to "carry-out" my lunch or dinner, and I don't appreciate being forced to "sit-in" to get a fulfilling meal.

Maybe the cafeterias should go by our input the next time they decide to make a major decision on changing our meal plans. We are paying for this privilege of "carry-out," so if you have to spend more of our money to feed us, by all means go right ahead. My freedom to choose whether to "dine-in" or "carry-out" goes right along with my right to free speech as well as my right to vote.

I believe this system of "grab and save us a few pennies" should be destroyed, and our old system of "carry-it-out and enjoy the freedom of choice" should be returned to us. We deserve the right to at least choose what gets changed.

Reason for declining foreign students: declining funds

DEAR EDITOR:

Do not blame only SIUC. There is another reason why the number of international students from Asian countries have been decreasing.

After reading the DAILY EGYPTIAN's opinion titled "SIUC needs to show international a little Southern hospitality" (Sept. 2), I had something to say from an Asian student's point of view.

We have had a long, serious and unprecedented depression in many Asian countries over the years. The governments and many people are struggling with the financial crisis. The unemployment rate has been steadily going up; the value of the currencies have been going down. Although the governments try to recover, it seems to take time.

In response to that, many Asian students who are eager to study in America have lost their financial support. It is a fact that they sometimes have to give up coming to America, or even have to go back to their countries before getting degrees. Some of my Asian friends nervously check the exchange rate to compare their countries' currencies with dollars from time to time.

I do not know other colleges' situations, but I assume they hold the same kinds of problems. The financial crisis in Asia affects students in many ways. I think what has happened at SIUC for the past five years is only one example.

So, SIUC's decision to cut international tuition is good action for international students. I sincerely appreciate it.

CAROL MCDONNELL - DAILY EGYPTIAN

Darin Ray, a junior in pre-medicine from Mount Vernon and potential rush candidate for Beta Theta Pi fraternity, talks to house member Dan Hold, a sophomore in architecture from Chicago, outside the fraternity's new house at 505 W. Main St. The fraternity had an open house from 5:30 until 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Beta Theta Pi garners awards

Fraternity receives national recognition for service around campus

DAILY EGYPTIAN

Beta Theta Pi won three national awards for their contributions to the community and University in their first year of eligibility for the honors.

The fraternity received the Francis W. Sisson Chapter Excellence award, the John Holt Duncan Award for Community Service (honorable mention) and the Campus Involvement award from the National Beta Theta Pi Office.

Matt Schober, rush chair for Beta Theta Pi and last year's president, said the fraternity worked together as a whole to win the awards.

"The whole chapter had these goals. We didn't win this because of a few members," Schober said. "Everyone put in a lot of hard work."

The Francis W. Sisson award is the highest award a chapter can receive from nationals, Schober said. Only 31 out of 163 chapters were recipients.

The John Holt Duncan award rewarded the chapter for being the second most active chapter in community service throughout the national Beta Theta Pi system.

The Campus Involvement award was one of five handed out by the national office for chapters who get involved in campus life and help better it.

Beta Theta Pi worked the whole year to keep scholarship, community service and campus involvement high.

According to Schober, the chapter logged more than 2,000 hours of community service last fall.

The whole chapter had these goals. We didn't win this because of a few members. Everyone put in a lot of hard work.

MATT SCHOBER
rush chair for Beta Theta Pi

"We started a walk-a-thon for the American Cancer Society," Schober said. "We walked for 36 hours straight, even the [former] chancellor, [Jo Ann Argersinger], walked the last year to keep before kick off."

Beta Theta Pi also teamed up with the basketball program to organize Coaches vs. Cancer, in which donations were collected anytime an SIU basketball player scored a three-point basket.

The fraternity also requires every member to be involved with other Registered Student Organizations to help members become more rounded as well as to be involved with campus related activities.

"We are a social fraternity, but we do a lot of community service," Schober said. "It gives you skills you'll need in every day, college life, and it helps you get involved in University life."

The Beta Theta Pi chapter at SIUC was chartered last August, and Schober said even though their first year was a success, they look forward to improving.

"After our outstanding year last year, we want to increase our grades and intramurals," Schober said. "We want to win more general fraternity awards. It's going to be hard, but we want to be one of the best Beta settle the battle to be SIU's premier quarterback. "I imagine in a game or two, (Quarless) will come to a decision of going to one guy," Potete said. "But I guess if things are working well, don't fix what's not broken."

The Saluki defense is not broke, either. Junior defensive end Andre Bailey, who arrived at SIU as a walk-on, was the brightest star for the defensive unit that contained the Indians to a paltry 22 yards rushing in 37 attempts. Bailey, who makes up for being undersized by utilizing his exceptional quickness and aggression, was a key cog in what looks like an improved defensive line. The defensive front four made life miserable for sophomore Indian quarterback Bobby Brune, who was sacked six times.

"I think I'm a lot quicker than a lot of defensive line players, so when I come to play, I think a lot of [offensive linemen] are a little intimidated because they're not used to it," Bailey said. "Tonight, it worked to my advantage."

SIU's biggest lead of the game came at the end of the third quarter, when a 19-yard Koutsos touchdown run ballooned the Saluki lead to 35-10. From there, the game was never in serious peril, although a pair of late, on-side kick recoveries gave the locals at Houck Stadium fleeting hope for an Indian comeback.

Quarless said he is satisfied with the intensity shown by the Salukis, but wants to ensure the squad makes progress.

"We still have improvements [to make], there's no question," Quarless said. "But I hope that each game we get better."

The schedule gets a whole lot tougher for SIU in the weeks ahead, but that is unlikely to diminish enthusiasm in the Saluki camp. After all the grueling workouts leading up to the season, Bailey and his teammates are finally seeing the fruits of their labor.

"Everybody was excited in the locker room to start off the season with a win — we've been waiting for this for a long time," Bailey said. "Justice has been done."

Saluki note: The 43 points scored by SIU was the highest Saluki offensive output since a 48-18 victory over Winston-Salem State University in 1996 — a span of 30 games.

he's like 'daddy, daddy,' Carpenter told the EGYPTIAN about his son's awareness of his father's football savvy. "It could be anybody — Alonzo Spellman — and he says, 'That's my daddy.'"

The Chicago Bears released Spellman after he checked into a Chicago area mental hospital for depression in 1997.

Carpenter too was hospitalized, resulting in his failure to appear in court July 20 on felony charges. But no one could comment during Friday's press conference about whether the hospitalization was of a physical or mental nature.

Carpenter trudged his way into the press conference staring at his feet while being directed by head football coach Jan Quarless. Carpenter had some trouble reading the prepared statement, and he spoke in a distinct, monotone voice as his eyes approached the horizon just once during the 10-minute press conference.

"I'm fine," Carpenter muttered in a less-than-confident, broken voice.

Is he? A troubled history and the past year wouldn't allow one to believe that. He didn't look fine. And he certainly didn't sound fine either.

Carpenter's troubles may be bigger than they appear

Somewhere along the line during the past year, something has happened to Karlton Carpenter. What that may be, only he knows.

Carpenter, SIU's all-time leading rusher, spoke publicly for the first time Friday about his situation, which didn't include much information at all. The circumstances around Carpenter's situation may have been foreshadowed just a year ago.

Last fall, Carpenter proudly showed photographs of his 8-month-old — at the time — twin daughters, Keyara and Kyra, and his 2-year-old son, Keyshawn, to the DAILY EGYPTIAN. He spoke of his dream to play in the National Football League and of becoming financially independent to support his family.

Off the field, troubling times were building for the promising 21-year-old running back. Carpenter's childhood friend Jacques Hall shot and killed himself. Mavis King, the great aunt who took care of Carpenter on occasions, died of liver disease. And Pearl Harris, the grandmother who raised him, was diagnosed with cancer.

The psychological distress was compounded for Carpenter when Saun Wilkerson, former Saluki defensive back and godfather to Keyshawn, quit the team for personal reasons. Carpenter said he thought about following his friend's lead before realizing his responsibilities as a father.

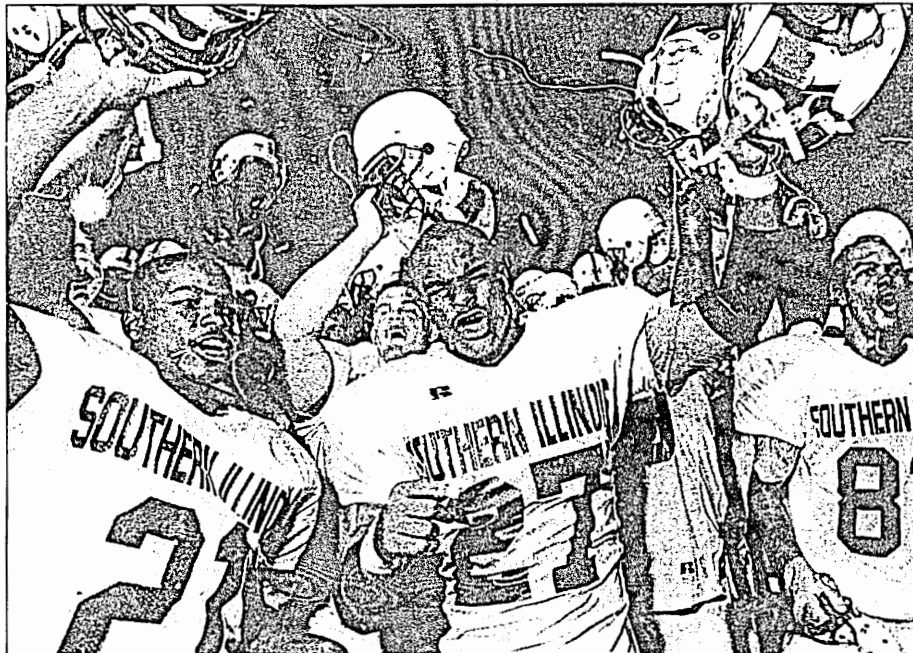

"I wasn't going to come back," Carpenter told the EGYPTIAN Sept. 20, 1998. "(But) that's my motivation, I guess. If you have three kids, it'd make you want to be there. That's why I'm in college, to make their futures better. I'm trying to set an example for my kids and for the... to want to follow in my footsteps."

Do what daddy says, not what daddy does, has been the rule of late. Somewhere along the line, maybe with his first run-in with the law in February, just a month after passing on the NFL, an unknown force has misguided Carpenter.

Something is going on inside Carpenter's head that only he knows.

A quote from Keyshawn may help explain it in an unfortunate, but ironic manner.

"Every time football comes on the TV,

DOUG LARSON - DAILY EGYPTIAN

A successful opening act

JAY SCHWAB
DAILY EGYPTIAN

For a team that had many pressing questions entering its first game, SIU's football team sure appeared to have all the answers during Thursday's impressive 43-25 season-opening win at the expense of Southeast Missouri State University.

After a disastrous first minute of the game, featuring a fumble by SIU quarterback Sherard Potete that turned into an Indian touchdown, the Salukis settled in and cruised to a 26-7 half-time lead against an Indian team that appeared out of rhythm from the outset.

While both Potete (9 of 18, 146 yards passing) and fellow Saluki signal-caller Ryan Douglass (65 yards rushing) performed competently, the biggest story was the instant success of true freshman tailback Tom Koutos.

Thrust into the spotlight by the unavailability of senior running backs Karlton Carpenter and Paul Davis, Koutos capitalized on a solid performance by the Saluki offensive line in making his first game as a Saluki a memorable one.

By the time the night was complete, the unlikely hero had found the end zone twice in the process of running over the Indians for 194 yards in 19 carries.

Koutos, who led the state of Illinois in rushing with 2,274 yards as a senior at Marmion Academy in Oswego, kept his modesty intact despite his big splash into college waters.

"As a freshman, I'm unproven, and the coaches don't know what I can do. So I'm just trying to earn the respect of my teammates and my coaches so they can have confidence in me whenever my number's called," Koutos said.

SIU head coach Jan Quarless prefers the 1-0 start to the season opening losses his first two Saluki teams suffered. In addition to Koutos' outing, the coach was impressed by the poised Potete showed in steadying the offense after his costly first quarter cough-up.

"I kind of shook my head and said 'Holy smokes, here we go again,'" Quarless said. "But I thought (Potete) was impressive because he maintained his composure and got us back in moving the offense."

As expected, Potete started at quarterback for the Salukis, before giving way to Douglass during the second quarter. Both players saw plenty of time in the second half, and exhibited their differing styles.

Potete stayed true to his reputation as a drop-back passer, while Douglass used his nimbleness to flee the pocket 13 times while only attempting four passes.

For his part, Potete said there is no rush to
